 Pursue them to waste and destroy," says the LORD, "and do all I decree." 21

War sounds in the land with her mighty destruction and breaking; 22
 Her hammer smashes the land, and Babel becomes but a wreck to the Nations! 23
 Babel! I tried for and caught you, and you did not know or suspect Me; 24
 I found, and I also have caught, for you strove with JEHOVAH!
 The LORD's storehouse was opened, He brought out his weapons of anger, 25
 For the GREAT LORD OF HOSTS has a work in the land of the Kasdim!
 Come to her from far, break her stones, cast them out like a corn heap! 26
 Dissipate all that she has, and let not a fragment be left her!
 Destroy all the bullocks she has, driving them down to the slaughter;— 27
 Woe! for them! for their day has now come, the time of their anguish!

Cry out, "Fly and escape from the country of Babel!" 28
 Tell to Zion, "The LORD our GOD is avenging, avenging His Temple!"
 Summon legions to Babel, all archers and bowmen to camp round against her, 29
 Let none escape from her! Repay her her work,—all she did, do to her!
 For she insulted the LORD,—the Most Holy of Israel!
 "And therefore her youths," says the LORD, "shall fall down on her squares, 30
 "And her warriors faint on that day.

I am opposed to your pride," says the GREAT LORD of Armies; 31
 "For your day has arrived, and the time I chastize you.
 When your pride shall totter and fall, and without restoration, 32
 When I kindle your towms and consume all around them!"

Israel's Redeemer.

33 Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS:—
 "The children of Israel and the children of Judah are both alike oppressed, and all who capture, hold 34 them;—they refuse to liberate. The name of their Redeemer is the Mighty LORD OF HOSTS. He will plead their cause, to bring rest to the land; but 35 will agitate Babel. A sword is over the Kasdim, says the LORD, and against the inhabitants of Babel, and against her Nobles and Philosophers!
 36 A sword is against her powerful, who will act foolishly. A sword is against her heroes, and they shall be cowards.
 37 A sword is against her horses and chariots, and against all the mercenaries within her, and they shall become like women. A sword is against her treasuries, and they shall be 38 plundered. A drought is against her rivers, and they shall be dried up; for it is a land of Idols, and they are mad for Images!
 39 "Therefore the howling beasts of the desert shall dwell there,—and the young of the ostrich, for it shall not be re-peopled for ever, and not inhabited for ages of ages! As GOD 40 overwhelmed Sodom and Gomorah, and their neighbours," says the EVER-LIVING, "no man shall dwell there, and no son of Adam lodge in her!"

Look! A People comes from the 41
 North! and a great Nation; and many kings raise themselves from the sides of the earth! They seize the 42 bow and quiver—they are fierce and pity not, with a voice like the roaring sea. They ride on disciplined horses like soldiers, to assail you, daughters of Babel. The king of Babel will 43 hear the report, and his hands fail, and anguish seize him like a childing woman.

See him advance like a lion from 44
 the flooding of the Jordan to the permanent pasture;—"I will assail from their rear! What hero can defend them? For who is equal to me? And who expects me, and what shepherd can stand before me?"

Therefore hear the purpose of the 45
 EVER-LIVING, which He intends against Babel, and the plans He has planned against the land of the 46 Kasdim,—if they do not draw in the young of the flock, if they do not withdraw themselves from the meadow,—the earth shall shake at the sound of the crash of Babel, and the Nations will hear her shriek!

51 Thus says the EVER-LIVING,
"Look! I will raise against Babel and her presumptuous-hearted people, 2 a scorching wind, and send fanners to Babel to winnow her, and they shall empty her country. For they will come against her from around in 3 a bad time. Against the bowman, let the archer bend his bow; and against the marcher in armour; and pity not her youth; exterminate all her army, 4 and throw down the wounded in the land of the Kasdim, and the stabbed 5 in her streets! For Israel and Judah are not destitute of their GOD, the LORD OF HOSTS, although their country was full of offence against the HOLY of Israel!"

Fly from the midst of Babel! And 6 let each escape with his life! Be not subject to her sins; for it is the time for her punishment by the EVER-LIVING,—He will pay her wages!

Babel's golden cup from the hand 7 of the EVER-LIVING made all the earth drunk with her wine! The nations drank,—therefore the nations raved. Suddenly Babel falls, and 8 breaks! Howl over her! Take balm for her pain,—perhaps she may be cured? They may medicate Babel; 9 —but she will not be cured! Abandon her, and all march to your own countries, for her crime was against the heavens, and her conviction comes from beyond the clouds!

The Delivery of Judah.

10 The LORD has restored our right!
Come let us relate it to Zion,
The act of the LORD our GOD.

11 Sharpen the arrows, and sling the shields,
The LORD has inspired the Median king,
Who plans against Babel destruction,
When the LORD will avenge His temple!

12 Hoist the flag against Babel's walls;
Strengthen the guard, and appoint for the watch;
Make ready the column to storm!
For the LORD intends, and will do what He says,
Against the people of Babel!

13 Prosperous dweller, by plenteous stream
Your end has come, your measure is full!
14 The LORD OF HOSTS has sworn by His life,
He will fill you with men like worms,
Who will come up against you with cheers!

A Psalm to the Creator.

15 He made the earth by His power,
By His knowledge, He formed the spheres,
And spread out the skies by His skill!

16 At His voice, the sea roars to the skies,
And clouds from the horizon rise up,
With the lightnings and rain that He makes,
And HE brings the wind out of His stores.

17 All ignorant men are like brutes;
Every maker of idols is base;
For he fashions a lie without soul!
18 They are vain, and the work of delusion;
In the season of trial they fail.
19 Jacob's portion is never like them;
His Name is the LORD of Sabaoth,
It was He who constructed all things,
And chose him, a RACE for Himself.

" You are My hammer, and weapons of war, 20
 And I hammer the nations by you,
 And by you I break up the kingdoms!
 Hammer horse and his rider by you, 21
 And by you hammer chariot and driver,
 And hammer by you man and wife, 22
 And hammer by you old and young,
 And hammer by you youths and girls,
 And hammer by you flock and keeper, 23
 And by you hammer ploughman and plough,
 And by you hammer Rulers and governed;
 And will pay back again upon Babel 24
 And all who reside with the Kasdim,
 The sufferings they laid upon Zion,
 And that in your sight," says the LORD.

The Summons to Babel.

25 " Mountain! I am against you," says the LORD, " to lay you waste!
 You wasted the whole earth,—so I will direct My hand against you, and roll you from the peaks, and make 26 you a burnt-out volcano, from which they will not take stone for building, or a stone for foundations,—but you shall be a perpetual desolation," says
 the LORD.
 27 " Raise a standard in the earth, blow a trumpet among the Nations. Prepare the Nations against her! Summon the Kingdoms! Ararat, Mini, and Ashkanaz. Appoint generals against her, to lead the horsemen 28 like hairy caterpillars! Prepare the Nations against her,—the Kings of the Medes, with their marshals and all their lieutenants, all the countries 29 they govern. Make the land shake and reel, for the intention of the LORD is fixed against Babel, to turn the country of Babel to a waste, and 30 without inhabitants. The heroes of Babel evade the fight! They sit in their forts! Their courage has failed!
 Their houses are fired,—their bars
 31 are broken!—Postman runs to meet postman,—and reporter to meet reporter, to tell the king of Babel that his city is captured on all sides!
 32 That the fords are seized,—the reeds burnt with fire,—and his soldiers in terror!"
 For thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, 33
 the GOD of Israel; " The daughter of Babel is like corn at thrashing time; tread her after a while, when the harvest time comes to her."
 Nebukhadnezzar, King of Babel, 34 has devoured and torn us; has left us an empty jar,—swallowed us like a serpent,—he has gorged his belly with our sweets,—he shall vomit us up!
 Let the lady of Zion say, " My 35 violation and outraging be upon Babel!" " And my blood upon the people of Kasdim," Jerusalem cries.
 " Therefore," thus says the LORD, 36
 " I will plead your cause, and execute justice on account of you, and dry up the water, and make her fountains dry, and Babel shall become a 37 stone heap,—the haunt of serpents,
 —a waste, and jungle, without inhabitants.
 " They roar together like tigers. 38
 They growl like young lions. I will 39 fit their drink to their thirst, when they will get drunk for joy,—and sleep an everlasting sleep, and never awaken!" The LORD says, " I will lay them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams and goats."

Song on the Capture of Babylon.

How was the Bronze Gate captured? 41
 And the Bride of the World been seized?
 How was Babel made the desert of nations?
 The sea comes up against Babel!
 She is o'erwhelmed by its rolling billows! 42
 Her cities are made a waste, 43
 Her earth is dry and is black,
 A land in which no man dwells,
 And no son of Adam goes over!

- 44 I will visit Bel in Babel,
And bring his glut out of his mouth ;
45 When the nations will no more seek him,
For the walls of Babel shall fall !

A Warning to Israel.

- 46 " Beware of your heart failing and being afraid at the rumours you may hear in the country ; for a rumour shall come one year, and another year a report of disturbance in the land, governor against governor,
17 because the times come that I will visit the idols of Babel, and all her land, to degrade them, and all her wounded shall fall in her midst.
48 Then the heavens shall cheer over Babel, and the earth and all that is in it, when her plunderers come from the north," says the LORD.
49 " For as Babel flung down the wounded of Israel, so the wounded of Babel shall fall all over the ground.
50 Fly from the sword and go ! Delay not ! Remember the LORD from afar ! And ascend to Jerusalem in your hearts."
51 We are ashamed, for we have been insulted,—our faces are covered with disgrace, for loathsome things have entered the sanctuary of the House of the LORD.
52 The days, however, come," says the LORD, "when I will punish her idols, and the wounded shall groan in all her country. Although Babel mounts to the skies, and although she fortifies her lofty strength, her plunderers shall come with Me," says the LORD.
54 There will be the sound of shrieking from Babel, and of a great crash from the land of the Kasdim, when the LORD will desolate Babel, and a great sound will come from her like the roaring billows when many seas utter their growling voice ! For destruction comes upon Babel,—her warriors are captured,—their bows are broken, for the LORD is a GOD of requitals,—He will repay ! " Then I will make her nobles, and learned, and viceroys, and governors, and heroes drunk,—and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and never awake," says the King named the LORD OF HOSTS.
58 Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS :—
" The broad wall of Babel shall be demolished ! and her high gates be burnt with fire ! Thus Peoples have wearied themselves for a vapour, and nations for the fire,—and are exhausted ! "

Instruction of Jeremiah to Seriah.

The order that Jeremiah the 59, Preacher gave to Seriah-ben-Neriahb-ben-Maksiah, when he was sent by Zedekiah, king of Judah, to Babel, in the fourth year of his reign. Seriah had been High Chamberlain.

Now Jeremiah had engraved all the 60, punishments that would come upon Babel in a book,—all these things that he wrote about Babel, and 61 Jeremiah said to Seriah, " When you come to Babel, be careful to read these things, and say, ' LORD, You 62: have spoken against this place to exterminate it, until it is uninhabited by men or beasts, and it becomes a desolation for ever ! ' And when you 63 have finished reading the book fasten a stone to it, and fling it into the middle of the Frath, and say ' Babel 64 shall sink like that, and never rise from the distress I will bring upon her.' " 1

At this point the Sermons of Jeremiah are finished.

A Hebrew Editor's Supplementary Note describing the Capture of Jerusalem.

Zedekiah was twenty-one years old 52: at his coronation, and he reigned

1 NOTE.—Ch. 51, v. 64. To us it seems a strange plan to fling " A Book " into the middle of a river larger than the Thames to preserve it safe for seventy years, but we now know from the discoveries at Nineveh and Babylon that in the time of the Prophet " Books " were not written on paper or skin, but upon stone slates, or more commonly upon tablets of potter's clay, upon which the words were engraved by a graving tool, and the plates afterwards burnt like pottery, which made them indestructible, so that the river's bed was the safest place to put the record, to be found again on the Euphrates being drained dry by Darius and Cyrus previous to their storming Babylon. It is recorded by Josephus that the bale containing them was then discovered. Had they not been thus preserved, we may be sure Nebukhadnezzar would not have left a fragment of them in existence.—F. F.

- eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal daughter
 2 of Jeremiah of Libnah. But he did wrong in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, in every way that Jhoiakim had done;
 3 for it came from the anger of the LORD against Jerusalem and Judah, to make them fling themselves from His presence, and Zedekiah to the king of Babel.
- 4 So it arrived in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth day of the tenth month, that King Nebukhad-
 5 nezzar, king of Babel, came with all his forces to Jerusalem, and encamped against it, and built an 6 embankment around, and continued the siege till the eleventh year of 7 Zedekiah, to the ninth of the fourth month, when a famine seized the 8 city, and there was no bread for the people of the country. Then a breach 9 was made from the city, and all the soldiers fled, and left the town by 10 night by way of a gate in the walls which were opposite the Royal 11 Garden, and the Kasdim who surrounded the city, and they marched 12 towards the Black Desert. The army of the Kasdim, however, followed 13 after the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the Black Desert near Jerico, 14 when all the army deserted him. They consequently seized the king, 15 and brought him to the king of Babel at Riblath, in the district of 16 Hamath, and he dictated conditions to him. Then the king of Babel murdered 17 the children of Zedekiah before his eyes, and also murdered all the 18 nobles of Judah in Riblath. He afterwards dug out the eyes of Zede-19 kiah, and loaded him with chains, and they took him with the king of 20 Babel to Babel, and put him into the Convicts Prison until the time of his 21 death.
- 22 But on the tenth of the fifth month, in the twelfth year of King Nebukhad-
 23 nezzar, king of Babel, Nebuzaradon, Commander of the Guards, represented
 24 the king of Babel in Jerusalem, and burnt the House of the EVER-25 LIVING, and the Royal Palace, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and 26 every palace of the great, he consumed with fire. And all the army of the 27 Kasdim who were with the Commander of the Guards, threw down the 28 walls surrounding Jerusalem.
- 29 Then Nebuzaradon, the Commander of the Guards, transported the lowest of the people, and the rest of the populace left in the city, and the deserters who had deserted to the king of Babel, and the remainder of the mechanics. However, Nebuzaradon, Commander of the Guards left the lower classes of the country to be vine dressers and ploughmen.

The Pillars of brass that were before the House of the EVER-LIVING, however, and the pedestals, and the Brazen Sea that was in the House of the EVER-LIVING, the Kasdim broke up, and carried the brass to Babel; with the boilers, and the shovels, and the snuffers, and basins, and spoons, and all the instruments of brass they used in the services were taken away. The Commander of the Guards also took away the cups, and fire pans, and basins, and pots, with the candlesticks, and spoons and bowls; what was of gold as gold, and what was of silver, as silver. The two pillars; the Single Sea, the twelve bronze bulls which were under the pedestals that King Solomon had made for the House of the EVER-LIVING. The bronze of all this furniture was not weighed.

The height of the pillars was eighteen cubits for the first pillar, and its circumference was twelve cubits. It was hollow and four inches thick. It had upon it a capital of bronze. The height of that capital was five cubits, with a network of pomegranates around the capital,—all bronze. The second pillar was the same, with pomegranates. There were ninety-six pomegranates towards the winds—all the pomegranates upon the surrounding network were a hundred.

The Commander of the Guards also took Seriah the Chief Priest, and Zephaniah the Second Priest, and the three Guardians of the Threshold. From the city he also took an officer who was adjutant of the soldiery; and seven officers of the Privy Council, whom he found in the city, and the Chief Secretary of the Commander in Chief of the native army, and sixty nobles from the country people, whom he found amongst the townsmen. Nebuzaradon, Commander of the Guards, took these and conducted them to the king of Babel at Riblath, when the king of Babel assailed and put them to death at Riblath, in the district of Hamath, but he transported the Jews from their own country.

28 These are the people whom Nebukhadnezzar transported in his seventh year. Three thousand and twenty-three Jews.

29 In Nebukhadnezzar's eighteenth year,—eight hundred and thirty-two persons from Jerusalem.

30 In the twenty-third year of Nebukadnezzar, Nebuzaradon, the Commander of the Guards, transported seven hundred and forty-two persons of the Jews. All the persons were four thousand, six hundred.

It occurred, however, in the thirty-³¹ seventh year of the captivity of Jhoiakim, king of Judah, in the twenty-fifth of the twelfth³² month, that Evil-Merodak, king of Babel, in the year of his coronation raised the king of Judah, and brought him from his imprisonment, and spoke kindly³² to him and gave him a seat above the kings who were with him in Babel. He also changed his prison³³ dress; and he always dined in his presence so long as he lived. He³¹ was given a regular pension by the king of Babel, paid day by day during his life, until his death.

END OF THE PROPHECIES OF JEREMIAH.

THE PROPHET EZEKIEL.

The period of Ezekiel's Office as Prophet was from 595 to 574 B.C.

The Call of Ezekiel.

1 IT was in the thirty-fourth year in the fifth month, when I was amongst the captives located by the Great River, the skies opened, and I
2 saw some visions from GOD. It was in the fifth month of the fifth year of the transportation of King Jhoiakim
3 that the command of the EVER-LIVING came to Ezekiel-ben-Buzi, the priest, in the country of the Kasdim, by the Great River, that the hand of the EVER-LIVING came there upon him.

The Vision of the Four Beings.

4 Then I looked, and saw a raging wind from the north driving a great cloud, and whirling fire flashing around it, with the gleam of polished
5 brass in the centre of the fire. There were representations of four Beings in the centre,—and those Beings had the appearance of human forms.
6 But each had four faces, and each
7 had four pair of wings. Their feet, however, were perpendicular, and the soles of their feet like the feet of a calf, but sparkling like the glitter
8 of bright brass. They also had arms like a man under their wings, at their four sides,—and their faces,
9 and pairs of wings were four. These wings were attached together at the sockets. The men did not face about when they advanced—they 10 went straight before each face. The form of one face was like that of a man, but the four had the face of a lion on the right side; and the four had the face of an ox, on the left side; and the four had the face of an 11 eagle. Their faces were thus.

When ascending they spread their wings. Each had a couple of wings attached together. But two covered 12 their bodies, and each in advancing went straight before himself. To whatever point the wind proceeded, they went, they never turned face for their journey. And with the 13 Beings, forms appeared, like burning coals of fire;—like the appearance of lamps;—who marched amongst the Beings with sparkling fire, and lightnings shot from the fire. The Beings 14 also ran and danced like lightning.

So I watched the Beings;—and 15 saw a wheel on the earth at the side of the Beings, at each of their faces. The appearance of these wheels, and 16 their substance was like the gleam of amber;—the form of all four, their appearance and substance was as if a wheel were within a wheel.¹ In 17 advancing, they advanced towards the four quarters, without facing about to advance, and they had rims
18 to them,—and it seemed these rims were full of eyes, round all four of them, and when the Beings advanced,
19 the wheels advanced at their side, and when the Beings ascended from the earth, the wheels ascended. Wherever the wind decided to go,—
20 they went wherever the wind went,—and the wheels ascended with them,—for the wind enlivened the wheels. On its advancing,—they advanced;
21 on its standing,—they stood; for the wind enlivened the wheels.

An appearance was above the 22 Beings like sparkling ice, extended high up over their heads; and 23 beneath this expansion they spread their wings in association. Each had two to cover their bodies with, on one side,—and each had two to cover the other side; and I heard 24 the sound of their wings, like the sound of many waters,—like the sound of waterfalls, when they advanced, the sound of a storm of rain,—like the sound of a camp! When they stood still, they drooped

25 their wings. When a voice came from above the expanse over their heads,—standing they drooped their wings.

26 Above the Expanse that was over their heads, there was an appearance like a sapphire stone formed into a throne,—and upon that form of a throne, like the appearance of a man sitting upon it. I also saw a sparkle like amber,—and an appearance like

27 the appearance of a fire enclosed him, with a similar appearance from his waist upwards, and a similar appearance below his waist:—I saw it like the appearance of fire, and it

28 gleamed around him, like the appearance of the bow that comes in the clouds when it rains,—that was the appearance which gleamed around,—the appearance of the Form was a LIVING-GLORY. And when I saw it

2 I fell on my face, and heard a Commanding Voice, which said to me:—
“Son of Adam, stand on your feet I and I will speak to you.”

2 And breath came to me as He spoke, and I stood on my feet, and 3 listened to His command, as He said to me:—

The First Mission.

“Son of Adam, I will send you to the children of Israel,—to a rebellious Nation,—who have rebelled against Me. They and their ancestors have revolted from Me, to this very day!

4 They are hard-faced and stiff-hearted lads, to whom I send you! therefore you must say, ‘Thus says the 5 Almighty LORD!’—whether they listen or refuse,—for they are a rebellious family,—yet will know that a 6 Preacher has come to them. So, Son of Adam, fear them not,—or their threats,—although you are among briars and thorns, and live amongst scorpions. Fear not their threats, nor be depressed by their faces, for 7 they are a rebellious family, but proclaim My Message to them,—whether they listen or refuse!—for they are a rebellious family.

8 “You, however, Son of Adam, listen to what I say to you;—be not rebellious,—like that rebellious family. Open your mouth and eat what I give you.”

The Book to be Eaten.

9 Then I looked and saw a hand approach me, with a Roll-book in it, and it spread it before me, and it was written on the front and the back,—and the writing was about wailing, and lamentation, and woe!

Then He said to me: “Son of 3 Adam! Eat what you have found. Eat this volume! and go and speak to the House of Israel.”

So I opened my mouth, and He 2 made me eat that volume.

Then He said to me: “Son of 3 Adam! Let your belly eat, and fill your stomach with that volume; which I have given you.”

I consequently ate it, and it was as sweet as honey to my mouth!

He afterwards said to me: “Son of 4 Adam! Go,—approach,—the House of Israel, and report My Message to them; for I do not send you to a 5 People of deep lips, and heavy tongue, but to the House of Israel,—not to 6 many Nations of deep lip and heavy tongue, whose language you could not understand if I sent you to them,—they might listen to you,—but the 7 House of Israel will not be desirous to listen to you,—for they are not willing to listen to Me,—for all the House of Israel are hard-browed and stiff-hearted. However I will give 8 you a bold face against their faces, and a bold brow against their brows. As a diamond is harder than flint, I 9 have made your brow. Fear not, nor submit to them,—for they are a rebellious family.”

He also said to me, “Son of Adam! 10 Take all the commands I entrust to you, to your heart, and listen with your ears, and go, approach to the 11 captivity of the children of your people, and address them, and say, ‘Thus says the ALMIGHTY LORD!’—whether they listen, or whether they refuse!”

Then the wind carried me along 12 and I heard behind me a great rushing sound,—proceeding from the dwelling of the MIGHTY LORD, and 13 the sound of the wings of the Beings clapping one against the other,—and the sound of the wheels accompanying them,—and the sound of a great rushing. So the wind took me up, 14 and seized me, and I went better, in heat of my breath, and the hand of the EVER-LIVING was strongly upon me. Thus I was brought to the 15 transports of Thel-abib, who were settled by the Great River, and who resided there, and I stayed there seven days amongst them in a stupor.

- 16 But at the end of the seven days, the command of the EVER-LIVING
- 17 came to me to say; "Son of Adam I have placed you as a watchman for the House of Israel, therefore listen to a message from My mouth, and
- 18 instruct them from Me. When I say to the wicked, 'You shall die!' and you do not inform him or do not speak to the wicked to warn him from his evil way, to revive him—the wicked will die in his wickedness, but I will seek his blood on your hand! But if you warn the wicked, and he does not turn from his wickedness,—and from his evil way,—the wicked shall die in his sin, but you will have redeemed your soul.
- 20 "And when a good man abandons right, and does wrong, when I reprove him openly he shall die. He will die, if you have not warned him of his sin, for the right that he did will not be remembered; but I will seek his blood on your hand. But if you warn the good not to sin, and he ceases from sin, he will live, if he took warning;—and you will have redeemed your soul."

The Message from the Valley to Jerusalem.

- 22 The hand of the EVER-LIVING came upon me again, and He said, "Arise, go out to the valley, and I will speak to you there."
- 23 So I arose and went out to the valley, and saw the DIVINE SPLENDOR standing there, like the splendour that I saw by the Great River, —and I fell upon my face.
- 24 Then breath came to me, and I raised myself upon my feet, and He spoke to me and said:
- 25 "Go! Shut yourself in your house! But, son of Adam, they will put ropes and chains upon you, so that you may not go out amongst them. I also will fix your tongue to your palate, and make you dumb, so that you cannot be a reprover of them,—for they are
- 27 a rebellious family! But when I speak to you, I will open your mouth, when you must say to them, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD.' Listen, and faint! for they are a rebellious family.

The Doom of Jerusalem.

"So now, son of Adam, take a tile¹ 4 and place it before you, and draw upon it the city of Jerusalem. And pourtray upon it a siege, and build 2 a rampart against it; heap up an embankment against it, and represent camps against it, and place battering rams around it. Then take 3 an iron plate, and make of it a wall of iron between you and the city, and fix your face towards it, and let it be a siege, and besiege it. That shall be a sign to the House of Israel. ¶

"You must also lie on your left side, 4 and place the frailties of the House of Israel upon it; for the number of days that you lie upon it, you shall carry the frailties of the House of Israel; for I have laid upon you the 5 years of their frailty, by the number of the days,—three hundred and ninety days, during which you shall carry the frailty of Israel. But when 6 you have accomplished these, then you shall lie upon your right side again, and bear the frailty of the House of Judah for forty days,—a day for a year,—a day for a year,— I have laid upon you.

"Then set before you the siege of 7 Jerusalem, and strip your arm, and preach against it. So look! I will 8 put bonds on you, and you shall not turn from side to side, until the time of the siege is completed. Also take 9 wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentils, and spilt, and millet, and put them into the same dish, and make bread of them for yourself. For the prescribed period that you are to be on your side; you shall eat it for three hundred and ninety days. You 10 must eat it by weight of ten shekels a day; eat it from time to time. Also drink your water by measure,— 11 the sixth part of a hin. Drink it from time to time. Eat it like barley 12 cakes, and bake them with human dung in their sight!"

And the LORD added; "The 13 children of Israel shall eat their bread defiled like that, by the heathen, to whom I drive them."

But I replied, "Oh! MIGHTY 14

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 1, "a tile." As before noted in Jeremiah, these "tiles" or tablets of clay were the usual means of writing upon in that time. Large quantities of them can be seen in the Assyrian Court of the British Museum.

LORD, look at my life! I have not defiled myself,—nor have I ever eaten a dead carcase, or one that has been torn, from my youth until now;—nor has foul food entered my mouth."

15 However He answered me, "Look! I will appoint cow-dung instead of human-dung, so prepare your food with that."

16 Then He said to me, "Son of Adam! I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem, and they shall eat bread by weight, and in dread; and drink by measure and measure, 17 because they shall be destitute of bread and water, and each suspect his brother, and waste away in their sin.

The Prophet ordered to Shave his Head and Beard.

5 "Also, son of Adam, take a sharp sword to apply to yourself as a barber's razor, and pass it over your head, and over your beard. Then take a weighing scales, and divide 2 them. Burn a third part in a fire, in the middle of the city, when the time of the siege is completed. Then take a third part, and chop about it with the sword: and scatter that third part to the wind, and I will fling the sword 3 after them. But you must reserve a small number of them, and put them 4 in your pocket. However, you must take some, and throw them into the fire, and burn them in the fire, when a flame shall spring from them against all the House of Israel."

5 Then the MIGHTY LORD said; "I have set this Jerusalem in the centre of the heathen with countries around 6 her. But she perverted My decrees to wrong more than the heathen; and My institutions more than the countries¹ who are around her,—for she rejected My decrees, and would not follow My institutions.

7 "Therefore," thus the MIGHTY LORD says, 'because you rage against My Institutions more than the heathen around you, by not following them, and have not practised My decrees, but have acted according to the decrees of the 8 heathen around you.¹ Therefore "

(the MIGHTY LORD says this), "I am opposed to you! I, Myself,—and I will execute amongst you My own decrees, in the sight of the heathen. For I will effect upon you, what I 9 have not done, and what I will never do again like it,—because of all your depravities. Therefore parents shall 10 eat their children amongst you, and children will eat their parents! And when I have done justice on you,—I will scatter all the remnant of you to the wind. So, by My own life," 11 says the MIGHTY LORD, "because you have polluted My Sanctuary with all your filth, and with all your depravities, I also will avert Myself, and My eye will not pity, and I will not spare! A third of you shall die 12 by plague and famine consuming among you; and a third will fall by the sword around you; and I will scatter a third to every wind, and fling a sword after them! Then My 13 anger will be completed, and My wrath satisfied upon them, and I will rest, and they will recognize that I, the EVER-LIVING, have spoken in My zeal to accomplish My indignation upon them.

"I will also make you a heap of 14 ashes, and a scorn to the heathen around you;—to the eyes of every passer-by. And you shall become a 15 scorn and an insulting proverb, and an astonishment to the heathen about you, when I have executed upon you the decrees of My anger and indignation, and these reproofs (I, the EVER-LIVING, have said it); and when I send the cruel arrows of 16 famine upon you,—which bring destruction to those to whom I send them, and increase famine among you, and break your staff of bread. For I will send famine upon 17 you, and savage beasts, who will bereave you,—and plague, and bloodshed shall pass through you. I will also bring a sword against you,—I, the EVER-LIVING, have said it!"

The Doom of the Land of Israel.

The command of the EVER-LIVING 6 came to me afterwards, to say:—

"Son of Adam! Set your face 2 against the mountains of Israel, and preach to them, and say,

"Mountains of Israel! listen to the 3 words of the MIGHTY LORD! Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to the mountains and hills, to the torrents, and ¹ NOTE.—Ch. 5, vv. 5, 7. See Romans, chaps. 1, 2, 3, in reference to this statement.—F. F.

valleys, I, Myself, will bring a sword 4 against you! and reduce your peaks, and desolate your altars, and shatter your pillars, and throw down your 5 slain before your idols! And lay the corpses of the children of Israel before their idols, and scatter their 6 bones about their altars. All your inhabited villages shall be ashes,— and your columns shall be desolate, so that your altars may be reduced to ashes, and be desolated, and shattered, and your idols shivered, and your Sun-pillar cut down, and 7 your fabrications be blotted out, and your wounded shall fall amongst you, and you recognize that I am the LORD.
 8 However you shall have a remnant who will escape from the sword, scattered amongst the lands of the 9 heathen. And those fugitives will remember Me among the heathen where they reside, when I have broken their whorelike heart, which turned from Me; and their whorelike eyes from following their idols,—and will turn their attention to the wrongs they committed in all their depravities.
 10 Then they will recognize that I am the LORD. I have not lightly threatened to inflict all these miseries upon them."

The Prophet ordered to Betrail his Country.

11 Then the EVER-LIVING said:—
 "Clap your hands, and stamp your feet, and exclaim, 'Alas for all the sins that the House of Israel has sinned which will overthrow them by the sword, and famine and plague!
 12 Those afar will die by disease! and those near will fall by the sword, and the remainder, and the besieged, will die by famine,'—when My indignation 13 will be satisfied on them. You will then know that I am the EVER-LIVING, when your wounded are among your idols, around your altars, on every high hill, on every mountain top, and under every leafy tree, and under every shady oak;—the places where they appointed to diffuse per-14 fumes to their idols! But I will extend My hand over them, and make their country desolate;—more desolate than the desert of Diblah, in all their villages, — when they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

Doom of Israel's Fields.

The command of the EVER-7
 LIVING again came to me to say:

"And now, son of Adam, the 2 MIGHTY LORD says this to the fields of Israel; 'An end, an end has come to the four wings of the land!
 The end is now upon you,—and I 3 have sent My anger to you, and have convicted according to your practices, and laid all your depravities upon you! My eye, therefore, will not 4 pity you; and I will not relent, but will lay your practices upon you,
 and your depravities are in your breast,—and you shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.'"

The MIGHTY LORD also said:— 5
 "Look! A misery, a peculiar misery has come! The end has come! 6
 The end,—your end,—see it has come!
 The point has come to you,—in 7 habiter of the land,—the time has come, the day is near, a noise, but not of pleasure, upon the hills! Now 8
 I will soon pour out My indignation upon you! and satisfy My anger against you, and convict you according to your ways, and lay on you all your depravities: and My eye will not 9 pity, nor relent. I will lay upon you according to your proceedings, and your depravities shall be in your breast; when you will recognize that I, the EVER-LIVING, punish.

"Look at the time! Look! it has 10 come! The turning point has passed!
 The shoot has blossomed;—the pride has budded! Oppression has grown 11 into a support of wickedness, and neither from themselves and not from their wealth, nor from their numbers will there be comfort for them!
 The period has come,—the day has 12 arrived; let not the buyer be glad, nor the seller sorry,—for there is fury against all their wealth; for the seller 13 will not be restored to what he sold,— even although they are alive, for the vision is against the whole mass;—
 none shall return, nor can anyone preserve himself whose life is in wickedness!

"They blow, they blow with the 14 trumpet,—but none come to the battle! for My wrath is against the whole mass! The sword is in the 15 street, and disease and famine in the house! Whoever is in the field dies by the sword,—and famine and disease devours whoever is in the City!

16 And the fugitives fly; and shall be upon the hills like flocks of doves,— 17 each moaning in his frailty! Every hand is feeble,—and every knee weak 18 as water! And they gird themselves in sacks, and clothe in trembling, and depression is on every face, and 19 baldness on every head! They will fling their silver into the streets, and gold will be flung away;—silver and gold will be unable to deliver them in the day of the indignation of the EVER-LIVING. They cannot satisfy their bodies, nor fill their stomachs;—they were the trap for their sin.
 20 They turned its beautiful glitter to pride, and made it into images of their filthy depravities! Therefore I will 21 disgust them with it! and give it to the hands of foreigners as plunder, and to the wicked of the earth for loot, and defile it. I will also turn 22 My face from them, and they shall violate My treasury, and burglars shall enter and rob it.
 23 "Make a chain,—for the land is full of convicted murderers,—and the 24 city is full of oppression, and I will bring the worst heathen, who will seize their houses, when I shall destroy the pride of the powerful, and they shall share up their treasures.
 25 Distress will come, when they will seek rest;—but none be! Calamity shall come on calamity,—and report come upon report. They will seek a vision from the Preacher, but guidance will depart from the priest, and 27 counsel from the nobles. Their king shall mourn, and the princes be clothed with desolation! and the hand of the People of the land be weak! I will act towards them from their own standpoint,—and by their own decisions I will convict them,—then they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The Vision in the Presence of the Nobles. The Visit in Spirit to Jerusalem.

8 It occurred in the sixth year, on the fifth of the sixth month, I was sitting in my house, and some nobles of Judah sat before me, when the hand of the MIGHTY LORD fell upon me
 2 there. So I looked, and saw a form with the appearance of fire;—appearing so from its waist downwards, fiery, and upwards from its waist like the appearance of gold,—with a glitter of polished brass. Then it stretched out the form of a hand and seized me by the locks of my head, and lifted me in spirit between the earth and the sky, and brought me to Jerusalem, to visions of GOD, to the open gate that faces towards the north,—where the Statue of Jealousy 4 is stationed, that punishes jealousy. And I saw there the MAJESTIC GOD of Israel,—similar to the appearance I saw in the valley. Then He said to 5 me, "Son of Adam, raise your eyes towards the North."

Pagan Debaucheries in the Temple.

So I raised my eyes towards the north, and saw from the north at the entry of the gate, the altar of this Image of Jealousy.

He then asked me, "Son of Adam! 6 see what they are doing!—the great depravities that the House of Israel practise openly within My Sanctuary! Turn again, and you will see greater depravities!"

He then took me to the open 7 square, and I looked, and saw a hole in the wall, when he said, "Son 8 of man, break the wall!"

So I broke the wall, and made an opening.

Then he said to me, "Come, and 9 look on the foul depravities that they practise here!"

I consequently went and looked, 10 and saw images of every reptile, and spawning beast, and all the Idols of the House of Israel painted upon the wall all round, and seventy men of 11 the nobles of the House of Israel, and Jazaniah-ben-Shefan standing in the middle of the assembly before them and each with censers in his hand, and clouds of incense arising.

He then asked me, "Do you see, 12 son of man, what the nobles of Israel do in secret,—each in his chamber of paintings? for they say 'The LORD cannot see us! The LORD cares nothing about the earth!'"

He afterwards said to me, "Turn 13 again, and look at the greater depravities that they practise," and he 14 brought me opposite to the gate of the House of the EVER-LIVING on the north side, and I saw there women sitting to weep for Thamuz, when he asked me, "Son of man, do 15 you see how they sit? Turn again and you shall see greater depravities than these!"

16 Then He took me to the inner court of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and I saw before the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, between the porch and the altar, about twenty-five persons with their back towards the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, and their faces towards the East, and they were worshipping the Eastern Sun. When he asked me, "Do you see, Son of Adam, the contempt the House of Judah show? and the depravities which they practise here? For they fill the country with outrage, and continue to provoke me. Look how they wave twigs before their faces! Therefore I, also, will work in wrath! My eye shall not pity, nor spare,—although they call with a loud voice to my ears, I will not hear them."

9 Then he shouted with a loud voice in my hearing, saying, "Guards of the city approach! and each have his deadly weapon in his hand!"

2 And I saw six men come towards the High Gate that faces to the north, and each with a battle axe in his hand;—but one man among them in trousers with a writer's ink bottle at his waist, and they advanced and stood at the side of the Brazen Altar. 3 Then the splendour of the GOD of Israel came up from above the kerub upon which it was, to the threshold of the House. He then summoned the man who was clothed in trousers, who had the ink-bottle at his waist, and the EVER-LIVING said to him:

"Pass through this city,—through Jerusalem, and write a mark upon the foreheads of the men who grieve and mourn over the depravities that are practised in it." But to the others He said in my hearing, "Pass through the city after him and strike. Let not your eyes pity, and spare not!—old men, boys, and girls, and infants, and women,—kill, to destruction. 6 But do not assail any man upon whom there is a mark,—and start at My Sanctuary."

They consequently started with the noblemen who were at the front of the House.

7 Then he said to them,— "Defile the House, and fill the Court with the slain! Advance!"

So they advanced and assailed the 8 city. But while they were assailing and I was left alone, I fell on my face, and shrieked, and said,

"Oh! MIGHTY LORD! will you destroy all the fragments of Israel? in pouring out Your wrath upon Jerusalem?"

But He replied to me, "The fault 9 of the House of Israel and Judah is very, very great. They have filled the country with blood; and the city is full of extortion, for they say, 'The LORD cares nothing about the earth,' and 'GOD never looks.' Therefore 10 My eyes will not pity nor spare. I will return the result of their idea upon their own Head."

Then I saw the man in trousers, who had the ink-bottle at his waist, reported the result, saying, "I have done as You commanded me."

I then looked, and saw in the 10 expanse over the heads of the Kerubim, there was like a sapphire gem, formed into a Throne, with AN EXISTENCE upon it, Who spoke to the man clothed in trousers, and 2 said, "Go to the revolutionary space beneath the Kerub, and fill your hands with burning coals from the space of the Kerubim, and scatter them over the city." So he went in my sight. And the Kerubim stood at 3 the right side of the House when the man entered; and a cloud filled the forecourt. The splendour of the 4 EVER-LIVING arose, also, from above the Kerub to over the threshold of the House, and the House was filled with a cloud, and the court full of the splendour of the LORD; and the 5 noise of the wings of the Kerubs was heard above the outer court, like the voice of the ALMIGHTY when speaking. And when He commanded the man 6 clothed in the trousers, saying, "Take fire from the space of revolution—from the space of the Kerubim," he entered and stood beside the wheel, and the Kerub extended 7 his hand from the space of the Kerubim to the fire that is in the space of the Kerubim, and took some, and put it into the hands of the man clothed in trousers, and he took it and went out. Then I perceived the 8 Kerubim had human shaped hands under their wings.

I looked again, and saw four wheels 9 beside the Kerubs, a single wheel to each Kerub, and a single wheel at the side of each Kerub, and the appearance of the wheels was like

- 10 the glitter of an amber stone. The form of each of the four of them as if they had wheels within wheels. As for their progression they could proceed in four directions. They did not face about to advance, but to the spot that was ahead of their face they proceeded, they did not face about to advance to it. And all their bodies, and backs, and hands and wings;—as well as the wheels;—were full of eyes as around the four wheels. Their wheels were called in my hearing "The Revolution." Each, also, had four faces for himself. The first was the face of a Kerub; the second the face of a Man; the third the face of a Lion; and the fourth the face of an Eagle; but the Kerub stood upright. They were the BEINGS I saw by the Great River. When the Kerubs advance, the wheels beside them advance; and when the Kerubs raise their wings to rise up from the earth, the wheels do not abandon them,—they accompany them. When those stand,—they stand; and when those mount—they mount, for there is a breath of life in them.
- 18 Then the splendour of the EVER-LIVING removed from over the threshold of the House, and rested over the Kerubim, and the Kerubs raised their wings from the earth in my sight to depart, and the wheels went with them, and stood opposite the Eastern Gate of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the splendour of the GOD of Israel was above them.
- 20 These were the BEINGS that I saw beneath the GOD of Israel at the Great River,¹—and I knew they were Kerubim,—each was four faced, with human formed hands beneath their wings; and the form of their faces was like the faces I saw by the Great River; and they could advance forward from each of them.
- 11 Thus when the wind lifted, and brought me to the Eastern Gate of the House of the EVER-LIVING, facing eastwards, I saw opposite the gate twenty-five men, and observed in the centre of them Jazaniah-ben-Azur, and Platiah-ben-Beniah, Princes of the people.
- 2 Then He said to me, "Son of Adam! These men contrive folly, and advise bad advice in this city:—who say, 'Is it not time to build 3 houses? The pot is here, and we shall find flesh!' However, Son of 4 Adam! preach against them,—preach, Son of Adam!"

Then the spirit of the EVER-LIVING 5 fell upon me, and said to me:— "Thus says the EVER-LIVING. You say so, House of Israel, and I know the products of your mind. You 6 have extended this city, and filled its streets with murder. Therefore thus 7 says the MIGHTY LORD, The murdered whom you have laid among you, they are the flesh, and this is the boiler and can you get out of it? You have feared the sword;—but I 8 will bring a sword upon you!" The MIGHTY LORD says it! "However 9 I will pull you out of it, and give you into the hands of foreigners, who will execute your sentences. You 10 shall fall by the sword. At the boundaries of Israel I will sentence you, and you shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING. This shall not 11 be your pot, and you shall not be the flesh in it;—on the boundaries of Israel I will sentence you! and you 12 shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING, although you have not walked by My institutions, and have not executed My decrees, but you have done according to the ideas of the heathen who are around you."

But it happened that as I preached, 13 Platiah-ben-Beniah died! Then I fell on my face, and exclaimed, "Alas! MIGHTY LORD, will You make an end of the fragments of Israel?"

God Promises Mercy even in Punishment. Pardon and Restoration Promised to Israel.

The message of the LORD after- 14 wards came to me to say:—"Son of 15 man! your brothers, your relatives the men who could reclaim you, and all the House of Israel, the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, to all of them, 'Get off from the LORD! Who has given this country for us to possess.' Therefore say, 'Thus says 16 the MIGHTY LORD, Although I have sent them afar to the heathen, and although I have scattered them in the countries,—yet I will be a little

Sanctuary to them in the countries to which I have brought them.'

- 17 "Therefore say, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—I will collect them from the nations, and gather them from the countries where I have scattered them, and will give to them
- 18 the ground of Israel. And when they arrive there they will cast away all their pollutions and depravities from them. Then I will give them a single
- 19 heart, and put a new spirit in their breast. I will remove the heart of stone from their body, and give them a heart of flesh,—so that they may walk by My Institutions, and regard My decrees, and practise them, and they will be My people, and I will be their GOD.
- 20 "But to those who proceed after their corrupt and depraved hearts, I will bring their own course on their heads,' says the MIGHTY LORD."

Ezekiel Carried back in Spirit to Chaldea.

- 22 Then the Kerubim raised their wings, and the wheels accompanied them, and the splendour of the GOD
- 23 of Israel ascended above them. The splendour of the LORD also ascended from the centre of the city, and rested upon the hill to the east of the town.
- 24 The wind then raised me and brought me to Kasdim, to the Transportation, —in the vision,—in the spirit of GOD. And the vision which I had seen departed from me, I afterwards reported to the Transports all the things from the EVER-LIVING that I had seen.

The Prophet Ordered to Change his House.

- 12 Another time the command of the LORD came to me to say:—"Son of Adam! You are in the midst of a rebellious family, who have eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not,—for they are a rebellious family. Consequently, Son of Adam, prepare your furniture for removal,—and remove it daily in their sight, and remove from your own home to another home in their sight. Perhaps they will look on,—although they are a rebellious family.
- 4 So bring out your furniture, like furniture for removal, daily, in their sight, and go away at dusk in their
- 5 sight as emigrants start. In their sight break a hole through your wall, and go out by it. Carry a knapsack 6 on your shoulder in their sight. Go out in the dark with your face covered, and look not at the country,—for I am making you a sign to the House of Israel."

I consequently did as He com- 7 manded me. I brought out my furniture, like the furniture of an emigrant by day, and at evening I broke a hole in my wall, by hand. I went out in the dark, carrying a knapsack on my shoulder in their sight.

But the command of the EVER- 8 LIVING came to me in the morning to ask, "Son of man, when the House 9 of Israel, the rebellious family, ask what you were doing? Say to them, 10 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,

"This burden will load all Jeru- 11 salem, and all the House of Israel who are among them. Say, I am a 11 sign to you,—as I have done, so it shall be done to them,—they will be transported to captivity, and the 12 Prince amongst them shall have his shoulder loaded in darkness, and go out through the wall they have broken for him to go through, with covered face, so that he may not see the country with his eyes. For I will 13 spread My net over him, and take him in My snare, and bring him to Babel,—to the land of the Kasdim. However he shall not see it, although he will die there. And I will scatter 14 all his friends who are about him, and all his troops, to every wind, and draw a sword after them. Then they 15 will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I drive them to the Heathen, and sow them over the countries. I 16 will, however, rescue a part from the sword, from the famine, and from disease,—so that they may relate all their depravities to the heathen wherever they go,—and learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.'"

The Desolation of the Holy Land.

The command of the LORD came 17 again to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! Eat your bread in 18 terror, and drink your water with trembling and fear, and say to the 19 people of the country, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—to the soil of Israel. You shall eat your bread in fear, and drink your water in stupor, because the country is stripped of its products by the oppression of its population.

 20 Your populous cities will also become heaps of ashes, and your country a desert,—then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

A Warning against Lying Prophets.

21 The command of the EVER-LIVING
 came again to me to say:
 22 "Son of Adam! What is this proverb among you of the soil of Israel, that says, 'The times are extended, and every vision fails!'
 23 Therefore say to them, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: I will abolish that proverb, and they shall not again repeat it in Israel. Consequently say to them, 'The times are near, 24 and result of every vision, when there will be no futile vision, or flattering 25 divination in the House of Israel, for I, the EVER-LIVING, will speak,—and the thing I say will be done, and never averted, for in your days—you rebellious family—I will speak and accomplish!' " says the MIGHTY LORD.

Predictions soon to Come.

26 Again the command of the EVER-
 LIVING came to me to say:
 27 "Son of Adam! Look! The House of Israel say, 'The vision he sees is in the far future; and his 28 prophecy for distant periods!' Consequently say to them, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, I will not delay longer, whatever I say it will be done!'" the MIGHTY LORD declares.
 13 The command of the LORD came to me again to say:—

Denunciation of Sham Prophets.

2 "Son of Adam! Preach against the preachers of Israel, and say to the preachers of their own inventions,
 —'Listen to the message of the EVER-
 3 LIVING! Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to the wicked preachers who follow their own invention, and see 4 nothing. Your preachers, Israel, 5 are like foxes in the ruins. They have not mounted to the breaches;
 they have not defended the walls for the House of Israel, standing in the battle, in the day of the EVER-LIVING!
 6 You see deception and divine a lie,— crying, 'Thus says the LORD!' when the EVER-LIVING has not sent you,
 —while they hoped for a reliable 7 messenger. Have you not invented a false vision?—and divined a lying tale, when you asserted, 'The EVER-LIVING says,—and I never spoke?'

Therefore thus says the MIGHTY 8
 LORD, "Because you speak falsehood and invent a lie,—I am absolutely opposed to you," says the MIGHTY LORD. "My hand will be against the 9 preachers of false visions, and the diviners of a lie. They shall not come to the Council of My People, nor be recorded in the records of the House of Israel, nor shall they arrive at the soil of Israel,—until they learn that I am the EVER-LIVING because, 10 and because they have deluded My people by exclaiming, 'Peace!' when there was no peace, and build that as a fence, and then daubed it with mortar.

"Say to the mortar daubers, It will 11 fall! A swishing shower will come,
 —and I will send flinging hail stones, and a raging tearing wind, when the 12 wall will fall! Then will they not ask you, 'Where is the daub you daubed upon it?'

"However," the MIGHTY LORD says 13 this, "I will smash it by a wind in My fury, and a sweeping rain shall come in My anger, and hailstones in My indignation to destroy, and break the 14 wall down, that you daubed with mortar, and break it to the earth, and bare its foundations, and it shall fall with you under it! Then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.
 Thus I will satisfy My indignation: 15 against the wall, and those who daubed it with mortar, when I ask you, 'Where is the wall? and where 16 is its daubing?' You Preachers of Israel, who preach to Jerusalem, and view visions of peace for her,— when there is no peace," says the EVER-LIVING.

"But you, son of Adam, set your 17 face against the daughters of your people,—the preacheresses out of their own invention,—and preach against them,—and say, Thus says
 the MIGHTY LORD:

"Woe to the sewers of pillows to 18 the sides of their arms! Who put cushions of all heights on their heads to hunt souls!—the hunted souls of My people,—and living souls for yourselves! And you have degraded 19 Me to My people for handfuls of barley, and bits of bread! to kill the souls who would not have died, and to revive the souls that ought not to be revived, for your lies, by My people 20 listening to your lies! Therefore thus says the MIGHTY LORD:—I am against the pillows that you hunt the flying souls with, and will tear them 21 off from your arms, and liberate the souls you hunt,—the flying souls! So I will tear the pillows and deliver My people from your hands, and they shall be no more in your favour to be hunted. Then you will learn that I 22 am the EVER-LIVING; although you grieved the righthearted by falsehood, when I had not made them sad,—and encouraged the wicked not to turn 23 from his wicked way of life. Therefore you shall not again have sham visions and divinations, for I will deliver My People from your hands.

 Then you will learn that I am the
 EVER-LIVING."

A Message to his Wicked Visitors.

14 Once some of the men from the nobles of Israel came and sat before 2 me, when the EVER-LIVING commanded me to say:—
 3 "Son of Adam! these men have erected idols in their hearts, and put the block of their passions before their face. Ought they to enquire of Me?
 4 Therefore speak to them, and say:—
 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—to every one of the House of Israel who sets up his idols in his heart, and puts the block of his passions before his face, and comes to the prophet,—I,
 the EVER-LIVING will answer him
 5 about it, by his numerous idols, so that I may catch the House of Israel in their hearts, where they have separated themselves from Me, for their numerous idols.'
 6 "Therefore say to the House of Israel, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, 'Turn, turn from your idols! and from all your depravities,—turn your 7 faces! For every one of the House of Israel, and of the foreigners who reside with Israel, who has separated himself from following Me, and has set up idols in his heart, and placed the block of his passions before his face,
 —yet come to the Preacher for him to enquire of Me! I, the EVER-LIV-ING, will answer him for Myself!
 8 and set My face against that man, and set him for a wonder, and proverb, and an outcast from My People.
 Then you will learn that I am the
 EVER-LIVING.
 9 "And if the Preacher misleads, when delivering a command, I, the EVER-LIVING have not¹ misled that Preacher! So I will then extend My hand to him, and desolate him among My People Israel! Thus they will bear their fault,—both the Preacher and en-

 10 quirer will be alike, so that the House 11 of Israel may no more be deluded by seductions, and no more defile itself by all their wickedness, but may become My People, and I become their GOD," says the MIGHTY LORD.

God's Message to Wickedly Perverse Nations.

The command of the EVER-LIVING 12
 also came to me to say:

"Son of Adam! When a country 13 sins against Me very perversely, and I stretch My hand against it, and break from it the staff of bread, and send it famine, and cut off from it men and cattle, if these three men, 14
 Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they might deliver their own lives by their goodness," says the MIGHTY LORD. "If I sent savage beasts upon 15 a country and it is desolated, so that no one crosses it because of the beasts, if these three men were in it,— 16 by My life," said the MIGHTY LORD,
 "they should preserve neither sons nor daughters,—they should only preserve themselves,—and the country should become desolate! Or if 17
 I bring a sword against that country,
 and cut off from it men and cattle,
 and have said to the sword, 'Pass over the land, and cut off from it men and cattle,' although these three men 18 were in it, by My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "they should not preserve sons nor daughters, but only preserve themselves. Or if I send a 19 disease to that country, and pour out My indignation upon it in blood, to cut men and cattle off from it,—although 20
 Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, by My life," said the MIGHTY LORD,
 "they should not preserve sons or daughters by their goodness,—they might preserve their own lives!
 Then," thus said the MIGHTY LORD, 21
 "what will it be when I send My four great judgments, plague, the sword, and famine, and beasts against Jerusalem, to cut off from it men and cattle?"

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 14, vv. 9, 11. It is clear that ascribe has dropped the Hebrew negative ^h, which I restore for the sense.

- 22 "A portion, however, of her sons and daughters shall escape as fugitives. They shall come out to you, and you can see their ways and proceedings, and console them about all the suffering that I brought upon Jerusalem,—all that I brought on her. They will also console you when they see your ways and proceedings,—and you will learn that I have not done to her what I did causelessly," the MIGHTY LORD said.

Israel Compared to a Dead Vine Branch.

- 15 The message of the EVER-LIVING
2 came again to me asking, "Son of Adam! what is done with the Vine among the trees? The branch that was with the trees of the forest? Is wood taken from it to make anything for use? They take none of it, except to hang something upon!
4 Both ends of it are put in the fire to be consumed,—the fire will devour the middle of it. Is it useful for working? Indeed when it was perfect, it could not be made of use,—how then when the fire has consumed, and burnt, can it be made into anything?
6 "Therefore," thus said the MIGHTY LORD, "like the vine among the trees of the forest, which they put upon the fire to be consumed, so I will put the population of Jerusalem, and set My face against them. They have grown for the fire,—and the fire shall consume them,—then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I turn My face against them, 8 and make the country a waste, because of their perversity," the MIGHTY LORD said.

A Message to Jerusalem on her Sins.

- 16 The message of the EVER-LIVING
2 came again to me to say; "Son of Adam, inform Jerusalem of her depravities, and proclaim, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to Jerusalem; By origin and race you are of the land of Canaan!—your father an Amorite,
4 and your mother a Hitite! And at your nativity,—on the day of your birth, your navel was not cut, nor were you washed clean with water, nor salted with salt, nor swathed
5 with bandages. No eye pitied you, to do any of these to you, from affection for you, but you were flung on the surface of the earth, an out-cast life on the day of your birth!

"I, however, passed near you, and 6 saw you wallowing in your blood, and said to you in your bleeding, 'Live!' and repeated to you when bleeding, 'Live!' Then I made you 7 grow like the plants of the field, and you flourished and grew up, and became very beautiful! Your breasts developed, and your hair grew and you were a beauty of beauties;—yet you were naked and bare. But I 8 passed by you, and looked at you, and saw yours was the time for lovers, so I threw My cloak over you, and covered your nakedness, and made you a promise, and produced a contract to you," says the MIGHTY LORD, "and you became Mine. Then I washed you in water, and 9 swept your blood from you, and refreshed you with oil, and clothed 10 you in embroidery and shod you with sealskin, and girdled you with muslin, robed you in silk, and adorned you 11 with jewellery, and put bracelets on your wrists, and a collar on your neck. I also put a locket on your 12 brow, and earrings on your ears, and a beautiful turban on your head, and 13 ornaments of gold and silver, and your clothing was fine muslin, and silk, and embroidery. And I fed you with fine flour, and honey, and oil, and you were very beautiful, and you grew to be a Queen! Then your 14 fame for beauty went out to the nations,—for it was perfect, from My majesty that I had put upon you," said the MIGHTY LORD. "You, 15 however, relied upon your beauty, and whored upon your fame, and poured out your fornication to every traveller who might come! And you 16 took your robes and made yourself luxurious couches, and fornicated upon them,—without payment or fee! You also took your beautiful 17 jewels,—My gold, and My silver,—which I had given to you, and made yourself forms like males, and fornicated with them! And took your 18 bordered robes and covered them, and put My oil, and My incense before them! And My bread of fine 19 flour, oil, and honey, which I had given you to eat, you placed before them for a dainty, and it was a dainty," says the MIGHTY LORD. "And you took your sons and your 20 daughters, whom you had borne to Me, and have sacrificed them to be devoured!¹

21 "Were your whoredoms nothing? but that you must murder My children, and give them to be passed round as food? And in all your depravities, and all your whoredoms, have you not remembered the days of your youth, when you were naked and bare? and were wallowing in your blood? But now after all your wickedness, Woe, woe to you!" says the MIGHTY LORD, "you have built yourself a mound, and made yourself an erectiou in every square! and at the top of every street you have constructed couches, and prostituted your beauty, and spread your legs for every passenger, and increased your whoredoms!

26 "You have also fornicated with the big-bodied sons of the Mitzeraim, your neighbours,—and multiplied your whoredoms to provoke Me. So now I have extended My hand against you, and will diminish your allowance, and give you to the will of your haters, the daughters of the Philistines.—Will they shame you from your vile ways?

28 "You also whored with Ashur,—but were not satiated! Then whored with them again,—and were not satiated!

29 Then you extended your fornications to the land of merchants, the Kasdim. But even by that you were not satiated! Why! your heart should have been sick," says the MIGHTY LORD, "at your doing all these things,—the acts of an impudent, whorish woman! At your building mounds at the top of every road, and making your erections in every square;—and were not like a harlot,

32 --for you scorned pay. You were an adulterous wife, taking strangers instead of her husband! They give pay to every prostitute, but you gave pay to your lovers! and bribed them to come to you from round about to whore you. And you are different to other women with your whore-mongers,—they do not follow you to fornicate,—but you give them pay, and they give not pay to you—so you are different!"

Therefore, harlot, hear the message 35 of the EVER-LIVING. Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: "Because your filth 36 was poured out, and your nakedness uncovered, for your fornications with your lovers, and for all your depraved idols, and because of the blood of your children who were given to them,—I will in consequence collect 37 all your paramours with whom you luxuriated, and all whom you have loved, with all whom you hated,—I will collect them against you from around, and strip your shame before them, and they shall see your shame! Then I will punish you with the 38 punishment that adulteresses and murderesses are punished with, and shed your blood with indignation and contempt. Yes! I will put you in 39 their power, and they will overturn your mounds, and throw down your erections, and strip off your clothes, and seize your beautiful jewels, and make you sit naked and bare. Then 40 I will bring a mob about you, and they will kill you by stoning, and hack you with their swords, and burn your houses with fire, and execute 41 justice upon you in the sight of a crowd of women,—when you will cease from your whoredom,—and never again give your payments. That is how I will gratify My indignation upon you! Then My rage will turn from you, and I can rest, and be no more provoked. Because you 43 did not remember the days of your youth, but irritated Me by all those things,—consequently I will put your habit on your head," says the MIGHTY LORD, "for have you not practised this vice beyond all your depravities?"

"Look! Everyone can repeat this 44 proverb against you, 'Like mother, like daughter!' You are your 45 mother's daughter! she loathed her husband and children;—and the sister of your sisters;—they loathed their husbands, and their children;—their mother was a Hitite, and their father an Amorite. Your elder 46 sister is Shomeron, and her daughters who sit at your left, and your younger sister is Sodom and her daughters who sit at your right. And have you 47 not walked on their road? and as they did, and as they depraved themselves, have not you done? That was little! for you corrupted yourself more than they in every way!

- 48 "By My life!" says the MIGHTY LORD, "Sodom, your sister, she and her daughters did not do what you and your daughters have done!
- 49 Look! This was the fault of Sodom, your sister—pride, gluttony, and careless ease, were hers, and her daughters'; and that she did not support the house of the poor and wretched. They were also haughty, and practised depravity before Me, so I swept them away as you have seen.
- 51 "And Shomeron did not sin half your sins, for you increased your depravities more than her;—and you have made an excuse for your sister by all the depravities you have practised! So hear your own disgrace, since you blamed your sisters about your own sins, in which you have depraved yourself.—They were more excusable than you.—However, be ashamed of yourself, and bear your infamy, by the excuse you have made for your sisters!
- 53 "So I will turn away the slavery of the slaves of Sodom, and her daughters;—and the slavery of Shomeron, and her daughters, and the slavery of your slaves amongst them; so that you may bear infamy, and be ashamed of all that you have done to excuse them! Your sister, Sodom, however, and her daughters were captured first; then Shomeron and her daughters were captured in anticipation; and now your daughters are captured previous to yourself! But yet your sister Sodom was not heard of from your mouth in the day of your pride, before your vices were discovered, at the time of the insult to the daughters of Aram, and her neighbours,—the daughters of the Philishtim, who were flogged around
- 58 you, for the wickedness and depravities you yourself possessed!" the EVER-LIVING says.
- 59 "Therefore," the MIGHTY LORD says it, "I have done to you, as you have done,—as you treated your oath with contempt, and broke the contract.
- 60 "However, I will call to mind My contract with you in the days of your youth,—and make a lasting
- 61 contract with you, when you reflect on your ways and your infamy during your marriage, along with your elder sister, and your younger,

—and I will give them to you for attendants, but not for your control. Thus I will settle a contract with you, when you learn that I am Master! so that you may reflect and be ashamed, and never again make for yourself an open path for your infamy,—after I have forgiven you for all you have done," says the MIGHTY LORD.

Ezekiel Ordered to make a Puzzle out of a Vine-plant.

Again the message of the EVER-LIVING came to me saying:—

"Son of Adam! Make a puzzle and an enigma about the House of Israel, and say, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, There was a great eagle with big strong spreading wings, full of variegated feathers, who came to Lebanon, and seized his cedar boughs,—the topmost shoots,—broke them off, and carried them to the Land of Trade,—planting them in the Town of Merchants. He also took some of the seed from that country, and sowed it on a seed-field, near plenty of water,—he planted it like a willow, and it grew, and became like a luxuriant vine, low in height, with branches twisting on themselves, and its roots were under it. Thus it became a vine, and produced and sent out shoots.

"But there was another Great Eagle with big wings, and many feathers, and you see this vine turned its roots towards him, and sent out branches for him to water it,—on the open field by plenty of water where it was set to produce grapes,—to bear fruit, and be a glorious vine.

"Ask this," said the MIGHTY LORD, "will it prosper? Will he not cut off its roots, shoots, and fruit? and make all its flourishing leaves wither, even without a strong arm, or many people to pull it up from the roots? So look! having been planted will it prosper?—will it not at the approach of the East Wind wither on the bed where it grows?"

Again the message of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Ask the rebellious family, Do you not know what this thing means? You saw the king of Babel came to Jerusalem, and he took its king and princes, and brought them with him to Babel. Then he took some of the Royal Family, and made a treaty with it, and brought it to the oath, and took the nobles from the country, so that the kingdom might be depressed, and unable to rise,—and be kept standing by the treaty. It, however, revolted from it by sending ambassadors to Mitzter to give it cavalry and a great army. Having done this, will it prosper and escape? And having broken the treaty, can it escape? By My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "in the house of the king who made him king, in which he is a captive, and where he has broken the treaty,—in the country of Babel, he shall die! Nor shall Pharaoh succeed with him in the war by his great force, or numerous army, by heaping up embankments, or building ramparts, and destroying many lives, although he despised the oath, and broke the treaty! Be sure although he has given his hand, and done all this,—he shall not escape."

The Parable of the Lord's Cedar on the High Hill.

The MIGHTY LORD therefore says this, "I will bring My oaths that he has despised, and My treaty that he has broken, on his own head, and spread My net over him. Yes! I will lay My snare, and bring him to Babel, and condemn him there for all that he has wronged Me. And all his flying troops shall fall by the sword,—and the remnants be scattered to the winds—then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING Who has said it!"

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD; "I also will take a branch of a tall cedar, and plant it,—from the top of its twigs I will pluck a tender shoot, and plant it on a high and noble hill,—I will plant it on the highest hill of Israel where it will shoot up boughs and produce fruit, and become a glorious cedar, and birds of every kind will fix their homes in the shadow of its branches. Then all the trees of the field will learn that I, the EVER-LIVING, have depressed the lofty tree,—and exalted the lowly tree,—have exhausted the vigorous tree, and made the dry tree flourish,—that I, the EVER-LIVING, have promised, and done it."

The Proverb of Sour Grapes.

The command of the EVER-LIVING LORD again came to me to ask:—

"What do you mean quoting this 2 proverb in the land of Israel, which says, 'The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?' By My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "you need never again quote that proverb in Israel!

"Look! all persons are Mine! both the person of the father and the person of the son, are mine:—therefore the sinning person shall die! So the man who may be good, and practise justice and goodness,—who does not sacrifice on the hills, and does not lift up his eyes to the idols of the House of Israel, and does not corrupt the wife of his neighbour, and has not approached a woman under a vow,—who has not oppressed anyone by extortion,—has returned the debtor his pledge,—has not robbed,—has given the hungry his bread,—and clothed the naked,—who has not lent on usury, and has not exacted exorbitant interest,—who has turned his hand from evil,—and has practised justly and truly between man and man,—who has followed My institutions and kept My decrees,—and done truly and rightly,—he shall possess life," says the MIGHTY LORD.

"But should he beget a son, who is a bloodshedder, or does exactly contrary to the above, or does not practise any of them,—but who sacrifices on the hills,—and corrupts the wife of his neighbour,—who oppresses the poor and wretched,—steals as a thief,—does not restore the pledge to his debtor,—and lifts up his eyes to idols to practise depravity,—who lends on usury, and exacts exorbitant interest,—he, then, shall not live;—having practised the whole of these villainies, he shall die,—his blood shall be upon him.

"But should he beget a son, who sees all the sins that his father has practised, and reflects and does not do like them,—who does not sacrifice on the hills,—does not raise up his eyes to the idols of the House of Israel,—does not corrupt his neighbour's wife,—who oppresses no one,—has not withheld a pledge,—has not stolen like thieves,—has given his bread to the hungry,—and covered the naked with clothes, and turned his hand to the poor,—who has not taken usury or exorbitant interest,—who has practised justice,—who has followed My Institutions,—he shall not die for the fault of his father,—he shall live.

18 "His father,—because he defrauded and robbed,—as above, and produced no benefit amongst his people,—be sure will die for his own faults.

19 "But, you may ask, why should not the son bear the faults of his father?

"When the son does justly and rightly, and regards all My Institutions, and practises them,—he shall live. The sinning person himself shall die;—the son shall not bear the faults of the father,—and the father shall not bear the faults of the son. The goodness of the good shall be on him, and the wickedness of the wicked be upon himself. But when the wicked turns from his sin that he has done, and regards all My Institutions, and practises justice and right, 20 —he shall live,—not die. All the wickedness he has done will not be remembered against him, because of the goodness that he then practises.

21 "Have I any pleasure in the death of the wicked?" the MIGHTY LORD asks,—"I would rather he should turn from his wicked course and live.

22 "But if a good man abandons his goodness, and does wrong in the manner that all the wicked are used to deprave themselves, all the righteousness which he was accustomed to, will not be remembered, because of his vices that he commits, and the sins he sins,—he will die by them.

"But, you may say, 'The course of the ALMIGHTY is not straight.'

"Listen, however, House of Israel! If My course is not straight, are not your courses crooked?

"When the good man turns from his right-doing, and practises wickedness, and dies in it,—he dies wicked. And when the wicked turns from his wickedness that he was used to, and does justly and rightly, that person lives by it;—for he reflected and abandoned all his wickedness that he was accustomed to in his life. He will not die!

"Yet the House of Israel say, 'The course of the ALMIGHTY is not straight!'

"House of Israel! are not your courses crooked?

"Consequently I will judge you, everyone according to his ways.

House of Israel," the MIGHTY LORD declares. "Change and turn yourselves from all your sins, and do not let your passions be an impediment to you! Fling all your wickedness in which you sinned from you, and make yourselves a new heart and a new spirit,—for why should you die? House of Israel? For I do not delight in the death of the dying," says the MIGHTY LORD, "therefore turn, and live!"

And you —raise a lament over the princes of Israel, and say:—

The Lamentation.

What was your mother? A lioness couched among lions
Among the young lions she nourished her whelps!
3 And one of her cubs became The Young Lion,—

4 And learnt to tear plunder,—devouring men!
But the nations heard of him and caught in their pit,
And they brought in a cage to the land of Mitz'raim.

5 When she saw as she watched that her darling was gone,
She selected a whelp, and made him the young lion;
6 And he marched in the midst of the lions a king!

7 And learnt to tear plunder,—devouring men!
Guessed the weak ones and ruined,—and ravaged the cities,
And all the land rang with the sound of his roars!

8 Then the nations came on him around from their forts,
And flung on him their net, and secured in their pit,
9 And put in a cage, and brought to Babel's king,
Who confined in a den,—that he should not resound
His voice for the future on Israel's hills!

Your mother, like you, was a vigorous vine plant, 10
 Her fruit, and her branches were thick from the streams,
 And strong stocks came from her, as sceptres for princes, 11
 Her height touched the clouds, and showed thick leaves above.
 But they plucked from the ground and flung out in a fury, 12
 And her fruit is dried up by a wind from the East !
 Her strong shoots are withered, and fire consumed them ;
 She now sits in a desert, a dry thirsty ground, 13
 And fire from her stock eats the single bunch left her, 14
 Nor comes a strong shoot for a sceptre for rule.
 Oh ! weep for her then, and let this be her Dirge !

Some Elders enquire of the Lord,
 Who rejects them.

20 It happened in the seventh year, on the fifth of the tenth month, some of the old men of Israel came to en-2 quire of the EVER-LIVING, and sat before me. Then the message of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say :—
 3 " Son of Adam ! Speak to these old men of Israel and say to them, ' Thus asks the MIGHTY LORD : Have you
 4 come to enquire of Me ? ' By My life
 I will not be enquired of by you," the MIGHTY LORD says. " Judge them, judge them, Son of Adam. Teach them the iniquities of their fathers,
 5 and tell them,—Thus says the MIGHTY LORD. At the time I chose Israel, and lifted up My hand to the race of the House of Jacob, and disclosed Myself to them in the country of the Mitzeraim, and lifted up My hand to them, and said, I am your 6 EVER-LIVING GOD ; at that time when I raised My hand to them to bring them from the land of the Mitzeraim to the country I intended for them, flowing with milk and honey,—it is the most splendid of all countries ;—
 7 I said to each of them, ' Fling away the pollutions from your eyes, and do not corrupt yourselves with the idols of the Mitzeraim. I am your EVER-8 LIVING GOD ! ' But they rebelled against Me, and were not desirous to listen to Me. Every one of them did not fling away the pollutions of his eyes, nor did they abandon the idols of the Mitzeraim ;—therefore I threatened to pour out My indignation upon them, to assuage My anger at them in the land of the Mitzeraim.
 9 However, I acted, because of My name, so as not to degrade it in the sight of the heathen amongst whom they were ;—in whose sight I discovered Myself to them,—and brought 10 them out from the land of Mitzer.

Thus I brought them out of the country of the Mitzeraim, and conducted them to the desert, and gave 11 them the Institutions and Decrees that I taught ; which the man who practises will live by them. I also 12 gave them My Sabbaths, to be a memorial between them and Me, that I am the EVER-LIVING, their Sanctuary. But the House of Israel 13 rebelled against Me in the Desert.
 They did not follow My Institutions, and rejected the Decrees that I had made for them ; and violated My Sabbaths greatly,—therefore I threatened to pour out My wrath upon them, to destroy them in the Desert.

" However I worked for My NAME, 14 so that it might not be degraded in the sight of the heathen, in whose sight
 I had brought them out. Yet I lifted 15 up My hand to them in the Desert, declaring I would not bring them to the country I had given them,— flowing with milk and honey,—the most splendid of all lands,—because 16 they rejected My Decrees, and did not walk in My Institutions,—and profaned My Sabbaths—for they went after the idols of their hearts ! How- 17 ever, My eye refrained from destroying, and I did not make an end of them in the Desert. But I said to 18 their children in the Desert, ' Do not walk after the ideas of your fathers, nor follow their decisions, nor corrupt yourselves with their Idols ; I am 19 your EVER-LIVING GOD ! Walk according to My Institutions, and preserve My Decrees, and practise them ;
 and sanctify My Sabbaths, and let 20 them be a memorial between Me and you, to teach you that I am your EVER-LIVING GOD.'

" But the children also rebelled 21 against Me ! They did not walk by My Institutions, and did not preserve
 My Decrees, and practise them,— which if a man practises he will live by them. They profaned My Sabbaths,—therefore I threatened to pour

My indignation upon them in the 22 Desert. ^a However I withdrew My hand, and acted for My NAME,—so that it might not be degraded in the sight of the heathen, in whose pre-23 sence I had brought them out. Yet
I raised My hand to them in the Desert to scatter them among the Nations, and to disperse them in the 24 countries, because they had not practised My Decrees, and had rejected My Institutions, and profaned
My Sabbaths, and their eyes followed 25 the Idols of their fathers. And I consequently appointed them Imperfect Institutions, and Decrees that could not give life to them! Thus I 26 made them polluted in the gifts to themselves—in coming upon every opener of the womb,—so that I might fix them, and that they might learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.

27 "Therefore, son of man, speak to the House of Israel, and tell them, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—Your fathers always outraged Me thus, 28 with resolute perversity. However I brought them to the country I had raised My hand to give them, and they admired all its lofty hills, and all its shady woods, and sacrificed their sacrifices there, and presented their offensive gifts, and placed there sweet perfume, and drank their 29 drinks! But I asked them, 'What are these Columns that you go to,
and whose name is called at the Column to this day?'

30 "Consequently say this to the House of Israel, 'Thus the MIGHTY LORD asks, Will you corrupt yourselves in the same way as your ancestors, and fornicate as filthily as 31 them? and offer your foul gifts to this day, in passing your children through the fire to all your idols?
Why should I answer you, House of Israel?' By My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will not be con-32 sulted by you! Yet what arises in your mind shall not be effected,—when you say, 'We will become like the heathen,—like the families of the countries, and worship wood and 33 stone!' By My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "if I will not reign over you with a strong hand, and directing arm, 34 and with pouring indignation; and bring you out from the Peoples, and collect you from the countries where

I have scattered you with a strong hand, and directing arm, and pouring indignation, and bring you to the 35 desert of the Peoples, and judge you there face to face, as I judged your 36 ancestors in the desert of the land of the Mitzeraim, so I will judge you," says the MIGHTY LORD, "and pass 37 you under the rod, and bring you to the bonds of the Treaty. But I will 38 expel from you the rebels and revolters against Me. I will bring them from the country where they were lodged, but they shall not enter the land of Israel;—then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.—But you, of the 39 House of Israel,—go everyone and serve his idols, and afterwards, if you will not obey Me, yet do not again outrage My HOLY NAME with your gifts and your idolatries,—for in 40 my Holy Hill, and the High Mountain of Israel," says the MIGHTY LORD,
"all the House of Israel will serve Me perfectly in the lands of their country,
—and I will there demand your wavings, and first fruits, and gifts, with all your consecrations. I will delight 41 in your perfumes, when I bring you out from the Peoples, and collect from the countries where I had scattered you, and I will make My NAME respected through you in the sight of the heathen. Then you will learn 42 that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I have brought you to the soil of Israel,
—the land that I raised My hand to give to your ancestors, and you will 43 then reflect upon your courses and all your ways by which you corrupted yourselves, and be loathsome in your own eyes, because of all the vices you have practised. You will also recog-44 nise that I, the EVER-LIVING, work for you because of My NAME,—not because of your vicious ways and rotten courses, House of Israel," says
the EVER-LIVING.

The Boom of Theman.

The command of the Lord came to 21
me again to say:

"Son of Adam! Set your face to- 2 wards Theman, and set it to the south wind, and preach against the forest of the south country, and say to the 3 forest of the south, 'Listen to the message of the EVER-LIVING! Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I will light a fire in you, and devour all your green trees, and every withered tree.
It will burn unquenchably, and every-

- 4 thing will be scorched before it, from south to north. Then every person will learn that I, the EVERLIVING, have kindled it unquenchably!"
- 5 But I replied, "Ah, EVER-LIVING, do they not say he talks in enigmas?"

Denouncing the Sins of Israel.

- 6 Again the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:
- 7 "Son of Adam! Set your face towards Jerusalem, and let it trip to the Sanctuaries, and preach against the soil of Israel, and say to the soil of Israel, Thus says the Lord: 'I am against you! and will draw My sword from its sheath, and cut off from you the righteous and the wicked! Then when I have cut off from you the righteous and the wicked, My sword shall proceed against every person from the south to the north! when every person will learn that I, the EVER-LIVING, having drawn My sword from its sheath, will never return it.'
- 11 "Consequently you, Son of Adam, sigh!—sigh with shaking waist, and bitterness;—sigh in their sight. And then if they say to you, 'For what do you sigh?' you must reply, 'At the report that has come.' So let every heart sink, and all hands weaken, and every spirit faint, and all knees tremble like water! for the event will come to pass," says the MIGHTY LORD.

The Sword of the Son of God.

- 13 The command of the EVER-LIVING again came to me to say:—"Son of Adam, proclaim and say, 'Thus says the EVER-LIVING! Exclaim, a sword!
- 15 A sword! Sharp and bright. It is sharpened for slaughter! That it may be destructive lightning! or the gleaming sceptre of My Son that melts every tree! It is endowed with brilliancy to be held in His hand; it is a sharp sword,—it is bright,—it is given to the hand of slaughter!
- 17 "Shriek and howl, Son of Adam, for it will come to My People! It will reach all the princes of Israel! My People will be terrified by that sword!
- 18 Therefore slap your thigh, because of the trial. And what if even the Gleaming Sceptre cannot endure it?" the MIGHTY LORD asks.
- 19 "But you, Son of Adam, preach, strike hand on hand, and triplicate the sword twice! The murderous sword!—the mighty, murderous sword, that penetrates to them! For terror 20 of heart, and the furious attacks on all their gates, I will fix the threatening sword point. I will make it like lightning flashing to slaughter! Rush 21 to the right hand! Turn to the left! Come! Fix your face! Yet I also 22 will clap My hands, and satisfy My indignation,—I, the EVER-LIVING, have said it!"

Ezekiel Ordered to make a Map of the Line of March of the King of Babel.

The command of the EVER-LIVING 23 came again to me to say:—

"And now, Son of Adam! appoint 24 for yourself two ways; sketch for yourself two ways for the entrance of the sword of the King of Babel. Let them both start from the same district, and when depicting it, depict a city at the end of the roads. You 25 must depict the route of the sword to Rabath of the Beni-Amon, and to Judah, to besiege Jerusalem. Then 26 depict the King of Babel at the Head of the two ways deciding which is the road to take,—by the shaking of arrows; asking of the Terephim; looking at the liver! Let the decision 27 come on his right hand, for Jerusalem! to erect batteries, to break her side,—to slaughter on the hills,—to shout with roarings;—to fix batteries against her gates,—to heap up an embankment, to construct ramparts. Yet it will be a silly tale 28 in the sight of those who swore the oaths. Yet he remembers their fault and will seize it.

"Therefore," thus says the 29 MIGHTY LORD, "because you have called your fault to remembrance, by publishing your sins, and displaying your offences, in all your proceedings,—because you have reminded about yourselves, you will be caught.

"But for you, wicked, wounded 30 Prince of Israel, whose day has come, with the time of this last fault,"—the MIGHTY LORD declares 31 it, "I will remove your turban, and take off your crown. He shall not be himself! I will throw down the high, and lift up the low! Alas! 32 Alas! Alas! I will overthrow this city! It shall never be revived until its rightful OWNER comes,—when I will give it to Him! "

The Doom of the Beni-Amon.

- 33 "For yourself, son of Adam, proclaim and say, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to the Beni-Amon, about their disgrace, and exclaim,— A sword! A naked sword to slaughter; sharpened to devour by lightning! in spite of your false visions, your lying divinations, hung on your necks,—when your day comes, at the end of your period of sin,—you poor deadly wounded wretch! Put it in its sheath! I will punish you in the place where you were created,—in your native land, —I will punish you. I will pour out My anger upon you, I will breathe upon you,—in the fire of My wrath,— I will give you into the power of ruffians, skilful in destruction. You shall be devoured by fire,—your blood be on your land, - you shall not be remembered, for I, the EVER-LIVING, declare it!'"

The Crimes of Jerusalem.

- 22 The command of the EVER-LIVING came again to me to ask:—
- 2 "Will you now, son of Adam, judge the bloody city, and teach her all her depravities? And will you say, —Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, 'City! You shed blood in your breast, to hasten on your destiny! And you make yourselves idols, to defile yourself! You shall perish in the blood that you have shed;—and be defiled by the idols you have made! For you have contracted your days, and brought years upon yourself,—therefore I will make you a scorn to the heathen, and a derision in all countries! You shall be named "Many Revolutioned!" both the near and the distant shall deride you! Look at your nobles, Israel! Each sheds blood as far as his power goes! In you they despise both father and mother. They oppress the stranger in you. In you they wrong the fatherless and the widow! You have degraded My Sanctuary,— and profaned My Sabbaths! In you men accuse falsely to shed blood, and in you they eat sacrifices to the hills! In you they plan treachery!
- 10 In you a father's shame is disclosed. In you they corrupt women bound by a vow; and each commits depravity with his neighbour's wife; and everyone devises to defile his daughter-in-law; and every one has debauched his sister, his father's daughter in you. In you bribes are taken to shed blood. You take usury and exorbitant interest; and plunder your neighbour by extortion; and have forgotten Me," says the MIGHTY LORD.

"Therefore see! I have struck My hands against the plundering you have done; and at the bloodshed which exists amongst you!— How can your heart stand, or your hands be strong, at the time when I shall deal with you? I, the EVER-LIVING, have said, and will do it, that I would scatter you amongst the heathen, and disperse you in the countries, and eradicate your corruptions from you, and make you vile to yourself in the sight of the heathen;—then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The message of the EVER-LIVING again came to me to ask:—

"Son of Adam! Are the House of Israel dross to Me? They are all copper, and tin, and iron, and lead in a furnace,—they are the refuse of silver! Therefore," thus the MIGHTY LORD said, "because you are all dross, I will pile you into the well of Jerusalem, as silver, and copper, and iron, and lead and tin are piled into the well of a furnace, to blow the fire over to melt them. Thus I will pile you in My indignation and fury, and melt you! I will melt you thus,—and blow on you with My fiery anger, and dissolve you in the well. Like silver is melted in the well of the furnace,—so you shall be melted in that well,—and learn that I, the EVER-LIVING, pour out My wrath upon you."

Israel's Crimes.

Again the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Son of Adam, say to her:—'It is a land not purified, nor rained upon, in the lowering day. Her Preachers conspire in her, like a roaring lion desiring to tear his prey. They devour wealth, they seize riches:—they have increased the destitute among you. Her priests have violated My laws, and outraged My Sanctuary. They do not distinguish between the consecrated and the common; and do not separate between the pure and the unclean; and have veiled their eyes from My Sabbaths; and I am 27 despised among them. Her nobles are like wolves in her breast tearing prey, and pouring out blood, and 28 destroying lives for the sake of plunder; and her preachers impel them by silly false visions, and lying divinations,—exclaiming, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,' when the Lord has 29 not spoken. They have oppressed and robbed the people of the country, and grieved the poor and distressed, and wronged the stranger,—refusing 30 justice. And I have sought for a man among them to mend the fence, and stand in the gap before Me for the sake of the country, that I might 31 not destroy it;—but I found none! So I will pour out My anger upon them,

 —in the fire of My wrath I will destroy them. On their own heads I have laid their conduct," said the MIGHTY LORD.

The Wickedness of Israel and Judah. Ahlah and Ahlibah.

23 Again the message of the EVER-
 LIVING came to me to say:—
 2 "Son of Adam! There were two women, daughters of the same 3 mother, and they prostituted themselves in Mitzer in their girlhood.
 Their breasts were pressed there, 4 and their virgin bosoms used; and their names were Ahlah and Ahlibah.
 They became my property, however, and bore sons and daughters;—and the name of the daughter of Ahlah was Shomeron, and of Ahlibah's
 5 Jerusalem. But Ahlah prostituted after she became Mine, and doted on her paramours,—on Ashur her neigh-6 bour—whodress in blue;—governors and rulers,—all of them handsome young fellows,—horsemen, riding on 7 horses; and gave her fornication to them. They were all the finest men of Ashur,—and she doted upon them, and corrupted herself with all their 8 idols. She did not however abandon her prostitutions with the Mitzeraim, who lay with her in her youth, and who used her virgin breasts, and poured 9 their whoredom upon her! So I gave her up into the power of her para-mours of Ashur, whom she doted on.
 10 They stripped her naked. They took her sons and daughters, and murdered them with the sword,—and she became a reproach to their women, who executed justice upon her;—and her 11 sister Ahlibah saw it.

"She, however, doted worse than her, and prostituted herself worse than her sister. She also doted on 12 the lads of Ashur, her neighbouring governors and rulers, who were gorgeously dressed,—horsemen, riding on horses,—all of them handsome young fellows! But I saw that she 13 had corrupted herself;—that both had gone the same way. She, how-14 ever, increased her profligacy, and saw men painted on tablets,—portraits of the Kasdim painted in red,— their waists belted with girdles, with 15 tasselled turbans on their heads, all of them gentlemen to look at,—the lads of Babel,—Kasdim by their native land,—and she doted on them, at the 16 sight of her eyes,—and sent messengers to them to the Kasdim. So the 17 lads of Babel came to her bed of love, and corrupted her by their whoredoms, and when she was defiled by them, her desire revolted from them.
 Then she confessed her prostitutions, 18 and disclosed her shame;—but My soul revolted from her,—as My soul had revolted from her sister.

"She, however, increased her pro-19 stitutions, remembering the period of her youth when she whored in the land of the Mitzeraim;—and doted on 20 the Philishtim, whose bodies are like the bodies of asses, and their lust like the lust of horses. Thus you 21 revived the idea of your youth,—to work your love amongst the Mitzeraim,—as though your breasts were young!

"Therefore, Ahlibah," the MIGHTY 22 LORD says this, "I will inflame the paramours, from whom your lust is alienated, against you, and bring them from around to assail you! The lads of Babel and all the Kasdim 23 to punish, and curse, and brand you, with all the lads of Ashur,—handsome young fellows,—nobles and governors,
 —all of them gentlemen with titles,— riders of horses, who will come upon 24 you with shield, and chariot, at a rush, —and with a crowd of nations armed with weapon and shield, and helmet, and set themselves around you, and fix their faces for vengeance, and punish you with their own punish-25 ments. For I will show My jealousy against you,—so they shall deal with

¹ NORR.—Ch. 23, v. 3. Her Tent, and My Tent, i.e., Samaria and Jerusalem.

you in snorting fury,—and cut off your nose,—and after that fell you with the sword! They will seize your sons and daughters,—and after that consume you in the fire.

26 "I will thus make your vices to cease, and your whoredom from the land of the Mitzeraim! and you will not lift up your eyes to them, nor remember the Mitzeraim again."

27 "For thus says the MIGHTY LORD:—"I will give you to the power of those you hate;—whom your lust revolts from!—and they shall deal with you in their hate, and seize all your earnings, and abandon you stripped and naked, and expose the shame of your prostitution, and vices,

29 and whoredoms! This shall be done to you, because of your whoring with the heathen with whom you corrupted yourself for their idols. You went the way of your sister,—so I will pass her cup to your hand!"

30 "Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! "You shall drink out of your sister's cup. You shall be mocked and insulted! ridiculed and laughed at beyond endurance! You shall be filled with drunkenness and anguish, from the cup of ruin and desolation!—the cup of your sister Shomeron!

31 Yes! You shall drink and suck it,—and chew the dregs,—and tear your breasts, for I have said so," the MIGHTY LORD declares.

32 "Therefore," thus the MIGHTY LORD declares, "because you have forgotten Me, and flung Me behind your back,—you shall bear your vices and fornications."

33 Then the LORD asked me, "Son of Adam! will you judge Ahlah and Ahlibah? and remind them of their depravities? For adultery and murder are in their hands,—and they have committed adultery to their idols,—and their children which they bore to Me, they have passed them round to be eaten! They have also done this to Me;—they have defiled My Sanctuary at the same time, and profaned My Sabbaths. For they have murdered their children to the idols, and on the same day come to My Sanctuary to defile it! Nay! They have even done it in My HOUSE!

34 "And in spite of all that, you have sent for men to come from a distance, to whom you have sent a messenger, and they came. Then you bathed,

35 painted your eyes, and decked yourself with jewels for them, and sat on a splendid couch, with a table spread before it, and My oil and perfumes upon it! And the sound of luxury

36 was with her,—and with the mob of men,—men from the west,—drunkards from the desert, on whose hands she put jewels, and beautiful turbans on their heads! Then I

37 remarked, 'Will they commit adultery with the old woman! Will they fornicate with the worn-out prostitute!' And they went to her as they 38 go to a woman who is a whore—that is how they went to Ahlah and Ahlibah,—the profligate wives!

39 "Righteous men, however, will punish them with the punishments of adulteresses, and with the punishments of murderesses,—for adultery and murder are on their hands. For,"

40 thus said the MIGHTY LORD, "I will bring upon them a crowd, and deliver them to be hustled about, and plundered. Then the mob will shower stones at them, and cut up with their swords;—kill their sons and daughters;—and consume their houses with fire. I will thus expel their vices from the country, and warn all women not to practise their sins. They will in this way lay your vices upon you, and you shall bear the sins of your idolatry, and learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The Parable of the Pot—Jerusalem.

The command of the EVER-LIVING again came to me in the ninth year, on the tenth of the tenth month, to say:—

"Son of Adam, write the name of this day,—for upon this day's date the king of Babel arrived at Jerusalem.

So compose a parable to the rebellious family, and say to them,' Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, Set on the pot! set it on! and pour water into it!

Cut up for it every good cut,—the leg, and the shoulder,—fill it with the best bones! Take a fat sheep and also pile the bones with it. Boil it well, and stew the bones in it. For thus says the MIGHTY LORD, Woe to the Murderers' city! Whose scum is in her! and whose scum cannot get out from her! Bring it out bit by bit, let no lump fall into her! for her blood is in her,—she poured it on the dry rock! she did not pour it on the earth to cover it with dust! She brought indignation upon her crime; I exposed her blood upon the dry rock without concealment!

- 9 "Therefore," thus the MIGHTY LORD says, "Woe to the City of Murderers! for I will pile on the fire! Heap on wood! Make the fire flame! Stew the flesh, and season it! But let the bones be burnt! and let it stand empty on the hot coals, so that it may be hot and burn the brass, until the foul scum in it is completely destroyed! She has boiled her scum well, but it has not come out of her! Her scum increases! The fire increases it, from your foul vices! Although I cleansed you,—you would not be clean from your filth. You will never be clean until I have satiated my indignation upon you!
- 14 "What I, the EVER-LIVING, have threatened will come,—and I will accomplish it. I shall neither shrink, spare, nor pity. I shall punish you according to your ways and conduct," says the MIGHTY LORD.

The Prophet's Wife Dies.

- 15 The command of the EVER-LIVING came again to me to say:—
- 16 "Son of Adam! I intend to take the desire of your eyes from you suddenly;—and you must neither grieve nor weep! nor allow your tears to flow. Groan in silence! Make no moaning for the dead! Arrange your turban on you and put your shoes on your feet; and cover not your lips, and eat no bread for your wife."
- 18 So I conversed with people in the morning,—and my wife died in the evening!—but I did the next morning as the EVER-LIVING commanded me.
- 19 Then the people asked me,—“Will you inform us, what this, that you are doing, means for us?”
- 20 When I replied to them, “The command of the EVER-LIVING came to me saying, ‘Proclaim to the House of Israel! Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I will defile my Sanctuary! the pride, strength and desire of your eyes, and the darling of your life! and your sons and daughters left to you will fall by the sword! But they will make you do as I have done;—you will not be allowed to cover your lips, nor to eat the bread of men! but be forced to dress your heads, and shoe your feet,—nor may you mourn or weep,—but waste away in your sufferings, and moan each to his companion! And Ezekiel has become a sign to you that all that he has done you will have to do;—then you will learn that I am the MIGHTY LORD!”

“So now, Son of Adam! In the day I take from them their confidence,—their joy,—their delight,—the desire of their eyes,—and the object of their life,—their sons and daughters,—that day will not the fugitives come to you to report it to your ears? At that time open your mouth to the refugees,—for you can then speak to them and be no more dumb as while you are a sign to them;—when they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.”

Again the command of the LORD came to me to say:—

The Doom of the Beni-Amon.

“Son of Adam! set your face against the Beni-Amon, and proclaim about them, and say to the Beni-Amon,

“Listen to the message of the MIGHTY LORD! Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: Because you shouted Hurrah! against My Sanctuary when it was violated, and against the soil of Israel when it was desolated,—and against the House of Judah when it went to captivity; I will in consequence give you to the sons of the East for a possession, and they shall settle on your downs and encamp on them, and eat your fruits, and drink your milk. I will also make Rabah a fold for camels, and the Beni-Amon a couch for sheep,—when you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.”

“For,” thus the MIGHTY LORD says, “because you clapped your hands and jigged on your feet, and rejoiced with all the spite of your soul against the soil of Israel, I have in consequence extended My hand against you, and have given you to be plundered by the nations, and cut off from the Peoples, and to perish from the countries;—I will destroy you;—when you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.”

The Doom of Moab and Sair.

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD:— “Because, because Moab and Sair say:—‘See! the House of Judah is 9 like other nations! Be sure I will open the gates of Moab from the cities,—from his frontier cities,—the pride of the country,—Beth-Jeshimoth, Bal-peor, and Kiriathaim,—to the sons of the East who assail the Beni-Amon, to whom I have given them as a possession, so that the Beni-Amon may not be remembered amongst the nations; and I will execute justice upon Moab;—when they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The Doom of Edom.

12 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "Because Edom has been revengeful against the House of Judah, and ravaged, and was spiteful to them,—therefore," the MIGHTY LORD says this, "I have extended My hand against Edom, and will cut off from Edom men and cattle, and make it a heap of ashes from Thiman, to Dardan,—they shall fall by the sword."
14 "I will also lay My punishment upon Edom by the hand of My People Israel, and they shall execute My anger and indignation upon Edom,—and they shall experience My punishments," says the MIGHTY LORD.

The Doom of Philistia.

15 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: "Because the Philistim have been revengeful, and have revenged with a malicious spirit, and ravaged with perpetual spite:—therefore," the MIGHTY LORD says this, "I will stretch out My hand against the Philistim, and cut off the swordsmen, and destroy the remnants of the shore of the sea, and inflict great punishments amongst them;—when they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING Who lay punishments upon them."

The Doom of Tyre.

26 It was in the eleventh year, on the first of the month, that the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—
2 "Son of Adam! Because Tzur said to Jerusalem, 'Hurrah! the gate of the nations is broken! Her ruin will turn wealth to me!'
3 Therefore the MIGHTY LORD says thus,—I am opposed to you, Tzur, and will bring many nations against you, like the rollers come up from the sea! And they will wreck the 4 walls of Tzur, and raze her towers, and sweep the dust from her, and I will make her a dry rock. She shall 5 become in the midst of the sea a place for spreading—a place for nets in the midst of the sea,—for I have said it," the MIGHTY LORD declared, "and she shall become plunder for the nations. And her daughters who 6 are in the country shall be murdered by the sword,—when she will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The MIGHTY LORD says this:— 7 "I will bring Nebukhadnezzar, king of Babel from the north against Tzur;—the king of kings, with horse and chariot, and cavalry, and the mass of a great force. Your daughters 8 in the country will be slain by the sword, and he will make a rampart against you, and heap up an embankment, and raise approaches against you, and erect batteries 9 against your towers and overthrow your towers with his pickaxes!

"The dust from his troops of horses 10 shall cover you;—your wall will shake with the roar from his horsemen and waggons, and chariots, when they enter your gates, as they enter the breach of a city! He will 11 tramp with the hoofs of his horses in all your streets,—he will slaughter your people with the sword,—and fling your fortifications to the ground! And they will plunder your wealth, 12 and loot your treasures,—overturn your walls, and pull down your charming palaces, and fling your stones, and timbers, and dust into the deep sea! And I will stop the 13 sound of your songs, and the music of your harps shall be no longer heard! for I will make you a water- 14 less rock,—you shall become a place to spread nets,—nor be rebuilt for ever!" for the MIGHTY LORD has spoken, the MIGHTY LORD declared it!

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD to 15 Tzur, "Will not the islands tremble at the sound of your fall? at the groans of the slaughtered in your streets? and all the princes of the 16 sea descend from their thrones, and strip off their brodered robes,—and clothe themselves with terror? sit on the ground, and lie down in silence and astonishment at you? Then 17 they will raise a lamentation over you and say:—

The Nations' Lament over Tzur.

"Has the Mistress of all the Seas perished?—
The glorious city made strong by the sea?
Who with her people terrified all who were in it!—
How the shores shake at the day of your fall!
And the Isles of the Sea are dismayed at your fate!"

16

19 For thus says the MIGHTY LORD!
"I will make your city a heap of ashes, like the cities that are uninhabitable, by bringing up the billows against you, and covering you with 20 great seas, and will bring you down to the lowest depth, to the men of old, and you shall dwell beneath the earth with everlasting desolation, in the deepest pit,—for you shall never be inhabited; because I will not let you dwell, or give you plunder in the land of the living! I will make you 21 a terror when you cease to exist,— and when sought you shall not be found, for ever and ever!" the MIGHTY LORD declares.

The command of the EVER LIVING 27
came again to me to say:—

"You, yourself, also, Son of Adam, 2 raise a lament over Tzur, and say to Tzur,

Lamentation over Tzur.

"You, who reside at the ports of the sea,—
Who trade with the Peoples of numerous isles,
Thus says the ALMIGHTY JEHOVAH to Tzur,
You boast—'I am perfect in beauty!'
Your bounds are the heart of the ocean,
Your builders have finished your charms!

"They built you with cypress from Senir,
For your decks they used Lebanon cedar,
And they took it to form your high masts,— Bashan's oak trees supplied you with oars,
Your benches were ivory and box from Kithim,
Your gay flag was fine linen of Egypt,
Your sails were rich purple from Alishah's Isles!

"Your sailors were peoples from Zidon and Arvad,
Your Pilots were skilful;—they came, Tzur, from you;
The skill and the science of Ghebel were yours,
Constructing and building your ships for the sea,
And their sailors were with you to go on your voyage.

"Fars, Lud, and Fut were your troops,
Your soldiers with shield and with helm;
Which they hung up in you, to add to your pride!
And as troops round your walls were the sons of Arvad,
And brave fellows they were on your towers,
Who hung up their shields round your walls,
And perfected your charms!

11

"You traded with Tharshish for all kinds of wealth,
For silver, for iron, and for lead;
They purchased your mercantile wares.
Javan, Thubal, and Meshek all traded with you,
Giving bodies of men, and bronze goods for your stores.
The House of Tograham with horses and chargers,
And mules have all purchased your goods.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 27, v. 7. "Alishah Isles," name of a region. Was it the British Isles, whose woad purple dyes were celebrated of old, as we learn from the Roman and Greek poets and writers? The tint of woad is what we now call our Navy Blue, and was the colour of our National Flag of old, as it is still.—F. F.

- 15 " Sons of Dedan dealt with you, and many Isles traded, Handing ebony, ivory, in change for your cash.
- 16 And Aram bought much of your factory products;—
With emeralds, and purple, and muslin, and lace,
And coral, and rubies, they paid for your wares.
- 17 Judah, and Israel's land were your dealers;
For fine wheat, and balms, and for honey and oil,—
And marbles, they purchased from you.
- 18 " Damask purchased much that you made,
With the rich wine of Helbon, and whitest of wool.
- 19 Dan and Javan bought cloth in your markets;
They sold you wrought iron, and cassia and spices;
Dedan sold you rich saddles for riding;
- 20 The Arabs and princes of Kedar dealt with you,— Lambs, sheep, and fine goats were their goods.
- 21 The merchants of Sheba and Ramah were traders.
With the best of all spices, and all precious gems,
And gold which they paid for your wares.
- 22 " Haran, and Kanah, and Aden, with all Sheba's merchants,
And Ashur and Kilmad were trading,
- 23 They bought of you fine purple fabrics,
And laces, and braids of mixed hues,
And cables well twisted, and cedars they purchased,
- 24 " Ships of Tarshish transported your trade,
And extended your power in the heart of the seas.
But your sailors have brought you to breakers;
- 25 The eastern wind wrecks in the midst of the sea;
Your bullion, your cargoes, your merchants, and seamen,
And captains, constructors, shipbuilders and brokers,
With all the bold warriors about you,
With all those collected within you will fall,
In the depth of the sea on the day when you fall!
- 26 " At the sound of the shriek of your pilots,
The breakers will tremble;—
- 27 All who handle the ropes will descend from their ships,
The sea-captains and sailors will stand on the land,
And will send up their cries and will bitterly shriek,
Cast dust on their heads, and will roll on the sand-hills,
And strip themselves for you, and clothe them in sacks,
And weep with soul-anguish and bitterly grieve,
And raising their wail, they will chant over you,—
- 28 " Oh! Who was like Tzur in the midst of the waters?
Many nations were fed by your trade on the seas!
By your great wealth and traffic the kingdoms grew rich,
Now the breakers have wrecked in the trough of the sea!
Your cargo and crew sink with you to its bed!
All dwelling in islands are stupified at you!
And their monarchs quivering have terrified looks!
The mercantile nations scream at you in terror,—
' You were,—but you never shall rise up again! "

- The Lesson of Tzur's Fate.
- 28 Again the message of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—
- 2 " Son of Adam! proclaim to the Prince of Tzur and say; Thus says
- | | |
|---|--|
| the MIGHTY LORD, because of the pride of your heart, and your saying, | ' I am a god! I sit with the gods in the heart of the seas! ' Yet you are a man, and not a god!—although |
|---|--|

you have set your heart in the circle 3 of the gods! However, you are wiser than the judge of the gods! They cannot hide any secrets from you!
 4 You have made yourself powerful by your sciences, and your knowledge, and enriched yourself in treasures of gold and silver! You have, (traded with your many 5 sciences, you have increased your power,—and your heart has risen 6 with your power! Therefore," thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "because you have set your heart like the 7 heart of GOD, I will bring cruel, tyrannical nations against you, who will draw their swords against your fine sciences, and spoil your splen-dour! and you shall sink to death 8 with a deadly wound in the heart of the sea! Will you assert before 9 your murderers, I am a god? Yet you will be a man, and not a god, to the hand wounding you! You shall die in contempt:—you shall 10 die by the hand of a foreigner;—

 for I, the EVER-LIVING, have decreed it!"

A Second Lament over Tyre.

Then the command of the EVER- 11
 LIVING came to me to say:—
 "Son of Adam! raise a lament 12 over the king of Tzur, and say to him,
 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,

A Lamentation for Tyre.

"You perfect seal! full of science and spotless in beauty!
 You once were in Eden the garden of GOD! 13
 Every stone that is precious was fastened upon you,
 Ruby, topaz, and diamond; the beryl and onyx;
 Sapphire, emerald, and opal; in chasings of gold,
 They were made, and set on you the day you were born!

"And you were the Kerub, the holy protector, 14
 And sat on the hill that was sacred to GOD;
 You walked in the midst of the bright flashing jewels;
 You were right in your path from the day of your birth! 15
 Until in yourself the corruption was formed;
 Till your trades filled your breast with extortion and wrong! 16
 So I flung you out from the mountain of Godhood,
 And sent your guardian Spirit from among the bright gems!
 From your beauty your heart rose; your science corrupted; 17
 Notwithstanding your splendour I flung you to earth;
 And before kings, I cast you, to show what you are!

"Your great passion for trade deeply wounded your virtues, 18
 So I bring fire from you, consuming yourself!
 And on earth lay your ashes, in sight of onlookers;
 All nations who knew you will shudder above you! 19
 You have been a terror; but shall be never more!"

The Doom of Sidon.

20 Then the command of the EVER-
 LIVING came to me to say:—
 21 "Son of Adam! Set your face against Sidou, and proclaim to her,
 22 and say, Thus says the MIGHTY
 LORD! Sidon! I am against you, and I will be honoured amongst you.
 Then they will know that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I execute justice on her; and I shall be respected in 23 her. For I will send a plague to her, and bloodshed in her streets, and the slain shall fall in her from the sword that assails her around;—then they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.

And there shall not be again a 24 irritation from them, or painful briar to the House of Israel, from any around, but they will learn that I am
 the MIGHTY LORD!"

The Lesson from the Fate of Israel's Enemies.

The MIGHTY LORD declares thus: 25
 —"When I collect the House of Israel from the Peoples among whom I have scattered them, and have been revered by them in the sight of the heathen, and they are restored to the soil I gave to My servant Jacob, upon which they shall dwell in safety, 26 and build houses and plant vineyards, and rest secure,—when I have executed justice on all around who despised them,—they will acknowledge that I am their EVER-LIVING GOD!"

The Fate of Pharaoh and Egypt.

29 In the tenth year, on the twelfth day of the tenth month, the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

2 "Set your face against Pharaoh, king of the Mitzeraim, and proclaim 3 to him, and to all the Mitzeraim;—speak and say,—

" Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I am opposed to you, Pharaoh, king of the Mitzeraim, you great reptile of the land between the rivers! who says to Me 'It is my river,—I made it for myself!' I, however, will put 4 hooks into your jaws, and make the fish of your rivers stick to your scales, and pull you up out of your rivers on 5 to the face of the fields where you will fall,—neither collected nor picked up, but I will give you as food to the beasts of the earth, and the birds of 6 the skies! Then all the population of the Mitzers will know that I am the EVER-LIVING, because they were a reed-like crutch to the House of 7 Israel! When they leaned upon your handle you split and gashed all their shoulder,—and when they leaned upon you, you broke, and shook all their waist!

8 "Therefore," thus the MIGHTY LORD declares, "I will bring a sword against you, and cut off from you 9 men and cattle, and the land of the Mitzeraim shall become a desolation and ash-heap; and they shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING,—because they said, 'The river is mine! and I made it!' Therefore I oppose you and your river! and will make the land of the Mitzeraim a heap of ashes, a waste of ashes from the Tower of Sunah, to the borders of 10 Kush.¹ The foot of man shall not pass over it, nor shall it be inhabited 12 for forty years! For I will make the land of the Mitzeraim a waste in the midst of desolate countries,—and her cities, in the midst of cities of ashes. They shall be deserted for forty years, and I will scatter the Mitzeraim among the Nations, and sow them among the countries.

"But," the MIGHTY LORD declares, 13 "at the end of forty years, I will collect the Mitzeraim² from the Peoples, where I have driven them, and restore the captive Mitzerites, 14 and return them to the district of Phathros,¹ to the land of their birth, and it shall become a low kingdom. It shall be lower than any kingdom, 15 and never again raise itself above the nations, for I will prevent it from trading in nations, and it shall no 16 more be trusted by the House of Israel,—a reminder of former sufferings to their face. Then they will learn that I am the MIGHTY LORD."

Nebukhadnezzar's Plan for Destroying Tyre.

It happened again in the twenty- 17 seventh year, on the first of the first month, the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! Nebukhadnezzar, 18 king of Babel, has done a big work with his army at Tzur:—every head has been made bare, and every shoulder chafed, but neither he nor his army have had any pay from Tzur, for the work they have done against her. Therefore," thus says the 19 MIGHTY LORD, "I will give the land of the Mitzeraim to Nebukhadnezzar, king of Babel, and he shall carry off her wealth, plunder her plunder, and loot her loot, and it shall be the pay of his army. For 20 the work he has done at her I give to him the land of the Mitzeraim, for what he did for Me," said the MIGHTY LORD. "At the same time I will 21 produce a shoot from the House of Israel; and give you an open mouth amongst them,—when they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

Word to many Nations.

The command of the EVER-LIVING 30 came again to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! Proclaim and say: 2

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 29, v. 10. "From the Tower of Sunah, to the borders of Kush." KUSH was the country extending from the Persian Gulf on the east to the Gulf of Suez on the west, that is now North Central Arabia.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Ch. 29, v. 14. "Phathros." Probably the Delta of the Nile—the "spreading out," to expand, explain, lay open, being the meaning of the word in Hebrew and Arabic.—F. F.

'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD—
 3 Howl, Alas for the day! For the day comes,—the day of the EVER-LIVING comes,—a gloomy day,—the day of 4 the Nations comes! And a sword has gone to Mitzer,—and anguish has gone to Kush, at the fall of the wounded of Mitzer, for her wealth is seized, and her foundations are upturned!
 5 Kush, and Phut, and Lud, and all the Arab and Kub, and the men of the countries allied with them shall fall by the sword!
 6 "Thus," said the LORD, "they shall fall heavily with Mitzer, and her proud strength shall rush down. They shall fall with her by the sword from Migdol to Suneh," said the EVER-LIVING, "and be desolate amongst 7 the desolate countries, and their cities amongst the cities shall become heaps of ashes! When they will learn that
 8 I, the EVER-LIVING, have put a fever in Mitzer which will shatter all her strength. Then messengers shall 9 proceed from My presence to the deserts to cause terror to easy Kush, and anguish will reach them like that of Mitzer,—for look! it has arrived!"
 10 The MIGHTY LORD continued thus, "I will take away the wealth of Mitzer by the hand of Nebukhadnez-11 zar, king of Babel. He, and his People with him,—the terror of Nations,—advance to destroy the country; and draw their swords against Mitzer, and 12 fill the land with slain. I also will make their rivers ash-heaps, and sell the country to the hands of the cruel, —and desolate the land, and its industry, by the hand of foreigners, I, the EVER-LIVING, have said it!"
 13 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will make the idols waste away,—and destroy the delusions from Noph, and a prince shall never again come from the land of the Mitzeraim,—but I will 14 put fear in the country of Mitzer. I will also desolate the Delta, and set fire to Zaon, and execute justice on Noa,—and pour My indignation on Sin, the Fortress of Mitzer, and cut 15 off the wealth of Noa. When I set fire to the Mitzeraim, Sin will be in torment, and Noph in daily misery!
 16 The warriors of Aven and Pi-beseth will fall by the sword, and they shall go to captivity. What a dark day for Taphenes when I break the supports of the Mitzeraim, and destroy the pride of her power! Gloom will cover 17 her! when her daughters go into slavery! and I execute justice on the 19 Mitzeraim; then they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

The Doom of Egypt's Power.

It was in the eleventh year, on the 20 first of the seventh month, the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! I have shattered 21 the arm of Pharaoh, king of the Mitzeraim! and it has not been bound with remedial appliances, or wrapped in bandages, to fix and strengthen it to grasp the sword. For," thus said 22 the MIGHTY LORD, "I am opposed to Pharaoh, king of the Mitzeraim, and have broken the arms of his power,—they are broken,—and have caused the sword to fall from his hand! And I will scatter the Mitzeraim 23 amongst the nations, and sow them in the countries, but will strengthen 24 the arms of the king of Babel, and put My sword into his hand; but break the arms of Pharaoh, who will groan the groans of the wounded before him! For I have strengthened 25 the arms of the king of Babel, and enfeebled the arms of Pharaoh,—and they shall learn that it is I, the EVER-LIVING, Who put the sword into the hand of the king of Babel, and extend it against the Mitzeraim; and Who 26 scatter the Mitzerites amongst the nations, and sow them amongst the countries,—where they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING."

A Question asked of Pharaoh about a Cedar of Lebanon.

It was in the eleventh year, on the 31 third of the first month, that the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! Ask Pharaoh, king 2 of the Mitzeraim, and all his crowd, Who are you like in your grandeur? You saw Ashur was a cedar in 3 Lebanon,—with beautiful branches, and silent shade, and lofty heights,—with his foliage like dark clouds! He grew by the brooks;—the deep 4 rose for him,—her streams ran round his roots, and sent their rills to all the trees of the field. So his stature 5 was higher than all the trees in the fields, and his branches increased, and his boughs multiplied from the plentiful water sent to him. All the 6 birds of the skies nestled in his branches, and all the beasts of the field bred under his boughs, and many nations rested under his shade. And he was beautiful in his grandeur and wide-stretching leafage, for his roots were in plenty of water. The cedars in the garden of GOD could not hide him; the pines were not equal to his boughs; nor were the planes to his branches;—all the trees in the garden of GOD were not equal to him in his beauty. I made him beautiful with his many branches;—and all the trees in the garden of GOD envied him!

10 "However," the MIGHTY LORD says this, "because of excessive height,—and placing his foliage in the clouds, and lifting his heart in pride, I have given him to the Prince of Nations! He will deal with him! I have driven him off in his crime!

11 and foreign cruel nations shall cut him down, and abandon him on the hills, when all his glorious boughs will wither, and his branches be broken by the strong of the earth; and all the Peoples of the earth have fled from his shade, and left him!

12 Upon his wreck all the birds of the skies will settle, and all the beasts of the field come to his boughs. So let none of all the trees by the brooks exalt themselves on high, nor place their foliage in the clouds, nor station themselves above all the drinkers of water; for all will be given to death, to the earth beneath,—amongst the sons of Adam, who go down to the pit!

"On the day he went to the grave," 15 said the MIGHTY LORD, "I mourned! I covered the deep for him! I stopped the rivers! I shut up many waters! I darkened Lebanon for him! And all the trees of the field fainted for him! At the sound of his 16 fall the nations shook! At his descent to the grave;—at his descent to the pit, the depths of the earth sighed;—all the trees of Eden,—the best and fairest of Lebanon,—all that drink waters! They went down with 17 him to the grave,—to the slain by the sword,—who lay scattered beside him among the nations!

"Are you like him in glory, and 18 grandeur, among the trees of Eden? You will still be brought down with the trees of Eden to the lower earth among the defiled,—lying with those killed by the sword,—you, Pharaoh, and all your companions," says the MIGHTY LORD.

A Dirge over Pharaoh.

It was in the twelfth year, in the 32 twelfth month, on the first of the month, the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:

"Son of Adam! take up a lament for Pharaoh, king of the Mitzeraim, and say about him:—

Lament over Pharaoh.

"You were like a young lion to nations,
And you were like to a reptile in seas;
And you paddled your feet in the rivers,
And muddled about in your streams.

3 "But thus says the MIGHTY JEHOVAH!
Over you I will fling out My net,
4 And My toils, with a great crowd of men!
Leave on land, on the face of the field,
And the birds of the skies light on you,
5 And the beasts of the earth on you gorge.
On the hills I will fling out your flesh,
6 And the vales shall be full of your worms!
Flood the land where you swam with your blood,
And fill the dales up to the hills!

7 "When I quench you, I'll darken the stars,—
And cover the sun in a cloud,
8 And the moon shall not give out her light.
For you darken the lamps of the skies,
And spread darkness over your land,"
Thus the ALMIGHTY LORD has declared.

9 "Many nations will grieve at the heart,
When I wreck you along with the tribes,

In lands that you never had known,
 And waste many Peoples with you;
 And kings lie in trouble for you,
 When I brandish My sword in their face,
 And shrink back in terror each one
 For his life, in the day of your fall!"

11 For thus says the MIGHTY LORD!
 "The sword of the king of Babel 12 shall come to you! I will fell you by the swords of his generals, the most cruel of the nations,—and they will plunder the pride of Mitzer, and 13 destroy her wealth. And I will deprive her of all the cattle beside her many streams, nor shall the foot of man muddle them again, nor the 14 hoof of cattle muddle them, when I cause your brooks to shrink, and your rivers to run like oil," says the 15 MIGHTY LORD, "when I make the land of the Mitzeraim desolate, and deprive the country of its industry.
 When I strike its inhabitants,—they will acknowledge that I am the EVER-LIVING.

"This is the lamentation with which 16 the daughter of the nations will lament her,—they will lament over Mitzer, and all her wealth,—they will lament her," says the MIGHTY
 LORD.

Another Dirge over Egypt and her Allies.

It was in the twelfth year, on the 17 fifteenth of the month, that the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:—

"Son of Adam! Wail over the 18 population of Egypt, and the daughters of the noble nations gone down beneath the earth, descended to the pit!

A Lament over Egypt, and all her Allies.

"You beauty! descend and lie down with the vile, 19
 In the home of the slaughtered who fall by the sword 20
 They give her a bed with her crowds;
 From the midst of the grave heroes call out to her, 21
 Where the mighty departed lie slain by the sword.

"There is Ashur and all his assembly with him,— 22
 They are buried, all slain, as they fell by the sword;
 Each is placed in his tomb, at the sides of the pit, 23
 And his troops still about him surrounding his grave;—
 They are all of them slain, and flung down by the sword;
 Who made themselves terrors when living on earth!

"Ailam is there with her friends all surrounding her tomb, 24
 Who were all of them slaughtered, and felled by the sword;
 Who departed, defiled, to the earth underneath;
 Who made themselves terrors when living on earth,
 But were loaded with shame when they went to the Pit!
 In the midst of the slain they have made her a bed; 25
 And with all her companions around her entombed;—
 They were slain by the sword, and the whole were disgraced,
 Tho' in life they had made themselves terrors to earth;
 And they bear their disgrace with those gone to the pit;—
 She is laid in the midst of her slain.

'There is Meshek and Tubal with great hosts around, 26
 All entombed in disgrace with the slain by the sword,
 Tho' in life they had made themselves terrors on earth.
 Lie they not with the heroes who fell in defeat, 27
 Who went down to the grave with their weapons of war?
 'Neath their heads are their swords, and their rags on their bones,
 Tho' in life they had made themselves terrors on earth!

- 28 " And yourself shall be broke in the midst of the vile !
 You shall lie down with those who are slain by the sword !
- 29 There is Edom, her king, and her princes are there,—
 Who are laid with their brave, but all slain by the sword,
 They sleep there with the vile, and are gone to the pit !
- 30 All the League of the North, and all Zidon are there ;
 Who fell slain, with their terrible heroes ashamed,
 And lie vilely disgraced with the slain by the sword,
 And bear their reproach with those gone to the pit !
- 31 " Pharoh sees them,—feels comfort for all his slain host,
 Pharoh, slain by the sword, with his powerful troops,
 Yes, Pharoh's whole host, says my GOD EVER-LIVING,
 Though his terrors he placed on the living on earth,
 I cause him to sleep in disgrace with those slain by the sword,
 Yes, Pharoh and all his great host," said JEHOVAH, my GOD !

A Warning to Israel.

- 33 The command of the EVER-LIVING came again to me to say :—
- 2 " Son of Adam, speak to the children of your people and say to them, ' When I bring a sword against a country, and take a man of that country to its borders, and appoint
- 3 him as a watchman for them, and he sees the sword coming to the country, and he blows his trumpet, and arouses
- 4 the People,—whoever hears the sound of the trumpet and does not take warning, but the sword approaches and seizes him,—his blood will be
- 5 upon his own head. He heard the sound of the trumpet, and did not take warning,—his blood will be on himself, since he had been warned to protect his life.
- 6 " But if when the watchman saw the sword advancing, he did not sound the trumpet, nor warned the people, and the sword came, and took a person from them, he will have been taken by his fault, and I will require his blood at the hand of the watchman.
- 7 " And you, Son of Adam,—I have appointed you as a watchman for the House of Israel :—therefore listen to the command from My mouth, and
- 8 warn them by it. If I say to the wicked that he shall die for his wickedness, and you do not speak to warn the sinner from his wicked way, he will die by his sin,—but I will seek
- 9 his blood on your hand. But when you warn the wicked to turn from his way,—and he does not turn from his course,—he will die for his sin,—but you will have delivered your soul.
- 10 " So now, Son of Adam, speak to the House of Israel, address them who say :—

" Because our sins and offences are upon us, we waste away by them, —and there is no revival !'

" Say to them, ' By My life,' says the MIGHTY LORD, ' I do not delight in the death of the wicked ;—but wish the wicked to turn from his course and be revived. Turn ! Turn ! from your bad course ! Why will you kill yourselves, House of Israel ?'

" Therefore you, Son of Adam, tell the children of your people, ' The righteousness of the good will not rescue him at the time when he sins ;—and the wickedness of the wicked will not weigh against him when he turns from his wickedness :—nor the righteous be able to live by it when he sins !'

" When I tell the righteous that he shall live, and he relies in that righteousness, and does wrong, all his righteousness will not be remembered, but for the wrong he has done he will die by it.

" But when I tell the wicked he shall die,—and he abandons his offences, and practises justice and right,—if the wicked restores the pledge ;—returns the theft ;—follows the rules of life—ceases to do wrong ;—then he shall live, he shall not die. All the offences by which he had offended will not be remembered against him. He practises justice and right,—he will live.

" But the children of your people say, ' The path of the ALMIGHTY is not straight !' Your path, however, is not straight.

" By the righteous turning from his righteousness and practising evil,—he then dies by it. And by the wicked turning from his wickedness, and practising justice and righteousness,—he is revived by them. Yet x you say, 'The path of the ALMIGHTY is not straight!' House of Israel, I will sentence every one of you by his own courses! "

The Fall of Jerusalem and a Message upon the Jews.

- 21 It was in the twelfth year, on the tenth of the fifth month, of our transportation, a refugee from Jerusalem came to me to say: "The city has been assaulted!" But the hand of the LORD had been upon me in the evening before the refugee came, and He had opened my mouth when he came to me in the morning, and I could speak, being no longer dumb.
- 22 So the command of the EVER-LIVING came to me to say:
- 23 "Son of Adam! The inhabitants of the ash-heaps in the land of Israel exclaim, and say: 'Abraham was an individual, yet possessed the country;—and we are many. Give us the possession of the country.' Therefore tell them, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: Because of the blood you eat, and the raising of your eyes to idols, and the blood you have shed,—ought you to possess the country? You stand on your ruins practising depravities,—and each corrupts the wife of his neighbour!—yet you would possess the country?'
- 24 "Tell them this, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: By My life, those in the ruins shall fall by the sword, and those in the open field I will give to the beasts for food! and those in forts and caves shall die of disease.
- 25 I will also make the country desolate and waste, and her proud power shall fail, and the hills of Israel be a desert without a passenger. Then they will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING when I make the country desolate and waste, because of all the depravities they practise.'
- 26 "And you, Son of Adam,—the children of your People make a talk about you in the shadow of the walls, and at the doors of their houses, and they say one to another, each to his friend, 'Let us go now and listen what message has come from the EVER-LIVING.' But they only come to you as a gathering crowd, and sit before you as a mob, and listen to your speech; but they do not practise it,—for they flatter with their mouth,
- 27 but their hearts follow villany! And you are like a love-song to them, beautiful in sound, and cheering in tone, so they listen to your words;—but they do not practise them;—but when that comes which will come,—they will acknowledge that a Prophet has come amongst them! "

A Warning to Israel's Shepherds.

The command of the EVER-LIVING came again to me to say:

- "Son of Adam! Preach against the shepherds of Israel, and tell those shepherds: 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD. Woe to the shepherds who shepherd themselves!—should not shepherds shepherd their flock? Who consume the milk, and wear the wool, and kill the fattened;—but shepherd not the flock! You have not strengthened the feeble;—and have not cured the wounded; and have not bandaged the broken, nor turned back the straying;—nor sought the lost; but brutally kicked and driven them off! So they were scattered without a shepherd, and devoured by all the wild beasts of the field, and chased! My sheep wandered on all the hills, and on all the high mountains, and over all the surface of the country the flock was scattered, and you never enquired or sought for them. Therefore, Shepherds! listen to my message from the EVER-LIVING! 'By My life,' says the MIGHTY LORD, 'it is because you let My flock be devoured by all the wild beasts of the field, without a shepherd;—and the shepherds never care about My flock;—but the shepherds mind themselves, and do not mind the sheep, therefore, Shepherds! listen to my message from the EVER-LIVING. Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, 'I am against you, Shepherds, and will demand My sheep from your hands, and will dismiss you from your shepherdship of the flock,—and you, Shepherds! shall shepherd yourselves no more;—but I will rescue My sheep from you, and you shall not devour them.'
- "For," thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will attend My sheep and look after them. As a shepherd looks after his flock during the time he is amongst the scattering sheep;—so I will look after My sheep, and rescue them from all the hollows where they have been scattered in the day of clouds and darkness, and will bring them out from the Peoples, and collect them from the countries, and bring them to their own ground, and shepherd them on the hills of Israel, by the brooks, and near the inhabited country. I will shepherd them with good shepherding, and their folds shall be on the high hills of Israel, where they shall lie down in good pasture, and feed fat on the provender of the hills of Israel. I will shepherd My flock, and I will comfort them," says the MIGHTY LORD. "I shall seek for the lost; and will turn back to straying; and bandage the broken; and strengthen the feeble,—but kill the fat and strong. I will shepherd properly!" I will also give My flock," the MIGHTY LORD says this, "Myself justice between sheep and sheep, and rams and he-goats.

18 "Does it seem nothing to you to have fed on good pasture, and neglected your shepherding:—that you must trample it with your feet? And having been quenched with clear water,—but you must muddle the rest with your feet? so that My sheep must eat what your feet crushed, and drink what your feet had be-fouled?

20 "Consequently," the MIGHTY LORD says this, "I Myself will decide between the fat sheep and the lean sheep. Because you have pushed with side and shoulder, and struck with your horns all the weak, until you have expelled them to the outside, I will protect My sheep, and they shall not again become a prey, for I will decide between sheep and sheep, and will appoint a Perfect Shepherd, who will shepherd them,—My Servant David,—who shall pasture them, and be their shepherd. I, the EVER-LIVING, will also be their GOD, and My Servant David a prince to them. I, the EVER-LIVING have said it.

25 "Then I will make a treaty of peace with them, and expel cruel beasts from the country, so that they may reside in the open plains in security, and sleep in the woods. I will also endow those who surround My hills with a blessing:—and rain shall pour down in its season; and there shall be blessed showers.

27 Then the tree of the field shall bear its fruit, and the earth give out its produce,—and they shall be secure on their grounds. Then they will know that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I have broken yokes off them, and delivered them from power of those who enslaved them; for they shall never again be a prey for the heathen, nor shall the wild beasts of the earth devour them,—but they shall rest in safety, and without fear. And I will raise for them a wonderful plant,—and they shall be no more destroyed by famine in the country, and no more bear the insults of the heathen; but acknowledge that I am their EVER-LIVING GOD, and the House of Israel are My People," said the MIGHTY LORD. "You, however, My sheep, the sheep of My pastures, are Men! I am your GOD!" says the MIGHTY LORD.

The Doom of Mount Seir.

The command of the EVER-LIVING shall come again to me to say:

"Son of Adam! Turn towards Mount Seir, and proclaim against it, and say to it,—Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I am opposed to you, Mount Seir, and will extend My hand against you, and make you desolate and waste. I will lay your towns in ashes;—and you shall become desolate, and learn that I am the EVER-LIVING. Because you had a perpetual hatred, and poured out the children of Israel to the hand of the sword, at the time of Edom,—at the time of his passionate slaughter! Therefore, by My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will prepare blood for you! and blood shall pursue you; since you did not hate blood,—therefore blood shall pursue you! So I will make Mount Seir desolate and waste, and will cut off from it travellers and resident. I will also cover his hills with his slain, and on your highlands, and vales, and plains, those slain by the sword shall fall! I will make you an everlasting desolation! Your towns shall not be rebuilt! then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING because you said, 'Both those nations, and those two countries will be mine, and I shall possess them!' But the EVER-LIVING was there; therefore, by My life," says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will act like the rage and envy that you displayed against them, and display Myself as amongst them, when I punish you! You also will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING, and have heard all the insults you uttered against the mountains of Israel, 'They are desolated for us! They are given us to be devoured!' 13 And you inflated yourself against Me by your mouth, and boasted against Me by your words!—I heard!" 14 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "When all this country is glad,—I will make you desolate! You rejoiced over the injuries to the House of Israel, when desolate;—therefore I will do this to you: All Mount Seir, and all Edom shall become desolate, —and learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.

A Message to the Hills of Israel.

36 "But now, Son of Adam, preach to the Mountains of Israel, and say, Mountains of Israel! listen to a message from the EVER-LIVING. 2 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! Because your enemies say, 'Ah, Ah,' at you, 'the everlasting hills will be our possessions,' therefore proclaim and say, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! Although they have ravaged and worried you all round, to make you a province of broken nations, and to bring you on to the end of the tongue as a contemptible People,—therefore, Mountains of Israel! listen to the message of the MIGHTY LORD! The MIGHTY LORD says to the Mountains, and to the Hills, and to the Valleys and Dales, and to the Waste Heaps of Ashes, and to the Deserted Cities, that were plundered, and laughed at by the broken nations around you;" thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "I will promise in the fire of My indignation against the broken nations, and against Edom; all of them who assigned My land to themselves as a possession, with a delighted heart and a malignant mind, that they should be a subject 6 of plunder.—Therefore proclaim to the soil of Israel, and tell the Mountains, and Hills, and Valleys and Dales,—thus says the MIGHTY LORD, I promise you in My indignation and anger,—because you have borne the insults of the heathen,—therefore," thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "I have raised My hand,—that the heathen around you shall bear their own disgrace! But you, Mountains of Israel! shall grow trees and bear fruit for My People Israel, 9 when they are ready to come! For

I am with you, and will turn towards you, and you will be cultivated and sown, and I will increase a population 10 from all of the House of Israel, who will return to the burnt-up cities and rebuild them. For I will increase 11 men and cattle upon you, and you will increase and breed, to your ancient population, and I will benefit you more than formerly. Then you will learn that I am the EVER-LIVING, when I bring the men of My People 12 Israel to you, who will possess you, and you shall be their estates, and you shall never again be bereaved."

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! 13 "Because they say to you, 'You devour men, and have been a destroyer of your population!' Therefore you shall not again 14 devour your population, nor again be bereaved of your population," says the MIGHTY LORD.

"And I will no more startle you by 15 the insult of the heathen, and you shall no more bear the reproach of the Peoples,—for you shall not be bereft of your population again," the MIGHTY LORD declares.

The message of the EVER-LIVING 16 came again to me to say:

"Son of Adam! when the House of 17 Israel resided in their own country they defiled it by their conduct, and idols,—their conduct before me was like that of a depraved loose woman; so I poured My indignation upon 18 them, because of the blood they shed upon the earth, and its defilement by idols. I also scattered them amongst the heathen, and littered them in the countries;—I punished them for their ways and practices. But upon 20 arriving amongst the heathen where they were sent, they degraded My HOLY NAME, by saying to them, 'These are the People of the EVER-LIVING! but they have been put out from His country!' I however have 21 regard to MY HOLY NAME, which the House of Israel have degraded amongst the heathen where they wander;—therefore tell the House of 22 Israel, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I will not effect this for your sakes, House of Israel, but for MY HOLY NAME which you have degraded amongst the heathen to whom you have come. I intend to sanctify My 23 greatly degraded NAME amongst the heathen, which you degraded amongst them,—so that the heathen may learn that I am the EVER-LIVING," the MIGHTY LORD declares, "by My making Myself sacred in their eyes, through you! Then I will bring you from the heathen, and collect you from all the countries, and bring you to your own soil, and wash you with pure water, and purify you from all your corruptions, and cleanse you from your idolatries, and give you a new heart, and put a new spirit in your breast; and remove the heart of stone from your body, and place in you a heart of flesh, and put My spirit into your breast, and cause you to walk according to My institutions and regard and practise My Decrees. Then I will restore you to the country I gave to your ancestors, and you shall be My people, and I will be your GOD, and rescue you from all your corruptions,—and call to the corn, and increase it, and not lay famine upon you. I will also increase the fruit of the trees, and the products of the fields, so that the reproach of famine will no more be brought against you by the heathen. Then you will reflect on your wicked ways, and bad conduct, and be despicable in your own sight, because of your sins and depravities. I shall not do this for your sakes," the MIGHTY LORD declares;—"let yourselves know that;—and be ashamed and feel the disgrace of your conduct, House of Israel."

The MIGHTY LORD says thus, "In the time when I cleanse you from all your passions and restore you to your cities, and you rebuild the burnt ruins; and the desolate land that was a waste to the eyes of all who passed through it, is again cultivated, they will ask, 'How has this country, that was a desert, become like the Garden of Eden? and its burnt and desolate and broken-down cities inhabited fortresses?' Then the fragments of the heathen around will recognize that I, the EVER-LIVING, have rebuilt the ruins, and planted the waste. I, the EVER-LIVING, have promised, and will perform it!"

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "Yet I must be requested by the House of Israel to do this. Then I will increase population for them like sheep,—like blessed sheep they shall be,—like sheep in Jerusalem at her fairs. The burnt cities shall be full of men like flocks,—and they shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING!"

The Plain covered by Dry Bones.

The hand of the EVER-LIVING 37 came upon me and carried me out by the whirlwind of the LORD, and let me down on the Plain, and it was full of bones. Then it whirled me over them round and round, and I saw very many on the surface of the Plain, and I perceived they were very dry. Then He asked me, "Son of Adam, can these bones be revived?" And I replied, "You know, MIGHTY LORD."

When He answered, "Preach to these bones, and say to them, Dry bones! listen to the message of the LIVING LIFE! The MIGHTY LORD proclaims, I will bring a wind to you, and you shall revive! I will also put sinews on you, and cause flesh to cover you, and cover you with skin, and put breath into you, when you will revive,—and learn that I am the LIFE."

I consequently preached as He ordered me;—and as I preached a sound came, and I perceived an earthquake, and the bone approached to bone! Then I watched, and saw muscles come over them, and flesh rise and skin cover them over all,—but breath was not in them.

He then said to me, "Proclaim to the Wind,—proclaim, Son of Adam, and say to the Wind, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—Wind! come from the four winds, and blow into the throats of these,—and let them revive!'"

So I proclaimed as He ordered me, and the wind came to them, and they revived! and stood on their feet,—a very, very great army!

Then He said to me, "Son of Adam! these bones are all the House of Israel. You know they say, 'Our bones are dry, and our hope has faded: we are exterminated!' Therefore proclaim and tell them, 'Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, Be certain that I will open your graves, and bring you from your tombs, My People, and lead you to the soil of Israel! Then you will learn that I am the LIFE, when I open your graves and bring you, My People, from your tombs. And I will put My breath into you, and revive you,—I, the LIFE, have promised, and I will perform it!" said the EVER-LIVING.

The Parable of the Twelve Sticks.

- 15 The message of the EVER-LIVING came again to me to say:—
- 16 "Now you, Son of Adam, select a stick for yourself, and write upon it, 'For Judah.' And for the Sons of Israel his companions, take another stick, and write on it, 'For Joseph!' A stick for Ephraim, and for all the House of Israel their companions.
- 17 Then join them for yourself one to another as one stick,—and make them one for your hand. And when the children of your People ask you, and say, 'Will you inform us why you do this?' say to them, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, Look! I shall take the stick of Joseph which is next to Ephraim, and the staves of Israel his companions, and join them to the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall become one for My hand. Then hold the sticks you have written upon, in your hand
- 21 in their sight, and say to them, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, 'Look! I will take the children of Israel from the hand of the heathen, where they have gone, and collect them from around and lead them to their own land, where I will make them one nation in the country, on the mountains of Israel, and they shall have a single king to govern them, and shall never more be two nations, nor be again divided into two kingdoms.
- 23 They will not defile themselves again with idols, and pollutions, nor any of their rebellions. For I will rescue them from all their faults in which they sinned, and purify them, and they shall be My people, and I will be their GOD. Then My Servant David shall reign over them and be their single Shepherd to them all, and they will conduct themselves by My decrees, and regard My institutions, and practise them, and rest in the country that I gave to My servant Jacob,—where your fathers dwelt. You shall reside in it, and your sons, and grandsons for ever,—and My Servant David shall be your prince for ever!
- 26 "I will then make a treaty of peace. It shall be an everlasting treaty that I will make with them,
- 27 —and I will increase them,—and fix

My Sanctuary amongst them for ever, and reside with them, and I will be their GOD, and they will be My People. Then the heathen will learn that I, the EVER-LIVING, sanctify 28 Israel, when My Sanctuary is amongst them for ever!"

The Doom of Gog.

The message of the EVER-LIVING 38 came again to me to say:—

- "Son of Adam! set your face 2 against Gog, of the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshek, and Thubal, and proclaim to him, and 3 say:—" Thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—I am opposed to you, Gog, chief prince of Meshek and Thubal, but I shall control you by putting 4 My bit into your jaws and bringing you and all your army, horsemen and cavalry all of them fully armed; —a numerous host, with shields and bucklers, and trained to the use of swords;—and Pars, Kush, and Phut, 5 all of them with shield and helmet; —Gomer and all his hordes; the 6 House of Thorgarmah from the far north, and the whole of his hordes;—many Peoples with you,—drilled and 7 disciplined by yourself;—you and all your host,—and their hosts with you, — and you yourself shall be 8 their Commander. Prepared by yourself for a long time,—shall come at the end of the years to the country restored from its ruins; with your recruits from many Peoples, against the Mountains of Israel that were a continuous waste, but who have been brought out of the nations, and all of them dwelling in security,—until you 9 ascend like a storm! Coming on like a cloud to cover the land,—you and all your hordes, and many Peoples with you.—Then," thus says 10 the MIGHTY LORD; "At that time thoughts will come into your mind, and you will conceive a vile idea, and will say, I will attack a country 11 of unwallled villages,—I will advance to a quiet, secure population,—all of them without walls, or bars, and having no gates! to plunder and loot, 12 —to turn your hand against the rehhabited ruins, and against a People collected from the heathen, —practising commerce and trade, and residing on the top of the earth.
- "Sheba, and Dedan, and mer- 13 chants of Tharshish, and all her Young Lions, will ask you,—'Have you come to plunder and rob? Have you collected your host to carry off silver and gold?—to seize commerce and trade? and to plunder a great plunder?'

14 "Therefore proclaim, Son of Adam, and tell Gog, ' Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, at the time when My People Israel rest secure, will you not know it? and come from your home in the far north,—you,—and many Peoples with you,—all of them riding on horses,—a great horde, and 15 a numerous army? And you will come against My People Israel, like a cloud to cover the country. It will be in future times that I shall bring you to My country, so that the nations may recognize Me when I have distinguished Myself upon you, Gog, in their sight! "

17 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! " You are the one of whom I spoke in former times by means of My servants the Prophets of Israel! who proclaimed in the period of their life that I would bring you upon

18 them. But at that time;—at the period when Gog arrives at the soil of Israel," the MIGHTY LORD declares it, " My indignation will be raised in My face, and in My anger and fiery wrath I promise that at that time there shall be a great trembling

20 in the soil of Israel, when the fish of the sea, and the birds of the skies, and the beasts of the field, and all the things that creep on the face of the earth, shall tremble before Me, and the hills shall be overthrown, and the steeps shall fall, and every

21 wall in the country shall fall! I will then proclaim against him a sword on all My hills, and the sword of each will assail his companion," says the

22 MIGHTY LORD, "and I will execute justice upon him, by disease and slaughter, and pouring rain, and hail of fire; and rain brimstone upon him, and upon his hordes; and upon the many nations who are with him,

23 for I intend to magnify, and distinguish, and manifest Myself to the eyes of many nations, that they may learn that I am the EVER-LIVING.

39 " So now, Son of Adam, proclaim against Gog, and say, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD! I am opposed to you, Gog, Chief Prince of Meshek and Thubal! Therefore I will incite you, and induce you, and bring you up from the far north, and lead you to the hills of Israel, where I will strike

3 your bow out of your left hand and your arrows shall drop from your right, upon the hills of Israel. You shall fall and I will give you and all your hordes as food for the ravenous birds of all kinds, and beasts of the field. You shall fall on the face of the fields,—for I have decreed it,"

5 says the MIGHTY LORD. " I will also send fire upon Magog, and the population of the secure coasts,—and they shall learn that I am the EVER-LIVING. Then My HOLY NAME

7 will never die;—when the heathen learn that I, the EVER-LIVING, am beneficent to Israel.

" Be sure it will come, and be in 8 existence," says the MIGHTY LORD, " that day of which I speak.

" Then the population of the cities 9 of Israel shall come out and burn, and fire the arms, and bucklers and shields, and bows and arrows, and maces and spears, and burn them for seven years as fuel. They will 10 not need to carry timber from the fields, nor to cut it from the forests, for they will burn the equipments as fuel, and plunder their spoil, and loot their loot," the MIGHTY LORD declares.

" And on that day I will give Gog a 11 place of burial in Israel,—the Vale of Passage,—alongside the sea, but it will make the travellers stop their noses, and they will bury Gog there with all his multitude, and call the spot Gog's Defeat. It will take the 12 people of Israel seven months to bury them, so that they may purify the country. All the people of the country

13 will be burying them, and it will be amongst them a day to celebrate My NAME," says the MIGHTY LORD. " They will also appoint men to regularly go over the country to bury those who have dropped in scatterings upon the face of the earth, to cleanse it. They will be burying for a period of seven months. When the searchers,

15 who examine the country, perceive a human bone, they will erect a beacon beside it, until the buryers bury it in the Vale of Gog's Host, and the city

16 also will be named Hamonah.¹ Thus the country will be cleansed.

" But now, Son of Adam," the 17 MIGHTY LORD commands thus, " call

to every kind of bird, and to every beast of the field, Collect yourselves, and come, and gather around to the sacrifice that I will sacrifice for you ;
 —the great sacrifice upon the hills of Israel ; and I will feed you with flesh, 18 and quench you with blood ! You shall eat the flesh of Heroes, and drink the blood of the Princes of the earth,—rams, lambs, and magnificent 19 bulls,—all of them fat-fleshed ! I will feed you to gorging with fat, and make you drunk with blood, at the sacrifice 20 I shall sacrifice for you ! and will satiate you at My table with horse, and mounted hero, and common soldier," says the MIGHTY LORD, 21 "when I display My Majesty to the nations :—and all nations see the decision that I execute, and the power 22 with which I control them. Then the House of Israel will acknowledge that I am their EVER-LIVING GOD, 23 from that day forward ! And the heathen will also learn that for their faults the House of Israel were transported. Consequently when they deserted from Me I turned My face from them, and delivered them to the power of oppressors, and they all fell 24 before the sword, on account of the corruption, and the sin they practised ;
 —therefore I hid My face from them.
 25 "Consequently," thus the MIGHTY LORD declares, "I will restore the Captivity of Jacob ; and have pity upon all the House of Israel, and be 26 in earnest for MY HOLY NAME, and remove their degradation, and all the perversity with which they abandoned
 Me,—when they dwelt in their own country in safety and without fear, 27 —when I bring them back from the Peoples, and collect them from the countries of their enemies, and distinguish Myself in the sight of many 28 nations. Then they will learn that I am their EVER-LIVING GOD, Who transported them to the heathen ;—
 but Who also will collect them into their own land, and never abandon 29 them there again. Nor will I again hide my face from them, when I have poured out My spirit upon the House of Israel," says the MIGHTY LORD.

Ezekiel carried to Jerusalem in a Vision.

40 In the fifteenth year of our transportation, on the tenth of the first month of the year,—in the fourteenth year after the city was captured,—on that very day, the hand of the EVER-LIVING came upon me, and brought me there. I was brought in the 2

 Divine Visions to the land of Israel, and was stationed on a very high hill,
 and opposite it, towards the south,
 was a city as if being built. When 3
 he brought me there I saw a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with a flaxen cord and a measuring rod in his hand, who stood at its gate. This man said to 4 me, "Son of Adā ! look with your eyes, and listen with your ears, and fix in your mind all that I show you, because you have been brought for the purpose of having them shown.
 Therefore inform the House of Israel of all that I show you."

I observed there was a wall around 5
 outside the Temple.

But the man had a measuring rod of six cubits and of a cubit and a hand's breadth in his hand. That was its length. And he measured the entrance to the Temple, one rod, and its height one. Then he went to the 6 gate which faced towards the East, and ascended the stairs and measured the threshold of the gate, one rod wide. That is, each threshold was one rod wide, with a lodge one rod 7 long, and one rod broad, and the elevation of the lodges was five cubits ;
 —and the platform of the gate at the side porch of the gate opposite the Temple, was one rod.¹

Next he measured the porch of the 9 gate eight cubits, with its panels of two cubits. This was the porch of the gate opposite the Temple. And 10 the lodges at the East Gate were three on this side and three on that side.
 The three of equal measure, and each of the porches the same size on each side.

Then he measured the Broadway of 11
 the gate,—ten cubits wide, with an incline of thirteen cubits up to the gate, with a seat of one cubit on each 12 side before the lodges, and a seat of one cubit at their sides. The lodges gate opposite the Temple, one rod.)

 MSS. It is probably a transcriber's blunder themselves were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

13 He next measured the gate from roof to roof of the lodges—a distance of twenty-five cubits from door to door.

14 Then he arranged a colonnade of sixty cubits;—with a colonnade all

15 round the court of the gate. And at the front of the entrance gate up to the front of the Porch of the Inner Gate, was fifty cubits.

16 The lodges and porches had latticed windows with verandahs around the gates, as well as verandahs around the porches and windows. But there were palms over the porches.¹

17 Then he brought me to the Outer Court. There I saw cloisters, and a worked tessellated pavement all over 18 the court. There were thirty cloisters in the court. And there was a tessellation at the sides of the gates,— the tessellation extended the whole breadth of the gates.

19 Then he measured the breadth from before the Tower Gate at the 20 front of the court, with a verandah outside for one hundred cubits on 21 the East, and North. He also measured length and breadth of the 22 gate that faces to the north of the Outer Court, with its three lodges

23 on each side, and its porches and cloisters were of the same size as at 24 the first gate, fifty cubits long, and twenty-five cubits broad. With the 25 windows, and porches, and verandahs like the form of the gate that faces

26 towards the East, with seven steps ascending to it, with a verandah over

27 them.

28 There was also a gate to the Inner Court on the South, a gate to the 29 North, and to the East, and he measured from gate to gate a 30 hundred cubits.

31 Then he led me to the South, where I saw a gate towards the 32 south, and he measured its porches and verandahs the same measure of

33 the others, with their windows, surrounded by verandahs,—fifty cubits

34 long and twenty-five cubits broad, with stairs of seven steps, and verandahs over them with a Palm on each 35 side of the porch. And there was a 27 gate to the Inner Court, towards the South, and he measured from gate to gate towards the South a hundred cubits.

36 Then he led me to the Inner Court, 28 by the South Gate, and measured the

37 South Gate, the same as the others, with its lodges, and porches, and 29

38 verandahs, the same as them; and its windows with verandahs round

39 them,—fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits broad. The verandah 30

40 also around was twenty-five cubits long and five cubits broad; with a 31

41 verandah towards the Outer Court, and Palms over the verandah, and 42 eight steps ascending to it.

43 Next he brought me to the Inner 34 Court towards the East, and measured

44 the gate, the same size as the others, with its lodge, and porch, and verandah 35

45 the same as them, and its windows with verandahs around,—fifty cubits

46 long, and twenty-five cubits broad, with verandahs towards the Outer 36

47 Court, and palms over the verandahs, on each side, and eight steps

48 ascending to them.

49 Then he led me to the North Gate, 37 and measured as he measured the 50 others:—its lodge and porch, and 38 verandah, and its windows around,

51 —fifty cubits long, and twenty-five cubits broad, with its porch towards 39

52 the Outer Court, on each side, and eight steps going up to it.

53 And near the porch of the gates 40 there was a chamber fixed, at the

54 side of the stairs, and near the porch 41 of the gate were two tables on one

55 side and two tables on the other side, upon which to slay the burnt-offerings,

56 and sin-offerings, and trespass-offerings. And on the outside of the 42

57 stairs at the entry of the North Gate, were two tables. And on the other

58 side, where the verandah of the gate is, were two tables,—four tables here, 43

59 and four tables there, at the side of the gate,—eight tables to slay upon.

60 There were also four tables of cut 44 stone for the burnt-offerings, of one-

61 and-a-half cubits long, and one-and-a-half cubits broad, and their height

62 one cubit, and the instruments with which they slaughtered the burnt-offerings were laid upon them. And 45

63 shelves were fixed around the house of a hand breadth, but the flesh of the gifts was on the tables.

64 And outside the Inner Gate were 46

the chambers of the singers. They were opposite the Inner Court, on the north side of the gate, and faced towards the South. One was at the side of the East Gate, facing towards the North. "And," he said to me, "this chamber that faces towards the South must be reserved for the priests of the Temple. The chamber also which faces towards the north must be reserved for the Sacrificing Priests, who are of the descendants of Zadok, who approach to officiate to the EVER-LIVING from amongst the descendants of Levi."

Then he measured that Court a hundred cubits long, and a hundred cubits wide, a square, with the altar in front of the Temple.

Next he brought me to the porch of the Temple, and measured each jamb of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that, and the width of the gate was three cubits on this side and three on that. The length of the colonnade was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits. And they ascended to its verandah by stairs, and pillars supported one side of verandah and pillars the other.

Then he took me into the Temple, and measured the verandah six cubits wide on one side, and six cubits wide on the other. The breadth of the tabernacle, and the breadth of the entrance was ten cubits, with shoulders to the entrance of five cubits on one side and five on the other. The length he measured as forty cubits, and width as twenty cubits.

He then went inside and measured the two jambs,—a cubit; but the approach was six cubits, and the breadth of the entrance seven cubits. Next he measured the length of twenty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits facing towards the Temple, and said to me:—"This is most sacred."

He afterwards measured the panelings of the Temple of six cubits, with a breadth of wainscotting of four cubits, all round the interior.

And the wainscotting was panel above panel by threes, and threes, repeated. But the panelling was laid close to the interior wall all round, so as to be supported by, but not be fastened to the wall of the Temple. So the panelings spread and encircled tier above tier:—for they clothed the Temple tier above tier all round the interior,—consequently they spread over the interior by tiers, and so from the lowest went up to the higher, and to the summit. And 8 I observed that the interior was enclosed from the foundations with wainscotting, for a height of a full rod of six cubits at the side. 9 breadth of the wall that was wainscotted was five cubits; and there the House walls were completed,—the remainder was for the Tabernacle.¹

There was also an interval of twenty cubits wide all round between the House and the sleeping rooms. And through the wainscotting to give access there was a gangway towards the North, and an entrance towards the South, and a roadway left from the gangway of five cubits all round it, with a wall that faced the side lobby towards the west, of extent of seventy cubits, and the pathway of this wall was five cubits wide, and the length of its circuit ninety cubits.

Then he measured the Temple, as a hundred cubits long, with a lobby, and its enclosures, and its wall as a hundred cubits long. And the width of the front of the Temple towards the East, and the lobby with its enclosures, was a hundred cubits.

Then he measured the length of the enclosure, facing the lobby that is at the back of it, with galleries on each side, as a hundred cubits, and

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 41, vv. 1 to 9. This passage has puzzled all translators, from the Greek Septuagint to the Latin Vulgate, our own Old Version, the Revised one, and every other European one I have seen. My own effort to put consecutive meaning into it has rested upon abandoning the whole line of previous translators, and basing my own upon the Hebrew alone by the aid of the best Lexicographers, and my own practical knowledge of mechanics and structural facts. I believe the error of reading the word, זילץ (Tzila), as meaning "chamber," instead of "panel," "plank," or "wainscot," lies at the root of the utter nonsense all previous translators have made of this passage, which, as they render it, describes a physical and mechanical impossibility, especially in verses 5 to 7. But in addition to that blunder there is very strong reason to believe that some very early mistake of a transcriber has inextricably confused the Hebrew text of verse 9, in the last two clauses, unless my rendering of the last word לִבְיָתָא (L'beth) as "For the Tabernacle," instead of "To the House," is the correct one, as I am satisfied it is.—F. F.

the Inner Temple, and the porches of 16 the court, with the thresholds, and latticed windows, and the surrounding galleries in three tiers around, along with their platforms of smooth wood, and from the ground to the 17 latticed windows. From the stairs at the entrance to the Inner Temple, he measured exactly both the roadway and all the surrounding walls—both 18 of the Inner, and the Outer, which were constructed of Kerubim and Palms,—with a Palm between Kerub and Kerub,—and each Kerub had 19 two faces, that is, the face of a man towards the Palm on one side, and the face of a lion towards the Palm on the other side. They were fixed all round the Temple.

20 The Kerubim and Palms were stationed on the ground up to the stairs of the entrance making an enclosure to the Temple. There 21 were four doors to the Temple, and the front of the sanctuary shone like 22 a mirror. There was an altar of wood,—three cubits high, and its length two cubits. There were also cornices, shelves, and cupboards of wood. "Here," he said to me,
 "must be the table that is before the EVER-LIVING."

23 There were double doors between 24 the Temple and the Sanctuary, with two swinging leaves to the two doors,
 —two leaves to one door, and two 25 leaves to the other door. And upon the doors of the Temple were depicted Kerubim and Palms, the same as were formed on the walls, with a wooden awning in front of the porches 26 on the outside, with latticed windows, and Palms on each side, at the entrance of the porches,—the Temple was also wainscotted with wood.

42 Then he took me out to the Outer Court towards the North, and brought me to the sleeping-rooms near the lobby, and near which is the Northern 2 wall. The length of its front was a hundred cubits at the North side, and the width seventy cubits.

3 Upon the face the twenty that belong to the Inner Court, and over the pavement of the Outer Court, were three repetitions of gallery above 4 gallery. And in front of the sleeping-rooms was a walk of ten cubits wide for the gangways,—a walk of a hundred cubits, and their doors were 5 northward. The upper sleeping-rooms were narrower, for the galleries diminished them more than the lower and middle stories, for they 6 were in three stories, and were not upon columns, like the columns of the courts, consequently they were narrower than the middle, and lower ones on the ground.

But there was another screen 7 opposite the sleeping-rooms, towards the Outer Court, in front of the dormitories of fifty cubits long, for 8 the length of the dormitories of the Outer Court was fifty cubits, and they were a hundred cubits in front of the Temple. And beneath these 9 chambers was the passage from the East as an entry to them from the Outer Court, in the extent of the 10 enclosure of the court, towards the East, opposite the lobby, and opposite the building were the sleeping-rooms; and the walk in front of 11 them was similar to the chambers which are to the North;—they were the same length and breadth; with all their passages and arrangements, and entrances. And the entrances 12 of the chambers that were towards the South opened at the top of the walk, opposite the fence along- 13 side the gangway of the east walk.
 And he said to me, "The Northern rooms and the Southern rooms that face the lobby, they are the reserved dormitories, where the priests who approach the EVER-LIVING shall eat the most sacred things.
 They shall store the most sacred things there,—the food-offerings, and the sin and trespass offerings,—for that part is sacred. When the priests 14 arrive, they must not go to the Outer Court and place the robes in which they minister, there, for they are sacred,—but put on their other robes when they approach the People."

Then when he had completed the 15 measurements of the Temple in the Inner Courts, he led me out by way of the gate that faces towards the East, and measured round it. He 16 measured towards the East wind with his measuring rod, five hundred rods, by measuring rod length. He mea- 17 sured towards the North wind five hundred rods, by the measuring rod length; he measured towards the 18 South wind five hundred rods, by the measuring rod length; he measured 19 to the West wind five hundred rods, by the measuring rod; he measured 20 to the four winds for a wall five hundred long, and five hundred broad, to encircle the Temple, to divide the Holy from the Defiled.

- 43 He then brought me to the gate,— to the gate facing towards the east,—
2 and I saw the GLORIOUS GOD of Israel come from the way of the East, with a sound like the sound of many waters, and the earth was enlightened 3 by His splendour. And the appearance of the vision that I saw was like the appearance which I saw when I came to the destruction of the city, and visions like the appearance that I saw by the Great River;—and I fell
4 on my face. But the GLORIOUS LIFE came to the Temple by way of the gate that faces towards the East, 5 and the wind lifted me up and brought me to the Inner Court, and I saw the House full of the Splendour
6 of the LIFE. Then I heard from the Temple an address to myself, and a 7 MAN came and stood beside me, and said to me:—

"Son of Adam! The place for My Throne, and the place for the soles of My feet, where I will stay amongst the children of Israel for ever! For the House of Israel will not again degrade My HOLY NAME:
—they and their kings,—by their whoredoms, and the carcases of their 8 kings when dead; by placing their threshold by My threshold, and their doors by My doors, with only a wall between Me and them;—by which they degraded MY HOLY NAME, by the depravities which they practised,
—therefore I consumed them in My 9 anger. Now let them remove far from Me their fornications, and the carcases of their kings, and I will stay amongst them for ever.

10 "You, Son of Adam, inform the House of Israel about this Temple, and let them be ashamed of their vices, and let them restore its beauties.
11 And if they are ashamed of all they have done,—pourtray the Temple, and its form, and exits and entrances, and shape, and let them know its arrangements, and ordinances, and draw them for their observation, and let them preserve all its plans, and all its arrangements, and use.

12 "The foundations of the Temple shall be the top of this hill; all round its circumference, is sacred—these 13 are the foundations. And these are the measurements of the Altar by cubits, of a cubit and a hand breadth;

—the breast a cubit, and a cubit the breadth, with a border around of seven inches,—and the back of the Altar the same. And from the 14 breast of the ground, to the lower landing,—two cubits; and the width one cubit; and from the lesser landing to the larger landing,—four cubits; and the breadth a cubit; and 15 the hearth four cubits, with four horns rising up from the hearth; but 16 the hearth shall be twelve long by twelve broad, — a self-contained square. And the landing shall be 17 fourteen long, by fourteen broad, a perfect square;—with a border around it of half a cubit, with a breastwork of a cubit around it, with a staircase facing the East."

Then he said to me, "Son of 18
Adam! Thus says the MIGHTY
LORD! These are the instructions for the Altar, when they make it, to offer burnt-offerings upon, and sprinkle blood upon.

"You shall provide for the priests 19 of the Levites, who are of the family of Zadok, who approach to Me," says the MIGHTY LORD, "to offer to Me a bullock from the fold for consecration, and he shall take some of its 20 blood and put upon the four horns, and upon the four faces of the landings, and upon the surrounding enclosure and consecration, and consecrate it, and expiate for it.
Then you shall take the consecrating 21 bull and burn it in the precincts of the Temple, outside the Sanctuary.
And on the second day, you shall 22 offer a perfect he-goat for consecration, and consecrate the altar, as they consecrated with the bullock.

"When you have completed the 23 consecration, offer a perfect bullock from the fold, and a perfect ram from the flock. Present them before the 24 EVER-LIVING;—when the priest shall scatter salt upon them, and offer them as a burnt-offering to the EVER-LIVING. Do this for seven 25 days,—consecrate a goat daily, and a bullock from the fold, and a ram from the flock, offer daily for seven 26 days, and expiate for the Altar, and purify it,—and fill its hands. When 27 these days are completed, then upon the eighth day and forwards, let the priests offer upon the Altar the burnt-offerings, and the peace-offerings, and I will accept you," says
the MIGHTY LORD.

44 He then returned with me to the Outer Gate of the Sanctuary facing the east,—but it was shut! The LORD said to me, "This gate shall be shut! It shall not be opened, and no one shall enter by it,—for the EVER-LIVING, the GOD of Israel, has entered by it;—therefore it shall be shut. The Prince of Princes shall sit in it to eat bread before the EVER-LIVING. He can enter by the path of the porch gate, and go out by the same path!"

4 He afterwards took me to the North Gate in front of the Temple, when I looked and saw the Temple full of the splendour of the LIFE,—and inclined my face downwards,—when the LORD said to me:—

"Son of Adam! fix your heart, and observe with your eyes, and listen with your ears to all that I may say to you;—to all the rules of the EVER-LIVING'S Temple, and to all its forms, and fix in your mind the passages of the structure, and all the gangways of the Sanctuary, and tell the rebels of the House of Israel, Thus says the MIGHTY LORD:—You have added to yourselves, beyond all your depravities, House of Israel, the bringing in of foreigners of filthy mind, and filthy body, to reside in My Sanctuary, to defile My Temple! and you allow them to present My bread, and fat, and blood, and break My Covenant by all your depravities. You have also not guarded My Sacred Trusts,—but have appointed Guardians of My Trusts from yourselves in My Sanctuary!"

9 Thus says the MIGHTY LORD, "Any son of a foreigner of filthy mind, and filthy body, shall not enter My Sanctuary; or any son of a foreigner who resides amongst the Children of Israel;—for even the Levites who deserted from Me, in the desertion of Israel, when they deserted from Me to follow idols,—they shall bear their crime. They may, however, be appointed guards at the gates of My Sanctuary,—as guards of the gates of the Temple, and guards of the Temple. They may not, however, slay the burnt-offerings, and sacrifices for the People, or stand before them to administer, because they administered for them before the idols, and were a cause of sin to the House of Israel,—therefore I have lifted up My hand against them," the MIGHTY

LORD declared, "and they shall bear their punishment, and not approach, as priests to me, or approach to any of the sacred matters of the Holy of Holies,—but shall suffer for the shame and depravity they have practised. But I permit them to guard the trusts of the Temple; in any of its services, or anything that is done for it.

"But the Levitical priests, the descendants of Zadok, who guarded the Trusts of the Sanctuary when the Children of Israel deserted from Me, they shall approach to Me to administer, and stand before Me to present the fat and the blood," the MIGHTY LORD said, "but when they arrive at the gates of the Inner Court they must clothe in linen clothing, and no woollen must be on them, whilst they officiate in the Inner Court and the Temple. They must wear linen turbans on their heads, and linen trousers on their loins. They shall not gird themselves in sweat. And when they proceed to the Outer Court,—to the Outer Court of the People,—they shall put off their official robes, and place them in the Sacred Vestry, and clothe in other robes, that they may not be worshipped by the People because of their robes.

"They must not shave their heads, and shall not cultivate curls,—they must keep their heads tidy.

"Nor may any priest drink wine when going into the Inner Court.

"Nor may they marry widows, or divorced women as their wives, but only a maiden of the race of the House of Israel, or marry a widow who is the widow of a priest.

"They must also instruct the People in the difference between Holiness and Defilement,—and between Corruption and Purity. And in a dispute they shall stand to decide by My Decrees, and decide it by My Decrees, and My Laws, and Institutions, in every Court they hold, and they must respect My Appointments.

"And they shall not go and pollute themselves for the death of a man, but for a father or mother, or son, or daughter, or brother or sister who has not a husband they may pollute themselves. After it, however, they must seclude themselves for seven days. Then on the day he enters into the Inner Court to officiate in the Sanctuary, he shall offer for his own pollution," the MIGHTY LORD commands.

- 28 "They shall, however, have an endowment,—I will be their endowment,—so a holding shall not be given to them in Israel,—I will be their holding. They shall eat the food-offerings, and the sin-offerings, and trespass-offerings, and everything dedicated in Israel shall be theirs;
- 30 with the first product of all cattle of all kinds, and every offering of all kinds,—from all of your offerings of every kind there shall be made offerings to the priests. You must also give the first fruits of your grain to the priests, to bring a blessing upon your house. The priests may not eat of any dead carcase, or what has been torn by bird or beast.
- 45 "And when you allot the country into estates, you must give to the EVER-LIVING as a sanctification from the country,—a length of twenty-five thousand rods long, and ten¹ thousand broad,—which shall be sacred all around its borders. From this there shall be taken for the Sanctuary a surface of five hundred by five hundred, with fifty cubits round it for a suburb. So by this measurement, measure a length of twenty-five thousand, and a breadth of ten thousand, and the Holiest Sanctuary shall be in it. It shall be dedicated by the country to the priests who officiate in the Sanctuary of the EVER-LIVING, and shall be a place for their homes, and be most sacred.
- 5 And twenty-five thousand rods long and ten thousand broad shall be assigned for the Levites who officiate in the Temple, for them to hold as twenty residential towns. And give as township holdings five thousand broad, and twenty-five thousand long; it must be alongside that consecrated by the Parliament of the House of Israel.
- 7 "And assign to the Prince, on each side of the consecrated endowment, and of the township holdings, on each side, at the front of the consecrated endowment, and at the front of the township holdings,—on the western side, westwards, and on the eastern side, eastwards, and along each side of the estates,—from the western boundary to the eastern boundary. That land shall be his estate in Israel, so that the princes may no more oppress My People, but they shall assign the country to the House of Israel by their tribes.

"Princes of Israel," says the MIGHTY LORD, "let this be enough for you! Reject oppression and violence; and practise the just and the right! Remove your confiscations from My People," says the MIGHTY LORD. "Let there be right scales, and right ephah, and a right bath; let the ephah and the bath be proportionate;—the bath to carry the tenth of a homer,—and the ephah the tenth of a homer. Let the homer itself be the standard.

"And the shekel shall be twenty grains. Your Manah shall be twenty-five shekels, and twenty shekels, and five shekels.¹

"And this is the taxation which shall be imposed. The sixth of an ephah from the homer of wheat, and the sixth of an ephah from the homer of barley.

"And the proportion from a bath of oil;—the tenth of a bath from a cor,—of ten baths, that is a homer,—because the baths are a homer.

"And one lamb out of a flock of two hundred, from the water meadows of Israel, for food-offerings, and burnt-offerings, and thank-offerings, to expiate for them," the MIGHTY LORD commands.

"All the population of the country shall be subject to this taxation to the Prince of Israel. And it shall be incumbent upon the Prince to provide the burnt-offerings, and thank-offerings, and drink-offerings, at the Festivals, and months, and on the Sabbaths; and at all the Assemblies of the House of Israel he shall provide the sin-offerings, and the food-offerings, and the thank-offerings to expiate for the Parliament of the House of Israel."

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 45, v. 12. Equal to fifty shekels, which were the accurate Manah (about 5*l.* 1*4s.*). The ordinary reading of the passage makes the enumeration 35 shekels—twenty and five shekels, and twenty shekels, and ten and five shekels=35 shekels—but this is a manifest error of some ancient Hebrew transcriber in writing the last "ten," by a slip of eye or memory.—F. F.

- 18 The MIGHTY LORD commands thus: "On the first of the first month you shall provide a perfect bullock from the fold, and purify the Sanctuary. And the Priest shall take some of the blood and put upon the door-posts of the Temple, and the four corners of the landing of the altar, and upon the posts of the gates of the Inner Court, and do the same on the seventh of the month for general faults or errors, and expiate for them in the Temple.
- 21 "At the beginning of the fourteenth day of the month, you shall prepare yourselves for the Feast of the Passover for seven days, by eating unfermented bread. And the Prince shall provide on that day, on account of himself, and on account of the People of the country, a bullock for a sin-offering. He shall also provide, during the seven days of the feast, as a burnt-offering to the LORD, seven perfect bullocks, and seven rams, a day, for seven days, and as a sin-offering a he-goat daily, and as food-offering, he shall also provide an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and a hin of oil with the ephah.
- 25 "In the seventh month on the fifteenth day, he shall provide the same for seven days,—similar sin-offerings, similar burnt-offerings, and similar food-offerings,—with similar oil."
- 46 The MIGHTY LORD said also, "The gate of the Inner Court facing the east shall be closed for six working days,—but upon the Day of Rest it shall be opened, and upon the day 2 of new moon. Then the Prince shall come towards the porch outside the gate, and stand before the doors of the gate, while the priest prepares his burnt-offering, and his thank-offering, and he shall bow at the threshold of the gate. He may afterwards enter,—and the gate shall not be shut until the evening. But the people of the country shall worship in the square of the same gate before the LORD on the Sabbaths, and new 4 moons. And the burnt-offerings that the Prince shall present to the LORD on the Day of Rest, are six perfect 5 lambs, and a perfect ram; with a food-offering of an ephah with the ram: and with the lambs, a food fixed by his own hand, and a hin of oil. And on the day of new moon a 6 perfect bullock from the fold, and six lambs, and a ram,—they must be perfect. He shall also provide an 7 ephah with the bullock, and an ephah with the ram, as a food-offering; and with the lambs whatever his hand suggests, and a hin of oil to the ephah.

"And when the Prince arrives opposite the porch of the gate, he shall enter and leave by the same way. But when the people of the country 9 come before the Lord of the Assemblies they must enter by the way of the North Gate to the services, going out by the way of the South Gate; but those arriving by way of the South Gate shall go out by way of the North Gate,—they must not return by way of the gate they entered, but depart by the opposite one. But the 10 Princes shall enter, and as they depart, they shall depart by the same way.

"At the Festivals, however, and at 11 the Assemblies, there shall be a food-offering of an ephah, with a bullock, and an ephah with a ram, and what his hand gives with the lambs, and a hin of oil with an ephah. But when 12 the Prince makes a vow of a burnt-offering, or has vowed a thank-offering to the EVER-LIVING, you shall open the gate facing the east for him, and he shall provide the burnt-offering, or the thank-offerings, as he provides on the Sabbath day. Then he shall depart,—and close the gate after him at his departure.

"And he shall provide daily, as a 13 burnt-offering to the EVER-LIVING, a perfect Lamb of a year old. It shall be provided morning by morning. And you shall provide with it, morning 14 by morning, the sixth of an ephah and the third of a hin of oil to mix the fine flour of the food-offering to the EVER-LIVING, as a regular rule for ever. They shall thus provide 15 the lamb and the food-offering, and the oil, morning by morning, as a regular burnt-offering."

The MIGHTY LORD also said, "If 16 the Prince gives some of his inheritance as a gift to any one amongst his sons, it shall belong to his sons,—they shall hold it as an estate. But 17 if he gives a gift from his property to one of his ministers, it shall only be his until the year of release, then return to the Prince, because his estate is for his children, and shall come to them.

- 18 "The Prince, however, shall not seize any estate from the people, to deprive them of their property, but his children shall inherit his own property. Therefore he shall not tear away from My People their possessions."

The Prophet shown all the Courts of the New Temple.

- 19 He then took me through the passage at the side of the gate of the sleeping-rooms, reserved for the priests, facing the north, and I noticed there a space at the back, 20 towards the West. He then said to me:—

"That is the place where the priests must boil the trespass and sin offerings; where they must bake the food-offering, without going to the Outer Court to inconvenience the people."

- 21 He next took me to the Outer Court, and went with me to the four corners of the Court, and I perceived a Court at each corner of the Court; 22 —and to the four corners of the Court, Courts were attached,—of forty long and thirty broad,—they were the same measure at each of the four 23 corners;—and there was a colonnade round them, with boilers fixed around 24 under the colonnade. Then he said to me, "In this boiler house the officials of the Temple shall boil the sacrifices of the people."

Foretelling the Filling of the Dead Sea with Water, and Jerusalem to become a Seaport.

- 47 Then he took me back into the entrance of the Temple and I perceived water issuing from under the entrance of the Temple, eastwards,—for the front of the Temple was towards the east,—and the waters descended from under the right side of the Temple, on the south of the altar.

- 2 Then he led me towards the North Gate, and took me round by the way outside the gate along the road that faces eastward, and I observed the waters trickling from the right side, 3 as the man went eastward with the line in his hand and measured a thousand cubits. Then he passed me through the waters,—the increasing 4 waters. He measured a thousand again, and passed me through the waters,—waters up to the knees. Then he measured another thousand and passed me through water to the waist; again he measured a thousand 5 of a river that I could not pass through,—the waters had risen, to a swimming river that could not be forded!

He then asked me, "Son of man, 6 have you seen?" and brought me back to the bank of the river. On 7 my return I perceived a very great forest on both sides of the river, and he said to me, "These waters will 8 come out from Galilee¹ to flow towards the East, and will run down over the Burnt Desert, and arrive at the sea,—the Sea of the Corrupted²—and will purify that sea. And it will 9 become a perfect living life, which will be productive in all to whom it may come. There shall be two living rivers; and they shall have very many fish, when these waters have come there, for they will restore to health and life all who come there to the river.

"Fishermen also will be stationing 10 themselves beside it from Gedidi to Eglaim,—casting their nets. There will be very many fish of every kind, like the fish of the Great Sea.³ But 11 its marshes and fens will not be rectified,—they will be abandoned to salt.

"And by the river up to its banks, 12 on both sides, every kind of fruit tree will spring up with unfading foliage, and unfailing fruit, produced monthly, for the waters proceed from the Sanctuary,—and the fruit will feed, and the foliage restore to health."

Division of the Restored Empire of Israel decreed.

Thus says the MIGHTY LORD: 13 "You shall divide the country into ¹ NOTE.—Ch. 47, v. 8. Galilee." This is not the common translation, but is undoubtedly the meaning of the Hebrew גליל, Galilah.—F. F.

² Dead Sea.

³ NOTE.—Ch. 47, v. 10. "The Great Sea." These words show that the Mediterranean and Dead Sea, and thence the Eastern Gulf of the Red Sea, the Gulf of Akabab, will be united by a canal. The late Capt. Cameron, R.N., made plans for it.—F. F.

estates, within these boundaries, to the twelve tribes of Israel.

"To Joseph two districts.

14 "And the others each equal to their brothers,—since I lifted up My hand to give it to your ancestors, you shall allot the country thus to yourselves by districts.

15 "And this shall be the boundary of the country on the Northern side: "From the Great Sea towards Hathlon to the Pass of Zedad, 16 Hamath, Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the border of Damask and the border of Ramath. Kazar-in-the- 17 nook, on the Pass of Hamram. And the boundary farthest from the sea shall be Hazer-Amon upon the borders of Damascus to the north of the border of Hamath. That shall be the north boundary.

18 "And the Eastern side shall be from between Horan and Damask, and Gilad, with the Jordan between the land of Israel. Measure for the border to the east of the lake of the Kadmonites. That is the Eastern side.

19 "And South side, on the right hand, from Thamar to the dividing brook of Kadesh, that flows to the Great Sea. This is the right hand side to the south.

20 "And the West side shall be the Great Sea, from the border stretching to the Pass of Hamath. That is the West side.

21 "And you shall divide this country for yourselves amongst the tribes of 22 Israel. And you shall divide it into districts for yourselves by lot, and for the foreigners who reside amongst you, who have begotten children amongst you, for they shall be the same as the natives of the sons of Israel. They shall be allotted properties amongst the tribes of Israel, 23 and in the tribe where the foreigner resides his estate shall be given." The MIGHTY LORD commands this.

24 "Now this is the muster-roll of the tribes.

"From the north end at the side of the Hethlon Road, to the Pass of Hamath, at Kazar-amon on the border of Damascus northward towards the side of Hamath,—they shall face east and west.

"Dan first: and the border of Dan shall face east and west. Dan one.

2 "And on the border of Dan, facing east and west,—Ashur one.

"And on the border of Ashur, facing 3 east and west,—Naphthali one.

"And on the border of Naphthali, 4 facing east and west,—Manasseh one.

"And on the border of Manasseh, 5 facing east and west,—Ephraim one.

"And on the border of Ephraim, 6 facing east and west,—Reuben one.

"And on the border of Reuben, 7 facing east and west,—Judah one.

"And on the border of Judah, facing 8 east and west, there shall be the Grant which you must grant of twenty-five thousand rods broad, and the length the same as the portion from east to west,—and the Sanctuary shall be the centre, of the Grant that you grant 9 to the EVER-LIVING of twenty-five thousand long and ten thousand broad.

"And alongside this shall be 10 Sacred Grant for the priests. On the north twenty-five thousand reeds long. On the west ten thousand broad. And on the east ten thousand, and on the south twenty-five thousand long. And it shall be consecrated to the EVER-LIVING amongst you, for 11 the consecrated priests of the descendants of Zadok, who guarded My Trusts,—who did not revolt to the depravities of the children of Israel, when the Levites revolted. Con- 12 sequently the boundaries of the Grant, granted from the land, shall be most sacred to you.

"And alongside the borders of the 13 priests, there shall be for the Levites twenty-five thousand reeds long, and ten thousand broad,—all the length shall be twenty-five thousand, and the breadth ten thousand, and they shall 14 not sell it from themselves, nor exchange nor transfer the first fruits of the land, for it is consecrated to the EVER-LIVING.

"And five thousand reeds in 15 breadth shall be left in the front of the twenty-five thousand. It shall be as common to build villages, and for pasture, and with a town in the centre, whose measurements shall be these. 16 The north face four thousand five hundred; and the south face four thousand five hundred, and the eastern face four thousand five hundred, and the western face four thousand five hundred. There shall 17 also be suburbs for the town towards the north two hundred and fifty,—and on the south two hundred and fifty,—and on the east two hundred and

- fifty,—and on the west two hundred
 18 and fifty. And the remainder of the length, alongside the consecrated Grant of two thousand eastward and ten thousand westward, that is connected with the consecrated Grant, its products shall be for the police 19 expenses of the city, and the police of the city from all the tribes of Israel shall cultivate it. The whole that is 20 consecrated shall be a square of twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand. You shall assign the Sacred Grants with the holdings for the city.
- 21 "And the portion for the Prince shall be on each side of the Sacred Grant, and of the holdings for the city, on the front of the Grant of twenty-five thousand from the eastern border, and on the opposite western face, twenty-five thousand adjoining the Grant for the Prince, shall be the sacred offering, and the Sanctuary of the Temple shall be in its centre.
- 22 However, the holdings of the Levites and the holdings for the city shall be in the centre of what belongs to the Prince,—what is between the borders of Judah and the borders of Benjamin shall also belong to the Prince.
- 23 "And for the rest of the tribes, facing from east to west,—Benjamin one.
- 24 "And on the border of Benjamin, facing east to west,—Simeon one.
- 25 "And on the border of Simeon, facing east to west,—Issakar one.
- 26 "And on the border of Issakar, facing east to west,—Zebulon one.
- 27 "And on the border of Zebulon, facing east and west,—Gad one.

"And on the border of Gad, on the 28 south,—towards the right hand,—the border shall be from Thamar on the brook dividing the vale of Kadish to the Great Sea.

"This is the country you shall 29 divide into districts for the tribes of Israel,—and these are their portions," said the MIGHTY LORD.

"And these shall be the dimensions 30 of the city:—

"The north side,—an extent of four thousand five hundred, with gates to 31 the city, bearing the names of the tribes of Israel.

"Three gates on the North,—the Gate of Reuben, one; the Gate of Judah, one; the Gate of Levi, one.

"And the Eastern face, four 32 thousand five hundred, with three gates; the Gate of Joseph, one; the Gate of Benjamin, one; the Gate of Dan, one.

"And the Southern face, four 33 thousand five hundred; in extent, with three gates;—the Gate of Simeon, one; the Gate of Issakar, one; the Gate of Zebulon, one.

"The Western face, four thousand 34 five hundred, with its three gates; the Gate of Gad, one; the Gate of Ashur, one; the Gate of Naphthali, one.

"It will thus be eighteen thousand 35 in circuit,—and from that day the name of the city, 'THE LORD'S HOME.'"¹

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET EZEKIEL.

HOSEA.

The Period of Hosea's Prophetic Office was from 785 to 726 B.C.

The Prophet ordered to Marry a Prostitute.

1 THE message from the EVER-LIVING that came to Hosea-ben-Bari in the times of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, the kings of Judah and in the days of Jerabam-2 ben-Joash, king of Israel.

THE FIRST MESSAGE OF THE EVER-LIVING TO HOSEA.

The EVER-LIVING said to Hosea, "Go! marry a wife from the whores and the child of whores, for the country whores away from the EVER-3 LIVING!" So he went and married Gomer the daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son. 4 Then the EVER-LIVING said to him, "Call his name Jezreel,—for before long I will fix the murders of Jezreel upon the House of Jehu, and abolish 5 the kingship of Israel; and at the same time I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of God's Harvest." 6 But she conceived again and bore a daughter. Then He said to me, "Call her name Lo-ruhamah, ('Merciless'): for I will not continue to have mercy on the House of Israel, 7 but I will drive them away. However, I will have mercy on the House of Judah, and save them because of their EVER-LIVING GOD. But I shall not save them by bow and sword and war, by horses, or horsemen." 8 When she had weaned "Merciless," she conceived again and bore a son. Then He said, "Call his name Lo-ammi, ('Not-My-People'), for you are not My people, and I will 2 not be with you. And although the Children of Israel were as numerous as the sand of the sea that cannot be measured or counted, yet in the place where it was said of them, you are Not-My-People,—they shall be called 2 the children of a LIVING-GOD! For I will collect the children of Judah, and the children of Israel together, and they will appoint a Single Head for themselves and rise up from the earth for the Great Day of God's Harvest.

"Call to your brothers, 'My-3 People,'—and to your sisters who have been pitied; Plead for your 4 Mother—plead; for she is not my wife! and I am not her husband! Strip her whoredoms from her face, 5 and her adulteries from between her breasts, for fear I should strip her naked, and bare, like the day she was born, and banish her to the desert, where the land is waterless, and kill her with thirst; for I will not pity her 6 children,—for they are children of whoredoms.

"For their Mother prostituted 7 herself, she conceived them shamefully, for she said 'I will go after my paramours who gave me bread, and water, wool and flax, oil, and drinks.' Therefore I will fence up her path 8 with thorns, and weave a hedge, so that she cannot find her beaten path. And when she follows her paramours 9 she shall not overtake them, and when seeking them she shall not find. Then she may say, 'I will go and return to my former man, for it was better for me than now.'

"But she did not recognize that it 10 was I who gave her the corn, and wine, and oil, and silver, and increased her gold, which they used for Bal.

"I will consequently come home, 11 and take away my corn at its harvest, and my wine at its maturity, and shear my wool, and my flax, that would have covered her nakedness. And 12 then expose her shame to the eyes of her paramours, and none will rescue her from my hands.

"I will also deprive her of all her 17 pleasaut festivals, her New Moons,

- and Sabbaths, and all her Assemblies.
 14 And take away her vines, and figs that she said, 'These are mine; my paramours gave me them;' and make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them.
 15 "I will also punish her for the Balim days, on which she burnt incense to them, on which she adorned herself with rings, and necklaces, and went after her paramours, and forgot me," says the EVER-LIVING.
 16 "But, afterwards, I will entreat her and lead her out into the country and 17 speak to her heart. And give her a vineyard there, and the Vale of Sorrow as an opening to Hope, and she shall sing there as in the days of her youth, and as in the times of her girlhood, when she came from Mitzer. And then she will call Me 18 her Husband, and no longer her Master, and I will take the names 19 of her 'Masters,' from her mouth and she will no longer remember their names. I will also at that time 20 make a new contract for her, with the wild beasts of the field, and the birds of the skies, and the reptiles of the ground, when I will break from the earth the bow, sword, and war, and men shall dwell in safety. I will 21 also wed you to Myself for ever,—I will wed you to Myself in Righteousness and Justice, and Gentleness, and Mercy, and I will wed you to Myself 22 in Truth and Knowledge of the EVER-LIVING.

The Anthem of God and His Creation.

- "And then I will sing," says the LIFE, 23
 I will sing to the skies,
 They also shall sing to the earth;
 And the Earth herself sing to the Corn, 24
 And the Vine, and the Olive,
 And they, also, sing to the Harvest
 "I will plant her for me in the Land, 25
 An', have mercy on her who had none;
 Tho' I said 'Not My People,'
 My People you are;
 And she reply, 'You are My GOD.'"
- 3 But the LORD again said to me;
 "Go! Love your wife, the lover of wickedness, and an adulteress!—
 For the LORD loves the Children of Israel, although they turn to seducing gods,—and love raisin cakes!"
 2 So I bought her for myself for ten silvers, and a homer and a half of
 3 barley. But I said to her "You shall stay long without me,—you shall not prostitute yourself, nor offer yourself to men,—and then I will be yours."

In the same way the Children of 4 Israel shall stay for a long time, without a King; and without a leader; and without a sacrifice; and without a Capital; and without an Ephod or Teraphim!

At last the Children of Israel will 5 return, and seek the LORD their GOD, and David their King, and reverence the LORD and His beneficence, in the future ages!

A Message Denouncing Israel's Sins.

- Hear the LORD'S message, you sons of Israel! 4
 For the Land's people contend with the LORD.
 For there is no truth,—and there is no mercy,—
 And there is no knowledge of GOD in the country!
 But there is perjury, lying and theft! 2
 Adultery is rampant, and blood follows blood—
 Therefore the Country is weak and is languid, 3
 And the beasts of the field, and the birds of the skies,
 And even the fish in the waters all faint!
 Alas, no man warns! No man will reprove!
 And your people like priests who revolt! 4
 And you and your Preachers both stumble by day, 5
 So at night I will lock up both your mother and you.
 For want of reflection My people will perish;
 For you have rejected all thought from yourselves. 6

- So I reject you from the Priesthood to Me;—
 And having abandoned the Laws of your GOD,
 7 I will abandon your children Myself!—
 As against Me they sinned in their power,
 To contempt I will change all their honour.
 8 As on the sin of My people they feed,
 Those crimes they shall carry upon their own souls!—
 9 And as with the Mass, it shall be with the Priest,—
 On each will I lay the result of their ways;
 And turn back their paths on themselves.
 10 They eat, but they never are filled;
 They whore, but they do not increase!
 For they pay no regard to the LORD!—
 11 For whoredom, and wine, and strong drink
 Have seized upon all of their hearts.
 12 My People ask guidance of wood, and of sticks,—
 For the spirit of whoredom deludes,
 And they whore themselves far from their GOD!
 13 On the top of the mountain they offer up gifts,
 And they burn their perfumes on the Peaks!
 Under Oak trees and Poplars and Pines,
 For the sake of the cool shade they give;
 So your daughters are whored,
 And your brides are all foully defiled!
 14 Should I not punish your daughters as whores?
 And your brides as adulterous themselves!
 Who wander about with the whores,
 And with prostitutes offer up gifts?—
 So the stupified People must fall!
 15 But if Israel whores;—yet let not Judah fall!
 So come not to Gilgal, nor go to Beth-aven!
 Or else never swear, "By the life of the LORD!"
 16 For Israel bucks, like an obstinate cow,
 When the LORD would lead her like a lamb to the plain
 17 Let Ephraim alone;—for his idols seduce.—
 18 Their drink is drunk out; they have whored with their whore,
 And his Princes delight in their shame!
 19 A furious wind will enfold in her wings,—
 And their altars become their disgrace.

The Doom of the Apostate Priests.

- 5 You Priests listen to this, and Israel's house hear,
 And you, house of the King, for you must decide;
 Upon Mitzpah why set you a trap?
 And spread out a net upon Tabor?
 2 And plan how to whip to the slaughter?
 But I will exterminate all!
 3 Ephraim I know well;—nor is Israel hid,—
 For by Ephraim's whoredom is Israel defiled!
 4 That practice prevents your return to your GOD!
 For your breast holds the Spirit of whores!
 And you never acknowledge the LORD.
 5 And Israel's pride flashes up in his face;
 So Israel and Ephraim shall fall in their sin,
 And Judah shall stumble with them!—

With your flocks and your herds, go and question the LORD,— 6
 Yet they find not ;—He draws off from them !
 The LORD you betrayed when you bore bastard sons,— 7
 Now a month will eat them and their herds.

A Warning to Israel.

Sound the trumpet in Ghibeh, the loud gong in Ramah,— 8
 Rouse Beth-aven,—and Benjamin bring in with you !
 For Ephraim shall be waste in the day of reproof,— 9
 To Israel's Tribes, I proclaim the event.
 Judah's Chiefs are like breakers of bounds ! 10
 So on them I will pour out My rage like a stream !
 Ephraim is broken, and crushed by defeat, 11
 Because he consented to follow the lies.
 So to Ephraim I was like a moth, 12
 And to Judah's House like a decay.
 But when Ephraim perceived his disease, 13
 And when Judah discovered his wound,—
 Then Ephraim went off to seek Ashur,
 And set loose the Ravaging King ;—
 But he could not find you a cure,
 Nor could he take from you your sore !
 For to Ephraim I was like a lion, 14
 And a tiger to Judah's house, I !
 I will tear,—and be off,—
 I will snatch—and no man shall release.
 I will go and return to My den, 15
 Till they suffer and seek for My face ;
 About Me they will think in their grief !

Israel Talks of Repenting.

EPHRAIM SPEAKS.

" Let us go and return to the LORD, 6
 He has torn us, He only can heal ;
 He wounded, and He can bind up ;
 Can revive us from day on to day ;
 Can raise,—and make live in His presence,—
 Can teach and instruct to know LIFE. 2
 His progress is fixed like the dawn,
 And He comes to us like showers come ; 3
 Like the Harvest rain poured on the earth !"

THE LORD REPLIES.

" What can I do for you Ephraim ? 4
 And what can I Judah for you ?
 Your piety, like morning clouds,
 And like dew, at the dawn fades away !
 Tho' I sought you by Preachers,— 5
 And slew by their words from My mouth,
 And My judgments flashed on you like light ?
 I wish more for Mercy than Offerings, 6
 And for knowledge of GOD more than Gifts.
 But like Adam you broke from the contract, 7
 You always were faithless to Me !

" Gilad is a city of villains,— 8
 It is rich in the foot-marks of blood !
 And like gang-robbers hiding for men, 9
 Gangs of Priests on the Shekem road murder,—
 There they practise deliberate crime !

10 In Israel's home I see horrors!
Ephraim whoring, and Israel defiled!
11 And Judah is ready for reaping,
So I turn you, My people, to slaves!"

The Incurable Vices of Israel.

7 When Israel I would have cured,
The vices of Ephraim were found!
And Shomeron's sins that make falsehood;
For thieves are within;—robbers pillage outside!
2 Nor reflect in their heart I remember their crimes,
Tho' they wrap up their acts, from My face!
3 Their King loves their crimes, and their Princes are pleased!
4 They are like a baker, when heating his oven,
Only rest from their lust, as he rests from his kneading,
Until the dough swells up in ferment!
5 Daily fury of wine heats our Princes and King;—
He joins hands with the scoffers,
6 Whose heart like an oven is ready prepared,—
All night sleeps the Baker till morning,
But his fire still burns with a flickering flame.
7 So they burn as an oven, and devour their Judges,
Their Kings are all fallen,—none cried to Me for them!

8 Ephraim mixes himself with the pagans:
Ephraim is like to a cake never turned,— 9 Strangers suck out his strength, and he knows not!
He has sprinkled grey hairs, but he never perceives!
10 Israel's haughtiness shows in his face,
But they never will turn to the LIFE,
Nor for all this will seek for their GOD.

11 Ephraim has become like a dove,—
Without any heart in her fears;
To Egypt they cry, and to Ashur they go;—
12 As they fly I will throw My net for them,
Bring down like the birds from the skies;—
As their Senate has heard, I will punish!

13 Woe to them! wanderers from Me!
Alas for them! who revolted from Me!
When I rescued, about Me they lied!
14 They called not to Me from their hearts,
Altho' they have yelled on their beds!
They assemble for corn and for wine,
But rebel against Me!

15 If I weakened or strengthened their arms,
Yet they thought but of mischief for Me!
16 They do not rebound,—they are like worthless bows:
So their Princes shall fall by the sword,
Because of their swaggering tongues;
They are scorned in the country of Mitzer.

The Revolt of Israel from God.

6 Put the Horn to your lips!—
Fly over the House of the LORD like an Eagle!
They have broken My Bond,
And rebelled from My law!
2 Yet he called Me 'My GOD,'
So you, Israel, knew Me!

Israel cast off the Good ;— 3
 So his foeman pursues !—
 They made Kings to reign,— 4
 But it was not from Me !—
 They made themselves Princes,
 But I approved not !
 They made Idols of silver and gold
 By whom they have cut themselves off !

Shomeron ! cast off your calf !
 My anger is hot against you !
 Can you never succeed to repent ? 5
 The thing that was made by a smith, 6
 Can never be Israel's GOD !
 So Shomeron's Calf shall be smashed !
 And as they have sown only Wind,— 7
 The Whirlwind alone shall they reap.
 Without stalk,—the ear cannot make meal,—
 Or what it yields strangers devour !
 Thus Israel, you are gulped down,— 8
 Among nations like things they dislike ;
 For they went up to Ashur, a lonely wild ass — 9
 Ephraim paid him to bring paramours !
 Altho' they have hired the heathen, 10
 I will gather them, and they shall sigh,
 Depressed by the load of the Emperor-King !

Since Ephraim has multiplied Altars for Sin, 11
 His Altars shall bring him to grief !
 I wrote him a number of Laws,— 12
 But he thinks they are things that are strange,
 They sacrifice offerings to Me,— 13
 They sacrifice flesh,—and they eat—
 But the LORD will not take it from them,
 For He thinks of their vice,
 And will visit their sin.—
 So to Mitzer they now shall go back.
 For Israel, his Maker forgetting, 14
 Has Palaces built for himself ;
 And Judah increases strong cities,—
 But I will send fire to his towns,—
 And her Palaces I will consume.

Denunciation of Pagan Alliances.

Let not Israel joy in the dance of the Heathen ;— 9
 For you whore from your GOD,
 And make love here in every barn !
 Neither corn store nor wine bin will fill,
 And new wine shall be wanting to you. 2

No more dwell in the land of the Lord,— 3
 But, Ephraim, to Mitzer return,
 Or eat in defilement with Ashur,
 Pour no more wine to the LORD, 4
 Nor be pleasing to Him by your Gifts,
 For they shall be like funeral bread,
 All eating of them be defiled.
 Their food shall be like to their persons,
 Not enter the House of the LORD !

What will you do on the day of Assembly ? 5
 At the time of the feast of the LORD ?

- 6 Tho' they fly from destruction to Mitzer,
There Memph will collect and entomb,—
The nettles possess their bright silver,—
In their mansions the thorns shall spring up)
- 7 The day of the reckoning has come,
The day of repayment arrived !
And Israel shall know the reciters were fools,
That the man with a Spirit was mad !
And because of your manifold vices,
Your destruction be equally great.
- 9 Ephraim keeps a look against GOD !—
His Prophets lay traps in his paths
And destroy in the house of his gods
- 9 They are deeply corrupt, as in Gibeah's day ;—
He remembers their fault, and will punish their sin !
- 10 I met Israel like Grapes in the Desert,
I looked on your fathers like early ripe figs !—
They came to Bal-paor,—and fell in their shame !—
And became as corrupt as their laws !
- 11 Ephraim's Glory shall fly like a bird,—
Without child, or embrace, or conception !
- 12 If their sons should grow up,—I destroy them as men !—
Woe to them when I turn against them !
- 13 I see Ephraim like Tzur on a beautiful site,—
" But Ephraim produces his sons to be slain ! "
- 14 Give to them, LORD ;—Yes ! what will you give ?—
Give them a womb that will fail,
And the breasts that are dry !
- 15 For their sin is in Gilgal ; I noticed their plan ;
On account of their sin I will drive from My home ;—
I love them no more, for their Princes rebel !
- 16 Ephraim is felled ! and their root is dried up !
They cannot bear fruit, or, if they should bear,
I will kill the beloved of their breast !
- 17 My God will reject them,—they list not to Him ;—
And they shall be wanderers in Nations !

Israel's Progress in Wealth and in Sin.

- 10 A luxurious vine, Israel poured out his fruit,
As his fruits were increased, so his Altars increased ;
As his country excelled, so his Idols excelled !
- 2 Double-hearted, they now are condemned.—
- He will throw down their altars, their Pillars destroy,
3 " For, now," they exclaim, " there is no King for us,
For we fear not the LORD ;—and what can a King do ? "
4 They make to betray when they ratify bonds,
So justice springs up like a weed on a furrow !
- 5 And Shomeron's mob grieve for Beth-aven's Calf,
Its people faint for it, its Priests for it roll,—
On account of its glory,—now taken away ;—
- 6 To the proud King of Ashur it went as a gift !
- Blush Ephraim ! blush Israel ! because of your thoughts !
7 For Shomeron's King floats a chip on a stream !
- 8 Aven's Columns are wrecked,—they were Israel's sin ;
On their Altars the thorns and the thistles will grow !
And they cry, " Hide us Mountains ! and, " Hills on us fall ! "
- 9 From Ghibeah's days, you, O ! Israel, sinned !
There they stood !—

Should not war seize on the children of Sin in Gibeah ?
 " When I wish I will punish,—and bring on them Nations
 To punish them both for their sin." 10

For Ephraim was a heifer, delighting to thrash ;
 But I put a rider on Ephraim's fair neck ;— 11
 And she now ploughs for Judah, and harrows for Jacob,
 Sow for yourselves, and then reap perfect mercy ; 12
 Plough your fallows, in season to seek for the LORD,
 Until He may come and instruct you aright.—
 You have ploughed for revolt,—you have reaped only sin ;— 13
 And you ate falsehood's fruit ; for you trusted your course,—
 On your number of men !
 But a riot shall rise in your people and forts ;— 14
 And be plundered as Shalmon, and plundered Beth-arbel ;
 When mother and children were slaughtered in fight !
 Thus because of your crime shall be done you in Bethel,
 And Israel's King be destroyed in a morning !

Israel Called out of Egypt.

When Israel was young I loved him, 11
 And I called my Son out of Mitzer ;—
 They called them, so they ran off, 2
 To offer to Baalim, and incense to Idols !
 Although I gave Ephraim a Leader, 3
 Who lifted him up in his arms,
 They would not perceive that I helped them,
 I drew them by human affections, 4
 Came taking the bit from their jaws,
 And coaxed them along by My feeding.

To Mitzer he must not return ;— 5
 Yet Ashur rules, for refusing repentance !
 So the sword shall be whirled in his towns, 6
 Destroying their chiefs and devouring their statesmen !
 For My People persist in desertion ! 7
 Tho' called to their God, none exalt Him !

Yet, how can I leave you, Ephraim ? 8
 How can I abandon you, Israel ?
 How can I make you like Admah ;—
 And waste you till like to Zeboim ?
 My heart turns within Me at once,
 And now My affections are burning !
 So I will not act in My wrath,— 9
 I will not make Ephraim a desert !
 I am GOD,—I am not a mere Man,—
 So only be pure in your breast,—
 And I will not enter in anger.

Walk after the LORD, when He roars like a lion !— 10
 He will roar—and the Sons of the Westerns will tremble !—
 They will tremble like sparrows in Mitzer, 11
 And like doves in the country of Ashur !—
 When I bring you back to your Home, says Jehovah !

Reprobing the Deceptions of Ephraim.

Ephraim surrounds me with lies,— 12
 And Israel's household with falsehood
 But Judah yet runs with her GOD,—
 And with the faithfully Holy !

- 2 Ephraim browses, and follows the East wind!—
All day he multiplies lies and destruction!—
He makes a treaty with Ashur,—
And his oil is poured out to Mitz'raim!
- 3 But the LORD has a case against Judah,—
And will visit his ways upon Jacob!
He will pay him for what he has done!
4 In the belly he tripped up his brother,
And in his strength strove with an Angel!
5 He strove with the Angel, and won!
Wept, and prayed, when he met Him in Bethel,—
And so He will speak to ourselves there!
6 For He was the LORD GOD OF HOSTS;—
The LORD Who remembers!
7 So you now! Return to your GOD,
By the practice of Justice and Mercy!
And always rely on your GOD.
- 8 A trader, false balance in hand,
He always desires to be cheating!—
9 And Ephraim says, "Yes! I am rich!
I have found by my industry plenty!
I earned it,—and nothing is found
About me that I perceive sinful!"
- 10 But I am JEHOVAH your GOD,
Until now from the country of Mitzer;
And will send you to wander in tents,
As I did in old times that are ancient.
11 For I have declared by My Preachers,
And I have revealed it by Visions,
And by the means of the Prophets foretold!
12 For Gilad is guilty!—and infamy rest upon Gilgal!
They sacrifice bullocks on Altars,
Like clods in a plough-field!
- 13 Once Jacob fled to the wild-plain of Aram!
And Israel slaved for a wife,
And wearily watched in his sorrow!
14 And the LORD Israel led by a Preacher;
And by a Prophet He guarded from Mitzer;
15 Yet, now, Ephraim is bitterly vexed,
For he is all spattered with bloodshed!—
So his Judge will fix infamy on him!
- Ephraim once was Great;—and why he became Little.
- 13 When Ephraim had spoken they trembled,
He was so high placed in Israel!
But he died—for his guilt about Baal!
- 2 Yet still they continue to sin,
And make themselves Idols!
Of fanciful silver made forms,—
Ideas put in shape by a blacksmith!
3 All who sacrifice men to the calves,
They order to kiss them!
- 4 So they shall be like the clouds at the dawn,
And like morning dew they shall vanish;
Like chaff a storm sweeps from a barn,
And smoke that comes out from a chimney!

But I am the JEHOVAH your GOD,
 Who brought from the country of Mitzer;
 You should know no GOD except Me,—
 And except Me, there can be no Saviour!
 I acknowledged you when in the Desert, 5
 In the land that possesses no water.—
 There, they were full pastured and gorged,
 But their heart then rebelled and forgot me! 6

So, I am a lion, a leopard, 7
 To them on the journey to Ashur!
 I will seize like a fierce raging bear;
 Who tears when bereaved of her young ones, 8
 And rip up the cage of their heart!
 The wild beasts of the field shall devour them!

Israel, you are a wreck! And it is only I that can help you!
 Where now is your King? Let him come, 9
 And help you in all of your Cities!
 And your Judges?—Against whom you said,
 Give me a king and his princes?
 In My anger I gave you a King!— 11
 But I took him away in My fury!—

Ephraim's sin is packed up;
 He hoards up his faults as his treasure!
 To him came the troubles of childbirth;
 To him as lad without sense, 12
 Not expecting the birth of his children;
 13

Shall I free from the hand of the Grave,
 Or shall I redeem you from Death?
 Where are your terrors O! Death?
 And where now O! Grave, your destruction? 14

Pity is hid from My eyesight;—
 Tho' he flourish in beautiful meads,
 An easterly wind shall arrive,
 A wind of the LORD, from the desert.
 And his spring shall be dry, and his mountain shall fail,
 And his store shall be robbed of all beautiful products!—
 And Shomeron will be repaid, 14
 Because it rebelled against GOD!
 Her children shall fall by the sword,
 And her pregnant be crushed, and be ripped up!

An Appeal to Israel to Return to his Duty.
 To your LIVING GOD, Israel return!— 2
 For by your own sins you have fallen!
 Choose your words and return to the LORD,— 3

PENITENT ISRAEL'S PRAYER.

Say, "Removing our errors, have mercy,
 For we offer the fruits of our lips;—
 For Ashur shall not be our Saviour,— 4
 And on horses no more will we ride,—
 No more will we call those our gods,
 That we, ourselves, made by our hands;
 Only You for the orphaned have pity."

THE LORD'S REPLY.

- 5 "I will nurse those returning, and love!
 For My anger has vanished from them;—
 6 And to Israel I will be like the dew,—
 And he like the lily shall bloom;
 And like Lebanon send out his roots;
 7 Like a bright Olive spread out his boughs,
 And Lebanon's fragrance be his,
 8 And those passing shall rest in his shade.
 He shall live like the corn, and spread out like the vine
 With a scent such as Lebanon's wine!"
- 9 "What, Ephraim, to Me were your Idols?
 I depressed you—but now will endow,—
 I am like to a flourishing pine tree;—
 Your fruit shall be found upon Me."

Hosea's Final Appeal to Israel.

- 10 Who is wise and can comprehend these?
 Will reflect, and endeavour to learn
 That the paths of the LORD are direct,
 And in them the Righteous can travel;
 But the wicked will stumble on them?

(DATE ABOUT 800 B.C.)

T HE Message of the LORD that came to Joel-ben-Pethuel.	1
An Appeal to the Old Men.
You Elders, come listen to this,	2
And attend, all who dwell in the land!
Has this ever been in your lifetime?—
Or occurred in the days of your fathers?
About it relate to your children,—	3
And let your sons tell it to their sons,
And they to the sons who succeed them.
What the grub left, now the locust has eaten!
And the Licker devours what the Locust had left!	4
And the orts of the Licker the Swarmer consumes!
Awake, drunkard, and weep!	5
Howl, you drinkers of wine!—
For the sweet drink is cut from your mouths!
For a powerful people comes up to My land,	6
Who cannot be numbered;
And with lion-like teeth;
And jaws like a tiger are theirs!
They have wasted My vine,	7
And have shattered My fig,
And have stripped and exposed
To the whiteness its twigs!
I weep like a girl who is clothed with a sack,	8
For the loss of the love of her youth!
The gift and the wine, from the LORD's house is gone!	9
The Priests perish, who wait on the LORD!
The field grieves,—the ground mourns,—for the corn is destroyed!	10
The wine-bunch is dry, and the olive tree pines.
Faint, ploughmen,—and vinedressers wail!	11
For the barley and wheat!—
Harvest dies from the field!
The Vine is scorched up,	12
And the Fig-tree droops down;
And the Rimon, the Palm, and the Plum,
With all trees of the field are dried up!
And pleasure is burnt from the children of men!
Come gird you, and mourn, all you Priests,	13
Let who serve at the Altar bewail!
Go! lie down in sackcloth you servants of GOD,—
From God's House is withheld bread and wine!
Proclaim fasts! Preach restraint!	14
Let the elders collect,
All who dwell in the land,
At the House of the LORD,
And cry to your GOD,—to the LORD!

- 15 Alas! for the Day of the LORD has come near!
And from the ALMIGHTY destruction has come!
- 16 Are not our victuals cut off in our sight?
And laughter and joy from the House of our GOD?
- 17 The seeding is withered,
Pants under the clods,
The grain stores are ruins,—
The corn has decayed!
- 18 How the cattle are groaning!—
The flocks in the sheep pens are weeping!—
For they have no food,
And the sheep flocks are wasted!
- 19 So I cry to you, LORD,—
For fire burns up the grass on the pastures!
Flame has burnt all the trees of the land!
And to you low the cows in the field,
For the springs of the brooks are run dry,
And the fire has burnt up the grass of the pastures!

A Wail over Quick-coming Days!

- 2 Blow the Trumpet in Zion!
Arouse My Holy Mountain!
Let all tremble who dwell in the land;
For the day of the LORD marches on,—it comes near!—
A day of thick darkness and gloom,—
A day of black clouds and of blackness,
Like darkness spread out on the Hills;—
A numerous People and mighty!
Their like has not been from of old,—
Nor after them will be repeated,
To the years of the ages on ages!
- 3 Before them a fire consumes,—
And after them bright flames are blazing!
The land like a Garden of Eden before,
And after, a desolate desert!
And there is no refuge against them!—
What terrible horsemen they seem!—
Like chariots onward fierce rushing
- 4 With a crash on the top of the mountains!—
They crackle like roarings of flame,
Like fire devouring the stubble!
Like a powerful army when charging in war
- 5 The Nations before them all quiver,—
All faces before them are livid!
- 6 Like heroes they rush on their way,—
They mount up the wall as do warriors,—
Advancing each one in his rank,—
And who never break out from their line,—
Or anyone jostle his fellow!—
They boldly march straight on their way,
And from the artillery shrink not!
- 7 They charge to the walls of a town!—
They rush on approaching the buildings!
Like robbers they climb to the windows,
Before them earth trembles, skies shake;—
The Sun and the Moon put on mourning!
The Stars also cease from their shining
- 8
- 9
- 10

- Thus the LORD utters His voice
At the head of His army!—
His encampment is spread very wide,
And His order works very strongly;
And great is the Day of the LORD,—
And terrible!—Who can abide it? 11
- "But, now," says JEHOVAH, "return,—
And with all your hearts come near to Me.
With fasting, and weeping and grief;
Tear your hearts,—and not only your robes 12
And return to JEHOVAH your GOD."—
For He has compassion,—is kind,—
Slow to anger and great in His mercy;—
And it grieves Him to punish the sinful,—
Who knows but that He will turn back, 13
And leave us a blessing behind,
Of bread, and of wine for our LIFE-LIVING GOD? 14
- The Call to Repentance.
- Blow the Trumpet in Zion! 15
Fix a Fast, and proclaim a restraint,—
Let the Nation collect to a solemn Assembly,— 16
Bring up the old, and collect all the young;
Bring out the child at the breast,
With the Bridegroom and Bride from their chamber,
And weep at the Porch and the Altar,— 17
You Priests who attend on the LORD,
Let them cry, "O! LORD, pity Your people;
Give not Your estate to reproach,
For the Heathen to govern among them.
For why should they ask in the heathen,
'What has become of their GOD?'"
- Then the LORD will feel love for His country. 18
And for His poor people feel pity;
And answering the LORD will reply,— 19
"I will send you the corn and the wine,
And you of the oil shall have plenty;
You shall not be a scorn to the heathen,
But I will drive from you the Northmen, 20
And expel to a desert and waterless land,
With his van to the Sea of the East,
And his rear to the Sea of the West,
And his stink shall come up,
And his stink shall arise,
Although he has done mighty deeds!"
- Fear not, my country, but laugh and be glad, 21
For the LORD can accomplish great things!
Fear not, you herds of the field,— 22
For the herbs of the pastures shall spring,
And the trees shall be loaded with fruits,
And the fig and the vine give their wealth!
Let the children of Zion be glad 23
And rejoice in JEHOVAH your GOD,—
Who will give you the rain by its law,
And pour for you plentiful showers,
And the rain of the Spring, as before,
And fill up your garners with grain, 24

- 25 And pour out wine and oil for your cellars,
And repay you because of the years
That the locust, and licker, and gnawer,
And Grub have devoured,—
My Great Army I sent upon you.
- 26 And then you shall eat and be full,
And give thanks to the Name of the LIFE,
Your GOD Who does wonders for you,
That My people may never be shamed,
27 But learn that in Israel I dwell,
And that I am your LIFE-GIVING GOD;—
And that there is no one beside,
And My people need never be shamed |
- 3 And then after that I will pour My Spirit upon all mankind;—
And your sons and your daughters be glad;
And your Old Men be dreamers of dreams;
2 And at visions your young men shall look |
And also on servants and slaves,
3 My Spirit I then will pour out,
And fix signs in the sky, and on earth,—
4 Blood, and Fire, and Columns of smoke |
The Sun shall to Darkness be turned,
And the Moon shall be changed into Blood,—
Ere the Day of the Lord will arrive,
That Great and that terrible Day |
5 All who call on the LORD'S Name will escape,—
For on Zion's hill, and in Salem, a refuge shall be,
As the LORD has declared,—
And whom the LORD calls will be safe |
- 4 ¹ For be sure in those days, and that time,
When Jerus'lem and Judea's captives I free,
2 I will gather together the Nations
And bring to the plain of GOD'S land,
And there will deliver My judgment
On them on account of My race,
And Israel, My own, whom they scattered
To the heathen, who broke up My land,
3 And who played at their dice for My people:
And paid for a whore with a boy,
And bought wine with a girl, to be drunk |
- 4 What are you Tyre and Sidon to Me?
With the whole of Philistia's vales?
Would you take your vengeance on Me?—
If you try silly vengeance on Me,
I vengeance will send on your heads!—
5 Because you have taken My silver and gold,
And carried My beautiful things to your Temples!
6 And the sons of Jerusalem, and Judea's sons,
You have sold to the sons of the I'on,
7 To carry them far from their borders,
But I will rouse them from the place where you sold them,
And your vengeance will bring on your heads,
8 And sell of your sons and your daughters,

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 1. In all versions which rest on the Vulgate Latin there are only three chapters in Joel, but I follow the original Hebrew division, making four chapters.—F. F.

To the hands of the children of Judah,
 And they will sell them to Shabaim!
 To a Nation afar—for the LORD has declared it!

A Promise of Success.

Proclaim to the Nations, "Prepare for the war!	9
Arouse, heroes! come on,—advance all men to battle!
Beat out your ploughshares to swords, and your scythes into spears!	10
Let the feeble exclaim, 'I am strong!'
Quick! March! all you neighbouring Nations,	11
And collect to the spot where the LORD
Intends you to conquer your foes!
Nations! arouse and advance to the Plain of GOD'S Justice!	12
For there I will sit and will judge all the Nations around Me."
Swing the scythe, for the harvest is ripe,—	13
Come! Tread! For the wine-press is filling!
Make the vats overflow, for the reaping is great,—
Crowds upon crowds on the Plain of the Judgment!	14
The day of the LORD has arrived on the Plain where He fixes their doom.—
The Sun and the Moon are in black,	15
And the Stars are withholding their beams.
For the LORD out of Zion will roar,
And send from Jerusalem His voice!
Then the skies and the Earth will be shaken;	16
But to His People the LORD will be kind,
And give help to all Israel's sons
Who acknowledge that I, Who AM LIFE, am their GOD;	17
Residing in Zion, on My Holy Hill.
And Jerusalem then shall be sacred,—
And foreigners no more oppress!
Then the Mountains shall drop with sweet wine,	18
And milk shall flow down from the slopes,
And Judah's brooks stream full of water;—
And a spring shall flow from the LORD'S House,
And water the Vale of Acacias!
But Mitzer shall be like a waste,	19
And Edom a desolate pasture,
For their crime to the Children of Judah,
Whose innocent blood they have shed in their lands.—
But Judah for ever shall last,—	20
And Jerusalem ages of ages!
And I will requite for their unavenged blood;	21
For the LORD has His dwelling in Zion!

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET JOEL.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE.

This prophetic warning was uttered about 800 B.C. It takes the form of a didactic Psalm, as most other of the addresses of the Prophets did, their essential duty being to preach righteousness of life, not to foretell events, as now by a change in our language is popularly supposed. In the English language, as in ancient Hebrew, the word "prophecy" meant "to preach"; the restriction of it to the sense of "foretelling" was a perversion of the eighteenth century.—F. F.

AMOS.

(DATE 787 B.C.)

1 THE Messages by Amos, who was among the herdsmen in Thekoa, when he meditated about Israel in the days of Uziah, king of Judah, and in the days of Jerabam-ben-Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake, and he said;—

An Announcement to the People.

2 The LORD from Zion will roar,
And His voice from Jerusalem utter,
And the pasture of Shepherds will fade,
And the summit of Karmel will wither!

The Doom of Damascus.

3 The LORD declares thus;—
"For three sins of Damask, and for four,
I will not refrain to requite!
She thrashed Gilad with iron flails,
4 So to Hazael's House I send fire,
Which shall eat up the Hall of Benhadad,
5 And break all the bars of Damask,
And from Aven's Valley cut men,
And will seize on the Staff of Beth-Eden,
And drive off Aram's people to Kir,"
Says the LORD.

The Doom of Gaza.

6 The Lord proclaims thus;—
"For three sins of Gaza's, and four,
I will not refrain to requite!—
For she captured the captives in peace,
And to Edom delivered them up!
7 So to Gaza's walls I will send fire,
Which will eat up Her Halls,
8 And will cut off the people from Ashdod,
And Askalon's Ruler will slay,
And against Akron turning My hand,
All Philistia's remnant shall fall,"
Says the LORD!

The Doom of Tzur.

9 The LORD declares thus;—
"For three sins of Tzur, and for four,
I will not refrain to requite!—
They delivered the captives to Edom;—
10 Not remembering the treaty of friends!—
To the ramparts of Tzur I send fire,
And it shall devour her Halls!"

The Doom of Edom.

The LORD proclaims thus;— 11
 " For three sins of Edom, and four,
 I will not refrain to requite !—
 For his brother he chased with a sword,
 Stifled pity and tore in his rage,
 And continued his fury for ever !
 So I will send fire to Themen, 12
 And devour the Mansions of Bozrah."

The Doom of the Beni-Amon.

The LORD proclaims thus :— 13
 " For three sins of Ben-Amon, and four,
 I will not refrain to requite !
 In Gilad they ripped up the pregnant,
 That they might widen their bounds ;
 So I set Rabah's ramparts on fire, 14
 And devour his Halls with such roar
 As they hear in the day of a fight,
 Or a storm in the day of a wreck,
 And their King shall go out as a slave, 15
 Himself and along with his Chiefs,"
 Says the LORD !

The Doom of Moab.

The LORD proclaims thus ;— 2
 " For three sins of Moab, and four,
 I will not refrain to requite !—
 For he burnt Edom's King's bones to lime !—
 So I will send fire to Moab,— 2
 And burn up the Halls of Kirioth,
 And Moab shall die with a shout,
 And the loud blaring voice of a horn,
 When I cut off her Judge in his hall, 3
 And slay all his nobles around ! "
 Says the LORD !

The Doom of Judah.

The LORD proclaims thus ;— 4
 " For three sins of Judah, and four,
 I will not refrain to requite !—
 They abandoned the Laws of the LORD,
 And did not preserve His decrees ;—
 But wandered away to their Lies,
 As their fathers before them had gone ;
 So I will send fire to Judah, 5
 And devour Jerusalem's Halls."

The Doom of Israel.

The LORD proclaims thus ;— 6
 " For three sins of Israel, and four,
 I will not refrain to requite !—
 For they sell the Righteous for cash,
 And the poor for a new pair of shoes !
 Pant for the dust on the head of the weak, 7
 And the path of the weary destroy ;
 Son and father debauch the same girl !—
 Yes ! thus my HOLY NAME they defile !
 Pawned clothing they spread beside every altar, 8
 And drink mad'ning wine in the House of their Gods !

- 9 "Yet the Amorites tall as the cedars,
I formerly drove from their face.—
They were lofty and strong as the oaks,
Yet their fruit I destroyed from above,
And their roots from below.
- 10 And from Mitzer's country I brought you,
And marched forty years in the Waste,—
To conquer the Amorites' land.
- 11 And Preachers I raised from your sons,
And Nazarites from your young men :—
Sons of Israel did I not do so ?"
Asks the LORD !
- 12 But you gave to your Nazarites wine !
Have forbidden your Preachers to preach !—
- 13 Oh ! I am crushed underneath you,
As a cart that is loaded with sheaves !
- 14 But swiftness shall fail to the swift,
And the strong not prevail by his strength,
And the brave shall not rescue his life,
- 15 Nor the archer be able to stand,
Nor the light-footed able to fly,
Nor the horseman escape with his life ;
- 16 But the bold-hearted hero be stripped,—
He shall fly in that day," says the LORD.

A Warning to Israel.

- 3 Listen to the message which the Lord commands to you,—Sons of Israel !—to all the families I brought up from the land of the Mitzeraim,
when He said,—
- 2 "I have only selected you out of all the families of the earth, therefore I will punish all your faults upon yourselves."
- 3 Can two walk together unless they 4 are in agreement ? Does a lion roar in a forest when he has no prey ?
Does a tiger howl from his den unless 5 he has game ? Can a bird fall into a trap on the ground where there is - not a snare set for it ? Do they take a trap from the ground when it has caught no game ? Can a trumpet be blown in a town and people not collect ? If there is misfortune to a town, has not the EVER-LIVING produced it ?
However the MIGHTY LORD will ;
not produce an event without disclosing His intention to His servants
the prophets.
The Lion has roared—who should not fear ?—The MIGHTY LORD has commanded,—who would not preach ?

The Proclamation against Shomeron.

I.

- 9 "Proclaim on the mansions of Ashdod,
And the Mansions of Mitzeraim's land !
Say ' Assemble on Shomeron's Mountains,—
And survey the great riots within,
And the outrages done in her breast !'
10 For they know not to practise the right,"
Says the LORD,
"They store up oppression and wrong,
In their Halls !

II.

- 11 "So," thus says the MIGHTY JEHOVAH,
"A Robber shall close round the land,
And pull down your power from off you,
And plunder your Halls."

A Plea with Israel to Repent.

- Thus says the LORD!— 12
- "As after a lion a shepherd picks up
Two feet, or the part of an ear,—
So shall the children of Israel be
At Shomeron hid in a nook,
Or laid in a bed in Damask.
- "Oh House of Jacob! rouse, listen and wake," 13
Says the MIGHTY LORD GOD of Sabaoth!
"For when I bring Israel's sin on himself,
And punish the Altars of Bethel, 14
I will cut off the horns of his altars,
And throw to the ground!
When I cut off the Palace of Winter, 15
Along with the House in the Park,
And abolish the houses of marble,
Then many buildings shall fall!"
Says the LORD!

A Warning to Corrupt Women.

- 4 Listen to this Message, you cows of Bashan, who are on the hills of Shomeron! Who oppress the weak, who crush the wretched, but say to your masters, "Come on! Let us drink!"—The MIGHTY LORD has sworn by His holiness that the times shall come upon you when you shall be hung on hooks and your followers 3 on fish hooks, and you shall be pulled out quivering,—and as an exposed woman,—and they will fling you to the public," says the EVER-LIVING.
- 4 "Come to Bethel and sin! To Gilgal and multiply sins!—Bring your sacrifices to the Morning,—and 5 your three yearly tithes, and incense with ferment,—give thanks and offer your vows in public,—for you love that, Sons of Israel! Therefore I, also, have given you cleanness of teeth in all your towns, and want of bread in all your homes, because you have not turned to Me," says the 7 EVER-LIVING. "And I have also held back the showers from you, in the third month at harvest, and have rained upon a village here, and not on a village there;—I rained rain upon one district,—but the district 8 not rained upon withered. So two or three villages travelled to the one village to drink water, but were not refreshed,—yet they did not turn to Me," says the EVER-LIVING.
- "Then I inflicted upon you blight,— 9 with mildew upon your plentiful gardens, and vine and fig, and olive yards. The grub devoured them.—But you did not return to Me," says the EVER-LIVING.
- "Is not your disease from the 10 direction of the Mitzeraim?—I slew your soldiers by the sword, with the loss of your heroes. I have brought the stink of your camps to your nose;—but you have not turned to Me," says the EVER-LIVING.
- "I have overwhelmed among you, 11 as when GOD overwhelmed Sodom and Gomorah, and you became like a stick snatched from a fire;—but you have not turned to Me," says the EVER-LIVING.
- Consequently I will do thus to you, 12 revolting Israel!—and because I do it to you, Israel, prepare to meet your GOD!—for be sure that the Former 13 of the Hills,—the Creator of the Wind,—the Reporter to man of what He decides—Who uses the wings of darkness, and walks on the heights of the earth,—His Name is the LORD OF HOSTS!
- Listen to this message that I bring 5 to you;—

The Punishment for the House of Israel.

- Israel's daughter has fallen and cannot arise! 2
She lies stretched on the ground without help!
- 3 For thus says the MIGHTY LORD,—
"To the City that brought out a thousand, a hundred are left; and where a hundred came out, ten are left to the House of Israel."
Thus says the EVER-LIVING to the 4

- House of Israel—"Seek Me and you will live; but seek not Bethel, and go not to Gilgal, nor pass on to Bar-sheba,—for Gilgal will be carried off, and Bethel become empty."
- 6 Seek the LIFE and you shall live!—If not He will fall like fire on the House of Joseph, and consume and be unquenchable in Bethel!—You who turn Justice into distress, and fling right to the ground!—concocting clouds and stupidity, and pouring the shadow of death on the morning, and dark Night upon Day, and demand the waters of the Sea, and pour them on the face of the land!—
- 9 His Name is the LIFE, Who flashes destruction on Power, and brings destruction on the Mighty!
- 10 They hate the public reprove,—abhor the speaker of truth.
- 11 Therefore, although you trample upon the poor, and take a tax on his corn, to build yourselves houses of cut stone,—you shall not reside in them. You plant delightful vineyards, but shall not drink their wine. For I know your many vices, and your mighty sins!—you oppressors of right;—you takers of bribes;—and you wrong the wretched in the Courts of Justice. So the Prudent in this age is dumb!—for it is a bad period!
- 14 Seek Good and not evil! that you may live,—and then the LORD GOD OF HOSTS will be with you, as you assert.—Hate Evil and love Good,—Establish justice in your Law Courts!—Perhaps the LORD OF HOSTS will be merciful to the fragments of Joseph!
- 16 However, thus says the LORD GOD OF HOSTS, THE MIGHTY,—“There shall be mourning in all the squares! and they shall exclaim in all the streets, ‘Alas! Alas!’ and call the farmer to grieve, and the professors of wailing to mourn;—And all vine-dressers to lament, when I pass through your breast,” says the EVER-LIVING.
- 18 Woe to you, wishing for the Day of the LORD!—It will be darkness and not Light! As a man flying from the presence of a lion,—and a bear meets him, or entering a house, and laying his hand on the wall, and a serpent bites,—The Day of the LORD will be Darkness and not Light,—and Blackness and without splendour!

A Benunciation of Hypocrisy.

I hate, I reject your feasts! I am not pleased with your assemblings! When you offer burnt-offerings with 22 foods, I am not gratified!—and I will not look at your fat thank-offerings! Take away the drone of your songs! And let Me not hear the tone of your 23 lutes!—But let Justice flow like brooks, and right like a constant river! 24

Did you present to Me for the forty 25 years in the Desert, sacrifices and offerings?—House of Israel?—When 26 you erected your tent to Molok, and shrines for your Star-god, Kion—whom you made for yourselves?—So I will transport you from here to 27 Damascus, the EVER-LIVING declares,—Whose name is the LORD GOD OF HOSTS!

Woe to the luxurious in Zion, and 6 the idle in Shomeron! What worthless chiefs of the heathen you go to, House of Israel! You went to Kalnah and looked; and from there to Hamath the Great, and thence to the House of Philistia! Are these kingdoms better? Their boundaries than your boundaries?—You put off the 3 bad day,—but bring on destruction and ruin! You lie on ivory and 4 stretch yourselves on cushions and eat the fat lambs from the flock and calves from the stall.—You trill songs 5 like lovers to the tune of the harp, contriving the means of song.—You 6 quaff your cups of wine and dress your heads with the finest oils,—and grieve not for broken Joseph!—Therefore now they shall be trans- 7 ported with the first transports—and the sound of luxury cease!

The MIGHTY LORD has sworn by 8 His soul, says the LORD GOD OF HOSTS, “I loathe the pride of Jacob, and hate his palaces,—so I will abandon his city and its contents. And then if two men lodge in a single 9 house they shall die; and the man’s 10 relative will take him up from the house and burn his bones in the streets, and ask the others at the back of the house,—‘Are there any more with you?’ and they will reply ‘None,’ and add ‘Be silent,—for we did not remember the Name of the LORD!’”

For be sure the EVER-LIVING has 11 decreed it,—and will knock the Great House to pieces, and the Cottage to splinters!

- 12 "Can horses gallop up a precipice?
or bullocks plough it?—Yet you have turned Justice to bitterness, and the fruit of Righteousness into worm-13 wood! You delighters in delusive things, who say 'Have we not obtained 14 our horns by our own might?' Yet I will rise against you, House of Israel," says the LORD GOD OF HOSTS, "a Nation to afflict you, from the Pass of Hamath, to the River of the Arbah."

The Vision of the Locusts.

- 7 The EVER-LIVING GOD showed me
the following:—
He formed locusts after the sprouting of the aftermath which springs 2 up after the Royal mowing. And when they had totally consumed the grass from the earth I exclaimed,
"MIGHTY LORD! Pardon now,—can Jacob endure it? for he is little!"
3 The EVER-LIVING had pity at that,
"It shall not continue," the LIFE said.
4 Then the MIGHTY GOD enlightened me, and summoned a great Fire,— and it devoured the great deep and would have consumed the land!—but 5 I exclaimed, "MIGHTY LORD! Stop it. How can Jacob endure it? for he is little."

- 6 The EVER-LIVING had pity for that; "This also shall not continue,"
the MIGHTY LORD said.
7 Again he enlightened me, and I saw a Prince stand on a wall to plumb it,—with the plumb line in his hand.
8 And the EVER-LIVING asked me,
"What do you see now, Amos?"
And I replied, "A plumber."

- Then the Noble said to me—"I will drop a plummet into the breast of My People Israel. I will not en-9 dure them longer, but the Mounds of Isaac shall be desolated, and the Sanctuaries of Israel burnt to ashes, and I will rise against the House of Jerebam with a sword."

The Priest of Bethel Denounces Amos.

- 10 Amaziah the Priest of Bethel consequently sent to Jerebam, King of Israel, to say:—"Amos is conspiring against you in the centre of the House of Israel;—the country cannot bear the load of all his speeches. For Amos 11 asserts that the Family of Jerebam shall be killed by the sword, and that Israel will be transported from its own country!"

Amaziah also said to Amos:—"Go, 12 you Visionary,—fly to the land of Judah! and eat your bread there, and preach there, and never return 13 to Bethel to preach;—for it is a Royal Temple, and Royal Palace!"

Amos, however, answered and said 14 to Amaziah, "I was not a Preacher, nor the Pupil of a Preacher,—but a herdsman, and gatherer of wild figs!
But the EVER-LIVING took me from 15 the flocks, and the LIFE said to me;—'Go! preach to My People Israel!' Therefore now listen to 16
the message from the EVER-LIVING!
—You say 'Preach not to Israel,' and 'Do not drivel against the House of Jacob!' But the EVER-LIVING, 17 however, says, 'Your wife shall be outraged in this city, and your sons and daughters will fall by the sword, and your estate be divided by lots,
and yourself shall die in the degraded land, and Israel will be transported from its own soil!'"

The Vision of a Basket of Fruit.

Then the MIGHTY LORD en- 8 lightened me, and I saw a basket of fruit, and He asked me, "What 2 are you looking at, Amos?" And I replied, "A basket of fruit."

Then the EVER-LIVING said to me,
"The harvest of My People Israel has come! I will not cease until it is gone through!—And the Songs 3 in the Temple shall be howling at that time," said the MIGHTY LORD,
"with plenty of corpses flung in every place!"

A Denunciation of Villains.

Hear this, you devourers of the 4 poor!—who exhaust the wretched of this country! Who ask "When will 5 the New Moon be passed, when we can sell corn!—and the Sabbath so that we may expose grain?"—Who lessen the Ephah,—and increase the shekel, and swindle by small scales!
Who buy the bankrupts for silver, 6 and the helpless for a pair of slippers! But refuse to sell grain!

The LORD has sworn by the pride of Jacob,
I will never forget your deeds!
Will not the land tremble for them?
And all of its residents mourn?—

7

8

- And rise and toss like a swelling stream,
 Then sink like the river of Mitzer?
 9 And in that day, says the MIGHTY LORD,
 I will take away the Sun at its noon,
 And darken the earth in daylight;
 10 And change your Feasts to Mourning,
 And all your Songs into Wailings!
 And put sacks upon all your loins,
 And baldness on every head,
 And make it like grief for a loved one,
 And its end be a bitter day!
- 11 "See! The days come," said the MIGHTY LORD,
 "When a famine I send to the land!—
 Not a rage for bread, or a water thirst,
 But for hearing the word of the LORD!
 12 When they will wander from sea to sea,—
 And fit from the West to the East,
 To seek the Word of the LORD,
 And shall not be able to find!
- 13 "In that day the beautiful girls
 And the youths shall faint with thirst,
 14 Those who swear by Shomeron's Sins,
 And assert 'By the Life of Dan's God!
 And 'the Life of the One of Barsheba,' Shall fall, and shall rise never more."

A Vision of Usee.

- 9 I saw the Prince standing upon the Altar and he said;—
 "Strike the tops of the columns,
 And then the bases will shake!
 And smash all their tops,
 When I will destroy with a sword,
 And none of them shall escape,—
 Nor to a refuge shall fly.
 2 And if they dig down to the Grave—
 Then My hand can take them from there!
 Or if they mount up to the skies,
 From there I can bring them all down.
 3 And if they should hide upon Karmel,
 I will search and will catch them there.—
 If they hide from my eyes in the South,
 To the depths of the sea I will go!
 And will order a serpent to sting!
 Or, if their foes take them as captives,
 4 Even there I can make the sword slay!
 Mine eyes will look on them for evil,
 And never for good!"
- 5 For the MIGHTY LORD OF HOSTS
 Will touch the land and melt,
 And all its dwellers waste;
 And rising like a torrent
 Will o'erwhelm like Mitzer's stream.
 6 He built the Heavens, His Chambers,
 And formed the vault o'er earth;
 He called the Sea of Waters,
 And spread them over the land;
 And His Name is the LIFE!

God's Remonstrance to His People.

7 "Are you not the same to Me as the sons of the Kushites, sons of Israel?" the EVER-LIVING asks.—"Did I not bring Israel up from the land of the Mitzeraim? and the Philistine from 8 Kaphtor? And Aram from Kir? Be certain the eyes of the MIGHTY LORD are upon your sinful Kingdom, and He will destroy it from off the face of the ground.—Except that I will not quite destroy the Family of Jacob,"
9 says the EVER-LIVING, "for though I have commanded to roll the Family of Israel amongst the Heathen as they roll things in a sieve, yet not 10 a seed shall fall to the ground. But all the sinners of My People shall die by the sword, who say 'Misfortunes will not catch, or meet, or surround us!'"

God's Promise to His People.

"In a Time to Come, I will raise the 11 fallen Tent of David, and repair its rags, and will restore his ruins, and will rebuild them as in the olden times,
—so that they may possess the rem-12 nants of Edom, and all the Nations who call with them on My Name," says the EVER-LIVING, Who will effect it!

The Psalm of Promise.

"Be assured the times come," says the LORD,
13 "When the ploughman shall follow the reaper,
And the presser of grapes follow sowers of seeds,
When the mountains shall drip with sweet wine,
And with it the Highlands shall melt.

"When Israel My People from slavery I bring,
14 To rebuild and dwell in their desolate Towns;
Plant vineyards, and feast on their grapes,
And make gardens, and eat of their fruits;—
And plant in the soil I gave as their own.
15 I will not pluck again from that ground
That I gave to them," says the LORD GOD.

OBADIAH.

(DATE 587 B.C.)

The Vision of Obadiah.

- 1 THUS says the MIGHTY LORD about Edom;—
 We have heard a command from the LORD about Edom
 And a message is sent to the Nations;—
 " Arise! and go up to the war against Her!"
- 2 " Look! I will make you be small among Nations!
 And you shall be greatly despised!—
- 3 Your bold heart deceived you, who dwell on high cliffs,— Whose home is on high, and Who says to his heart,—
 ' Who can drag me to earth? '
- 4 " If with Eagles you soar, if you nest among stars,—
 I will drag down from there," says the LORD.
- 5 " If thieves come to you, or if burglars by night,
 Would they not cease when they'd stolen enough?
 If grape gatherers came to you, would they not leave gleanings?
- 6 " Is not Esau discovered? his treasures poured out?
7 Those men, your allies, to your borders have driven;
 They deceived you! Your friends have o'erwhelmed!
 Spread a net on your bread that you did not perceive!
- 8 " Will not I," asks the LORD, " now take Genius from Edom?
 And Talent from off Edom's Hill?
9 Make your Generals, Theman, be cowards,
 So that slaughter may cut off the men from Mount Esau?
10 Shame shall clothe for the wrongs done to Jacob your brother,
 And you shall be cut off for ever.
- 11 " At that time you stood near when the foreigners captured his army,
 And the strangers came into his gates, and tossed dice for Jerusalem,—
 You joined one with them!
- 12 You looked not, on that day, at your brother,—
 In that day you made him a stranger,
 You soothed not Judah's sons in the day of their loss,
 Nor opened your mouth in his day of distress;—
- 13 Nor came to the gate of My Race in the day of their grief;—
 Nor sent to his aid in the day of his sorrow;—
- 14 But you stood at the cross-roads to cut off his flight,—
 And hid not his escaped in their day of defeat.
- 15 " But the day of the LORD will come on every Nation;—
 And as you have done, He will do to yourselves;—
 Your crime will return on your head!
- 16 As you drank upon My Holy Hill,
 All the Nations shall drink upon you,—
 Deeply drink and will swallow you down,—
 You will be as if never in life.

" But Mount Zion will be a safe refuge, Jacob's House shall possess it in peace.	17
Then Jacob's House shall be the fire, And Joseph's House shall be the flame,	18
But Esau's House shall be like stubble, Which they shall ignite, and consume;
And of Esau's House none be remaining,— As the LORD has decreed !
" Then the Southernns shall hold Esau's hills, And his lowlands Philistia will seize ; And Ephraim will capture his valleys, With the fields that belong to Shomeron, And Benjamin conquer Gilad ! And Israel's sons seize the plain Which Canaan holds up to Zarephth And Jerusalem capture in Sefrad,	19
And possess all the towns of the South ;—	20
And Guardians shall come from Mount Zion, To govern upon Esau's hill,—	21
But the kingship shall be for the LORD ! "

JONAH.

(DATE 862 B.C.)

Jonah's Call.

1 A MESSAGE came from the Lord to Jonah-ben-Amitha to say:—

"Rise! Go to Ninevah, the Great City, and preach to it, for its wickedness has come up before Me."

The Prophet flies away in Terror.

3 Jonah, however, arose and fled towards Tharshish from the presence of the EVER-LIVING, and descended to Jaffa, and found a ship going to Tharshish, and paid his fare, and embarked in her to go with them to Tharshish, from the presence of the EVER-LIVING.

The Great Storm.

4 But the EVER-LIVING raised a great wind upon the sea, and then came a furious storm, and the ship seemed about to be wrecked, so the sailors became terrified and cried everyone to his god, and threw out the cargo that was in the ship into the sea to lighten her. But Jonah had gone down to the berths, and lay fast asleep.

6 The captain of the ship however came to him and said, "Why are you asleep? Get up, and call upon your GOD; perhaps your GOD will save us,—then we shall not perish!"

7 But everyone said to his messmate, "Come on! let us throw dice, and find out on account of whom this danger has come on us." So they threw dice, and the dice fell against Jonah.

8 So they asked, "Tell us now on account of what this danger came to us? Where are you going? and where do you come from? What is your country? And to what People do you belong?"

9 And he replied to them, "I am a Hebrew. I reverence the LORD GOD of Heaven Who made the Sea and the Land!"

Then the men were afraid with 10 great terror, and asked him, "What have you done?" For the men understood that he was flying from the presence of the EVER-LIVING;—for he had told them.

They consequently asked him, 11 "What must be done to you? to lessen the sea around us? for the water and the storm gallop."

And he answered, "Heave me up 12 and fling me into the sea! and the sea will be abated about you, because I know that this great hurricane has come upon you on my account."

The men, however, worked hard to 13 return to the land, but were not able, for the sea galloped, and the storm was against them. So they cried to 14 the EVER-LIVING, and said, "We beg of You, EVER-LIVING, now, not to let the life of this man perish; and not to lay upon us innocent blood;—for You can do as You decide."

Then they hoisted Jonah, and flung 15 him into the sea. And the fury of the sea ceased!

But the men were terrified, and 16 revered the EVER-LIVING greatly, and offered a sacrifice to the EVER-LIVING, and vowed vows.

Jonah Rescued by "The Great Fish."

But the EVER-LIVING had appointed 2 "The Great Fish" ¹ to pick up Jonah. And Jonah was three days and nights in the hold of the "Fish," and Jonah 2 prayed to his EVER-LIVING GOD from the hold of "The Fish," and said:—

1 NOTE.—Ch. 2, v. 1. "Great Fish" was the name of the ship mistranslated "Whale" in the version of the Greek translators, whose blunder has been repeated by all subsequent translators, in all languages, to the perplexity of their readers, until I decided to go back to the original statement of the prophet in his own Hebrew.—F. F.

Jonah's Prayer.

In my misery I cried to the LORD, 3
 And He pitied in that hollow den,
 I cried,—and He answered my cry,
 When I was flung into the deep, 4
 In the heart of the sea,
 With your breakers and torrents around,
 And your gallopers rolling on me.

Then I said, "I am thrown from Your sight. 5
 Yet of Your HOLY NAME I will think.
 The waters sucked down to the soul of the Deep 6
 And my head was entangled in weeds!
 I sank to the clefts of the hills, 7
 The earth closed and barred me for ever,
 But You brought my soul up from the pit,
 My LORD GOD!
 When my breath fainted, I thought of the LORD! 8
 And my prayer went up to your Holy Abode!

"Those who trust in vain falsehood abandon their Hope; 9
 But I sacrificed praise with my voice!—
 What I vowed I will pay to the LORD."

10 The EVER-LIVING afterwards directed "The Fish," and it discharged Jonah on the land.

The Second Command to Warn Ninevah.

3 Then the command of the EVER-LIVING came to Jonah the second time to say:—

2 "Arise! Go to Ninevah, the Great City, and preach in it the sermon that I command you!"

3 Jonah consequently arose and went to Ninevah, as the EVER-LIVING commanded,—and Ninevah was a Great City to GOD, three days' journey

4 across. When Jonah had begun to enter the City, he travelled a three days' journey, and proclaimed, "Four days hence Ninevah will be over-

5 thrown!" And the people of Ninevah trusted GOD, and proclaimed a fast, and clothed in sackcloth from the

6 greatest to the least. The matter was also reported to the King of Ninevah, and he arose from his throne, and stripped off his robes and clothed himself in sackcloth, and sat in the

7 dust. And it was proclaimed, and commanded by a decree of the King and his Nobles, saying, "Let Men, and cattle of the fold, and sheep, not

8 taste of anything, either food or water to drink. But let men and cattle be clothed in sackcloth, and cry earnestly to GOD; and let everyone turn from his peculiar sin, and from the wrong that is in his hands. Who knows 9 but that GOD will turn and have pity, and restrain His anger, and not destroy?"

GOD saw their acts, how they 10 turned from their bad course, so GOD showed mercy instead of the punishment which He had warned would be inflicted upon them, and did it not!

But Jonah was vexed with great 4 vexation, and furious at it. So he 2 prayed to the EVER-LIVING, and exclaimed,—"Now, LORD! is not this what I said whilst I was still in my own country? Consequently I determined to fly to Tharshish! For I knew that You were kind and merciful, very forbearing, and full of pity toward the sinful. So now, LORD, 3 take my life from me! For it is better for me to die than live."

But the EVER-LIVING answered 4
 him, "What does it benefit you to be enraged?"

Then Jonah went out of the City, 5 and sat opposite the east of the town, and made a hut there for himself, and sat under its shade, so that he might watch to see what the EVER-LIVING would do to the town.

But the EVER-LIVING had pre- 6
 pared a Gourd, and it grew over the hut of Jonah, and became a shade over its top to protect him from his passions; and Jonah was glad of the Gourd, with a great gladness. GOD, 7

however, had provided a worm, against the advance of darkness a few days after, and it pierced the 8 Gourd, so that it withered. And when the sun arose GOD prepared a rushing east wind;—and the sun struck the head of Jonah, and he fainted, and wished himself to die,—and exclaimed, "It is better for me to die than live."
9 The EVER-LIVING, however, said to Jonah, "Is it well for you to be grieved for the Gourd?"

When he replied, "It is well for me to be grieved to death!"

But the EVER-LIVING answered, 10
"You are sorry for the Gourd that you did not cultivate, nor caused to grow. It was the product of a night, and perished in a night;—

"Therefore, should not I have pity 11 for Ninevah,—that Great City, which has in it more than ten times twelve thousand of mankind who do not know their right hand from their left, besides multitudes of animals?"

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET JONAH.

MIKAH.

The Prophetic Office of Mikah was from about 750 to 710 B.C.

1 THE Message of the EVER-LIVING that came to Mikah, the Morasthite, in the times of Jotham, Ahaz, and Ezekiah, Kings of Judah. He saw this about Shomeron and Jerusalem.

The Appeal to the Nations to Repent.

Come listen all Peoples !
Let Earth and her products attend. 2

The MIGHTY LORD comes against you,
The LORD starts from His Holy Abode !
For look ! The LORD comes from His Home,
Descends, and proceeds on the heights of the earth ! 3
And beneath Him the hills are dissolved, 4
And the plains are like wax before fire,
As water poured down from a steep !

All this is for Jacob's revolt,
And Israel's house that has sinned. 5
" What is Jacob's sin ? " Shomeron.—
" And what Judah's revolt ? " Jerusalem !
So I make Shomeron a field full of ruins ; 6
And weeds will spread over her farm,
And uncover the stones laid beneath !
And her Idols shall all be destroyed, 7
And her whoredoms be burnt in the fire,
And her Statues be flung out to rot ;—
For by them she gained prostitute's hire,
So in hiring whores they will go !

Yet for this I will mourn and lament, 8
I will wander all naked and stripped,
I will mournfully wail like the Jackals,
And moan like the Daughters of Woe,
For her sores that can never be cured, 9
But have gone, and gave Judah disease !
O ! My People, at Jerusalem's Gates,
Tell not of your sorrow to Gath, 10
Weep not in the House of the Dust,
Nor say I have rolled on the ground.

Pass on, painpered Lady, alone, 11
Stripped bare, and exposed to your shame !—
Your crowd of Companions come not
To the sorrowful house of restraint.
From you they have taken the home !
Why looks the Lady of Sorrows for joy ?— 12
When sorrow comes down from the LORD,
To Jerusalem's Gates ?

- 13 Yoke the swift steeds to the chariot,
O! lady residing in Lakhish!—
You caused the first loss to Bath-Zion,
For in you were found Israel's sins.
- 14 Send divorce to the ladies of Gath,—
Those fair girls deceived Israel's Kings!
- 15 But yet I will bring you a Master, Proud Lady, to govern you right.—
- 16 Shave, and shear, for the children you loved!
Like the bald eagle, make yourself bald,
For from you they are carried away!¹

A Denunciation of Swindlers.

- 2 Woe to the planners of mischief!
Who work out their sin from their beds,
And effect it when daylight appears,
Because they have power in their hand!
- 2 Who covet for fields,—and then steal!
And houses and seize them by force;
Who plunder a man and his house,
And defraud a man of his estate!
- 3 "Therefore," thus says the LORD,
"I plan for this family grief,
From which you cannot keep your necks,
Nor march along haughtily by!—
For now is the period for grief.
- 4 "Then a verse will be raised on yourselves,
With a wailing and piteous sigh;—
'We are spoiled,' they will say, 'we are spoiled—
The lot of our People is changed;—
Why has He departed from us?
And torn us away from our fields?'
- 5 So for you there is none casts the line,
To decide for the troop of the LORD."

THE CROWD.

- 6 "Stop drivelling, you driveller, spout not.
Cease to drivel to us of these things;—
Can you never abandon reproofs?"

THE PROPHET.

- 7 Is it said in the Household of Jacob,
That the LORD'S Spirit has been restrained?
Are not these things produced by Himself?
But would not my words do you good,
If you followed them right as you ought?
- 8 But my people now rise to assail,
They strip off the cloak with the coat,
Turn to fight with the peaceable walker;
- 9 Cast my people's wives from their sweet homes;
And dishonour their children for ever!
- 10 Arise and be gone! For this is not your Home!
For defilement corrupts, and corrupting destroys!
- 11 If a man in the spirit of falsehood and lies Comes and patters to you of your wine and debauch,
For this People, he is the right Preacher!

¹ NOTE.—Ch. I, verses 10 to 16. My version reads many supposed names of cities of the old translators, as noun-adjectives poetically describing the sorrows of Israel under the title of the "Lady of Sorrows"— "Zethbeth Marosh."—F. F.

Restoration promised.

I will gather the whole of you, Jacob!— 12
 Will join Israel's fragments in one,—
 Will collect as the sheep are in Bozrah,
 As a flock in its fold make the murmur of men! 13
 The Opener shall go up before them,
 Unloose, and they pass thro' the Gate,
 They shall pass with their Leader before them:
 And the LORD at their head!

The Practices of Willains denounced.

I cry, Listen, now, Chiefs of Jacob!— 3
 And you, rulers of Israel's House,—
 Why have you no knowledge or judgment?—
 Hating the Good, but in love with the Bad, 2
 You tear their skin from them, and flesh from their bones!
 You devour the flesh of my People!—
 Stripping their skin, and then crushing their bones;— 3
 And chop up as they do for the pot;
 And like flesh to be mixed in a stew!
 When such cry to the LORD, He will never reply,— 4
 But then bide His presence from them,
 When their wickedness comes on themselves.

The Doom of Impositors.

Thus says the LORD to the Preachers, 5
 Who swindle my People by gnashing their teeth,
 And cry "Peace!"—
 And make ready to fight those who fill not their mouths!
 But you shall have night, and be sightless,— 6
 Have darkness,—but never divine!
 And the sun shall go down on such Prophets,
 And blackness spread over their day!
 And the Seers be ashamed; 7
 The Diviners shall blush;
 And all of them cover their lips;—
 For they have no message from GOD.
 But I am full of the spirit and power of the LORD, 8
 And judgment and strength to tell Jacob his sin,
 And to Israel tell of his crimes!
 Chiefs of Jacob's House! listen to this; 9
 And the Guides who hate Justice, in Israel's Home,—
 The oppressors of all who do right!
 Who build Zion with blood, and Jerusalem vice,
 Whose Judges decree for a bribe! 10
 Whose Priests only teach for their pay!
 Whose Prophets for money divine!
 Yet who lean on Jehovah, and say,— 11
 "The LORD! is He not in our midst?—
 No suffering can come upon us!"
 Yet Zion, for you, will be ploughed like a field! 12
 And Jerusalem turned like the clods,
 And the Hill of THIS HOUSE be knoll in a wood!

In spite of its Apostasy, the Church of God is promised Change of Mind and Restoration.

- 4 But it shall be, at the End of the Times,
This Hill of the House of the LORD
Shall be fixed as the Chief of the Hills,
And higher shall be than the heights.
And to it all Peoples shall flow !
- 2 Many Nations advance and exclaim,
" Let us go to the Hill of the LORD,
To the Temple where Jacob's GOD dwells,
And learn of His way, and pursue"—
For from Zion the law shall proceed,
And the LORD from Jerusalem speak,
- 3 And govern among many Peoples,
And decree to Fierce Nations afar,
To beat out their swords into ploughshares,
And their spears into scythes,
Nor Nation raise sword against Nation,
Nor ever more learn to make war !
- 4 Then each shall rest under his vine,
And under his fig without fear,—
As the mouth of the LORD has decreed.
- 5 For then all the Peoples will walk,
Each one in the power of its GOD ;
And we also shall walk in the power of the LORD,
For ever and ever with our GOD !

The Divine Government Promised.

- 6 " At that time," says the Lord, " I will gather the maimed,
And cherish the mourner I grieved,
And make the disabled a Princedom,
And the banished a powerful Nation !
And the LORD reign with them on Mount Zion,
From then, and for ever and ever !
- 8 And you, Tower of the Flock,—
You fair Maiden of Zion !—
Produce your adornments, and come forth the Queen,
The Princess of Kingdoms, Jerusalem's daughter !
- 9 Then wherefore so bitterly wail ?
Have you no king ? Has your counsellor failed ?
That you writhe as in child-bearing pain ?
Rush and writhe, Zion's daughter, in child-bearing woes,
10 You must now leave the City and dwell in the field,
And go onward to Babel—until I release,—
Where the LORD will redeem from the hand of your foe !
11 Though now many Nations assembled, assail,
Who shout, " Ravish !—And let our eyes see it in Zion !"—
- 12 But they know not the plans of the LORD,
And cannot perceive His intents
Till He heaps them like sheaves in a barn !—
- 13 Arise, Daughter of Zion ! and thrash !
For I make your horn iron,
And I make your hoof steel,—
To break many Peoples to pieces,
And their splinters give up to the LORD,
And their dust to the Prince of the Earth !
- 14 Now you can rob me,—
You child of a robber !—
When besieging around me,—
You can strike Israel's Prince with a rod on the cheek !

The Prince from Bethlem.

But you, pretty Bethlem, tho' small in the thousands of Judah,	5
From you comes to Me the Great Ruler of Israel!—
Who brought you, long ago, in old times from the East;
So He fixes the time for the birth of her child,	2
And He will restore with the Children of Israel
The rest of His brothers!
He shall stand and control in the strength of the LORD,	3
In the power of the Name of JEHOVAH his GOD,
And they rest, when tired, at the bounds of the earth.
He will bring us deliverance from Ashur,	4
And will come to our land, and will walk on our Hills,
And appoint Seven Shepherds above us,
And eight who will Organize Men,
And break with the sword Ashur's land,	5
And the gates of the land of Nimrod;—
And will rescue from Ashur those brought from our country,
And whom he took out from our bounds.
But the fragments of Jacob shall be in Great Nations,	6
Like dew from the LORD, and like rain on the grass,
Not contrived by man's mind.
Thus the fragments of Jacob shall be to the Heathen,—	7
In the midst of Great Peoples,—
A lion with cows in a forest,—
A Tiger to sheepfolds,—
Who passes to ravage and tear,
And without an escape!
Raise your hands on your tyrants,	8
And strike at your foes!
" But at that time," says the LORD,	9
" I will cut off your chariot drivers,	10
And cut off the town of your land,
And throw down your fortifications,
And cut witchcrafts off from your hands,	11
And you shall have no more diviners;—
And cut from you Statues and Idols,	12
And you shall no more serve the work of your hands:
But abolish your shrines from your midst,—	13
When I have destroyed your assailants;	14
And execute Justice in anger and wrath
On the Heathen who never would hear!"

The Plea of the Lord.

Hear, now, what the LORD has commanded:	6
" Arise! plead to the Mountains,
Let the hills hear your voice!"
Hear! Mountains, the plea of the LORD!	2
And you firm foundations of earth,
For JEHOVAH will plead with His people,—
And with Israel He will discuss!
" My People! What did I do to you?	3
How wearied you? Answer to Me!
For I brought you from Mitzer's land out,—	4
From that House of Bondage I freed!
And Moses I sent as your Leader,
With Aaron and Miriam with him.—
My People remember the question	5

Of Balak, the Moabite King,
And how Balam-ben-Baor answered,
At the Wood of Acacias and Gilgal,—
And thus learn how good the LORD is.

BALAK.

- 6 " With what shall I come to the LORD ?
How bow before GOD the MOST HIGH ?
Shall I approach Him with burnt-offerings ?
With calves, and the sons of a year ?
7 Please the Lord with a thousand of rams ?
With ten thousand of rivers of oil ?
Or give my First-born for my fault ?
The fruit of myself for the sin of my soul ?

BALAM.

- 8 " He has shown you, frail man, what is right ;—
And what does the LORD seek from you ?—
To administer Justice aright,
Love mercy, walk humbly with GOD ! "

A Warning to the Wicked.

- 9 In the City the Lord's voice is heard ;
And Wisdom will reverence His power,¹
And obey Him Who fixes the rule,
10 " Are the treasures of sin in the house of the bad ?
And is the short measure still there ?—
11 Will I pardon the falsified scale ?
On the bag full of weights that deceive ?—
12 When the rich are stuffed full of oppression,
And her populace speakers of lies,
Who deceive with their tongue and their mouth ?
13 " So I have inflicted disease,
And will waste you because of your sins !
14 You shall eat, but shall never be fed,
But feel emptiness still in your breast !
You shall fly but shall never escape ;—
What escapes I will give to the sword !
15 You shall sow, but you never shall reap,—
Dress the olive, but not use its oil,
And grapes, but not drink of the wine !
16 " For you keep to the Statutes of Gomri,
And all practices Ahab's House did,
And walk by the plans they contrived.—
I therefore will make you a ruin,
And your populace bring to contempt,
And you bear My people's reproach ! "

Mikah Belails his Solitude in the Midst of the Wicked.

- 7 Woe to me ! for the harvest is done,
The vintage all gone, there are no grapes to eat !
Nor ripe fig,—the desire of my life !
2 The gentle have wasted from earth !
And the upright has ceased among men !

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 6, v. 9. " His power." The Hebrew idiom is " Your (or thy) Name," but I render the phrase into our own English equivalent, " power," as in some other places I also do.—F. F.

And they are all plotting to murder,—
 Each hunts for his friend with a net !
 Both hands are stretched out after crime,— 3
 The Prince and the Judge ask a bribe ;—
 And the great tells the wish of his life,—
 And thus are they woven together !—
 The best is a thorn and the straightest a briar ! 4

Look out for the day when your punishment comes,—
 Even now you are deeply perplexed !
 Trust not to a Friend ! Rely not on a guide ! 5
 From the wife of your breast shut the doors of your mouth ;
 For the son will dishonour his father, 6
 From her mother the daughter rebels,
 And the bride from her mother-in-law,
 And the foes of a man are the men of his house !

For myself I will watch for the LORD,— 7
 I will wait for my Salvation's GOD,—
 For my GOD will still listen to me.
 So let not my foeman rejoice, 8
 For if I fall down I shall rise,
 For my darkness the LORD turns to light.

I will fear the correction of GOD, 9
 Because I have sinned against Him,
 Until He examines my plea,
 And does justice and brings me the light,—
 I will await, till I feel He acquits,—
 My opponents will see, and be covered with shame,— 10
 'Those who taunt me with, " Where is JEHOVAH, your GOD ? "

The Restoration of Israel Promised.

I see her now as she is,—
 Trodden down like the dirt of the streets !
 But a day comes to rebuild your walls,— 11
 On the day the decree is revoked !
 To you they will come on that day, 12
 From the district of Ashur and cities of Mitzer ;—
 From the Border of Mitzer as far as the River :¹
 And from Sea to the Sea, and from Mountain to Hill !—
 Though the land has been wasted of people, 13
 The result of their crimes !

The Prophet's Prayer and the Lord's Reply.

THE PROPHET.

" Guide Your race by Your staff, the flock You possess, 14
 Who lie lost in the forest of Carmel,
 Who in olden times pastured in Gilad and Bashan ! "

THE LORD.

" I will show to you wonderful things, 15
 As when I brought from the country of Mitzer !—
 The Heathen shall see them and blush ! 16
 All their Heroes lay hand on their mouth !—
 And their ears shall be strained.
 They shall lick up the dust like a snake ! 17
 Like earth worms crawl out from their holes,
 In dread of the LIVING, your GOD,—
 And in terror of You ! "

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 7. v. 12. " The River "—the Euphrates.

THE PROPHET.

- 18 What GOD would forgive sin like You?
Pardon faults that have broke His estate,
Not retaining His anger for ever;—
For He feels it delight to be kind!
- 19 He returns and has mercy on us,
Who will our frailties subdue,
And cast all our faults to the depths of the sea
- 20 Giving truly to Jacob the promise to Abraham,
As He swore to our fathers, in days long ago!

NAHUM.

The Period of Nahum was about 713 B.C.

T HE burden of Ninevah. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite.	1
A jealous GOD! avenging LORD! The ruling LORD of avenging wrath, A LORD who visits His opponents, And keeps watch over all His foes! A patient LORD of mighty power, Who will not strike those struck before.	2 3
The LORD rides on the whirling storm,— Clouds are the dust about His feet! When He reproves the sea it dries, And all the rivers waste away; Then Bashan and Karmel languish, And the flowers of Lebanon faint!	4
The Mountains shake before Him, And the Highlands are dissolved; The Earth stands up in His Presence, With the World and all it contains! Who can stand before His anger? Who endure in His burning wrath? His fury pours like a fire, And before it the rocks are split!	5 6
The Good LORD helps in the day of distress, And knows those who trust in Him But makes a sweeping destruction, And rolls His powerful foes to gloom.	7 8
Why plot you against JEHOVAH? He will so completely destroy, That Oppressors will rise not again,— Though like thorns they are plaited together, And like drunkards confused in their drink, He devours you like the dry straw, Who against the LORD brought out a scheme,— The vile thought of unbridled Crime!	9 10 11
For thus has JEHOVAH decided; "Tho' they are powerful and many, Yet they shall be shorn and shall pass; Having punished, I no more afflict, But I now break his yoke from your neck, And loose you away from your bonds." For the LORD will command about you, Not to scatter the race of your name; From the House of your GOD cast your Idols, And cover your fault like a shameful grave.	12 13 14

The News of Peace.

- 2 See! on the Mountains the feet of the herald,—
Who publishes Peace!
Feast, Judah! feast! Pay your vows,
For no more shall the lawless pass through you!
For all are destroyed!
- 2 The Breaker is gone from your face!
Guard the Fortress and watch on the road,
Strengthen your loins, and brace up your strength.
- 3 For the LORD has restored Jacob's pride,
And Israel's splendour!
Though the ravagers threw down and cut up their vines!
- 4 The shields of his heroes are red,
His Mighty Commanders in scarlet,
His chariots flash fire in the day of review,
And they brandish their spears!
- 5 The chariots rush on in the streets,
They charge in the Squares like the flames,
And like lightning they leap.
- 6 He calls to his Generals who halt in their march.
"Haste on to the wall and prepare for defence;"—
- 7 But the River Gate bursts and the Fortress dissolves!
- 8 Thus her course was decreed to arrive;
When her maidens should mourn with the voice of a dove,
And go beating their breasts.
- 9 For long Ninevah was a calm pool;—
Yet they fly!—"Stand! Stand!" but yet none will turn back!
- 10 Plunder silver! rob gold!
For her store never ends,
Of the wealth of all things one desires!
- 11 Make her empty, abandoned, and waste;—
Her heart melts, and her knees strike together;
For anguish takes hold of all loins,
And the faces of all become pale!
- 12 Where is the Den of their Lions?
And the feeding ground of their young Tigers?
Where the lion and lioness walked,
And the Lion's whelp went without fear?
Where the lion tore limbs for his cubs,
And enough for his she-lions slew,
And filled all his caverns with prey,
And with plunder his Dens?
- 13 "I will oppose," says JEHOVAH OF HOSTS
"And will burn up your chariots in smoke;
And the Sword shall devour your tigers,
And cut off your prey from the earth,
Who no more hears the voice of your hounds!"

Ninevah's Crimes Described.

- 3 Woe to the whole City of Murders!
Full of rapine and lies,
And that never would ease from her prey,
Or the noise of the whip and the roaring of wheels,
The prancing of horses, the chariots' rush,
And the cavalry's charge

With the bright sword and the glittering spear!
 And many were slain, and the dead were piled up,
 So that there was no end to the slain.
 They stumble and fall on the dead!—
 Because of her whorings,—The beautiful harlot!— 4
 The fair lady of witchcrafts,—
 Who traded in Nations by whoredom,
 And Tribes by her charms!—

"See! now," says THE GREAT LORD OF HOSTS, 5
 "I will turn up your skirts to your face,
 At the Nations shall look on your shame,
 Kingdoms see your disgrace!—
 I will fling on you filth the most vile, 6
 And will take you about as a show!
 All who see you shall fly and exclaim,— 7
 'Now is Ninevah ruined; '—
 But who will be grieved?—
 None will try to be mourning for you."

Were you fairer than was Amon's Na? 8
 Who dwelt by the Brooks,
 With the river around?
 Whose wealth was the River,—
 Her rampart the Streams?

Kush and Egypt endowed her with wealth, 9
 Phut and the Lubim became her allies;—
 Yet she was transported, and went as a slave, 10
 And her children were dashed at the top of her streets!
 And her Nobles were played for with dice,
 And her Princes were shackled in chains!
 Go! hide yourself! you shall be mad,— 11
 You also seek caves from your foes!
 All your Forts are as fig trees full ripe, 12
 If shaken, they fall to devouring mouths!

The Men in your midst shall be women! 13
 Your Gates are set wide for your foes!
 With fire the bars of your land are consumed!—
 But draw water! Prepare for the siege, 14
 To strengthen the ramparts bring clay,—
 Seize clay, and press in the brick kiln!
 Yet fire shall devour,—the sword will cut off,— 15
 It shall eat you like grubs,
 It will load you like grubs, it will load you like locusts!

Your merchants were more than the stars of the sky;— 16
 But like cankerworms spread out—and fly!—
 Your Commanders are locusts,—your Generals are flies, 17
 Who in cold days will encamp by a hedge,—
 But who fly on the outbreak of sun,
 And the spot never knows them again!
 King of Ashur! Your Princes have slept! 18
 Your People have fled to the Hills,
 And with none to collect!
 There cannot be cure for your wound! 19
 For your terrible gash!
 All who hear the report will clap hands over you,—
 For to whom passed you not, with perpetual wrongs?

HABAKUK.

Habakuk's Ministry was about 626 B.C.

- 1 THE burden that Habakuk, the Preacher, saw,
- His Appeal to God.
- 2 How long, LORD, shall I shout,—
And You not attend to my cry?
To You I shriek out when oppressed
But You listen not!
- 3 Why do I see passion and sin?
With bribery and wrong in my presence —
And contention, and strife rising up?
- 4 For the law is relaxed, and the right never wins,
But the wicked encircle the good,
So the criminal gains the decree!
- 5 Nations! look and reflect, and observe
For a work I will do in your days,
You will not believe it if told!
- 6 I will raise up the Kasdim, a nation ferocious
Who will march from a country afar,
To seize dwellings that are not their own
- 7 And with them are Terror and Fear,
They make law and rules for themselves;
8 Their horses are swifter than leopards,
And fiercer than ravening wolves!
Their proud cavalry rich from afar,—
They come,—they fly on like an Eagle
That rushes along to devour!
- 9 All of them came on for plunder!—
Greedy faced as the wind of the east,
10 And they gather up slaves like the sand!
They scoff at the Kings, laugh at Princes,
And they jeer at all fortifications,
For they take them by heaping up dust!
11 As the tempest sweeps by, and it passes.
He attributes his power to his God!"
- 12 But are YOU not LORD from of old?—
My HOLY GOD! we shall not die,—
You appointed him LORD by Decree,
And, My Rock, You empowered him to punish!
- 13 Your pure eyes never sanction the wrong,
And oppression You will not endure,—
Then why do You look on the traitors,—
And are dumb when the bad rob the good?
14 And make men like the fish of the sea,

And like reptiles with no one to rule ?
 He pulls them all out with his hook, 15
 Sweeps his net or collects in his drag,—
 He therefore can laugh and rejoice,
 So worships his net, burns sweets to his drag, 16
 For he prospers by them on good food.
 Should he not therefore spread out his net, 17
 And continually Nations destroy ?

The Prophet Watches.

I stationed myself on my watch, 2
 And I stood on the tower and looked,
 To see what He might say to me,
 And what would return to my prayer.
 And the LORD gave an answer and said, 2
 " Write the vision quite plain on a board,
 So that to it the reader may run,
 For quickly the vision will come,
 And pants to its aim, nor deceives;
 If it lingers, yet wait, for it comes,
 It advances—it will not delay !

" Look ! Inflated his soul is not true ; 4
 Though the righteous should live by his faith,
 And as treacherous wine elates man, 5
 And lets him not rest in content,
 But stretches his greed like the Grave,
 And like death he can never be filled,
 And collects to himself all the nations,
 And heaps up all peoples to him ;
 Will not they all make a satires on him ? 6
 And enigmas to turn to contempt,
 And say, ' Woe to him, who is great upon loans !—
 How long can he carry his debts ? '—
 Will they not suddenly rise for their interest ? 7
 And awake with their terrors for you ?
 And you will become like their prey ? 8
 Because you have spoiled many nations,
 All the remnants of Peoples shall spoil ;—
 For the murder of man and oppressing the land,
 And the City, and all who dwell there !

" Woe ! He brought wicked gains to his house ; 9
 To build up his nest on the height !
 But can he escape Sorrow's hand ?—
 You prepare only shame for your House, 10
 Cutting off many Peoples, with loss to your soul ;
 For the stone from the wall has cried out,
 And the beam of the timbers replied ;—
 ' Woe ! He has built up his City by blood, 12
 And constructed its bulwarks by crime ! ' "

It is not from the LORD of Sabaoth,
 That the Peoples are worn by the fire,
 And the Nations exhausted in smoke,—
 But so that the earth may be filled 14
 With the knowledge and glory of GOD,
 As the waters spread over the Sea !

Denunciation of Templers.

Woe ! to you who give drink to your friends ! 15
 You who pour out your poison to them,

16 With the purpose that when they are drunk,
 Then you may look down on their shame!
 You gorge on disgrace more than honour!—
 Drink also yourself, and discover your shame,
 The LORD's right hand cup will come also to you.—
 And bring deep disgrace on your glory,—
 17 Then Lebanon's horror will clothe,
 And the fear of its beasts will affright,
 For men murdered, and wrongs to the land,
 To the City, and all who dwelt there.

A Denunciation of Idols.

18 How profits the Idol you made?
 The cast Form, with its teaching a lie?
 That the maker trusts what he has formed.—
 The dumb Idol he shapes for himself?
 19 Why! he says to the timber, "Awake!"
 "Arise" to the dumb block of stone!
 Can silver and gold lacquer teach,
 When no Spirit exists in its breast?
 20 But the LORD is in His HOLY HOME;
 Let the earth in His presence be still!

A Psalm of Habakuk in his Sorrows.

2 LORD, I have heard of your fame—and I fear;—
 Revive LORD your work in the midst of the years,
 In the midst of the years You revealed,—
 And in anger Your mercy remember.

A Psalm on the Power of God.

3 The LORD advanced from Theman,
 And the HOLY from Mount Paran;
 His glory clothed the Skies,
 And his grandeur filled the Earth,
 4 And bright rays of light were the darts in His hand;
 And in them was hidden His might!
 5 Command before Him marched,
 And flame beneath His feet.
 6 He stood, and He spanned the earth,
 He looked,—and the Nations rose;
 And the lofty Peaks were shattered,
 And the ancient Hills laid low!
 His Paths are everlasting,
 Eternal paths are His!
 7 I saw Kushan's tents in sorrow,—
 Midian's land in terror shook!—
 8 LORD, with Rivers were You angry?
 Was Your fury against the Streams?
 Were You wroth against the Sea?
 That Your horsemen rode on it?
 With Your Chariots of Salvation,
 9 And Your bow exposed to the light?
 At Your promise made the Tribesmen,
 The rivers burst from earth!
 10 The Mountains saw and quivered,
 The raging Sea ran back,
 The Deep raised up its voice;
 The Height raised up its hand.

Sun and Moon stood still in their circuit, As Your arrows flew like the light, And Your spear with lightning flash !	11
You marched through the land in fury, The Heathen thrashed in rage !	12
You came to save Your People ; With Your Messiah to win ;—	13
Crushed the Chief of the House of Rebellion, Trode on the base of his neck !—	14
Stabbed with their darts his squadrons, Who to scatter rushed like a storm, Who loved to devour the poor in secret !
Your horsemen marched on the Sea, On the foaming watery waves !	16
I heard and my bowels shivered, My lips were convulsed at the sound ! And weakness subdued my vigour, And disturbance succeeded rest ! At the day the Tyrant advanced To assail our Race with troops !	16
Yet, though the Fig-tree bloom not,— And the Vine give no increase,— Though the Olives' product ceases,— And the Fields produce no food,— And the flock be cut off from the fold,— And no bullock is seen in the stall,— Yet I will rejoice in Jehovah, Rejoice in my Saviour, GOD !	17
The MIGHTY LORD will support me, And make my feet like a stag's, And I will march on the Mountains.	18

ZEPHANIAH.

Zephaniah's Office as Prophet was about 630 B.C.

1 THE Message from the EVER-LIVING that came to Zephaniah - ben - Kushi, — Ben - Gedaliah, | Ben-Amariah, Ben-Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah-ben-Amon, King of Judah.

The Message of the Ever-living.

2 "I will reap! I will reap all the fat of the land "
Says the LORD,
3 "I will reap both the Man and the Beast.
I will reap all the birds of the skies and the fish of the sea,
With the vice of the vile!
And men will cut off from the face of the ground,"
Says the LORD;
4 "And stretch out My hand against Judah,
At Jerusalem and all her people!
And cut off from his high place the Master of Bal,
And the fame of his Nobles and Priests,
5 Who bow on the roofs to the Host of the skies,
And who worship, and mix with the LORD'S,
And all who swear by Milkom!
6 And those who revolt from the LORD,—
Who seek not the LORD, nor desire Him!"

7 Be still before the Great LORD,
For the day of the LORD is at hand;
The LORD has arranged for His feast—
And has chosen His guests.

8 In the day of the feast of the LORD,
I will punish the Princes the Sons of the King,
And all wearing foreign attire!
9 And punish all leaping the threshold,—
Who fill their LORD'S House with oppression and wrong!

10 "And then," says the LORD, "a | the men settled on their dregs, who sound of shrieking will come from | say in their hearts, 'The LORD can the Fish-gate, and a howling, and | do neither benefit nor hurt.' But a great crash from the highlands. | their wealth will be plundered, and 11 Howl, people of Maktesh! because | their houses desolated! When they all the Merchants are destroyed! All | build houses they shall not inhabit who earn money are cut off! | them. or plant vineyards, they shall 12 "And at that time I will search | not drink the wine!"

The Day when God Punishes.

14 The great day of the LORD approaches,
Approaches and comes on quick!
The sound of the Day of the LORD!—
When the heroes will bitterly cry;

A furious day is that day, 15
 A day of distress and of grief,
 A day of wide wasting and ruin,
 A day of deep darkness and black,—
 A day of thick clouds and of gloom,
 A day of the trumpet and drum 16
 In the cities and fortified towns,
 And in all the towers of the hills,—
 When I bring destruction on men, 17
 And they walk like the blind,
 Because they offended the LORD,
 And shed blood, and spread corpses like dung!

Nor their silver or gold can redeem, 18
 In the day of the wrath of the LORD,
 When His burning anger devours the ground,
 When He wakes to a terrible end
 Of all who inhabit the land!

An Appeal to Repentance.

Assemble yourselves!—Oh! assemble! 2
 You nation, who are without shame!
 Before the Decree is proclaimed,— 2
 Before the Day passes like chaff!—
 Before comes on you the LORD'S anger,
 Before comes on you the LORD'S day,—
 Let all the Good men of the country 3
 Who have practised the right, seek the LORD.
 Seek you Righteousness,—seek you for Mercy—
 Perhaps they may turn in that day the LORD'S wrath;
 For Gaza will then be forsaken, 4
 And Ashkalon ruined and waste,
 Ashdod be plundered at noonday,
 And Akron uprooted!
 Woe you who dwell on the banks of the Sea, 5
 The Tribe of the Krithim!
 The LORD'S Message comes against you.

Philistia's mercantile land!—
 I will waste you and your people,
 And the Sea-coasts shall come to be pastures,— 6
 Huts for shepherds, and foldings for sheep!
 And that coast will be broken to fragments; 7
 And Judah's house pasture on them;—
 Couch in Ashkalon's houses at evening
 For there the LORD GOD will collect,
 And bring their captivity home!

A Denunciation of Moab and Edom.

8 "I have heard of the insults of Moab and the jeers of the Beni-Amon;—How they insulted My People, and have jeered at their bounds!
 9 "And, therefore, by My life," says
 the LORD OF HOSTS, the GOD of Israel,— "Moab shall become like Sodom, and the Beni-Amon like Gomorah,—the possession of nettles, and salt-pits, and a desolation for ever.—The fragments of My People shall plunder them, and the remnant of the Nation inherit them. This is 10 for them,—because of their pride;

 because they insulted and cursed against the People of the LORD OF HOSTS.—The LORD will be venerated 11 by them,—for all the GODS of the earth will waste away and they will worship Him, every one from his home, in all the Isles of the Heathen.
 "You Kushim, also, will be assailed 12

- 13 by the sword yourselves, and He will extend His hand against the North and enfeeble Ashur, and make Ninivah a desolation,—waterless like the Desert!
- 14 "And herds shall lie down in the midst of it, animals of every kind. The Pelican and Hedgehog shall lodge in her porticos; their voice will sing in her windows. Desolation shall sit on her threshold,—when her wainscot is stripped!

The Lament of the Beasts over Edom.

- 15 This was the City of Delight!
The dweller in ease!
Who said in her heart, "I Am,
And there is none like me!"
How has she become a desolate couch for beasts?
Every by-passer sighs, and shakes his hand!

Woe to Jerusalem.

- 3 Woe! to the rebellious, polluted,
2 oppressing City! Who would not listen to the voice, nor accept correction from the EVER-LIVING! nor trust on her GOD, nor approach!
- 3 The Princes in her, are roaring lions,—her Judges wolves,—do they not gnaw from evening to morning? Her Preachers are profligate, treacherous men!—Her Priests profane the sanctuary and pervert the Law!
- 5 The LORD of Righteousness in the midst of her does not do wrong;—He brings His Justice to light, morning by morning;—but the corrupt knew neither disgrace nor shame.
- 6 "I cut off Nations.—They were desolated. I burnt up their towers. Their streets were without passengers. Their Cities were destroyed, destitute of men,—without inhabitants.
- 7 "For I reflected, 'Surely you will fear Me;—you will accept correction; so that you may not have executed within you all I shall inflict upon you.' However they rose early and corrupted all their ways.
- 8 "Therefore look out for Me," says the EVER-LIVING, "on the day I assail,—on the day when I execute Justice! When I collect the Tribes, and assemble from the Kingdoms, to pour on them My indignation,—all My burning anger,—when the fire of My wrath will consume all the country!

"Then, afterwards, I will convert 9 the Nations to a pure lip;—for all of them to call upon the name of the EVER-LIVING, to serve Him with united shoulder. From beyond the 10 Rivers of Kush, the rich Daughter of the DISPERSION shall bring Me tribute.

"At that time will you not be 11 ashamed of all your rebellious ways against Me? For I will then expel your presumptuous pride from your breast, and you will not swell with grandeur again on My Holy Hill. For I will select in your breast a 12 gentle and meek People, who shall trust in the Name of the EVER-LIVING. The remainder of Israel will not 13 practise evil nor speak lies, nor shall a deceptive tongue be found in their mouth,—but they shall feed, and lie down, and have no terror."

Zion's Song of Victory.

- 14 "Shout, Daughter of Zion,
Israel cheer with delight;
Exult with full heart, Jerusalem's Daughter!
- 15 The LORD has revoked your conviction,
And turned back your foes!
The LORD, Israel's King, is within you!
Fear no misery again!
- 16 "Then say to Jerusalem, 'Fear not,'
To Zion, 'Relax not your hand!'
The LORD your GOD is within you,
The mighty to save,—
He joys over you with delight!
Gentle in love He delights you with song.

" Once I expelled you ;—I now will restore,—	18
They laid it on her as reproach,—
But be sure I will deal at this time	19
With all who laid insult on you I
The lame I will help,
And recover the strayed,
And make the despised rule the earth,
In Glory and Fame !—
" At that time I will lead,	20
At that period collect,
When I make you a Fame and a Glory,
Among all the Peoples of earth,—
When I have removed your enslavement,
In their sight," says the LORD!

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET ZEPHANIAH.

HAGAI.

The period of Hagai's Prophetic Ministry was about 520 B.C.

- 1 IN the second year of King Darius in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the Command of the EVER-LIVING came by the medium of Hagai the Preacher to Zerubabel-ben-Shalathiel, Governor of Judah, and to Joshua-ben-Jhozadak, the High Priest, to say;—
- 2 "Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS! This people say, 'It is not the time to go to the House of the EVER-LIVING to rebuild it!'"
- 3 The command of the EVER-LIVING, however, came by means of Hagai the Preacher to say;—
- 4 "Is it a time for you to rest in your wainscoted houses,—when this
- 5 HOUSE is in ashes? So now," thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, "fix your
- 6 hearts on your proceedings. You sow much, but it produces little. You eat and are not satisfied. You drink, but are not quenched. You clothe, but are not warm. And the workman earns for a purse with holes!"
- 7 Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS. "Fix your hearts on your proceedings!
- 8 Go up to the hill and bring timber and build the HOUSE, and I shall be pleased and honoured by it," says the EVER-LIVING.
- 9 "You went for much, and found little; you brought that home, but I blew it away!—Why?"—the LORD OF HOSTS asks, "Why?—Because My House is a heap of ashes, while you all run to your own homes!
- 10 Therefore the skies withhold dew from you, and the earth withholds her produce. So I proclaimed a drought upon the land, and upon the hills, and on the corn, and on the wine, and on the oil, and on whatever grows from the ground, and upon man, and upon beast, and on the works of your hands."
- 12 Then Zerubabel-ben-Shalathiel and Joshua-ben-Jhozadak the High

Priest, and all the fragments of the People, consequently listened to the voice of their EVER-LIVING GOD, and to the address of Hagai the Preacher, which their EVER-LIVING GOD had sent to him. And the People paid reverence to the EVER-LIVING.

Then Hagai the Messenger of the 13 EVER-LIVING spoke about the Messages of the EVER-LIVING to the People, and said,—"The LIFE says I am with you."

The EVER-LIVING also roused the 14 spirit of Zerubabel-ben-Shalathiel, the Governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua-ben-Jhozadak, the High Priest, and the spirit of all the fragments of the People, and they went and did work at the HOUSE of the LORD OF HOSTS, their GOD, on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of the King Darius.

On the seventeenth, of the first 2 month the command of the EVER-LIVING came by means of Hagai the Preacher, to say;—

"Speak now to Zerubabel-ben- 2 Shalathiel, Governor of Judah, and Joshua-ben-Jhozadak the High Priest, and the fragments of the People, and ask;—

"Who remains amongst you who 3 saw this house in its former splendour?—And how does it look now? Is it not as nothing in your sight?—So 4 now support Zerubabel," says the EVER-LIVING, "and support Joshua-ben-Jhozadak the High Priest, and support all the people of the country," says the EVER-LIVING, "and work, for I am with you," says the LORD OF HOSTS,—"with the promise I made to you on bringing you out from the Mitzeraim. My Spirit also stands 5 amongst you. Fear not!"—For thus 6 says the LORD OF HOSTS;

Song of the Restoration.

- "Once again, in a little while I will shake the Heavens,
And the Earth, and Sea, and the Desert,
And when I shake all the Nations, 7
The Desired of All Nations will come,
And I will fill this House with splendour,"
Declares the LORD OF HOSTS.
- "The silver is Mine, and the Gold is Mine," 8
Declares the LORD OF HOSTS,
- "And the splendour of the House be more, 9
Of this, the last, than was the first!"
Declares the LORD OF HOSTS,
- "And from this Place I will give Peace,"
Declares the LORD OF HOSTS!

A Question of Right and Wrong.

- 10 On the fourteenth, of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the command of the EVER-LIVING came by the means of Hagai the Preacher to say:—
- 11 Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS,
"Ask the Priests about the Law,
12 and say, 'If a man carries consecrated food in the skirts of his robe, and his robe touches, either pottage or wine, or oil, or any kind of provisions,—will they become consecrated?'"
And the Priests answered and said "No!"
- 13 Then Hagai asked, "If a defiled person touches any of those will they become defiled?"
The Priests replied, "They would be defiled."
- 14 Then Hagai answered and exclaimed,
"So is this Nation, and so is this People, before Me," says the EVER-LIVING, "and so is all the work of their hands; and what they present
15 is defiled!—Therefore now reflect in your hearts from this day and forwards;—Before the time when a stone was turned upon a stone to rebuild the House of the Temple of 16 the EVER-LIVING,—When you used to go to a heap for twenty, there were only ten; going to the cellar for fifty drafts, there were only twenty!— 17 Because I struck you with blight, and mildew, and hail, on all the work of your hands,—yet you came not to Me," says the EVER-LIVING.

"Reflect in your hearts,—from this 18 day and forwards—from the twenty-fourth day of the month;—from the day when you laid the foundation of the Temple of the EVER-LIVING;—reflect in your hearts.—The grain is 19 not at present in the granary, or at present the vine, and fig, and pomegranate, and olive trees have not borne;—from this day I will bless you!"

A Message to Zerubabel.

The command of the LORD came a 20 second time to Hagai, on the twenty-fourth of the month to say:—

"Speak to Zerubabel the governor 21 of Judah and say;—'I will shake the 22 Heavens and the Earth, and will overthrow the Throne of Kingdoms, and destroy the strength of the Kingdoms, of the Heathen; and overturn the Charioteer and his chariot, and throw down the horsemen and charioteers every one by the sword of his messmate!'

"In that day," says the LORD OF 23 HOSTS, "I will take Zerubabel-ben-Shalathiel, My servant," the EVER-LIVING declares, "and make you like a seal-ring, for I have chosen you," says the EVER-LIVING.

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET HAGAI.

ZAKARIAH.

The period of Zakariah's Prophetic Office was about 520 to 517 B.C.

A Call to Listen to God.

1 IN the seventh month of the second year of Darius, the Command of the EVER-LIVING came to Zakariah-ben-Barakiah-ben-Ado, the Preacher, to say;—

2 "The EVER-LIVING was angry with your fathers, angry; so say to them. Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, 'Return to me,' says the LORD OF HOSTS, 'and I will return to you,' says the LORD OF HOSTS. Be not like your ancestors, when the former Preachers addressed them, to say,—' Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS turn from your evil paths and bad practices,—for they would not listen, nor would they seek Me," says the EVER-LIVING.

5 "Your fathers,—Where are they? And do the Preachers live for ever?

6 "But, however, My words, and My decrees, and My commands to My servants the Preachers, did they not catch your forefathers, who repented and said, 'As the LORD OF HOSTS decided to do to us, He has done to us, in accordance to our ways and practices.'"

Zakariah in Vision shewn a Red Horse and its Rider amongst the Myrtles.

7 On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, that is the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the command of the EVER-LIVING came to Zakariah-ben-Barakiah-ben-Ado the Preacher;—

8 And I was enlightened in the night, and saw a man mounted on a red horse, who stood amongst the shadow of the Myrtle trees; and red, bay, and white horses followed him. So I asked, "What are these, sir?" When the Messenger who conversed with me replied, "I will show you what these are."—

10 Then the man who was stationed amongst the Myrtles answered and said, "These are those whom the EVER-LIVING sends to patrol the earth."

Then they addressed the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING who was stationed amongst the Myrtles, and said, "We have patrolled the earth and all the earth rests and is still!"

The Messenger of the EVER-LIVING, however, replied and exclaimed, "For how long, LORD, will you not have pity on Jerusalem? and the Cities of Judah, with which you have been angry for these seventy years?"

And the EVER-LIVING responded to the Messenger who spoke with me in kind words, consoling words, when the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING who conversed with me said, "Proclaim and say,

"Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, I am jealous for Jerusalem, and for Zion with a great jealousy; and I am angry with a great anger against the wanton Heathen!—When I was a little angry, they helped themselves to sin!—Therefore," thus says the EVER-LIVING, "I will return to Jerusalem with mercies. My House shall be rebuilt in it," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "and a Hope shall be extended to Jerusalem!"—Proclaim again, and say, "Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS; My City shall again expand with prosperity, and the EVER-LIVING again pity Zion, and choose Jerusalem again!"

The Vision of the Horns and Smiths.

Then I raised my eyes and looked, and saw four horns! So I asked the Messenger who was conversing with me, "What are these?" When he replied to me, "Those are the horns that scattered Judah, and Israel, and Jerusalem."

3 The Noble¹ then showed me four smiths, and I asked, "What have these come to do?" When he replied by saying, "Those horns scattered Judah, so that hardly a man could hold up his head, but these come to terrify them, to depress the horns of the haughty Heathen, who toss up the land of Judah on their horns."

The Man with a Surveyor's Line.

5 I again raised my eyes and looked, and saw a man with a measuring line in his hand, so I asked, "Where are you going to?"
6 When he replied to me, "To measure Jerusalem, to ascertain what is its breadth, and what is its length."
7 And then I saw the Messenger who was conversing with me go away, and another Messenger came to 8 speak with him, and said to him; "Ruu and tell this young man, and say, 'Jerusalem shall overflow with population,—with the crowd of men and animals in it, and I will be a wall of fire to it around,' says the EVER-LIVING, 'and as a splendour in her heart.'"

A Call to Israel to Return.

10 "O-ho! O-ho! fly from the land of the North!" says the EVER-LIVING, "for I spread you like the four winds of the skies," says the EVER-LIVING.
11 "A-hoy, Zion, who dwells with the 12 daughter of Babel, escape!"—For thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, "I will send a Sun-set splendour to the Heathen who plundered you;—for whoever injures you, injures the 13 ball of his own eye. For I will shake My hand against them, and they shall be plundered by their slaves, and learn that the LORD OF HOSTS has sent me!
14 "Shout and rejoice, Daughter of Zion!—for I will come and reside in your midst," says the EVER-LIVING, 15 "and many nations will join themselves to the LIFE, at that time, and they shall become My People.—But I will reside amongst you, and you shall know that the LORD OF HOSTS has sent me to you, when the EVER-LIVING possesses Judah as His portion in the Holy Land, and again chooses Jerusalem!"

Let all existence be silent before the LORD, for He is awake on His Holy Hill!

The High Priest and the Messenger.

I afterwards saw Joshua the High Priest standing before the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING; but Satan stood at his right hand to accuse him.—The Noble, however, said to Satan, 2 "The EVER-LIVING reprove you Satan! Yes! the EVER-LIVING Who has chosen Jerusalem, reprove you! Is not he a brand snatched from out the fire?"

Joshua, however, was clothed in 3 filthy clothes as he stood before the Messenger, so he spoke to his attendants present and said; "Strip those filthy clothes off from him." And then said to him, "You perceive I have removed your frailties from you, and clothed you in a splendid robe!"

Then I said, "Let them put a 5 beautiful turban on his head!"

So they put a beautiful turban on his head, and clothed him in robes.

Then the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING stood up:—and the Messenger 6 of the EVER-LIVING addressed Joshua and said;—"Thus says the LORD OF 7 HOSTS—If you walk in My paths and if you guard My trust; then you shall rule My House; and then you shall guard My Court, and I will permit you to walk amongst these officials.—Listen now, Joshua the 8 High Priest, you and your companions, who continue in your presence,—for they are witnessing men,—that I will bring out My SERVANT the BRANCH. Now look at the Stone 9 which I place before Joshua,—on that peculiar Stone there are seven eyes,—I have engraved the engraving," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "and will remove the frailties of the earth at that special time.—At that time," 10 says the LORD OF HOSTS, "men will speak with their friends under the vine, and under the fig tree."

The Messenger then turned to 4 converse with me, and roused me

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 2, v. 3. "Noble." In the Hebrew Jehovah—יהוה; which is seen at times in the Bible to be used in the sense of "Noble," and is not always to be understood of the Supreme Being. The common error of translators and commentators in restricting in their works the title as alone to belong to God, has introduced great confusion into many passages.—F. F.

2 like a man awakened from sleep, and asked me, "What are you looking at?"

When I answered, I have been looking, and saw a lamp all of gold, with a cup on its top, and seven lights on its seven uprights, with seven branches for the lights, that were on its top. Two Olive trees also stood one on the right and the other on the left."—And I continued, and asked the Messenger who was conversing with me, and said,—“Tell me, Sir, what are these?”

5 The Messenger who conversed with me accordingly replied, and asked, “Do you not know what these are?” And I answered, “No, Sir!”

6 So he said to me, “Say, Thus the EVER-LIVING commands to Zerubabel,—Say, Not by wealth and power, but by My Spirit.” The LORD OF HOSTS asks, “What are you, Great Mountain? Before Zerubabel you will be smooth, and he will bring up the great stone with cheers of ‘Good luck! Good luck to it!’”

On Zerubabel laying the Foundation of the Second Temple.

8 The command of the EVER-LIVING came to me again to say;—

9 “The hands of Zerubabel have laid the foundation of this HOUSE, and his hands shall finish it,—you will thus know that the LORD OF HOSTS has sent me to you. And who should despise the day of small things? So rejoice, and see, there are on the Stone chosen by the hand of Zerubabel,—those Seven Eyes of the EVER-LIVING that traverse all the earth.”

11 But I continued and asked him, “What are those two Olives on the right and left of the lamps?” And I again enquired and asked him, “What are the two Olive branches that are on each side of the two golden feeders that extend from the golden standards?”

13 And he replied to me asking, “Do you not know what they are?”

14 So he said, “Those are the two Sons-of-oil who stand near the Master of all the Earth.”

Wickedness put into a Ship.

5 Then I turned, and raised my eyes and looked, and saw a flying roll, and he asked me, “What are you looking at?” And I answered, “I am looking at a Flying-roll of twenty cubits long, and ten cubits broad.”

When he said to me, “That is the DIVINE POWER that will go out over the whole face of the earth, when every thief will be reformed by it, like this, and every perjurer will be reformed by it, like that. I will expand it,” the LORD OF HOSTS has declared, “and it will enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of the perjurer from My Name, and lodge in his house, and purify its timbers and stones!”

The Messenger also proceeded to talk with me, and told me, “Now, raise your eyes and see what will come out from these.” And I asked, “What is it?” When he replied, “That is the Ephah which will go out, and,” he continued, “this is the Wickedness of all the land!” Then I saw him lift up a talent of lead, and that a woman sat inside the Ephah! “This,” he said, “is Wickedness!” and flung her into the Measure, and threw the lump of lead on its mouth!

I again raised my eyes and looked, and saw two women come up with a wind in their wings,—and their wings were like the wings of a stork, and they carried the Measure up between the earth and the skies. So I said to the Messenger, “Will you inform me where they are carrying the Measure to?” When he replied, “To build a House in the land of Shinar, and when it is ready she will be fixed there on her own seat!”

The four Chariots between two Hills of Steel.

I turned again and raised my eyes and looked, and saw four chariots come from between the two mountains,—but the two mountains were hills of steel. In the first chariot were red horses, and in the second chariot bay horses, and in the third chariot white horses, and in the fourth chariot dark grey horses. So I spoke, and asked the Messenger who was conversing with me, “What are these, sir?”

When the Messenger answered and said to me, “These are the four winds of the Skies that travel out from the Court of the Master of all

- 6 the Earth. The one with the Red Horses, proceeds to the land of the North; and the White proceed to the West; and the Bay proceed to the land of the South." And the Grey advanced and enquired the journey they were to go on the earth? when he said, "Go! and travel up and down on the earth!"—
- 8 He then called to me, and said, "Look! Those going to the land of the North, will allay my wind in the land of the North."

The Prophet Ordered to Crown Joshua-ben-Jhozadak as the Branch.

- 9 Again the command of the LORD came to me to say;—
- 10 "Take some of the Transported, some from Huldi, some from Tobiah and some from Jedaiah, and at the same time enter the house of Joshiah-ben-Zephaniah, who has come from Babel. You must also take silver and gold and make a turban and set them on the head of Joshua-ben-Jhozadak, the High Priest, and say to him, 'Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS—Proclaim this is the Man whose Name is THE BRANCH! and under it they shall grow who will build the Temple of the EVER-LIVING!' For he will build the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, and carry honour, and sit, and govern on his throne, and become an enthroned Priest, and peaceful council will be amongst them. Here are also the turbans for Huldi, and Tobiah, and Jedaiah, for Ken-ben-Zephaniah, as a memorial in the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, for they came from afar to build the Temple of the EVER-LIVING." And they recognized that the LORD OF HOSTS sent me to them. "And it will be done, if you listen to the voice of your GOD."

Darius's Ambassadors sent to Enquire of the Lord.

- 7 It also occurred, in the fourth year of King Darius that the command of the LORD came to Zakariah, in the fourth day of the ninth month,—in Kislú, when Beth-el sent Sharazer, and Reghem Melek and their people to worship in the Presence of the LORD, and to ask the Priests of the House of the LORD OF HOSTS, and the Preachers, enquiring, "Should I weep in the fifth month in Remembrance as I have done for so many years?"

Then the command of the LORD OF HOSTS came to me to say,—"Address all the People of the Country, and the Priests, and say, When you fasted and mourned in the fifth, and in the seventh, during these seventy years, did you fast to Me?

"And when you ate and drank;—did you not eat and drink for yourselves? What were the Messages that the EVER-LIVING proclaimed by means of the former Preachers, when Jerusalem was inhabited, and prosperous, with villages around her, and the pastures and the slopes were peopled?"

Further the EVER-LIVING'S command came to Zakariah to say;—

Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS;—

"Practise Justice, Truth, and Right, with mercy, and kindness, each to his Neighbour; and oppress not widow, orphan, and foreigner, and the helpless; and do not each contrive wrong in his heart against his brother.—But they refused to attend, and presented a stiff shoulder, and deadened their ears to the sound;—and put adamant on their heart rather than listen to the Laws, and the Commands which the LORD OF HOSTS sent by His Spirit, by the hands of the earlier Preachers, consequently great anger came from the LORD OF HOSTS. And as when I proclaimed they would not listen; so when they called to Me I would not listen," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "but scattered them over all the Nations whom they knew not, and this country was deserted after them both of passengers and inhabitants, for this lovely land was desolate."

The Lord's Love for Zion.

The command of the EVER-LIVING 8 came again to say;—

Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS, "I 2 have an affection for Zion,—a great affection,—I have an ardent affection for her!"

Thus said the EVER-LIVING, "I 3 will return to Zion and reside in Jerusalem, when Jerusalem shall be, 'The City of Truth,' and the Hill of the LORD OF HOSTS, 'The Hill of Holiness!'"

Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS,— 4 "Old men and old women shall again reside in Jerusalem, and men with sticks in their hands because of the number of days! And the squares of the City shall be full of children, laughing in its squares."

6 Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS;—"If this is wonderful in the eyes of the fragments of this People, in these times,—should it also be wonderful in My eyes?"—the LORD OF HOSTS asks.

7 Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS;—"I will rescue My People from the land of the East, and from the land of the Setting-sun, and will bring them back, and they shall settle in Jerusalem and they will be My People, and I will be their GOD, by truth and right!"

9 Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS;—"Strengthen your hands to listen,—in these days, to the messages from the mouth of those who preached on the day of laying the foundation of the House of the LORD OF HOSTS, on which to build the Temple, for before those times, there were no wages, and no hire for cattle;—and there was no safety in going or returning because of robbery; and I permitted all the country to be each against his neighbour. But now, I am not to the fragments of this People as in those former times," says the LORD OF HOSTS. "For, sowing in peace, the vine yields her fruit, and the earth gives its produce, and the skies give their dew, and I cause the fragments of this People to possess all these. And although you became a curse to the Heathen, House of Judah and House of Israel;—when I rescue you, then you shall become a blessing! Fear not! but strengthen your hands."

14 Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS;—

9 The Burden of the Message of the Lord to the Country near Hamath.

"Let it rest;—

For the LORD'S eyes are over Mankind,
And on all the Tribes of Israel;
1 And also Hamath and her district;—
And on Tzur, and on Zidon,
2 Though she had great skill.
3 For Tzur built a fort for herself,
And heaped up the silver like dust,
And fine gold like mud in the streets.

4 "But look! the LORD will seize her,—
Will strike her power on the sea;
And fire will consume her!—
5 Ashkalon also will see and will fear,—
And Gaza, and Akron in anguish.

"As I decided to punish you, and was angry with your fathers," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "and did not spare; so I will reverse My intention in the present time, and benefit Jerusalem, and the House of Judah need not fear. These are the rules that you must practise. Speak truth each to his neighbour. Practise Truth, Justice, and Peace, in your gates, and do not devise wrong every one against his neighbour in your hearts,—and love no false oath. For all that is what I hate," says the EVER-LIVING.

A Promise to Judah, and its Conditions.

The command of the LORD OF HOSTS came again to me to say;—

Thus says the LORD OF HOSTS, "The Fast of the fourth and the Fast of the fifth,—and the Fast of the tenth,—shall become to the House of Judah a joy and delight, and cheerful Feasts, when they love Truth and Peace."

Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS, "Nations will come, and many Cities turn, and Populations will go to another and say, 'Let us march and pray in the Presence of the EVER-LIVING, and enquire of the LORD OF HOSTS,—I myself will go.' For many Peoples, and powerful Nations, will seek the LORD OF HOSTS at Jerusalem, and pray in the Presence of the EVER-LIVING."

Thus said the LORD OF HOSTS;—"In those times ten men of various languages of the Heathen will encourage themselves, and seize the hand of a Jew, and say, 'We will go with you,—for we hear that GOD is with you!'"

For her hope will fade away,
 And the king will fail in Gaza,
 And Ashkalon be deserted,
 And the bastard rule in Ashdod, 6
 And Philistia's pride will fall ;
 His mouth be stopped from blood, 7
 And his prey torn from his teeth,
 And it given to our GOD ;
 And Kalut shall be Judah's,
 And Ekron be like the Jebusi ;
 Then I will encamp in My House, 8
 As a guard against wandering thieves,
 And blackmailers shall no more extort,
 For now I can see with Mine eyes.

" Daughter of Zion be greatly delighted ! 9
 Shout O ! Jerusalem's Daughter !
 Look ! for your King comes to you,
 He is righteous, has power to save,
 Is humble and rides on an ass,—
 On a colt,—on the foal of an ass !
 Will abolish the chariot from Ephraim, 10
 From Jerusalem cavalry drive,
 And will break up the bow made for War !
 Proclaiming full peace to all Nations,
 And will rule from the sea to the sea,
 From the flood to the bounds of earth ! "

The Rescue of Israel.

" Also you, for the blood of your Covenant, 11
 I will let you go free from your chains,
 And, released from the waterless dungeon,
 Return to your fortress, you prisoners of Hope !
 For to-day I declare that to you I return ! 12
 For Judah I bend for Myself ; 13
 And with Ephraim I fill up my bow
 And will waken up Zion, your sons,
 And oppose to your children, O ! Javan,
 And will fly like the sword of a hero ! "

Then the LORD will appear above all, 14
 And His arrows will dart like the light,
 And the MIGHTY LORD sound with a trumpet,
 And march on a storm from the South ;
 The LORD OF HOSTS then will defend them, 15
 When repelling and quelling sling stones,
 And will drink and will roar as with wine,
 And like bowls at the Altar be full !—
 For the LORD GOD effects the salvation 16
 Of the flock of His Race on that day,
 Like bright gems for a crown on His land !
 For how great is their Goodness, 17
 How great is their Beauty !
 When corn and fruit gladdens
 The youths and the maids !

An Exhortation to Pray for Rain.

10 Ask rain from the EVER-LIVING | —and to everyone grass on his
 at the season of the latter rain,—from | farm.
 the LORD who makes the lightnings, | For the Teraphim have spoken 2
 —and He will give you rain showers, | folly, and the Diviners seen falsehood.

and related vain dreams,—they comforted in vain! Consequently they depart like sheep who suffer from having no shepherd.

- 3 "My anger burns against the Shepherds, and I will punish the Leaders of the flock! For the EVER-LIVING visits His flock of the House of Judah, and will place them like
4 horses arranged for battle. From him comes the LEADER,—from him the DIRECTOR; from him the BOW of WAR; from him every RULER,—
5 who are like heroes trampling in the mud of the streets in battle, and fighting because the EVER-LIVING is with them, so they throw down the 6 riders and horses. For I will strengthen them, the House of Judah, and the House of Joseph, and will establish them, because I pity. So they shall not be as castaways, for I
7 am their EVER-LIVING GOD, and will help them. And Ephraim will become a hero. Then their hearts will rejoice as with wine, and their children will look on and be glad.—Their hearts will laugh to the EVER-LIVING!

"I will whistle for and collect 8 them. When I visit them they shall increase as they used to increase. Although I sowed them among the 9 Peoples, to a distance, they will recollect Me, and revive with their children, and return. For I will restore them from the Mitzeraim, and collect from Ashur, and bring them to the land of Gilad, and Lebanon, and they shall not thirst."

Then He will cross the Sea of 11 Distress, and conquer the Sea of Willows, and all the channels of the River shall be dried, and the pride of Ashur rush down, and the Sceptre of Mitzer be abolished, and they 12 shall be strong in the EVER-LIVING, and march in His Name, says the LORD.

Israel's Song of Victory.

- 11 Open your doors, O! Lebanon,
That the fire may devour your cedars.
2 Howl, you Pines!
For the Cedars have fallen;
Because their splendour is gone!

- Yell, you Oaks of Bashan!
For the guarded forest has fallen,
3 The wail of the shepherds is sounding,
Because their flocks are spoiled.
The voice of the young lions roaring,
For the Pride of Jordan has gone!

The Doom of the Faithless Shepherds.

- 4 Thus says the EVER-LIVING GOD!
"Feed the flock for slaughter, whose Guardians murder and do not consider themselves guilty, and whose 5 seller says, 'Thank the LORD! I am rich!' for their shepherds pity them
6 not! Therefore I will no more pity the inhabitants of the country," says the EVER-LIVING, "but I will abandon the men each to the hand of his neighbour, and into the hand of his leader, and they shall harry the land, and I will not deliver it from their hands."
7 I consequently fed the flock for Slaughter,—who were miserable sheep,—and took myself two wands.—I called one "Beauty," and the other I called "Bonds,"—and pastured
8 the sheep. But I destroyed one of the sheep every month,—for my life was tired of them, and their lives also were hateful to me. I then said, 9 "I will not attend to you,—let the dying die,—and that for slaughter let it be slaughtered and let the rest devour—each the flesh of the other!"

So I took my staff "Beauty" and 10 cut it in two, to break by that the Treaty I had made with all the People, and it was broken that same 11 day, and thus the poor of the flock who kept with me knew that it was the command of the EVER-LIVING.

Then I said to them, "If it is good 12 in your opinion, pay me my wages:—but if not, refuse." They therefore weighed my wages—Thirty pieces of silver!

But the LORD commanded me to 13 cast into the Treasury, the splendid valuation at which I was valued by them!—So I took the thirty pieces of silver, and flung them into the House of the EVER-LIVING at the Treasury!

- 14 Then I cut my staff "Bonds" in two, to break the other! Treaty with 15 Judah and Israel.—The EVER-LIVING, however, again said to me, "Take for yourself again the requisites of a simple 16 shepherd,—for be sure I will now raise up a destructive Shepherd, who will not visit the young, nor seek the wounded, nor care for the sick, nor provide fodder;—but will eat the flesh of the fat, and break their hoofs!"
- 17 Woe to that worthless Shepherd who forgets the flock! The Sword shall assail his right arm and eye;—his arm shall wither; and his right eye be totally blind!

The Burden of the Lord to Israel.

- 12 The EVER-LIVING, Who extended the heavens, and founded the earth, and formed the spirit of man in his breast, says,—“Look!—I will make Jerusalem a cup of staggering to all the Peoples; and they will be also against Judah when besieging Jerusalem.
- 3 Yes! at that time I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the Peoples, whoever carries it will be totally crushed;—yet all the Heathen of the earth will collect against it.
- 4 “At that time,” says the EVER-LIVING, “I will strike every horse with madness, and his rider with frenzy; and will open My eyes upon the House of Judah, but will strike all the horsemen of the Nations blind. Then the Chieftains of Judah will reflect in their hearts, ‘The people of Jerusalem are my strength, through the LORD OF HOSTS their GOD.’
- 5 “At that time I will make the Chieftains of Judah like a fire-grate to wood, and like a torch of fire to sheaves, and they shall consume on the right and left the whole of the Peoples around; and Jerusalem shall again reside under herself, in Jerusalem.”
- 7 But the EVER-LIVING will first rescue the Tents of Judah, so that the House of David may not exalt its beauty, and the beautiful site of Jerusalem, above Judah. The EVER-LIVING will at the same time defend the population of Jerusalem, and their feeble shall become at that time like David; and the House of David shall become like a DIVINE-POWER; like a Messenger of the EVER-LIVING before them. And at 9 that time I will seek to destroy all the Heathen, who come against Jerusalem, and I will pour out upon the 10 House of David, and upon the population of Jerusalem the spirit of kindness and compassion, and they shall look upon HIM¹ Whom they pierced, and mourn over Him, as if mourning over a loved one; and grieve over Him, as over the first-born!

There shall then be a great mourn- 11 ing in Jerusalem, like the mourning at Hadad-rimon, in the vale of Megiddon, and the country will mourn, 12 family by family alone; the House of David alone; the family of Bethnathan alone; and their wives alone! The family of the House of Levi 13 alone; and their wives alone; the family of Shimai alone; and their wives alone! all the families of the rest, family by family, alone; and their wives alone!

The Fountain for Cleansing from Sin.

At that time a fountain will be 19 opened for the House of David, and for the people of Jerusalem, for sin and uncleanness. “And then,” says 2 the LORD OF HOSTS, “I will destroy the names of their Idols from the country, and they shall no longer be remembered; and I will remove their Preachers, and their foul spirit from the country.—And then whenever a 3 person preaches, his father, and his mother who bore him will say, ‘You shall not live. For you utter lies in the name of the EVER-LIVING!’ And his father, and the mother who bore him, will stab him, when he attempts to preach!

“And at that time the Preachers 4 will be ashamed, every one of his visions, when he preaches, and will not wear mantles of hair for the sake of deception, but will 5 say, ‘I am not a Prophet. I am

¹ Note.—Ch. 12. Verse 10, “Upon Him”—Some manuscripts read “On Me—Whom they have pierced.” Both letters in the Hebrew alphabet are very much alike, i.e., ך “I,” and ך “Me.” So that it is difficult to decide which is absolutely the correct one, as the slightest stroke of a pen transforms one into the other. In a theological sense both might be right.—F. F.

a man who cultivates the ground. For I have been a working man from my youth! And if he is asked, 'What are those tattoos then upon your hands?' he will reply, 'I was marked with them in the house of my friend!'"

The Sword called to Assail the Shepherd.

7 "Sword! arise against My Shepherd! And against the man who is My Companion!" says the LORD OF HOSTS. "Strike the Shepherd, and scatter the sheep; when I turn My hand against the young! And then it will follow that two parts in all the country will be cut off and die," says the EVER-LIVING, "but the third shall remain in it. Then I will pass that third through the fire, and refine it as silver is refined, and test them as gold is tested. It shall call on MY NAME, and I will answer it;—I will proclaim, 'It is My People;' and it will exclaim 'MY EVER-LIVING GOD!'"

The Coming Day of the Lord.

14 "Then the day of the LORD will come, and your spoil will be divided in your midst. For I shall collect all the Heathen against Jerusalem to war, and they will capture the City, and plunder the houses, and ravish the women; and half the city shall go out to captivity, but the rest of the People shall not be cut off from the City."
3 Then the EVER-LIVING will go out to fight with those Heathen, as in a time of war, and fix His feet at that time on the Mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem, on the East, and the Mount of Olives shall split in its centre from East to West,—a very great valley,—and half of the Mount will remove to the North, and half to the South, and you will fly by the vale of My Hill,—for the vale of the Hill's dale will reach to Azal,—and you will fly as you fled before the earthquake in the days of Uziah, king of Judah, when the EVER-LIVING GOD comes with all His Saints.
6 And when that time arrives there will not be the cold light of stars, but there will be continuous day, appointed by the EVER-LIVING,—neither day nor night,—and when the period of darkness comes there will be light!

And in that period living waters 8 will extend from Jerusalem,—half to the Eastern sea, and half to the Western sea, both in summer and winter, and the EVER-LIVING will be 9 King over all the earth in that period.—There will be ONE LORD, and His NAME ONE!

All the country south of Jerusalem 10 will be changed like the plain from Geba to Rimmon, and be valuable and inhabited below it, from the Gate of Benjamin to the point of the Foregate, up to the Towers, and the Fort of Hananel, to the Royal Cellars. It 11 will be inhabited, and there will be no more destruction,—but Jerusalem shall be inhabited in security.

And this will be the disease with 12 which the EVER-LIVING will afflict all the Peoples who have warred against Jerusalem; their flesh will waste away whilst they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall waste away in their sockets, and their tongue waste away in their mouth, and then a great disturbance from 13 the EVER-LIVING will come upon them, and each will seize the hand of his neighbour, and rise up hand to hand to injure him; and Judah 14 also will fight against Jerusalem.

Then all the Heathen will collect their armies around, with gold, and silver, and with very many accoutre- 15 ments. But then a plague will come upon the horses, and mules; and camels and asses, and all the cattle that are in their camps, like the above disease.—

Conversion of all Nations foretold.

Afterwards, all the remainder of 16 the Nations, who came against Jerusalem, will regularly go up, year by year, to honour the King,—the LORD OF HOSTS,—and will keep the Feast of Tabernacles. And whoever will 17 not go up to Jerusalem from their land to worship the King, the LORD OF HOSTS, no rain shall fall upon them! And if the families of the 18 Mitzeraim do not arise and come,—it will not fall on them. The EVER-LIVING will afflict with a plague those of the Nations who do not ascend to keep the Feast of Tabernacles. This 19 will be the punishment of the Mitzeraim, and the punishment of every Nation which does not ascend to keep the Feast of Tabernacles.

- 20 At that time they will put on the bells of the horses, "Sacred to the LORD;" and the cauldrons in the LORD'S House will be like the bowls
21 before the Altar; for every pot in Jerusalem will be consecrated to the LORD OF HOSTS, and all the sacrificers can take them and boil in them, and in that period there will be no more trading in the House of the EVER-LIVING.

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET ZAKARIAH.

MALAKI.

The time of Malaki's Prophetic Office was about 397 B.C.

1 THE Burden of the Message of the EVER-LIVING to Israel, by the hand of Malaki.

2 "I loved you," says the EVER-LIVING, "but you ask, 'In what have You loved us?'—Was not Esau brother to Jacob?" the EVER-LIVING asks,—"yet I befriended Jacob and disliked Esau, and have laid his mountains to waste, and his homestead to the snakes of the Desert."

4 Although Edom says, "We are broken down, yet we will return and rebuild the ruins," the LORD OF HOSTS says thus, "You may build, but I will throw down, and they will be called the 'Bad-border,' and the 'People of the LORD's anger' for ever!—And your eyes shall see it, when you will exclaim, 'The LORD is Great over all the borders of Israel!'"

A Warning to Unfaithful Priests.

6 "A son should honour his father, and a servant his master; so if I am a Father,—where is My honouring? and if I am your Master, where is the fear of Me?" asks the LORD OF HOSTS, "by you, Priests, who degrade MY NAME?"

"But, you may ask,—

"By what do we degrade Your NAME?"

7 "You present polluted bread on My Altar!

"But you may ask, 'By what have we insulted You?'

8 "By your saying, 'The Table of the EVER-LIVING is contemptible!' and when you sacrifice the blind, 'It is not bad!' and when you present the lame and diseased, 'It is not wrong!'—If, however, you presented such to your Governour,—would he be pleased with you? or would he promote you?" —the LORD OF HOSTS asks.

But, however, turn now to GOD, for 9 He may be kind to us.—

Those came from your hand. Will He accept anything from you?—"Change yourselves," the EVER-LIVING says.

"Who amongst you will shut the 10 doors, and not light the Altar in vain?—I feel no pleasure in you!" says the LORD OF HOSTS, "nor will I accept an offering from your hand!

But from the Sun-rise to its Setting 11 MY NAME will become GREAT to the Heathen, and in every place will be presented incense and offering to My NAME, with a perfect gift,—for My NAME will become GREAT among the Heathen," says the LORD OF HOSTS. "But you, you degrade it 12 by your saying, 'The Table of the EVER-LIVING is worthless, and its product contemptible food!'

You 13 also say, 'How tiresome!' and sneer at it!" says the LORD OF HOSTS.

"So you bring the stolen, and the lame, and the diseased,—that is the Offering you bring!—Will I accept it from your hand?" the EVER-LIVING says. "I will punish the swindler, 14 who, when there is a male in his flock that he has vowed, afterwards sacrifices a diseased one to the ALMIGHTY, for I am a GREAT KING," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "and MY NAME is revered by the Nations.

"So now, Priests! this Command 2 is for you.—If you will not listen, and 2 you will not lay it to heart, and give honour to MY NAME," says the LORD OF HOSTS, "I will send a curse upon you, and blast your blessings. Indeed I have already blasted them, for you will not fix them on your heart. I 3 will cramp your arm, and sprinkle dung on your faces,—the dung of your festivals, and you shall be attracted towards it. Then you will learn that I sent this order to you, that My Covenant should be with Levi," says the LORD OF HOSTS.

"My Covenant was with him, for 5
Life and Peace,—and I gave it to him openly, and he revered Me, and bowed before MY NAME.

"The Law of truth was in his mouth. 6
No lie was found within his lips;
He walked with Me in Peace and Right,
And turned away from sin."

So the lips of the Priest should guard knowledge, 7
And the Law should be sought from his mouth;
For the LORD OF HOSTS' Herald is he.

"But you have deserted the path, 8
And made many sick of the Law;
Corrupting the Treaty with Levi,"

The LORD OF HOSTS says,

"So I have made you a contempt and scorn to the mass, 9
Because you have kept not My paths,
And hated to look at my Law."

A Denunciation of National Dissensions.

- 10 Have we not all ONE FATHER?
Did not ONE GOD create us all? Why do we each deceive his brother, breaking the covenant of our forefathers?
11 Judah has betrayed, and depravity is practised in Israel, and in Jerusalem.
For Judah has profaned the Sanctuary of the LORD, which He loves, for Baal, the Stranger of Bethel!
12 The LORD will strike blind the person who does that! But will answer from the Tents of Jacob him who presents an offering to the LORD
OF HOSTS.
13 Then you again make this pretence; you weep at the Altar of the Lord with tears and sighs, because He accepts not the gift, and does not accept pleasure from your hand.
14 And you exclaim "Why?"—Because the LORD was a witness between you and the wife of your youth whom you deceived, although she is your companion, and the wife of your bond.

But not one has done it with a share of spirit in him. But why any one?
GOD sought an heir. So take care of your spirit, and do not deceive the wife of your youth. For dismission is hateful, says the LORD GOD OF ISRAEL, and to cover wrong with a cloak, says the LORD OF HOSTS.—So take care of your spirit, and do not deceive.

You have wearied the LORD by your 17 speeches! But you may ask, "In what have we wearied Him?"

By your saying of all who do wrong,
"They are right in the sight of the LORD, and He will be satisfied with them,—or where is the justice of GOD?"

The Forerunner of the Lord.

I.

- Behold! I send My Messenger 8
To make a path before Me.
The LORD that you seek, unexpected will enter into His Temple!
"The Herald will come," says the LORD, "of the Treaty you love;
But who can endure his entry?
Who stand, when he searches?" 9

II.

- "Like a fire He is to refiners, and like the soap to a fuller. 9
He sits down to fuse and refine thereout the dross from the silver,
And Levi's sons he will cleanse,
And refine like to silver and gold!"

Then they can approach to the LORD,
And offer up gifts that are perfect.
4 Then Jerusalem's and Judah's oblation
Shall be sweet to the LORD as of old time.

III.

- 5 " Then I will bring to you justice, and quickly decide against lies and adultery,
And those who rob men of their wage,
And wrong widow, orphan, and stranger;—
Will they not have fear of Me then ? " asks the LORD OF THE ARMIES.
6 " For I, EVER-LIVING, change not, or you sons of Jacob would perish.
7 You left My Decrees, nor regarded My Laws from the times of your fathers.
Yet now turn to Me and I will accept," says the LORD OF THE ARMIES.

IV.

- 8 But you ask, " With what be returning ? "
" Could Adam hide up from GOD ?
Yet you would be hiding from Me ! "
Ask you, " What have we hidden from You ? "
" The tithe and offering of harvest.
9 You are cursed with a curse, for you rob Me.
The whole Nation hides up.
10 So bring all the tithes to My garner,
And let there be food in My House :—
Now try Me by that," says the LORD OF THE HOSTS,
" And ask to uncloseth you the sluice of the skies, and to pour you a blessing ;
11 To fill stores and drive wasters away from destroying the fruit of your labours,
Nor your vine shed her fruit in the field,"
Says the LORD OF THE ARMIES.
12 " And all nations then call you the blessed,
For your land will become a delight,"
Says the LORD OF THE ARMIES.

A Remonstrance against Rebolt from God.

- 13 " Your words are bold against Me," says the LORD OF HOSTS; " yet you ask,
' What have we said against You ? '
14 " You have said, ' It is folly to serve GOD ! ' And, ' What profit is there for our guarding His Trust ? and for our having walked in black before 15 the LORD OF HOSTS ? So now we congratulate the cruel, for they prosper. The practisers of vice are prosperous. The despisers of GOD also are safe ! ' "
16 However, those who revered
the LORD, spoke to one another, and sought the LORD, and listened,
and signed an agreement of remembrance before Him to reverence the LORD, and think upon His Name.
17 Then the LORD OF HOSTS said to me;—" These shall be Mine at the time
I collect a treasure, and I will be kind to them, as a man is kind to his son who serves him.

" Then you will turn and distinguish 18 between the righteous and the wicked, between who serves GOD, and who serves Him not. For be assured the 19 day comes that will burn like an oven, when all the cruel, and all who practise vice, will be stubble, and will be burnt in that coming day," says the LORD OF HOSTS, " nor root nor branch shall be left. But the Sun 20 of Righteousness will shine forth to you with restoration on his wings, and you shall be brought out, and sport like a bullock from the stall, and tread down the wicked, for they 21 will be dust under your feet, on the day when I perform it," says the LORD
OF HOSTS.

" Remember the Laws of My ser- 22 vant Moses, which I communicated to him in Horeb, and the Institutions and Decrees for all Israel. I will 23 assuredly send to you Elijah the Prophet before that Great and Terrible Day of the Lord arrives, and he will turn the hearts of the fathers towards their children, and the children towards their fathers; lest I should come and strike the earth with a ban."

END OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET MALAKI

NOTE BY THE TRANSLATOR.

With Malak, the Books of the Prophets, as they stand in the original Hebrew order, which I have followed, are completed, and with that ends my Third Volume and the Third Division of the Hebrew arrangement of the Sacred Scriptures.

The Fourth Section of the Hebrew portion of the Bible includes the Psalms and all the other Sacred Writers to the end of II. Chronicles.—FERRAR FENTON.

THE BOOKS OF PSALMS.

TRANSLATED DIRECT FROM THE HEBREW TEXT.

The period when David wrote was from 1063 to 1015 B.C.

THE FIRST BOOK OF PSALMS.

CHIEFLY WRITTEN BY DAVID THE KING.

PSALM 1.

On the Righteous Man.

Blest is the man who has not walked beneath the sinners' groves	1
And not stood on the path of vice, nor sat where scoffers sit;
Who in JEHOVAH'S Laws delights,	2
And seeks His rules by day and night.
Like trees beside the flowing stream,	3
Which bear their fruit in season due,
Their leaves fade not, and they succeed,
In all they undertake to do.
Not so the bad, they are like chaff,	4
Which winds, will drive away;—
The bad will not attain to rule nor sinners hold the good.	5
For good men's path the LORD prepares, but breaks the bad men's road.	6

PSALM 2.

On the Folly of Opposing God.

Why do the heathen rage? and Tribes contrive in vain?	1
The Kings of earth collect, and Princes plan as one,	2
Against the LORD'S Messiah?
"Let us break from His bands, and strip His cords away."	3
But Heaven's dweller laughs; my Prince will smile at them.—	4
Then speak to them in wrath, and, angry, fill with dread.	5
"Stay! I will seat my King on Zion's Holy Hill."	6
And I proclaim the fact, the LIFE declared to me,	7
"To-day I have brought out yourself who are my son;
Ask me, and I will make the Heathen your Estate	8
And Earth's bounds you shall hold.
"You wield an iron staff, that forms or breaks the pots;—	9
So, now you Kings, attend,—earth rulers now reform,—	10
With reverence serve the LORD, and tremblingly rejoice,	11
His Son kiss, lest He grieve, and thus your path be lost."	12
If His face lights a spark all trusting Him are blest.

PSALM 3.

- 1 A Psalm of David when he fled from his Son Absalom.
 2 LORD, how many are my foes,
 How many rise on me!
 3 How many say about my life,
 "He has no help from GOD."
 4 But You, LORD, are my shielding helm,
 My pride and rising plume;
 5 My voice will call the LORD,
 Who from His Holy Hill replies.
 6 I lay me down to sleep,
 I wake for GOD is Guard;
 7 I fear no human hosts,
 Though round me they arise.
 8 Rise up, LORD; save, my GOD,
 For You can strike my foes;
 And break their fierce jaw teeth.
- The Assured Promise.
 9 The LORD will bring you victory,
 And blessings on your Force. Amen.

PSALM 4.

- 1 To the Conductor of the Lutes.
 A Psalm of David.
 2 Reply to my crying, my pitying GOD,
 In suffering accompany me;
 Be gentle, give ear to my prayer;—
 3 How long shall men libel my honour,
 Who love falsehood and seek for a lie?
 4 But know the LORD's love to the lowly.
 The LORD hears when they cry to Him.
 5 Then tremble, and practice not sin;
 In silence reflect on your beds;
 6 Give of pure offerings, and trust on the LORD.—
 7 Many ask us,—“Will that show us good?”
 8 LORD, lift o'er us Your shining face;
 And give to our hearts delight,
 9 As when the corn and grapes increase.
 I can lie down with peace and sleep.
 With you, Lord, my only Guard!

PSALM 5.

- 1 To the Conductor of the Flutes.
 A Psalm by David.
 2 Listen, LORD, to my words, and attend to my thoughts,—
 3 Hear the voice of my cry, my King and my GOD.
 For to you I will pray.

STANZA 1.

- 4 LORD, at dawn hear my voice; I wait watching for dawn;
 5 For You, GOD, love not wrong, so the wicked hate You.
 6 The Proud cannot endure the approach of Your eyes;
 You hate slaves of Vice; You destroy liars' paths.
 7 Men of blood and rebellion JEHOVAH abhors.

But I, for Your mercy will enter Your House; 8
 In Your Holy Temple will reverently bow.
 So, LORD, in Your righteousness, lead me along. 9
 Yes, my travelling direct on the face of Your path.

STANZA 2.

For there is no trust in their mouths; 10
 Their breast is a wide open grave,
 With their tongue they but utter deceit!
 O'erthrow them, O LORD, by their enemies,
 Disperse by their numerous sins, 11
 Fell those who revolt against You;
 But let all who trust on You be glad,—
 Who rely upon You, always sing; 12
 And Your lovers delight in Your name,—
 For You, LORD, the righteous should bless 13
 And crown with a crown of delight.

PSALM 6.

To the Conductor of the Lutes and Bagpipes. 1

A Psalm of David.

LORD, strike me not in anger, 2
 And punish not in wrath;
 But pity, LORD, I languish,— 3
 Relieve, for my bones ache!

My soul is suffering grief, 4
 I am brought near to death.
 Cease, LORD, to strip my soul,— 5
 And save for You are kind.
 In death they know not You, 6
 Nor give praise in the grave.

Worn out with sighs I faint, 7
 Tears wet my bed all night.
 Mine eyes are worn with grief, 8
 My woes oppress like age.

Turn from me all my passion, 9
 Hear, LORD, my tearful voice,—
 Hear, LORD, my echoing groans, 10
 O LORD, accept my prayer!
 Let my foes fall completely, 11
 Be dishonoured, shamed, and fear.

PSALM 7.

A Lament of David, when he Appealed to the Ever-living against 1
 the Accusation of Hush the Benjaminite.

STANZA 1.

LIVING GOD! upon You is my trust, 2
 Save, and shelter from all who pursue,
 Lest they tear, like a lion, my life, 3
 And break me with none to defend.

LIVING GOD! if I had done the thing, 4
 If there had been the crime in my hand,
 If I repaid kindness with hurt, 5
 And aimless assailed as my foe,—
 Let my enemies hunt for my breath, 6
 And tread my life down to the earth,
 And my honour sting down to the dust.

STANZA 2.

- 7 JEHOVAH, rise up in Your wrath;
 In Your fury lay hold of my foes.
 8 Awake! Demand justice for me,
 And assemble the People around,
 Then return to the regions on high.
 9 LORD! justify me to the tribes;
 LORD, establish my honour and truth;
 10 Repay to the wicked their wrong,
 Defending the honest true hearts,
 And the perfectly honest to GOD.

STANZA 3.

- 11 My only defence is with GOD;—
 My safety my trueness of heart;
 12 For GOD is a judge who is just;—
 Yet GOD is provoked every day!
 13 If they change not, He sharpens His sword,
 Will draw out His bow and take aim,
 14 Make ready His weapons of death,
 And His fiery arrows will fall.

STANZA 4.

- 15 Look at them all pregnant by Sin,
 And Falsehood produced as the birth.
 16 They dug deep and sunk a wide ditch,
 And fell into the ditch they had made;
 17 His own crime returns on his head,
 And his villainy lights on his crown;
 18 So I sing to the LORD who is just,
 Praise the name EVER-LIVING MOST HIGH.

PSALM 8.

- 1 To the Conductor of the Guitars.

A Psalm of David.

STANZA 1.

- 2 JEHOVAH, our LORD, how glorious Your hand,
 O'er all Earth you made, and o'er Heaven Your fame;
 3 From the mouths of the sucklings and babes proceeds strength
 To turn back the rebels and conquer Your foes.

STANZA 2.

- 4 When I look at the sky, that Your fingers have made,
 With the Moon and the Stars You have formed,
 5 What is Man, that You think about him?—
 What is Adam's Son, that You regard?
 6 You depressed him below all Your Saints,
 Then crowned him with Honour and might,
 7 You placed o'er the works of Your hand,
 And You put all things under his feet;—
 8 All Flocks, Herds, and Beasts of the Field,
 Birds of Heaven and Fish of the Stream,—
 And all whose paths are in the seas.

CHORUS.

EVER-LIVING, our LORD,
 How glorious Your name is on Earth!

PSALM 9.

To the Conductor of the Women Singers. 1

A Psalm of David.

STANZA 1.

I praise You, LORD, with all my heart, 2
 Declare Your wondrous works,
 And with delight rejoice to You, 3
 And sing Your Name, MOST HIGH.
 Before Your face my foes fell back, 4
 They fell and were destroyed.

STANZA 2.

You showed my cause was just, 5
 Fixed in true light my Throne,
 Destroyed the wicked tribes, 6
 Erased their name from time.
 You crushed my foemen down. 7
 Threw down their Town and spoiled their fame,

The LORD for ever stays ; 8
 His Throne is fixed on Right,
 By Right He rules the world ;
 By justice governs man. 9
 The LORD protects the weak,
 The poor who are oppressed.— 10
 Who trust You know Your power,— 11
 LORD, You leave not those who seek.

PSALM 9A.

An Invitation to praise God.—An Anthem.

Let Zion sing Psalms to the LORD, 12
 Proclaim to the Nations His fame ;
 Who remembers to seek for their blood, 13
 Nor abandons their cry, when oppressed,

PSALM 9B.

STANZA 1.

Look, JEHOVAH, and pity my woes, 14
 Snatch me from my foes, and the portals of Death,—
 Your kindness I then can proclaim, 15
 In the Gates of Bath-Zion reporting Your aid.
 The bad sink in the pits they construct, 16
 Catch their feet in the nets they have spread,—
 Let them learn that JEHOVAH does right,— 17
 In the work of their hand, let the wicked be caught.

STANZA 2.

Make the wicked turn back to the pit 18
 With all Nations forgetful of GOD ;
 For He never forgets the distressed, 19
 Nor baffles the hope of the poor.
 Arise, LORD, and let not men oppress ; 20
 Judge the Nations before Your own face,
 Fix, JEHOVAH, Your terror on them, 21
 Let the Heathen know they are but men,

PSALM 10.

- 1 How long, LORD, will You stand afar
And hide in the time of distress ?
2 When the haughty bad press on the poor,
And catch in the traps they have set ?
3 The wicked in pride of soul boasts,
Approves greed, and despises the LORD,
4 Whom the wicked in pride never seeks,—
In his thought there is never a GOD !
- 5 At all times his path is perverse,
He flings Your Decrees from himself,
And sneers at each one of their bonds.
6 His heart says he cannot be moved,
Nor ever experience distress.
7 Revolt and fraud thus fill his mouth,
And falsehood hides under his tongue ;
8 In ambush he sits in the streets,
And in secret he murders the weak.
- 9 His eyes lick them up in advance,
Like a lion he lies in his lair,—
Lies still to lay hold of the weak,
And wrap them in folds of his net.
10 He bends, and he thrusts, and he feils,
O'erpowers the wretched by force,
11 His heart asserts, that " GOD forgets
He hides and He never can see
- 12 JEHOVAH, rise ! lift up Your hand
And no longer forget of the poor ;
13 For why should the villain mock GOD,
And think that You never will care ?—
- 14 See crime and wrong both advance,—
So prepare for the use of Your hand,—
The helpless can only trust You
15 To give to the feeble Your strength,—
So shatter the criminal's arm,
And chase the wrong till it is not.

PSALM 10A.

An Anthem.

- 16 LORD, our Eternal King,
Drive pagans from the Land,
17 Hear, LORD, the poor's desire ;
Give quiet to their heart.
18 Incline Your ear to hear,
And help the weak to right,
And not permit again
To drive men from the land.¹

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 10 is evidently two distinct anthems of widely different ages, one by David, the other after the captivity, confused together by the Hebrew editors, who, as the Great Sanhedrim, selected and arranged the Books of Psalms, as we now have them, for use in the services of the Temple and Synagogues, after the return of the Tribe of Judah from Babylon.—F. F.

	PSALM 11.
To his Bandmaster.	By David.	1
	STANZA 1.
	I put all my trust in the LORD, So why do they say to my soul ; " Fly away to the hills, like a bird, For see how the wicked take aim with their bow, Their arrows they fix in the string, To shoot in the dark the true hearts, And when they fall, feel a delight ;— So what can the righteous mau do ? "	2 3
	STANZA 2.
	Jehovah from His HOLY Home ;— Jehovah enthroned in the Heavens, Looks on and perceives at a glance ; His eyelids look on Adam's sons, Jehovah will try good and bad, But His soul hates the lovers of crime, He will rain on the wicked distress,— The fiery and sulphurous breath Of the Simoon is destined for them ! For Jehovah is good to the good,— Loves the upright who gaze on His face.	4 5 6 7
	PSALM 12.
To the Conductor of the Pipers.	A Psalm of David.	1
	STANZA 1.
	Help, LORD, for the merciful cease, And the faithful fail from Adam's sons ; Each one utters lies to his friend, And with false lip, heart speaks to the heart.	2 3
	STANZA 2.
	Jehovah ! cut off the false lips ; With the tongues that are uttering lies ; Who say, " By our tongue we are strong, By the power of our lips we succeed, Who then can be master of us ? "	4 5
	STANZA 3.
	" For the groans of the poor ; For the wretched who sigh, I now will arise," says the LORD, " And put those who pant into ease."	6
	STANZA 4.
	Jehovah ! Your words are bright words, Like silver refined with a flame, And cleansed from its earth seven times, You, LORD, are the Guardian of men, Preserve them from now, to for ever.	7 8
	ENVOY.
	When the wicked are left to go free, They terrify men, like high walls.

1 To his Bandmaster.

PSALM 13.

By David.

STANZA 1.

2 How long, LORD, forget me? For ever?
 Till when, hide Your presence from me,
 3 While they lay their plots for my life,
 And torture my heart every day;
 And my enemies rise to assail?

STANZA 2.

4 EVER-LIVING! look down on my woes;
 My GOD, bring Your light to mine eyes.
 Lest I sleep in the slumber of Death;
 5 Lest my enemies say, "He is done,"
 My oppressors rejoice when I go;
 6 But yet in Your mercy I trust;
 My heart still relies on Your help;
 To JEHOVAH I sing for His kindness to me.

1 To his Bandmaster.

PSALM 14.

By David.

There is no GOD, the fool says in his heart,
 Foul, corruptly, they roll—never practising good.
 2 The LORD from Heaven looked on the children of Adam
 To see if any wisely would follow their GOD.—
 3 But the whole were corrupt, none were practising good,
 4 For none would learn that,—all were working for Sin,
 Ate My people like bread, and called not on the LORD,
 5 Whom they should fear in dread, for GOD dwells with the good,—
 6 They scorn the poor's thoughts whom the LORD Himself loves.

PSALM 14A.

An Anthem.

Who gives from Zion to Israel victory?
 When the LORD from captivity brings back His Race,—
 Then Jacob will laugh and Israel be glad!

PSALM 15

By David.

1 LORD, who in Your Halls shall dwell?
 2 Who live on Your Holy Hill?
 He walking straight, and doing right,
 And who speaks truth from his heart,
 3 From whose tongue no slander comes,
 Who does not his neighbour wrong,
 4 Who carries no hate in his breast,
 Whose eye will despise what is base,
 And respects those who reverence the LORD;
 Who swears to his loss, nor complains,
 5 Who lends not his money to cheat;
 Who takes not a bribe against right;—
 Who does thus, is unshaken for ever.

PSALM 16.

1 Written by David.

2 GOD, guard me,—for I trust on You
 I tell the LIFE, You are my Prince;
 I have no pleasure but in You.

And with the Holy on the earth, My glory and joy is with them.	3
The furious bring griefs on themselves :— I will not pour their sheddings of blood, Nor take up their names on my lips.	4
LORD, measure my portion and cup, You cast me my lot from yourself, On sweet spots my boundaries You fixed ; My estates are all smiling on me.	5 6
I give thanks to the LORD, who directs, Lo! at night He instructs me in thought : I wish the LORD always with me, And never removed from my side.	7 8
Then my heart's joy and vigour would laugh, And my body lie down in content, For You leave not my Soul in the Grave, Nor your Darling to look on decay.	9 10
You will show me the pathway of Life,— Your presence will fill me with joy :— At my right hand be pleasure for ever.	11

PSALM 17.

A Prayer of David.

STANZA 1.

Oh I hear me, righteous LORD, Bend forward to my cry ; Oh, listen to my prayer, From lips that do not lie ! Give sentence from Yourself, Your eyes perceived my rights ; By rightly visits tried, And found no crime in me, Or passing from my mouth. And as for human acts, I listened to Your words. I shunned the broken paths, I kept close to Your ways, My footsteps never swerved.	1 2 3 4 5
--	-----------------------

STANZA 2.

I call, for GOD replies :— Attend and hear my words, Show forth how kind You are, Save those who trust Your hand From dominating foes, Guard like my trembling eye ; Hide by Your shadowing wings, Against the bad who waste,— My life's foes who surround ; Who wrap themselves in power, Whose mouth speaks haughty threats, Who are a wall round me, Who strive to strike to earth ; Like Lions fierce to tear, Like Tigers in their Den !	6 7 8 9 10 11 12
---	------------------------------------

STANZA 3.

Arise, O LORD, bend down their knees, Your sword defends my life ;	13
---	----

- 14 Your hand from murderers, LORD,
From men who herd with beasts,
Who fill their greed and feed their sins,
And leave their children wealth!

ENVOY.

- 15 By right I watch Your face.
And wake content with You.

PSALM 18.

- 1 To his Bandmaster.

By David, the Servant of the Ever-living.

Who addressed the words of this song to the EVER-LIVING, at the time when the EVER-LIVING had rescued him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul, so he said :—

STANZA 1.

- 2 I love You, LORD, my Strength
3 The LORD, my Rock, and Fort,
My GOD, my safe Retreat ;
I trust in Him, my Shield,
4 My Saviour, Horn, and Tower !
When weak I cried to GOD,
5 Who saved me from my foes,
When ropes of Death had caught,
6 And raging floods o'erwhelmed !
The Grave a noose had twined,
And Death's trap was before.

STANZA 2.

- 7 In grief I called the LORD,
And shouted to my GOD,
Who from His palace heard my voice,—
My shout came to His ears !
8 The earth then quaked and shook,
The mountain's roots were rent,
They trembled and they rocked,
Because He was enraged.

STANZA 3.

- 9 Thick smoke rose at His wrath.
Devouring fire advanced,
10 And from it blazing coals.
He bowed the Heavens and came,
With gloom beneath His feet ;
11 On whirlwinds rode, and flew,
Borne on the wings of wind.
12 He made the darkness hide,
Surround Him as His tent,
13 The skies were cloudy seas,
Whose clouds poured lightnings out,
With hail and blazing fire !

STANZA 4.

- 14 The LORD from Heaven thundered,—
The Highest gave His voice,
Hailstones and flashing fire !
15 His arrows sent and shot,
And many lightnings drove,
And fearful mighty streams ;—
16 The world's supports were bared !—
At your rebuke, O ! LORD,
At your fierce breathing wrath !

STANZA 5.

He sent from high and took,	17
He snatched from mighty seas,
He rescued from strong foes,—	18
More powerful foes than I.
He led me in my day of need,	19
And was my guardian power.
To freedom brought me out,—	20
Released because He loved I—
The LORD paid me my due,	21
My work returned to me;—
For I had kept the living paths,	22
And not deserted GOD.
For all His rules I kept,	23
I turned not from His laws;
And I was straight with Him	24
And kept myself from vice.
The LORD returned my due,	25
My work was in His sight.

STANZA 6.

You are kind to the kind,	26
With straight men You are straight,
With ruffians You are rough,	27
And to the false resist;
For You would save the poor,	28
And throw down haughty eyes.
You are my shining light,	29
My LIVING GOD, who drives my gloom.

STANZA 7.

By You I stormed the breach,	30
And from GOD scaled the wall;
By GOD whose paths are straight,	31
The LORD whose words are true,
To all who trust, a shield;—
For what is GOD but LIFE ?	32
What strong; except my GOD ?
The GOD who girds my strength,	33
And makes my pathways smooth?—
Makes my legs like a stag's,	34
And helped me on the hills;
Who taught my hands to fight,	35
My arms to break steel bows.
Gave victory to my shield,	36
And Your right hand has helped,
And Your gift has increased.

STANZA 8.

You stretched my strides beneath,	37
They never failed or shook.
I chased my foes, and caught,	38
Nor turned till I destroyed.
I crushed, they could not rise,	39
They fell beneath my feet.
You girthed my waist for war,	40
Held up my knees beneath.
You gave to me my foes,	41
My haters, chased, and crushed.
They shrieked, but no one saved,	42

- 43 Called LIFE but none replied,
I shook like dust to wind,
I trod like dirt in streets!
- STANZA 9.
- 44 You freed from men opposed,
You made me chief of Tribes,
And hands I knew not served;
45 Unhearing ears now hear,—
The Sons of strangers praise,
46 The Sons of strangers yield,
And creep from hiding dens!
- STANZA 10.
- 47 Live LORD, You are my Rock,
Exalt my GOD who saved!
48 The GOD who gave success:
And them beneath me placed.—
49 Yes! who released from foes,
Though higher placed than I,—
Who freed from treacherous men!
- STANZA 11.
- 50 I sing the LORD to Nations,
And chant Psalms to His name;—
51 The King's victorious Tower,
Who shows His sanctioned kindness,—
With David's Heir for aye!
- PSALM 19.
- 1 To his Bandmaster.
- By David.
- STANZA 1.
- 2 The Heavens declare the power of GOD,
And Space proclaims His forming hand;
3 Day utters speech to day,
Night whispers news to night!
4 There is no speech or tongue,
Where their voice is not heard.
5 To all lands they bring hope,
The whole World hears their speech.
- STANZA 2.
- 6 The Sun has there a Tent;—
And comes to seek his bride,
To run his course, a happy youth,
7 He starts from distant skies
And whirls their full extent,
And nought can hide his heat.
8 How perfect are your laws, O LIFE!
They guide the mind aright.
- STANZA 3.
- 9 The plans of GOD are right,
They make the heart rejoice;
The LORD'S commands support,
More than the eyes can see.
10 The LORD intends perfection,
The LORD decrees for aye,
Uniting True and Right.—
11 Worth more than gold refined,
More sweet than honey drops.

STANZA 4.

By them Your servant walks ;—	12
Delights to keep their tracks ;—
But who knows all his faults ?	13
Oh ! free from what are hid
Your servant keep from pride,	14
Nor let it rule in me,—
And keep me free from crimes,
Let my mouth's speech be sweet.	15
My heart's thought be with You,—
You, LORD, are my high rock.

PSALM 20.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

The LORD hear you in sorrow's day,	2
The power of Jacob's GOD support ;
From His blest dwelling send you strength,	3
And comfort you from Zion ;
Remembering all the gifts you gave,	4
And offerings, make you safely strong ;
Give to you what your heart desires,	5
Make all your plans succeed.

STANZA 2.

We then will cheer, at your success,—	6
Exult in our GOD's power :—
What time JEHOVAH grants your prayers,—
For I know well the LORD,	7
Gives victory to His friend,—
And hears him from His Holy Home,
And strengthens his right hand.

STANZA 3.

Some trust on Chariots, some on Horse,	8
But we trust on our LIVING GOD :
They both will shake, and fall,	9
But we in triumph rise.

CHORUS.

O LORD, give our Leader success,	10
And hear us when we call.

PSALM 21.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

LORD, the King will delight in Your strength ;	2
In Your victory will greatly rejoice ;
For You gave the desire of his heart,	3
Nor refused the request of his lips.
Your blessing has led him along ;	4
You have placed a gold Crown on his head ;
You gave him the lives that he asked,	5
Extended and lengthened his days.
By Your aid his power is great ;	6
You gave to him honour and fame.
With blessing You always endowed,	7
You delighted by joy of Your Face

STANZA 2.

8 For the King puts his trust in the LORD,
 And moves not from the Almighty's love.
 9 So Your hand shall seize those who oppose,—
 Your right hand find all those who hate,
 10 And throw them like fuel to fire,
 At the time when the LORD in His rage,
 Consumes and devours them like flame ;
 11 Makes their produce to fail from the Land,
 And their race from the sons of Mankind,
 12 For the evil they purposed to You,
 Which they planned as a futile device.
 13 So break all their backs by Your might,
 And before them be valiant and bold.
 14 Be exalted O LORD in Your strength,
 And we will sing Psalms to Your might.

PSALM 22.

1 To the Conductor of the Rams' Horns.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

2 Why am I left, My GOD, My GOD,
 Why far from help my morning words ?
 3 GOD answers not my daily cry,
 And night can bring no rest to me.

STANZA 2.

4 But You are safe, enthroned on Israel's praise ;
 5 Our fathers hoped on You ; they hoped, and You relieved,
 6 They shrieked,—and You set free,
 They hoped and were not shamed,
 7 But I'm a worm, and not a man,—
 By men despised,—the people scorn.
 8 All seeing laugh and mock,
 They sneer, and shake the head,
 9 " He hoped JEHOVAH would relieve,—
 Now let Him save him if He choose ! "

STANZA 3.

10 Yet You brought from the womb,
 Placed on my mother's knees,
 11 On You I trusted from my birth,—
 My GOD from mother's breast.
 12 Oh leave not in distress,
 Come near to give me aid ;
 13 Ten thousand bulls surround,
 The beasts of Bashan close ;
 14 Extending mouths for me,
 The Lions tear and roar.

STANZA 4.

15 Like water, I'm poured out,
 My bones torn from their joints,
 My heart become like wax,
 My strength, dry, rotten, wood ;
 16 My tongue sticks to my jaw,
 My lips have dust of death !
 17 Mad dogs tear all around,—
 They pierce my hands and feet ;

I can count all my bones.— They strain and stare at me, Amongst them share my clothes, And for my robe cast dice.	18 19
STANZA 5.
But you, LORD, are not far, My GOD! Oh, haste to help! My life guard from the sword, My darlings from the dog, Save from the Lion's mouth, Protect from tossing horns; And then I'll tell my friends Your name, And thank among the crowd.	20 21 22 23
PSALM 22A.
Look on the LORD and praise; All Jacob's race extol, And Israel's race adore. The grieved He neither scorned nor loathed, Nor hid His face from us, But when we cried He heard, In crowds I thank for this, Pay vows with those who fear. The poor shall eat and feed,— Who seek the LORD give thanks. Revive your hearts for aye; Reflect , and trust the LORD.	24 25 26 27 28
The whole land bows to you, With all the Pagan Tribes; Because the LORD is King, He o'er the Heathen rules. They all shall eat, and bow All great on earth to Him, And all kneel in the dust, Or their life will not live. A race shall serve to us, The prince declares to me, Who goes and tells His plans To men as yet unborn.	29 30 31
PSALM 23.
A Psalm of David.
STANZA 1.
My LORD attends;—I shall not want;— He lets me rest in verdant fields, He leads me by the pleasant brooks, He brings me back, my life refreshed, To skip with joy, and praise His Name.	1 2 3
STANZA 2.
Though I may walk through Death's dark Vale, I fear no hurt, for You are there, Your rod and staff direct my way.	4
STANZA 3.
You spread my board before my foes, With flowing cup have oiled my head.	5

6 Kindness and mercy follow me,
On every day I live ;
And in the LORD's house I shall dwell,
To lengthen out my days

PSALM 24.

1 A Psalm of David.
The Earth is the LORD's, and its fulness ;
The World, and all dwelling therein ;
2 For He founded it upon periods,
And constructed to move in its spheres.
3 Who should mount to the bill of the LORD,
To His Holy Place who should go ?
4 The clean handed and pure of heart,
Who incites not his mind to deceive,
And who does not feast upon vice,
5 He will receive bliss from the LORD,
And from my GOD win in his right.
6 These are the kind who desire You,
Like Jacob who seek for Your face.

PSALM 24A.

A Responsive Anthem.

7 THE SUMMONS.
" Lift up your heads, you Gates,
Draw up your ancient doors,
And let the Glorious King come in !"
8 THE REPLY.
" Who is this Glorious King ?"
9 THE RESPONSE.
" The LORD of Strength and Might ;
The mighty LORD of War."
" Lift up your heads, you Gates,
Lift up your ancient Doors,
Admit the Glorious King."
10 THE REPLY.
" He is the LORD of Armies,
He is the Glorious King."

PSALM 25.

1 By David.
My LIVING GOD to You I lift my soul,
2 My GOD in You I trust,
Nor fear disgrace ;
Though my foes on me tread.
3 None fail who hope on You,
But fools and traitors fail.
4 O ! teach me, LORD, Your ways,
Instruct me in Your paths ;
5 Conduct me to Your truth,
And teach that You are GOD,—
My trust, my hope all day.
6 I think, LORD, of Your kindness,
And everlasting love ;

So shake me from my sins; My crimes remember not, In mercy charge not them, For You my LORD are good.	7
You, LORD, are good and just, Lead sinners to Your paths.	8
To justice lead the poor, And teach the lost his road ;	9
All my LORD'S paths are smooth and safe, To those who guard His Law and Proofs.	10
O, LORD, for Your name's sake, Forgive my grievous sin!— The men who fear the LORD, With care should choose their path ;—	11
And then their life will rest in ease, Their children hold the land.	12
The LORD directs His friends, And teaches them His Law.	13
I, therefore, watch the LORD, Who freed my feet from nets, Who turned to me and pitied, When I was lost and weak.	14
He eased my griefs of heart, And brought me from my woes ;	15
Saw I was weak and lost, And freed me from my wrongs.	16
I saw my many foes, My cruel haters, hate.	17
Yet You relieved my life ; My trust on you held up.	18
You kept me firm and straight, For I had trust in You.	19
THE ENVOY.
My God set Israel free From all of his distress. ¹	20

PSALM 26.

By David.

STANZA 1.

Judge me, LORD, for straight forward I walk ;	1
I move not from my trust in the LORD ;	2
EVER-LIVING ! test me, and be kind, And refine both in thoughts and in heart, For Your mercy is guiding my sight, And Your Truth is the guide of my march.	3

STANZA 2.

With the foolish I do not consort, And with vicious youths I do not go.	4
I hate the discourse of the bad, And with profligates never will sit.	5
In innocence I wash my hands,	6

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 25, v. 22. I believe this 22nd verse to be the prayer of an old transcriber, not part of David's Psalm.—F. F.

- 7 When, LORD, to Your Altar I go
 To hear to the voice of Your Law,
 And to read of Your wonderful acts.
- 8 LORD I love the Court of Your House,
 And the Place of Your glorious Home.
- 9 Among sinners record not my soul,
 10 Nor my life with the bloodthirsty men,
 Who with their hands fondle a crime,
 And with bribery fill their right hand,
 11 For I in my honesty walk;—
 So redeem and show kindness to me.
 12 My feet are fixed firm in the Right;—
 I give openly thanks to the Lord.

PSALM 27.

By David.

- 1 The LORD, is my light and my Victor, for whom should I fear?
 2 Who dread, when You, LORD, are the strength of my life?
 When the wicked assailed me, to eat up my flesh,
 My opponents and foemen all stumbled and fell.
 3 If an army assail me my heart will not fear;
 If they rise up to war I shall go out content.
- 4 I asked from the LORD one request,—
 To rest in His House all my days;
 To gaze on my LORD's beauty in life,
 And inside His Palace reflect.
- 5 In hard times, He concealed in His Tent;—
 He hid in the shade of HIS HALL,
 And lifted me into His fort;
 6 Raised my head o'er encircling foes,
 So I offer my gift in His Hall,
 And chant songs and Psalms to the Lord.
- 7 Listen, LORD to my voice when I cry,
 And have pity and answer to me;
 8 For You said to my heart "Seek My face,"—
 I therefore will seek Your face, LORD;
 9 So hide not Your presence from me,
 Nor depart from Your servant in wrath.
 You helped,—so abandon me not,—
 Nor forsake me, my GOD, who can save.
 10 Though my Father and Mother forsake,
 Yet the LORD will receive me again.
- 11 EVER-LIVING, O! teach me Your way,
 12 Show me a straight path from my foes.
 Give me not to my enemies' wish,
 For false-witnesses rise against me,
 And breathe out their lies!
- 13 But for this I had trusted to see,
 14 The LORD's bounty while living on earth.
 Yet trust on the LORD, and be bold;—
 Encourage your heart, and still trust in the LORD.

PSALM 28.

By David.

- 1 To You, LORD, I cry,—to my Rock,—
 To me be not deaf,—O! to me be not deaf.

When I seem falling down to a pit I Hear and pity my voice as I shout out to you,
As I lift up my hand to Your Holy Abode. 2

Cast me not to the bad, and the doers of wrong,
Who speak fair as friends, but with malice at heart;—
What they practice, return to themselves,
And give them the suffering they make. 3
What their own hands have done, let return on themselves
Since they see not the works of the LORD,
And what He has made by His hands; 4
Cast them down and build not up again. 5

Thank the LORD, who has heard my prayer's voice,—
My heart rests in the LORD, as my shield,
He helped and He cheered up my heart,—
So I praise in my songs. 6
7

The LORD is my power and strength,
He saves His appointed Himself;
Save Your people and bless Your estate,
Conduct and for ever lead on! 8

PSALM 29.

By David.

Ascribe to the LORD, you Sons of GOD,—
Glory and power ascribe to the LORD! 1
Ascribe to the LORD His Glorious NAME,
Worship the LORD, with Holy Beauty. 2
The LORD with His grand voice over Seas,—
Over Mighty Seas the LORD thunders. 3

The voice of the LORD is strong,—
The voice of the LORD is splendid; 4
The voice of the LORD breaks Cedars,—
The voice of the LORD breaks Lebanon's Trees,
When Lebanon gallops like heifers,
And Shirion like young Bulls! 5
6

The LORD's voice shoots flashing fire,
The LORD's voice the desert revives,—
The LORD's voice revives the Desert of Kadesh! 7
The LORD's voice whirls the Fir-trees,
And strips the leaves from the Woods;
And all tell His might in His Home. 8 9
The LORD controls the spheres,
And the LORD sits King for ever! 10
The LORD is the strength of His People,
May the LORD bless His Race with peace. 11

PSALM 30.

By David.—A Psalm for the Dedication of his Home. 1

I will exalt You LORD who delivered,—
That my foes should not sneer over me, 2
And mock, LIVING GOD, when I cried to You. 3

LORD, You took up my life from the Grave,
You revived when descending the pit;
So I chant to the LORD for His mercy, 4
And praise when remembering Him kind. 5
His anger is but for a moment, 6

But His kindness remains for a life.
In the evening He may bring me tears,
But enjoyment at dawn!

7 I exclaimed in my ease, I shall never be moved,—
8 You LORD, in Your kindness, had fixed my Hill firm.
But You hid Your Presence, and I became weak!—
9 To you LORD I cry, and to you LORD I pray,—
10 What profits my blood, if I sink in a ditch?
Can the dust give You praise or report of Your truth?
11 Hear, LORD, and have pity, be helpful to me.
12 My grief You have turned to a dance,
Stripped my sackcloth, and girt me with joy.
I therefore will chant to Your glory,
Nor be dumb to JEHOVAH my GOD,
But thank You for ever and ever.

PSALM 31.

1 To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

2 I trust to You LORD, without shame;
To Your goodness I always can fly.
3 Bend your ear to me, then, from on high,
Become my Deliverer, a tower of strength,
And a fortified house to preserve!
4 For you are my Fortress, and rock,
So lead me and guide by Your power.
5 Release from the net they have spread;—
For You are my Guardian alone.
6 My breath to Your hand I resign,
So redeem me O LORD GOD of Truth.

STANZA 2.

7 I have hated the teachers, of empty ideas,
And my trust I have placed in the LORD,—
8 In Your mercy I joy and am glad.
Because You have looked on my griefs,
And known of the woes of my life,
9 Give not up to the hand of my foe,
But set on my feet, in the plain.

STANZA 3.

10 O! pity me, LORD—for my sorrows,
My body, and soul, and my sight waste with grief,
11 For by anguish my life is consumed,
And my years are exhausted in sighs;
By sufferings the strength of my body decays.
12 I became to my tyrants a jest,
To my neighbours a grief, and a dread to my friends,
Who saw me in public and fled!
13 'I'm forgot, as the dead from their heart,
I'm become like a vessel disused,
14 For I heard the abuse of the mob,
Who conspired around about me,
And plotted to capture my life.

STANZA 4.

15 But I have relied upon You,
For, O LIFE, You are truly my GOD.
16 In Your hand is my fate;—set me free

From the power and pursuit of my foes,
 And let Your face smile on Your slave, 17
 And save me for Your mercy's sake.
 O LORD shame me not when I call ; 18
 In the silent grave let the bad sink,
 And silence the false-speaking lips, 19
 Bold, proud, and insulting the good.
 For great is the goodness You store, 20
 For Your friends, and the kindnesses done,
 By You to the children of Adam !
 You hide in Your presence secure, 21
 You guard them from ruffian men,
 And shelter from libellous tongues.

STANZA 5.

Thank the LORD for His marvellous acts, 22
 A Strong-hold was His kindness to me !
 Yet I have exclaimed in my terror, 23
 I shall be cut off in Your sight ;—
 But You heard the voice of my prayers,
 When I to You shouted aloud !—
 So let all His saints love the LORD ; 24
 For the faithful the LORD will preserve,—
 But repay to the rest their proud acts.
 Take courage ! embolden your hearts, 25
 All you who keep watch for the LORD.

PSALM 32.

A Meditation by David. 2

He is happy whose sin is reversed—
 Whose fault is forgiven !

STANZA 1.

How Happy the man, 2
 Whose fault the LORD counts not to him,
 And there is in his mind no defect !

STANZA 2.

In my silence my bones wore me out, 3
 When I groaned for the length of the day,
 While Your heavy hand, day and night, 4
 Changed my moisture to summer's fierce drought.

STANZA 3.

My sin I confessed, nor have hidden my wrong ; 5
 To the LORD I told freely my crime ;
 So You have forgiven my passionate fault !—
 For this, all in sin will be prayerful to You, 6
 At the time they discover their slip,
 That the torrent of waters may not overwhelm.
 You were my shelter, my guard in distress, 7
 When I called were the guard of my flight !

STANZA 4.

GOD'S REPLY.
 " I will teach and will show you the way 8
 My glance will control you, and guide.
 Be not senseless like horses or mules, 9
 Who with bridle, and bit are controlled,
 To prevent them assailing yourself."

STANZA 5.

DAVID'S RESPONSE.

- 10 Many troubles will come to the bad,
 But who trust in the LORD possess ease.
 11 The Holy are glad and delight in the LIFE;
 And all the right-hearted rejoice.

PSALM 33.

The Exhortation.

- 1 You righteous rejoice in the LORD,
 You upright be happy and sing.

STANZA 1.

- 2 Give praise to the LORD with the Harp,
 Sing Him Psalms on the sweet mandoline.
 3 Come on I sing to Him a new song,
 And rejoice in Him with ringing cheers!—
 4 For the word of the LORD is sincere,
 And all His works rest upon truth.
 5 He loves both the just and the right,
 And His mercies replenish the earth.—
 6 The Lord made the skies by His word,
 And their Host by the breath of His mouth;
 7 He collects the wild waves of the Sea,
 From His treasures He gives out their foam.

STANZA 2.

- 8 Let all the earth reverence the LORD;
 All fear Him who dwell in the spheres;
 9 For HE spoke and they came into life,
 He commanded, and then they appeared!
 10 The LORD breaks the plans of the pagans,
 And frustrates mere human designs;—
 11 But the plans of the LORD last for ever,
 The designs of His heart for all times.
 12 Blest the nation whose GOD is the LORD,
 And the people He takes for His own.

STANZA 3.

- 13 From the heavens the LORD looking down,
 Examined the children of man;
 14 And from the abode of His Rest,
 GOD watched all the dwellers on earth:
 15 He, who formed every heart of the whole,
 Reflected on all they had done!—
 16 By his army, a King did not win,
 Nor a Hero prevail by his strength;
 17 The horse often failed to preserve,
 Or to fly by exerting his power;—
 18 But the LORD looks on those who fear Him,
 And those who rely on His love,
 19 From death to deliver their life,
 And restore them in periods of want.

CHORUS OF THE CONGREGATION.

- 20 Our souls therefore cling to the LORD
 For HE is our strength and our shield,
 21 And by Him our hearts are made glad,
 And we can in His HOLY NAME trust.
 22 Let Your mercy LORD rest upon us,
 For our hope has been fixed upon You.

PSALM 34.

Of David, in his Distress for Want of Food, when he went to Abimelech who Dismissed him and he Escaped.

STANZA 1.

The LORD I will bless at all times, 2
His praise shall remain in my mouth ;
My soul shall exult in the LORD,— 3
The wretched will hear and rejoice,
Exalting the LORD with myself, 4
And in union proclaiming His NAME.

STANZA 2.

I called to the LORD who replied, 5
And rescued me out of my fears.—
They will look out for Him and have light, 6
And their faces will not be cast down,
" The LORD heard this wretch, they will say, 7
And relieved him from all his distress."

STANZA 3.

The LORD'S Angels camp all around, 8
Those who fear Him, and serve Him like men,
How good the LORD is, taste and try :— 9
Men are happy who trust upon Him.
Let all His Saints look to the LORD, 10
For none who fear Him are in need,
The Tigers may pine and be starved, 11
But who seek for the LORD will find food.

STANZA 4.

" Come my children, and listen to me, 12
While I teach you to reverence the LORD.
What man takes delight in his life ? 13
Who is longing to see happy days ?
From wickedness hold back your tongue, 14
And your lips from the word that betrays.
Turn from insult and do what is kind ; 15
Seek peace and pursue it alone.
For the LORD is observing the good, 16
And His ears have recourse to their cry.—
The LORD rejects doers of wrong, 17
And erases their memory from earth.
But the LORD will hear those who implore. 18
And delivers from all their distress.
The LORD comes to the broken in heart, 19
And saves those whose mind is depressed.
The good may have frequently woes, 20
But the LORD will release from them all.—
He guards every one of his bones, 21
And provides that not one of them break.—
But the wicked are killed by their sin, 22
And the haters of good will despair.

ENVOY.

The LORD rescues the life of His servants,
And those who trust Him will not fail." 23

PSALM 35.

𐤑𐤍 𐤁𐤏𐤁.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Against my opponents, O LORD lead the fight,
 2 Seize Your shield and come on to my aid !
 3 Couch the spear, and close in with my hunters
 Tell my life, " I will come to save you."
 4 Bring to shame, and disgrace all who seek for my life,
 Repulse and reprove those who plot for my wrong ;—
 5 Let them be like the chaff to the wind ;
 And as when the LORD'S Angel pursues
 6 Let their pathway be slippery and dark,
 At the time the LORD'S Angel comes on,
 7 For they dig for me pits without cause,
 And lay nets for my innocent life.—
 8 Let them meet with destruction unknown,
 The net spread for my life, catch themselves,
 In their pit let them fall to despair.
 9 Then my life will be glad in the LORD,
 And rejoice in salvation from Him.
 10 All my bones they will say to the LORD,
 " Who like You saves the weak from the strong,—
 From their robbers, the poor and oppressed ? "

STANZA 2.

- 11 False witnesses rose against me,
 They accused me of what I knew not.
 12 They repaid me with evil for good,
 With intent to bereave me of life.
 13 Tho' I had in their griefs worn a sack,
 And enfeebled my life by my fasts,
 And my prayer from my bosom drew out.
 14 I went on my trembling knees,
 As though mourning a mother in death.—
 15 But they joy and collect, as I grieve,—
 Against me the ruffians combine.
 16 Those I know not, incessantly tear ;
 And as reprobates laugh at a feast,
 Against me they rattle their teeth !

STANZA 3.

- 17 How long, LORD, will you only look on ?—
 O ! deliver my life from their rage,
 Your beloved from their lion-like yells !
 18 In public I then can thank You,
 Would extol to a powerful race.—

STANZA 4.

- 19 Let no traitors triumph on me,
 Ceaseless haters, who wink with their eye ;
 20 Who never will think about peace,
 But of things that will trouble the land,
 They reflect, as the means of revolt.—
 21 Such opened their mouths against me,
 They sneered, " We have seen it ourselves."
 22 LORD, you also saw, be not silent my Prince,
 And from me remove not far away.
 23 Awake, rouse, and rise up as my judge,
 My God and my Prince plead for me !

LORD judge by your standard of right, And o'er me let them not triumph long.—	24
Let them not say " Ah-ah ! " in their hearts, Or, " We destroyed him," to their minds.	25
Shame, and degrade those who laugh at my wrongs, Clothe in shame and contempt for their boast ;	26
Let my true friends, rejoice and be glad,	27
And say, " How perpetually great is the LORD, Who enraptures His servant with peace! "
Then my tongue can declare You are good.	28
And will publish Your praises all day.

PSALM 36.

To the Conductor of the servants of the LORD. 1

By David.

STANZA 1.

Rebellion to Wickedness said,— " Oh, come to my heart ! "	2
There was no reverence of GOD in his sight, When he smiled with his eyes on his lies, But he will find out his vile sin !	3
His mouth utters lies and revolt, He meditates fraud on his bed ; He is firm in his path of no use, He never rejects what is bad !	4
	5

STANZA 2.

Your mercy LORD reaches the hills, Your truthfulness goes to the clouds ; Your goodness like mountains divine, Your justice is like flowing streams !	6
The LORD helps both the cattle and men ;— How precious your bounty, O GOD !— Adam's sons trust your canopy's shade, They are fed by the fat of your House, And they drink of your health-giving streams.	7
For with you is the Fountain of Life, And Your brightness gives to us light. Your kindness extends to Your friends, And Your goodness to those of right heart.	8
Let not a proud footstep be mine, Nor let mine be the hands to oppress. When evil they do let them fail, And never be able to rise.	9

PSALM 37.

By David.

STANZA 1.

Let not the wicked attract ;— Nor envy their practice of sin ; For like grass they are quickly cut down, And they wither, as do the green leaves. But trust in the LORD and do good, Rest safe in the land and be fed, And make your delight in the LORD, Who will grant the desire of your heart.	1
	4

- 5 Wind on your path up to the LORD ;
 And trust Him because He can save,
 6 And will bring out your right like the dawn,
 Your acquittal like noon of the day !
 7 Resign all, and rely on the LORD,—
 Fret not at the prospering path,
 Of the man who will practice deceit.
 8 Cease anger, and leave off from wrath,
 Nor be fretful, except against wrong ;
 9 For the wicked will all be cut off,
 And who trust in the LORD hold the Land.
 10 Wait awhile, and the bad will be not !
 While you look at him, his home is gone !
 11 But the kind will inherit the land,
 And enjoy its perfection of peace.
 12 Tho' the wicked may rage at the good,
 And gnash with their teeth against them.
 13 The Almighty still laughs them to scorn,
 For He sees that their day will come on :

STANZA 2.

- 14 The wicked draw sword, and bend bow,
 To strike down the feeble and poor,
 And murder the good on the path ;—
 15 But their sword will come to their own hearts,
 And their bows will destroy their own selves ;
 16 And what little the righteous possess,
 Is more than the wealth of the bad.
 17 For the arms of the bad will be smashed,
 But the LORD will the righteous support.
 18 Of the honest the LORD knows the days,
 Their possessions for ever will be,
 19 Nor fail in the time of distress,
 But in periods of famine be fed,
 20 While the wicked will wither away,
 And who hate the LORD, like a parched field
 Will vanish in smoke and dissolve !
 21 The bad borrows, and does not repay,
 The righteous is generous and gives,
 22 Whom He blesses inherit the earth,
 And those whom He curses decay.
 23 The man who steps on with the LORD,
 Is safe, and his pathway is smooth ;
 24 If he stumbles he is not cast down,
 For the LORD will hold him by His hand.
 25 I have been young,—and now I am old,
 And have not seen the righteous forsaken,
 Nor his children go begging their bread ;
 26 All day he was kindly, and lent,
 And so his descendants are blest.
 27 Turn away from the wrong and do right,
 And eternal your dwelling will be ;
 28 For the just are beloved by the LORD,
 And He never abandons His Saints ;
 For eternity they are preserved,
 But the Race of the bad is destroyed ;
 29 For the good will inherit the earth,
 And upon it for ever will dwell.
 30 For the mouth of the good utters sense,
 And his tongue speaks for justice alone.
 31 With the Laws of his GOD in his heart,
 He never will cease to advance.

STANZA 3.

The wicked lay wait for the good,	32
And seek to procure his death.
But the LORD will not leave to their hand,	33
Nor let him be wronged by their judge.
Keep the path of the LORD and have hope,	34
He will help you to conquer the land,
And to cut off the wicked you fear.
I have seen how the wicked succeed,	35
And spread like a green growing tree ;
Then I passed and I saw he was not,	36
And I sought him, but nowhere could find.
Watch the True, and regard the Upright,	37
For the end of those men is in peace.
But Transgressors will perish together,—	38
The future of sinners is wreck.
The righteous are served by the LORD,—	39
Their fortress in time of distress,—
JEHOVAH assists and protects,	40
And saves from the hand of the bad,
All who trust upon Him.

PSALM 38.

A Memorial Psalm of David.

1

STANZA 1.

LORD punish me not in Your haste,	2
Nor in Your hot anger correct ;
For Your arrows have pierced into me,	3
And upon me the blow of Your hand.
In my flesh now no soundness remain,	4
Because of Your wrath ;
In my bones there is nothing of ease,
Because of my sin !
For my passions went over my head,	5
Like a burden too heavy to bear.
They debase and they rot me away,—	6
And because of my crimes,
I am bent and crushed down.	7
All the day I am walking in gloom,
For my vitals are full of disease,	8
And there is no health in my frame.
I am feeble and very depressed,	9
And groan from my anguish of heart.
All my wail is before You, my LORD,	10
And my sighs are not hidden from You.
My heart throbs, my vigour is gone,	11
And I have not the sight of mine eyes.
My loved ones and friends shrink away,	12
They rise and avoid my approach ;
But those hunt, who desire my life,	13
And are seeking for injuries to me,
And meditate treason all day.

STANZA 2.

But I, like the deaf, hear it not ;	14
And there is in my mouth no reproof.
I am like to a man who hears not,	15
And without a reproach in his mouth.
Yet my hope, LORD, relies upon You,—	16
You, my LORD and my GOD, are my help ;—
For I thought they would triumph on me ;	17

- 18 Would exult when my footsteps had slipped.
For now I am ready to halt,
And my anguish is always at hand.
19 I therefore confess to my faults,
And deeply I grieve for my sins.
20 But my enemies live and are strong,
And my treacherous haters increase ;
21 And they who pay goodness with hurt,
Accuse me, though I did them good !

ENVOY.

- 22 LORD never forsake me ;—
My GOD leave me not.
23 Haste to help me, my Saviour and Prince,

PSALM 39.

I To Jeduthun the Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

- 2 I said I will guard my path,
From sinning with my tongue ;
With a bridle guard my mouth,
3 From ever-approaching crime !
I was silent and dumb,
I was silent from good,
But I troubled and grieved.—
4 My heart was hot in my breast,
A fire burnt in my mind,
Until I uttered my thoughts ;—
5 Instruct me, LORD, of my end,
And what the extent of my days,—
What I am and how weak, let me know.

STANZA 2.

- 6 You have given me a measure of days
I am weak, and as nothing to You ;
How weak are all men at the best !—
7 How shadow-like man passes by !
How vainly he stores up his wealth.
And who will collect it knows not !
8 And what now, my LORD, is my hope ?
My only hope rests upon You.

STANZA 3.

- 9 Redeem me from all my revolvings,
Let me not be the scorn of the vile.
I was silent, nor opened my mouth,
10 Because You had done it Yourself.
Remove Your affliction from me ;
11 I am crushed by the blow of Your hand,—
12 For when You correct man for sin,
You crush all his joys like a moth ;—
How feeble ! alas ! are all men !

STANZA 4.

- 13 Listen, O LORD to my prayer,
And attend to my cries,
Be not deaf to my tears ;
For I am but a stranger with You,—
A lodger, like my fathers were.
14 Then make for me comfort awhile,
Before I depart, and am not.

PSALM 40.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

Hoping, I hoped in the LORD, 2
 Who looked on, and heard as I cried, 3
 And raised from the Pit of Despair, 3
 Pulled my feet from the miry clay, 4
 Placed on the firm rock of success, 4
 And put a new song in my mouth.— 4
 Many saw and gave thanks to our GOD, 4
 And will reverence and trust in the LORD.

STANZA 2.

Happy man! who can trust in the LORD, 5
 Nor turns to false slippery lies! 6
 LORD how many the things You have made, 6
 How grand Your designs for our sakes, 6
 No man can relate them for You,— 6
 They exceed every utterance by speech. 7
 You approved not of offerings and gifts, 7
 —You revealed to my ears,— 7
 You asked not burnt offerings for sin, 8
 So I answered, " Behold I have come, 8
 As prescribed in the letter to me, 9
 With delight, GOD, to work out Your will, 9
 For Your law is endorsed in my breast. 10
 I publicly preached about Right, 10
 You know, LORD, my lips were not still, 11
 I hid not Your good news in my heart,— 11
 Your Truth, and Salvation proclaimed; 11
 I concealed not Your mercy and Faith, 11
 From the Public at large!

STANZA 3.

LORD hold not Your pity from me, 12
 Let Your mercy and truth always guard. 12
 • For sufferings upon me are heaped, 13
 Without number the frailties I bear, 13
 To look at them I have no power; 13
 They are more than the hairs of my head, 13
 So I have abandoned my heart;— 13
 Let it please You, my LORD, to relieve, 14
 Everlasting make haste to my aid!— 14
 Degrade and disgrace them at once, 15
 Who hunt for my life to destroy, 15
 Repulse and defeat those who joy in my woes; 16
 Give them loss, in reward for their jeers, 16
 Who uttered against me their laugh. 16
 Let those sing and be glad who seek You, 17
 Say always the LORD was my Saviour and Friend. 17
 For tho' I am poor and in want, 18
 About me my LORD cares, and guards,— 18
 So delay not to save me, my GOD.

PSALM 41.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

Bless the man who consoles the depressed! 2
 The LORD will relieve him in grief, 2
 LORD! keep his life happy on earth, 3

- 4 And give not to the wish of his foes.
 LORD! support him when sick on his bed;
 And in illness make pleasant his couch.

PSALM 41A.

STANZA 1.

- 5 I entreat, LORD, have pity on me;
 Heal my soul though I sinned against You.
 6 My foe says,—“It goes hard with him;
 He will die and his memory fade.”
 7 And if on a visit he comes,
 Deception he speaks from his heart;
 His malice he feeds in himself,
 Goes out, and then spreads it abroad.
 8 All my enemies whisper together.
 All who hate me combine for my hurt.
 9 They say, “He is loaded with crimes,—
 When he falls he will not rise again!”

STANZA 2.

- 10 Yet that man was my most trusted friend;
 He has kicked me who ate of my bread;
 11 So have pity, O LORD, upon me,
 And raise, that I may repay him;—
 12 By which I shall know that You love,
 When o'er me my foes cannot shout.
 13 And You hold me up in my right,
 And fix me for ever near You.

PSALM 41B.

A Chorus or Doxology.

- 14 Let Israel bless the LIVING GOD for ever,
 And ever, and for aye!
 Amen and still Amen.¹

PSALM 42.

- 1 To the Bandmaster.

A Meditation addressed to the Choristers.

STANZA 1.

- 2 As pants a Hart for rippling brooks,
 So pants my soul my GOD for You.
 3 My soul is thirsting for my GOD:—

¹ NOTE.—The 41st Psalm of the ordinary notation is clearly three distinct anthems, of entirely distinct character, confused by some ancient transcriber. I consequently separate them.—F. F.

- When can I come, Oh Source of Life,
And see the face of GOD?
My tears have been my food,
Whilst day and night they ask,
"To-day where is your GOD?" 4
- I think of this, and pour my soul,
For to the House of GOD I went, 5
Along with you, with cheerful voice;
And festive singing crowds.
- STANZA 2.
- Why are you bowed down, O my soul?
And why in trembling grief for me?
I still possess my trust in God,
And thank Him for His help. 6
- STANZA 3.
- My GOD, my soul is bowed for me:—
Yet from Depression's Land I think, 7
And from Grief's Mountain, bow to You
Where torrent—torrent hails, 8
With voices from Your crashing falls,
And waves that roll along.
- STANZA 4.
- By day JEHOVAH shows his love,
And sings with me at night.— 9
I pray to GOD about my life,—
I ask from GOD, my hope, 10
"Why do I walk depressed
While enemies oppress
And crush me to my bones?
Tormentors in their scorn,
Demand from me all day,
"Ah, where is now your GOD?" 11
- STANZA 6.
- Why are you bowed down, O my soul,
And why in trembling grief for me? 12
In GOD I still possess my trust,—
Still thank my Saviour, Prince, and GOD!
- PSALM 43.
- STANZA 1.
- GOD judge me, and plead in my cause 1
Against an unmerciful race;
And guard me from men false and vile;
For You, only, my GOD, are my help. 2
O! why do You cast me away?
O! why do I walk so depressed
While my foeman is free to oppress?
Send Your light and Your truth, 3
They comfort and lead to Your Hill,
And up to your Holy Abode,
Where I go to the Altar of GOD,— 4
To the God of my pleasure and joy,
And thank you, my GOD, with the harp.
- STANZA 2.
- Why are you depressed, O my soul?
And why are you anguished within?
I still have my trust in my GOD,
Still thank my Prince, Saviour, and GOD. 5

PSALM 44.

1 To the Conductor of the Choristers.

A Meditation.

STANZA 1.

THE GENERAL.

2 O! GOD, we have heard with our ears,
 Our Fathers relating to us,
 The wonders You did in their days,
 In the days of old times,
 3 When your hand drove the Heathen away,
 And you punished and flung out vile tribes.
 4 For they seized not the land by their sword,
 And their own arm did not save themselves,
 But Your right hand and arm,
 And the light of Your face, for You loved.

STANZA 2.

THE TROOPS.

5 And You are our Leader, and GOD,
 Who orders for Jacob success.
 6 Our opponents through You we defeat,
 And who rise, we o'erthrow by Your NAME.

THE GENERAL.

7 For I rely not on my bow,
 And victory comes not from my sword;—
 3 But from our assailants You save,
 And make those who hate us to fail.
 9 Let us cheer to our GOD all the day,
 And for ever give praise to HIS NAME.

STANZA 3.

THE TROOPS.

10 Will You now reject and disgrace
 And not with our armies go out?—
 11 Would You now turn us from our foes,
 And let those who hate us rejoice?
 12 Will You let us be eaten like sheep,
 And for Pagans to chase like a storm?
 13 Will You sell Your People for naught
 And make no wealth out of their price?
 14 Will You set us a scorn to our friends,
 To our neighbours a laughter and mock?
 15 Will You set us a proverb to Pagans,
 And to Peoples a shaking of head?

THE GENERAL.

16 All day put dishonour before me,
 And cover my face with disgrace?
 7 At the voice of Derision and Libel,
 In the face of my foe, unrevenged?

STANZA 4.

THE TROOPS.

18 All this comes, tho' we have not forsook,
 Or not to your Treaty been false;
 19 We have not turned away in our hearts,
 Nor bent our steps out of Your path,
 20 Yet we fall in a den full of snakes,
 And are wrapped in the Shadow of Death!
 21 Had we forgotten the name of our GOD,

And stretched our hands to a God who was strange,
Would not GOD enquire about that,	22
For he knows all the secrets of hearts?
Yet for You we are murdered all day,	23
We are treated like sheep to be slain!
✓ Rouse, ALMIGHTY! For what do You sleep?	24
Awake! nor cast us off for ever!
Your face, for how long will You hide,	25
And forget our affliction and grief?
Rise up, and to us restore ease,	26
And redeem us, because You are kind,

PSALM 45.

To the Conductor of the Flageolets. 1

A Meditation for the Choristers.—A Song of the Affections.

MAIDEN BRIDE.

" My heart o'erflows, with pleasant thought;—
I tell my doings to the King,—	2
A rapid writer's pen, my tongue."

DAVID.

" You're fairer than a child of Adam,
Your graceful lips express it well,	3
So may GOD bless for ever."

MAIDEN BRIDE.

" Your sword gird on your thigh,	4
For courage, fame, and honour;
For Honour, drive your Chariot,	5
And for the sake of truth,
Seek out and help the Right:—
It honours your right hand.
Your darts will Nations pierce,	6
Beneath you they will fall,—
Aim at your foeman's heart.
Your Throue, Prince, is for ever;—	7
Your Kingdom's Staff, the Right;
You love the right, and hate the wrong,	8
So GOD, your GOD, anoints
With sweeter oil than all your friends!
Your garments smell of cassia-myrrh;	9
From ivory jars, to make you glad."

DAVID.

" On you Kings' daughters wait,	10
A Queen stands at your right,
In lace of woven gold.
Hear, girl, look and attend;—	11
Forget your Tribe, and Home.
A King desires your love,—	12
Bow to him, as your LORD,
Tyre's daughter brings you gifts,	13
The wealthy nations come."

THE PRIEST.

" Princess of Glorious Veil,	14
With Gold Embroidered Robes,
Approach the King with grace;	15
Come, follow, shepherd girls,
Where she leads on for you.
Advance with joy, and smile,—	16
She enters the King's Hall."

THE CHORUS TO THE BRIDE.

- 17 "Your Sons, instead of father,
Will sit provincial Lords.
18 Forget your name for ever,
And the Tribes will always love."

PSALM 46.

- 1 To the Conductor of the Choir of Girl Singers.

A Song.

STANZA 1.

- 2 GOD is a refuge for us,
A strong help, when great troubles come;
3 So when the earth quakes we fear not,
Tho' hills splash to the heart of the seas,
4 Whose waters will murmur and roar,
And break on the Cliffs in their rush.

STANZA 2.

- 5 Bright streams deck the City of GOD,
Whose Holy Abode is on High,
6 She shrinks not with GOD in her midst;—
GOD comforts at break of the day.

STANZA 3.

- 7 Trembling Peoples and Kingdoms may shake,
Earth dissolve when He utters His voice;—
8 With us is the LORD of the Hosts,
Jacob's GOD is a fortress for us!

STANZA 4.

- 9 Come gaze on the works of the LORD
What power they show to the earth!
10 He gives peace to the bounds of the land,
Breaks the bow, and the arrow, and spear,
And the Chariots burns in the fire!

THE LORD'S ORDER.

- 11 Go and learn, that I only am GOD.—
I rule in the Heathen, I rule in the Land!

CHORUS.

- 12 With us is the LORD of the HOSTS!—
Jacob's GOD is a Fortress to us!

PSALM 47.

- 1 To the Conductor of the Choir.

A Psalm.

STANZA 1.

- 2 Let all the Tribes clap with their hands,
Cheer to GOD with a clear ringing voice;
3 Thus honour the LORD in the Heights,
The Great King over all on the Earth!
4 Who threw down the People beneath us,
And put nations under our feet.
5 He chose for us our possessions,
The Glory of Jacob He loved!

STANZA 2.

Rouse GOD with a shout!—	6
The LORD with the voice of a trumpet!—
Chant all to our GOD, O chant,—	7
Chant, yes, chant to our King.
For GOD is the King of all earth,	8
So now with intelligence sing!

STANZA 3.

GOD is the King over Nations,	9
As HE sits on His most Holy Throne,
So Princes of Peoples collect,	10
With the People of Abraham's GOD,
For the Princes who guard all the Land,
Are offering much!

PSALM 48.

A Dancing Song for the Choristers. 1

STANZA 1.

INVOCATION.
Exalt our LORD, and highly praise,	2
In City of GOD's Holy Hill!
The lovely height,—our country's joy,—	3
With Zion's City on the North,—
The City of the Mighty King!

STANZA 2.

RESPONSE.
GOD is known in her Mansions high ;—	4
When Kings learnt that, they passed ;—	5
They looked, they feared, and shook in dread,	6
Their loins shook with child-birth pains,—	7
As Tarshish ships wrecked by East-winds.	8

STANZA 3.

CHORUS OF TRIBUTARY KINGS.
" As we had heard,—so now we see,	9
The City of the LORD OF HOSTS.
The City of the GOD of gods,
Was founded for all time!

STANZA 4.

" We have thought of Your kindness, O GOD,	10
In the midst of Your Glorious Home :
GOD, Your fame is as wide as Your praise,—	11
Your hand fills the earth with all good ;
So let the Mount Zion rejoice,—	12
The daughters of Judah be glad,— Because of Your perfect Decrees!"

STANZA 5.

THE CHOIR.
Come forward and go about Zion,—	13
And number her Towers!
Lay your heart to her ramparts,	14
Consider her Halls,
And regard them for ages to come!
For her GOD, is our GOD for ever,	15
And HE is our guardian till death!

PSALM 49.

1 To the Conductor of the Choristers.

A Psalm.

STANZA 1.

2 Hear this all you Peoples,—
 Attend, all who dwell in the World :—
 3 Sons of Adam, with children of men,
 Along with the rich and the poor.
 4 For my mouth speaks in knowledge,
 And sense is the thought of my heart.
 5 I will bend down my ears to the verse,
 And unfold my ideas to the harp!

STANZA 2.

6 Why fear I the bad in my right ?
 And the wicked surrounding my feet ?
 7 Those who trust on their power,
 And confide on their wealth ?
 8 Which never can set a man free,
 Nor give GOD a ransom for him.
 9 How costly redeeming their lives,
 When they fall down for ever !
 10 For can he always live,
 And look not on decay ?

STANZA 3.

11 Yet he sees that philosophers die :—
 All, like fools and the brutes are destroyed,
 And to others abandon their power.
 12 Their houses they thought built for ever,
 And their dwellings for ages of time,
 And they fix their own names on their Lands.
 13 Yet man cannot last in renown,
 He perishes like the dumb brutes.
 14 How foolish this way of theirs is !
 But their children delight in their plans.

STANZA 4.

15 They lie in the grave like a flock ;
 Death shepherds them when they descend,
 He lays them straight out to the view,
 With their troubles and griefs in his care.
 16 But GOD will deliver my life
 From the hand of the Grave, who may seize.

STANZA 5.

17 Envy not when a man grows in wealth ;
 When in honour his family gains,
 18 For nothing he takes in his death,
 Nor can carry his honours with him
 19 Though his mind may be happy in life,—
 Yet that you are well be content,
 20 He goes to his ancestor's race,
 And never more looks on the light.
 21 Men in honour, and yet without sense,
 Are like to the perishing beasts.

PSALM 50.

A Psalm of Asaph.

STANZA 1.

The GOD of gods, the LORD, has spoken,	1
Called Earth from Sunrise to its set,
GOD'S perfect beauty shines from Zion ;	2
Our GOD comes on and is not still.	3
Fire devours before Him,
And round Him mighty storms.
He calls to Heaven above,
And Earth to help His Race ;	4
" Collect to me my Saints,
By offering treat with Me.	5
The Heavens declare the right,
Which GOD Himself decrees.	6

STANZA 2.

" I speak,—My People hear,—	7
Whilst I, you, Israel teach,
Your GOD of gods am I!—
I claim not sacrifice,	8
Your gifts before me stand.
Nor take bulls from your house,
Nor goats from out your fold.—	9
All Forest-beasts are mine,
Herds on a thousand hills.—	10
I know all mountain birds,—
The pasture's wealth is mine.	11
I need not tell if hungry,—
Mine are the whole World's fruits!—	12
Eat I the flesh of bulls ?
Or drink the blood of goats ?—	13
Then offer GOD your thanks,
Pay the MOST HIGH your vows,	14
Call Me in Sorrow's day,—
I will relieve ;—you thank."	15

STANZA 3.

But GOD asks of the bad	16
" Why study you my Laws ?
Take My Treaty in your mouth,
Whilst you correction hate,	17
And fling Commands away ?
You see a Thief,—and share with him ;—	18
And with the adulterers join !
You let your mouth to rogues,
And mislead by your tongue !	19
You libel all your brothers,
Your mother's son revile!—	20
Did these, and I was still,—
You thought Me like yourself !	21
Reflect ! nor GOD forget,
Lest I resistless tear,—	22
So offer thanks to Me.
And walk GOD'S saving path."	23

PSALM 51.

1 To his Bandmaster.

2 A Psalm, by David, when Nathan the Preacher came to him on account of his Adultery with Bathsheba.

STANZA 1.

3 Pity me GOD in Your mercy,
In great kindness blot out my crime.
4 Like rain-showers wash off my passions,
And purify me from my guilt,
5 For I will acknowledge my crime,
And before me are standing my sins;
6 I certainly sinned against You,
And committed this wrong in Your sight;
You therefore are right in Your message,
And are in Your sentence correct.
7 Alas! I was born with this passion,
And my mother conceived me for sin.

STANZA 2.

8 You delight in the truth that was hid,
My conscience You made me display;
9 But cleanse me and scour me with soap,
Yes, wash me till whiter than snow.
10 If You hear me I joy and am glad,
The bones You have broken will laugh.—
11 Oh, cover Your face from my sin,
And the whole of my passions blot out!
12 Create a clean heart for me, GOD;
And put a new mind in my breast.
13 And cast me not out from Your Presence,
Nor take Your pure spirit from me.
14 Restore me Your triumphant joy, §
Support me with freedom of soul,
15 Then I'll teach the rebellious Your path,
And turn back the sinners to You.
16 O pardon me, GOD, for the murders;—
O give me salvation, my GOD!
When my tongue will proclaim You are right,

STANZA 3.

17 My Prince You have opened my lips,—
Your kindness my tongue shall proclaim.
18 You wished not for Offerings or Gifts,
And Burnt-offerings gave You no delight,
19 So I give to GOD my brokeu spirit;—
A heart that is broke and depressed,
Will not be refused by that GOD.

PSALM 51A.¹

A Prayer for Zion.

20 O! look with Your favour on Zion,
And build up Jerusalem's walls.
21 Then You will be pleased with right Offerings,
On Your Altar whole bulls they will lay!

¹ NOTE.—These last four lines of the usually called 51st Psalm are most certainly not a part of David's sublime Ode of repentance, therefore I separate them as above.—F. F.

PSALM 52.

To his Bandmaster. 1
 A Meditation by David, when Doag the Edomite went and Reported 2 to Saul. "David has gone to the House of Ahimelek."

STANZA 1.

Why boasts the General of mischief?— 3
 GOD's mercy exists all the day.—
 Mischief you weave with your tongue, 4
 With a glance of the eye you betray.
 Evil you love more than good, 5
 Falsehood better than speaking the truth!

STANZA 2.

You love everything that is vile;— 6
 With your tongue you will always mislead.—
 But GOD will destroy you for ever, 7
 And cast you away from His Hall;
 And uproot from the land of your life!

STANZA 3.

The righteous will see it and fear, 8
 And raise up a laugh against him,
 "See that man put no trust upon GOD, 9
 But relied on his wealth and his might!"

STANZA 4.

But I grow in GOD's House like an olive, 10
 Always trust in Your mercy, O GOD,
 I will praise You for ever, for what You have done, 11
 And will call on Your Name,
 For sweet mercy is present with You.

PSALM 53.

To his Bandmaster. 1
 A Reflection upon his Sickness, by David.

STANZA 1.

"There is no GOD," says the fool in his heart, 2
 Corrupted and rotten in vice, never practising good.
 On the Children of Adam, GOD looked down from the Heavens 3
 To see if they had enough sense to enquire for GOD?
 All straggled, corrupted together, 4
 None doing fairly, no, not even one!

STANZA 2.

Do they not know they do wrong 5
 When devouring My Race as they eat up their bread?
 And they call not on GOD!
 So they tremble where no fear exists, 6
 For GOD shakes the bones of the vile;
 Brings to grief for despising their GOD,
 Who gives Israel victory from Zion. 7

(ENVOY, BY A RABBINICAL EDITOR.)

(When GOD turns His People's captivity, Jacob will laugh and Israel smile.) 8

PSALM 54.

1 To his Bandmaster.

2 A Reflective Song, by David, when the Ziftes went and Reported to Saul that David was Lying near them.

STANZA 1.

3 GOD, in Your power is my safety,
And in Your might my defence,—
4 Oh, GOD hear my prayer,
And attend to the words of my mouth,
5 For savages rise upon me,
And ruffians seek for my life;
With whom there is no thought of GOD!

STANZA 2.

6 But look! for a GOD is my helper,
The ALMIGHTY supporting my life.
7 He turns their crime back on my foes,
And He by His firmness destroys

STANZA 3.

8 With a vow, I will offer to You,
Praise Your Name, Lord, because You are good!
9 For from all my foes You deliver,
And my enemies show to my sight.

PSALM 55.-

1 To his Bandmaster.

A Reflective Song by David.

STANZA 1.

2 Listen O GOD to my prayer,
And hide not Yourself from my pleas;
3 Give a hearing to me, and reply,
For I wander reflecting, and moan,
4 At my foe's voice, before and behind,
For the wicked throw terror on me;
They accuse me with fury and rage,
5 My heart beating quick in my breast,
Whilst the faintness of Death on me falls;
6 And on me fear and shuddering comes,
And terrors encircle me round!
"Who will give me Dove's wings," I exclaim,
7 To fly off, and seek myself rest?
For then I would fly far away,
And rest in the Desert secure.
8 I would hasten to make my escape,
9 From the rage of this wind, and this storm."

STANZA 2.

10 LORD swallow and split up their tongues,—
Cruel wrong I have met in this Town,—
11 Day and night they encircle the walls,—
And passion and sorrow are there.
12 There, mischief that will not depart;
With arrogance, malice, and fraud.

STANZA 3.

13 I could have borne, if a foe had reviled,
Or against me an enemy rose,—
For I could have hidden from them.

But you, man, were close by my side,— 14
 You were my companion and friend!—
 How sweetly we chatted together, 15
 As we walked to GOD'S HOUSE with the crowd,
 O! fling sudden ruin on him,— 16
 Let him go while alive to the Grave!—
 For malice was deep in his breast!

STANZA 4.

I will cry for myself to my GOD, 17
 To the LORD who is able to save.
 At evening, and morning, and noon, 18
 As I cry He hears my moaning voice.—
 He will give my soul peace in my breast, 19
 From the many who stand against me.
 GOD hears me, and will punish them, 20
 And fling to distress from their rock,
 To which they will not be restored,
 Because they have no fear of GOD.

STANZA 5.

He held out his hand as for peace,— 21
 But his treaty he broke!
 Than butter his mouth was more smooth,— 22
 But war in his heart;
 His words they were softer than oil,— 23
 But they were only traps!
 Yet treacherous and blood-thirsty men, 24
 You, GOD, bring to deepest distress;
 They live not the half their days,—
 So I trust upon you!

PSALM 56.

By David, to his Bandmaster. 1

Composed on hearing the Cooing of Doves at a Distance, when Imprisoned with him, by the Philistines in Gath.

STANZA 1.

Oh, pity me, GOD, for I am overwhelmed; 2
 Every day men pursue me with war,
 They pant in pursuit all the day, 3
 Against me many warriors rise!—
 Though in fear, I will trust upon You; 4
 I am strong in the promise of GOD, 5
 I have trusted in GOD without fear,
 What can flesh do to me?

STANZA 2.

They devise things against me all day; 6
 All their thoughts are to do me some harm.
 They hide themselves watching my tracks, 7
 And they hope for my life!
 For their wickedness, shall they escape? 8
 Cast these people down, GOD, in Your wrath.
 Count my wanderings up for Yourself, 9
 Put into Your bottle my tears,—
 Are they not recorded with You?
 Then turn my foes back when I cry, 10
 To teach me that You are my GOD,
 The GOD on whose promise I trust, 11

12 Upon the LORD'S promise I rest;
My hope is on GOD without fear,—
So what can man do against me ?

STANZA 3.

13 Your vows are upon me, O GOD;—
I will pay in thank-offerings to you ;—
14 From Death you have rescued my life,—
So my feet have not faltered to fall,
For You went before me, my GOD,
In the BRIGHTNESS OF LIFE !

PSALM 57.

1 To his Bandmaster.

2 Written by David, on his Flight from the Presence of Saul, to the Cave.

STANZA 1.

O, pity me, pity me GOD,
For my soul has reliance on You ;
I will trust in Your canopy's shade,
Until my distressers have passed.—
3 I call to my GOD, the Most High,
To the GOD, who has laboured for me,
4 Who sent from the Heavens and saved,
And the Ruffians in power restrained,
When GOD sent His mercy and truth.

STANZA 2.

5 My life is laid down among lions;—
The furious children of men,
With arrows and spears for their teeth,
And their tongue is a glittering sword.

STANZA 3.

6 GOD whose grandeur is over the Heavens,
Your glory above all the earth;—
7 They spread out a net for my feet,
Dug pitfalls to capture my life;—
But they have sunk into their pit !

STANZA 4.

8 My heart rests, O My GOD, my heart rests !
So I sing You in songs, and in psalms.—
9 Arise up my pride ! arise harp and lute !—
I will rise up myself with the dawn,
10 And proclaim You, ALMIGHTY, to Nations,
To People sing of You in psalms ;
11 For Your Mercy is high as the skies,
And Your Truthfulness reaches the clouds ;
12 GOD, Your grandeur is over the Heavens,
And Your Glory above all the Earth !

PSALM 58.

1 Written to his Bandmaster.

By David, advising him never to Despair.

STANZA 1.

2 Those in Power should utter the truth,
And honestly govern the children of Adam.
3 But, alas ! from your hearts you do wrong ;

Your heavy hands loading the scales!—
 They wickedly stray from the womb, 4
 They wander from birth speaking lies.
 They poison like venom of asps, 5
 Like the Deaf-Adder shutting her ears,
 To hear not the voice of the Charmer, 6
 Tho' charming with greatest of skill.

STANZA 2.

GOD! pull out their teeth from their mouth; 7
 LORD! break the young lion's jaw teeth;
 Let them vanish like water when spilt; 8
 Like a snail that is crushed in the path, 9
 Or abortion that sees not the sun;
 Ere they see it surround them with thorns, 10
 That alive they may burn with a roar!

STANZA 3.

Then the Good will enjoy the result:— 11
 In the blood of the Bad wash his feet,
 And men say, "There is profit in right,— 12
 A GOD who does Justice on earth."

PSALM 59.

To his Bandmaster.

Written by David about the Willing of Saul, who sent and Besieged him in his House, to Kill him.

STANZA 1.

Release me, my GOD, from my foes,— 2
 Protect me from those who assail;
 Set me free from the doers of wrong, 3
 And save from these blood-thirsty men;
 For see how they hunt for my life, 4
 Their forces against me collect,—
 Not, LORD, for my fault or my sin!

STANZA 2.

They prepare to attack without cause,— 5
 Arise, and come forward and see!
 And You, O LORD GOD, of the Hosts, 6
 Awaken, O Israel's GOD!
 Unpitying visit these men,—
 All those who deceive and betray!

STANZA 3.

They return with dusk,—grin like dogs,— 7
 And then they encircle my house.—
 And, look, how they foam at the mouth, 8
 And the slaver runs down from their jaws!
 But You, LORD, about them can smile, 9
 You laugh all the day at the rogues.—
 You are strong!—I will trust upon You; 10
 For GOD is Himself, my defence.
 My GOD with His mercy precedes, 11
 My GOD protects me from my foes!
 Slay them not, lest my People forget, 12
 But disperse and o'erthrow by Your might,!

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 59, v. 12. ("The LORD is our shield!"), אֲדַבְּרֵי אֱלֹהִים. I would suggest this exclamation is an old Rabbin's comment, for it breaks the verse.—F. F.

- 13 By their mouth's sin, and speech of their lips,—
Let them thus be all caught in their pride.
Let the cursing and lies they relate.
14 Be consumed in a fire and destroyed !
And teach them that GOD has the rule,
To the furthest of bounds of the earth.

STANZA 4.

- 15 At dusk, they come back with their growls :—
Like dogs they encircle the house.—
16 They yell for the food they get not ;—
17 But I myself sing of Your power,
And am cheered by Your mercy till morn,—
For You are a Fortress to me,
And a refuge in times of distress.
18 My GOD as my Strength I will chant,
For GOD is my fortress, my GOD is my Trust !

PSALM 60.

- 1 Written by David, to his Bandmaster, as an Instruction during his Invasion of Aram-Nahrim (Mesopotamia) and Aram-Ṭobuh (the 2 Delta of the Euphrates, on the Persian Gulf), when Joab was Repulsed, and the Edomites slew Twelve Thousand, at the Conflux with the Ocean.

STANZA 1.

DAVID'S PRAYER.

- 3 GOD, in Your wrath You abandoned and routed,—
Turn to us again !
4 You shook the earth, till it broke,
And like rotten wood shattered !—
5 You have shown to Your people affliction,
We have drunk of the staggering wine ;
6 You abandoned Your standard to terrors,
To flight from the face of a rout !
7 That Your darlings may not meet destruction,
Let Your hand help and answer to me.

STANZA 2.

THE PRIEST.

- 8 GOD from His Sanctuary speaks.
I am glad !—

David.

DAVID'S ORDER FOR BATTLE.

- I will divide in the morning,
And lower the tents for advance ;
9 Take Gilad, and Manasseh with me,
And Ephraim to strengthen my Van,
And Judah shall serve as my Guard !
10 I will charge on the Moabite flank,
Over Edom will march in my boots,
And over Philistia cheer !

STANZA 3.

- 11 Who will storm for me the fort ?
And who against Edom will charge ?
12 GOD will not our armies forsake !
Will not GOD advance with our troops ?
13 And give to us strength in distress,
Where vain would be victory by men ?
14 With GOD we will gallantly work,
Our enemies HE will defeat !

PSALM 61.
To the Conductor of the Women Singers.		1
By David.
STANZA 1.
Listen, O GOD, to my cry!		2
And attend to my prayer!
I cry from earth's boundary to You,		3
In exhaustion of heart—
Lead me to a rock, that is higher than I,		4
For You ever were my defence,
A Fortress protecting from foes.		5
Let me rest in Your dwelling for ever
Let me fly to Your Canopy's shade!
STANZA 2.
For You heard my promises, GOD,—		6
Gave possessions for honouring Your Name;
Add days, to the days of the King,—		7
Make his years like the ages of age!
Let me dwell in the presence of GOD,		8
Where mercy and truth always guard;
Then I always can sing to Your Name,		9
And pay my vows, day after day.
PSALM 62.
To his Bandmaster, for Jeduthun.		1
A Psalm by David.
STANZA 1.
Yes! My soul is resigned to my GOD;		2
And from Him my safety will come.
Yes! He is my rock, and my Saviour,		3
My Hill whence I cannot be moved!
STANZA 2.
How long will you sit on a man?		4
You all like a wall will be broke,—
Like a fence bulging out to its fall!
They only advise by their lips,		5
Their lying mouth loves to deceive,
They bless,—with a curse in their heart!—
STANZA 3.
Yes! My soul is resigned to my GOD;		6
For from Him alone comes my hope;
Yes! He is my Rock, and my Saviour,		7
My Fort from which I will not move.
With GOD is my Safety and Might,		8
My Stronghold and Fortress is GOD,
So trust on Him, men, at all times,		9
And pour out your hearts before Him,
For our hope is on GOD!
Alas! feeble, frail sons of Adam;		10
Man's sons in the balance fly up:—
They are weakness alone!
STANZA 4.
Put not your trust upon wrong,—		11
For robbery leads not to power;

- Or on prospering set not your heart.
 12 GOD spoke once,—yes, and twice I have heard,
 That power is only from GOD,
 13 And from You, Almighty, comes mercy,
 For You reward men for their work !

PSALM 63.

- 1 A Psalm by David when he was fasting in the Wilderness of Judah.

STANZA 1.

- 2 GREAT GOD, You are my GOD,
 At dawn I seek for You,
 My soul and flesh long for You,
 On this land, dry, and weary,
 Where there is not a stream !
 3 To gaze upon Your goodness,
 To see Your glorious might ;
 4 For Your gift is more than life,
 And my lips declare You blest.
 5 So while that I can thank You,
 I lift hands to Your house ;
 6 For as with milk and honey,
 You have maintained my life,
 My lips and mouth will praise
 7 As I think on You in bed,
 While I watch for You I sigh,
 8 For You are still my comfort.

STANZA 2.

- When I sang in Your canopy's shade,
 9 My soul followed closely to You,
 So now let Your right hand support—
 10 But those who in rage hunt my life,
 Sink down to the depths of the Earth ;
 11 Or on the Sword's point let them run,
 Let them be as a gift to the wolves.

STANZA 3.

CHORUS BY DAVID'S MEN.

- 12 Let our Leader be glad in his GOD,
 All acknowledging Him will succeed,
 For He stops every false-speaking mouth.

PSALM 64.

- 1 To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

- 2 Listen, GOD, to the sound of my plaint,
 Guard my life from the rage of my foes ;
 3 Hide me from the plots of the bad,
 From the mob, who would do me a wrong ;
 4 Whose teeth are as sharp as a sword,
 5 Whose tongue shoots, like darts, bitter words,
 Which they cast from their dens on the good !
 6 They encourage themselves in vile things,
 And lay down their well-contrived traps,
 And say to themselves, " Who can see ? "
 7 They seek mischief with diligent search,
 And dive in man's breast and his heart.

STANZA 2.

But GOD will shoot arrows at them, 8
 And suddenly they will be struck,
 And their tongue will recoil on themselves, 9
 And all looking upon them will fly!
 All who see them will tell of God's act,— 10
 And how he has made them to fall.
 Then the good will rejoice in the LORD, 11
 And the upright in heart give Him thanks.

PSALM 65.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm for Singing, by David. 1

STANZA 1.

GOD, to You silent reflection is praise;— 2
 In Zion they pay to You vows,
 O! Hearer of Prayer, 3
 For all flesh comes to You!

STANZA 2.

The emotions of passion were stronger than I,— 4
 But You can erase our sins.
 Happy he whom You choose and approach, 5
 He can dwell in Your Courts full of bliss;
 In the House of Your Holy retreat.

STANZA 3.

You instruct us, revealing the right, 6
 O trustworthy GOD who can save,
 To all bounds of the Earth and wide Sea;
 Who fixed by His power the mountains, 7
 With majesty girdled around!
 Who pacifies loud roaring Oceans, 8
 Loud billows, and murmurs of nations!—
 The dwellers far off fear Your signs 9
 Making cheerful the dawn and the dusk.
 When You visit, and moisten the earth, 10
 A Lake full of water is GOD,
 For producing the corn, You prepared;— 11
 It soaks the earth's furrows, and clods,
 Whence plenty springs, blessed by Your showers.

STANZA 4.

The years advance crowned with Your wealth, 12
 And Your waggons are dropping with oil.
 Then the meads of the valley are dripping, 13
 And the hills are encircled with glee;
 The pastures are clothed by the flocks, 14
 And the Valleys so covered with corn,
 That they cheer!—and they sing!

PSALM 66.

To his Bandmaster,

A Choral Song. 1

STANZA 1.

Hurrah for our GOD, all the Earth 2
 Sing Psalms to His Glorious NAME;
 Give to Him honour and praise;—

3 Say, "GOD, how grand are Your works,
With what power You crush all Your foes!
4 And all the Earth bows to You down,
And sings, chanting psalms to Your Name!

STANZA 2.

5 Come, look on the products of GOD,
Displayed from on High to mankind,
6 When He turned the Sea into dry land,
That on foot they crossed over the stream,
And then we all gave thanks to Him.—
7 For ever He rules from on high,
His eyes on the Heathen are fixed;
And no rebel succeeds against Him!

STANZA 3.

8 Let the People give thanks to our GOD,
Let the sound of His praises be heard,
9 Who fixed our soul in our lives,¹
10 And lets not our footsteps be moved!

PSALM 66A.²A Lament of the Babylonian Captives.

STANZA 1.

11 You made us be led to the net,
You put a great load on our loins,
12 You caused men to ride o'er our heads,
So we passed through the water, and fire,
But will afterwards bring us to rest,
13 When with offering I'll come to Your House.—
To You I will pay all my vows,
14 Which I with my lips have declared,
And my mouth promised when in distress.
15 I will offer rich offerings to You,
I will sacrifice rams, with perfumes.

STANZA 2.

16 Come, hear me relate what I saw,
And what GOD has done for my soul.
17 I cried out to Him with my mouth,
And high praise was under my tongue.
18 If He had seen Sin in my heart,
Th' ALMIGHTY would not have heard me;—
19 However, GOD heard my request,
And has granted the voice of my prayer.

ENVOY.

20 Thank GOD, who has not turned away;
I prayed, and His mercy revived.

PSALM 67.

A Psalm for the Singers.

STANZA 1.

1 Let GOD favour and bless us,
2 And shine with His presence on us.

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 66, v. 9. See Genesis, ch. 2, v. 7.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Psalm 66A. The sense and purport shows this to be an entirely separate Psalm to that of the first ten verses, which are a song of triumph, not of despair.—F. F.

Revealing Your way to the Earth;
Your victories to every race ! 3

STANZA 2.

Let Nations call You their GOD, 4
You, let all the Nations proclaim !
Let the People rejoice and be glad, 5
For with Justice You govern the Tribes,
And comfort the Nations of Earth.

STANZA 3.

Let Nations call You their GOD, 6
You, let all the Nations proclaim ;
The Earth then will give out her products, 7
And GOD, our GOD, will bless us,
Us our GOD will bless,
And all bounds of the Earth revere Him !

PSALM 68.¹

From Habid, to his Bandmaster.—A Psalm for Singing. 1

STANZA 1.

Let GOD arise ! His foemen flee, 2
His haters turn before His face ;
And fly away like driven smoke ! 3
As melts the wax before a fire,
The bad will fail before our GOD ;
And then the righteous will be glad, 4
And will exult before our GOD ;
And joy with raptured glee.

STANZA 2.

Sing to our GOD ! chant to His Name !— 5
Who rides in Darkness borne !—
His Name is LIFE ; be glad to Him,—
Our GOD who from His Holy Court, 6
Protects the poor, and guards the Weak.

PSALM 68A.

An Anthem on the Release from Pharaoh.

STANZA 1.

GOD ! when you brought Your darlings Home, 7
Relieved the captives from their chains,
With smiles those slaves in freedom slept.
When you, GOD, led your People out, 8
And marched them thro' the desert land,
Earth shook ! the Heavens themselves bowed down ! 9
Yes ! Sinai to our GOD :—
Our GOD, the GOD of Israel !

¹ NOTE ON PSALM 68.—The whole of these Psalms, ordinarily named the 68th Psalm, from v. 1 to the end at v. 36, are exceedingly obscure and difficult in the Hebrew text, as we now have it. It is probably partly so from errors in transcription, which previous translators seem to have considered irremediable, and so give renderings that are all destitute of connection, sense, or meaning. But careful study to first ascertain the initial form of the thought of the sacred poets, and then a careful following of it, has I believe enabled me to arrive at the purport of the different anthems given above, which were evidently written after the days of David. In arriving at my renderings, I have been greatly assisted by the careful scholarship of the Rev. J. Bowen, B.D., Rector of St. Lawrence, Wolf's Castle, Pembroke-shire.—F. F.

STANZA 2.

- 10 And You, GOD, poured a copious rain;—
Your fainting race refreshed;—
11 Your creatures, GOD, revived
When wealth You gave Your poor.
12 When the ALMIGHTY ordered,
Were not a Host announced?
13 The serried Hosts advanced, advanced,
And housewives took the spoil!

PSALM 68B.

An Anthem, for use with the Sin-offering.

- 14 Though you have lain on the dung,
Like the Dove with her silvery wings,
And her feathers all spotted with Gold,
When she shakes herself free from the filth,
15 She will shine like the snow in the dusk!

PSALM 68C.

An Anthem to be Sung on Approaching Jerusalem.

- 16 GOD'S Hill 's a Hill of Bashan,
A Bashan dome-capped Hill!
17 Why are you proud, you lofty Hills?
GOD chose this for His Home,
The LORD dwells there for ever!

PSALM 68D.

An Anthem with a Thank-offering.

- 18 GOD'S Chariots bear ten thousand Warriors:—
With them is the MIGHTY, on Sinai the Holy!

PSALM 68E.

An Anthem of the Captives Returning from Babylon.

STANZA 1.

- LEADER. Let the Freer of Captives be highly exalted,
The Giver of blessings to men,
When restoring to Home, to the LIFE, our GOD.

STANZA 2.

- THE PEOPLE. Bless the Almighty to-day!—
To-day He has freed us,
The GOD who has saved us!
21 The GOD—our GOD, and our Saviour,
EVER-LIVING, ALMIGHTY, has brought us from death.

STANZA 3.

- LEADER. Yes! GOD broke the head of our foes,
The Ruffians who marched on in crime!—
23 Sing "The LORD has restored us from Bashan;
Restored from the depths of the sea!
24 So dabble your feet in the blood,—
Let the tongue of the dogs in your enemies share!"

PSALM 68F.

An Anthem on the Entry of the Priests into the Temple.

STANZA 1.

Let them see your processions, O! GOD, 25
 The Holy Processions, My GOD, and my King!
 The singers go first, and the harpers behind, 26
 Between them the girls with the Timbrels!

STANZA 2.

Give thanks in the crowds to our GOD, 27
 On Israel's Walls to the LORD.
 See there little Benjamin walks, 28
 The Princes of Judah, the strong,
 With Zebulun's Princes, and Naphtall's Chiefs!

PSALM 68G.

An Anthem for Beginning the Services.

PRIEST.

Your GOD has sent me strength. 29

PEOPLE.

Confirm O GOD Your work for us;
 At Your Temple in Jerusalem, 30
 Where Kings freely bring You gifts.
 There they drive up beasts with goads, 31
 And perfect rams, and calves.
 The tribes came there with silver,
 The People bow as they advance.
 The Mitzraim bring rich gifts, 32
 Kush lifts his hands to God.—
 Earth's Kingdoms sing to GOD, 33
 They chant to the ALMIGHTY!

PSALM 68H.

Song of Praise.

STANZA 1.

He who rides on the skies, He who has formed Earth,— 34
 Hark! with how great voice He speaks;—
 Ascribe strength to the GOD over Israel,— 35
 His splendour and strength, in the clouds!

STANZA 2.

From Your Sanctuary, GOD, give us light, 36
 And let Israel give thanks to his GOD,
 You strong and great People give thanks to your GOD.

PSALM 69.

To his Conductor of the Clarionettes. 1

By David.

STANZA 1.

Save me, GOD, for the seas go over my soul! 2
 I am sunk in the mire, without any rest; 3
 Come to deep waters, where floods sweep along;

- 4 I am weary with crying, my throat is inflamed,
And my eyes fail, from looking for GOD.
5 My haters are more than the hairs of my head,
My betrayers are stronger than I ;
I gave back to the liars what I never had stole !

STANZA 2.

- 6 You, my GOD, are aware of the faults I possess,
And my frailties can never be hidden from You.
7 Shame not, ALMIGHTY, by me, those whose hope is on You,
Nor Great LORD OF HOSTS, be dishonoured through me,
For they are Your seekers, O ! Israel's GOD.

STANZA 3.

- 8 For You I have suffered reproach,
My face has been covered with shame.
9 I became to my brother a stranger,
And unknown to my own mother's son ;—
10 For the zeal for your House had consumed,—
Your insulters' abuse fell on me ;
11 So I wept in depression of soul,
And they threw that on me to insult.
12 When I took for my clothing a sack,
From them I was subject to scorn.
13 Against me the nobles conspired,
And satires the Drunkards composed ;
14 But I pray to THE LIFE for good times :—
In Your great kindness, answer me, GOD,
And You in Your Faithfulness, save.

STANZA 4.

- 15 Release me from mire, or I sink,
Snatch from the Deep Sea of my foes,
16 Let not the floods sweep me away,
And let not the Gulfs swallow down,
Nor the Pit over me close her mouth.—
17 Answer, LORD, for Your mercy is sweet,
In Your gentleness turn towards me,
18 And hide not Your face from Your slave ;—
Haste to answer for I am in grief,
19 Redemption, O ! bring to my soul,
And let me be freed from my foes.
20 You know they reproached and reviled,—
All my tyrants abused me to You.
21 Their libels have broken my heart,
I am sick and I long to depart ;
In vain looked for friends,—but none came,— 22 When I hungered,—they opium gave,—
When I thirsted,—sharp acid to drink !

STANZA 5.

- 23 Make their table before them a trap,
A punishment to them, and snare.
24 Let their eyes be obscured from the light,
And their loins continually shake !
25 Pour out all Your anger on them,
And let Your fierce wrath overtake,
26 Let their Castles be wrecks,
In their Halls let none dwell.
27 For they chased after him You had struck,
And added anew to Your wounds !

So let them add fury to passion,	28
And let them not come to Your rest ;
Blot them from the Book of the Lives,	29
Let them not be inscribed with the Good ;
But I, from my misery and pain,	30
O GOD of Salvation, relieve !

STANZA 6.

GOD'S Name I will thank in a song,	31
And magnify Him in an ode,
And feast to the LORD with an Ox,	32
And a bullock with horns, and with hoofs.
The wretched will see and be glad,	33
And seek GOD and enliven their hearts,—
For the LORD still attends to the poor,	34
And the captived He does not forget.

PSALM 69A.

A Song of Refrain from Babel.

Let the Heavens, and the Earth give Him thanks,	35
The Seas and all moving in them ;
For GOD gives the victory to Zion,	36
And re-builds the Cities of Judah,
And they shall dwell there, and possess,
And the Race of His Servants shall hold,	37
And who love HIS NAME shall rest there. ¹

PSALM 70.

By Babil, to his Bandmaster, as a Remembrance. 1

STANZA 1.

O GOD to deliver,—rise LORD to my help ;	2
Shame and disgrace those who seek after my life,
And turn back and rout those who wish for my hurt,	3
Let fall back from their seats those who laugh out, " Ah ! Aha "	4

STANZA 2.

But let all who seek You rejoice and be glad ;	5
Say always, " I love Your Salvation, GREAT GOD." "
But, O GOD, I am wretched, and Poor,	6
God haste to my aid, and relief,
Make. LORD, no delay !

PSALM 71.

STANZA 1.

LORD, I have trusted in You,	8
I shall not be depressed ;
In Your goodness relieve me and guard,	9
Bend to me Your ear, and assist,
And be my strong fort of retreat,	9
To victory You always have led,—
For You are my crag, and my rock.

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 69A, from v. 35 to the end, is clearly not part of David's Psalm, but that of some captive returning from Babylon some centuries after his day. Some transcribers has confused it with David's poem.—F. F.

STANZA 2.

4 Guard me, my GOD, from the hand of the bad,
 From the clutch of the vile, and malign,
 5 For, ALMIGHTY, I hoped upon You,
 I trusted on You from my youth.
 6 I leaned upon You from my birth,
 From my mother's breast, You were always my home,
 And to You I will always give thanks.
 7 To the crowd I appeared as a wonder,
 For You had endowed me with power,
 8 So my mouth shall be full of Your praise,
 All the day giving honour to You.
 9 Oh, cast me not off in the time of my age,
 Nor forget when my vigour decays,—
 10 When against me my enemies speak,
 And Companions lie wait for my life.
 11 "GOD forsakes him," they say, "We will chase,
 And seize him without an escape."

STANZA 3.

12 Go not far from me, O GOD ;
 My GOD, to assist me, make haste ;
 13 Shame and disgrace those who shoot at my life,
 And who would do wrong, clothe in insult and scorn,
 14 But let me continually hope,
 And publish Your praises afar !

STANZA 4. -

15 My mouth shall Your goodness declare,
 And the comforts You give every day,
 For have I not their full number known ?—
 16 O LORD, I march on by Your might ;—
 Your goodness, O LIFE I record,
 17 You have taught me, O GOD from my birth,
 And till now I Your wonders proclaim.
 18 GOD, forsake not my age, and grey hairs,
 Till I tell of Your arm to this time,
 And your grandeur to all that may come ;
 19 Your righteousness, GOD, to the Heights,
 And what the great things You have done.

STANZA 5.

20 O GOD ! Who is equal to You,
 Who showed me abundant distress,
 But then led me back to my life,
 And brought from the depths of the earth !
 21 My greatness increased, and gave ease,
 22 So I sing of Your truth to the lute,
 I chant to You, GOD, on the harp,
 23 And my lips ISRAEL'S HOLY extol.
 I chant You with the soul You redeemed,
 24 My tongue daily Your kindness relates,—
 How they fall to contempt who had sought for my hurt !

PSALM 72.

1 For Solomon.

STANZA 1.

2 GOD, Your Justice give to the King,
 Your Righteousness to the King's Son,
 To govern Your People with Right,
 And Justice to give to Your poor.

STANZA 2.

Make the Mountains bear peace for the Race,	3
And Righteousness spring on the Hills.
Let him to the poor man be Justice,	4
Save the wretched, and strike down the vile.

STANZA 3.

Let them look for You as for the Sun,	5
And the face of the Moon in its times.
Let him fall like the dew on a fleece,	6
And like pattering showers on Earth.
In his days let righteousness bloom,	7
And great peace to the westering moon,
And extend from the Sea to the Sea,	8
From the River, ¹ to bounds of the Land.
To him make the Savages kneel,	9
And his enemies lick up the dust,
Kings from Tarshish and Isles tribute bring,	10
Kings of Sheba, and Saba bring wealth.
All the Kingdoms shall bow, all the Nations shall serve,	11
For he will deliver the wretched who cry,	12
And the poor who have none to console,
And will pity the weak in despair,	13
And the lives of the wretched will save—
Free their lives from oppression and wrong,	14
And their blood will be dear in his eyes,
For their life he will give Sheba's gold,	15
And continually pray, for their sakes,
And him every Nation will bless.

STANZA 4.

Thick corn then shall cover the Land,	16
To the top of the Hills it shall wave,
And fruits shall like Lebanon bloom,
With Cities like grass on the earth!
Let his name for ever remain ;—	17
Be proclaimed in the face of the Sun,
And the prosperous Nations still bless!

CHORUS.

Bless THE LIFE, who is Israel's GOD,	18
For none can do wonders like Him!
For ever bless His Mighty Name,	19
And fill all the Earth with His Might;
Amen! and Amen!

The End of the Psalms of David the Son of Jessai. 20

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 72, v. 8. "The River" indicated was the Euphrates.—F. F.

THE THIRD BOOK OF PSALMS.

CONTAINING SOME PSALMS OF DAVID, SELECTED
BY ASAPH, THE SECRETARY TO KING HEZE-KIAH, AND A FEW OF HIS OWN AND OTHER POETS'.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE, BY THE TRANSLATOR, ON THE PERIOD OF ASAPH, THE PSALMIST.

From the evidence of the events alluded to in Asaph's Psalms, it would appear that he was a contemporary of Isalah, and consequently lived in the latter part of Hezekiah's reign, and witnessed the destruction of Rabshakah's Assyrian army, which he clearly celebrates in the 76th Psalm. He would thus seem to have flourished between 760 and 698 B. C.

PSALM 73.

A Psalm by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

To Israel GOD is good,—to those of pure heart.
But my feet nearly slipt, I could no more advance,
I envied proud Success, I saw the bad have wealth,
They feel no fear of death, are hearty all the day,
They have no human sorrows, they suffered not with men.
They deck themselves with pride, adorn their crown with crime.
Their eyes project with fat, they march with lustful hearts,
They laugh and jeer at wrong, betrayed by lofty speech.
They put their mouth in Heaven, but their tongue walks the earth,
They people drive with blows, and steal the thirsty's drink;
They say, "What can GOD know,—Is knowledge with the Highest?"
Such are the prosperous bad, and yet they grow to wealth!

STANZA 2.

In vain I changed my heart, my hands in virtue washed;
Gone humbly all the day, and been depressed at dawn?
But had I done like them, Your Sons I should betray;—
Yet when I would reflect, it was hard to my view.
To GOD's House then I went, their end I then perceived:—
How You set them on slides:—and throw down with a rush;
Their ruin sudden comes, they perish in their fears;
As dreams when men awake, their shade flies from the town!
Yet my heart was disturbed, my loins felt a pain,
For brute-like, I knew not I lived with You in death,
And should exist with You, who hold my days in hand,
To lead me to Your purpose, then to Your glory take!
In Heaven I wish for none, or on the Earth, but You!
Though friends, and heart may fail, GOD is my lasting lot,—
For those who wander fail, all perish leaving You!
But for me to approach my GOD is full delight;
In LIFE'S LORD is my hope, and to publish all His works.

PSALM 74.

A Reflection.

STANZA 1.

Why, GOD, would You cast off for ever?
Fierce in wrath at the sheep of Your flock?

* NOTE.—Psalm 74. By the Second Asaph, who lived during the Captivity.—P. F.

Remember the flock You acquired of old,
And redeem Your inherited farm,—
This Mount Zion, where You have dwelt. 2

STANZA 2.

Lift Your feet to the old desolations; 3
See the wrong your foes did to the Good:
For the Outragers shout in the midst of Your Court,
And they plant there, their standards for signs! 4

STANZA 3.

They seemed as they came to the stairs 5
Like fellers against a thick wood;—
And her beautiful Gate-ways at once, 6
They beat down with hammer and axe!
Your sacreds they cast to the fire, 7
Flung the Tent of Your NAME to the ground!
Their heart said, "We'll drive out at once, 8
We'll burn all GOD'S Courts in the land!"

STANZA 4.

No signs are shown to us,—no preacher is left! 9
And with us none can tell for how long!
Till when, GOD, shall the tyrant insult? 10
And Your NAME always cursed by the foe?
Till when, will You fold up your hands, 11
And Your right in your bosom conceal?

STANZA 5.

Yet GOD was our King from of old, 12
Made us safe on the breast of the earth,
You smashed by Your strength at the Sea, 13
The Dragon's head broke at the Flood,
You shattered Leviathan's Chiefs, 14
And gave them to feed the Wild beasts,
And You opened fountains and brooks, 15
And You Mighty Rivers dried up!

STANZA 6.

From You is the day, and from You is the night, 16
You established both Moon and the Sun;
You fixed all the bounds of the earth, 17
And Spring-time and Autumn you formed.
LORD, remember the enemies' scorn, 18
The vile rabble who jeer at Your NAME!
O Give not Your Dove's life to such Kites, 19
Nor for ever abandon Your poor!
O Attend, and accomplish Your bond, 20
Crime dwells in dark dens of the land;
But let not the poor be oppressed, 21
Then the wretched will sing to Your NAME.

STANZA 7.

Arise, GOD! enforce Your decree, 22
Think of insults fools give You each day;
Forget not the voice of Your foes, 23
The roar they continually raise.

PSALM 75.

1 To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm against Despair.—A Song by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

2 Let us sing, to You, GOD, let us sing,
 Your Works tell Your power is near;
 3 For when I the Public address,
 I wish to proclaim what is right.
 4 The Land shakes, and its people despair,
 But I would its pillars support.

STANZA 2.

5 I will say to the fools,—“Be not foolish,”
 To the wicked,—exalt not your horn;
 6 Lift not your horn at the Highest,
 Speak not with a neck lifted up,
 7 For neither from East or from West,
 Nor yet from the hills of the World,
 8 But GOD fixes, “Who rises,—who falls!”
 9 For the cup in the hand of the LORD,
 Is full of a sweet foaming wine,
 When he pours from it down to the dregs,
 All the bad of the land, drink and suck.
 10 But I will for ever reflect,
 To Jacob's GOD I will sing Psalms;
 11 And cut off the horns of the Bad,—
 Exalting the horns of the Good.

PSALM 76.

1 To the Leader of the Girl Singers.

A Psalm for Music, by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

2 God is known in Judah,
 His NAME to Israel great;
 3 In Shalem is His Throne,
 And His Home is in Zion!
 4 Where He broke the darting bow,
 The shield, the sword, and war!

STANZA 2.

5 You are bright and glorious,
 Beyond the heaps of spoil,
 6 The stout of heart are plundered;
 They slept their sleep;
 Those warriors lost their hands!

STANZA 3.

7 The GOD of Jacob ordered,—
 The horse and chariot fled!—
 8 You are the Glorious, You,—
 And Your wrath who dare face?
 9 The skies heard Your decree,
 Earth saw it, and she shook;
 10 When GOD arose to judge,
 To save the weak on Earth,
 11 When human fury praised,
 The bursting fury, crowned!

(THE ENVOY.)

Come vow and pay the LORD ;	12
Vow to your GOD all around,
Bring gifts to honour Him,	13
Who ends the life of princes,
Who crows the Kings of Earth !

PSALM 77.

To the Conductor of the Chorus Singers.	1
---	---

A Psalm by Assaph.

STANZA 1.

I will shout with my voice to my GOD ;	2
With my voice to the GOD who heard me,
Seek my LORD in my day of distress,	3
Stretch my hand in the night out to Him,
Nor cease, or my body take rest !

STANZA 2.

I remember my GOD, and I mourn,	4
I sigh, and my mind is depressed.
I shut up the lids of mine eyes,	5
I tremble and I cannot speak.
I think of the times that are past,	6
Of the years to Eternity gone !
I repeat songs at night to my heart ;	7
I sigh, and my spirit sinks down.

STANZA 3.

Has th' ALMIGHTY forgotten for ever ?	8
Will He always cease to be kind ?
Has His mercy for ever departed ?	9
His speech gone for ages of time ?
And can GOD forget of His kindness ?	10
Or His mercies let perish in wrath ?

STANZA 4.

Then I said, " No ! This is my weakness,"—	11
The years are in the Highest's right hand.
" O LIFE ! I will think of Your acts,	12
As I think of Your wonders of old,
I will think upon all You have made,	13
And upon Your proceedings reflect."

STANZA 5.

In holiness, GOD, is Your path,—	14
What God is as great as our GOD ?
And You are the GOD who does wonders,	15
Revealing Your Power to men.
By Your Arm you rescued Your people,	16
The children of Jacob and Joseph !

STANZA 6.

The Sea saw you, GOD, the Sea saw !	17
It trembled ! And its billows shook ;
The Sea stormed, and the Clouds gave their voice,	18
Your fierce arrows shot through the gloom ;—
The sound of Your thunder was rolling,	19
The lightning illumined the spheres,
The earth itself shivered and shook ;

20 At Your path in the sea, and Your march in great waters,
Where Your footsteps were never perceived,
21 As Your people You lead like a flock,
By direction of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM 78.

1 A Meditation by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

My people attend to My law,
Bend your ear to the word of My mouth
2 On Maxims I open My lips,
I utter some thoughts of the past,
3 Which we formerly heard of and learnt,
And our fathers recorded for us,—
4 Nor hid from their sons and successors,
Recording the praise of the LORD,
His power and the wonders He did,
5 When in Jacob He set up the Witness,
And in Israel settled the law,
Which He had commanded our fathers,
To teach to the people, their sons;
6 So they taught the next generation,
Of the children whom they had begot,
To relate to the sons of themselves,
Who should settle their trust upon GOD,
7 And not to abandon GOD's paths,
And thus they have kept His commands.
8 For they were not, as their fathers were,
A stubborn and mutinous race,
A race that would not fix its heart,
Whose spirit was not true to GOD,—
9 Like Ephraim's sons, armed and with bows,
Who turned back in the day of the fight,
10 Nor regarded their bond with their GOD,
And in His laws who would not walk.
11 And remembered not His mighty acts,
And wonders they had themselves seen!—
12 The wonders for their fathers done,
In Mitzer's land,—on Tzoan's plains!

STANZA 2.

13 How He cleft the Sea,—and passed o'er,—
Yes! the quivering Sea like a plain!
14 And led them by day with a Cloud,
And at night by the glittering fire!
15 He split in the Desert the rocks,
And quenched their thirst with rushing streams,
16 From crags in the cliffs brought out springs,
That as watery rivers flowed on!
17 But still they continued offence,
To grieve the MOST HIGH in the Waste;
18 Revolting in heart from their GOD,
By asking a food to their wish.
19 They sneered at their GOD, and they said:—
"Can GOD in the Desert spread feasts?
20 He struck Rock, and Water sprang out,
And torrents in rivers rushed on;—
But how can He give to us bread?
Or make here for His People a feast?"

STANZA 3.

This the LORD heard, and was wroth, 21
 And kindled in Jacob a fire,
 And anger on Israel came.
 So they had no faith in their GOD, 22
 Nor placed in His Salvation trust!
 So He made black clouds from above, 23
 And Heaven's doors wide open sprung!—
 And rained on them Mana for food, 24
 Providing their corn from the skies!
 Men ate of the supernal bread,— 25
 For He sent to them victuals enough,

STANZA 4.

He raised the East Winds in the Sky, 26
 With power He drove on the South,
 And rained flesh upon them like dust, 27
 And flights of wings like the sea sand,
 Which fell in the midst of the Camp, 28
 And were piled all in circles around!
 Then they ate, and they gorged to excess, 29
 For what they had wished for had come;
 And they did not hold back from their greed.— 30
 But while the food was in their mouths,
 GOD'S anger rose against them!
 And their mightiest captains He slew, 31
 And crippled in Israel youths.

STANZA 5.

For all this they sinned more! 32
 Believed not in His powers;
 So their days failed, exhausted, 33
 And their years in distress.
 If He slew; then they sought Him;
 Turned at morn to their GOD, 34
 Thought that GOD was their rock,
 The HIGH GOD, who redeemed,— 35
 And served with their mouth,—
 Lied to Him with their tongues, 36
 While their heart held Him not, 37
 Nor was true to His Bond.

STANZA 6.

Yet He kindly pardoned their sin, 38
 Destroyed not,—but oft turned His wrath;
 Nor roused up all His rage.—
 Thought that they were but flesh,— 39
 Breath that went, nor came back!
 Thus they vexed in the Desert,— 40
 Grieved Him in the Waste;
 Turned from GOD and deserted, 41
 And grieved Israel's HOLY.
 They thought not of His hand, 42
 When He freed them from grief;
 Or His wonders in Mitzraim 43
 And proofs on Tzoan's field!—

STANZA 7.

How He turned all their brooks into blood, 44
 And their streams so that they could not drink,
 And sent locusts on them, to devour, 45
 And defiled them by means of the frogs.

46 And gave up to vermin their produce,
 And their gardens to grasshoppers gave,
 47 Their vines He destroyed by the hail,
 And their fig-trees, by sharp-cutting frost.
 48 And He shut up their towns by the hail,
 And their ware-rooms, by lightning's bright flash,
 49 And sent them His furious wrath,
 Indignation, and rage, and distress,
 The troops of the agents of woe!—
 50 He levelled a path for His wrath,
 Nor protected their souls from the death,
 But delivered their lives to the plague.
 51 And in Mitzer struck all the first-born,—
 The first of their love in Ham's Halls!
 52 But marched out His People like sheep,
 And led like a flock in the Waste.
 53 He led them without fear and secure—
 Tho' covered their foes with the Sea,— 54 And brought to the district, He chose,
 This Hill His right hand had acquired.
 55 And He drove out the Heathen before,
 And allotted their holdings by rule,
 And put Israel's Tribes in their homes.

STANZA 8.

56 Yet they tried, and rebelled from HIGH GOD,
 And regarded not what He decreed,
 57 But they tricked and betrayed, like their fathers—
 Like a broken bow jumping aside,
 58 And insulted by raising up mounds,
 And provoked by the Idols they made.
 59 But GOD heard, and indignant He was,
 And at Israel felt great disgust.
 60 And abandoned His dwelling in Shilo;—
 The First, where He dwelt among men.
 61 And He gave up to slavery their strong,
 And their fair girls, to Tyranny's hand;
 62 And His people resigned to the Sword,
 His Inheritance to the Destroyer;
 63 Their Youths were by fire consumed,
 And their Maidens not sung to as Brides.
 64 And their Priests were struck down by the sword,
 And their Widows forbid to lament!

STANZA 9.

65 Then the LORD woke, as if from a sleep,
 Like a hero refreshed with his wine.
 66 And their tyrants He struck on the back,
 And gave them perpetual shame;
 67 But abandoned His dwelling with Joseph,
 And chose not the Tribe of Ephraim,
 68 But it was Judah's Tribe He selected,
 Zion's Hill as the spot which He loved,
 69 And built there His Great Holy Fane,
 As He had built the Earth for all Time!
 70 And He, for His Servant, chose David,
 Took him from the care of a flock,
 71 And He afterwards raised and appointed,
 To shepherd His people of Jacob,
 And Israel, whom He possessed,—
 72 Who pastured them by His right heart.
 And led by the skill of His hands.

PSALM 79.

By Asaph.

GOD! the Heathen have entered Your land!
 Defiling Your Holy Abode,
 They make round Jerusalem ruins,—
 And as food to the birds of the skies,
 Your Servants' dead bodies they give,
 And the flesh of Your Saints, to the beasts of the earth!
 They pour blood like water around,
 And Jerusalem none can approach.
 A contempt we became to our friends,—
 To our neighbours, a laughter and scorn!

STANZA 2.

How long, LORD, will Your anger last,
 Your wrath like hot fire consume?
 Pour out on the Heathen Your rage,
 Who acknowledged not You;
 And on Kingdoms that seek not Your NAME!
 For they eat up Jacob,
 And ruin his Home.

STANZA 3.

Oh! think not on our sins that are past,
 Make haste in Your mercy to guide,
 Because we are deeply depressed.
 Strengthen and save us, O GOD!
 Because of Your GLORIOUS NAME,
 Release from our faults, and forgive,
 Because of Your love.

STANZA 4.

For why should the Heathen exclaim,
 "Where now is their GOD?"
 Let the Heathen be taught in our sight,
 You avenge the spilt blood of Your saints.
 Bring before You the prisoner's groans,
 With Your strong arm release them from death.
 And return our besiegers,
 Seven-fold to their breasts,
 For the insults with which they insult You, O LORD!
 When Your People, and sheep of Your flock,
 Will thank You for ever,
 To ages of ages recording Your praise.

PSALM 80.

To the Conductor of the Clarionettes.

An Historical Psalm, by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

Shepherd of Israel hear,
 Guide Joseph like a flock;
 Shine forth from the Kerubim's Home!
 Before Benjamin, Ephraim, Manasseh!
 Arise in Your Might,
 And come on to save;
 O GOD, turn upon us the light of Your face,
 And we shall be saved.

STANZA 2.

- 5 O GOD EVER-LIVING, of Hosts,
Till when slight the prayers of Your race ?
6 You feed them with bread made with tears,
And measure out tears as a drink ;
7 You make us a By-word to friends,
And at us our enemies laugh ;
8 Turn to us again, O GOD OF THE HOSTS
And the light of Your presence will save !

STANZA 3.

- 9 From Mitzer You brought out a vine,
To plant it, You Nations expelled,
10 You prepared for it, and it took root,
It rooted and filled all the land.
11 It covered the Mountains with shade,
And its boughs were like Cedars of GOD,
12 It sent out its roots to the Sea,
And as far as the River it shoots.¹
13 So why have You broken its fence,
That all who pass by it may strip ?
14 The swine from the forest devour,
And the beasts of the field eat its leaves ;
15 GOD OF HOSTS, now turn to us again,
Look down from the Heavens and see,
And visit this vine,
16 And the root that Your right hand has planted,
And the Child You had reared for Yourself.

STANZA 4

- 17 It is burned in the fire, like sticks,
It dies at rebuke from Your face,
18 Let Your hand guard the man of Your choice,
Adam's Son whom You raised for Yourself.
19 And from You we will never desert.—
Preserve us, who call on Your Name,
20 O LORD, the GOD of the Hosts,
Rest on us the light of Your Presence, and save !

PSALM 81.

- 1 To the Conductors of the Guitars.

By Anaph.

STANZA 1.

- 2 Let us cheer to GOD, our Helper ;
Let us cheer for Jacob's GOD !
3 Shake trimbrill, and beat on the drum,
Along with the sweet harp, and lute ;
4 Sound, as when feasting, the horn,
As we do on the day of New Moon ;
5 For that is in Israel a rule,—
From Jacob's GOD was a Decree.
6 He fixed it a witness for Joseph,
When he came from the land of Mitzraim,
Where he heard a Tongue that he knew not,
7 Where his back I relieved from the load,

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 80, v. 12. "The River"—the Euphrates.—F. P.

His hands from the carrying skep;
 When to Me in your anguish you cried, 8
 I answered when clothed in the storm,
 And tried at the Waters of Strife.

STANZA 2.

Hear, My People, and I will instruct; 9
 If Israel will listen to Me:—
 No strange God must be among you, 10
 To a Foreign God never bow down;
 I, only, am your LIVING GOD, 11
 Who brought from the Mitzraim land.
 If you hungered, 'twas I filled your mouth.

STANZA 3.

But My People would not hear My voice, 12
 And Israel desired Me not;
 So I left them to their stubborn heart, 13
 And they followed a path of their own!

STANZA 4.

If My People would listen to Me, 14
 And Israel walk in My paths,
 How soon I would tread on their foes, 15
 And My hand on their Tyrants would turn.
 Those hating the LORD, should obey, 16
 But their time for ever should last;
 And they feed on the fat of the wheat, 17
 And with honey be filled from the rock!

PSALM 82.

A Psalm by Asaph. 1

STANZA 1.

GOD stands in the Court of the Judge, 2
 In the midst of the Judges and asks,
 "How long will you wrongly decree,
 And hold up the face of the bad?"

STANZA 2.

"You should act for the orphans and weak, 3
 Do right for the Poor and the GOOD;
 Deliver the feeble, poor wretch, 4
 From the hand of the Wicked release,
 Who unknown, unseen in the darkness, proceed 5
 To remove all the landmarks away.

STANZA 3.

"I had said, that they seem to be Gods, 6
 And all as if Sons of the Highest;
 But yet you shall die as did Adam, 7
 And fall, like each one of the Great."

THE ENVOY.

Arise, GOD! Do Justice on Earth, 8
 For you will inherit all Tribes.

PSALM 83.

1 A Psalm for Singing, by Asaph.

STANZA 1.

2 GOD, there is none like Yourself!
 3 O GOD, be not silent or still,
 4 For now hear Your Enemies growl,
 5 And Your haters lift up their head;
 6 At Your People contriving their plans,
 7 And consulting against Your beloved.
 8 Say, "Come, let us blot from the Nations,
 9 And for ever erase Israel's name";
 10 For their hearts have consulted together,
 11 And a treaty have made against You.
 12 Tents of Edom, of Ishmael, and Moab, and Hagar,
 13 Amon, Amalek, Phlesheth, with the people of Tzur,
 14 And Ashur has joined in with them,
 15 And are helped by the children of Lot.

STANZA 2.

16 Make them like to Midian and Sisera,
 17 Like Jabin in Kishon's swift stream,
 18 Who at An-dor were crushed,—
 19 Were made dung for the ground!
 20 Make their Captains like Oreb and Zeeb,
 21 Their Chiefs like Zebakh and Zalmuna,
 22 Who said, "We will seize for ourselves,
 23 The beautiful dwelling of God."
 24 Make them, my GOD, like a wheel,
 25 Like chaff to the face of the wind,
 26 Like fire that burns in a wood,
 27 Like flames that are kindled on hills.
 28 Then You with Your tempests can chase,
 29 And them by Your whirlwinds destroy!

STANZA 3.

30 Make their appearance a scorn,
 31 Let them, LORD, discover their power.
 32 For ever depress and disturb,
 33 And turn to contempt and destroy.
 34 Let them learn what Your power is, LORD,—
 35 Only YOU, are Supreme over Earth.

PSALM 84.

1 To the Conductor of the Guitars.

By a Chorister.—A Psalm.

STANZA 1.

2 How delightful, Your tents, LORD OF HOSTS!
 3 My soul pines and faints for the Courts of the LORD,
 4 Heart and body cry out to the GOD of my life!—

For the bird finds a home, and the swallow a nest, Where they lodge their young On Your altar, O LORD of Rest, My King and my GOD!	4
How happy they dwell in your House, They can praise you for ever!	5
STANZA 2.
Happy men, who rely upon You!	6
On you, from the cliffs of their heart!
They pass thro' the Valley of Tears, And find it a Valley of Springs, Which the showers have covered with pools.	7
They march on in vigour and strength, Till in Zion they look upon GOD.	8
LORD, GOD of Rest, hear my prayer,— Attend, GOD of Jacob, to me.	9
STANZA 3.
Look up! to our GOD, as our shield, And attend to the face of Your guide.	10
Better one day in Your Courts, At the Door of the House of my GOD, Than a thousand of life in the Dwelling of Sin;—	11
For the LORD is a sun and a shield, The LORD can give honour and grace; The LORD will not cease to do good, To those who go forward in right.	12
THE ENVOY.
Oh! LORD of Rest, happy the man, Who can trust upon You.	13
PSALM 85.
To the Conductor of the Choir.	1
A Psalm.
STANZA 1.
You have refreshed, LORD, your land, You have freed Jacob from bonds, Have pardoned the fault of Your People, And You have forgiven their sin!	2
STANZA 2.
You have ceased from Your wrath, Turned from Your indignant rage! O GOD reform us, and save, And break off Your anger from us, With us, why be always enraged? To age after age, lasts Your wrath? Will You not return and revive, When to You, Your Race will be glad. Your mercy show to us, O LORD, And let Your Salvation be ours.	4
STANZA 3.
I await what the LORD GOD may say, When He speaks peace to His Race,— To His Saints who will not turn to vice.— His Salvation approach and behold;	9
	10

11 For glory will dwell in our land,
 Truth and Mercy together have met,
 And Goodness and Peace now have kissed!—
 12 Truth has sprung up from the Earth,
 And Goodness from Heaven looks down!
 13 And also the LORD gives success,
 And our land gives us its fruits!
 14 Righteousness marches before,
 And marks out the path by His feet.

PSALM 86.

1 A Prayer by David.

STANZA 1.

LORD bend Your ear to my sigh,
 2 Reply to me, wretched, and poor.
 And because I am weak guard my life,
 Save Your servant who trusts on You, GOD!—
 3 Save, ALMIGHTY,—for You are my GOD,
 I will cry all the day.

STANZA 2.

Glad the soul of Your servant,
 4 For You are my GOD.
 ALMIGHTY! hold up my life,
 5 For you, the ALMIGHTY, are gentle and kind,
 And merciful to all who seek,
 6 So listen, O LORD, to my prayer!
 In pity attend to my voice,
 7 I cry in my day of distress,
 For You will reply.

STANZA 3.

8 There is none like to GOD, the ALMIGHTY,
 And none do like You.
 9 All the nations whom You have created,
 Will come and bow down before You,
 And will honour Your Almighty NAME,
 10 For You are the Great, and work wonders,
 You only are GOD.

STANZA 4.

11 Lead me, O LORD, in Your path,
 I always would walk in Your truth,
 And my heart will have light from Your power;—
 12 LORD GOD, all my heart will praise You,
 And for ever will honour Your name.
 13 For great was Your mercy to me,
 From the deep grave You rescued my life.

STANZA 5.

14 The cruel, GOD, rose against me,
 False witnesses sought for my life,
 And before them they placed not YOUR NAME,—
 No fear of You was before them.
 15 But You, GOD of Mercy and Grace,
 Forbearance, and pity, and truth,
 16 O! turn towards me and assuage,
 Give Your strength to Your slave.

And save for Your unblemished Truth,
Make me a wonder of Mercy,	17
That my haters may see it and fail ;
For You, LORD, are my comfort and help.	18

PSALM 87.

For the Choristers.

A Psalm for Singing.

STANZA 1.

It stands on the Holy Hills!—	2
The LORD loves the Gates of Zion,
More than all the Dwellings of Jacob!	3
What glories are told about you,
O City of GOD!

STANZA 2.

My friends I remind about Rahab and Babel,	4
Philistia, and Tzur, and of Kush,—
“Of who was born there!”
But of Zion they say, “He and He was born there,”	5
And “That she was built by the Highest!”
The LORD writes in the Book of the Peoples,	6
That “There the MESSIAH was born.” ¹	7

PSALM 88.

To the Conductor of the Violins, as a Choral Song.	1
--	---

A Psalm for Singing by the Choir.—A Reflection by Ailhan the Azrahite.

STANZA 1.

Save me! O GOD, EVER-LIVING,	2
I call You by day, and by night I approach.
Let my Prayer come to Your Preseuce,	3
Bend Your ear to my cry.

STANZA 2.

My body is filled full of pains,	4
My life has gone down to the Grave,
I feel like descending the Pit,	5
My life like a man without strength,
I am stiff, like the wounded to death,	6
Who forgotten, are laid in the tomb,
And who are cut off from Your side.
I am sunk in the depth of the Pit;	7
In the gloom and the Shadow of Death.
Upon me Your anger is laid,	8
And I am o'erwhelmed by Your waves.
My friends You remove far away,	9
You make me a loathing to them;
I am prisoned, and cannot get out.
My eyes are dissolved by my grief,	10
I call on You, LORD, all the day,
To You throw out my hands!

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 87, v. 7. It appears to me that some transcriber has omitted the word מִשְׁלַח, "Messiah," from his text, for

It is evidently defective without it, and, therefore, I venture to restore that name as above.—F. F.

STANZA 3.

- 11 How can the dead give You thanks?—
 If restored, they could rise and give praise.
 12 Are Your Mercies proclaimed in the tomb?
 And Your Truthfulness to the Destroyed?
 13 To Darkness can they tell Your Works,
 And Your Good in Forgetfulness-land?
 14 But I, LORD, can cry out to You,
 And pray before break of the morn.
 15 Then why do You, LORD, leave my soul,
 And hide up Your Presence from me?
 16 I was wretched, and dying from youth,
 I have carried your terrors myself;
 17 Your Tempests have over me swept,
 Your horrors encircle me round!
 18 They surround like a flood all the day,
 Together upon me they roll;
 19 My friends You have driven afar,
 Even close friends I cannot perceive.

PSALM 89.

A Reflection of Aithan the Azrakhlite.

STANZA 1.

AITHAN.

- 2 I will sing the LORD'S Mercies for ever,
 Teach to ages His truth by my mouth.
 3 Will say, "Your Mercy for ever is built,
 Your Truth You have fixed in the skies!"

STANZA 2.

THE LORD.

- 4 "With My chosen a Treaty I made,
 I have sworn it to David My Slave,
 Your heir I will settle for ever,
 5 And for ages will build up your throne."

STANZA 3.

- 6 LORD! Your wonders the Heavens declare,
 Your Truth to th' Assembly of Saints.
 7 Who is like to the LORD in the Skies?
 Who of GOD'S sons can equal the LORD?—
 8 GOD is grand in the Council of Saints,
 Great, and fearful, above all around.
 9 LORD GOD of Hosts! who is equal to You?—
 Your Strength, LIFE, and Truth are around.
 10 You ruled over the pride of the Sea,
 Controlling the roar of its waves,
 11 When Rahab! You trod down to death,
 And Your foes with a strong arm dispersed.

STANZA 4.

- 12 But Yours are the Heavens and Earth,
 You formed the World's sphere and its times.
 13 You created the North and the South;—
 Tabor and Hermon, applaud to Your Name!
 14 The hand of the Mighty is Yours,
 Your hand is strong, and Your right hand is high.

1 NOTE.—Psalm 89, v. 11. "Rahab" was a poetic name for Egypt, probably a title of Pharaoh.—F. F.

STANZA 5.

Your Throne stands on Goodness and Right,	15
Before You, march Mercy and Truth !—
Blest the People who know of their hope,	16
Who march in Your Splendour, O LORD !
In Your Name they can laugh all the day ;	17
And can in Your Goodness exult ;
For You are their Glory and Strength,	18
And your favour lights upon them.
For our shield is with the LORD,	19
And with Israel's Holy our King.

STANZA 6.

In a vision You spoke to Your Saint,	20
And said " I put strength in a man,
From the People My chosen I raised,
Yes, David I formed as My Servant,	21
I appointed by My Sacred Oil ;
My hand shall be firmly with Him,	22
Yes ! he shall be strong by My arm.
His foe shall not rise over him,	23
Nor the Son of the Wicked distress,
His assailants I cut from his face,	24
And all who hate him will defeat.
With him are My Mercy and Truth,	25
And I lift up his horn by My Power.
So I placed his left hand on the Sea,	26
And his right to the Rivers afar !
He shall say to me, ' You are my father ;	27
My GOD, and my Tower of retreat ! '
Yes ! I will make him Imperial,	28
The First of the Kings of the Earth !
I will guard him for ever by Mercy,	29
And secure My Treaty to him.
And his Heir shall endure for ever,	30
And his throne like the Periods of Heaven.

STANZA 7.

" If his sons should abandon My Laws,	31
And by My Decrees cease to walk ;
If they profane My Institutions,	32
And will not preserve My Commands ;
I will punish their sins with a rod,	33
And their faults with a lash ;—
But My mercy not take from his People,	34
Nor will I be false to My Truth.
My Treaty will never be broken,	35
Nor change from the words of My lips ;
For I by My holiness swore,	36
I will never forget about David !
His heir shall endure for ever,	37
And near Me his throne, like the Sun.
Like the Moon, be established for ever,	38
Rejoicing in truth upon high."

STANZA 8.

But now You forsake and regret !	39
Against Your anointed You rage ;
You break from Your bond with Your servant,	40
You throw his crown down to the ground !
And through all his fences You break,—	41

- 42 You have thrown down the walls of his vine,
All who travel the Highway can rob,
And he is to his neighbours a scorn ;
43 His oppressors raise up their right hand,
And all of his foemen rejoice !
44 You have turned back the edge of his sword,
And he cannot prevail in the War.
45 His splendour You bring to an end,
And have thrown down his throne to the Earth !
46 You have cut off the days of his manhood,
And covered him up with contempt !

STANZA 9.

- 47 Till when will You hide, LORD, for ever?
Like fire, will Your anger consume ?
48 Remember how short is my life,
Why create in vain all Adam's Sons ?
49 What man lives, and never sees Death ?
Can his body escape the Grave's hand ?

STANZA 10.

- 50 LORD where are Your Mercies of old,
That to David You swore by Your Truth ?
51 LORD, remember the griefs of Your slave,
With such great Peoples loading my breast !
52 How Your foemen insult You, O LORD,
When the steps of Your Chosen they curse.

PSALM 90.

- 1 A Prayer of Moses, the Man of God.

STANZA 1.

- LORD, You were our refuge for ages,
2 Ere ever the Mountains were born,
Or the Earth and World rolled in their spheres,¹
You, GOD, were from Ever to Ever.

STANZA 2.

- 3 You set men in depression ;—
Then You say, " Sons of Adam return ;"—
4 For a thousand years pass like a day in Your sight.

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 90, v. 2. This passage clearly shows that Moses understood the true system of astronomy, and that the Earth and Planets revolved round the Sun, in spheres or circuits. דָּוָלָל, KHOLL to dance, to turn in a circle as the earth does, or spin, and תְּבֵל, THEBEL, the substantive form of יָבֵל, YEBEL, to flow along, or diffuse, are equivalent to "The floaters in Space," that is the Planets round the Sun. The idea of the Sun and Planets and Stars circling round the Earth is a Heathen, not a Biblical one.—F. F.

They pass like a watch in the night, Their years are a shower ;—	5
Grow like grass at the dawn, In the morning they blossom and sprout,	6
At evening they wither and fade ; For we faint at Your anger, And die at Your Wrath.	7

STANZA 3.

Near You, our passions are set, Our faults in the light of Your face,—	8
For all our years pass in Your wrath,— Our years are consumed in a sigh,— Our days are but Seventy years,—	9
But if a strong man reaches eighty, His pride is but sorrow and grief,— They pass quick and expire.	10

STANZA 4.

Who knows the power of Your wrath ? And who dare look on Your rage ? So teach us to number our days, And wisdom to take to our heart.	11
When will You restore us, O LIFE, And comfort us after Your wrath ? With Your mercy refresh us at dawn, And make our days singing and joy ?	12
For the days You have grieved us, give pleasure, For the days that in misery we saw, O ! look on Your servants and work, Let Your Grandeur be over their sons,	13
Let our LIVING GOD'S comfort be ours,— Establish the work of our hands over us, Yes ! establish the work of our hands.	14

PSALM 91.

STANZA 1.

Who rests in the Highest's Retreat, Reclined in the Almighty's shade, Cau say this, " The LORD is my hope, And I trust in my GOD as my Fort, For He will release from the web, From the bird-catcher's note of deceit."	1
	3

STANZA 2.

His pinions will carry you up, And under His wings you can hope ; For His truth like to armour surrounds,— You will fear not the terror of night, Or the arrow that flies in the day.	4
Nor pestilence, walking in gloom, Nor contagion that wastes in the noon, A thousand may fall at your side, Ten thousand upon your right hand, But upon you they will not alight.	5
Your eyes only on them shall look, And see the reward of the bad, Whilst you have the LORD for your guard, You placed on the Highest your hope.— So sickness will not approach you,	6
	8 9
	10

11 Contagion not enter your Rest,
For you He will order His Angels
To keep guard upon all your paths,
12 Who will in their hands hold you up,
From striking your foot on a stone.

STANZA 3.

13 You may tread on a lion or asp,
Your feet may descend on a snake.—
14 "He trusted on me,—I deliver;
He knew my name,—So I hold up!
15 He calls,—I reply I am with You;
I deliver and help in distress.
16 I content with extension of days,
And will let him see that I can save."

PSALM 92.

1 A Psalm to Sing on the Day of Rest.

STANZA 1.

2 LORD, to praise You is sweet,
And, HIGHEST, to sing to Your Name;
3 To morning, to tell of Your kindness,
And to night of Your truth,
4 On the Viol and Lute,
On the Flute and the Harp.
5 For Your works, LORD, delight,
I am cheered by the work of Your hands.

STANZA 2.

6 LORD, how great are Your works!
And the depths of Your thoughts,
7 Brutish man cannot know;
Nor the fool understand,
8 Why the Wicked should flourish like grass,
And the plans of the vile should succeed,—
To their ruin, for age after age.

STANZA 3.

9 But You LORD are exalted for ever,
10 For, look, how Your foemen, O LORD,
Yes! see, how Your enemies perish,
And the products of Wickedness fail.

STANZA 4.

11 But You set up my horn like a bull's,
That bellows in richness of food.
12 So mine eye sees its wish on assailants,
And my ear hears their griefs.

STANZA 5.

13 The Good like a Palm-tree will flourish,
Like a Lebanon Cedar will spread.
14 They are set in the House of the LORD,
They will grow in the Courts of our GOD.
15 They will grow on to old age;
And be happy, and fat
To proclaim the LORD just,—
That my Rock has no failure in Him!

PSALM 93.

STANZA 1.

The LORD is a King clothed in splendour, 1
 The LORD'S Robe with power is girt :—
 Yes! fixed like Earth's orbit secure.

STANZA 2.

You settled Your Throne,— 2
 For, from Ever, YOU WERE I
 The Rivers lift up, O LORD, 3
 Rivers lift up their voice,
 Rivers lift up their roar,
 With the sounds of great waters, 4
 Mighty waves of the Sea,
 To honour the LORD in the height!
 They are true witness to You,— 5
 Holiness graces Your House,
 O LORD, to the end of all time!

PSALM 94.

STANZA 1.

O GOD of Justice, O LORD! 1
 O GOD of glorious Right!
 Rise up, judge the Earth,— 2
 Lay judgment on pride!

STANZA 2.

Till when, LORD, shall the bad, 3
 Till when the bad exult,
 And utter haughty words, 4
 And boast of wicked deeds?
 They crush Your People LORD, 5
 And ravage Your Estate;
 Widow, and Stranger murder, 6
 And Orphans they oppress.
 They say, "The LIFE sees not;
 Nor Jacob's GOD can know!" 7

STANZA 3.

Reflect you brutish Race; 8
 When will you fools reflect?
 Who formed the ear, can hear, 9
 Who forms the eye, can see.
 Who Nations rules, can order, 10
 Who teaches man, must know.—
 The LORD knows human thoughts, 11
 That as themselves, are weak.

STANZA 4.

Blest is the man You rule, 12
 And teach about Your laws,
 To comfort in hard times, 13
 Till sorrow's Grave is dug.
 The LORD leaves not His Race, 14
 Nor casts off His Estate,
 But brings the Good their Right, 15
 The just of heart, their pay.

STANZA 5.

- 16 Against the bad, who helped me?
Against the vile, who joined?
17 The LORD was my ally,
When life fell, nearly dumb,
18 When I said, "My feet slip,"
Your mercy, LORD, held up;
19 In many doubts within,
Your comforts cheered my soul,—
20 Who plots against the Law,
Can his throne join with Yours?
21 Who hunt the good man's life,
And shed the saintly blood.

STANZA 6.

- 22 Be, LORD, to me a Peak,
My GOD, a Rock of Hope,
23 And turn on them their crimes,
Destroy them by their Sins,
Destroy them LORD, our GOD.

PSALM 95.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Come on! let us cheer to the LORD,
Hurrah for the Rock that we trust!
2 Be early before Him with praise,
And to Him hurrah in our Psalms;—
3 For a Great GOD is the LORD,
A Great King above every God!
4 In His hands are the bounds of the Earth,
And His are the wings of the Hills.
5 His is the Sea, for He made it,
And His own hands have moulded its Tribes!

STANZA 2.

- 6 Come on! let us bow down and kneel,
To the LIFE, who has made us, give thanks;
7 For He is Our GOD,
And we are His Race,
His Flock, and the sheep of His hand!

STANZA 3.

- 8 To-day, if you list to My¹ voice,
As at Meribah turn not your hearts,
Like at Masah, they did in the Waste,
9 When your fathers perverted themselves,
To try Me, tho' seeing My works!
10 I strove forty years with that race,
And I said in My anguish of heart,
11 "These! These! will not learn of My paths!"
Then I swore in My wrath,
"That they shall not enter My Rest!"

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 95, v. 8. I render this line in the first person, in accordance with the context, for the Hebrew letter vaw \dot{v} , "his,"

and \dot{y} , yot, "my," are so much alike as in MSS. to be easily confused, as seems likely in this passage.—F. F.

PSALM 96.

STANZA 1.

Sing to the LORD a new song,	1
Sing to the LORD all the earth;
Sing to the LORD, bless His Name,	2
Let day to day tell "He can save!"
His glory proclaim to the Nations,	3
His wonders to all of the Tribes;
For lofty, and great is the LORD,	4
His splendour above all the Powers!
All the Gods of the Heathen are Idols,—	5
But the LORD has created the Skies.
Honour, and Grandeur, are with Him,	6
In His hand are all beauty and strength!

STANZA 2.

Give to the LORD, Tribes, and Peoples,	7
Ascribe the LORD honour, and strength!
Give to the LORD His SPLENDID NAME;—	8
Bring offerings, and come to His Courts,
And in beautiful Holiness worship the Lord.	9

STANZA 3.

Let all the Earth dance before Him;—
To the Nations, proclaim the LORD KING;—	10
Who fixed its unchangeable sphere,
And its Peoples, He governs by Laws.
Let the Skies smile, and all the Earth laugh;	11
Let the Sea roar, and all it contains;
Exult Earth, and all that you hold;	12
All the trees of the Forest hurrah;—
To the LORD, for He comes,	13
For He comes to give justice on Earth,
To govern its circuit by right,
And its Peoples by Truth!

PSALM 97.

STANZA 1.

The LORD is King! Let earth be glad,	1
And let all Isles rejoice!
Clouds, and gloom surround Him,	2
Right, and Justice fix His Throne.
Fire before Him marches,	3
And flame surrounds His foes;
His Lightnings light the Sphere,	4
The Earth looks on, and quakes;—
The Hills like wax dissolve,	5
Before the LORD,—
Before the King of Earth!

STANZA 2.

The Skies proclaim His Power,	6
All Tribes His glory see;—
Fall down, you Idol slaves,	7
Who worship what is naught,
To Him, subject your Gods!

STANZA 3.

Hear, Zion, and be glad,	8
Let Judah's girls rejoice.
Because the LORD is Judge.

9 For You, LORD, are on high,
Supreme o'er all the Earth,—
And over all the Powers.

STANZA 4.

10 Who love the LORD, hate vice;
His Saiuts' lives He preserves,
And frees from wicked hands.
11 He sows light for the Good;
And joy for upright hearts.

CHORUS.

12 Let the Righteous rejoice in the LORD,
And thank for remembering His Saints.

PSALM 98.

1 Sing to the LORD,
Sing a new song for His wonderful act;
He has saved by His hand, and by His Holy arm;—
2 For His Victory, give thanks to the LORD, Show the eyes of the Nations His might!
3 To Israel's House tell His kindness, and Truth,
Show Earth's bounds the success of our GOD,
4 To the LORD then make all the land cheer;
Break out, and hurrah, and sing Psalms;
5 Chant to the LORD with a Harp,
With the Harp, and the sound of the Drum,
6 With the gong and the sound of the horn,
Hurrah for the LORD who is KING!
7 Let the Sea roar, and all it contains,
The World, and the Dwellers thereon;
8 Let the streams clap their hands,
Let them cheer with the hills;
9 To the LORD, Who has come to rule Earth,
With Justice to govern the World,
And the Peoples by Right!

PSALM 99.

STANZA 1.

1 The LORD is King! Let Peoples tremble!
He stations Viceroy's! Let Earth shake!

STANZA 2.

2 The LORD is great in Zion;
And high above all Tribes.
3 They praise Your Mighty Name,
The dreadful, and the Holy!

STANZA 3.

4 You, mighty King, love Justice;
You fixed the just men's rights;
And kindness showed to Jacob.

HORUS.

5 Exalt the LORD our GOD;
And to His footstool bow,—
For it is Holy!

STANZA 4.

Moses, and Aaron, with His Priests, 6
 And Samuel called upon His NAME,
 They called the LORD, and He replied ;—
 GOD from the Clouding Pillar spoke !— 7
 They kept the proofs and Laws He gave.

STANZA 5.

You answered, LORD, our GOD,— 8
 O GOD, You were their help,
 And punished all their foes.—
 Exalt the LORD our GOD ! 9
 And bow down on His Holy Hill
 For our LORD GOD is Holy.

PSALM 100.

A Psalm of Praise. 1

Hurrah to the LORD all the Earth ;
 Serve the LORD with delight ; 2
 Come into His Presence with cheering,
 Acknowledge the LORD as the GOD, 3
 Who made us, and not we, ourselves,
 His People, and sheep of His fold.
 Come enter His Gates, then, with thanks, 4
 Extol Him with praise in His Courts,
 By blessing His Name.
 For THE LIFE is eternally kind,— 5
 His mercy will last for all time,
 And for ages His Truth.

PSALM 101.

A Psalm by David. 1

STANZA 1.

Of Mercy and Justice I sing ;—
 To You I will chant hymns, O LORD ;
 I think on the straightforward path,— 2
 " When to me will He come ?"
 For I walk with true heart in my house,
 I put not loose thoughts in my sight, 3
 I hate what would turn me to them,
 To me they shall not stick !

STANZA 2.

I will send the false-hearted away, 4
 Of the Wicked I never will learn ;
 The proud haughty-eyed I will banish ; 5
 With the greedy heart I will not dine.
 I will look for the True in the land ; 6
 Those who follow straight paths will support
 And they shall be servants of mine.—
 The liar shall not dwell in my house, 7
 Nor the traitor remain in my sight,
 I will drive all the vile from the land, 8
 From the LORD'S City flog all depraved.

PSALM 102.

1 A Prayer for the Afflicted who Pour out their Sorrows before the Ever-living.

STANZA 1.

2 O LORD, hear my prayer; let my cry come to You;
Your Presence hide not, in the day of my grief.
3 To me bend Your ear,—when I cry answer soon,
4 For my days end in smoke, and my bones burn like coals,
5 I am mown like the grass, I am withered in heart,
So to eat of my food I forget.
6 From the sound of my sighing, my bones pierce my flesh,
7 I am, like a Stork in the Desert;
8 I become like a Duck in the Arbah;
9 I fret like a sparrow alone on a roof.
Foes insult, and assailants swear at me all day.¹

STANZA 2.

10 I have eaten the dust as if bread
And I mingle my tears with my drink
11 At the face of Your anger and wrath,
Which lifts me and flings me away.
12 My days like a shadow depart,
And I am dried up like the grass;
13 But You, LORD, for ever remain,
And Your Memory to ages of time.

STANZA 3.

14 Arouse up Your pity for Zion,
For the time for her comfort has come,
15 For Your servants delight in her stones,
And her dust is a comfort to them;
16 Then the Heathen will fear the LORD's Name,
And His glory, all Kings of the earth,
17 When the LORD rebuilds Zion.
In His Splendour He then will appear;
18 Turned back at the prayer of the poor,—
Their entreaties He will not despise.

STANZA 4.

19 Write this to the ages to come,—
"A Race to be made, will praise GOD."
20 For the LORD from His high Dwelling looked,
He bent from the Heavens, to Earth;
21 To hear how the prisoners sighed,
And set free His children from Death!

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 102, v. 9. This verse has had varying translations from the Septuagint, 300 B.C., to our day. In the Hebrew text, as we have it now, the reading is, "My foes insult me all day, and those who bless me, swear at me." This is absolutely a contradiction, but is followed by the Septuagint, and the Latin Translators. The Authorized English Version gives, "Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that are mad against me, are sworn against me." Luther has an equivalent rendering to the English one, and the French of Beza has the same. Although the Hebrew text must have been the same as we now have it 2250 years ago, it is, nevertheless, in error, I think, by some transcriber having written instead of מְהוֹלִי (that is Mehooli (friendly) instead of מְהוֹלֵי, Meckholli (opponents or assailants), the slip of a pen confusing the ה, the letters, "He," and ח, the letter "kh." in the Hebrew alphabet, being almost alike in form, and the Greek, German, French, and English old translators support my view by having made their versions upon that very ancient mistake of a transcriber.—F. F.

So publish in Zion the Power of the LORD,—	22
In Jerusalem, give to Him thanks.
Let the Peoples assemble together,	23
And Kingdoms to worship the LORD.

PSALM 102A.

A Prayer in Sickness.

He seemed reaping my days in His power—	24
But I said, "Take me not in the midst of my time,	25
For Your years are from ever to ever.
From before You had founded the Earth,	26
Or Your hands had constructed the Sky;—
They may perish, but You will remain;	27
And they all like a garment, wear out,
You change them like a cloak, and they change;
But Your years will not end.	28
And the Sons of Your servants will last,	29
And before You their Race will remain.

PSALM 103.

My Habid.

1

STANZA 1.

Let my soul bless the LORD,
And His Holy Name with my whole breast,
Let my soul bless the LORD,	2
And never forget all His gifts.
Who forgave all my sins,	3
And all my depravities cured.
From corruption redeeming my life,	4
He crowned me with Mercy and Love;
He filled me with beauty and grace,	5
Like an Eagle, renewing my youth.

STANZA 2.

The LORD will effect what is right,	6
Give Justice to all the oppressed.
To Moses He made known his way,	7
And His power to Israel's Sons.

STANZA 3.

Gentle, and kind is the LORD,	8
With great Mercy forbearing from wrath;
He is not reproving for ever,	9
Nor will He eternally chide.
He does not to us, like our sins;—	10
Nor like vices, return on ourselves,
For as high as the Skies from the Earth,	11
His great mercy to all who fear Him.
As far as the dawn from the dark,	12
He from us will sling off our crimes;
As a father is kind to his Sons,	13
The LORD to His fearsers is kind.
For He is aware of our make,	14
He remembers that we are but dust.
Like the grass are the days of a man,	15
Like a flower of the field, so he blooms,—
If a wind passes him, he is not,	16
And he never more knows of his home.
But for Ever GOD's mercy exists,	17

18 And to Ever on those who fear Him ;
And His goodness to Sons of their Sons,
Who keep, and remember His Laws,
And to those who obey His commands.

STANZA 4.

19 The LORD fixed His Throne in the Heavens,
And His Empire extends over all ;
20 Let all the LORD's Messengers bless him,—
Those who, mighty in power, do His will ;
Who attend to His voice of command.
21 All you, His warriors, bless Him,
You agents performing His will ;
22 All you whom He made bless the LORD,
On every part that you control,—
And I with my Soul bless the LORD.

PSALM 104

STANZA 1.

1 Let my soul bless the LORD ;—
How great you are LORD GOD ;
In splendid beauty clothed !
2 The light wraps like a cloak,
The skies flow like a veil ;
3 He builds His Tent on ether,
The clouds his chariots form,
On wings of winds proceeds
4 His Couriers are the storms !
His Agents flames of fire !
5 He fixed the Earth on laws
Unchanged throughout all times.
6 Convulsion's robe concealed ;—
The Seas o'erwhelmed the Hills ;—
7 At Your commands they fled,—
At Your loud voice they rushed !

STANZA 2.

8 The Mountains rose, the vales sunk down.
Each to the place You fixed for them.
9 You fixed them bounds, they cannot pass,
Or turn again to hide the land.
10 You sent out springs for brooks,
That flow amongst the Hills ;
11 All wild beasts there they water,
They quench wild asses' thirst.
12 By them the wild birds uestle,
And sing amongst the trees.
13 From His Home He moistens hills,
To make earth full of fruits ;
14 He grows the grass for cattle,
And herbs for human use ;
And brings bread from the earth ;
15 And fruit to glad man's heart,
With oil to cheer his face !—
And food to help man's strength.
16 The LORD's trees are content,—
He sowed Lebanon's Cedars,—
17 Where sparrows fix their nests,—
The Stork homes on her Firs ;
18 The Wild-goats on her heights,
The cliffs protect the Conies !

STANZA 3.

He fixed the Moon her times,	19
The Sun taught when to set;
Makes darkness, and night comes,	20
When forest beasts all move;
The tigers roar for prey,	21
And seek their food from GOD!—
The Sun bursts out, they fly,	22
And crouch down in their dens,—
Man goes out to his work,	23
And labours till the dusk.

STANZA 4.

How many, LORD, your works!	24
With knowledge all are made;
Your wealth has filled the Earth;
That great and rolling Sea,	25
Your hand with reptiles filled,
The small, as well as great!
The ships can travel there;	26
You there made Serpents sport;—
All these rely on You,	27
To give them daily food!
You give it, and they take,—	28
Your wide hand fills with sweets.
You close Your hand,—they faint,	29
You stop their breath, they die,
And go back to their dust!

STANZA 5.

You send creative breath,—	30
The face of earth renews;
GOD'S power is eternal;—	31
The LORD joys in His works;
He frowns at Earth:—it trembles;	32
He strikes the Hills:—they smoke!

THE CHORUS.

I sing the LORD for life;	33
I chant to GOD for ever;
My thought of Him is sweet,	34
My joy is in the LORD;
Let Sinners die from Earth,	35
And Villains cease to be;
But my soul bless the LORD,
Give honour to the LIFE!

PSALM 105.

STANZA 1.

Give praise to the LORD and call on His Name:	1
Proclaim to the Peoples His Works;
Sing to Him; Chant to Him,	2
And think of His wonders;
Praise His HOLY NAME;	3
And seek the LORD gladly;
Seek the LORD and His might,	4
Always search for His face,
Remembering His wonders;—	5
The portents and judgments He gave,
Race of Abraham His friend,—	6
Sons of Jacob, His chosen!

STANZA 2.

- 7 For our GOD is Life;
Who rules on the earth;
8 Remember His Bond for thousands of ages,
9 With Abraham He fixed,
Which to Isaac He promised,
10 And settled with Jacob—
The Bond made with Israel,—
11 " I give you this land,
Of wide Canan to hold,"
12 When but few in number,
So little and strangers,
13 Among Tribes they wandered,
Alone in the kingdoms,
14 He let no man hurt them;
Punished Kings for their sakes,—
15 " Touch not Mine Anointed,
Do My Preachers no harm!"

STANZA 3.

- 16 He sent dearth on the earth,
And He broke the whole staff of bread!
17 Sent before them a man,
Sold Joseph to slavery,
18 Put his feet in the stocks,
Iron pierced to his soul:—
19 Till the time had arrived.—
The LORD'S action refined,—
20 The King sent and released,
The Tribes' Chief then set free,—
21 Made Prince of his House,
And to rule all his wealth;
22 By His will guide His Chiefs,
And his Nobles instruct.

STANZA 4.

- 23 He brought Israel to Mitzer,— Jacob lodged in Ham's land.
24 There His People increased,
Grew to more than their foes
25 Whose heart rose to hate,
And to murder His Race.

STANZA 5.

- 26 He sent Moses His servant,
And His chosen Ahron,
27 With wondrous powers,
And signs, to Ham's land.
28 Sent gloom and it darkened,—
Obeying His power,—
29 To blood turned their streams,
And sent death to their fish,—
30 Shot frogs on their land,
And the beds of their King!—
31 He spoke, locusts came,
And lice in their bounds.—
32 He gave pouring hail,
Fire flamed in their land.—
33 Struck their vines and figs,
And smashed all the trees!—

He spoke—vermin came, And unnumbered, devoured ;	34
Ate all herbs in their land ;— Ate all fruits on the ground !—	35
He struck their country's heirs, The first fruit of their love ;—	36
But brought us out with wealth, We were not lame or weak ;—	37
Mitzer joyed as we went, For great fear fell on her !	38

STANZA 6.

He spread cloud to shade ;— Fire lighted by night !	39
They asked,—HE brought quails ; The skies filled with bread !	40
Springs leaped from the rocks, In Deserts brooks flowed !	41
His Word he kept true, To Abraham His friend.	42
Led His Race with joy, With cheering His chosen,	43
Gave them Heathen lands, And works of those Tribes,	44
If they keep His decrees, And always His laws :—	45

Give LIVING LIFE thanks.

PSALM 106.

STANZA 1.

Exalt the LIFE, and praise the LORD, Who is good, and His mercy is for ever.	1
---	---

STANZA 2.

Who can tell Jehovah's Might ? His Glories who can tell ?	2
Who keeps to blessed Justice, At all times doing right !	3

STANZA 3.

Remember me, LORD, with Your Chosen And enrol with the Race that You saved ;	4
To look on Your friends in success, To joy with Your Peoples' delight,—	5
With your country be glad !

STANZA 4.

We have sinned, as our fathers had sinned ;— Our fathers in Mitzer, thought not on Your wonders ;	6
Nor Your many mercies remembered, But rebelled at the Sea,—at the Sea of the Weeds.	7
Yet He saved them because of His NAME, And to publish His power.	8
To the Weed-Sea He spoke,—and it dried,— And they marched in the depth, as a field,	9
When He saved from the hand of their foes, And redeemed from their enemies' hand !	10
Their oppressors were whelmed in the Sea Not one from among them was left !	11
Then they put their trust in His word,	12

- 13 And they gave to Him thanks in their song,
But soon they forgot of His acts,
They would not await His designs,
14 In the Desert they longed in their lust,
They abandoned their God in the Waste!
15 Yet He gave to them that which they asked,
But sent to their bodies disease.

STANZA 5.

- 16 Then Moses they vexed in the Camp,
With Ahron the Saint of the LORD;
17 And earth opened, and swallowed up Dathan,
And closed on the Tents of Abiram!
18 And fire consumed in their meeting,—
The Wicked were burnt in its flame!
19 Yet in Horeb they made them a Calf,
To a statue they bowed themselves down,
20 And rejected their glory,
For a pictured bull fed upon grass!
21 Forgot GOD, their Saviour,
Who in Mitzer had done mighty things,
22 In Ham's country, wonders,—
At the Sea of Weeds terrors!
23 Then He spoke as about to destroy them,
But Moses His chosen stood up in the breach,
To turn back from ruin His wrath.

STANZA 6.

- 24 Then the land of Delight they despised;
They did not believe in His path,
25 And complained in their tents,—
Not attending the voice of the LORD.
26 Then He raised His hand against them,—
In the Desert their bodies to fling;
27 And to fling out their Race to the Heathen,
And scatter about in the lands.
28 Then they joined themselves to Bal-peor,
And to Dead Men their offerings ate!
29 Thus they provoked Him with their vice,
And upon them plague burst!—
30 Then Phineas arose to do right;
And arrested the plague;
31 And it gained him a fame,
Thro' ages, of ages, for ever.
32 Yet at Meribah's water they vexed,
When because of them Moses did wrong,
33 For his temper they roused, and he spoke in his haste.

STANZA 7.

- 34 And the Peoples they did not destroy,
As the LORD had commanded to them,
35 But mixed with and learnt pagan crimes,
36 And worshipped their Idols!
And they became wrapped up in them,
37 And their Sons offered up,
And their Daughters, to Devils,
38 When to Canaanite Idols they slaved,
And polluted the Country with blood;
39 And corrupted themselves by their acts,
And gave them to Idols to whore!

STANZA 8.

Then the LORD was enraged by His Race,	40
And by His inheritance vexed ;
And He gave to the foreigner's hand ;	41
Those who hated them ruled !
And their foemen afflicted,	42
And crushed under their hands !
Oft were the times He redeemed them	43
But their purpose was still to rebel ;
And to lower themselves by their vice !
But yet He looked down on their sufferings,	44
Whenever He heard that they cried !
And remembered His Treaty with them,	45
And like His great kindness relieved !
And showed loving kindness to them,	46
In presence of all who enslaved.

ENVOY.

Save us, O LORD ! our GOD !	47
And collect from the Nations,
To praise your HOLY NAME,
To rejoice in thanksgiving to You,
Bless the LORD GOD, O Israel ;	48
From Ever to Ever and Aye.

(Rubric.—Let the People Reply)

"Amen ! Alleluiah !"

THE SIXTH BOOK OF PSALMS.

CONTAINING THE PSALMS OF THE RETURN FROM BABYLON.

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE.

These are Collected Psalms of the Period after the return from Babylon, and Psalms of the Second Temple added to the ancient volumes of Psalms by David, Moses, Solomon, Asaph, and others. Probably compiled by Ezra or Nehemiah, and the Rabbis of the Great Sanhedrim, in the third century before Christ.

PSALM 107.

STANZA 1.

CARAVAN LEADER.
" Give praise to the LORD who is goodness,	1
For His mercy endures for ever ! "
Let the redeemed of the LORD exclaim,	2
Whom He redeemed from the hand of oppression,
Whom gathering He led from East, and from West,	3
From the North and the Sea.

STANZA 2.

- 4 They wandered in Desert and Waste,
 For a City of Rest, but found none.
 5 Their heart suffered hunger and thirst,
 It wasted away in themselves ;
 6 Then they cried to the LORD in their grief ;
 Who out of their anguish released,
 7 And directed them to the right path,
 To march to the City of Rest !

CHORUS.

- 8 " Give thanks to the LORD for His mercy,
 And His works for the children of men."

STANZA 3.

CARAVAN LEADER.

- 9 For He feeds the desiring soul,
 And fills hungry bodies with joy !
 10 The slaves in the Shadow of Death,
 And the prisoners of anguish and iron,
 11 Who rebelled from the message of GOD,
 And rejected advice from the Highest ;
 12 They were weak thro' the sin of their hearts ;
 They stumbled, and none could give help ;
 13 But they cried to the LORD in their grief,
 And He rescued from all their distress.
 14 He led out from the Shadow of Death,
 And stripped them from all of their chains !

CHORUS.

- 15 " Give thanks to the LORD for His mercy,
 And wonders He does for the children of men."

STANZA 4.

CARAVAN LEADER.

- 16 He has shattered the doors made of brass,
 And has cut up the iron-made bars ;
 17 Preparing a path from their grief,
 And has from their suffering led out
 18 When their body rejected all food,
 And they shook at the gateway of Death,
 19 They cried to the LORD in their grief,
 And He rescued from all their distress.
 20 He sent out His word, and it healed,
 And from their corruptions it freed !

CHORUS.

- 21 " Give thanks to the LORD for His mercy,
 And wonders He does for the children of men !"

STANZA 5.

CARAVAN LEADER.

- 22 Now offer an offering of thanks,
 And publish His Acts with a cheer ;
 23 You Sailors who traverse the Sea
 On Oceans who work at Your Trade ;
 24 Who there see the works of the LORD,
 And the Wonders He does on the Deep !
 25 He speaks :—and the storm will rise up,
 And tempest the billows arouse,
 26 They rise up to the skies ;—
 In convulsions they fall !

Then their spirit melts in them for fear.
 They reel, and they stagger as drunk, 27
 And all their intelligence fails;—
 Then they cry to the LORD in their grief, 28
 And He leads them out from distress.—
 He orders the storm to be still, 29
 And the billows to quiet themselves.
 And they smile as they see them abate, 30
 And rejoice at the comfort received.

CHORUS.

" Give thanks to the LORD for His mercy,
 And wonders He does for the children of men ! " 31

Exalt in the people's assembly, 32
 In the Hall of the Nobles give praise,
 For He to the Desert gives brooks, 33
 And water springs to the Dry-land!
 Rich country He turns to salt marsh, 34
 For the sins of those dwelling therein.
 He can give to the Desert a lake, 35
 And springs to the waterless grounds,
 And there He can settle the hungry, 36
 And found them a City to dwell ;
 And they cultivate fields, and plant farms, 37
 And make them to yield up their fruits ;
 He blesses them and they grow great, 38
 And their cattle are never decreased.
 If they are reduced and depressed, 39
 By oppression, and trouble, or grief,
 He pours on their Princes contempt, 40
 And they wander in wastes without paths!
 But He raises the wretched and poor, 41
 And guards them like sheep in His fold.—
 The upright will see and be glad, 42
 And wickedness shut up her mouth !

ENVOY.

The Wise should make note about this; 43
 And on the LORD'S kindness reflect.

PSALM 108.

A Singing Psalm, by David. 1

I will sing with heart constant to GOD; 2
 I will chant to Him with all my might.
 Awake up my lute, and my harp;— 3
 I will awake in the dark!
 To the Tribes I will publish You LORD; 4
 I will chant to the Nations of You ;
 For Your Mercy is wide as the skies, 5
 And Your truth is as high as the clouds.
 GOD ! Your Grandeur is over the skies, 6
 And Your Majesty over the Earth.¹

¹ NOTE.—The Mediaeval Masoretic Editors have evidently confused two Psalms into one, which they numbered as 108, by not observing the opposite sense of them. I, therefore, restore the original forms. The Psalm I number 108A is clearly a traditional version of Psalm 60, and preserved amongst the special psalms of David, and so the wording of 108A varies somewhat from Psalm 60.—F. F.

PSALM 108A.

By David, after Enquiring of the Priest the Divine help, when Joab had been Defeated by the Edomites.

(See Psalm 60, v. 8.)

STANZA 1.

- 7 DAVID. "If You will Your chosen deliver, Let Your right hand save, and reply,"
- 8 PRIEST. "God from His Sanctuary speaks."
- DAVID. "I am glad!"

STANZA 2.

- "I will arrange for the morning,—
And lower the tents for advance,
9 Take Gilad, Menasseh, and Ephraim;
And Judah to strengthen my Van;
10 I will wash Moab off like a flood,
O'er Edom will stride in my boots;
And over Philistia cheer!
- "Who will storm me the fortified Camp?
11 Who with me on Edom will charge?—
12 We are not forsaken by GOD,—
GOD will not our armies desert!
13 He will bring to us help from distress,
Where human assistance is vain;
14 We shall be made strong from our GOD,
And He our opponents defeat."

PSALM 109.

1 By David, to his Unndmaster.

STANZA 1.

- My GOD! when I pray be not silent;
2 Against me the wicked and bad open mouth,
With false tongue about me they speak,
3 And with venomous words they surround,
And assail me without any cause!

STANZA 2.

- 4 In return for my love, they revile,—
And yet I had pleaded for them!
5 They return to me evil for good,
And hatred instead of my love.
6 Let Sin have the mastery of them,
And Satan stand at their right hand.
7 In judgment be found in the wrong,
And their plea be considered a crime.
8 Let their days be but few;
Give their Office to others,
9 Let their children be orphans,
And wives, widows in want!
10 Their sons wander and beg,
And skulk amongst ruins!

STANZA 3.

Let usurers seize all they have, 11
 And their earnings by strangers be robbed;
 Let no kindness be poured out for them, 12
 Nor pity their orphans be shown.
 But let their posterity fail;— 13
 Blot their name in the following age!—
 The LORD of their father's crimes think, 14
 And their mother's sins never blot out!—
 Let them always be clear to the LORD, 15
 But their memory erased from the earth;
 For they thought not of merciful acts; 16
 But pursued the poor desolate man,
 And murdered the broken in heart!

STANZA 4.

He loved cursing;—so let it meet him, 17
 Hated blessing:—so drive it away.
 In cursing he clothed like a cloak, 18
 And took it like drink to his breast,
 It entered like oil to his bones!
 Let it be like the clothing he wears, 19
 And the belt that encircles his waist!—
 Thus let the LORD pay to my foes, 20
 Who speak to do wrong to my life!

STANZA 5.

But You work for me, LIVING LORD, 21
 For your NAME, for your Mercy relieves,
 Whilst I am but wretched and poor, 22
 And my heart is depressed in my breast.
 Like a shadow that stretches I pass, 23
 Like a locust I'm tossed up and down!

STANZA 6.

My knees shook from fasting, 24
 Body wasted from fat!
 To them I became a contempt, 25
 They looked on me shaking their heads!
 O comfort me, my LIVING GOD, 26
 And in your sweet Mercy protect;
 And teach me that this was Your hand, 27
 That You, LORD, have done it alone.
 And that tho' they curse:—You will bless!
 They rise but to fall:—but Your servant can smile. 28
 O clothe my accuser in shame, 29
 And wrap like a shawl in disgrace.

ENVOY.

I will thank the LORD much with my mouth 30
 In the midst of the crowd I will praise,
 For He stands at the hand of the poor, 31
 To save from the Judges his life.

PSALM 110.

A Psalm by David. 1

STANZA 1.

The LORD said to my Prince,
 "Sit on My right hand,
 Till I place your foes
 As a stool for your feet."

STANZA 2.

- 2 The LORD sends your brave army from Zion;
 Charge up to the breast of your foes!
 3 Your Forces are ready to-day,
 Your Army in beautiful pomp,
 More than dew-drops that come from the breast of the Dawn!

STANZA 3.

- 4 The LORD promised, and never will change,—
 For ever you shall be a Priest
 Of the Order of Melk-i-Zedek!

STANZA 4.

- 5 The Almighty is on your right hand!
 Who will crush, when in anger, the Kings;
 6 With Justice will fill Nations' breasts.
 Crush the head of Oppression on Earth.
 7 He gives drink from the Brook on your march,
 By which He will lift up your head!

PSALM 111.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Halliluyah!
 I praise the LORD with all my heart,
 Amongst the Right and True.
 2 The LORD's works are sublime,
 Sought for by all who love;
 3 His acts supremely great,
 And ever rightly stand.

STANZA 2.

- 4 Think of His wonders done,—
 The gentle pitying LIFE!—
 5 Who gives His servants food,
 And always keeps His Bond.
 6 He showed His Race His power,
 To give them pagan lands;—
 7 His handiwork is Truth,
 His Orders perfect Right.
 8 He sent deliverance to His Race,
 Fixed His Eternal Bond;—
 HOLY and GLORIOUS is His NAME!

CHORUS.

 The fear of the Lord begins wisdom,
 To all those who practice good sense;
 For ever His praise will endure.

PSALM 112.

- 1 A Song to the Ever-libing.

STANZA 1:

- Halliluyah.
 He who fears the LORD will succeed
 And whoever delights in His Laws,
 2 His race will be strong in the land,—
 The upright man's family blessed.
 3 Ease and plenty will be in his house.

And his happiness always will last ;
 For the Righteous, light bursts from the dark, 4
 For the Gentle, the Kind, and the Good.

STANZA 2.

The Good Man is gentle, and gives ; 5
 By Justice he measures his acts ;
 So that he will never be moved, 6
 For the Good will be always in mind.
 He will not fear the roar of the bad, 7
 With his heart fixed in trust on the LORD ;
 His heart will not doubt its support, 8
 Till his wish he can see on his foes.
 He distributed,—gave to the poor ; 9
 His goodness for ever will stand,
 His horn be exalted in might.
 The Bad will behold it, and grieve, 10
 Will gnash with his teeth and will faint ;—
 For the pride of the wicked will fail.

PSALM 113.

A Song to the Ever-libing. 1

STANZA 1.

Halleluyah !
 Let the LORD's servants hurrah !
 Hurrah to the NAME of the LORD !
 The NAME of the LORD should be blessed ; 2
 From now, and to Ever and Aye !
 From the rise of the Sun to its set, 3
 The Name of the LORD should be cheered !

STANZA 2.

Above all the Heathen, HIGH LORD, 4
 His Grandeur is over the skies !
 Who equals the LORD our GOD 5
 Who sits on the Heights in His Rest ?—
 Yet cares for the fallen on Earth and in Heaven ! 6
 Who picks up the weak from the dust, 7
 From dunghills exalting the poor ;
 And sits them with Princes, 8
 With the Chiefs of His Race !
 Who causes the childless at home 9
 To become a glad Mother of children !
 Halleluyah !

PSALM 114.

STANZA 1.

When Israel came from Mitzer, 1
 Jacob's House from pagan race,—
 To Him was Judah sacred, 2
 But Israel held His Power.

STANZA 2.

The Sea beheld and fled !— 3
 The Jordan back retired !
 The Mountains leaped like rams, 4
 The Hills like sons of sheep !

STANZA 3.

5 What hailed you, Sea, to fly?
 Jordan, that you retired?
 6 Why leaped you, Hills, like rams?
 You Heights like sons of sheep?
 7 Before th' ALMIGHTY reeled the earth,
 At sight of Jacob's GOD,
 Who made the rock a standing pool,
 The flint a flowing well!

PSALM 115.

STANZA 1.

1 Not to us LORD, not to us.
 But to Your NAME give glory,
 For Your Mercy, and Your Truth;

STANZA 2.

2 How can the Heathen ask,
 "Wherever is their God?"
 3 When our GOD is in Heaven,
 And all He wills, He does?
 4 Their Idols, Gold and Silver,
 The product of Man's hand.
 5 Their mouth can never speak,
 Their eyes can never see;
 6 Their ears can never hear,
 And then they cannot think!
 7 Their hands can never move,
 Their feet can never walk,
 8 Nor breath is in their breast!
 Who make are like themselves,
 With all who trust on them.

STANZA 3.

9 But Israel trust the LORD,
 Who is your help and shield;
 10 Trust, Ahron's House, the LORD,
 Who is your help and shield;
 11 Who fear the LORD, trust Him,
 He is your help and shield;
 12 The LORD thought of, and blessed us
 He blessed all Israel's House;
 He blessed the House of Ahron.—
 13 Bless those who fear the LORD,
 The small as well as great.

STANZA 4.

The Priestly Blessing and Exhortation.

14 I pray the LORD increase you,
 Increase you and your sons;
 15 Give Blessings to the LORD,
 Who made the Skies and Earth,
 16 The LORD'S are Skies and Heaven;
 The Earth he gave to Man;
 17 The Dead thank not the LORD,
 Nor all who go to silence,
 18 But we can Praise THE LIFE,
 From now, and to for Ever!
 Halleluyah!

PSALM 116.

STANZA 1.

I love the LORD who heard	1
My voice, and pitied me ;
Who to me bent His ear,	2
So daily I will call.
The Bands of Death had bound,	3
The Grave's griefs had arrived,—
I grief and anguish met,
But called the LORD by name,	4
"O! LORD, relieve my life ;"—
The Lord was good and kind,	5
And our GOD was benign.

STANZA 2.

The LORD will guard the weak,—	6
I fell, but yet He saved.
Return to rest my soul,	7
The LORD restores you peace,
My life relieved from Death,	8
Mine eyes relieved from tears,
My feet from falling down
I walked before the LORD,	9
In lands of savage beasts ;
I trusted, so I spoke,	10
When I was much distressed ;
I said in my alarm,	11
That all men will deceive.

STANZA 3.

What can I give the LORD,	12
For all His gifts to me ?
I'll raise Salvation's Cup,	13
And call the LORD by NAME.
Will pay the LORD my vows,	14
With all His People near.
Dear in the LORD's eyesight,	15
The slaughter of His Saints.
LORD, pity me, Your slave.	16
Your slave, Your handmaid's son,
Relieve me from my bonds.
Then I will offer thanks,	17
And call the LORD by NAME ;
Will pay the LORD my vows,	18
With all His People near,
In Courts of my LORD'S House,	19
That in Jerusalem stands.
Halleluyah !

PSALM 117.

Cheer to the LORD all you Nations!—	1
And let all the Peoples thank Him.
For mighty His Mercy about us,	2
And His Truthfulness is for all time.
Halleluyah !

PSALM 118.

STANZA 1.

THE CHOIR.
Thank the LORD who is good,	1
Whose Mercy endures ;

- 2 Now let Israel say,
That His Mercy endures,
3 Let Ahron's House tell,
That His Mercy endures;
4 Let the LORD's fearers declare
That His Mercy endures!

STANZA 2.

THE THANK-OFFERER.

- 5 I called on THE LIFE in distress,
THE LIFE heard, and He set me free.
6 The LORD with me, I fear not,
What men may do to me;
7 The LORD is my help,
Should I fear those who hate?
8 Better trust on the LORD,
Than rely upon men;
9 Better trust on the LORD,
Than on Princes rely!
10 If all Nations surround,—
In the NAME of the LORD I defeat!
11 Around me they circled,—
In the NAME of the LORD I defeat!
12 They surround me like bees,
Like thorn fires crackle,—
In the NAME of the LORD I defeat!
13 They rushed on with a rush,—
But the LORD saved from falling.
14 He helped, so I chant to THE LIFE;
For He was my Saviour!

STANZA 3.

- 15 I cheer loud, and shout in my Tents,—
The LORD strengthens the hand of the Good.
16 The LORD's right-hand lifts up;—
The LORD's right-hand makes strong 17 I shall not die,—but shall live,
And publish the works of THE LIFE.

STANZA 4.

- 18 THE LIFE punished, to teach —
And not to dismiss me to Death!
19 Throw open the Gates of the Right;
I will enter them praising THE LIFE;—
20 That is the Gate to the LORD,
And the Righteous will enter by it!
21 I give thanks, because You have heard, —
You have become Saviour to me,—
22 A Stone by the builders despised,
Has gone to the head of the Spire!
23 This result came from the LORD,—
And a wonder it was in our sight!
24 This the LORD has done to-day;—
Over it we are glad, and rejoice!
25 Come now, LORD, and save us;—
Come now, LORD, the Redeemer!

STANZA 5.

THE PRIEST.

- 26 " Bless who comes in the NAME of the LORD!
I bless you, from the House of the LORD;
27 Of GOD Who is LIFE, Who gives to us light."

(Rubric.—Here fasten the Gift with ropes to the horns of the Altar.)

THE WORSHIPPER RESPONDS.

"You are my GOD, and I thank;
My GOD, Whom I will exalt."

28

THE CHOIR.

Thank the LORD, Who is good,—
Whose mercy endures!

PSALM 119.

STANZA 1.

Happy the straight in their paths, who walk in the Laws of the LORD; 1
Happy those who examine His proofs, who seek with whole heart; 2
For they practice no vices, but walk in His paths, 3
As You have commanded, to carefully keep Your Commands. 4
I wish I could settle my pathways, to keep Your Decrees; 5
Then I should not err in my searches about Your Commands; 6
In rightness of heart I could thank You Who taught me good rules.— 7
Your Decrees I will keep, so forsake me not ever. 8

STANZA 2.

How can Youth gain noble life? By regard to Your Word.— 9
With my whole heart I seek not to stray from Your Rules. 10
In my heart I have hidden Your Words, so as not to offend. 11
LORD You should be thanked, for You taught me Your Statutes; 12
With my lips I proclaim the Decrees of Your mouth. 13
In pursuing Your proofs, I delighted as if over wealth. 14
I reflect on Your Orders,—look out for Your ways. 15
I delight in Your Rules, I forget not Your Words. 16

STANZA 3.

If You give life to Your servant, Your Words I will keep. 17
Clear mine eyes when I look at Your wonderful Laws. 18
I am strange in the land,—hide not from me Your Rules. 19
My soul aches, desiring at all times Your Judgments. 20
Reprove haughty villains, who slip from Your Orders; 21
Turn from me abuse, and contempt, for I study Your Proofs. 22
When Princes condemned me, Your servant thought of Your Rules. 23
For I felt delight in Your Proofs;—Your Counsels console. 24

STANZA 4.

My soul sticks to the dust; Revive it as promised. 25
I told You my ways, and You heard and You taught me Your Laws. 26
The course of Your Statutes I viewed, and I thought on Your Wonders. 27
My soul drooped with grief, but You raised, as You promised. 28
Turn me from false paths, and console by Your Laws. 29
I have chosen Truth's path,—Your Decisions sufficed me. 30
LORD, I clung to Your Proofs,—Let me not be disgraced. 31
I will run with Your Orders,—for You set free my heart! 32

STANZA 5.

Show, LORD, the path to Your Plans, and I'll keep it for ever. 33
Instruct,—and I will examine Your Laws, and will guard with whole heart. 34
Lead in Your Commands' path, as my heart has desired. 35
Bend my heart to Your Laws, and never to greed. 36
Make my eyes pass from looking at vice;—but revive in Your path. 37
Fulfil to Your servant, who fears You Your promise. 38
Turn off the reproach that I fear, for Your Judgments enrich. 39
See! I desired Your Orders,—In Your Goodness revive me. 40

STANZA 6.

- 41 LORD, let Your mercy find me ; You promised me safety,— 42 Then I can answer revilers again, for I trust in Your Word.
 43 And never hide truth from my mouth, for I trust on Your Judgment, 44 And Your Laws I will keep in the present and always.
 45 And then I can in freedom walk out, for I trust on Your Rules,
 46 So I publish Your Proofs before Kings without shame.
 47 So I will delight in Your Laws, which I love.
 48 I lift my hand to Your Laws, and reflect Your Decrees.¹

STANZA 7.

- 49 Remember Your word to Your servant, on which I have trusted.
 50 I consoled in my sorrows ; for Your promise revived.
 51 The proud greatly deride, but I swerve not from Your Laws.
 52 I always think of Your teaching, and I have its comfort.
 53 I tremble because of the wicked rejecting Your Laws.
 54 Your Decrees were my song, in my exile from home.
 55 LORD, I remembered Your Name in the night, and I will keep Your Laws :—
 56 They have come to me, because I have studied Your Orders.

STANZA 8.

- 57 My wealth, LORD, I declared, is regard to Your Words.
 58 My whole heart sought Your face,—as You promised, be kind.
 59 I thought on my ways,—turned my steps to Your Proofs.
 60 I prepared, and delayed not observing Your Orders,
 61 Tho' the bad bound me in chains, I forgot not Your Laws.
 62 I rose to thank You at midnight, for Your perfect Decrees.
 63 I join all who fear, and regard Your Commands.
 64 Your mercy, LORD, fills all the Earth, and so teach me Your Precepts.

STANZA 9.

- 65 LORD, do good to Your servant, as Your Word has said ;
 66 Teach me good sense and skill, for I hold fast Your Orders.
 67 Before I had suffered I strayed,—but I afterwards kept Your Commands.
 68 You are kind, and with Kindness, O ! teach Your Plans.
 69 Villains caught me by treason : I with whole heart kept Your Precepts.
 70 Their heart sours like milk, but I joy in Your Laws.
 71 That I have suffered is good, because it has taught me Your Precepts.
 72 To me your Laws are more than thousands of Silver and Gold.

STANZA 10.

- 73 Your hand made and formed ; show and teach me Your Orders.
 74 You, taught, LORD, the Right and the Just, and You punished me right.
 75 Your Decree, LORD, was just, and justly I suffered.
 76 Now let Your Mercy console, as You promised Your servant,
 77 Let Your pity come and revive, for I delight in Your Laws.
 78 Shame the Villains who plot to oppress ;—I appeal to Your Rules.
 79 Let all who fear You come here, I will show them Your Proofs.
 80 My heart keeps to Your Rules,—so I fear no disgrace.

STANZA 11.

- 81 My soul pants to be safe,—But I trust to Your Word.
 82 My sight fails for Your promise ; when shall I have rest ?
 83 Tho' I am like a skin in the smoke,—I forget not Your Rules.

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 119, v. 48. In this line I omit three words of the Hebrew Text, אֲשֶׁר אֲהַבְתִּי, "which I love," as being a transcriber's error. In repeating them again from the former line of the Psalm, and as especially by the repetition dislocating the metre of the poem.—F. F.

How can Your slave live? When will you punish my hunters?	84
Villains dig for me pits; they care not for Your Laws.	85
Your Commandments are Truth;—Falsehood hunts me, Oh help.	86
Tho' on earth almost killed, I gave not up Your Rules.	87
In Your pity revive, when I can keep to Your Proofs.	88

STANZA 12.

LORD, for ever Your purposes stand in the Skies.	89
Your Truth built on earth, fixed for Ages of Ages!—	90
Your Laws stand to-day, for all things serve to You.	91
Had I not loved Your Laws, I had died in my woes.	92
I forgot not Your Precepts, by which I have life.	93
O! save me,—I am Yours,—for I seek for Your Rules.	94
The bad hope to kill me,—for I look for Your Proofs;	95
I see an end to all made, but Your Orders stretch far.	96

STANZA 13.

How I loved all Your Laws,—always all day think of them!	97
I know more than my foes,—for Your Rules are still mine.	98
Than my teachers more skilled, for I think of Your Proofs.	99
I see more than the old, for I study your precepts.	100
From bad paths kept my steps, because I guard Your Word.	101
I left not Your Doctrines, for me You directed.	102
Your words please my taste, more than honey my mouth.	103
Your Precepts I knew, so I hated bad ways.	104

STANZA 14.

Your Word lights my steps, and enlightens my paths.	105
I swore, and I stand fast, to keep Your good Decrees.	106
I have suffered much; LORD revive as You promised.	107
Accept, LORD, my vows, and teach me Your Decrees.	108
My life is in my hand, so Your Laws I leave not.	109
The vile laid for me traps; I swerved not from Your rules.	110
Your Proofs I hold ever as my heart's great delight.	111
To work out Your Orders I bend all my heart.	112

STANZA 15.

I hate wandering thoughts; and I have loved Your Laws.	113
You are my shield of shelter, I trust on Your leading.	114
Drive off the bad from me; I seek my GOD's Commands.	115
Life and help You had promised; defeat not my trust.	116
Refresh, and set me free, for I stand by Your Rules.	117
Tread down lying rogues, all who desert from Your Laws	118
You drove all vile from the Land, so I have loved Your Proofs.	119
My frame shakes in terror, when I see Your Decrees.	120

STANZA 16.

I do Right and Good; so give me not to the traitors.	121
Guide your servant to good; let not villains betray.	122
Mine eyes fail for Your help, and for Your perfect word.	123
Act kind to Your slave, and teach me Your Decrees.	124
Give me sense, as Your slave, I shall know then Your Proofs.	125
LORD, the time is to act, for, see, they break Your Laws!	126
But I love Your Orders, more than purest Gold.	127
I go straight by Your Precepts, hate all crooked paths.	128

STANZA 17.

Your proofs are grand, so my soul for them seeks.	129
Your Words give clear light to the greatest of minds.	130
My mouth gasps in thirst; as I seek for Your Rules.	131

- 132 Turn to me and be kind ; I love Your Name and Laws.
 133 Lead my steps by Your Words, and let no passion drive.
 134 Free me from tricky men, and I will guard Your Rules.
 135 Turn light on Your slave, and teach me Your Decrees.
 136 My eyes shed floods of tears, for some keep not Your Laws !

STANZA 18.

- 137 You are Righteous LORD, and right Your Decisions.
 138 Your Goodness, Orders, Proofs, and Your Truth, very strong.
 139 My anger was burning, for my foes neglected Your Word.
 140 Your Truth well refined is, and so Your servant loves.
 141 I am small and am low, but forget not Your Rules.
 142 Your Right is always Right, and Your Laws are the Truth.
 143 I have met grief and woe, but I joy in Your Laws.
 144 Your Proofs are right for ever, they give sense and life.

STANZA 19.

- 145 I call with my whole heart ; LORD, Your Orders I seek.
 146 I call to You, " Save me ! " and I will guard Your Proofs.
 147 Before Dawn breaks I shout, for I trust on Your Word.
 148 Mine eyes outwatch the watch, to reflect on Your Truths.
 149 Kind Lord, hear my voice ; Your Commandment revives.
 150 My hunters oppress,—they keep far from Your Laws.
 151 You, Lord, are my friend, and all Your Orders right.
 152 I knew Your Proofs early ; for they last for ever !

STANZA 20.

- 153 Look, answer, and help ! for I leave not Your Laws.
 154 Plead my cause and redeem ;—Your promises revive.
 155 The bad are not safe, for Your Rules they reject.
 156 Lord, Your Kindness was great ; Your Decree has revived.
 157 A crowd pursue and vex, I swerve not from Your Proofs.
 158 I saw the rogues and moaned, for they guard not Your Words.
 159 I sought Your Plans, and loved ; LORD, Your kindness revived.
 160 Your Chief-Word is " The Truth," Your Will " Right for ever ! "

STANZA 21.

- 161 Princes chase without cause, but my heart fears Your Words.
 162 At Your Words I rejoice more than when finding wealth !
 163 I loathed and hate lies, because I loved Your Laws.
 164 I thank you every day, about Your good Decrees.
 165 They thrive who love Your Laws, but not those who offend.
 166 Lord, I wished for Your Help, so obeyed Your Commands.
 167 My life sees Your Proofs, which I love very much.
 168 I guard Your Plans, and Proofs, for You watch to my ways.

STANZA 22.

- 169 LORD, I meet You cheering, for I know your Word.
 170 Let my prayer come to You, redeem me as You said.
 171 My lips bubble thanks, for You taught me Your Rules.
 172 My tongue tells Your Words ; for Your Orders are good !
 173 O ! let Your hand help, for on Your Plans I trust.
 174 LORD, I long for Your help, and I joy in Your Laws.
 175 My Soul revived thanks You who by Your Decree helped.
 176 A lost sheep I strayed,—but Your servant You sought.
 177 Who left not Your Commands.

THE SEVENTH BOOK OF PSALMS.
CONTAINING THE PILGRIMS' SONGS FOR USE
WHEN GOING UP TO THE FESTIVALS.

PSALM 120.

A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

PILGRIM.

To the LORD in my distress I cried, and He replied to me. 1
"LORD save my soul from lying lips, and from rebellious tongue." 2

STANZA 2.

REPLY.

"What give to you, and what lay on for your rebellious tongue? 3
Men's biting darts, and burning fire of broom!" 4

PILGRIM.

Alas for me! I lodge in Camp! I dwell in Tents of Gloom! 5
My Soul, 'tis better dwelling there, than with the foes of peace. 6
I wish for Peace,—but when I speak they then prepare for War. 7

PSALM 121.

A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

I lift mine eyes up to the Hills, but to me no help comes! 1
My help comes from the LORD, who made the Heaven and the Earth. 2

STANZA 2.

LEADER.

He will not let your footsteps slip; He will not sleep on guard;— 3
He never slumbers, never sleeps, Who watches Israel's way. 4
The LORD will guard, the LORD protect, will stand at your right hand; 5
By day the Sun shall never strike, nor yet the Moon by night! 6
The LORD will guard you from all ill, be watchful of your life; 7
The LORD will watch you out and home, from now and to all time 8

PSALM 122.

A Pilgrim's Song, about David.

STANZA 1.

LEADER.

I rejoiced when they asked me, To go to the LORD's House, 1
Our feet are set towards your Gates, O! Jerusalem! 2
Jerusalem is built like a City united together; 3
There the Tribesmen go up, all the Tribes of the LIFF! 4
To witness to Israel, to thank there the LORD,
For there stand the Thrones of the Judges,
With Thrones in the Palace of David. 5

STANZA 2.

PILGRIMS.

"Oh! pray for Jerusalem's Peace, 6
Let all prosper who love You; 7
Let Peace be a Power on Your Walls, 8
And Prosperity be in Your Homes. 9

8 Because of our friends and brothers,
 We pray that you now may have peace.—
 9 Because of the House of the LORD our GOD,
 We seek for the good of yourself."

PSALM 123.

A Pilgrim's Song.
 1 To You I lift mine eyes,—The dweller in the Heavens,
 2 Like as the servants' eyes are to their master's hand,
 And as the handmaid's eyes are for her mistress' sign,
 So on the LORD our GOD our eyes are ever fixed !
 3 Pity, LORD, O pity us, for we are full of grief,
 4 Our haters with their scorn have gorged upon our souls;—
 Depress their haughty pride !

PSALM 124.

A Pilgrim's Song, by Habid.

STANZA 1.

" If the LORD had not been with us,"
 Israel now might say,
 2 " If the LORD had not been with us,"
 When men upon us rose,
 3 They would have swallowed us alive,
 In savage, furious rage !

STANZA 2:

The waters would have swept away
 The rivers whelmed our souls;
 4 They would have gone above our lives,
 The torrents of the proud.
 5 Oh ! bless the LORD who gave us not,
 To tearing by our foes !
 6 Like birds from trap he loosed our lives,
 The tangling snare he broke, and freed.
 7 The LORD released from them,
 8 Who made the Skies and Earth.

PSALM 125.

A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

Who trusts the LORD, like Zion's Mount, unmoved for ever stands:
 2 As Hills surround Jerusalem,
 The LORD surrounds his Race,
 From now and to all time !

STANZA 2.

3 For not shall last the Wicked's rule,
 Above the Good men's name ;
 For fear the righteous should stretch out
 Their hands to practise crime.

STANZA 3.

4 The LORD attends upon the Good,
 And to the right in heart ;
 5 But to wanderers in their crooked ways,
 The LORD brings up their sins.

CHORUS.

Success to Israel.

PSALM 126.

A Pilgrim's Song. 1

STANZA 1.

When the LORD restored the Captive Zion,
 We were like those who dream. 2
 Our mouth was then with laughter full,
 And all our tongue with cheers!

STANZA 2.

"Great things the LORD has done for these,"
 The Heathen then exclaimed;
 The LORD has done great things for us, 3
 And therefore we rejoice!

STANZA 3.

"LORD, our Captivity turn back, 4
 As tides rush from the south.—
 Who sow in tears, with cheering reap;— 5
 Who walking, walk along,
 And weeping bear the scattering seed, 6
 With cheers bring back the sheaves!"

PSALM 127.

A Pilgrim's Song, by Solomon. 1

STANZA 1.

If the LORD builds not the House,
 In vain the Builders strive;
 If the LORD watch not the Tower,
 In vain the Watchman guards. 2
 In vain for you to rise at dawn,
 And late to go to rest,
 And eat of carefulness the bread,
 When He gives His darlings sleep.

STANZA 2.

See! Children are the LORD's estate, 3
 The body's sweetest fruits;
 Like arrows in a Giant's hand, 4
 Are they, your youthful sons.
 The man is blest who has with them, 5
 Filled up his quiver full.
 He will not shame when he may meet,
 His foemen in the Gate.

PSALM 128.

A Pilgrim's Song. 1

STANZA 1.

Blest, all who fear the LORD, who walk along His paths;
 What your hands earn you eat,—is blest and Good to you. 2
 Your Wife, a fruitful vine, to decorate your home, 3
 Your children Olive-Shoots, around about your board.— 4
 The blessings then are these, for him who fears the LORD.

STANZA 2.

The LORD will bless from Zion, and show good all your life, 5
 And show your sons and your grandsons the peace on Israel. 6

PSALM 129.

1 A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

2 "From my youth oft in danger," now may Israel say;—
3 "From my youth oft in danger but yet not destroyed.
On my back plowers plowed, and my anguish prolonged."

STANZA 2.

4 O RIGHTEOUS LORD cut off the bonds of the Bad,
5 Defeat and hurl backward all those who hate Zion.
6 Make like grass on the roofs, dried as soon as it grows;
7 That fills no mower's hand, or the reaper with sheaves.
8 And no passers-by say, "Give good thanks to the LORD;—
We, to JEHOVAH'S NAME will for you offer thanks!"

PSALM 130.

1 A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

2 From the Depths I have cried to the LORD;
3 ALMIGHTY! attend to my voice;
To my voice let Your hearing attend; Pity me!—
4 If You watch LORD, for sins;
Who, ALMIGHTY, could stand?
5 But with You is forgiveness,
And so You are loved.
I hoped on the LORD,—my soul hoped
6 And I trusted His word.
My soul has awaited th' ALMIGHTY,
As dusk waits for dawn.

STANZA 2.

7 Let Israel trust on the LORD,
For with the LORD there is mercy,
8 And He can deliver His Race.
And Israel He can deliver,
From the whole of his sins!

PSALM 131.

1 A Pilgrim's Song, by Habid.

LORD my heart is not high,
2 And my looks are not proud,
I walk not in grandeur
3 And great deeds not my own.
I have rested my soul
Like a child on its mother?—
So with me was my mind.

CHORUS.

8 Let Israel trust the LORD,
From Now to Evermore.

PSALM 132.

1 A Pilgrim's Song.

STANZA 1.

Remember, LORD, David when in all his troubles,—
2 Who vowed to the LIFE, to the MIGHTY of Jacob
3 "I will not enter my house, or go up to my bed,

Or give sleep to mine eyes, or to my eyelids rest, 4
 Till I find the LORD'S place, 5
 And the home of the MIGHTY."

STANZA 2.

'Twas in Ephrath reported, was found in the Woodlands:— 6
 Let us go to His Tents, let us bow to His footstool;— 7
 "Come up, LORD, to Your House, with the Ark of Your Might, 8
 Your Priests rightly clothed, and Your Saints all rejoicing, 9
 Your slave David leads,—from Your Anointed turn not." 10

PSALM 132A.¹

Upon the Conditions of the Promise to David.

THE LORD to David truly swore, and from it will not turn;— 11
 " Upon your Throne I will set one who from your body springs, 12
 If your sons guard My Treaty, and the Doctrines that I teach, 12
 Then their sons of sons succeeding, shall sit upon your Throne. 13
 For the LORD has chosen Zion, to make His dwelling there, 13
 This is My Home for ever, where I will dwell, because I love. 14
 I will bless Her food with blessing, and fill Her poor with bread; 15
 Her Priests will clothe in safety, and her happy Saints shall cheer. 16
 There fix the horn of David, and set my Messiah's light, 17
 I will clothe his foes in shame, but honour on him shine!" 18

PSALM 133.

A Pilgrim's Song, by David.

See how good and sweet it is, when brothers rest as friends 1
 'Tis like the sweet oil from his head, that flowed down to the beard 2
 And from the beard of Ahron ran down to his garment's hem;—
 Like Hermon's dew that falls upon the height of Zion's Hill, 3
 For there the LORD His blessing gives, and life for Evermore.

PSALM 134.

A Pilgrim's Song.

THE INVITATION. 1
 " Come bless the LORD, who serve the LORD,
 Who in the LORD'S House stand at night.
 Lift up pure hands in innocence, and give thanks to the LORD." 2
 THE PRIESTLY BLESSING.
 " The LORD, who made the Heaven and Earth,
 May He bless you from Zion." 3

PSALM 135.

STANZA 1.

Give praise to THE LIFE; 1
 Praise the NAME of the LORD;
 The LORD'S servants give praise.
 Who stand in the House of the LORD, 2
 In the Courts of the House of our GOD.

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 132A, v. 10. By the subject this 132nd Psalm, which now stands in the current copies of the Bible as one, seems to me clearly two separate anthems, confused together either by the Temple Editors, or subsequent transcribers; I therefore have ventured to restore it to the proper division as 132A.—F. F.

STANZA 2.

- 3 Give praise to THE LIFE;
For good is the LORD,
Chant to His Name for He comforts.
4 For Jacob He chose to Himself,
Israel THE LIFE chose for His treasure
5 So I have learnt,
How Great the LORD is,
6 And more than all gods, the ALMIGHTY
All that the LORD wills,
He does in Skies and Earth,
7 In the Seas and all Deepes!
Raises fogs from the bounds of the Earth,
Brings Wind from His Stores to make showers.
8 He cut off Mitzraim's first-born of Man and of Beast.
9 Sent Terrors and Portents amongst the Mitzraim,
To Pharoh and to all his men.

STANZA 3.

- 10 He defeated great Nations, and slew mighty Kings; 11 Sihon King of the Amorites, Og King of Bashan.
And the Chiefs of Canan,
12 Gave the lands they possessed,
To Israel for His People to hold.

CHORUS.

- 13 Your Name, LORD, is for Ever,
Your fame for Ages of Ages!
14 The LORD leads His People,
Gives His servants gifts!

STANZA 4.

- 15 The Heathen worships Silver,
And Gold formed by men's hands,
16 With mouths that cannot speak,
With eyes that cannot see,
17 With ears that cannot hear,
And noses without breath;—
18 Who make are like themselves,
With all who trust in them!

STANZA 5.

- 19 Israel's House, thank the LORD,
Ahron's House, thank the LORD.
20 Levi's House, thank the LORD:
Fear the LORD, come bless the LORD.
21 Thank the LORD from Zion;—
Jerusalem's People praise THE LIFE.

PSALM 136.

- 1 Sing to the LORD who is good,
Whose mercy endures!
2 Sing to the GOD of the Gods;
Whose mercy endures!
3 Sing to the Prince of the Princes;
Whose mercy endures!
4 Who alone does great wonders;
Whose mercy endures!

Who made the Skies with skill ; And His mercy endures !	5
On the waters spread land ; For His mercy endures !	6
Who created great lights ; For His mercy endures !	7
The Sun guiding by Day ; For His mercy endures !	8
With the Moon and the Stars, To guide during night, For His mercy endures !	9
Who cut off tyrant's troops ; For His mercy endures !	10
And led Israel from them ; For His mercy endures !	11
By strong hand and arm led ; For His mercy endures !	12
Cut the Weed-sea to Isles ; For His mercy endures !	13
And passed Israel through them, For His mercy endures !	14
Pharoh's host caught in sea weeds ; For His mercy endures !	15
Marched His Race in the Waste ; For His mercy endures !	16
Who defeated great Kings ; For His mercy endures !	17
And slew haughty Kings ; For His mercy endures !	18
Sihon, the Amorite King ; For His mercy endures !	19
And Og, Bashan's King ; For His mercy endures !	20
Gave us their land to possess ; For His mercy endures !	21
To His servant, Israel ; For His mercy endures !	22
When depressed, thought of us ; For His mercy endures !	23
From our tyrants released ; For His mercy endures !	24
He gives food to all flesh ; For His mercy endures !	25
CHORUS.
Sing the GOD of the Heavens ; For His mercy endures !	26

PSALM 137.

STANZA 1.

By Babel's Rivers we sat down, And wept remembering Zion.—	1
On the Willows there we hung our harps ;—	2
For there of us our Captors asked, To sing songs in our grief!—	3
"Come sing us blithe a Song of Zion!"

STANZA 2.

The LORD's Songs who can sing, Upon a foreign ground ?	4
---	---

STANZA 3.

- 5 If I forget Jerusalem,—
Forget, my right-hand me !
6 Let my tongue fail within my mouth,
If I remember not !
Or hold not up Jerusalem,
Above my highest joy !

STANZA 4.

- 7 Remember Edom's sons, O LORD,
Upon Jerusalem's day,—
Who cried, " Down, down with her to Earth ! "
8 O ! Babel's cruel daughter,
I bless who pays your debt,—
The debt you owe to us !
9 I bless who takes your babes,
And dashes on the stones !

PSALM 138.

- 1 By Habîb.

STANZA 1.

- I praise with all my heart, I chant before You, GOD,
2 Bow in Your Holy Fane and give thanks to Your Power,
Your Mercy, and Your Truth, and Word are fixed o'er all !
3 For when I cried You answered me, and gave my soul fresh strength

STANZA 2.

- 4 All kings of Earth should praise, for they hear of Your Works.
5 And sing the LORD on march who is the LIVING POWER !
6 The LORD who lifts the low,—and sees and knows the high from far.

STANZA 3.

- 7 In danger hold me up, if in my march I meet ;
Throw hand on raging foes, for Your right hand can save.
8 The LORD avenges me ; Your mercy, LORD endures ;—
Leave not Your handiwork.

PSALM 139.

- 1 To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by Habîb.—A Plea to the Lord.

- LORD, You have tried me and known,
2 You know if I sit down or rise,
My Shepherd guard from far,
3 Prepares my field and couch,
My journeys, and my halts ;
4 Before my tongue can speak,
O LORD ! You know it all !
You formed my Past, and Now,
And placed on me Your hand !

PSALM 139A.

- 6 Your knowledge is wondrous to me,
I never can reach to its height.
7 I walk by Your Spirit,
Am led by Your mouth.
8 If I rise to the skies,—You are there,

You are there if I dive to the Grave !
Should I lift up Dawn's Veil,— 9
And plunge under the Sea,—
Your hand there could seize, 10
Your right-hand could hold !
If I say, " The darkness will hide,
Night shines not to betray." 11
Then Dark, is not Darkness to You,
And Night is as bright as the Day ! 12
So Darkness and Light are the same !—
For You have created my members, 13
You arranged me in my Mother's Womb.

I praise You because You enlighten, 14
My mind knows the Wonders You do.
My thoughts are not hidden from You,
Who made, and in secret Who wove, 15
When preparing for earth ;
Your eyes saw me, as I was evolving, 16
The whole was inscribed on Your Plan,
And You formed my days when not one of them were !

How precious Your thoughts are to me ! 17
How powerful, GOD, their results !
If I counted the sands they are more,— 18
When I waken, I stand before You !
Oh ! cut off the Bad, GOD of Truth, 19
And from me drive off men of Blood
Who meditate only revolt, 20
And contrive for Your Cities distress !

Those who hate You, LORD, do I not hate ? 21
And loathe those who rise against You ?
Those who hate You, I perfectly hate,— 22
As enemies they are to me !
GOD, try me and find out my heart, 23
Examine, and find out my ways,
And see if I stray in my path,— 24
And for ever lead me on Your road !

PSALM 140.

To his Bandmaster.

A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

Deliver me, LORD, from Bad Men, 2
Preserve me from those who oppress ;
Who meditate crime in their hearts, 3
Who daily assemble for Wars !
They dart out their tongue like a snake, 4
Adder venom is under their lips.

STANZA 2.

LORD, guard from the hand of the Bad, 5
Snatch me from the men who oppress !
Who are trying to trip up my steps ;
The proud who lay traps for my feet, 6
And spread out their cord-woven nets,
And lay snares at the side of my road !
I said, O LORD, You are my GOD, 7

- 8 So hear, LORD, the voice of my prayer,
Great LORD of Strength! You have saved me,
You have covered my head in the fight;
9 LORD! give not to the wish of the Bad,
Let their treacherous thought not succeed,

STANZA 3.

- 10 Let the heads that would plot to entrap,
Be caught by the lips of themselves,
11 And rain burning coals upon them,—
Unhelped fling to torrents of flame!
12 Let the Slanderer not rest in the land,
Distress chase the villains away!
13 Let them know that the LORD will do right,
And be just for the wretched and poor.
14 Then the Righteous will sing to Your Name,
And the Just in Your presence reside!

PSALM 141.

- 1 A Psalm by David.

STANZA 1.

- To You, LORD, I cry,—haste to help;
Attend to my voice when I call;
2 Take my prayer as a perfume to You,
The raising my hands as a gift;
3 Set, LORD, a watch on my mouth,
A guard at the door of my lips;
4 Let not my heart turn to vile things
Nor consort with the doers of crime;—
With men who are practising sin,
Nor eat of their bread in their feasts!

STANZA 2.

- 5 Let the Righteous in kindness reprove,
And correct me like oil to my head,—
Which my head will never refuse,
And my prayer will give thanks for their care.
6 Their Decisions are sown from full hands,¹
They are kind and will hear when I plead:
7 For like grain they are drilled on the land,
And drop on the lips of the furrows.

STANZA 3

- 8 Still on You, Mighty LORD, are mine eyes,
Your mercy I trust not to cast off my life;
9 But protect from the trap they have set,
And the snare that the Wicked have laid.
10 Let the villains fall in it themselves,
Whilst I always pass over them safe!²

¹ NOTE.—I read בִּי יְהוָה סֶלֶל, "by the roadside," "or free-hands," to mean "in public" in honest daylight.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Psalm 141, vv. 5 to 10. The passage from vv. 5 to 10, as the Hebrew text apparently reads, has puzzled all translators, from the days of Greek, and all others, in every language I have been able to consult; consequently all translate it as, and into, pure nonsense. After long study, it appears to me that some very ancient transcriber, by a very easy slip of the pen in the Hebrew, lost the meaning for his successors, and I have therefore, after very, very long efforts, and by the assistance of my friend, the Rev. J. Bowen, B. D., of Wolfs Castle, corrected those three or four misspelt words, and have arrived at the above result of a clear consecutive sense. The versions of all my predecessors read as follows, with hardly a word of variation, so I

PSALM 142.

A Reflection by David, when He was in the Cave of the Flay. 1

STANZA 1.

I shout with my voice to the LORD, 2
 With my voice to the LORD I appeal;
 I pour out before Him my thoughts, 3
 My troubles before Him report.
 In my languor, my spirit lift up, 4
 For to You my pathways are known;—
 They set traps on the road that I went,—
 I looked right, but I saw no release,— 5
 To me chance of flying had failed,
 From those who were hunting my life.

STANZA 2.

Then, LORD, I shouted to You, 6
 Exclaiming that You were my trust,
 My support in the land where we live.
 I am weak, so attend to my shout, 7
 Release me;—my hunters are stronger than I;
 Bring out from my prison my soul, 8
 To give praise to YOUR NAME.

ENVOY.

The righteous will gather to me,
 When to me You return.

PSALM 143

A Psalm by David. 1

STANZA 1.

Listen, O LORD, to my prayer;
 Attend my request in Your truth.
 In Your justice give answer to me,
 And let not Your slave be condemned: 2
 None living are perfect to You.
 For my body the enemy hunts, 3
 He strikes down my life to the earth,
 Throws to darkness as if I were dead,
 And my spirit within me is faint, 4
 And my heart in my breast is depressed.
 I think of the days of the past, 5
 I meditate on all Your acts,
 I reflect on the work of Your hands;
 I spread out my hands towards You,— 6
 My body to You, like earth's dust!

give the English Authorized Version as fairly representative.

Vv. 5 to 10.

- 3 " Let the righteous smite me: it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me; it will be an excellent oil: for yet my prayer also shall be in their calamities.
 6 " When their judges are overthrown in stony places, they shall hear my words; for they are sweet.

" Our bones are scattered at the grave's mouth, as when one cutteth and beweth wood upon the earth. 7

" But mine eyes are unto Thee, O God, the LORD; in Thee is my trust: leave not my soul destitute. 8

" Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity. 9

" Let the wicked fall into their own nets whilst that I without escape."—F. F. 10

STANZA 2.

- 7 Make haste to answer me, LORD,
 For my spirit fails!
 Oh! hide not Your presence from me,
 When I am like sinking to death.
- 8 Let me hear of Your mercy at dawn,
 For on You is my trust.
 Oh! teach me the road I should go,
 For to You I have handed my life!
- 9 Free me, O LORD, from my foes,
 With You let my shelter be found.
- 10 Teach me to accomplish Your will;
 For Your spirit is pleasant, my GOD,—
 It can lead to the land that is safe.
- 11 For Your Name's Sake, revive me, O LORD,
 Free my mind, by Your goodness from grief;
- 12 Cut off in Your mercy my foes,
 And destroy all who tortured my life.
 For I am Your slave.

PSALM 144.

By David.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Bless JEHOVAH my Rock,
 Who taught my hands to fight,
 And my fingers to war!
- 2 My hope, and my fortress,
 My high hill of retreat;
 My shield that I trust,
 Who to me brought my Tribe!

STANZA 2.

- 3 LORD, why should You teach man?
 Frailty's Son,—and regard him?—
- 4 Man, the likeness of weakness,
 Whose days pass like a shade!

STANZA 3.

- 5 LORD, bow the Skies and descend,
 Torch the hills and envelop in clouds,
 Flash splintering lightning on them,
 Shoot out Your arrows and break!
- 7 Send Your hand from on high to set free,
 And pull from the powerful streams,
 From the sons of the foreigner's hands,
 Whose speech is a treacherous word,
 And their right hand, a hand to deceive!

PSALM 144A.¹

An Anthem with the First-fruits.

- 9 GOD, to You I will sing a New Song,
 With the harp at the Tything will chant,
 Who gave to our leaders success,—
 From cruel swords saved your slave David!—

¹ NOTE.—Psalm 144A. The verses following v. 8 are apparently a separate poem to Psalm 144, and formed an Anthem of praise at the offering of First-fruits; therefore I mark them as 144A.—F. F.

Freed from the sons of the strangers, Whose mouth only treachery speaks, And their right hand, a hand to betray.	11
That our sons may be young growing plants, Our girls fruitful crops, building Homes ;	12
Our garners be full of supplies, Tens of thousands our flocks in our folds !	13
Let our oxen be strong for their work, And we free from assault and attack.	14
And free from the shrieking of flight ! How happy the Race who are thus,	15
How happy the People whose GOD is THE LIFE.

PSALM 145.

A Prayer of Habid's. 1

STANZA 1.

Arise up, my GOD and my King!— Your Power for ever I bless, I daily will bless, and will praise, For ever and ever Your NAME.	2
--	---

STANZA 2.

The GREAT LORD is worthy of praise, His grandeur is passing research, Age shows to Age of Your works, Which proclaim You as being Supreme !	3
Of your Majesty, Power, and Might, I will think,—and Your wonderful Acts ;	5
Of Your Power and glory they tell ; And Your sublime nature recount ;	6
The record they spread of Your Goodness, And they of Your rectitude sing.	7

STANZA 3.

The LORD is forbearing and kind ; Slow to wrath, and His pity great !	8
The LORD is in every way good, And His mercy is on all He made.	9
All Your works praise You, O LORD, And Your sanctified, offer You thanks,	10
Of Your Regal Honour they tell, And speak of Your Power Supreme ;	11
To teach Adam's sons of Your grandeur, And the glorious light of Your realm ;—	12
Your realm in the Kingdom Eternal ! And Your rule in all ages of time !	13

STANZA 4

The LORD supports, all who are falling, And those who have fallen, picks up.	14
All the hungry eyes wait upon You, And You give their food in its time.	15
You open Your bountiful hand,— And fill all living creatures with joy !	16
The LORD is in all His ways just, And gentle to all He has made !	17
The LORD comes to all who will call, To all who call for Him in truth.	18
He delights to see all He has made, And he hears and will help when they shout ;	19
Let all who love Him heed the LORD, For He will destroy all the Bad.	20

ENVOY.

- 21 My mouth proclaims, Praise to the LORD,
And HIS NAME let all living things bless
And for ever and ever adore.

PSALM 146.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Come praise the LIFE !
Myself, and my Soul, praise the LORD.
2 The LORD I will praise while I live,—
I for ever will chant to my GOD.

STANZA 2.

- 3 Put not your trust upon Princes;—
Adam's son has no power to aid !
4 His breath goes, and he rests in the ground,—
And then all his splendour departs !
5 He is blest who calls on Jacob's Help,
Who relies on the LORD GOD of him ;
6 Who made sky, and earth, and the sea ;
And everything that they contain,
And whose promise for ever is kept.
7 And He, against tyrants decrees ;
He gives to the famishing, bread,
The LORD also prisoners frees,—
8 The LORD gives the blind renewed sight
The LORD helps the lame ;
The LORD loves the good ;
9 The LORD guards the stranger ;
Aids Orphan, and Widow ;
But roughens the path of the Bad !

ENVOY.

- 10 The LORD reigns for ever !
Your GOD, Zion, always exists,
Bless THE LIFE !

PSALM 147.

An Anthem.

- 1 Bless THE LIFE, who is Goodness, and chant to our GOD
For His praise is pleasant and sweet.

PSALM 147A.

An Anthem of the Dispersed.

- 2 LORD, re-build Jerusalem ;
Restore scattered Israel ;
3 Heal the broken in heart,
And set their broken bones,

PSALM 147B.

An Anthem on the Power of God.

- 4 He settled the number of Stars ;
He calls every one by their names,
5 Our Prince, great in Power and Might ;
Whose intellect none can record ;
6 The LORD who will lift up the feeble,
But flings the Bad down to the ground !

PSALM 147C.

An Anthem of Thanks.

Respond to the Lord with the Lute.	7
Chant to our GOD on the Harp,	8
Who covers the Sky with the clouds,	8
To produce for the earth His sweet showers,	9
To make the grass grow on the Hills,	9
And give to the cattle their food,	9
And feed the young ravens who cry.

PSALM 147D.

An Anthem on the Nature of God.

Not in the strength of a horse He delights.	10
Nor is pleased with the legs of a man.—
But the LORD joys in those who fear Him,	11
Those who on His mercy rely!

PSALM 147E.

An Anthem of Exhortation.

Jerusalem, give to the LORD thanks,	12
O Zion, give thanks to your GOD;—
Who strengthens the bars of your gates,	13
Who blesses your sons in your breast.
Who gives to your boundaries peace,	14
And feeds you with richest of wheat,
Who sends down His Message to earth,	15
His Order that quickly proceeds;
Who spreads out His blanket—like snow,—	16
Like ashes He scatters hoar frost!
He sends out His ice like a sheet,	17
Ice, fixes the face of a lake!
He sends His command, and it melts;	18
Turns His wind, and the waters rush out!
To Jacob, He uttered His word;—	19
So, Israel, hear His Decrees;—
To all Nations, He did not do thus;—	20
His Decisions He taught not to them.
Give thanks to THE LIFE.

PSALM 148.

STANZA 1.

Give thanks to THE LIFE!	1
Give thanks to the LORD!
From the Heavens they thank Him on High!
All His Messengers thank,	2
All His Army thank Him!
The Sun and Moon thank,	3
The bright Stars all thank,
The Skies thank His Name,	4
And the Seas the Skies cover;—
They thank the LORD'S NAME,	5
For His Order created,
And placed them for ever;—	6
He gave the unchanging Decree!

STANZA 2.

Thank the LORD from the Earth;—	7
All serpents and reptiles;
Fire, hail, snow and mist;	8

- 9 And whirlwinds obeying His word;
 You Hills and all heights,—
 Fruit trees and all Cedars,—
 10 Wild beasts, and all herds,—
 Reptiles, and winged birds,—
 11 Earth's Kings, and all Peoples,—
 Earth's Judges and Chiefs,—
 12 And boys with young girls,—
 And old men with youths,—
 13 Praise the Name of the LORD!
 For only His Power is high,—
 His Glory above Sky and Earth,
 14 And He lifts up the horn of His Race.

CHORUS.

Praise Him for all His Mercies,
 To Israel's sons!
 The Race which He chose!—
 Give praise to THE LIFE!

PSALM 149.

STANZA 1.

- 1 Praise THE LIFE!
 O! sing to the LORD a new song;—
 Praise Him in the meeting of Saints!
 2 Let Israel rejoice in his Maker,
 Sons of Zion be glad in their King!

STANZA 2.

- 3 Praise His NAME in the Dance!—
 With the drum, and the harp chant to Him;
 4 For the LORD has delight in His Race,
 The feeble adorns with success,
 5 In His honour the Holy rejoice,
 And cheer as they lie on their beds;
 6 Exalting their GOD by their voice,
 With a double-edged sword in their hand,—
 7 To execute Justice on Nations,
 And in Peoples to make a reform,—
 8 In fetters to fasten their Kings,
 And in iron-made chains;
 9 And to do on them sentence decreed!—
 To His Saints this honour belongs.—
 Give thanks to THE LIFE.

PSALM 150.

- 1 Thank THE LIFE!
 Praise GOD in His Home!
 Praise for His wide power;
 2 Praise Him for His might,
 Praise Him as THE GREAT,
 3 Praise Him with horn-blast,
 Praise with lute and with harp,
 4 Praise with drum and with dance,
 Praise with timbrel and bells!
 5 Praise with sounding gongs,
 Praise with gongs that resound,
 6 Let all breathing give praise to THE LIFE;—
 Praise THE LIFE.

THE END OF THE BOOKS OF PSALMS.

THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON-BEN-DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL.

1 THE Proverbs of Solomon-Ben-David, King of Israel, which
2 are to teach wisdom and correc-
3 tion, and to understand the ideas
4 of intelligence; how to acquire instruction, skill, righteousness, justice, and rectitude; and to teach the young to gain prudence and discretion.
The Philosopher can listen, and add 5 to his acquisitions, and the intelligent gain assistance in understanding a 6 proverb, and the meaning of the words of the Wise and their dark sayings!

BOOK OF PROVERBS.—BOOK THE FIRST.

Hlto.

Respect for the Lord is the first-fruit of Wisdom; and only fools despise correction. 7

David's Introductory Address to his Son, Solomon.

" My son, hear your father's correction; 8
And reject not the words of your mother,
For they are a wreath for your head,
And chains for adorning your neck. 9

Rules of Life.

" Go not, my son, if the wicked entice, 10
If they say, ' Come, let us look out for blood,
And lurk for the careless and fools; 11
Let us swallow their lives like the grave,
And in mass, as they got to the pit! 12
We shall seize upon wealth of all kinds;
And with plunder can fill all our hands. 13
Come throw in your venture with us,
One purse then shall serve for us all! ' 14
" My son, go not out on their path! 15
And hold back your feet from their course,
For their footsteps rush on to distress, 16
And hasten to shedding of blood!
" The net surely is spread out in vain 17
In the sight of the lord of a wing!—
But those watch to shed their own blood, 18
They lay ambush against their own lives!
For that is the end of all plunder,— 19
Plunder captures the lives of its slaves.

An Exhortation to the Crowd.

" Wisdom cries out aloud in the streets,— 20
She utters her voice in the squares;
At the top of the markets she cries, 21
At the wide open gates of the town,
She declaims in her speech!

The Speech of Wisdom.

- 22 " How long will you foolish love folly?
And scorners delight in your scorn?
And you ignorant hate to be taught?—
- 23 Come, turn and examine my proofs,
For I pour out my spirit for you,
To you I will teach my ideas!
- 24 " Tho' I cry, you will never attend;
Tho' I stretch out my hand none will grasp;
- 25 My councils you treat with neglect,
And you will not accept my reproofs,
So when you are in grief I will laugh
- 26 Will smile when your terror arrives,
When destruction comes on like a tempest,
And your sorrow sweeps on like a storm,
And your trouble and anguish have come!
- 27 " If you call me,—I will not reply!
You will seek,—but then never shall find,
In return for your hating instruction,
And refusing to reverence the LORD!
- 28 You did not desire! my advice,
And you flung away all my reproofs;—
- 29 So eat of the fruit of your conduct,
Be satisfied with your own plans;
For the tricks of the cunning will kill them,
And deceptions of idiots destroy,
- 30 But my hearers in safety will dwell,
And rest without fear of distress!

Comment upon the Address of Wisdom.

- 2 " My son, if accepting my words,
If you store my command with yourself,
3 If your ears will lay hold of Wisdom,
And your heart will incline to reflect,
3 If, then, you will call to Perception,
And to Thoughtfulness lift up your voice,—
- 4 If you seek her, as men do for silver,
And dig as for wealth from a mine,
5 You will then find the fear of the LORD
And discover the knowledge of GOD!—
- 6 For the LORD is the giver of Wisdom,
From HIS mouth come Knowledge and Thought;—
- 7 Salvation He stores for the upright;
And shields those who walk in the truth;
8 Keeps guard on the path of the Just,
And safe marks the way of His Saints!
- 9 " So examine the Right and the Just,
And the Wise, and then all will go well,
Then Wisdom will enter your heart,
And Knowledge be sweet to your soul
- 10 Discretion will watch over you,
Reflection herself will attend,
11 Will preserve from the way of Distress,
From the persons who speak to pervert;
- 12 Who wander from Rectitude's paths,
To walk in the ways that are dark,
13 Who delight in the practice of wrong,
And rejoice in perverseious vice;
14 Whose courses are all of them crooked,
- 15

¹ NOTE.—I change the 3 p. pl. of the Hebrew verb to the 2 p. pl. to meet our English idiom in addressing an audience.—F. F.

And deception in all that they do!
 And will guard you from women depraved,— 16
 From the stranger with flattering words,
 Who abandons the love of her youth, 17
 And forgets every law of her GOD;
 Who allures to the Death in her House!— 18
 The exhausted are strewn in her paths!—
 All who enter it,—never return! 19
 Nor revisit the pathways of life!
 "But you,—walk in the path of the good;
 And keep to the straightforward ways,
 For the virtuous continue on earth, 21
 And upon it the upright remain,
 While the bad are destroyed from the ground,
 And from it wrongdoers are pulled. 22

The Results of a Virtuous Life.

"My son! forget never My Laws, 3
 And let your heart store My Commands;—
 For long days and years to your life,
 And peace to yourself they will add.
 "Abandon not Kindness and Truth, 3
 But twine as a wreath on your neck,
 And write on the page of your heart;—
 Then you will find favour and fame,
 In the sight both of GOD and of men. 4
 "And trust on the LORD in your heart,
 And rely not upon your own skill;— 5
 Acknowledge Him in all your ways,
 And then He will make your paths smooth. 6
 And in your own eyes be not wise,—
 Fear JEHOVAH and turn off from wrong; 7
 For it will be health to your nerves,
 And come like a drink to your bones. 8
 "Pay respect to the LORD from your wealth,
 And the first fruits of all you produce,
 Then your barns will be full of your crops,
 And your stores will be bursting with fruit. 10
 "Son, despise not the LORD who corrects,
 Nor hate Him because He reproves, 11
 For the LORD reproves those whom He loves,—
 Like a father his own darling child! 14

The Wealth of Wisdom.

"How happy the man who finds Wisdom! 13
 And the man who Reflection attains!
 For her cargo is better than silver,
 And her produce surpasses fine gold! 14
 For she is more precious than pearls,
 And no pleasures are equal to hers! 15
 In her Right, is extension of days,
 In her Left, she has honour and wealth; 17
 Her tracks are of pleasantness ways,
 All her paths are the pathways of peace!
 Who owns her,—owns a Tree giving Life; 18
 Who retains her,—possesses success! 19

How God Founded the World.

"The LORD founded by Wisdom the Earth 20
 By Intelligence fixed up the Skies,
 And expanded the Space by His Knowledge,
 And makes the clouds drop down the showers. 21

22 " Son ! let them not slip from your eyes,
 Seek Enterprise joined with Good-sense,
 23 For they are the life of your soul,
 And they will add grace to your neck.
 24 You then can walk forward in safety,
 And your footsteps will never be caught;
 25 If sleeping, you will not feel terror,
 Nor the rush of the storm when it comes.—
 26 For the LORD will be still your supporter,
 And guarding your feet from a fall.

On the Life of Practical Virtue.

27 " Withhold not your help from the needy,
 When GOD gives your hand power to do ;
 28 Say not to your friend, ' Go away,
 To-morrow I'll give,' when you have !
 29 Contrive not a wrong to your neighbour,
 When he trustfully rests at your side.
 30 " Assail not a man for a trifle,
 Except in return for a wrong.
 31 To be like the villain desire not,
 And never delight in his ways.
 32 For the LORD has disgust at the scoundrel,
 But the honest have Him for a friend.
 33 " The LORD curses the house of the bad,
 But blesses the home of the good.
 34 " With scorners, He is Himself scornful,
 But gives to the youthful His-grace.
 35 " The Wise will inherit respect,
 But the Fools will reside in contempt ! "

David continues His Lessons to Solomon, related by Him to His own Son.

4 Listen, sons, to a father's instruction,
 And reflection attentively learn ;—
 2 For good doctrine I utter to you,
 So never abandon my rules.
 3 For I was my father's dear son,
 Who because of my mother he loved,
 So he taught me himself, and he said,—
 4 " Now let your heart cling to my words,
 Regard my instructions and live.
 5 Get Wisdom ; and get Understanding,
 Nor forget her, nor swerve from her speech,
 6 Nor abandon ; and then she will guard ;—
 And love her,—and she will preserve.
 7 " Let Wisdom be first ; purchase wisdom ;
 And Reflection with all you possess ;
 8 Exalt her,—and she will exalt you,—
 And honour you, when you salute ;—
 9 Place a beautiful wreath on your head,
 And give a magnificent crown.
 10 " Listen, son, and attend to my words,
 They will add to the years of your life.
 11 " I teach you the pathways of Wisdom ;
 I direct to the smoothest of roads,
 12 Where, walking, your foot will not stumble,
 And if running you will not fall down.—
 13 Seize Instruction, and let her not go,
 Keep her fast ; because she is your life.

" Never enter the path of the wicked ;—	14
Nor advance by the road of the bad.
Avoid it, and pass it not over,	15
Turn away from ascending, and shun ;
For they sleep not unless they have wronged ;	16
And sleep leaves them unless they betray,
For their bread, is the eating of Crime,	17
And outrage the wine that they drink !
" But the path of the good, morning light,	18
Advancing to shine to full day !
While the road of the wicked is dark,	19
And they know not the time of their fall !
" My son ! now attend to my words,	20
And bend down your ears to my speech.
And let it not slip from your eyes,	21
And guard in the depth of your heart !
They are life to whoever may find ;	22
And health to all parts of his frame.
Guard ever your thoughts with all care,	23
For from them come the issues of life.
" Expel from yourself a false mouth,	24
And cast from yourself a loose life.
Let your eyes to your object look straight,	25
And your glance be direct before you.
And ponder the path for your feet,	26
And let all your courses be firm.
Swerve not to the right or the left,—	27
But turn off your foot from the wrong.

A Warning against Vice.

" My son ! to my wisdom attend,	5
And bend down your ear to my thoughts ;
Keep to reflection and knowledge,	6
Which they will provide for your lips,
" Though a loose wanton's lips may drop honey,	7
And her mouth may be smoother than oil,
Her results are more bitter than wormwood,	8
More sharp than a double-edged sword !
Her steps only lead down to Death,	9
Her pathways conduct to the Grave.
Lest you find out the pathway of life,	10
Her paths are untraceably wound.—
" But listen, my children, to me,	11
And turn not away from my words ;
From her let your steps turn away,	12
And approach not the door of her house.
Lest you give to Seducers your wealth,	13
And to those without mercy your years.
Lest strangers be fed by your strength,	14
And your wealth in a foreigner's home,
And you groan at results to yourself,	15
With your body and manhood destroyed,
And exclaim, ' How I hated instruction,	16
And rejected reproof from my heart !
Nor would learn from the voice of my teacher,	17
Nor bend to instruction my ears !
I have almost been always in sin !	18
In the midst of the crowd and the court.'

An Exhortation to Chastity.

" Drink water drawn from your own well,	19
And streams from the depth of your spring ;

- 16 From your fountains that flow in your court,
That run into pools with their streams,
17 And reserved for your own use alone,—
Not for you, and for strangers as well.—
18 And let your spring always be blessed,
And rejoice with the wives of your youth,
19 With the lovely gazelles, graceful ever;—
At all times be entranced by their breasts,
And dream at all times of their love.
20 "Why, my son, be entranced with the love,
And embrace to a breast that is strange?—
21 For man's ways are observed by the LORD,
Who carefully weighs all his paths.
22 His own vices capture the bad,
And hold him enchained in his sins;
23 By his want of reflection he dies,
And his numberless follies betray."

Advice on Business Affairs.

- 8 "My son, are you bond for a friend?
Or for strangers have signed with your hand?
9 Or are snared by the words of your mouth?
Or caught by the words of your lips?
3 Try this way, my son, to get free,—
Since you are in the hand of your neighbour,—
Go humble yourself to your friend,
4 And never give sleep to your eyes,
Nor give to your eyelids a rest,
5 Till you leap like a deer from his net,
And a bird from the hand that had caught.

The Parable of the Ant.

- 6 "Go, Sluggard, look at the Ant,
Consider her ways, and be wise!
7 Who has no Leader, Guardian, or King,
8 Yet lays up her bread in the summer,
And heaps up in harvest her food!
9 "How long will you lie down, you sluggard?
When will you rise from your sleep?
10 'A little more sleep, and a little more slumber,
A little more folding the hand for a slumber,'—
11 So your poverty comes like a robber,
And your want like a man with a shield.

On the Characteristics of Wice.

- 12 "A loose fellow—a man of no worth,—
Goes about with a profligate mouth;
13 With winking of eyes, with a shuffling of feet,
With his finger he mischief provokes;—
14 Always planning, and letting loose sin!—
15 But his punishment comes unexpected,
With a sharp irreparable break.

What the Lord Hates.

- 16 "There are six things the LORD Himself hates.
And a seventh is abhorred by His soul;
17 Haughty eyes, and a tongue that deceives;
And hands shedding innocent blood;
18 A heart that plans out vile deceptions;
Feet ready to rush to do wrong;
19 A breather of lies for defrauding;
And the sender of strife among friends!

On Filial Duty and Warnings against Debauchery.

- "My son! guard your father's commands, 20
 And your mother's rules do not reject;
 Continually wrap round your heart, 21
 And make them the scarf of your neck.
 They will be in your course as a guide, 22
 And watch you when lying asleep,
 And converse with you when you awake.—
 His command is a lamp, and her rules are a light. 23
 And reproofs to instruct in the pathway of life,
 To guard you from women defiled;— 24
 From the strangers with flattering tongues.
 "In your heart never long for their charms, 25
 And be not ensnared by their smiles.—
 A whore brings to a morsel of bread;
 The adulteress hunts the dear life! 26
 "Can a man put a fire in his breast. 27
 And not be consuming his clothes?
 Can a man upon burning coals walk, 28
 And by them his feet not be scorched?
 Thus who goes to the wife of his friend, 29
 Escapes not from her without loss.—
 They despise not a thief if he steals,
 To fill the demand of his life;
 But if found he repays sevenfold, 31
 All he has in his house they will take.
 But the coward corrupting a wife 32
 Produces a rot to his life;
 He finds but disease and disgrace,
 And his infamy cannot be hid!— 33
 "For jealousy makes a man mad;
 Unsparing in time of revenge,— 34
 No recompense he will regard,
 No rest for the greatest of bribes! 35
 "My son, give regard to my words,— 7
 Lay up with yourself my commands;
 Regard my commandments,—and live,— 2
 And my rules like the ball of your eye.
 Let them girdle your fingers around, 3
 Inscribe on the book of your heart;—
 Say to Wisdom, 'My sister are you'; 4
 And Discernment address as your friend,
 Who will guard you from women depraved: 5
 From the stranger with slippery tongue.
 "Once from my house, thro' the lattice, 6
 At the time of the evening I looked,
 And, watching, I saw in the Broadway, 7
 With the young men a youth without sense,
 Who passed thro' the street to her corner,— 8
 He stalked on the way to her house,
 In the twilight, the dusk of the day, 9
 In the gloom of the night, towards dark;
 Then I saw a woman approach him, 10
 A dressed harlot,—and crafty of heart,—
 (Such are noisy, and cannot be quiet, 11
 And their feet never rest in the house,—
 But are now in the streets,—in the squares,—
 And lurking in every nook),—
 And she eagerly seized him and kissed, 13
 And pouted her mouth, and addressed:—
 "I have offered my offering of thanks,— 14

- To-day I have paid what I vowed ;
 And so I have come out to meet you,—
 To seek for your face, and have found !
 I have spread pretty rugs on my couch,—
 Of Egypt the bright-coloured chintz.
 I have charmingly scented my chamber,
 With cinnamon, sandal, and myrrh !—
 " Come in ! let us riot with loves !
 And delight with the darlings till dawn ;—
 For the master is not in my home,—
 He has gone on a journey afar !
 He took with him a bag full of cash ;—
 He comes home on the day of new moon.
 She seduced him by pratteling much ;—
 She deludes by her pattering lips !—
 He went, like an ox to be slain ;
 Went and leaped like a stag to a net,
 Till his liver is pierced by her dart ;—
 As a bird he makes haste to the trap,
 And knows not, it is for his life !
 " But you, my son, listen to me ;
 And attend to the words of my mouth,
 Incline not your heart to her path,
 Nor turn yourself to her arcade.
 For many fall wounded by her,
 And her murdered would make a great host ;—
 Her house is the path to the grave ;
 It leads down to the Chambers of Death ! "

The Invitation of Wisdom.

- " And then does not Wisdom invite ?
 And Intellect utter her voice ?
 From the top of the mounds by the roads,—
 She stands at the junction of streets,
 At the gates ; at the front of the walls,
 When the entrances open, she shouts ;
 " Men ! it is to you that I call !
 And to Adam's sons utter my voice !—
 You foolish,—reflect and have sense ;
 You stupid,—reflect in your heart !
 Hear, for I speak with manifest sense,
 And with honesty open my lips ;
 And my palate articulates truth,
 And my lips are abhorring the false.
 All the words of my mouth are for right,
 None in them are bent, or perverse ;
 To intellect, they are all straight,
 And plain to the seeker of fact,—
 Seize my instructions,—not money !—
 And knowledge before refined gold !
 For Wisdom is fairer than pearls,
 And all pleasures equal not hers !
 " I, Wisdom, am dwelling with skill,
 And know the discoveries of thought.
 Fear the LORD, and dislike wicked pride,
 For pride, bad ways, and libel I hate ;
 But Counsel and Safety are mine ;
 And mine are Reflection and power ;
 Kings reign, and the Princes do right,
 And the Governors govern by me,
 With all Judges controlling the land ;

And I love whoever loves me,	17
And who earnestly seeks me shall find.
" Both honour and riches are mine,	18
With enduring wealth and content,
Better products than high-refined gold,	19
And more choice than what silver can buy.
In Rectitude's high road I walk,	20
In the midst of the pathway of Right,
To make those that love me have wealth,	21
And that I may fill up their stores.
" The LORD formed me, the first of His plans,	22
Before He began to create ;
And I was enthroned from of old,	23
Ere the first preparations of earth ;
When Space was not made I revolved ;	24
Before the deep springs of the sea ;
Before that the mountains were set,	25
I revolved ere existed the heights ;
Ere the earth and its circuit was made,	26
And before the first dusts of the worlds !
" When He formed the suns I was there,	27
When their circuits were settled in space !
When arranging the clouds from above,	28
When controlling the fountains in space ;
When He fixed His decree for the sea,	29
That the waters should not pass the shore ;
When He fixed His decree for the land,
I was there with delight, day by day.—	30
I rejoiced in His presence the while ;
I rejoiced in the circling of earth,	31
And rejoiced in the children of men !
" So now, children, listen to me !—	32
They are happy who keep to my ways,
Submitting yourselves to be taught,	33
Be wise, and turn never from me.
The man who hears me will succeed,	34
Who stands at my gate day by day,
Who waits till I open its doors ;—
For who finds me, discovers true life,	35
For he is approved by the LORD.
But who misses me hurts his own soul ;	36
All who hate me are lovers of death.' "

What Wisdom has Done.

" Now Wisdom has built up her house,	0
Seven columns hewn out for herself ;
Slain her cattle, and mingled her wine,	2
And also her table has spread,
She has sent out her maids to invite	3
From the crowds on the top of the walls,—
' Who is ignorant, let him turn back,'	4
She says, and to those of faint heart,
' Come, enter and eat of my bread,	5
And drink of the wine I prepare.
Abandon your follies and live,	6
And advance on the road of good sense.' "

The Maxims of Wisdom.

" Who corrects a derider, gets insult ;	7
Who advises the wicked, abuse ;
Correct a derider, he hates you ;	8

- 9 Correct a wise man, and he loves ;
 Teach the Wise and he then will be wiser ;
 Teach the Righteous, and he will improve.
 10 ' The fear of the LORD reveals wisdom,
 11 And to know the Supreme understanding ;
 And by me will your days be increased,
 And years be adjoined to your life.
 12 ' If wise, you are wise for yourself ;
 You will suffer yourself, if you scorn ! ' "

The Description of Folly.

- 13 " A loud talking woman is Folly !
 A fool,—who knows nothing at all !
 14 And she sits at the door of her house,
 On a seat at the height of the town ;
 15 Calling those who pass by on the road,
 Who travel along on their paths ;—
 16 ' Who is foolish ? Then let him turn here ! '
 And to the weak-hearted, she says ;
 17 ' Be sure stolen waters are sweet,
 And bread eaten in secret is nice ! —
 18 But he knows not the Dead that are there ;—
 That she calls to the deeps of the Grave ! "

THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON.

BOOK THE SECOND.

The Maxims of Solomon.	10
A wise son makes his father glad, A foolish son his mother grieves.
The gifts of Fortune cannot help But Righteousness defends from death.	2
The LORD starves not the righteous soul, But checks the bad man's lust.	3
The careless hand produces want, The diligent makes wealth.	4
A prudent man will reap in summer; A son of shame will sleep in harvest !	5
Blessings crown the righteous head, Shame clothes the face of crime.	6
The memory of the Good is blest, The fame of Bad will rot !	7
The wise in heart obey commands, A jabbering fool revolts !	8
Who walks honestly, goes safely ; Who twists his ways, will be shunned !	9
Who winks his eye will give offence ; And the jabbering fool repels.	10
The mouth of the Good is a living spring, But the face of the Bad hides crime.	11
Hatred awakes contentions ; But Love conceals offence.	12
Wisdom finds the lips of Reflection, But the rod, the back of a fool !	13
The wise man stores up knowledge, But the fool's mouth opens his breast !	14
The rich man's wealth is his fort ;— Their poverty wrecks the poor.	15
The wages of Virtue are Life ; The product of sin is Suffering.	16
Correction guards the path of Life, Who rejects correction strays.	17
Who wraps up hate has lying lips, Who spreads slander is a fool !	18
Danger lurks in many words, So the prudent shuts his lips.	19

- 20 Choice silver is the tongue of the good,
But the heart of the wicked worthless.
- 21 The lips of the good feed many;
But they die by the cowardice of fools.
- 22 The blessing of the LORD brings wealth
And toil adds nothing to that.
- 23 To practise sin is sport to fools,—
But prudent men seek wisdom!
- 24 The terrors of the wicked catch him,
But the wish of the good will be done.
- 25 Like a passing storm, sin goes;
But goodness endures for ever!
- 26 Like acid to teeth, and smoke to the eyes,
Is a sluggard to him who sends him.
- 27 The fear of the LORD adds days,
But sin will shorten our years.
- 28 The hope of the good is to benefit,
But the wish of the bad is destruction.
- 29 The way of the LORD is strength to the good,
But horror to the doers of wrong.
- 30 The Good will not always be shaken,
Nor the Bad always dwell on the Earth.
- 31 The mouth of the Good utters wisdom,
But the perverted tongue destruction.
- 32 A deceptive scale disgusts the LORD,
But He delights in an honest weight.
- 33 Insolence comes,—then follows disgrace
But Wisdom is with the lowly.
- 34 The Just are guided by Right;
But the cunning of rogues destroys them.
- 35 Wealth helps not in the day of wrath,
But Rectitude saves from Death.
- 36 Goodness smoothes the path of the True
But the wicked falls by his sin.
- 37 Goodness releases the honest,
But rascals are caught by their crimes.
- 38 The hope of the Bad ends in Death,
When his objects of passion vanish.
- 39 The Good is prepared for danger,
But it comes on the Bad in his stead.
- 40 A traitor wrecks his friend by his mouth,
But the faithful saves by his skill.
- 41 When the good prosper, the town exults,
But it shouts when the wicked fail!
- 42 Honest endeavours raise a state;
But it falls by the thought of the bad.
- 43 The base of heart defames his neighbour.
But a man of reflection is silent.
- 44 A rascal goes and reveals a secret,
But a faithful spirit conceals a thing.

Without a guide, a People falls, But is saved by plenty of counsel.	14
Who guarantees a stranger smarts; And who hates guarantees is safe.	15
A fair woman retains her honour, As wealthy men retain their wealth.	16
A man kind-hearted enjoys his life, But a cruel man torments himself.	17
The wicked earn a deceptive wage But the righteous a true reward.	18
The Child of Virtue is Life; The Offspring of Wickedness Death! ¹	19
The LORD abhors the false of heart, But he delights in the upright course.	20
Tho' hand join hand the bad escape not, But the seed of the good are safe.	21
A golden gem in the snout of a hog, Is a fair woman lost to discretion.	22
The hope of the upright is always good, The hope of the wicked departs.	23
A man may scatter and still increase, Or grasp at much, and be poor!	24
A generous soul is enriched, And a waterer will be watered.	25
The people will curse the holder of corn, But will bless the hand that sells.	26
The benefactor seeks delight, And who seeks injury, meets it!	27
Who trusts in his wealth will fail, But the good will flourish like grass.	28
Who disturbs his house inherits wind, And the fool will serve the reflective.	29
The fruit of the good is a living tree, And the wise man gathers lives.	30
You see the good repaid on earth,— How much more the vile and the bad	31
Instruction love; and love to learn;— Who hates reproof is loutish!	12
The LORD shows favour to the good; But will punish the mischievous man.	2
A man cannot build upon wrong, But the foot of the good has a sure base.	3
A virtuous wife is her husband's crown, But the vicious, a rot in his bones.	4
The design of the good is Justice; The aim of the wicked Deceit.	5

¹ NOTE.—V. 19. In this verse I read with the Septuagint as above. "B'n" ב'ן instead of ב'ן "K'n," that is, "B'n, son," instead of "K'n, therefore," the sense showing "B'n" to be the correct reading. If it were

"K'n," the couplet would be translated as follows:

Therefore Righteousness produces Life;
The Result of Wickedness is Death.—F. F.

- 6 The plans of the wicked seek blood ;
But the plan of the good is to save.
- 7 The wicked fall, and vanish ;
But the house of the righteous stands.
- 8 A man is honoured for a prudent mouth,
But the malicious in heart is despised.
- 9 The commoner who has a servant,
Is better than a prince without bread !
- 10 The good man cares for the life of his beast,
But the mercies of the bad are cruel.
- 11 Who farms his land will have bread ;
But who follows a demagogue is senseless.
- 12 The wicked wish for wrongful plunder ;
But the plant of the righteous bears.
- 13 The bad are caught by rebellious lips,
But the good are brought out of trouble.
- 14 A man can gain by the fruit of his lips,
And the work of his hands comes to him.
- 15 The way of a fool is right in his eyes,
But the wise will hear advice.
- 16 A fool displays his anger at once,
But the skilful will hide an insult.
- 17 A truthful witness breathes out good,
But the false one pours deceit.
- 18 Loose talk is a stabbing sword,
But the tongue of the wise will heal.
- 19 The true lip will last for ever ;—
For a moment, the lying tongue.
- 20 The heart contriving evil deceives,
But the councils of peace bring joy.
- 21 No sorrow will oppose the good,
But the bad will be full of trouble.
- 22 The LORD abhors the lying lip,
But the practice of truth delights Him.
- 23 The skilful man conceals his knowledge,
The fool's heart proclaims his folly.
- 24 The hand of the diligent rules,
But the idle lies under tribute.
- 25 Grief depresses the heart of a man,
But a gentle word can cheer it.
- 26 The righteous excels his neighbour,
But the wicked lose their way.
- 27 The idle, cooks not his game,
But action is wealth to the active.
- 28 Righteousness brings us a happy life,
And her pathway leads not to death.
- 18 A wise son will love correction,
But a scoffer hears not reproof.
- 2 A man's mouth eats good food,
But the soul of a rascal villainy,

He guards his life, who checks his mouth, The wicked lipped kills himself!	3
The idler longs, while his body starves,— But the active body will thrive.	4
The righteous hate false-speaking, But the wicked revile and libel.	5
Righteousness keeps a straight-on course, But wickedness turns to sin.	6
Some men seem rich, but have nought, Or pretend to be poor, with wealth.	7
A man's life can be ransomed by wealth But the poor man hears no threats.	8
The light of the righteous shines, But the lamp of the wicked flickers.	9
The vanity of pride makes strife, But wisdom possesses prudence.	10
Small losses diminish wealth, It increases by small additions.	11
Hope deferred makes a man's heart sick; But a wish attained is a tree of life!	12
He is bound by a pledge who breaks it; But who attends to the law has peace.	13
Wisdom's rules are a well of life;— To the rejector, snares of death.	14
Good conduct procures us favour, But the path of traitors is hard.	15
All the clever act with caution, But the foolish displays his folly.	16
The agent of sin will find trouble, But honesty's agent is safe.	17
Instruction scorned, brings want and shame, But correction regarded,—honour.	18
To attain our wish is sweet to the mind, So fools hate to abandon sin.	19
Walk with the wise, and be wise, But the company of fools corrupts.	20
Suffering follows the wicked, But benefit salutes the good.	21
Grandchildren succeed the good, But the bad store wealth for the just.	22
Digging for springs increases food, Yet some fail for want of judgment.	23
Who spares the rod will spoil his child, But affection corrects him early.	24
The good eats to feed his life, But the belly of the bad for greed.	25
The wise wives build up their house, But the foolish pull down with their hands.	14
The honest walk in the fear of the LORD, But those of bad habits, despise,—	2

- 3 For foolish lips, is the lifted rod,
But the lips of the prudent guard them.
- 4 Without bullocks, the barn is empty,
But the strong steer produces plenty.
- 5 A truthful witness will never fail,
But a false one pours out deception.
- 6 The Scornor seeks, but finds not Wisdom,
But the Reflector easily learns.
- 7 Walk away from a foolish man,
For you learn naught from his lips.
- 8 The wise examines his course with care,
But their folly will mislead fools.
- 9 The depraved jeer at confessing sin,
But the upright do it gladly.
- 10 The heart knows its own distress,
And no stranger prevents its joy.
- 11 The house of the bad is destroyed,
But the tent of the good extends.
- 12 A course may seem straight before a man,
Whilst the results of that course are Death
- 13 Even in laughter the heart is sad,
And the end of mirth is sorrow.
- 14 The coward is full of his plans,
But a brave man of his actions.
- 15 The silly will trust to every word,
But the prudent examines his progress.
- 16 The wise man fears, and flies from danger,
But the fool goes on with presumption.
- 17 The quick-tempered acts like a fool,
And a mischievous fellow is hateful.
- 18 The stupid will inherit folly,
But the clever are crowned by knowledge.
- 19 Make the wicked submit to the good,
And the bad at the gates of the righteous.

THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON.

BOOK THE THIRD.

Lessons of Daily Life.	14
His brother hates the poor, But the rich has many friends.	20
He sins who despises his neighbour, But who comforts the poor will prosper.	21
Do not the wicked work for wrong? But the kind and true for good?	22
There is profit from every labour, But the talk of the lips brings want.	23
Wealth is a crown to the Wise, But folly crowns the Perverse!	24
A truthful witness rescues lives, But the liar breathes out danger.	25
He safely hopes who fears the LORD, And his children will have a refuge.	26
The fear of the LORD is a well of life, And turns from the snares of Death.	27
An increasing race is a Monarch's honour, A decreasing nation, a Prince's fall!	28
Slow anger shows great prudence, But quick temper discloses folly.	29
A contented heart strengthens the frame, But envy is a rot in the bones!	30
Who wrongs the poor insults his Maker, But who honours Him pities the needy.	31
The Wicked is depressed in suffering, But the Good has hope in his death.	32
Wisdom rests in the heart of the prudent, But the secret of fools is published.	33
Righteousness exalts a Nation, But sin will disgrace all Peoples.	34
A skilful Minister delights a king, But his anger will come on the stupid.	35
A gentle answer turns back wrath, But hard speech rouses fury.	16
Knowledge adorns the tongue of the Wise, But the Fool's mouth pours out folly.	1
The eyes of the LORD are on every place, Observing the bad and the good.	8

- 4 A pleasant tongue is a tree of life,
But a spiteful mouth is a wrecking storm
- 5 A Fool refuses his father's advice,
But the sensible minds his reproof.
- 6 Wealth grows in the house of the good,
But the increase of the bad is sorrow.
- 7 The lips of the Wise sow Knowledge,
But the mind of the fool regards not.
- 8 The Wicked's offering disgusts the LORD,
But the prayer of the upright delights him.
- 9 The road of Sin disgusts the LORD,
But He loves the path of Right ;
Who leaves that way will suffer grief,
Who hates His reproof will die.
- 10 The Grave and the Lost are before the LORD,
With the hearts of the children of Adam.
- 12 The Scornor loves not his reprover,
So he does not do like the Wise.
- 13 A merry heart will gladden the face,
But a sad heart breaks the spirit.
- 14 The intelligent mind seeks learning,
But the mouth of fools eats folly.
- 15 All the days of the coward are griefs,
But the bold heart always feasts.
- 16 Better a little with the fear of the LORD,
Than wealth and an evil conscience.
- 17 Better a dinner of herbs, with love,
Than a fattened ox with hatred.
- 18 A passionate man excites contention,
But a forbearing settles strife.
- 19 The road of the Idler is hedged with thorns,
But the path of the Active is smooth.
- 20 A wise son will delight his father,
But a fool despises his mother.
- 21 Folly delights the empty mind,
But a sensible man goes straight.
- 22 Plans with no basis are futile :—
They are only achieved by reflection.
- 23 A man can please by the word of his mouth,
For how sweet is an opportune word !
- 24 The path of the Wise leads up to life,
Who turn from it, slope to the grave.
- 25 The LORD throws down the house of the cruel,
But guards the bounds of the gentle.
- 26 The thoughts of the bad disgust the LORD,
But the words of the pure are sweet.
- 27 The corrupt official afflicts his house,
But the hater of bribes will live.
- 28 The Good will hesitate to speak,
But the wicked will pour out villainy.

The LORD is far from the wicked,	29
But he hears the prayers of the good.
A cheerful heart enlightens the eyes,	30
And good news fattens the frame.
The ear that hears the instruction of life,	31
Resides in the breast of the Wise.
Who refuses correction, hates his life,	32
Who hears a reproof, buys sense !
Wisdom teaches the fear of the LORD,	33
And humility goes before honour !

On the Divine Government.

Man can display his ideas,	16
But the LORD gives the tongue a reply.
All a man's ways are right in his eyes,	2
But the LORD can examine his thoughts.
Confide all your works to the LORD	3
And he will arrange for your plans.
The LORD made all for his purpose,	4
Yes, the bad for the day of distress !
All the proud-hearted disgust the LORD,	5
Hand in hand they will not be guiltless.
Frailty is pardoned by kindness and truth,	6
But the fear of the LORD turns from evil.
When a man's ways please the LORD,	7
Even his foes are at peace with him.
An honest little is better	8
Than a great dishonest increase.
A man's heart plans his object,	9
But the LORD controls the result.

The Duties of Governors.

Let Justice guard the royal lips,	10
Lest his mouth should err in deciding.
A just balance and scales are the LORD'S ;	11
For He made all the weights in the bag.
It is hateful for kings to sin ;	12
For to do right supports the throne.
Honest lips should be pleasing to kings,	13
Who should love the straight-out speaker.
A king's wrath is a herald of death,	14
But a wise man can appease it.
In the light of a royal face is light ;	15
And his favour, a rain-cloud in harvest.

In Praise of Wisdom.

Buy wisdom rather than finest gold,	16
Get thought, before choicest silver !
The right highway is to turn from sin,	17
He saves his soul who keeps that road !
Pride will precede destruction,	18
And a haughty spirit a fall.

- 19 Prefer a humble state with the gentle,
To sharing wealth with the fierce.
- 20 The skilful in business find success ;
But who trusts in the LORD is happy.
- 21 Intelligence meets the wise heart,
And pleasant lips gain wealth.
- 22 Sense is a living spring to its owner,
But a Fool's instruction is folly !
- 23 The heart of the wise instructs his mouth,
And brings a reward to his lips.
- 24 Kind words are like to a honeycomb,
Sweet to the mind and health to the frame.
- 25 A course may seem right to a man,
But the end of it may be death !
- 26 A man who works, works for himself,
For his mouth compels him to do so.
- 27 A loose fellow pours out sin,
And his lips are a scorching fire !
- 28 A spiteful man spreads strife,
And a whisperer separates friends.
- 29 A rascal deludes his neighbour,
And leads him to a course of loss.
30 Fixing his eyes and planning fraud,
With tight lips he works the wrong.
- 31 Gray hair is a beautiful crown,
If found in a righteous cause !
- 32 Forbearance is better than force,
And to hold one's temper than taking a city !
- 33 Dice are flung out from the box,
But their arrangement comes from the LORD.
- 17 A dry crust is better, with peace,
Than a house of rich food with strife.
- 2 A wise servant rules a bad son,
And will take his share with the brothers.
- 3 The flaming furnace for silver and gold,
But the LORD is the tester of hearts.
- 4 The wicked seeks for evil lips ;
The liar attends to a traitor's tongue !
- 5 Who laughs at the poor insults his Maker ;—
Who delights in suffering, will suffer.
- 6 An old man's crown are the sons of his son ;
And their father's the honour of children.
- 7 An eloquent lip becomes not a brute ;
Nor do lying lips a noble.
- 8 Talent is a gem in the eyes of its owner,
To whatever it turns he prospers.
- 9 Who hides a fault will gain affection,
But to report, repels your friends.
- 10 A reproof impresses good sense,
More than a hundred stripes a fool !

The seditious seek sure mischief, And sends an agent to punish himself	11
Let a man meet a bear bereaved, Before a fool in his folly !	12
Who repays a good turn with wrong, Distress departs not from his house.	13
Starting strife is water poured out, So refrain before strife is begun.	14
Acquitting the bad, and convicting the good, Both alike are disgusting the LORD.	15
What use is cash in the hand of a fool, To buy wisdom, when he has no sense ?	16
At all times a friend will love you ;— But a brother for distress, must be born.	17
A senseless man strikes hands, As a bond on behalf of his friend.	18
He who loves to do wrong loves strife, Who exalts his gate seeks destruction.	19
A spiteful heart finds nothing good ; And a vile tongue falls into trouble.	20
He grieves himself who begets a fool ; And a brute's father will not rejoice.	21
The best medicine is a cheerful heart ; But a loaded mind exhausts the frame.	22
The wicked takes a bribe from the purse, To deprave the paths of justice.	23
The reflective have wisdom before them ; It is far from the eyes of a fool !	24
A foolish son provokes his father, And embitters her who bore him.	25
It is never right to fine the good, Or to strike the noble for justice.	26
The man who knows will spare his words, And the temper of the wise is cool.	27
A silent fool is considered wise, And the close-lipped are held to be knowing.	28
A man seeks his own desires, When raging against control.	18
A fool disregards reflection, For it only discovers his heart !	2
With the entrance of sin comes disgrace, And with shameful acts, reproach.	3
Deep streams are the words of man's mouth, A deep brook, and well of wisdom.	4
Allow not the high stationed bad To cheat the good out of their right.	5
The lips of the fool rush to strife, And his mouth calls out for blows.	6
The mouth of a fool destroys him, And his lips are a snare to his life.	7

- 8 A tale-bearer's words like dainties,
Go down to the stomach's depths.
- 9 Who idles over his work,
Is akin to the reckless waster.
- 10 The name of the LORD is a tower of strength;
The good run to it, and are safe.
- 11 The wealth of the rich is his castle,
And a lofty wall is his fancy!
- 12 Before a smash, man's heart is high;
But humility goes before honour.
- 13 To give an answer before you hear,
Is absurd,—and reproach to yourself.
- 14 A man's spirit sustains his wound;
But a broken spirit, who can bear?
- 15 A prudent man acquires knowledge,
And the ears of the wise seek learning.
- 16 The gift of a man gains way,
And brings him before the great.
- 17 The Plaintiff is right in his cause,
Till the Defendant comes on to examine.
- 18 Wagers are laid on the die,
But cause quarrels among the strong.
- 19 A brother wronged is more than a castle,
His contentions like bars of a fort.
- 20 A man's belly is filled by the fruit of his mouth,
He is fed by the fruit of his lips.
- 21 Death and life are in the tongue's power,
And its lovers will eat its fruit.
- 22 Who finds a wife, finds what is a good,
But a risky gift from the LORD!
- 23 The poor man's words are petitions,
But the rich man speaks with power.
- 24 A man of companions is ruined;
A friend sticks more fast than a brother.
- 19 Prefer a poor man going straight,
To a tricky rogue, tho' rich.¹
- 2 An ignorant soul is not happy,
For that urges the feet to sin.
- 3 A man's vices pervert his course,—
Then his heart kicks against the LORD.
- 4 Wealth secures us many friends,
But companions depart from the poor.
- 5 A false witness will not be guiltless,
Nor a spouter of lies escape.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 19, v. 1. This is the reading of various Hebrew MSS. and of the same maxim when repeated in Ch. 26, v. 6, and is evidently, by its clear point, what Solomon wrote. But the common reading of the A. V. and R. V. is, 1 "Better is the poor that walketh in his integrity, than he that is perverse in his lips and is a fool."

Which, by the large addition of words to bring out even its vague meaning, is shown to be a scribe's error in the ordinary Hebrew printed copies. I have consequently adhered to the MSS. readings, which give a vigorous sense without need for me to add a word to the epigram.—F. F.

Many wait on the face of a prince, And all are friends to a man who gives.	6
All a poor man's brothers hate him, His friends even go far away ;— They are gone when he follows with words.	7
Who buys reflection, loves himself, Who keeps understanding find the profit.	8
A false witness will not be unpunished, And a spouter of lies will fail.	9
Finery becomes not a clown, Nor that a slave should rule over princes.	10
Good sense makes a man forbearing,— And to pass by offences crowns him.	11
A king's wrath is a roaring lion, But his favour like dew upon grass.	12
A reckless son distresses his father ;— A contentious wife is a drifting rain.	13
A house and wealth descend from parents, But a sensible wife from the LORD.	14
Idleness drops to stupid sleep, And the indolent person to huuger.	15
Who keeps to his orders, saves his life, Who delays on his road may be killed.	16
He lends to the LORD who helps the poor, Who will repay him as much again.	17
Correct your son while there is hope, And bear not his death on your soul.	18
The furious-tempered will suffer hurt, For if forgiven he never amends.	19
Hear advice, and take a warning, And be wiser by the results.	20
Man has many plans in his mind, But the LORD'S intention endures.	21
To do kindness makes a man liked ; And a poor man better than a liar.	22
The fear of the LORD brings life, And whom it fills, will not feel grief.	23
The sluggard dips his hand in the dish, But does not bring back to his mouth !	24
Punish a scorner, and fools learn sense ; But reproof to the wise breeds thought.	25
Who robs his father and drives his mother, Is a son of shame and reproach.	26
Refrain, my son, to attend to advice That leads from the words of Knowledge	27
A false witness scoffs at Justice, And a wicked mouth swallows villainy.	28
But Justice is ready for scoffers, And stripes for the rascal's back.	29
Wine is a mocker, strong drink maddens, And all it deludes are not wise.	30

- 2 A king's wrath is a raging lion,
Who enrages him, risks his life.
- 3 It honours a man to keep from strife,
But every fool will begin it.
- 4 A sluggard who ploughs not because of cold,
Will beg in harvest for want.
- 5 Thought in man's heart is like deep water,
But a skilful man draws it out.
- 6 Men often meet a man who is kind,—
But a trustworthy man who can find?
- 7 Whoever goes straight in goodness,
His children are blest after him.
- 8 A king who sets justice beside his throne,
Expels all the bad from his sight.
- 9 Who can say, " I have cleansed my heart
I have washed myself from my sins ? "
- 10 Different weights, and varying measures,
Both alike will disgust the LORD.
- 11 Even in childhood, a child is known,
If he loves to do wrong, or right.
- 12 The hearing ear, and the seeing eye,
Were both the work of the LORD.
- 13 Love not sleep, lest you become poor,
Open eyes and gain plenty of bread.
- 14 " It is worthless, worthless ! " the buyer cries ;
But when by himself, he praises.
- 15 There is gold, and plenty of pearls
But the lips of knowledge are precious things.
- 16 Take his cloak, who warrants a stranger ;
And his pledge, who brings a loose girl.
- 17 Lying bread may be sweet to a man,
But fills his mouth with grit in the end.
- 18 Arrange your plans with counsel ;
And make your war with precaution.
- 19 A tattler goes telling secrets,
So approach not his open lips.
- 20 Who reviles his father and mother,
In darkness puts out his lamp.
- 21 Wealth may be gotten quickly at first,
But the results of it do not last.
- 22 Say not, " I will revenge that wrong ! "
But trust in the LORD who will help you.
- 23 Varying weights disgust the LORD ;
And dishonest scales are wrong.
- 24 A man's career comes from the LORD,
For who of mankind knows his road ?
- 25 It disgraces a man to deny his promise,
And after his vow to back out.
- 26 A wise king drives off the wicked,
And brings his blower against them.

The lamp of the LORD in the spirit of man, Explores the caves of the breast.	27
Mercy and truth defend a king, For his throne is founded on mercy.	28
Their strength is the glory of youthful men, But grey heads the honour of the old.	29
To bind a wound protects from harm ; And sufferings the depths of the mind.	30
The hand of the LORD holds the mind of a king, He turns it towards whatever He wills.	21
All a man's ways are right in his eyes, But the LORD will weigh his intents.	2
To practice right and justice, Will please the LORD more than offerings.	3
A haughty eye, and a greedy heart, Are the seeds of sin in the bad.	4
The plans of the active procure gain, But those of the idle, want.	5
Who earn wealth by a lying tongue, Hunt risk, and sudden death.	6
The plunder of the bad afflicts them, And yet they refuse to do right !	7
The criminal's path is rough, His, who practises right, is smooth.	8
Better live lone on the top of a house, Than with brawling wives in its parlour !	9
The wicked heart desires evil ;— His friend never pleases his eyes !	10
To punish a rogue instructs the weak,— And the wise who reflect gain knowledge.	11
The Wicked house instructs the Good, For the bad are o'erthrown by their sin.	12
Who stops his ear to the cry of the poor, He will cry, and none will answer.	13
A timely gift appeases rage, And a bribe in the pocket great wrath !	14
The righteous delight to do right, And to blot out the doers of wrong.	15
The man who quits the pathway of sense, Leaves his home for the sake of shadows.	16
The poor man who loves enjoyment,— And wine and oil, will never be rich.	17
The wicked should ransom the righteous, And the swindler be changed for the honest.	18
Better to live in a desert land, Than with a nagging passionate wife.	19
Stored goods and oil remain with the wise, But the stupid fellow will swallow.	20
The follower of Goodness and Mercy, Finds Life and Profit and Honour.	21

- 22 Skill can assail a town of heroes,
And reduce its strongest fort.
- 23 Who can keep his mouth and his tongue,
Keeps the fortress containing his soul.
- 24 He is called an insolent bully,
Who acts in his ruffian fury.

On the Folly of Idleness.

- 25 The desire of the idle kills him,
For his hands refuse to work,
26 He longs all day for his wish,
While the honest work and want not.

The Folly of Rascals.

- 27 The offering of sinners disgusts,
For they bring it with evil intent.
- 28 A witness for falsehood will stammer,
But a man who has heard, speaks firm.
- 29 A bully is bold in his face,
But the honest is calm before him.
- 30 No skill, and no understanding,
Or counsel can fight with the LORD.
- 31 Train the horse for the time of war ;
Yet the victory comes from the LORD.

On Prudence and Conduct of Life.

- 22 A good name is choicer than wealth ;
Good repute than much silver and gold.
- 2 The rich and the poor mix together,
For the LORD is the Maker of them all.
- 3 The prudent sees danger and hides,
The foolish go on and suffer.
- 4 The Lord has provided reward for the meek,
With riches, honour, and life.
- 5 The sullen has a thousand traps on his road,
But who keeps his temper is free.
- 6 Train a child in the way he should go ;—
He will not desert it when old.
- 7 The rich rule over the poor ;
And the borrower serves the lender.
- 8 Who sows for sin, will misery reap,
And the staff of his passions will break.
- 9 The beneficent eyed will be blessed,
For he gives his bread to the needy.
- 10 Expel a scoffer, and quarrelling goes ;
And strife and abuse will depart.
- 11 The lover of a pure kind heart,
Has a royal friend at his lips.
- 12 The eyes of the LORD guard knowledge ;
And defeat the plans of the villain.
- 13 The sluggard says, " A lion's outside !
I am sure to be killed in the streets ! "

A deep pit is a loose woman's mouth,
Those who anger the LORD fall in it. 14
Folly enwraps the heart of the young ;
The rod of correction removes it. 15
Who plunders the poor to enrich himself,
Must give to the rich and be ruined. 16

On the Value of Wisdom.

Attend, and hear the words of the wise,
And apply your heart to My teachings ;
For they comfort, if kept with you ;
So place them and fix on your lips,
That your trust may be in the LORD,
I have taught you now,—yes, yourself. 17
Have I not written to you till now,
Concerning Instruction and Knowledge ? 18
To teach you to weigh the words of truth,
And to answer enquiries aright ? 19 20 21

The Three Rules.

I.

Rob not the weak for his weakness,
And repulse not the poor from your gate ;
For the LORD will defend their claim,
And strip those, who strip them of life. 22 23

II.

Consort not with a quarrelsome man ;
With a furious fellow go not ;
For fear you should copy his paths,
And acquire a risk for your mind. 24
25

III.

Be not with those who strike hands,
Who make themselves bondsmen for debts.
If you have not the wherewith to pay,
Your bed will be taken from you.
So do not remove the old fence,
Which your fathers had built around. 26 27
28

On Industry.

Watch a man constant at work,
He will stand before kings,—not the low. 29

On Temperance.

If you sit down to dine with a ruler,
Consider well what is before you ;—
And put a knife to your throat,
If you are a man of keen taste,
And do not desire his dainties,
For they are a food that deceives. 23
2
3

On too eager a Pursuit of Wealth.

Exhaust not yourself to be rich,
Take a rest, that you may reflect,
That wealth flies from your sight, and is not.
For it grows ;—then spreads wings for itself,
Like an eagle, and flies to the skies. 4 5

On Unwilling Hosts.

- 6 Eat not the bread of the grudger
 And desire none of his sweets;—
 7 He is like the thoughts of his soul;
 Though he asks you "to eat and to drink!"
 Yet his heart is never with yours.
 8 You will vomit the mouthful you eat,
 And be sick of your pleasant discourse.

On the Folly of Trying to Teach Fools.

- 9 Speak not to the ears of a fool,
 Who despises instructive discourse.

On Honesty.

- 10 The ancient landmark remove not,
 Nor encroach on the orphan's land,
 11 For their Defender has power,—
 And conducts their defence against you.

Advice to Parents.

- 12 Present your heart to instruction,
 And your ears to the teachings of fact,
 13 Refrain not correcting your child,
 Whom the strokes of a rod will not kill.
 14 You can flog him yourself with a rod,
 And rescue his life from the grave.

An Appeal to His Son.

- 15 My son! if your heart will be wise,
 My heart will be glad,—yes, my own!—
 16 And the depths of my breast will exult,
 When I hear of your lips speaking right.
 17 And let not your heart envy sinners;
 But be always in fear of the LORD,—
 18 For a future condition is certain,
 Therefore cut not yourself from your hopes.
 19 So listen, my son, and be wise,
 And proceed with your heart in my way.
 20 Go not with deep drinkers of wine,
 Nor join in their riotous feasts,
 21 For the drunkard and glutton make poor,
 And sleeping will clothe you in rags.
 22 So attend to the father who got you,
 And despise not your mother when old,
 23 Buy Truth, and sell it not again,
 With Wisdom, Instruction, and Sense.
 24 For the father of the good will be glad,
 Who has a wise son can rejoice.—
 25 Make your father and mother content,
 That they may be glad you were born.

A Warning against Vice.

- 26 My son! give your heart up to me,
 And let your eyes look on my ways,
 27 For a loose woman is a deep ditch,
 And a whore is a pit of distress;
 28 For she lies in wait for her plunder,
 And increases the vices of men.

Against Drunkenness.

Who have woe? who have misery and brawls?	29
Who have wounds? who have objectless strife?
With whom are the red gleaming eyes?
Are they not with the seekers of wine,	30
Who go out to search for the best?
Look not on the wine that is red,	31
When its eye dances right in the cup;
For it afterwards stings like a snake,	32
And its bite like an adder inflames!
Loose women your eyes will regard,	33
And your heart vomit out what disgusts,
As though laid in the heart of the sea,	34
And stretched on the deck of a ship.
"Let them strike me! I suffer no pain!	35
Let them beat me;—I never shall care!—
When I wake, I will seek it again!"

The Folly of Envyng the Mad.

Feel no envy about wicked men,	24
Nor wish for yourself to be them,
When their heart is contriving a fraud,	2
Or their lips are discussing to cheat.
By Wisdom a house is built up,	3
And is founded by means of Good Sense;
And by knowledge its chambers are filled,	4
With comforts and all that is nice.
For the Wise can prevail over Strength;	5
And the skilled man can conquer the strong.
For with caution you must make your fight,	6
And your victory by plenty of thought.

The Uselessness of Envyng Fools.

Wise thoughts are too high for a fool,	7
Let him ope not his mouth in the Court.
His ideas can but injure himself,	8
They will call him a bungler of thought.
The ideas of a fool are no worth,	9
And a scoffer disgusts human kind.

On Need of Courage in Distress.

If you fail in a time of distress,	10
By an effort recover your strength.
Rescue those who are led out to death,	11
And who go to be slain if you can.
If you say, "What know we about him?"	12
Will not the Heart Searcher perceive,
And he know who has guard of your life,
Who returns to a man what he does?

On Wise Enjoyment.

Eat honey, my son, because sweet,	13
And nice in the roof of your mouth;
So is knowledge of Thought to your soul,	14
For you know that a future exists,
And therefore your hopes will not die.

Good will Defeat Evil.

Villain! watch not the home of the good;	15
Assail not the place of his rest;
The good falls and will rise seven times,	16
But the wicked crash down to a smash.

Against Malicious Joy.

- 17 Be not glad when your enemy falls,
Rejoice not your heart at his loss;
18 Lest the LORD see, and it grieve His eyes,
And He turn back His anger from him.

Against Envyng the Bad.

- 19 Enrage not yourself for the bad,
Do not envy the luck of the vile;
20 For there is no future for vice;
The lamp of the wicked goes out.

Honour God and the King.

- 21 My son! fear the LORD, and the King;—
With the changeful associate not.
22 For swift will their punishment rise,—
And who knows the injury of both?

Maxims for the Wise.

- 23 To regard station in judgment is wrong.
24 Who says to the wrong, "You are right,"
Peoples curse, and the Nations will hate,
25 But they will love all who oppose,
And come to present them with thanks,
26 And will put a sweet kiss on their lips,
In return for their comforting words.

On Forethought.

- 27 Do the work for yourself in the field,
And after that build up a house.

Against Slander.

- 28 Speak not what is false of your neighbour,
And be not seduced by your lips,
29 Say not, "As he did it to me;
I will do to the man what he did."

The Home of the Sluggard.

- 30 I passed by the farm of the sluggard,
By the garden of him without sense,
31 And saw thistles were all that it grew,
And nettles had covered its face,
And the wall built to fence it had fallen.
32 So I looked and I laid it to heart;
I observed, and a lesson received;
33 "A little more sleep, and a little more slumber,
With a little more folding the hands to lie down;"
34 So your poverty comes,—an invader,
And your want like a man with a shield!

END OF SOLOMON'S ADVICE TO HIS SON, BEING BOOK III. OF PROVERBS.

THE SELECTED PROVERBS OF SOLOMON.

BOOK THE FOURTH.

PREFACE.

These also are the Proverbs of Solomon which the editors of Hezekiah, 25
King of Judah, selected.

Proverbs of Solomon.

'Tis the honour of God to conceal an event, But the honour of Kings to search out.	2
The height of the skies, and the depth of the earth, And the hearts of kings are unsearchable.	3
On removing the dross from the silver, The metal comes out for use ;	4
So remove all the bad from a king, And his throne will then rest on the good.	5

Against Ostentation.

Show not display in the sight of a king, Nor assume the position of honour, For better be asked, "Come up here," Than put down in the sight of the prince, Whose eyes have been looking on you !	6 7
--	--------

Against Quarrels.

Go not in haste into strife, Reflect what may be the result, Should your neighbour prevail against you ; So discuss the affair with your neighbour ; But to another reveal not the thing, Lest he should report your mistake, And you cannot withdraw what you said.	8 9 10
--	--------------

On Wise Social Intercourse.

Like golden apples on silver plates, Is a word for a word in its turn.	11
Like a ring of gold with a precious gem, To a listening ear is a wise instructor.	12
Like an ice-cooler in time of harvest, Is a trusty messenger to his sender, For his master's mind is refreshed.	13
A man is clouds, and wind without rain, Who falsely boasts he is liberal.	14
A prince is persuaded by patience ; And a soft tongue will break down the strong !	15

- 16 If you find honey, eat but a little,
Lest you surfeit of it, and be sick.
- 17 Restrain your foot from the house of your friend,
Lest he be disgusted and hate you !
- 18 Like a club, and sword, and sharp arrow,
Is a man false accusing his neighbour.
- 19 An aching tooth and a foot out of joint,
Is trust on a traitor in danger !
- 20 Like the stripping of clothes on a wintry day ;
And vinegar poured on a trembling nerve ;
Is singing songs to an aching heart.
- 21 If your enemy hungers, feed him ;
If he thirsts, give water to drink,
And a fire besides for his needs ;—
And then the LORD will repay you.
- 22 The north wind produces a shower,
And a slandering tongue, an angry face.
- 23 Better to dwell on the top of a roof,
Than with a quarrelling wife in a parlour.
- 24 As cold water to weary men,
Is good news from a distant laud.
- 25 As a muddled brook and a ruined well
Is the good afraid of the bad.
- 26 To eat much honey is not well,
Or for the honoured to seek for honour.
- 27 As a scattered town, without a wall,
Is a man of ungoverned temper.
- 28 Like snow in summer, and rain in harvest,
So honour becomes not a fool !
- 2 Like a wandering bird, and a swallow's flight,
So the causeless curse will not come.
- 3 A whip for a horse, a rein for an ass,
But a rod for the back of a fool.
- 4 Answer no fool, like his folly,
Lest you make yourself like to himself.
- 5 Reply to a fool as his folly requires,
Lest he seem to be wise in his own eyes.
- 6 Like a legless man, greedy for plunder,
Is entrusting affairs to a fool !
- 7 As a lame man's shanks swing loose,
Wit does in the mouth of fools.
- 8 Like a sparkling gem among rubbish,
Is honour conferred on a fool.
- 9 Like a thorn in the hand of a drunkard,
▲ proverb is in the mouth of a fool.

A Troop of Fools.

- 10 Many reel and shout when drunk,
Yet a fool and a drunkard are proud.
- 11 Like a dog returns to his vomit,
A fool returns to his folly.
- 12 See a man in his own eyes wise,
More hope for a fool than for him.

Upon Cowardly Idleness.

"There's a wolf on the road," says the sluggard,	13
"A lion opposes my path!"
As a door turns on its hinges,	14
A sluggard turns on his bed.
Though the sluggard dips hand in the dish,	15
It exhausts him to lift to his mouth.
Yet an idler thinks himself wiser,	16
Than those who can speak good sense.

Against Making Mischief.

He goes to take a dog by the ears,	17
Who joins in a quarrel not his.
Like a fool hurling darts, fire, and death,	18
Is the man who deceives his neighbour,	19
Then exclaims, "I am only in sport!"
A fire goes out without fuel,	20
And without a tattler quarrels cease.
Like charcoal, and wood to fire,	21
Is a quarrelsome man starting strife.
The words of a Whisperer, like sweets,	22
Go down to the depths of the breast.
Like silver dross in a Smeltry,	23
Are double lips, and a wicked heart.
Hatred lodges under his lips,	24
And deception rests in his breast.
Though his voice is pleasant, trust not;	25
For his heart is fully corrupt.
Though he deceitfully hides his hate,	26
In public his malice appears.
Many dig the pit for his fall,	27
And his flung stone turns on himself!
His lying tongue hates those it wounds,	28
And his flattering mouth, those it ruins:

On the Uncertainties of Life.

Boast not of yourself for to-morrow,	27
You know not what that day may bring!
Let a stranger praise you, not your mouth,	2
Another, and not your own lips.
A stone is heavy, and sand a load,	3
But a fool's fury more heavy than both.
Fury is fierce, and a raging flood;	4
But who can stand before jealousy?
Better open reproof, than hidden love:—	5
The reproofs of a friend preserve;	6
But an enemy's kisses betray.
The sated loathes a honeycomb,	7
To the hungry, bitter is sweet!
Like a bird strayed from its nest,	8
Is a man exiled from his home;
Oil and perfumes delight the heart,	9
And a good friend advising a man.
Forsake not your friend, or your father's friend;	10
Nor enter your brother's house

In the day of your distress;
For a friend is better near
Than a brother who keeps afar.

11 Be wise my son, and delight my heart,
As an answer to him who insults.

12 The prudent sees danger, and hides;—
The reckless go on, and suffer.

13 Take his cloak who is bail for a stranger;
A pledge from a loose woman's friend.

14 He who rises at early dawn
With shouts to give thanks to his friend,
Will be thought to be cursing him.

15 A drizzling shower on a rainy day,
And a quarrelsome wife are a pair.
16 Restrain her? Restrain the north wind!
And the scent on your hand!—If you can!

17 As iron sharpens iron,
So a man does the face of his friend.

18 Who tends the fig-tree, eats its fruit;
And who guards his master is thanked.

19 As water shows a face to a face,
So the heart of man, shows to man.

20 The Grave and Destruction are never filled,
And the eyes of man are unsated.

21 Silver by smelting, gold by a furnace,
But man is proved by what he praises.

22 If you pound a fool in a mortar with wheat
His follies will not depart from him!

The Result of Carefulness.

23 Carefully learn the state of your flocks;
Set your heart on the care of your herds;
24 For wealth will not last for ever,
Nor a crown for ages of ages.

On Autumn.

25 When the hay is mown, the pasture grows,
And the mountain crops are gathered;
26 The lambs then find you clothing,
And you sell fat goats from the field,
27 And rich milk from the goats to feed you,—
To feed your house, and nourish your girls.

The Results of Crime.

28 The wicked fly when none pursue,
But the good are bold as a lion.
29 By crimes of a land, its Rulers change,—
But by human prudence endure.
30 A poor man who oppresses the poor,
Like a sweeping storm brings want.

On Good and Bad Conduct.

31 Forsakers of law, praise the bad:
But who keep the law, reprove them.

Bad men understand not justice ; But who seek the LORD understand.	5
More happy the poor honest man, Than one of bad habits, though rich.	6
A prudent son will regard the law, But the friend of the vicious degrades his father.	7
Who gets rich by extortion and fraud, Collects for the kind to the poor.	8
Who turns his ear from hearing the law, His prayer itself is an offence.	9
Who leads the honest to evil paths, Will fall to that pit himself ; But the upright inherit success.	10
In his own eyes the rich is wise, But the sensible poor expose him.	11
When the good are crowned, there is cheering When the bad succeed, men will hide !	12
Who conceals his sin, does not prosper ; Who confesses and leaves it, has mercy.	13
The man who fears is safe, But the rash falls into danger.	14
A roaring lion, and hungry bear, A bad ruler is to the poor. An oppressive prince is senseless ; But who hates to tax, prolongs his days.	15
A man who is guilty of murder, Flies to a pit that cannot hide.	16
Who acts honestly is safe ; But crooked ways soon fail.	17
He has plenty of bread who tills his land, But is poor indeed who follows delusions.	18
A faithful man has many blessings ; But who hastes to be rich, will suffer.	19
False pretences are not good, Nor to sin for a mouthful of bread.	20
A greedy man runs after wealth, Nor reflects that want may come.	21
Who corrects men, like me, finds favour, Far more than a flattering tongue.	22
Who thinks to rob father and mother not wrong, Has joined with the men of Destruction.	23
A greedy mind incites to contend, But who trusts on the LORD will prosper.	24
Who relies on his heart is a fool, But who walks by experience is safe.	25
He who gives to the poor will not want, Who averts his eyes will be cursed.	26
When the bad succeed, men hide ; But the good increase, when they perish.	27
A man when reproved, who stiffens his neck, When broken will find no help.	28
	29

- 2 When the good succeed the people rejoice;
But when the bad govern, men groan.
- 3 A man who loves Wisdom, brings joy to his father;
But the friend of harlots surrenders his wealth.
- 4 A king strengthens his land by justice,
But a man of taxation exhausts it.
- 5 A man who flatters his neighbour,
Is spreading a net for his feet.
- 6 There is a trap, in a bad man's sin;
But the good can sing and rejoice.
- 7 The good will examine the pleas of the weak,
The bad troubles not to enquire.
- 8 The seditious set states in a flame,
But the wise will remove discontent.
- 9 If a wise man discuss with a fool,
By frowns or by smiles, he persuades not.
- 10 The murderous have hate of the honest,
But the upright will find his esteem.
- 11 A blockhead shows all his intention,
But the wise keeps it quietly back.
- 12 If a ruler attends to deceptions,
All his officials turn villains.
- 13 The poor and oppressors encounter,
They are both in the eyes of the LORD.
- 14 The king who faithfully governs the poor,
Will establish his throne for ever.
- 15 The rod, and reproof, give wisdom,
But an untrained child disgraces his mother.
- 16 When the wicked succeed, vice grows,
But the righteous will witness their fall.
- 17 Chastise your son, and he will comfort,
And give a relief to your mind.
- 18 Without Revelation a Nation fades,
But it prospers by knowing the law.
- 19 A slave will not be corrected by words,
Though he knows, he will not comply.
- 20 Do you see a man quick in his words?
There is more hope for a fool than for him.
- 21 Who humours his slave from a youth,
Will be despised by him at last!
- 22 A passionate man incites to strife,
And the master of fury to sin.
- 23 The pride of a man will depress him,
But a mind that submits will gain honour.
- 24 Who shares with a thief, hates his life;
Hears the oath, but will never inform.
- 25 Human terror precipitates loss;
But who trust in the LORD will be safe.
- 26 Many seek for the favour of rulers,
But man's justice should come from the LORD.
- 27 A vile man disgusts to the good,
And the bad loathe the ways of the just!

THE SPEECHES OF AGUR-BEN-JAKEH; ³⁰
 THE RIGHTEOUS;
 THE MESSAGE HE DELIVERED TO THE ATHEIST
 AND WASTER.

Though I am but an ignorant man, 2
 And have not the genius of Adam;
 Although I have never learnt Wisdom, 3
 Nor know of the science Divine,
 Of who mounts the skies and descends, 4
 Who gathers the wind in his grasp,
 Who spreads out the seas like a sheet,
 Who fixes the bounds of the earth,—
 What is His Name? and the name of His Son?—
 Do you know?
 Rely on the promise of GOD,— 5
 He shields all who trust upon Him,—
 Add nothing to what He commands. 6
 Lest for falsification you suffer.

The Desire of the Wise.

I will ask two things from you,— 7
 Take them not from me till death,—
 Move delusion and falsehood afar, 8
 Nor poverty give me, nor wealth,
 But feed with the bread that I need,—
 Not full, for fear I forget, 9
 And cry, "Tell me, Who is the LORD?"
 Or I become poor, and should steal,
 And rebel at the name of my GOD.

Advice as to Conduct.

To his Master, accuse not a servant, 10
 Lest he curse you, and you are in wrong.

On Depravity and Conceit.

There is an age that curses its fathers, 11
 And that cares not its mothers to bless;
 An age in its own eyes perfect, 12
 But never cleansed from its filth!—
 An age,—how haughty its glances! 13
 And its eyelids,—how lifted up!
 An age,—with swords for its teeth, 14
 And for its jaw-teeth,—sharp knives,
 To devour the weak of the earth,
 And the wretched among mankind.

On Greed.

Lust possesses two daughters, 15
 Who cry "Give! Give!"
 There are three that are never glutted,

- 16 A fourth that says not "Enough."
The grave, and the closed-up womb;
The earth unsated with water;
And fire, that says not "Enough!"

On Filial Disobedience.

- 17 The eye that laughs at its father,
That disdains to obey its mother,
The crow of the vale shall pick out,
And the eagle's young shall eat it.

Four Problems.

- 18 To me these three are a wonder;
And a fourth I understand not;
19 The path of an eagle in air;
The road of a snake on a rock;
The course of a ship through the sea;
And the power of the man over woman;
20 And the way of a faithless wife,
When she wipes her mouth and exclaims,
"I have not committed a sin!"

Unendurable Things.

- 21 A land trembles under these three,—
And under a fourth rests not;—
22 Under a slave when he rules;
And a brute who is gorged with his food;
23 And a hateful woman when married;
And a servant heir to her mistress.

Four Wise Creatures.

- 24 These four are small on the earth,
But they are the wisest of wise;—
25 The Ants are a People not strong,
Yet in summer they store up their bread;
26 Rabbits, are not a powerful race,
But they settle their homes in the rocks;
27 The Locusts have not any king,
Yet they all go out by their troops;
28 A Spider you catch with your hands;
Yet she dwells in the mansions of kings!

The Four Stately Creatures.

- 29 These three are stately in step;—
And a fourth is grand in its walk;
30 The Lion, the strongest of beasts,
That turns not his face from the whole;
31 A greyhound, as well as a goat,
And a king at the head of his troops!

A Final Caution.

- 32 If you have displayed your folly,
And if you have blundered,—keep still.
33 For churned milk produces butter,
And wringing the nose brings blood,
So churning anger produces strife.

The Address to the Godless King¹; The Plea by which his Mother entreated him. 31

Alas! My Son!—	2
Oh, son of my body! Son of my vows!
Give not your strength to women,	3
Nor your ways to destroyers of kings;
It is not for kings, you godless!	4
Not for kings to be drunk with wine,
Or for princes to love stroug drink!
Lest you drink and forget the law,	5
And forget to do right to the poor!
Give drink to the ready to perish;	6
And wine to the bitter in mind;—
Let him drink and forget his distress,	7
And remember his misery no more.—
But open your mouth for the speechless,	8
Flead for all silent sons of distress,
Open your mouth for true justice,	9
And plead for the wretched and poor!

The Good Wife.

(NOTE.—Every couplet of the following exquisitely beautiful poem begins in the original with a letter of the Hebrew alphabet: the first with א A, the next with ב B, and so forward to ת T the final one. I am not able to reproduce this, but in all other respects my translation is word for word and line for line, as in the whole of Solomon's writings, so as to preserve his literary form.—F. F.)

Who ever finds a clever wife,	10
Her worth is more than pearls,
Her husband's heart can trust on her,	11
And he wants no supply.
She gives him comfort in his grief,	12
While she remains alive.
She works up the wool and the flax,	13
And spins them with her own hands.
She, like the merchants with their ships,	14
Will bring home food from far.
Will rise at dawn to fix housework,	15
And give food to her girls.
She will survey and purchase a field:	16
Her prongs plant the farm.
She girds her loins up with strength,	17
Invigorates her arms.
She tastes her trading brings her good,	18
So lights her lamp at night.
Her hands are to the shuttle stretched,	19
The spindle she can drive.
Her hands give out gifts to the poor,	20
Her fingers help their needs.
Her family fears not the snow;—	21
Her household double clothed.
She makes herself rugs for her beds;	22
Her robes are purple lawn;
Her husband's honoured in the Gates,	23
Sits down amongst the peers.
She makes and sells fine satin cloth,	24

¹ NOTE.—Leaving the compound Hebrew word "Lemuel," לֵמוּאֵל, untranslated as in the old versions, loses the force of this fine poem; לֵמוּאֵל, Lemuel, meaning "No-God for-me," i.e., "The King who rejected God"—"The Godless King."—W. W.

- 25 And girdles to the trade.
In strength and honour she is clothed,
And at the future smiles.
- 26 Her mouth with wisdom is unclosed,
Kind law controls her tongue.
- 27 Her household's conduct she controls,
And eats not idle bread.
- 28 Her children rise and call her blessed,
Her husband gives her praise;—
- 29 " Many wives have acted well,
But you surpass the whole."

Conclusion.

- 30 A form deceives, and beauty fades :—
A wife who fears the LORD is grand ;
- 31 Give her the product of her hands ;
Praise her works in the Gates.

END OF SOLOMON'S PROVERBS.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

RENDERED INTO THE SAME METRE AS THE ORIGINAL HEBREW.

THIRD EDITION.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

My endeavour in translating the Book of Job has been to give an exact reproduction in English of that sublime and sacred poem upon the Mystery of Existence, word for word and line for line as it was originally written in Hebrew, and thus enable my fellow countrymen to read it in its poetic form, and follow its reasonings and doctrines as clearly as the ancient readers to whom Hebrew was their mother tongue. This attention to the mechanism of the writer is, however, as a little thing in my sight compared to my further attempt to clear away the false atmosphere of Idea and distorted view of the object of the poem which has traditionally misled all previous translators and commentators in every language—the idea that the object was to show Job as a model of calm patience under suffering, and to discuss the question of the Origin of Moral Evil.

So far from either of these being in the view of the poet, the hero is depicted as the most tragically passionate and impatient spirit ever presented in literature, whether sacred or secular. The object is also a sublime and profound psychological enquiry into the Mystery of Existence, not only of man, but of all things, and its allusions show an accurate knowledge of the physical sciences, truly astonishing to our tradition that the extreme ancients knew nothing of them; yet this Book of Job is probably the oldest in existence, except the first ten chapters of Genesis. The poem is constructed on a framework of allegorical names, "Job,"—יָבֹב—signifying "Affliction," and all the others representing a mental condition, as do those of John Bunyan in the "Pilgrim's Progress."

TRANSLATOR'S NOTE.

The chapters and verses of this version are those of the Hebrew or Rabbinical Text, not those of the Latin Vulgate and Authorized English Versions.—F. F.

Job's History.

1 THERE was a man in the land of Luz named Job. He was
2 true and upright, and feared GOD, and avoided wrong. He had seven sons and three daughters born to 3 him, and his possessions were seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, a very large estate, so that the man was greater than all the Beni-Kedem.

4 His sons were accustomed often to feast at the house of each other; and would send and invite their sisters to eat and drink with them. But when 5 the days of festivity had gone round, Job would send and sanctify them in the morning, and offer burnt-offerings for the whole, for Job reflected, "It may be my children have sinned, by not thanking GOD in their hearts."

Job continually behaved thus.

But the Day came when the sons of 6 GOD advanced to report themselves before the LORD, and the Accuser also was amongst them.

And when the LORD asked the 7

- Accuser, "Where do you come from?" the Accuser answered the LORD, and said:
- "From flying over the earth, and travelling in it."
- 8 Then the LORD asked the Accuser, "Have you fixed your attention upon My servant Job? That there is not a man like him upon earth—honest and upright, who fears GOD, and avoids wrong?"
- 9 The Accuser, however, answered the LORD and said, "Does Job reverence GOD for nothing? Have You not made a fence for him, and his family, and all that he has all round? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his property has extended over the country. But perhaps if You stretched out Your hand, and destroyed all he possesses, he would curse You to Your face!"
- 12 The LORD consequently replied to the Accuser, "Whatever he has shall be in your power! except that you shall not exert your hand upon himself."
- So the Accuser departed from the presence of the LORD.
- 13 Then another day arrived when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother, when a messenger came to Job and said, "The oxen were ploughing and the she-asses grazing near them, when the Shabim fell on and seized them, and have assaulted their attendants with the sword, and I alone have escaped to inform you!"
- 16 Whilst he was speaking another came and said, "The fire of GOD has fallen from the skies, and has consumed the flocks and their attendants, and destroyed them, except myself, and I only have escaped to inform you!"
- 17 Whilst he was yet speaking another came, and said:
- "The Kasdim collected in three troops, and rushed upon the camels, and seized them, and have assailed their attendants with the edge of the sword, except myself, and I only have escaped to tell you!"
- 18 While he was speaking another came, and said:
- "Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in their eldest brother's house, when a great storm came from over the Desert and seized the four corners of the house, and flung it down upon the youths, and killed them, except myself, and I alone have escaped to tell you!"
- Then Job arose and tore his robe, and shaved his head, and threw himself upon the ground and worshipped, and said:
- "I came naked from my mother's womb; And naked I shall return. The LORD gave and the LORD has taken, Blessed be the name of the LORD!"
- In this Job did not sin, nor accuse GOD of injustice.
- Another day arrived when the sons of GOD reported themselves to the LORD, and the Accuser reported himself amongst them to the LORD; when the LORD asked the Accuser, "Where do you come from?"
- And the Accuser answered the LORD and said, "From flying over the earth, and up and down in it."
- The LORD then asked the Accuser, "Have you fixed your attention on My servant Job, that there is none like him on the earth, an honest and upright man, who fears GOD, and turns from wrong; who yet retains his virtues, although you induced Me to causelessly afflict him?"
- The Accuser, however, replied to the LORD and said, "Skin to skin! A man will give all that he has for his life! Perhaps if You were to extend Your hand now, and torture his bones and his flesh, he would curse You to Your face?"
- So the LORD answered the Accuser and said, "Look! He is in your power, except that you shall regard his life."
- The Accuser consequently went out from the presence of the LORD, and struck Job with a painful ulcerous inflammation, from the sole of his foot to the crown of his head. And he took a potsherd to scrape himself with, and he sat down amongst the ashes.
- His wife, however, said to him, "Will you stick to your virtues? Curse GOD; and die!"
- But he replied to her, "You speak as one of the worthless women speak. We accepted comforts from GOD, so should we not also accept discomfort? "

In all that Job did not sin with his lips.

11 Now three friends of Job heard of all these troubles that had come upon him, so each came from his house—Eliphaz the Themanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Namathite—and agreed to go and mourn with him, and comfort him;

but when they from a distance raised 12 their eyes and could not recognise him, they lifted up their voices and wept, and each tore his robe, and flung dust on their heads, and were stupefied, and sat with him for seven 13 days and seven nights on the earth, but did not speak to him, for they saw that his despair was great.

Job's Lament.

At length Job opened his mouth, and cursed his day; and Job exclaimed, 3
and said: 2

Perish the Day I was born, 3
When Night said, "A man is conceived!" 3
Let that day be darkness itself, 4
Let GOD not look down from above 4
Nor shine upon it with His light! 4
Let death's gloomy shadow avenge, 5
Black clouds make their resting-place there; 5
And terrors in daytime affright. 6
Count it not in the course of the year, 6
Nor reckon along with the months 6
Let solitude be in that night, 7
That in it no joy may be heard! 7
Let them curse it, who curse at the day, 8
Those stripped to be offered the Snake. 8
Let the stars of its dawning be dark, 9
Let it long for, but never have light, 9
And see not the eyelids of morn! 9
For it closed not the doors of the womb, 10
Nor hid my distress from my sight! 10
Why died I not in the womb, 11
Or expired in the act of my birth? 11
Oh! why did the knees give support? 12
And why did the breasts that I sucked? 12
For then I had lain, and been still, 13
Then had rest and found ease for myself, 13
With the kings and the statesmen of earth, 14
Who build themselves desolate tombs; 14
Or with princes, along with their gold, 15
Who fill up their graves with their wealth; 15
Or had been like abortions concealed, 16
Like children that never see light, 16
Where the wicked must cease from their crimes 17
Where the strong, when exhausted, have rest 17
Where together the captives can lie, 18
And hear not their driver's fierce voice! 18
Where the small and the great are alike, 19
And the slave from his master is free! 19
Oh! why give the wretched the light 20
And life to the bitter in soul— 20
Who long for, but cannot meet death, 21
Dig more than for treasure for him! 21
Who delight, and will even exult, 22
And are glad when they find out the tomb — 22
To a man on a path that is lost, 23
And whose landmarks his GOD has confused, 23
For my sighing comes up with my food, 24
And my groanings like water poured out; 24

25 For the terror I fear has arrived,
 And that which I dreaded has come;
 26 I invited Peace, Quiet, and Rest,
 But instead savage Tumult steps in!

The First Address of Eliphaz.

4 Eliphaz the Themanite, however, replied and said :
 2 If we speak you a word, will you fret ?
 But who can his excitement restrain ?
 3 Consider how many you taught,
 And strengthened the hands of the weak
 4 Your speaking supported the faint,
 And you strengthened the trembling knees ;
 5 But now it has come on yourself,
 You stagger and grieve at its touch.
 6 Was not your religion your trust,
 And your trueness in action your hope ?
 7 Think—where are the innocent lost ?
 And where are the upright destroyed ?
 8 I see that the ploughers for vice,
 And the sowers of wrong, reap the crop !
 9 Undone by the blast sent from GOD
 They waste in His tempest of wrath.
 10 As lions and roaring bears moan,
 And the teeth of the tiger will fail,
 11 And old lions perish for prey,
 And the young of the leopards will faint.
 12 For a word once came stealing to me,
 And my ears caught a rustle of sound,
 13 In thoughts, and in visions of night,
 When deep slumber falls upon men ;
 14 Then terror and trembling approached,
 And my powerful frame was afraid ;
 15 Then a breathing flowed over my face,
 The hair on my body stood up !
 16 It stopped ! But I saw not its form !
 The Appearance approached to my sight—
 It stopped ! but I heard like a voice,
 17 " Can man be more righteous than GOD ?
 Than his Maker a mortal more pure ?
 18 Look ! In His servants He cannot confide,
 And He finds in His angels defects."—
 19 More in us, who reside in clay huts,
 Built on dust, that are crushed by a moth !
 20 We who die between dawn and the dusk,
 Who unnoticed continuously fade !
 21 Whose vitality fritters away,
 Who die before Wisdom is reached.
 5 Call now ! Who will answer to you ?
 And to whom of the saints will you turn ?
 2 For the fool by vexation is slain,
 And the silly is killed by his rage.
 3 I have looked on the vile taking root.
 But I marked out his home for a crash !
 4 His children are far from secure,
 They fail in the gate without help.
 5 Their harvests the famished will eat,
 And the parched seize their coolers of snow,
 And the hungry will swallow their wealth !
 6 No, affliction springs not from the dust,
 Nor does grief grow up out of the ground ;

But man himself causes his grief,
 As the children of flame fly upright; 7
 For myself I should cry out to GOD,
 To th' ALMIGHTY present my address, 8
 Who does great and unsearchable things,
 And wonders unnumbered are His! 9
 Who gives rain to the mouth of the earth,
 Sends the brooks on the face of the meads; 10
 Who raises the lowly on high, 11
 And saves the depressed by His power;
 Who frustrates the plans of the rogues 12
 So their hands cannot work out their wish;
 Who captures the skilled by their craft, 13
 And baffles their villainous schemes,
 So that darkness o'er shadows their day, 14
 And at noontide they grope as at night;
 Thus He rescues the weak from their mouth, 15
 And the wretched from clutch of their hand!
 So therefore the weak have a hope, 16
 And Iniquity closes her mouth!
 But blest is the man GOD corrects! 17
 So despise not th' ALMIGHTY'S reproof!
 For He grieves us, and He can console; 18
 He breaks us, but His hand can heal;
 He will save you six times from distress, 19
 And in seven the woe will not touch;
 In famine will free you from death, 20
 And in war from the hand of the sword;
 He will hide from the lash of the tongue,— 21
 Yes, unmoved at Destruction's approach,
 You can laugh at Destruction and death, 22
 And fear not the boast of the field.
 With the stones on the plain you make league 23
 While the beasts of the field are your friends,
 And you know that your tent is secure, 24
 And muster your folds, and miss none.
 You will know that your seeds will increase 25
 And grow like the grass from the ground!
 You will go in old age to the tomb, 26
 As the corn-stack is piled at its time.
 These we have proved—they are sure! 27
 Attend! And instruct your own yourself!

Job's Reply to Eliphaz.

But Job replied, and said: 6
 Who will carefully weigh out my grief,
 And poise all my woes in the scale? 7
 For they outweigh the sand of the sea,
 (My words have in consequence weight). 8
 I am pierced by the ALMIGHTY'S darts,
 Whose poison my spirit drinks up, 9
 And against me all GOD'S terrors fight.
 Does the zebra bray over the grass? 10
 Does the ox bellow over his food?
 Can the tasteless be ate without salt? 11
 What flavour has white of an egg?
 What myself would refuse to have touched, 12
 In my sickness is offered as food!
 Who will help me to gain my request? 13
 Will GOD ever give me my hope?
 And crush me at last to my joy? 14

- Swing His hand out and dash me to bits ?
 Then I should at least be consoled ;
 Tho' I shrink from the unsparing pain.
 See I hide not my innermost thoughts ;
- For what is my strength or my hope ?
 What object for lengthening my life ?
 Is my strength like the hardness of stones ?
 Is my body compounded of bronze ?
 Alas ! there is no one to ease,
 And from me all deliverance has gone !
 To the burdened his friends should be kind
 Lest he lose for th' ALMIGHTY respect.
 But my friends have betrayed like a brook,
 They pass like the rush from a storm,
 They are black with the ice on their top,
 Their sources are hid in the snow ;
 But they vanish in periods of warmth,
 In the heat they have gone from their place,
 They turn from the paths of their course,
 They go up in vapour and fade !
 Theman's caravans trusted to them ;
 The merchants of Sheba relied.
 They came ! but their trust is betrayed ;
 They relied ! but their hope is deceived ;—
 And you are like them—are you not ?
 You see me depressed, and you shrink.
 Have I asked you to grant me a gift,
 Or to give me a part of your wealth,
 Or relieve from the hand of distress,
 Or redeem from the hand that afflicts ?
 Inform me, and I will be still ;
 Instruct me in what I am wrong.
- How strong are ideas that are right
 But what do your arguments prove ?
 Do you think that your speeches convince ?
 Like the wind, are the thoughts of despair ?
 Why should you the helpless assail
 And dig out a pit for your friend ?
 But now be contented to watch,
 And see if I lie to your face ;
 Examine, and be not unjust.
 Yes, search ! for my right is in that,
 Is there a disease in my tongue,
 That I cannot decide between things ?
- Has man not a warfare on earth ?
 His days are like hirelings' days,
 He pants like a slave for the shade,
 And hopes like a workman for wage !
 And so I bear wearisome months,
 And nights of distress are my lot.
 If I lay myself down, I exclaim,
 " When will gloom cease that I may arise ? "
 And am filled with disturbance till dawn !
 Worms and clods are the garments I wear
 My skin is all wrinkled and melts !
 My days are the weft of a loom,
 They drop by the break of a thread !
 Remember ! my life is a breath,
 Nor shall I come back to see good ;
 While you look upon me I am gone,
 The eye will not see me that saw !
 Like a cloud that consumes and is gone

Man goes to his grave, nor returns; He never returns to his home, He gazes no more on his house.	10
I will not therefore govern my wrath, I will speak in my anguish of soul, And complain in my sorrow of life.	11
Am I like the serpent of seas, That a keeper is placed over me?	12
When I say, "Now my couch will relieve, My bed will assuage my complaint;"	13
You terrify me in my dreams, And at visions I suddenly start!	14
And my soul has desire to be choked, For death—than to be in my frame!— I hate life—I would not always live!	15
Go away! for my days are a shade.	16
What is man, that You let him grow up? And why set Your heart upon him?	17
Why visit at dawning of day, And then suddenly bring him to grief?	18
Will You not grant this trifle to me, To swallow my spittle in peace?	19
Have I sinned, O! You Guardian of Men?	20
Yet why set me up as Your mark, And make me a load to myself?	21
And why not forgive me my sin, And sweep all my passions away?	22
For soon I shall lie in the dust, And when I am sought for, be not.	23

The First Address of Bildad.

Bildad the Shuhite, however, answered, and said:	24
How long will you babble such things, Raising storms with the words of your mouth?	25
Is God a perverter of Law? Will the Highest distort what is right?	26
If your children have sinned against Him, By their sin He has driven them away.	27
While you—had you sought for your God And to the Almighty had prayed—	28
If you had been pure and upright, Even now He would rise up for you, And prosper your righteous abode.	29
Altho' your beginnings were small, Your future would grow very great.	30
For ask of the primæval race, And their ancestral wisdom seek out (We are ignorant—born yesterday— Our days are a shadow on earth),	31
Will they not instruct you and tell And bring out these words from their hearts.	32
"Can the flag grow without mire?"	33
"Can bulrushes grow without streams?"	34
"Whilst green, and while not yet cut down, They wither before any plant!"	35
"So do all who abandon their God, And the hopes of the profligate fade,	36
"Whose confidence will be cut off, And his trust be a spider's frail web.	37
"If he leans on his web it will break, If he clings, it will never endure!"	38
"At sunrise he seems a fresh plant,	39

17 " O'er his garden he spreads out his boughs,
 " His roots are deep down in a hill, 18 " And tighten their grip round the rocks;
 " But if he is torn from his place
 " It denies him with, 'I know you not !'
 19 " See ! That is the joy of his course !"
 Yet others will spring from his dust.
 20 But GOD casts not the upright away,
 Nor strengthens the hand of the bad.
 21 He could yet fill your mouth with delight,
 And make you exult with your lips,
 22 And clothe all your haters in shame ;—
 But the tents of the wicked collapse !

The Second Reply of Job.

9 Job, however, responded, and said :
 2 I acknowledge that it is a truth
 That no man can be just before GOD,
 3 If one wished to contend against Him,
 Not one in a thousand could speak,
 4 Wise-hearted, Almighty in Force,
 Who can resist him with success
 5 Who casts down the hills unawares,
 And o'erwhelms in His anger and wrath,
 6 Who shakes the land out of its place,
 And makes the supports of it rock ;
 7 At whose order the sun would not shine,
 And He even can seal up the stars !
 8 Who only can stretch out the skies,
 And walk on the waves of the sea !
 9 Who made the fixed star of the North,
 The Bright-way and the Halls of the South ;
 10 Who does great and inscrutable things,
 And wonders that no one can count !
 11 He passes ! But I see Him not !
 He flits by, and I do not perceive !
 12 When He snatches—who then can resist ?
 Who can say to Him—what would You do ?
 13 GOD turns not away from our wrath ;
 To Him the proud giants must bow.
 14 Then how could I answer to Him ?
 Or against Him arrange all my thoughts ?
 15 Were I right I could never debate,
 But must humbly entreat to my judge.
 16 If I called, and He answered to me,
 Am I sure He would list to my voice ?—
 17 Who sweeps me as though with a storm,
 And strikes me with wounds without cause ;
 18 Who hinders me drawing my breath,
 Who has gorged me with bitterest griefs ;
 19 As to Power ?—How mighty He is !
 As for right ?—Who dare witness for me ?
 20 Am I righteous ?—My mouth would convict ;
 Am I honest ?—I may be deceived !
 21 I am honest ! Know I not my soul ?
 And yet I despise my own life !—
 22 But this I assert as a fact,—
 He destroys both the good and the bad.
 23 He kills as with some sudden lash,
 And laughs at the victims who shriek !
 24 Gives the earth to the hand of the bad,

And muffles the mouth of the judge.
 If it is not He? Then who does?—
 But my days are more swift than a post! 25
 They run forward, and never find rest;—
 Like the ships of the pirates sail off;— 26
 Like eagles that pounce on their prey!—
 If I say, "I care not for my woes,
 I will loosen my face, and will smile!" 27
 I am terrified still by my griefs,
 For I know that you will not release! 28
 I know I am wicked myself; 29
 Why then should I labour in vain?
 If I wash myself white as the snow, 30
 And make my hands clean with the soap,
 You would plunge me again in a ditch, 31
 And my clothing would shrink from myself,
 For a man like myself could not speak, 32
 Nor bring us together to plead,
 For no one exists to decide, 33
 And control both of us by his hand.—
 From me let Him take off His rod! 34
 And not by His terrors oppress,
 For then I could speak and not fear,— 35
 But not in the state I now am! 10
 My body is weary of life;—
 I abandon myself to complaint;
 I will speak in the grief of my mind!
 And I beg of GOD not to convict. 2
 Inform me for what You contend?—
 Is oppression a pleasure to You, 3
 To despise the poor work of Your hand;
 And prosper the plans of the bad? 4
 Have You only the eyes of a man
 Or see but as mortals perceive? 5
 Are Your days like the days of mankind?
 Or Your years like the period of man? 6
 That You hunt to find out my defects,
 And seek to discover my sin, 7
 When You know that I am not depraved—
 And that none can relieve from Your hand? 8
 It was Your hand that formed me and made,—
 And compacted—Then why now destroy?
 Remember, You made me from clay, 9
 That to dust You will make me return!
 And did You not curdle like milk, 10
 And fixed me together like cheese,
 Then clothed me with skin, and with flesh, 11
 And with bones and with muscles compact?
 And gave me my Life, and my Reason, 12
 Then last, fixed my Spirit in me?—
 Tho' You hid all these things in Your heart, 13
 I know the result was from You.
 And that You would observe if I sinned;
 And would not acquit from my guilt. 14
 If wicked, alas! then for me!
 If righteous, I raise not my head!
 Be content with my shame! See my woe,— 16
 Like a lion, he rises to seize!—
 And You are turned from me estranged;—
 Against me You heap up the proofs, 17
 Increasing Your anger with me;
 And against me Your armies are massed!—

18 So why did You bring from the womb ?
 Oh ! would I had died, and none seen,
 As tho' I had never had life,
 19 And had gone from the womb to the grave !—
 20 Are not my days fading and few ?—
 Oh ! leave me a moment of rest,
 21 Ere I go, whence I never return,
 To the land of the black shadowed gloom,
 To the land where the brightness is black,
 22 Like the shadow of death,
 Where there are no columns of light,
 And whose glitter is black !

The First Address of Zophar.

11 Zophar the Namathite, however, replied, and said :
 2 Your number of words answer not.—
 No man is made right by his lips ;
 5 For your chatter, should men become still,
 And your sneering should no one resent ?
 4 For you say : " My conduct was spotless,
 And I have been pure in Your sight ! "
 3 How I wish GOD would grant you a word,—
 And against you would open His lips !
 6 And teach you the Wisdom Unseen,—
 For His Knowledge and power are wide,—
 It would teach you GOD pardons your faults.
 7 Can you find out GOD by research,
 Though intently you seek the Most High ?—
 8 Mount to heaven ! Yet what can you do ?
 Explore then the Grave.—What is found ?
 9 He extends beyond limits of earth,
 And further than stretches the sea ;—
 10 If He turns, and decides, and proclaims,
 Who then can resist to His will ?
 11 For He knows when a mortal is vile ;
 Sees his vice—that himself does not know.
 12 But man has a heart that is dull,—
 Man is born but a wild ass's colt.
 13 Yet if you will order your heart,
 And spread out your hands before Him,
 14 If you throw out your faults from your grasp,
 Nor let wickedness dwell in your tent,
 15 You can lift up your face without shame,
 You then can be bold, and not fear ;—
 16 Your sufferings will then be forgot,
 Or remembered like streams that are passed !
 17 And your lifetime arise to its noon,
 For your life will break out into dawn,
 18 Bringing comfort, because there is hope,
 And be shamed for your trust in the false,
 19 And rest, and have nothing to fear,—
 And many will seek for your face ;—
 20 But the eyes of the wicked will fail,
 And to them shall no refuge remain,—
 For their hope is,—their very last breath !

The Third Reply of Job.

12 Job, however, answered :
 3 No doubt but that you are the men,
 And that wisdom will die with yourselves !—
 But I have a mind like your own,

And I am not inferior to you !—
But who does not know things like these ?—
Yet I am a joke to my friends !
" Let him call to his God for reply !"—	4
The Upright and Just are despised !—
Those resting in light scorn a lamp,	5
Which is prized by those feeling their steps.
Yet the tents of the plunderers prosper,	6
And GOD makes the ruffians secure ;—
And GOD brings the wealth to the stores
Of those whose sole god is their power !
Even ask of the beasts to instruct,	7
And the birds of the skies to inform,
Or the weeds of the earth who can teach,	8
Or the fish of the sea to relate,
Such rubbish as yours, who knows not ?	9
For the hand of the LORD has done this,
In Whose hand is the breath of all life,	10
With the soul that resides in each man.
But cannot the ear taste of words,	11
As the palate distinguishes food ?
Let it be ; " That the old man is wise	12
And that those of long days understand,"
Yet with Him reside wisdom and power,	13
With Him are reflection and thought.
Look ! He throws down, and none can rebuild,	14
Shuts up, and no man can release ;
He holds back the waters—they fly—	15
He releases,—and then the land floods !
Both Strength and Perfection are His,	16
His are the Oppressor, and Oppressed !
He leads the contrivers to plunder ;	17
But yet makes their punishment shine !
He expands the dominion of kings,	18
And girdles their loins with might ;
But yet lets the priesthoods be captured,	19
And the mightiest He overwhelms !
From the eloquent, He takes the lip,	20
And deprives the old men of their sense ;
On princes He pours out contempt,	21
And loosens the belt of the great !
Uncovers the depths of the gloom,	22
Brings light to the shadow of death ;
He nations exalts and depresses ;	23
Or the nations extends and they last ;—
Yet takes sense from the heads of the earth,	24
And they wander in wastes without paths,
They grope in the dark without light,	25
And they stagger like men who are drunk.
Mine eyes have observed all these things,	13
I have heard, and my ears understood ;
What you know, I know that myself,	2
I am no more a fool than are you.
Now, I will address the Most High,	3
And to GOD I will turn with my plea ;
For you are but painters of falsehood !	4
And worthless physicians are you !
I wish you would keep yourselves silent ;—	5
For that is your far wisest plan ;—
And listen to me while I reason,	6
And attend to the plea of my lips !—
Why will you talk folly for God ?	7

- 8 Why utter your falsehoods as His ?
 For can you His Presence exalt ?
 Are you the defenders of GOD ?
 9 When He searches, will He approve you,
 If you flatter, as you flatter men ?
 10 Be assured that He will reprove
 If you flatter by falsehood His state.
 11 And should you not reverence His Height ?
 And should not His dread fall on you ?
 12 Reflect, that your proverbs are dust,
 And your maxims are mountains of mud ;
 13 Keep silent to me while I speak !
 I, myself, let come on me what may !
 14 I am mad,—with my flesh in my teeth,—
 And I put my life into my hand ;—
 15 Let Him kill me ; yet I do not care !
 In His presence I plead for my course !
 16 Perhaps He will save me Himself ;—
 For villains dare not seek His face !
 17 Listen, listen ! to what I can say,—
 And I will explain to your ears,
 18 For, now I arrange my defence,
 I know my acquittal is sure !
 19 Who is it against me will plead ?
 I then will be silent and die !
 20 Oh ! only grant two things for me,
 Then I will not hide from your face ;
 21 Remove this affliction away,
 And let not your terror o'erwhelm ;
 22 Then summon and I will respond,—
 Or let me speak,—and you can reply.
 23 Say what are my vices and sins ?
 Oh ! teach me my frailties and faults.
 24 For what do you hide up your face,
 And think me a foeman of yours ?
 25 And why do you chase withered leaves,
 Or hunt after stubble dried up ?
 26 That you write against me bitter things,
 And clothe with the sins of my youth ;
 27 And fasten my feet in the stocks,
 And watch to find my hidden ways,
 And examine the marks of my feet ?—
 28 And that here I am rotting away
 Like a garment that moths have consumed !
 14 Man—who is born of a woman,—
 For a few days, and those full of grief,
 2 Who springs like a flower, and is cut,
 Who flies like a shadow unfixed !
 3 On such a thing why set Your eyes,
 And why call me to judgment with You ?
 4 To whom is it given to be pure ?—
 Not one can exist without stain !
 5 His years and his months are decreed ;
 You fix his impassable bound ;
 6 Then let him alone,—let him rest,
 Till he end like a workman his day !
 7 For the tree has a hope if cut down,
 For it sprouts, and its shoot does not fail ;
 8 Though its roots have grown old in the earth,
 And its stump may decay in the dust,
 9 At the scent of the water it lives,
 And its boughs grow, as planted anew ;—

But man dies, and he withers away!	10
And a mortal expires, and is gone!
Like the waters depart from a fladge,	11
And a torrent when scorched up and dried,
So man must recline and not rise,	12
Nor wake till the skies are no more,
Nor arouse from the depth of his sleep!
Who will help me to rest in the grave?	13
To hide till Your anger is passed?
And fix me a time for recall?—
For if the dead man is recalled,	14
I would hope all the days of my war,
Until my discharge would arrive.
If You called me, then I would attend,	15
You could order the creature You made.
But now you are counting my steps,	16
And closely are watching my sins!
Seal up my defects in a bag,	17
And my passions sew up with a seam.—
For a mountain falls down by degrees,	18
And a rock can decay from its place,
The stones are worn down by the brook,	19
And the dust is swept off by a flood,
But the hopes of mankind are destroyed;—
You crush, and he goes off for ever!	20
His form fades, and You send him away!—
He knows not, if his sons come to fame;	21
If they suffer he cannot console;
His body grieves but for himself,	22
And his mind for himself only mourns.

The Second Address of Eliphaz.

Then Eliphaz responded, and said:	15
How can wisdom discuss with the wind?	2
Fill his breast with a blast from the East?
Contending with beggarly words,	3
And speeches that never avail?
Shame on you! You break all respect!	4
And degrade meditation with GOD!
Your mouth is familiar with sin,	5
And false reasons you choose for your tongue!
Your own mouth shall convict you—not I!—	6
And your own lips shall answer yourself!
Were you the first man that was born?	7
Were you made before the high hills?
Have you heard the Council of GOD?	8
And is science reserved to yourself?
What do you know that we do not know?	9
Understand?—and it is not with us?
The grey-headed are ours, and the old,	10
More revered than your father for days!
Are GOD'S warnings a trifle to you?	11
Or with you has He spoken alone?—
Now what have you taken to heart?	12
And at what are you rolling your eyes,
Till at your fury you turn against GOD?	13
And you fling out the words from your mouth?
How can a man hold himself pure?	14
And the son of a woman be just?
Why! HE cannot confide in His saints,	15

- 16 And the skies are not clean in His sight !
 Much less the corrupt and defiled,
 The man who sucks folly like drink !
 17 I will teach you, so listen to me ;
 For what I have seen I relate !
 18 What the wise have reported to us,
 And their fathers have never concealed,
 19 To whom only the land had been given,
 And no stranger had passed in their midst,—
 20 " That the days of the wicked are torments,
 " All the years of oppressors are fears,
 21 " In peace terrors shout in their ears,— " " Destruction is coming for you ! "— 22 " He dare not turn out in the dark,
 " For he fears an assault by the sword.
 23 " He is startled at food at all times ;—
 " He knows the dark day is at hand :
 24 " Disturbance, and trouble, and anguish,
 " Assail like a king armed for fight ;—
 25 " For he stretches his hand against GOD,
 " And ventures against the Most High ;
 26 " He charges close up to his neck,
 " To the hard bosses fixed in his shield.
 27 " Though he covers his face with his helm,
 " And strengthens his loins with flaps.
 28 " Yet in ruinous towns he shall dwell,
 " In houses where none will reside,
 " Which are ready to fall into heaps ;
 29 " He never gains station or might,
 " And his wealth does not last on the earth.
 30 " He can never escape from his sin :—
 " His boughs shall he shrivelled by flame,
 " And he fades by the breath of its mouth !
 31 " So let no one trust vain deceit ;
 " For deception will be his reward, 32 " Be paid him, before it is due,
 " And his branches will never be green.
 33 " He will cast, like the vine, sour grapes,
 " Like the olive will scatter his bloom ;
 34 " For the house of the wicked is barren,
 " Fire burns up the tents of the vile !
 35 " Who breed evil, and bring forth their sin,
 " Contriving deception from birth."

The Fourth Reply of Job.

- 16 Job, however, answered, and said :
 2 Have I not heard plenty like that ?
 What wretched consolers are you !
 3 Will the wind of your words have no end ?
 Or does something incite to dispute ?—
 4 I, also, could speak like yourselves ;
 If your souls were but now in my place ;
 I, my speeches could tack upon you ;
 And wag my head just as you do.
 5 But I would support by my words,
 And console by the play of my lips !
 6 If I speak—my grief is not the less !
 And if silent ; it goes not from me !
 7 But now I am wasted away,—
 All my family you have destroyed,

My wrinkles are telling my tale ;—	8
Liars rise, and insult to my face,
Against me they gnash with their teeth ;	9
And torturers flame with their eyes,
And your mouths belch upon me reproach,	10
Slap my cheek, and against me unite ;
For GOD has delivered to the bad,	11
Flung me to the hands of the vile !—
I was happy ! But now I am crushed.	12
He has seized on my neck, and has shook,
And has set as a mark for His darts,
My breast by His archers is pierced,	13
My gall poured unjustly on earth,
And He breaks me with breach upon breach,—	14
As when a fierce warrior assails !
I have covered my skin with a sack ;—	15
And my honour is rolled in the dust,
My features are swollen with tears ;—	16
My eyelids are shadows of death !
Tho' no wrong has been found in my hand ;	17
And for purity always I prayed !
Put no covering, Earth, on my blood !	18
And let not my shrieks be concealed !
My witness I see in the skies,	19
And my evidence is in the heights.
Friends jeer ;—but to GOD my eye weeps,	20
That a mortal might plead before GOD,	21
As a son of mankind for his friend !
When my number of years has arrived,	22
I shall walk on the unturning path !
My spirit is writhing in pain	17
My days flying fast to the grave !
Altho' my deriders withstand,	2
As an obstacle fixed in my sight !
Oh ! fix now my bail for Yourself ;—	3
But who will give bond on my part ?
For You take common sense from their hearts,	4
And so You rely not on them,
To decide on the fate of their friend,	5
So the sight of their children shall fail.
I am placed as a proverb to men,	6
And become a contempt in their sight !
So with sadness my eyes are oppressed,	7
And my form is consumed to a shade.
The upright may wonder at this ;—	8
And the clean from pollution be roused ;
But the righteous will hold on his way,	9
And the pure-handed add to his strength.
But all you,—turn round, and be off !	10
For wisdom I find not in you !—	11
My days fly ! My purposes fail !
The cherished ideas of my heart,
Can they change the night into day,	12
By light that proceeds from the dark,
When I measure my home in the grave,	13
And in darkness I spread out my bed ?
When I call to my father, Corruption,	14
You, my Mother and Sister, the Worm ?—
But if so, then where is my hope ?	15
And my hope, who can ever behold
When gone down with my frame to the grave	16
If together we rest in the dust ?

The Second Address of Bildad.

- 18 However, Bildad the Shuhite answered, and said :
 2 Pray when will you stop in your talk ?
 3 Be sensible ! Then we can speak,
 4 Why are we regarded as beasts,
 5 As something unclean in your sight ?
 6 He tears up his soul in his rage !
 7 Should the earth be deserted for you ?
 8 And the rocks be removed from their place ?—
 9 Yes ! the light of the bad is put out,
 10 And the gleam from the flame of his fire !
 11 And the light in his tent shall be dark,
 12 And the lantern above it be quenched !
 13 His vigorous stridings will halt,
 14 And his tactics will lead to defeat,
 15 For his feet will be caught in his net,
 16 And himself bound about in his toils !
 17 His heel will be caught in a hole,
 18 A noose will be flung over him ;
 19 A rope be concealed in the earth ;
 20 And a trap for him laid on the road,
 21 He harassed by terrors all round,
 22 And his feet shall be broken to bits !
 23 A famine shall come on his strength,
 24 And destruction shall fix to his flank
 25 Devouring the skin of his limbs,
 26 And the first-born of death gnaw his frame ;
 27 His guard will be driven from his tent,— 28 And the King of the Terrors march in ;
 29 Who will dwell in his tent,—no more his,—
 30 And lightning be poured on his home.
 31 His root will be dried up below,
 32 And his branches be withered above ;
 33 His memory will perish from earth ;
 34 And his fame not remain in the streets !
 35 He be driven from dawn to the dark,
 36 And hunted away from the world !
 37 Without son, or grandson, in his tribe,
 38 And none to survive in his home.
 39 The Westerns will wonder at his day,—
 40 And the Easterns be seized with a fear.
 41 Yes ! such are the homes of the bad
 Such the place not acknowledging GOD !

The Fifth Reply of Job.

- 19 Job, however, replied, and said :
 2 How long will you worry my life ?
 3 And make me feel crushed by your words ?
 4 You have libelled me fully ten times,
 5 And are yet not ashamed to revile ?
 6 But grant it be true, I have sinned,
 7 My errors remain with myself.
 8 Why indeed should you swell up against
 9 And reproach me, with my own disgrace ?
 10 Admit, that GOD has oppressed me,
 11 And His lasso has flung round my neck,
 12 That unanswered, I cry in distress,
 13 And appeal—but I have not a judge !—
 14 That He blocks up the path I would go.
 15 And spreads darkness over my roads ;
 16 Has stripped off my glory from me

And my turban has thrown from my head ;
 That He breaks me wherever I go, 10
 And has pulled up my hopes like a tree ;
 That He kindled His fury at me, 11
 That He treats me as one of His foes,
 For His troops come advancing in mass, 12
 Their rampart against me they pile,
 And encamping, encompass my hall !
 My kinsmen have flown far away, 13
 My companions are scattered abroad,
 They cease to approach, and forget ;— 14
 My guests and my maids think me strange,
 They forget ; I'm unknown in their sight ! 15
 My lad replies not if I call— 16
 To him I must soften my voice !
 And my feelings are strange to my wife, 17
 And I plead to the sons of my breast ;
 Even children regard me with scorn, 18
 When I rise up they ridicule me ;
 I am loathed by my intimate friends 19
 And those whom I loved turn away ;
 My bones pierce my skin and my flesh, 20
 I possess but the skin of my teeth !
 Oh pity me ! pity me, friends ! 21
 For GOD's hand is heavy on me !
 Like GOD would you persecute me, 22
 Unsatisfied yet with my flesh ?
 Who will help me to write out my tale ? 23
 Who will help to record in a book ?
 Or with pen made of iron, on lead, 24
 Or cut deep on a rock for all time ?
 For I know my Defender exists, 25
 And at last will stand over my dust,
 And after this skin is destroyed 26
 I shall yet in my flesh gaze on GOD !
 Whom I shall gaze on for myself, 27
 Mine eyes see Himself,—not another,—
 Fulfilling the hopes of my breast !
 While you cry, "Why did we pursue 28
 When the root of the fact he had found ?"
 And you tremble yourselves at the sword,— 29
 For the sword is the fear of the bad,—
 When at last you discover my judge !

The Second Address of Zophar.

Zophar the Namathite, however, answered, and said : 20
 Because I am driven by my mind, 2
 And I rush from the passion within,— Having heard an insulting reproof 3
 I answer with spirited thought.
 Know you not this from of old, 4
 Since Adam was placed upon earth,
 That the triumph of sinners is short 5
 And the joys of the vile but an hour ?
 If he goes up as high as the skies 6
 And his head reaches up to the clouds,
 Like his dung he will perish for ever ;— 7
 Those who saw him will ask, "Where is he ?"
 He will fly like a dream, nor be found, 8
 And vanish like visions at night.
 An eye-glance,—for it is no more,— 9

10 And he never returns to his place !
 His children shall flatter the low,
 11 And their hands will repay for his sin.
 His vices will fill up his bones,
 And with him lie down in the dust !
 12 Tho' vice has been sweet to his taste,
 Concealing it under his tongue ;
 13 Tho' he fondled and never forsook
 But retained in the roof of his mouth ;—
 14 Yet the food in his bowels will turn
 To the venom of asps in his breast.
 15 He will vomit the plunder he gorged,
 From his stomach his god will be cast !
 16 He will suck in the poison of asps,
 The sting of the adder will kill.—
 17 He shall not see the pools or the streams
 Of the rivers of honey and oil,
 18 Nor consume the reward of his work ;—
 He carries the wealth, but owns not !
 19 For he crushed and abandoned the weak,
 Stole a house that he never had built,
 20 For he never knew rest in his greed,
 He never let slip his desire,
 21 And nothing escaped from his knife :
 His wealth, therefore, will not endure.
 22 He has fear in amassing his hoard
 That the hand of distress may approach,
 23 While he goes to accomplish his greed
 Fierce wrath is discharged upon him,
 And is rained as he sits at his food.—
 24 If he flies from the weapon of iron,
 He is shot by a bow made of steel !
 25 A swift arrow comes up to his back,
 And it goes to his gall, with its barb !
 26 All darkness is stored up for him,—
 A fire unblown will consume ;—
 It is bad for those left in his tent !
 27 The skies will uncover his sins,
 And against him the earth will rise up,
 28 And the wealth of his house flow away
 Like the floods in the day of a storm !
 29 Such from GOD is the fate of bad men
 And their portion appointed from GOD.

The Sixth Reply of Job.

21 But Job answered and said :
 2 Attentively list to my speech !
 That may, perhaps, alter your mind.
 3 Bear with me, while I, myself, speak,
 And after I speak you can jeer.
 4 Is my complaint made to a man ?
 And why should not my spirit be sharp ?
 5 Look at me ! and be not surprised ;
 And place your hand over your mouth !
 6 I'm amazed when I think of myself,
 And trembling takes hold of my flesh !
 7 Say, why are the wicked in life ?
 Grow old, and are mighty in wealth ?
 8 Their offspring are sitting by them,
 And playing about in their sight.
 9 There is peace in their houses, not fear,

GOD brings no disturbance on them ;
Their bull genders, and that without fail,	10
Their cow calves, without ever a slip ;
Their children go out like a flock,	11
And their infants are skipping about ;
They sing to the timbrel and harp,	12
And delight in the sound of the flute ;
On pleasure they float all their days,	13
And easily go to the grave !
Tho' they say to GOD, " Get far from us !	14
" We care not to learn of Your ways !
" For why should we serve the Most High ?	15
" What our wages for working for Him ? "
Do they not enjoy what is nice ?	16
(Get from me you villainous thoughts !)
How seldom the villains' lamp fails,	17
Or upon them arrives a distress
Distributing griefs in its rage ?
When are they as straw before wind,	18
Or like chaff that the tempest sweeps off ?
" But GOD stores up grief for her sons ? "	19
Let Him punish their sins on themselves,
Let their own eyes perceive the results,	20
And drink the wrath of the Most High !—
What care they for their house after them	21
When their number of months has rushed by ?
But who can teach knowledge to GOD,	22
When He is the judge of the highest ?
This one dies in perfection of strength,	23
Reclining at ease, and in peace ;
With his buckets o'erflowing with milk,	24
And with marrow to moisten his bones ;—
That one dies with his soul full of grief,	25
And never with pleasure could eat.
Together they lie in the dust	26
And over them wallows the worm !
Yes ! I know of what are your thoughts	27
And the libels you frame against me !
You ask, " Where the house of the prince	28
And the hall where he spread out his bed ? "
Why not ask those who pass on the road,	29
On whose evidence you would rely ?
That the bad escape times of distress,	30
And are led from the dangerous day ;—
Who dare tell to his face of his ways ?	31
Who repay to him what he has done ?
He is carried away to his tomb	32
And a guard watches over his mound ;
The clods of the valley are sweet,—	33
And after him all will proceed
As unnumbered before him have gone !
Then why do you comfort in vain	34
Since your reasonings result in a lie ?

The Third Address of Eliphaz.

Eliphaz the Themanite, however, answered, and said :	23
Can a man be essential to GOD	2
As a man of skill may to his like ?
Does your righteousness profit the Highest ?	3
Does He gain by your course being straight ?
For fear of you, will He debate,	4

Or with you will He go to a judge ?

5 Now! Is not your wickedness great,
 And your vices without any end ?
 6 For your brother you robbed of his pledge
 And have stripped from the naked his rags ;
 7 You quenched not the weary with drink,
 From the famishing held back his bread !
 8 But the powerful—to him gave the land !
 And the haughty-faced dwelt upon it !
 9 You sent starving widows away,
 And the arms of the fatherless broke !
 10 So, therefore, around you are snares,
 And terrors unlooked for confound !
 11 And darkness that you cannot see ;
 And torrents of water o'erwhelm !

12 Is not GOD in the Heavens on high,
 Looking over the heads of the stars ?

13 But you may ask, " What can GOD know ?

14 " Or distinguish behind the black gloom ?

15 " Black clouds are around,—He sees not ;—

16 " For He walks in the sphere of the skies ! "

17 You keep to the very old path

18 Which the vilest of mortals have trod ;

19 Who were snatched off before their full time,

20 Whose foundations were swept by a flood ;

21 Who cried to GOD, " Get far away ! "

22 And, " What gain is th' ALMIGHTY to us ? "

23 " He fills up their houses with wealth. "

24 (Begone your vile statements from me !)

25 No ! The righteous look on and are glad,

26 And the virtuous laugh him to scorn ;

27 " Our foeman," they cry, " is now wrecked,

28 And the fire will consume his remains. "

29 Now make him your friend and have peace ;

30 To you the results will be good.

31 Accept, now, the Law from His mouth,

32 And fasten His words on your heart.

33 To the Mighty Constructor return,

34 Depravity drive from your tent,

35 And throw your gold into the dust,

36 —Yes, your gold from the gravelly brooks,—

37 And let the Most High be your wealth,

38 And the glitter of silver to you !

39 For then the ALMIGHTY will love,

40 And your face you can lift up to GOD !

41 He will hear you whenever you pray

42 And He will accomplish your vows ;

43 And He will effect your intent,

44 And the light will shine over your ways !

45 Though He humbles ;—He can say, " Arise. "

46 When the eyes are cast down, then He saves,

47 Protecting the virtuous home,

48 Protecting your unsoiled hands !

The Seventh Reply of Job.

23 Job, however, replied, and said :

24 Very bitter my thought is to-day !

25 But His hand overpowers my groans.

26 Who will help to discover and find ?

27 I would go to the place where He dwells,

28 Arranging before Him my cause,

And with reasonings filling my mouth,
 I would learn the replies He would give, 5
 And understand what He would say.
 Would He fight me with powerful speech? 6
 No! But He would be gentle with me,
 For the honest can reason with Him ;
 So my cause would triumphantly win!— 7
 Look! I go to the East; He is not! 8
 To the West;—But I cannot perceive!
 To the North, where He works,—But find not! 9
 To the South, where He hides;—But unseen I
 Yet He knows the course that I go.— 10
 At the test I stand pure as gold;
 I have fastened my feet in His steps, 11
 Unwavering I kept to His path ;
 Not shirking the law of His lips,
 In my breast I have stored His commands! 12
 But HIM?—He is ONE!—Who can turn?
 For what He desires, He does! 13
 He will work out His objects with me;—
 But how many are there with Him? 14
 So, excluded His presence, I faint;
 I reflect, and I tremble at Him! 15
 For GOD has deprived me of heart,
 Th' ALMIGHTY brought trouble to me, 16
 Why was I not cut off ere the dark,
 And before I was covered with gloom? 17

Since Times are not hid from th' ALMIGHTY, 24.
 Why know not His friends His fixed days?
 For there are removers of landmarks, 2
 There are robbers of flocks as they graze;
 They drive from the orphans their ass, 3
 The widow's ox take as a pledge;
 The wretched they turn from their path, 4
 Till the poor of the land herd in troops,
 As wild asses go on the plains. 5
 Their plunder begins at the dawn,
 To seize for their followers food;
 They reap in a field not their own, 6
 And with violence pluck off the grapes;
 The naked they leave without clothes 7
 And without any cover from cold,
 So they soak in the rain from the hills 8
 And shelterless stick to the rock!
 The infant they drag from the breast 9
 And the clothes from the wretched as pledge,
 Who without any covering go bare, 10
 And who hungering carry their sheaves;
 And who, in their barns, press the oil, 11
 And tread out their wine,—but have thirst!
 In the city the murdered may groan, 12
 And the soul of the tortured may roar,
 But GOD pays no heed to their prayer!
 And others revolt from the light,— 13
 Hate His ways nor will slay in His path.
 The murderer detesting the light, 14
 Who slaughters the wretched and poor,
 And comes like a thief in the night.
 The adulterer waits for the dark 15
 When he thinks that no eye can observe,
 And places a mask on his face,

16 With darkness he enters the home
 He had marked for himself in the day,
 That he dare not approach in the light,
 17 Fearing dawn, as the shadow of death,
 For it seems to his terrors like doom.
 18 You say, " Swiftly he glides down a brook !
 His lot will be cursed on the earth ;
 To his vineyard he never returns ;—
 19 As drought and heat steal the snow-streams,
 So will the grave those who sin.
 20 Refr of love, and devoured by worms
 The Villain is always forgot ;
 And the wicked will break like a stick,
 21 For they injure the wretch without child,
 To the widows they never do good ! "

Yet HE¹ strengthens the proud in his power,
 22 Lifts him up when he thought not to live,
 23 And gives to him confident strength,
 Tho' His eyes can discover his ways.
 24 They rise for their time ; then depart ;
 And they curl up when perfectly ripe
 And are cut like the ears of the corn !—
 25 And if not,—let who will refute me
 And fling to oblivion my speech ?

The Third Address of Bildad.

25 So Bildad the Shuhite replied, and said :
 2 Dominion and Terror are His,
 Enforcing His nobles to peace !
 3 And what man can number His troops ?
 And on whom does He not raise His light ?
 4 And what is man's goodness to GOD ?
 And who, born of a woman, is clean ?—
 5 The moon to His eyes does not shine
 And the stars are not bright in His sight,
 But man, the poor crawler, much less,
 Adam's son, who is only a worm !

25¹ The Raphaim, themselves, were destroyed.
 And rest themselves under the seas.
 6 The Grave's people are naked to Him,
 And Destruction possesses no cloak !
 7 He spread out the Northern expanse,
 And suspended the earth upon space !
 8 He binds up the streams in His clouds,
 But the clouds are not ruptured by them.
 9 He covers the view of His throne,
 And over it spreads a black cloud ;
 10 Puts a band on the face of the seas,
 On the circuits of darkness and light.
 11 He shakes the supports of the skies,
 They tremble before His rebuke ;
 12 He raises the sea by His might,
 And by His skill crushes its pride !
 13 The skies are made sweet by His wind,

¹ NOTE.—That is, God does so. In the Hebrew writings the Creator is often referred to without naming, but is understood by force of the context.—F. F.

* NOTE.—Ch. 26, v. 5 to end, continues

Bildad's speech, the first four verses being the beginning of Job's answer, misplaced by an ancient transcriber from Ch. 27, v. 1. This is the opinion of Mr. A. Elzas and other critics, and is undoubtedly correct.—F. F.

And His hand whirls the Serpent¹ along!
 Look! Those are a part of His ways—
 But of Him what a whisper we hear!
 And His thundering voice who can stand? 14

The Eighth Reply of Job.

Job, however, answered, and said: 1³
 To the helpless—what help do you bring. 2
 Have you strengthened the arm without force?
 To the ignorant what do you teach 3
 Or help by the lot that you know?
 From whom have you stolen your speech, 4
 And whose thoughts are sent out thro' you?
 GOD lives, tho' He turned from my plea, 27³
 And th' ALMIGHTY, who bitters my soul!
 So while ever breath lingers in me 3
 And the spirit of GOD in my face,
 No rubbish shall come from my lips 4
 And my tongue shall not pour out deceit!
 Curse me, if I justify you! 5
 Till I die, I'll not turn from my right,
 To my righteousness I will cling fast, 6
 Nor the thought of my life be reproached!
 Let my enemy be like the bad, 7
 My opponent become like the vile!
 For what hope has the rogue, tho' enriched, 8
 When GOD is demanding his soul?
 Will GOD hold back if he shrieks 9
 When upon him the anguish has come?—
 In th' ALMIGHTY he did not delight 10
 Or call upon GOD at all times. 11
 I could teach you the power of GOD 11
 Nor conceal what is with the Most High;
 But yourselves, all of you can see that;— 12
 Then why do you babble such stuff? 12

The Third Address of Zophar.

(Zophar the Namathite, however, answered, and said): 13A
 This is the lot of the wicked from GOD, 13⁴
 And the scoundrel's fate from the Most High!
 His children increase for the sword, 14
 And his offspring are not filled with bread,
 His descendants are buried by death, 15
 And his widows will never lament!
 If he heaps up the silver like dust 16
 And piles up his clothing like clay,
 He may pile, but the righteous will wear, 17

¹ NOTE.—The constellation so named.—F. F.

² See note 2, p. 178.

³ NOTE.—Ch. 27, v. 1. The first verse of Ch. 27, "And Job continued to take up his speech and said," is not part of the original text, for it breaks the sense. It has been added by some old copyist as an endeavour to lessen the gap made by the part of Bildad's speech erroneously inserted in Job's, from verses 5 to 14 of Ch. 26. I therefore relegate it to a note, and let the fiery flow of Job's address run on without interruption.—F. F.

⁴ NOTE.—Verse 13. The reply of Zophar begins here, as the sense of the text up to the end of Ch. 27 shows, though by the error of some old transcribers it is made to appear as if uttered by Job, although the import of it is totally opposed to his line of argument, and to his style, and makes him stultify his previous contention—that we do not see the good invariably rewarded and successful in this world, nor the bad always punished; but with terrible frequency the contrary. I shall therefore restore the proper heading to this speech, as suggested by Mr. A. Elzas in his "Book of Job": Trübner and Co., London—F. F.

18 And the virtuous inherit his wealth.
He builds up his house like a moth,
Or a watchman erecting a hut,
19 He lies down without loss and is rich,—
When he opens his eyes, all is gone!
20 The terrors rush on him like streams,
He is ruined by thieves in the night.
21 The east wind will rise, and he flies,
And the whirlwind will sweep him from home—
22 It unsparingly sweeps upon him—
From its powerful blast he must fly;
23 After him it will clap with its hands
And whistle him out of his home!

28 But for silver there yet is a vein
And a place where they wash out the gold;
And iron is obtained from the dust,
And copper is smelted from stone;
3 A mine is sunk down to the dark
And its secrets are fully explored;
In the black rock and shadow of death
4 A shaft is sunk down to descend
Without any rests for the feet,
The men hanging on to a swing
5 Who bring from earth's bowels their bread;
Whose basement they tear up with fire,
6 Whose rocks are the sapphire's home.
In its dust is discovered the gold,
7 In places unknown to the hawk,
Untraced by the vulture's keen eye.
8 Wild beasts would not travel that road,
Nor the lion would venture to go!
9 Yet man lays his hand to the flint,
He breaks up the roots of the hill;
10 He hews out his drives in the rocks,
And his eye searches everything rare.
11 He stops off the trickeling streams,
And he brings out the hidden to light.
12 But wisdom's home where can he find,
Or where is the dwelling of sense? —
13 Its origin man cannot know
Nor find in the land where we live.
14 Space answers, "With me it is not!"
And the Sea says, "It rests not in me!"
15 Nor for it can bullion be paid;
Nor payment in silver can buy!
16 Nor the gravelly nuggets be weighed,
Or the brightest of diamonds and gems.
17 Unequaled by jewels of gold,
And unmatched by the glittering stone;
18 Nor can onyx and crystal be named
Or wisdom be purchased by pearls!
19 The topaz of Kush equals not
And the chasings on gold cannot buy!
20 From where then can wisdom be got,
And where is the home of good sense,
21 If she hides from the eyes of all life,
And is hid from the birds of the skies?
22 Destruction and Death both declare,
We have heard of her fame with our ears! —
23 But GOD, only, has looked on her ways
And He alone knows of her home!

For He looks to the ends of the earth,	24
Observing all under the skies;
When He fixes the weight of the wind	25
And measures the seas with a rule!
When He makes a decree for the rain	26
And a way for the thunderous flash :
He sees her, and makes a decree,	27
applies her, and also approves,
And proclaims to mankind, " Be assured,—	28
It is wisdom, to fear the Supreme ;
And sense, to abandon the wrong ! "

The Ninth Reply of Job.

But Job proceeded to take up his contention, and replied :	29
Who will make me as in former months,	2
As the times when GOD watched over me?
When His lamp brightly shone o'er my head,	3
And His light when I walked in the dark ;
As I was in the days of my wealth,	4
When GOD counselled me in my tent ;
And whilst the ALMIGHTY was mine,	5
And servants attended around ;
When washing my footpath in cream,	6
When the rock poured me ponds full of oil.
When I went to the gate through the town,	7
When I spread out my seat in the square ;
The children on seeing me hid, ;	8
And the elder men rose up and stood ;
The princes broke off from their speech,	9
And laid their hand over their mouth ;
The voice of the nobles was still,	10
And their tongue was held close to its roof.
And when the ear heard me, it blest,	11
And the eye that looked on me approved ;
For I rescued the wretch who appealed	12
And the destitute who had no help !
The perishing brought me their thanks,	13
And I gladdened the poor widow's heart.
In goodness I dressed, and was clothed,	14
I made justice my robe and my crown !
And I became eyes to the blind,	15
And I, also, was feet to the lame ;
And a father I was to the poor,	16
And the cause of the friendless I searched.
I broke the jaw teeth of the vile,	17
And tore the prey out of their mouth !
So I thought I should die in my nest,	18
And add to my days like the sand !
That my roots would spread out to the streams,	19
And the dew drops would rest on my boughs ;
And my honours be freshened for me,	20
And my bow keep its spring in my hand !
Then they waited to listen to me,	21
And were silent to hear my advice ;
When I had spoke, no one replied,	22
And upon them my sentences dropped.
And they waited for me as for rain,	23
And opened their mouths as for showers.
If I laughed at them, did they believe ?	24
They turned not from the smile on my face !
I chose their course, sitting as chief,	25

- And I stood as commander of troops.
 I encouraged them when they despaired!—
 20 But they now are laughing at me
 Who are lower in rank than myself,—
 Whose fathers I would have disdain'd
 To put with the dogs of my flocks!
 21 What to me is the strength of their hands
 Whose whole vigour has wasted away?
 22 Gaunt with hunger and famine, they gnawed,
 And raged yesterday in the wastes!
 23 And plucking up cress in the bush
 And the roots of the bracken for food!
 24 They were chased away out of our midst;
 They roared after them as after thieves;
 25 They dwelt in the rents of ravines,
 In holes in the dust, and in caves!
 26 In the shelter of bushes they brayed,
 And under the thorns they were wed!
 27 Sons of tramps—yes, men with no name—
 They were driven away from the land.
 28 But I am become now their song,
 And I am become their contempt!
 29 They insult, and they wave me away,
 And refrain not to spit in my face,
 30 Since HE loosened my nerve and depressed,
 In my presence they throw off the rein.
 31 On the right a mob rise at my feet,
 They point and heap insults on me,
 32 They roughen my paths to annoy,
 And do mischief that profits them not.
 33 They come on, as though thro' a breach,
 With roaring they roll themselves up;
 34 Their terrors are turned upon me.
 35 My nobility flies like the wind,
 And my power has passed like a cloud.
 36 My life now is poured out from me
 And times of depression have seized;
 37 My bones shoot within me at night,
 And their gnawing will not let me rest;
 38 My clothes must be stripped off by force,
 I am galled by the band of my coat.
 39 I am flung out, as tho' I were dirt,
 And become like to ashes and dust!
 40 I shout, but they answer me not.
 I stand up. But they look not on me!
 41 How fiercely upon me you turn
 To desolate by your strong hand!
 42 You lift me to ride on the wind
 And melt me away in a mist!
 43 For I know you will bring me to death,
 To the home fixed for all who may live:
 44 Yet He lays not His hand on my wreck
 Though I should be glad of my end!—
 45 I wept in their time of distress,
 And troubled my mind for the poor.
 46 Yet when I hoped good, evil came;
 When hoping for light, came the gloom.
 47 My bowels boil up and rest not;
 I'm confronted by days of distress!
 48 I am blackened, but not by the heat;
 I rise in the public and roar;
 49 I am come to be brother to snakes.

And mate with the daughters of woe !
My blackened skin peels off in strips,	30
And my bones are burnt up by the heat,
And my harp has become to me grief,	31
And my flute as the sobbing of tears !
Yet a treaty I made with my eyes	31
That I never would look on a maid ;
Else what part could I have in HIGH GOD,	2
Or share in th' ALMIGHTY above ?
Do not the depraved meet distress,	3
And to practise such vices estrange ?
Would He not have looked on my ways,	4
And reckoned up every step ?
Yet if I have walked with the vile	5
And my footsteps have run to seduce,
Let HIM weigh me in scales that are just ;	6
Then GOD will acknowledge my truth !
If my eyes have turned towards that road,	7
And my heart has gone after my eyes,
And defilement has stuck to my hand,
Let me sow what another will eat,	8
And my crops be pulled up by the roots !
If my heart was seducing a wife,	9
If I watched at the door of my friend,
For another then let my wife grind,	10
And strangers be lying with her !
For that is a cowardly crime	11
And a wrong for the judges to brand,
And a fire, consuming to Hell,	12
Which would root up the whole I produced.
If I refused right to my slave,	13
Or my waitress, disputing with me,
Then what could I do when GOD rose,	14
And when He enquired, what say ?
He formed them in the breast like myself,	15
And constructed alike in the womb.
If I turned from the plea of the poor,	16
Or the eyes of the widow made fail ;
If I ate of my morsel alone,	17
And the orphan shared not of the same ;
—Like a father I nourished his youth ;	18
Her, I helped from my own mother's breast—
If I looked on a tramp without clothes,	19
Or the wretched without any cloak ;
If his joints were not thankful to me	20
When warmed by the fleece of my sheep ;
If I raised up my hand on the weak,	21
When I looked on my power in the Court ;
Let my shoulder fall off from its blade,	22
And my arm at its socket be broke !
For the reverence of GOD was on me,	23
And I would not resist His decrees.
If my trust I have placed in my gold,	24
Or said, " I rely on my hoards " ;
If glad that my wealth was so great	25
And that treasure was found by my hand :
If I looked on the sun when it shone,	26
Or on the bright moon in her walk ;
And in secret my heart was seduced,	27
And my hand I have kissed to her face,
That also I knew to be wrong,—	28
A denial of GOD the SUPREME !

- 29 If I joyed at the death of my foe,
 If pleased when he met with distress,
 30 Or gave up my palate to sin
 By asking a curse on his life;
 31 If the men of my tent ever said,
 "Who will give us his meat in our need?"
 32 No stranger lodged outside my court,
 To the traveller my doors were unclosed;
 33 Had I hidden, like Adam, my fault,
 Concealing my sin in my breast,
 34 As though I had fear of the crowd,
 Dismayed by contempt of the mass,
 And dare not go out of my door;
 35¹ If my land has shrieked out against me
 And its furrows together lament;
 36 If I ate of its fruits without pay,
 And sneered at its owner's demands,—
 40 Let thistles spring up, and not wheat,
 And instead of the barley, vile weeds!
 35 Who will grant me to listen to me?
 How I wish the ALMIGHTY would speak,
 Or my enemy write in a book;
 36 I could carry it then on my back,
 I could place on my head as a wreath,
 37 I could tell Him the tale of my steps,
 I would go up to Him like a prince!

THE END OF THE SPEECHES OF JOB.

- 32 Those three men then ceased to reply to Job, because he was righteous in his own eyes.
 2 But the anger of Elihu-ben-Barakel, the Buzite, of the family of Ram, was inflamed by Job. His anger was inflamed, because he justified himself 3 instead of GOD. His anger was inflamed also against his three friends, because they had not found any explanation, but had declared Job wrong. Elihu, however, had waited 4 for their replies to Job, because they were older than himself. But when 5

 Elihu perceived that there was no explanation in the mouths of those three men, his indignation was fired.
 Consequently Elihu-ben-Barakel, the 6
 Buzite, replied and said:

- In days I am young—you are old—
 I, therefore, was trembling in fear
 To declare my discoveries to you.
 7 I said to myself, "Days should speak;
 And numerous years should be wise."
 8 Yet there is a spirit in a man,
 And th' ALMIGHTY inspires with sense.
 9 The greatest are not always wise
 Nor the aged perceive what is right.
 10 I now therefore say, listen to me,
 I also my thoughts will declare.
 11 Yet I waited to hear your discourse,
 The thoughts of your minds and research,
 12 And considered your reasons to Job;

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 31, verses 38 to 40 must be inserted between verses 34 and 35 of the common reading, as they have been misplaced

by some ancient transcriber, and destroy the proper form of Job's sublime defence as they are now ordinarily printed—F. F.

But none of you proved his words wrong.
So say not, "Though Wisdom we found	13
Only GOD can disprove him—not man."
Had he laid his discourse before me	14
I would not have replied with your words.
They are baffled and have no reply;	15
Their speeches have vanished from them;
I am waiting! But yet they speak not;	16
Though they stand up, they do not reply!—
So I answer, yes I, on my part,	17
I will my discoveries declare!
For I am filled full with my words,	18
My spirit distresses my breast;
My breast is like wine without vent,	19
Like skins newly filled it will burst;
I must speak, to be able to breathe,	20
I must open my mouth, and reply!
I fear not the face of a man,	21
And never will flatter mankind.
For flattery I never have learnt	22
Or my Maker would soon take me off!
And perhaps Job will hear my address	33
And attend to the whole of my speech;
For now I have opened my mouth	2
From my palate my tongue will speak out.
My true heart will reason and speak,	3
My utterance will gush from my lips.
I was made by the spirit of GOD—	4
Th' ALMIGHTY's breath gave to me life.
Answer me now, if you can,	5
And before me now marshal your proofs.
See! I am before you for GOD—	6
Yet I am but formed out of clay
And my terrors can never affright,	7
Nor my might be a load upon you!
In my hearing you certainly spoke.	8
And the sound of your boasting I heard:
"I am pure!" "I am without sin!"	9
"I am clean!" and "No vices are mine!"
Look! he hunts me to find out a fault,	10
He thinks about me as his foe,
He fastens my feet in the stocks,	11
He watches about all my paths!"
I reply, You are not right in this;	12
For, as GOD is superior to Man,
Why should you contend against Him	13
When He gives no account of His acts?
However, to some GOD does speak,	14
And to others, does He not reveal?

1 NOTE.—Ch. 33. My version of the above removes the contradiction which verse 14 makes to verse 15, as it is rendered by the older translators. Elihu's contention is, that GOD does speak and reveal facts to men when He sees occasion; not that He never does, as the Authorized Version and others make him say.

Verses 13 and 14 in the Authorized Version read:

13 "Why dost thou strive against Him? for He giveth not account of any of His matters.

"For God speaketh once, yea twice, 14 yet man perceiveth it not."

Revised Version has:

"Why dost thou strive against Him? 13 For He giveth not account of any of His matters.

"For God speaketh once, yea twice, 14 though man regardeth it not."

Renan has:

"God speaks once to man;

Yea, twice! (but man does not listen)."

All these versions are feeble contradictions

15 By dreams and by visions at night,
 When stupor has fallen on men,
 In slumbers, when laid on their bed ?
 16 It is then He uncovers men's ears
 And instructs them about the unseen,
 17 To turn men away from their acts
 And take away pride from the great ;
 18 To keep back his life from decay
 And his soul from the ford of the Pit.
 19 Or He lays him with pain on his bed,
 And anguish contends with his bones,
 20 And his life, it refuses its food,
 And his body, the choicest of meat !
 21 His flesh is consumed out of sight
 And his bones that were hidden stick out ;
 22 While his body is nearly dissolved
 And his soul is approaching the dead.
 23 If an Angel is present with him,
 Interceding, as one of the Friends,
 24 To show to the man what is right,
 Then He pities, and says, " Set him free,
 I relieve from descent to decay ! "
 25 And his flesh is revived as in youth,
 It returns as in childhood's estate ;
 26 Then he prays to his GOD who was kind
 And looks on His face with delight,
 And returns to his duties to man.
 27 Then he sings to men, saying " I sinned,
 And did wrong, but He punished me not,
 28 But brought back from the ford of the Pit,
 And revived me to look on the light."
 29 Be sure that GOD acts like this,
 More often than once with a man,
 30 To turn back his life from the Pit,
 To rejoice in existence in light !
 31 Job ! attentively listen to me ;
 Be silent ! For more I would speak ;
 32 But if you can answer me, say—
 For my wish is to justify you.
 33 If not, why then listen to me,
 Be still while I wisely will teach !

34 Then Elihu continued to speak and said
 2 Attend, you Wise Men, to my speech,
 You, Philosophers, listen to me !
 3 About reasons the ear can decide,
 As the palate the flavours of food.
 4 We can choose out the right for ourselves
 And distinguish within what is best.
 5 Now Job has said :—" I have been right,
 But GOD took the verdict from me !
 6 Although I am right—should I lie ?—
 Without fault, I am tortured to death ! "
 7 Whoever of men is like Job,
 Like water he swallows down sin,
 8 Joins the path of pursuers of vice
 And associates with profligate men ?
 9 For he says " That it profits not man arising from Ignorance of Hebrew diction and Idiom of thought. I unravelled the epigram by reflection on its purport, not merely by a Lexicon. My diction is also far more forcible.—F. F.

To make himself pleasing to GOD,"
But listen, you wise men, to me ;	10
GOD could not be forced to do sin
Or th' ALMIGHTY to execute wrong ;
But man's actions return on himself	11
And the tracks of a man find him out ;
Most certainly GOD never wrongs,	12
The ALMIGHTY does not pervert right !
And who for Him organized earth ?	13
Or who for Him fixed all the spheres ?
If He called back the heart and the breath	14
And the life, to Himself, all would cease,—
All flesh would expire at once,	15
And man would return to the dust !
If you have understanding, hear this,	16
And attend to the sense of my words :
Could one who hates law ever rule ?	17
And if right—would you charge him with wrong ?
Would you say to a king, " You're a rogue ? "	18
Or to princes, " What villains you are ! "
Much less, to who favours not kings	19
Nor repulses the face of the poor ;
For His hand has created them all.	.
On a sudden they die at midnight !	20
Men tremble and then pass away,
And the mighty fall down without strength.
For His eyes are on every man's paths,	21
And he looks upon all of their steps ;
Nor darkness, nor shadow of death,	22
Can hide those who wallow in sin !
So He need not lay much on a man	23
To bring him to GOD to be judged.
He can suddenly ruin the great	24
And others set up in their stead
For He is aware of their acts,	25
And o'erthrows in a night, and they fall.
He strikes them, because they are bad,	26
In the place where their splendour appeared ;
Because they turned off from His paths	27
And paid no respect to His ways.
So the weak sent their cry up to Him ;—	28
And the shriek of the wretched He heard.
When He pacifies, who can disturb ?	29
When He covers a face, who can reign ?
Alike to a Nation or Man,
Preventing a vile man to rule,	30
Preventing a nation's distress !
This should make them exclaim to their GOD,	31
" I have sinned,—but I will not persist ;
I see nothing,—so teach me yourself,	32
If wrong,—I will cease from my acts."
Should He reward you, as you choose	33
With what you dislike or would wish ?
I think not.—But say what you think.
Men of sense will declare as I do,	34
And the wise men will listen to me.
Job has spoken beyond what he knows,	35
And his speeches have not had good sense.
I wish to see Job fairly tried,	36
Not turned out among wicked men,
Tho' rebellion he joined to his sins,	37
Clapped at us,—and heaped words up at GOD !

- 35 Elihu spoke again and said :
 2 Think you this to be just that you said,—
 " I myself am more righteous than GOD ? "
 3 For you asked, " Would it profit to you ?
 What gain I by freedom from sin ? "
 4 I, myself, will reply to your speech—
 And to your friends as well as yourself.
 5 Look up to the heavens, and see,
 Watch the clouds that are far above you !
 6 If sinful, what matter to Him ;
 How affect Him your many revolts ?
 7 If righteous—what give you to Him,
 And what in your hand do you bring ?
 8 A man, like yourself, you may hurt ;
 And your justice may benefit man !
 9 Under wrongs the oppressed may shriek,
 And may groan from the might of the great ;
 10 But ask not, " Where is GOD who made me,
 Allowing these tortures at night ?
 11 We know more than the beasts of the earth
 And are wiser than birds of the sky ;
 12 We shriek, but He never replies
 To the face of the tyrants themselves."
 13 It is false, to say GOD does not hear,
 And that the MOST HIGH replies not,
 14 And more false that He does not see you ;
 He does justice, if you will but wait.
 15 Does He, when His anger refrains,
 Not recognise manifest crime ?
 16 Job opens his mouth like a fool—
 Yes, with folly has loaded his speech !
- 36 Elihu consequently continued and said :
 2 Wait for me, and I will reveal
 The reasons I still have for GOD.
 3 I will gather my teachings from far
 And prove that my Maker is right ;
 4 For I certainly utter no lies ;
 Pure truth is presented to you.
 5 GOD is mighty and does not neglect,
 He is mighty in power of mind ;
 6 He does not encourage the bad,
 But gives the afflicted their right.
 7 From judges He takes not His eyes
 Or from monarchs who sit on the throne !
 Whom He sanctions, are mighty for aye ;
 8 But if they are fettered in chains
 And bound in the cords of distress,
 9 He is showing their conduct to them
 And the faults that their pride has produced ;
 10 And uncovers their hearing to learn,
 And tells them to turn from their sins.
 11 If they listen to Him, and obey,
 They complete with enjoyment their days
 And end up their years in delight,
 12 If they hear not, they pass like a dart,
 And expire in their want of good sense !
 13 But the wicked in heart heap up wrath ;
 When He binds them, it is not to save ;
 14 Their life goes to death in their youth,
 For their life is among the depraved.
 15 But He rescues the wronged from their woes,

And opens their ears by distress ;
And from these present griefs He w: ^l lead	16
To a plain, unobstructed advance ;
And rich food will be spread on your board !
But your thoughts are filled up with your wrongs,	17
Tho' reflection and thought should support.
Your rage should not lead to contempt,	18
When a great ransom could not redeem,
Nor your wealth would be able to save,	15
Nor all the exertions of strength ;
Ah ! do not desire that Night,	20
And the path to the Nations laid low !
To your folly you should not return,	21
For that you preferred to distress.
See, how lofty GOD is in His might,	22
For who can enlighten like Him ?
And who for Him drew out his plans ;	23
Who can say, " What you do is absurd ? "
Think ? You should exult in His works	24
Which men are accustomed to praise !
For all mankind see Him in them	25
And mortals regard from afar !
We know not how noble GOD is,	26
How unmeasured His number of years,
Who accumulates mist from the seas	27
And distributes the vapour in rain,
Which the storm clouds all scatter around,	28
Distilling abundance on man.
Ah ! who understands the massed clouds	29
That carry His thunders within ?
Look ! He scatters about them His flash,	30
But their roots are concealed in the sea !
Yet He governs the Nations by them ;	31
He gives by them plenty of food ;
He places the flash on their bows	32
And directs it go to the mark,
And instructs it to show forth for Him	33
The wealth of His wrath on the vile !
My heart even trembles at this	37
And is leaping about in its home !
Hark ! I hear the deep sound of His rage	2
And the roll that precedes His advance !
It advances beneath all the skies	3
And its flash to the wings of the earth !
And thunder's rough voice follows after	4
With a fierce irresistible roar.
To all who are hearing its sound
GOD thunders with wonderful voice,	5
Effecting great things and unknown ;
For He says to the snow, " See the earth ! "	6
And to rain-showers, " Pour out your strength ! "
It is marked by the hand of all men,	7
That each one may know of His work.
The beasts then retire to their lairs	8
And roll themselves up in their dens.
The hot-blast comes up from the South,	9
And the cold-wind proceeds from the North.
The breath of GOD gives us the cold,	10
And the wide spreading waters congeal.
Then His splendour dispels the thick cloud	11
And the mists are dispersed by His light.

- 12 He revolves all the seasons by rule,
To accomplish the work He commands
On the face of the earth in its course.
- 13 In kindness He leads them along
To arrange for the tribes of His earth,
- 14 Stand up, Job, to listen to this,
And examine the wonders of GOD!
- 15 Know you all GOD's process with them
When reflecting His light on the mists?
- 16 Do you know how He balances clouds
With wondrous perfection of skill?
- 17 Or what makes your clothing be warm
When the earth is depressed by South winds?
- 18 Did you, for Him, spread out the skies
That are formed like a glass to reflect?—
- 19 Then teach us how Him to address;
We know not—because we are dull!
- 20 And must He be told when I speak;
Is He ignorant when a man talks?
- 21 Why! we cannot now look on the light
When it glitters about in the clouds,
Tho' the passing wind sweeps them away!—
- 22 From the North a gold splendour proceeds—
There is terrible glory round GOD!
- 23 We cannot discuss the Most High!
Supreme in His Justice and Might—Whose Goodness will never do wrong—
- 24 Men therefore should reverence Him—
He regards not the learned,

The Address of Jehovah.

- 38 Then JEHOVAH answered to Job out of the whirlwind, and said:
- 2 Who is this that obscures reflection
By speeches on what he knows not?
Like a hero now gird up your loins—
I will ask you, and you answer Me!
- 4 Where were you, when I founded the earth!
Inform! if you knew of My plan!
Who fixed its extent? Since you know!
Or who on it stretched out the line?
- 6 On what where its timberings laid;
Or who fixed its keystone on high?
When the stars of the morn sang together
And the sons of GOD shouted for joy?
- 8 When the sea was shut up within doors,
When it came with a rush from the womb,
When I gave it the fogs for a cloak,
And in darkness enwrapped it around;
- 10 And over it laid my decree,
And fixed it with bars and with doors,
And said, "So far you can come—
Nor advance—but there stay your proud waves!"
- 12 All your days have you governed the dawn, Taught the morning to know her own place?
- 14¹ With her vesture of roseate bloom,
And draped in it as with a robe,
To seize on the wings of the earth,
And to drive off the bad from her face,

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 38, v. 14, should by the sense read after verse 12, and has been displaced by some old transcriber. There are various readings of the 14th verse.—F. F.

And to take from the wicked their light, ¹	15
And the arm they are lifting to wound?
Have you gone to the springs of the Sea—	16
Have you traversed the limits of Space—
Have Death's portals been opened to you—	17
Have you looked on the Gates of Despair?
Know you all that is done upon earth?	18
Explain—if you know of the whole!
Where is the road to the dwelling of Light,	19
And where is of Darkness the home?
Can you guide us as far as their bounds,	20
Do you know the paths to their house?
You know!—for then you were born!	21
And the number of your days is extreme!
Have you been to the countries of snow	22
And examined the treasure of hail
That I hoard for the time of distress,	23
For the day of encounter and war?
What path tread the rays of the Light	24
And how spread the winds over earth?
Who cut for the typhoon its course	25
And a road for the lightnings to shine?
Who pours rain on the land without men,	26
On the desert where no man resides;
To satiate the desert and waste	27
And to cause a green meadow to grow?
And who is the father of the rain?	28
And the drops of the dew, who begot?
From whose belly comes out the ice,	29
And the frost of the skies who has made;
When the waters congeal like a stone,	30
And it captures the face of the deep?
Did you fasten the Pleiades' chain?	31
Or scatter the Wandering-fool? ²
Do you guide the Signs of the Seasons?	32
Or console the North Star and his sons?
Have you revealed Laws for the Skies,	33
Or settled the Laws of the Earth?
Can you lift up your voice to the clouds	34
And with water-floods cover yourself?
If you send lightnings out, will they go	35
And reply, "We are ready for you?"
Who leads out the meteors with skill,	36
Or gives to the comets their sight?
Who skilfully numbers the clouds,	37
Who pours out the skins of the skies,
When the dust is converted to mud,	38
And together the clods of earth stick?
Do you hunt for the lion his prey;	39
Or fill the young whelps of wild beasts,
When they lie cowering down in their dens,	40
And hide by themselves in their lairs?
Who prepares for the raven its food	41
When its young ones are shrieking aloud
And are worn out for want of their meat?
Mark the birth time of goats of the rock,	39
And watch the birth-throes of gazelles!

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 38, v. 15. "And to take from the wicked their light." That is, to take away darkness, which is the day (יָמִים), Heb. "day") of criminals, whose time of action is night.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Ch. 38, v. 31. Supposed to be the constellation called now Orion.—F. F.

- 2 And count the full period they breed,
And observe at the time they bring forth!
- 3 They contract, and their children leap out—
They cast all their sorrows away!
- 4 Their children are hardy and strong,
And run off to reside by themselves.
- 5 Who sent out the wild asses free?
From the zebra who loosened the chain?
Whose house I have fixed in the waste
And in the salt-marshes its home?
- 7 It laughs at the crowd of the town,
Regards not the call of the groom;
8 It feeds on the chance of the hills
And hunts after anything green!
- 9 Do you wish for the Reem as your slave?
Would he lodge at the side of your crib?
10 If you harness the Reem to your plough
Will he harrow the plain after you?
11 Will you trust him because he is strong
And abandon your earnings to him?
12 Or trust him that he will come back
And pile up your grain in your barn?
- 13 Would you trust the loud wing of the ostrich?—
On her pinions desiring to fly?
14 Who abandons her eggs on the earth,
And hatches them out on the dust;
15 And forgets that the footstep may crush
Or the beast of the pasture may break?
16 Who is hard to her young, as not hers,
And cares not if she labour in vain?
17 For GOD has withheld from her sense,
And gave her no mind to reflect;—
18 Yet when she has risen to run
She laughs at the rider and horse!
- 19 Did you give his strength to the horse?
Clothe his neck with the quivering mane?
20 And make him like a grasshopper leap—
And snort in his terrible pride?
21 He paws on the plain, and is glad;
With his vigour he charges in fight,
24¹ Eats the ground in his fierceness and rage,
Unrestrained at the sound of the horn;
25 At the blast of the trumpet he neighs
And snorts for the battle from far,
For the thundering captains and cheers!
22 He laughs undismayed at its woes,
Nor shrinks from the face of the sword,
23 Tho' on him the arrows may pour—
And the flash of the spear and the dart!
- 26 By your intellect do swallows fly,—
And spread out their wings for the South?
27 Does the eagle mount up at your word
And build up his nest on the peak,
28 And settle his home on the crag
And his foot on the ledge of a cliff,
29 From where he can spy out his prey,
Whence his eyes can perceive it from far;

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 39, v. 24. Verses 22 and 23 should come after verses 24 and 25, as they are the climax of the description, and have evidently been displaced by some old transcriber. This has been noted by former critics.—F. F.

His fledglings there suck up the blood, And he is where the slain bodies lie !	30
The LORD also continued, and said :	40
Is the ALMIGHTY'S Appellant content ?	3
Has the Critic of GOD a reply ?
Then Job answered, and said :	3
I was foolish, what can I reply ?	4
So my hand I lay over my mouth.
I spoke once;—but will not speak again.	5
Nay twice, but I will not repeat.
Jehovah's Second Address.
Again JEHOVAH answered Job out of the Whirlwind, and said :	6
Then gird up your waist like a man;—	7
I will ask you, and you instruct Me;—
How can you My judgments reverse;—	8
Convict Me and set yourself free ?
Or is your arm equal to GOD'S ,	9
And can your voice thunder like His ?
Deck yourself now with glory and might	10
And clothe you in splendour and power ;
Fling round you your anger and wrath	11
And examine the proud and o'erthrow !
Examine and humble the fierce,	12
Depressing the bad by their acts.
And hide them together in dust,	13
And blindfold their faces from light;—
And I, then, will congratulate you	14
That your right hand can rescue yourself !
See Behémóth, My work, like yourself	15
He feeds upon grass like an ox,
His power is placed in his loins,	16
And force in his obstinate breast ;
Like a cedar he flashes his tail,	17
His thighs are a muscular plait,
His bones are as pieces of steel,	18
Like forgings of iron his frame:—
He is chief of the products of GOD ;—	19
He who made, can destroy with His sword !
Then the mountains produce him his food,	20
Where all beasts of the field sport about ;
Under willows he lies down to sleep,	21
In the shade of the reeds and the fens ;
The willow trees' shade is his tent,	22
And the bush of the valley surrounds.
He fears not the furious flood !	23
He is calm, tho' streams rush in his face !
Who can catch him, when laid on the watch ?	24
Or who run a rope through his nose ?
Is Leviathan caught with a hook ?	25
Can they tie down his tongue with a cord ?
Or put a straw rope through his nose,	26
Or pierce through his jaws with a thorn ?
Will he multiply pleadings to you,	27
Or address you in flattering words ?
Will he write out a treaty with you	28
To be your perpetual slave ?
Can you play with him, as with a bird,	29
Or put in a cage for your girls ?
Can your friends make a feast off of him ?	30
Or can he to merchants be sold ?

- 31 Can you pierce with your pricking his skin,
Or his head with the spear used for fish ?
- 32 Once touch him ! you will not forget !
You never again will assail !
- 41 Why, to try for him would be in vain !
One drops, if but looking at him !
I will not relate of his limbs,
- 4 His courage, and power, and form !
- 5 Who dare open his mouth for a bit,
Or bring double bridle to him ?
- 6 Who dare open the doors of his mouth
Surrounded with terrible teeth ?
- 7 His back is the bosses of shields
Pressed close with the print of a seal,
8 Where everyone sticks to his mate,
And the wind cannot go in between !
- 9 For everyone holds in its place.
They grasp, and they cannot be split !
- 10 And when he is sneezing, light shines ;
And his eyes are the eyelids of dawn !
- 11 And flashes come out of his mouth,
And sparkles of fire escape ;
- 12 From his nostrils a vapour proceeds
Like flame from a furnace, or straw !
- 13 His breath is the burning of coals
And flames proceed out of his mouth !
- 14 His vigour sits down on his neck,
And terror precedes his advance !
- 15 The flakes of his flesh stick as one
So close that they cannot be moved !
- 16 His heart is as hard as a stone,—
Yes ! as hard as the stone of a mill !
- 17 When he rises, the brave are dismayed ;
They stagger, as tho' in the waves !
- 18 If the sword reach, it will not pierce him.
Nor the spear, or the stone, or the dart !
- 19 He fancies that iron is straw,
And the steel to be mere rotten wood !
- 20 No arrows can turn him to flight !
Sling-stones he converts into chaff !
- 21 He thinks that the club is a rush !
And laughs at the shake of a spear !
- 22 And his sharp-pointed claws are beneath,
Supporting his course on the mud !
- 23 He makes the deep boil like a pot
And embroiders the water with foam,
24 And after his passage it shines !
It seems that the depths have turned grey :
- 25 On the dust there is nowhere his match
Who was made so as not to feel fear !
- 26 He gazes on all that is great ;—
He is king over all the wild beasts.
- 21 Who are you, who dare not arouse him,
Yet who dare resist Me to My face ?
- 3 Who has worked for Me ?—I will repay.
All under the heavens is Mine !

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 41. Verses 2 and 3 should come after verse 26 of this 41st chapter. As they are placed by some error of an old copier, they break the sense of the address, and have no meaning. I therefore restore them to their original position at the end of the description of the Leviathan.

- Then Job answered, and said : 42
 I know that Your power is supreme, 2
 And Your purpose can not be withstood !
 Who am I ? Who hid fact without thought, 3
 And spoke what I never could know
 Of acts that I understood not,
 When I said, " Listen, and I will speak,— 4
 I will question, and You must reply !"—
 I had heard of You once by my ear, 5
 But now I have seen with my eyes,
 So I am convicted, and repent 6
 On the dust and in ashes reclined.
- 7 Now it occurred that after JEHOVAH had addressed these discourses to Job, that JEHOVAH said to Eliphaz the Themanite, " My anger burns against you and your two friends, for you have not reasoned correctly about 8 Me, like My servant Job. So now choose for yourselves seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer a sacrifice for yourselves, when My servant Job will pray for you,—for I will accept his presence,—so that I may not do any injury to you because you have not reasoned correctly about me, like my servant Job."
 9 Consequently Eliphaz the Themanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Namathite, went and did as the EVER-LIVING commanded them, and the EVER-LIVING accepted
 10 the presence of Job. Then the EVER-LIVING removed the miseries of Job when he prayed for his friends, and the EVER-LIVING gave Job twice as 11 much as he had formerly. And his brothers and sisters came to him.
- with all his acquaintance, to congratulate him, and ate bread with him in his home, and condoled with him and comforted him over all the suffering that the LORD had laid upon him, and each of them gave him a lamb, and every one a ring of gold.
 The EVER-LIVING thus blessed Job 12 more than formerly, and he possessed fourteen thousand sheep, six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses. He also had 13 seven sons, and three daughters, and 14 called the first of them Jemima, and the second Kezia, and the name of the third was Karenhepuk, and in all 15 the country none were found so beautiful as the daughters of Job. Their father gave them fortunes as well as to their brothers.
 Job lived after this a hundred and 16 forty years, and saw his sons, and grandsons, and great-grandsons of the fourth generation. Then Job 17 died, an old man, and satiated with years.

END OF THE BOOK OF JOB.

THE SONG OF SONGS.

BY SOLOMON.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE BY THE TRANSLATOR.

This beautiful poem seems to myself, and several competent critics, to be a Wedding Day Drama. I have, therefore, endeavoured in my translation to restore the actual dramatic form in which Solomon wrote it, and I think by doing so the matchless beauty of the poem is displayed as it has never previously been by any translator or commentator.—F. F.

PRELUDE.

(In a village.)

- 1 SHEPHERDESS.
2 Let him kiss me with his kissing mouth;—
For your love is sweeter than wine!
- 3 SHEPHERD.
Your breath is a charming perfume!
- SHEPHERDESS.
Your fame is abroad;—that all the girls love you!
- 4 SHEPHERD.
Entice me!—I'll run after you!
- (She runs off in sport.)

ACT I. SCENE I.

(In DAVID'S Park Lodge. The SHEPHERDESS sings on being introduced to the other attendants in DAVID'S Park Palace.)

- SHEPHERDESS.
The King has brought to his home.
- ATTENDANTS.
We are pleased and delighted with you!—
Your charms are more pleasant than wine;—
The Princes will love!
- 5 SHEPHERDESS in reply.
I am dusky but comely,
Jerusalem's girls!
Like pavilions of Kedar,
Like Solomon's tents;—
- 6 Oh! look not on me!
I am black!
The sun has embrowned me!
The sons of my mother were cruel to me,—
They set me to watch in the Vineyard,
So my own Vineyard I never could guard!

SCENE 2.

(The SHEPHERDESS alone and in the KING'S Park thinking of her Shepherd lover.) 7

(Sings.) Oh! tell me, you love of my soul,
Where you pasture?
Where your flocks lie at noon?
Why should I go wandering alone,
With my flock not alongside of yours?

(Her lover who has come to see her replies from the bushes.) 8

SHEPHERD sings.

If you do not know, oh! most charming of maids
Follow on by the track of the sheep,
And pasture your lambs
By the tents in the mead!

SCENE 3.

SOLOMON walking in the Park sees and begins to court the SHEPHERDESS.) 9

SOLOMON.

To the steeds in the Chariot of Pharaoh
I would compare you my girl!
Your cheeks are made charming with ringlets, 10
With corals your neck!
I will make for you girdles of gold, 11
With silver for clasps!

(SHEPHERDESS in response replies with cross purposes, to evade SOLOMON'S flattery, pretending she has to go to DAVID, whom she is nursing.)

SHEPHERDESS.

The King now returns from his stroll;— 12
I must run to attend him.

SOLOMON, trying to retain her by further flatteries.

My dear, you're a satchel of Myrrh 13
To be laid in my breast!
My dove, you're a cluster of roses, 14
In En-gedi's gardens!

(The SHEPHERDESS leaves, and SOLOMON calls after her.)

SOLOMON.

You are charming, my love, you are charming! 15
You have eyes like a dove!
You are charming, my love, you are charming!— 16
Let our roof be green leaves.
And the beams of our house fir-tree boughs, 17
And the Cypress our screen!

ACT 2. SCENE 1. 2

(The SHEPHERDESS and her lover meet and talk.)

SHEPHERDESS.

Am I your Rose of Sharon?—
Your Lily of the Valley?— 1

SHEPHERD.

Like a lily in thorns,—
Is my dear amongst maidens! 2

SHEPHERDESS.

- 3 Like an apple to trees of the forest,
 Amongst lads is my lover !
 I delight in his shade and sit down,
 And his fruit,—it is sweet to my taste.
 4 He has brought to his bower,
 And his banner above me is love !
 5 (She sings.) Refresh me with flagons,
 With apples support me,
 Because I am fainting with love !
 6 Let his left hand be under my head,
 And his right hand be clasped with mine !

(The SHEPHERD sleeps, and the SHEPHERDESS says to the CHORUS.)

- 7 I entreat you, Jerusalem's daughters,
 By the deer and gazelles of the field,
 Arouse not,—disturb not my love,
 Until it may please him to wake.

SCENE 2.

(A Park Lodge. The SHEPHERDESS at the window sees her lover in the distance, and exclaims to her companions.)

- 8 Ah! that is the voice of my love,
 Who comes tripping over the hills !
 9 My lover is like a gazelle,
 Or a fawn of the groves !

The CHORUS of her Companions.

Look! he is hiding behind our wall,
 To the window he peeps !
 Thro' the flowers spread over the lattice !

SHEPHERDESS exclaims.

- 10 My darling addresses and calls !

SHEPHERD, hid amongst the rosebushes, sings.

- Arise my love, my fair, and come to me !—
 Let me wander, sweet, with you :
 11 For see the Winter is past,
 The rain is over and gone,
 The flowers appear on the earth,
 12 And the Time of the Singing of Birds is come,
 And the voice of the Turtle is heard in our land !

2.

- 13 The fig-leaves are tanned by the sun,
 And the bloom on the vines gives perfume,
 Arise and come to me, my love !
 My fair one,—let me come to you !

3.

- 14 My Dove's in a cleft of the rock,
 In a precipice hid !
 Allow me to list to your coos,
 For your voice is a pleasure,
 And to see you delights !

4.

- 15 Let us hunt little foxes together,
 The bad foxes, who spoil our grapes,
 And our blossoming vines ?

SHEPHERDESS.
My lover is mine, and I am his?		16
SHEPHERD.
Let us graze amongst lilies, Till the evening breeze comes, Till the shadows depart !		17
SHEPHERDESS.
Come rest yourself, darling, Like Gazelles and the Fawns of the groves, On the Mountains of Bethar.
ACT 3. SCENE 1.
		8
(In Jerusalem. The SHEPHERDESS tells the CHORUS why she went out at night to seek her lover.)		1
SHEPHERDESS.
On my bed I dreamt of him to-night, He who is beloved of my soul ;— I sought him but I could not find ;— So I rose and am going about—		2
In the town, in the streets, and the squares, I sought the beloved of my life,— I sought him,—but I could not find ;— I met with the watch on their rounds, I asked, " Have you seen my soul's love ? "		3
Soon after I parted from them I found the beloved of my life !— I seized him,—would not let him go, Till I brought to my own mother's home,— To her chamber from whom I was born !		4
I charge you, Jerusalem's daughters, By the hinds and gazelles of the field, Not to waken or rouse up my love Till it pleases himself.		5
SCENE 2.
(In Jerusalem	SOLOMON coming up from the country, and the SHEPHERDESS and her companions watching his advance.)
SHEPHERDESS, on the balcony.		6
Who is that coming up from the meadows, Like columns of smoke from the burning of myrrh ? With incense and sweets from afar ?
CHORUS.		7
Why, that is Solomon's chariot, With sixty brave warriors around ! Each one grasps his sword, Every one knows to fight ; Each has sword on his thigh Against dangers at night.		8
(The CHORUS of girls discuss the appearance of the cavalcade and tell anecdotes of SOLOMON as he approaches.)		9
1ST GIRL.
King Solomon made his chariot of Lebanon wood.
2ND GIRL.
Its pillars of silver are made,		10
3RD GIRL.
And its panels of gold !

4TH GIRL.

And its cushions are purple!
 Its carpet is brodered with lace,
 Made by Jerusalem's girls!

SCENE 3.

A CHORUS of women who are going out to meet SOLOMON and his train, singing--

- 11 Come out, you daughters of Zion, to look
 At King Solomon wearing the wreath
 That his mother had woven for him,
 For the day he was wed,—
 For the day of the joy of his heart.

4 ACT 4. SCENE 1.

(In the Palace Gardens on Lebanon. SOLOMON declaring his love for the SHEPHERDESS in a Serenade.)

SOLOMON sings.

- 1 My Love, you are charming! yes, charming!
 Your eyes 'neath your veil are like doves!
 Your locks like a flock of the goats
 That wander on hills of Gilad!
- 2 Your teeth like a flock of shorn sheep,
 All perfect without a defect;
- 3 Your ruby lips are like a cord,
 And your talk a delight!
- 4 Your cheeks are love-apples concealed by your veil;
 Your neck like the tower of David
 Built up as a place of defence,—
 A thousand of bucklers defend it—
 All shields of the bravest of men!
- 5 Your breasts like two fawns
 The twins of Gazelles,
 That pasture among the fair lilies!
- 2.
- 6 At the cool of the day when the shadows extend,
 Come out, walk with me on the Mountains of Myrrh,
 And the Highlands of Spice,
- 7 For, my darling, you everywhere charm,—
 In you there is not a defect.
- 3.
- 8 Go with me from Lebanon, darling,
 Go with me from Lebanon!
 Go with me to look from the top of Amanah,
 From the summit of Shenir and Hermon,
 From the homes of the lions,
 And hills of the leopards!
- 4.
- 9 You embolden my heart,
 My Darling, my Perfect!
 From a glance of your eyes I am bold!
 From a bend of your neck!
- 10 How delightful to love you,
 My Darling, my Perfect!
- 5.
- 11 To love you is more pleasant than wine;
 And your sweetness is more than perfumes!
 Your lips distil odours, my Perfect,
 Honey and butter are under your tongue!—

And the scent of your robes is like Lebanon's breath !—
 But a garden enclosed is my Darling, my Perfect ; 12
 A fountain barred up from the sight by a wall !
 Your glance is a peach grove with excellent fruit, 13
 Like the fruit of the Nard !
 Nard, saffron, and cinnamon sticks, 14
 With all Lebanon's Woods,
 Myrrh and sandal, with all the best sweets ;
 A Spring in a garden ;— 15
 A Fount of the Water of Life,
 And like Lebanon's brooks !

SCENE 2.

(The SHEPHERD hid in the garden amongst the rosebushes begins to plead also with the SHEPHERDESS. Sings.)

SHEPHERD.
 Arise North wind, or come from the South, 16
 O ! blow on my Garden, pour out its perfumes !

(The SHEPHERDESS replies to him from her bowcr.) 6

SHEPHERDESS sings.
 Come in, my love, to my Garden ;— 1
 I will gather my myrrh and my balm,
 I will feed you with honey,
 Of my milk and my wine you shall drink ;
 Come, dearest, eat of my butter,
 Come, drink and be drunken with love !

SHEPHERD, in ecstasy at the gate, 2
 Do I sleep ? Yet my heart is awake ;
 At the voice of my darling it beats !
 Open, my Darling, my Love,
 My Dove, my Most Perfect !—
 My head is all sopping with dew,
 My locks with the drops of the night !

SHEPHERDESS 3
 I have put off my clothing !—
 Why dress me again ?
 My feet have been washed !—
 Can I soil them again ?
 (The SHEPHERDESS soliloquizes.)
 My love puts his hand to the latch, 4
 And my breast sighs for him !

SCENE 3.

(The SHEPHERDESS arising to open the door finds her lover has gone upon her refusal, so she goes out to seek him, and is apprehended by the Police ; when she appeals to the CHORUS to help her.)

SHEPHERDESS to the CHORUS.
 I rose up to let in my love,— 5
 And my hands were all dripping with myrrh,
 And my fingers gave off their perfume
 On the key of the lock ;—
 I opened the door to my love, 6
 But my darling had gone !
 My soul ran to find, it sought to speak to him,
 But it found him not !
 I called !—But he did not reply !

- 7 They found me, the watchmen patrolling the Town
 They struck me! They bruised me!
 They tore off my veil!
 The Guards of the wall!
- 8 I entreat you, Jerusalem's daughters,
 If you meet with my lover, you tell him,
 That I am afflicted for love!

- 9 THE CHORUS, replying to her, ask—
 What is your Lover, more than other lovers?
 Oh! fairest of women!
 What is your Lover, more than other lovers?
 That you put us on oath?

- 10 SHEPHERDESS.
 My Lover is handsome and ruddy,
 More distinguished than many.
 11 His head is fine gold,
 His bushy curls black as a raven;
 12 His eyes are like dove's on the banks of the brook,
 Washed milk white, as they sit on the brim!
 13 His cheeks are like beds of sweet flowers,
 That grow up in rows,
 His lips are like lilies diffusing perfume,
 14 His hands ringed with gold set with topaz!
 His breast made of ivory, with sapphires adorned,
 15 His legs marble columns on bases of gold;—
 His appearance like Lebanon,
 As grand as its Cedars!—
 16 His speech is most lovely and all one could wish!—
 That is my Lover,—and that is my darling,— Jerusalem's daughters!

- 6 THE CHORUS reply.
 7 Where has your lover gone,
 O! Fairest of women?
 Where wanders your lover?—
 We will seek him with you!
 (They go to seek him, and follow her.)

- SHEPHERDESS suddenly exclaims—
 2 My love has gone down to his field,
 To the sweet smelling hedge-rows,
 To the pastures enclosed, and is gathering lilies

SCENE 4.

- 3 (The CHORUS and SHEPHERDESS finding the SHEPHERD in the Fields, she runs up to him, exclaiming:)

SHEPHERDESS.
 I am my lover's,—my lover is mine!—
 He strolls amongst lilies.

- SHEPHERD.
 4 My darling charms me like delight;
 Like Jerusalem's prospect;—
 I tremble like flags!
 5 Turn from me your eyes, they o'erwhelm me!
 Your locks are like goat flocks that wander in Gilad;
 6 Your teeth are like ewes that come up from the washing;—
 Each with its twin, and none wanting!
 7 Your cheeks under your veil, are love-apples!—

There may be sixty Queens, with their seventy attendants, 8
 And maids without number;—
 But my Dove is the one, that is perfect, 9
 She is the one of her mother;
 The best of her daughters,
 Girls see her and bless her;—
 The Queens and attendants all praise her!

ACT 5. SCENE 1.

(DAVID'S Villa. SOLOMON walking in the Nut Grove of the Villa on the Lebanon, sees the SHEPHERDESS.)

SOLOMON.
 Who is this that bursts out like the Dawn? 10
 And fair as the silvery Moon?—
 Like the Sun on a fluttering flag?

SHEPHERDESS replies. 11
 I came down to the Garden of Nuts,
 To look at the plants in the vale,
 To see if the vines were in bloom,
 Or the Love-apples flowered.—
 I knew not, by my life, I should meet, 12
 In my walk with my Prince.

(She turns away and retires towards her duties in nursing DAVID. 7 SOLOMON calls to entreat her to come back.)

SOLOMON. 1
 Why offended?—Return to me! Return!
 Return to me! Return!—Let me see you!

SCENE 2.

(While he calls back the offended SHEPHERDESS, a MAHANAMI DANCING GIRL of the Court pertly demands of SOLOMON:)

DANCING GIRL.
 Why should you look at that sulker,
 More than at a Mahanami Dancer?

(SOLOMON in irritation replies to her with satirical insult.)

SOLOMON. 2
 How fine your steps are in your slippers!
 Smart girl! The edge of your skirts is like lace,—
 And made by the hand of the skilful!
 Your belt is a bowl not deficient in drink; 3
 Is your waist a field of ripe corn, and encircled with lilies?
 Are your two breasts like two fawns,—twin gazelles? 4
 Is your neck like an ivory tower? 5
 Your eyes like the lakelets of Bethlem,
 By the Gate of Bath-rabbim?
 Is your nose like to Lebanon's tower,
 That looks on the North to Damask?
 Is your head fixed on you like Carmel, 6
 With the plaits from your hair hanging down?—
 And a Monarch involved in their twists?—

SCENE 3.

(SOLOMON leaving his satirizing of the DANCING GIRL, turns and looks after the retiring SHEPHERDESS, and soliloquizes.)

SOLOMON. 7
 Why are you so charming and pleasant?—
 I love her, involved in delights,—
 Your stature is like to a Palm, 8

- 9 And your breasts like to clusters of grapes,
I declare I could climb up that Palm,—
I would hang by its thorns,
For there are your grape-cluster breasts,
And your breath like perfume!
- 10 And your mind like the beautiful wine,
That comes to the truly in love,
And moistens their lips in their sleep!
- 11 (The SHEPHERDESS hearing him speaking, turns and replies in remonstrance.)
SHEPHERDESS,
I am for my lover, and he longs for me.
- 12 (SOLOMON answers her in rapture; trying to induce her to forget her rustic lover, he offers to become a peasant and her equal, and lodge in a village farm.)
SOLOMON.
Come, darling, come to the meads!
We can sit in the bowers,
And lodge with the farmers!
Can watch the Vines blossom,—
The flowers unfolding,
Or the bright peaches flourish:—
And there I will give you my love!
(The SHEPHERDESS refuses and departs.)

ACT 6. SCENE-I.

(The SHEPHERD and SHEPHERDESS in their native village, are prattling together in the delight of their meeting.)

- SHEPHERD.
14 The Love-apples give out their scent,
And over our doors are new flowers,
And the old ones, my love, that I treasured for you!
- 8 THE SHEPHERDESS replies to him lovingly—
1 Who will make you my brother,
That sucked at my own mother's breasts?
When I met in the street I could kiss you,—
And they could cry shame if I did!
- 2 I would lead you to my mother's home,
She would tell me to serve you with grapes,
And to mingle the pomegranate's spice!
- 3 His left should be clasped round my head,
And his right hand be folded in mine!
- (The SHEPHERD falls asleep, and the SHEPHERDESS then addresses the CHORUS.)
SHEPHERDESS.
4 I ask you, Jerusalem's girls,—
Not to wake, or arouse up my love,
Till it pleases himself!
(A period of time is supposed to elapse.)

SCENE 2.

(In the Village. A cavalcade is seen advancing and the Chorus of Villagers ask each other in astonishment what it means.)

- CHORUS.
5 Who is she coming up from the Pasture,
With her Guardian Companion?
(The Chorus of Villagers dance as they watch the cavalcade approach the farm.)

SCENE 3.

(The Orchard of the farm where the SHEPHERDESS was born. SOLOMON, taking her from the attendant lady, leads her to her mother, and, addressing the SHEPHERDESS, says :)

SOLOMON.

I have brought you to the Orchard,
 To the place of your mother who bore ;
 The place where she nursed you a child !
 Place ME like a seal on your heart, 6
 Like a brace on your arm ;
 For Love is as strong as is Death,—
 And Jealousy hard as the Grave.
 Its flashes are flashes of fire,—
 It fiercely inflames !—

(SOLOMON breaks off in grief.)

(The OLD MOTHER, to assuage his grief, says :) 7

MOTHER.

Many waters can never quench love!—
 Nor can the torrents sweep off !—
 If man gave the whole wealth of his house,
 To buy Love,—it would all be despised !

SCENE 4.

(The SHEPHERDESS'S two brothers seated outside the Orchard and discussing a future sale of their beautiful sister to some rich man say :)

1ST BROTHER. 8

We have a nice little sister !

2ND BROTHER.

But she has no breasts !

1ST BROTHER.

What shall we do with our sister,
 At the time when her growth is complete ?

2ND BROTHER. 9

If she is as hard as a wall
 We will build on her turrets of silver;—
 But if a swing-door,—
 Will deck her with panels of cedar !

SCENE 5.

(The SHEPHERDESS, who has overheard them, comes on the scene with her lover, the SHEPHERD, and contemptuously exclaims to the two mercenary clowns, pointing to her lover :)

SHEPHERDESS.

I am a Wall !—And have breasts !
 Like two strong towers I shall be in his eyes, 10

Who secures my place!—

Solomon's farm is Bal-hamon,— 11

Give that farm to its tenants!

Each brings a thousand in silver as rent,—

My farm is myself,—to be plain,— 12

For you, Solomon,—there is the thousand;—

To the tenants two hundred for rents!

(SOLOMON giving the SHEPHERDESS to her lover replies :)— 13

SOLOMON.

You are married, fair dweller in Gardens;—

Your companions can hear;

I, Myself, have proclaimed it!

Go away with your love, and be like a Gazelle, 14

Or the Fawn of the Deer, on the sweet-scented hills!

THE END OF THE SONG OF SONGS.

THE BOOK OF RUTH.

Naomi goes to Moab.

- 1 IT was in the time when the Judges Ruled, that there came a famine in the land, and a man of Beth-lehem-judah went to stay in the plains of Moab, with his wife and two sons.
- 2 The man's name was Elimelekh, and his wife's name Naomi, and the names of his two sons were Mahlon and Khilion, Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah. These went to the plain of Moab and remained there.
- 3 Elimelekh, the husband of Naomi died, however, and left her with her
- 4 two sons, who took Moabitesses as wives for themselves; the name of one was Orpah, and of the other Ruth, and they resided there ten years. Both of them then died,—Mahlon and Khilion,—so the woman was deprived of
- 6 her two sons and her husband. She consequently arose with her daughters-in-law, and left the plain of Moab, that the EVER-LIVING had visited His people, and given them
- 7 bread. So she went out of the village where she had stayed, and her two daughters-in-law with her, and proceeded on her journey to return to the
- 8 land of Judah. Naomi, however, said to her two daughters-in-law,
- “Go! return each of you to her mother's home. May the EVER-LIVING show you the kindness that you showed to the dead, and to me!
- 9 May the EVER-LIVING grant you to find happiness, each in the home of her Husband.” Then she kissed them, and lifted up her voice and wept.
- 10 But they replied to her, “Why should we not go back with you to your own people?”
- 11 Naomi, however, answered, “Turn back, my girls!—Why should you go with me? Are there any sons in my breast, who could become husbands to you? Go back, my girls, therefore, for I am too old to have a husband! Even if I should say I hope for one,—if I should have a husband to-night, and
- 13 sons should be born to me, would you separate yourselves until they were grown up? Would you remain without having a man?—No! my girls. Altho' it is more bitter for me than for you;—for the hand of the LORD has come upon me!”

Then they lifted up their voices and wept again; and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law,—but Ruth clung to her! But she said, “Look! return with your sister-in-law to her people, and her GOD,—turn back after your sister-in-law.”

Ruth, however, answered, “Do not entreat me to leave you, or to turn back from you. For wherever you go, I will go; and where you lodge, I will lodge; your people shall be my people, and your GOD my GOD! Wherever you die I will die; and there I will be buried!—The EVER-LIVING do this to me, and more than this,—if anything but death shall part between me and you!”

When she saw that she was decided to go with her, she ceased to persuade her, and both of them went to travel to Beth-lehem; and when they arrived at Beth-lehem, the village was excited about them, and they asked, “Is not this Naomi?”

But she replied, “Call me not Naomi (Pleasantness), for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me! I went away full, and the EVER-LIVING has returned me empty!—Why should you call me Pleasantness when the LORD has spoken against me, and the ALMIGHTY wronged me?” So Naomi returned and her daughter-in-law Ruth, the Moabitess with her, when she came back from the plain of Moab, and came to Beth-lehem, at the beginning of the barley harvest.

Boaz meets Ruth Gleaning.

But Naomi had a relative of her husband, a very rich man, of the family of Elimelekh, whose name was Boaz. And Ruth, the Moabitess, once said to Naomi, “I will go out into the field, and glean amongst the sheaves, after whoever I may, in whose eyes I find kindness." And she replied, "Go my girl."

3 So she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers, and she happened to alight on that part of the plain belonging to Boaz, of the family of Elimelekh! And Boaz also came out from Beth-lehem, and said to the reapers, "The EVER-LIVING be with you!" and they replied to him, "The EVER-LIVING bless you!"

5 Then Boaz asked his Steward whom he had appointed over the reapers, "Whose girl is this?"

6 And the foreman of the reapers replied, and said, "She is a Moabitess, who resided with Naomi in the plain of Moab, and she asked, 'May I glean, please,—and gather after the reapers among the sheaves?' So she came, and has gleaned since this morning till now,—except that she returned a while to her home."

8 Then Boaz said to Ruth, "Do you not hear my child? Go not to another part of the plain, nor retire from here, but keep along with my own girls. Watch for the field where they reap, and go after them. Have I not commanded the young men not to touch you? And when you are thirsty go to the buckets and drink what the young men have drawn."

10 Then she inclined her face, and bowed earthward, and asked him, "Why have I found favour in your eyes? for you to attend to me, when I am a foreigner?"

11 But Boaz replied and asked her, "Tell me all that you have done for your mother-in-law, after the death of your husband,—when you abandoned your father and mother, and country to go, and travel to a people whom you did not know formerly?"

12 May the EVER-LIVING reward your act! And may the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel pay you well, since you came to shelter under his canopy!"

13 And she answered, "I have found favour in your sight, sir,—for you have comforted me. And you have spoken to the heart of your servant, altho' I am not one of your servants."

14 Then Boaz said to her;—"At dinner time go along with them and eat of the food, and dip your morsel in the wine."

So she sat beside the reapers, and he handed her oatcake, and she ate, and was satisfied, and left some of it! Then she arose to glean, and 15 Boaz ordered his men saying;

"Let her even glean amongst the stalks, and do not insult her. And 16 also pull some out from the sheaves and drop, that she may glean it, and find no fault with her":

She consequently gleaned in the 17 field till dusk, and beat out what she had gleaned, and it was an Ephah of barley. Then she took it up, and 18 went to the village, and showed her mother-in-law what she had gleaned. Then she brought out, and gave to her what she had left after herself had dined.

Her mother-in-law consequently 19 asked her, "Where have you gleaned to-day, and what have you done? May whoever noticed you be blest!"

So she informed her mother-in-law who had done it for her, and she said, "The name of the man who was kind to me to-day is Boaz!"

Then Naomi exclaimed, "May he 20 be completely blest by the EVER-LIVING for he has not ceased his kindness to the living or to the dead!" —Naomi also said to her, "That man is related to us,—he can restore us!"

Then Ruth the Moabitess added, 21 "Yes! For he also said to me, 'You must keep with my servants to the end of the whole harvest that I have!'"

Naomi then replied to Ruth, "That 22 is right, my girl—so go along with his girls, and let no one find you in another field."

So she kept with the girls of Boaz 23 to glean until the end of the barley harvest, and wheat harvest, and resided with her mother-in-law.

Naomi determines to marry Ruth to Boaz.

Then her mother-in-law Naomi 3 said to her,— "My girl, ought I not to seek a resting place for you, that may benefit you? So, now, is there 2 not Boaz, our relative, with whose girls you have been?—Look,—he is winnowing the barley at his barn to-night, therefore bathe yourself, and 3 tidy, and put your cloak on you, and go down to the barn. But do not let the man know of you until he is full of victuals and drink. But when he 4 lies down, then ascertain the apartment where he reclines, and go and uncover his feet and lie down,—when he will tell you what to do."

- 5 And she answered, "All that you have said I will do."
- 6 So she went down to the barn, and did all that her mother-in-law ordered.
- 7 And Boaz ate and drank and rejoiced his heart;—then went to lie down in the lodge of the grainery, when she came quietly and uncovered 8 his feet and lay down. And it happened at midnight, that the man was startled, and turned over, and found 9 a woman lying beside him!—and asked, "Who are you?" When she replied, "I am Ruth, your servant. Therefore spread your cloak over your servant, for you are the Restorer!"¹
- 10 And he replied, "The EVER-LIVING bless you, my girl!—You have given more kindness at the last than at the first! For you have not gone after young fellows, whether poor or rich! 11 But now, my girl, do not be afraid; all that you have asked me, I will do for you; for all the Circle of my people know you are a virtuous 12 woman. But now for the fact;—I am a near relative myself; yet there is a nearer Redeemptor than I.— 13 Stay here to-night, and when the morning comes, if he will redeem for you, good. But if he is not pleased to redeem your property, then I myself will redeem it for you. Lie with me till morning."
- 14 She consequently lay along with him until morning, but got up before one could distinguish his companion. And he said to her, "Do not let it be known that a woman came to the barn."
- 15 He also said, "Bring the wrapper that was on you, and hold it." So she held it, and he measured six measures, and lifted it on to her, and 16 she went to the village, and came to her mother-in-law, who asked her "What do you bring, my girl?" When she reported all that the man did to her, and said, "He gave me these six measures of barley, for," he said, "you shall not go empty to your mother-in-law."
- 18 And she replied, "Be quiet, my girl; wait until you know what will happen;—for the man will not rest to-day till he has finished the affair."

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 3, v. 9. "THE RESTORER," the next of kin to her husband, who by Hebrew Law was obliged to marry her and redeem her late husband's estate if mortgaged, as this seems to have been.—F. F.

Boaz Publicly states he will Redeem Ruth's Estate.

Boaz, however, went up to the Gate 4 and sat there. And saw the nearer relative, of whom Boaz had spoken, pass, and exclaimed, "Come here! Sit down here,—you, sir!" So he turned and sat down.

Then he summoned Ten of the 2 Elders of the village, and said, "Sit here!" And they sat down. When 3 he said to the redeemptor;—"There is that part of our Estate, what belonged to Elimelekh, that Naomi, who has resided in the plain of Moab wishes to sell, so I have spoken 4 openly to your ears to advise you to buy it, in the presence of these men, and before the elders of my people. If you wish to redeem it,—redeem it. But if you will not redeem it, inform me; for there is no one to redeem it except yourself,—and I am after you." And he replied, "I will redeem it!"

But Boaz answered;—"On the day 5 that you purchase the estate from the hand of Naomi, you must buy it also from Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead man, to raise up a name for the dead on the property!"

Then the next of kin said;—"I am 6 not able to purchase it by myself, lest I should injure my own property. You can purchase my right for yourself;—for I am unable to claim it."

Now this was the custom in Israel 7 about purchases and about transfers, to confirm any event,—a man took off his shoe and gave it to his friend;—and that was an attestation in Israel. So when the next of kin said to Boaz, 8 "Buy it for yourself," he slipped off his shoe, and Boaz said to the Elders, 9 and to all the people, "You are witnesses to-day that I have bought all that belonged to Elimelekh, and the whole that belonged to Khilion and Mahlon, from the hand of Naomi? And also Ruth, the Moabitess, the 10 wife of Mahlon, I have bought for myself as a wife to raise up a name for the dead upon his estate, so that the name of the dead may not be cut off from the gate of his Home:—As you witness to-day!"

When all the people at the Gate 11 and the Elders replied, "We are witnesses!—The EVER-LIVING grant that the wife who comes to your house may be like Rachel and Leah, which two built up the house of

- Israel, and make wealth in Ephrathah, and a celebrated name, in Beth-lehem.
- 12 And may your house be like the house of Pharez, whom Tamar bore to Judah. So may the heir be whom the LORD may give you from this young woman."
- 13 Then Boaz took Ruth the Moabitess, and she became his wife, and he went to her, and the EVER-LIVING gave her conception, and she bore a son.
- 14 Then the women said to Naomi, "Thank the EVER-LIVING who has not left you to-day without a relative! So let his name be celebrated in Israel! For he has been to you a restorer of life, and a supporter of your old age, on account of your - daughter-in-law who loves you, who is better to you than seven sons."
- Naomi also took the lad and laid him on her lap, and was a nurse to him, and her woman friends collected to her and said, "There is a son born for Naomi," and chose Obed¹ for his name. He was the ancestor of Jessai, the father of David.
- And this was the pedigree from Pharez;—Pharez begat Hezron; and Hezron begat Ram; and Ram begat Amminadab; and Amminadab begat Nahshon; and Nahshon begat Salmon; and Salmon begat Boaz; and Boaz begat Obed; and Obed begat Jessai; and Jessai begat David.

END OF THE BOOK OF RUTH.

THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH.

LAMENT I

Zion's Ruin.

STANZA 1.

1 Why sits the populous City in solitude?
The Great among Nations become like a widow?
The Princess of Countries reduced to pay tribute,—
2 And weeps in the night, with the tears on her cheeks?—
There is none to give comfort, of all that have loved her,—
Her friends all deceived her, they were to her traitors!

STANZA 2.

3 Judah is captive to grief and hard slavery;
She dwells with the heathen and cannot find rest;
All her lovers look at her enclosed by besiegers.
4 Zion's streets mourn, for none come up to worship;
All her gateways are empty, her Priesthood is sobbing;
Her maids are afflicted, herself in distress!

STANZA 3.

5 Her foes are supreme and her enemies prosper!—
For the LORD has distressed her for manifold sins.
Her children march captives before their tormentors!—
6 All beauty has gone from the daughter of Zion.
Her princes are wild deer who cannot find pasture,—
They run without strength from the face of the hunter.

STANZA 4.

7 Jerusalem thinks in her misery, and wandering,
Of all pleasures that were in the preceding times,
Ere her weak people fell to the hand of a rival,—
And tormentors look on her, and laugh at her capture.

STANZA 5.

8 Jerusalem sinned,—sinned,—so goes into exile;
All who honoured, despise her, from seeing her stripped;—
Therefore she is sobbing, and turns herself lingering,
9 She defiled all her garments, nor thought not of results,
And falls in her sorrows with no one to cheer her.
"Look, LORD, on my griefs, for my enemy prospers;"—

STANZA 6.

10 How her tyrant has laid hands on all her delights!
She sees that the Heathen have entered her Temple,—
Tho' you ordered them never to enter Your court!
11 All her people are moaning and begging their bread;
Give their treasures for food to sustain them in life!
"Look, O LORD, and assist, for I have become faint."

STANZA 7.

" Is it nothing to you who pass by on the road?— 12
 Look and see!—Is there sorrow that equals my anguish?
 Whose wound the LORD galled in the day of His wrath?
 From above He sent fire on my bones and reduced them; 13
 Spread a net for my feet and threw down on my back;
 I was given to wasting and sickness all day.

STANZA 8.

" His hand has wreathed and locked my sin's yoke on my neck, 14
 My strength fails;—the LORD gives to unbearable hands,—
 All my heroes the LORD has destroyed in my breast; 15
 He summoned a meeting to break all my warriors!
 The LORD treads in a press the young daughters of Judah!—
 For these I am weeping, my eyes flow with water,— 16
 For the comfort is gone that refreshed my life,—
 For my children were lost, when the enemy wou!"

STANZA 9.

Zion spreads out her hands, but yet none give her comfort; 17
 And the LORD has arranged Jacob's tyrants around!
 Amongst them Jerusalem comes to be flouted,—
 " Yet JEHOVAH is right! I rejected His orders!— 18
 Hear, now, all the Nations, and look on my woes,—
 For my girls and my boys are all taken as slaves!

STANZA 10.

" I called to my lovers, but they have deceived me!— 19
 My Priests and my Rulers expired in the City.
 While seeking for food to sustain them in life!
 Look, LORD, for I grieve, and my bowels are tortured, 20
 My heart turns in my breast, for it mourns my rebellion;
 In the street the Sword slaughters;—at home it is Death!

STANZA 11.

" They hear that I sob, and I am without comfort;— 21
 All my foes hear my wrong,—they are glad You have done it!
 Bring the day You proclaimed,—and let them be like me!
 Bring all their wrong-doing before You and wound them,
 In the way that You wounded myself for my sins,—
 For my sobbings are great, and my heart is depressed."

LAMENT 2.

An Appeal to God's Mercy.

STANZA 1.

Why wraps the LORD Zion's daughter in cloud in His anger? 2
 Why throws Israel's beauty from heaven to earth?
 Nor His footstool regards in the day of His wrath?
 The LORD swallowed all Jacob's fields without pity; 2
 Broke down in His fury the forts of Bath-Judah;
 And flung to earth wounded her kingdom and princes!
 Cut off in fierce anger the strong horn of Israel; 3
 His hand has withdrawn from the face of the foe;
 Burnt Jacob, like flame that devours around,
 Bent His bow like a foe, fixed His hand as opponent, 4
 And slew all the loved in the halls of Bath-Zion,
 And poured out His fury like fire!

STANZA 2.

- 5 The LORD came like a foeman ; He swallowed up Israel ;
 He swallowed her Mansions, destroyed all her Strongholds,
 And loaded Bath-Judah with mourning on mourning!—
 6 Shakes His tent like a garden,—His chosen home ruins!
 The LORD banished from Zion the Feast and the Sabbath,
 And degraded in anger the King and the priest!
 7 The LORD loathes His altar, retires from His temple,
 And His Palace-walls gives to the power of her foes
 Who roar in the House of the LORD like a feast day!

STANZA 3.

- 8 The LORD planned to destruction the walls of Bath-Zion, Stretched the line, nor will turn back his hand from the wreck ;
 The rampart and wall weep together, and languish,
 9 With smashed bars her ruined gates fall to the earth,—
 And her Princes and King are amongst lawless heathens,
 And her preachers no more from the LORD find a vision,
 10 And Bath-Zion's rulers are on the earth speechless;—
 They throw dust on their heads, and their garments are sacks,
 And Jerusalem's maidens to earth bow their heads!

STANZA 4

- 11 Mine eyes fail with tears, and my feelings are troubled,
 And my pride falls to earth, with the wound of my People,
 While child and babe faint in streets of the City,
 12 And entreat of their mothers for corn and for wine ;—
 When they faint, like the slain, on the City's wide streets,
 Or their life is poured out on their sad mothers' lap!

STANZA 5.

- 13 How portray, or depict you, Jerusalem's daughter ?
 How liken, to comfort you, maiden of Zion ?
 For deep as the sea is your wound,—Who can cure you?—
 14 Your Preachers present you with fable and falsehood,
 And display not your vice, nor can keep you from chains,—
 But show to you visions of lying seductions!

STANZA 6.

- 15 At you, they will clap hands, all who pass on the road ;
 Hiss, shaking their heads, at Jerusalem's daughter ;—
 " Was this she they called the perfection of beauty ?
 The delight for all earth ? "
 16 Against you all your enemies open their mouth,
 Grind their teeth, hiss, and say,—“ We have swallowed her down—
 We have seen and have found the day that we had hoped ! ”

STANZA 7.

- 17 The LORD has effected His purpose completely ;
 The intent that He threatened in days long ago ;—
 Thrown down, and not pitied ; your foes gloat above you ;—
 And your tyrants can lift up their horn over you!

LAMENT 3.

An Appal to Zion to Repent.

STANZA 1.

- 18 Walls of Zion ! cry heartily to the ALMIGHTY,
 Pour your tears like a river, by day and by night !
 Give no rest to yourself and no sleep to your eyeballs !

Arise! shout by night to the chief of the watchers,—
 Pour your heart like a stream, let it flow to the Master,—
 Lift to Him your hands for the life of your children,
 Who are fainting for want at the head of the streets! 19

STANZA 2.

Look, LORD, and reflect upon whom You have done this! 20
 Shall wives eat their offspring? The infants they dandled?
 Or the Priest and the Preacher, be slain in GOD'S Temple?
 On the earth of the streets lie the young and the old?— 21
 You have slain the young girls and young men by the sword,—
 In the day of Your anger You slaughtered unsparring!
 You called like a meeting my terrors around me, 22
 And there was in that day from the LORD'S wrath no flight,
 But my foe shamed my girls, and the darlings I dandled.

LAMENT 4.

The Prophet bewails his own Sufferings.

STANZA 1.

I am the man, who felt pain from the rod of His anger!— 3
 He drove me, and led into Darkness, not light! 2
 Yes, he turned me, and struck with His hand all the day, 3
 Wore my flesh, and my skin, and has broken my bones,— 4
 Built above, and has struck on my head and exhausted! 5
 I have dwelt in Forgottenness, like the long dead,— 6
 I am bound and I cannot escape from my chain! 7

STANZA 2.

When I cry, and I shout, He is deaf to my prayer! 8
 As with stones blocks my road,—and has puzzled my path! 9
 Is a night bear to me,—and a lion in hiding, 10
 He has damaged my road, and has broke and left lonely; 11
 Bent His bow, and set me as a mark for His dart; 12
 Has sent to my loins the sons of His quiver; 13
 Made a scorn to my people, their song all the day. 14
 He filled me with bitters, He sated with wormwood; 15
 My teeth broke with gravel, and covered with ashes; 16
 He removed me from peace;—so my life forgot ease, 17
 And I said, "My strength fails, and my trust in the LORD!— 18
 I feel my affliction, and wormwood, and gall!"— 19
 Think, think, and reflect upon me and my life!— 20
 But I place this to heart, and I therefore have hope,— 21
 That the LORD'S mercies end not, nor finish His pities;— 22
 They are new every morning,—Your manifold gifts! 23
 "The LORD is my portion," my soul says, "I trust Him." 24

STANZA 3.

The LORD blesses the hopeful, the soul that will seek Him; 25
 It is well to wait still for JEHOVAH'S salvation; 26
 It is well that a man bear the yoke in his youth; 27
 Sit alone and is silent, for He put it on him; 28
 Place his mouth to the dust, for perhaps there is hope! 29
 Give his cheek to the smiter, be filled with reproaches; 30
 For the MASTER will not cast for ever away! 31
 Though correcting, He still has great pity and mercy;— 32
 Does not His heart grieve, when correcting the children of men? 33

STANZA 4.

34 To crush under one's feet all those chained to the earth, 35 To distort a man's right in the face of the Highest,
 36 To pervert a man's cause, the LORD never approves.—
 37 Who speaks, and it comes, when the LORD has not ordered?—
 38 Both bad and good came from the mouth of the Highest.

STANZA 5.

THE LORD'S REPLY.

39 "Why complain men of pain? Men who live in their sins?
 40 Search your ways, and repent, and turn back to the LORD,— 41 Lift your hearts, not your hands, to the GOD in the Heavens!"

THE PROPHET'S RESPONSE.

42 "We have sinned and have sorrowed; but You have not pardoned;—
 43 Clothed in fury, You followed, and slew without pity;
 44 You go clothed in a cloud that our prayer cannot cross.—
 45 You make us the rubbish and refuse of Nations!

STANZA 6.

46 "All our enemies open upon us their mouths,
 47 Ours Fear and the Pit, and betrayal and breaking!
 48 My eyes flow like brooks at the wreck of my People;—
 49 Mine eyes flow without resting and will not leave off,
 50 Until the LORD looks down and sees it from Heaven,
 51 Mine eye wounds my soul for the girls of my City!

STANZA 7.

52 Without cause, I was chased like a bird by my foes,
 53 My life shut in a dungeon, with stone laid above;—
 54 Waters flowed on my head, and I cried "I am doomed!"
 55 LORD, I then called Your Name, from the nethermost dungeon,
 56 And Your ear heard my voice, and with pleasure my shriek.
 57 You approached when I called,—and said to me, "Fear not!"
 58 LORD, You pleaded my cause, and gave my body life!
 59 You said I was wronged, LORD, and granted acquittal;
 60 You saw all their malice and plottings against me;
 61 You heard their abuse, LORD, against me conspiring,
 62 My foes' lips, and contrivance against me all day;
 63 Saw that sitting and rising, I still was their song!—
 64 What their own hands have made, LORD, return as their pay, 65 Give them blindfolded minds, as Your curse in themselves!
 66 LORD, chase them in anger, and sweep them from under the sky!

LAMENT 5.

An Elegy on Zion.

STANZA 1.

4 How the bright gold is tarnished!
 The beautiful sculptures flung down!
 The fair stones at the top of the streets!

STANZA 2.

2 Sons of Zion, the precious, the equal to gold,
 Are esteemed but as pitchers, the work of a potter!—
 3 Wild beasts draw the breast,—they give suck to their young;—
 But our mothers are hard, like the birds of the Desert!
 4 So their infant's tongue sticks to its palate for thirst!—
 The children ask bread, but they cannot obtain it;—

Those who fed upon dainties, are starved in the streets;— 5
 Those who were wrapped in purple, now lie upon dunghills,—
 For the woe of my People is greater than Sodom's, 6
 That perished at once, with no torture upon her!

STANZA 3.

Bright as snow were her Nazarites,—whiter than milk! 7
 Red as coral their faces, as polished as sapphires;—
 Now their form is black darkness,—not known in the streets,— 8
 Their skin cleaves to their bones, it is dry as a stick!
 The slain by the sword, excel those slain by hunger;— 9
 Who waste, stabbed by want of the fruits of the field!
 The hands of kind mothers are boiling their children, 10
 They are their only food in the wreck of my Race!
 The LORD works His fury, pours out His fierce anger,— 11
 Lights a fire in Zion that burns her foundations!

STANZA 4.

The Kings of earth thought not, nor all the world's people, 12
 That her fierce foes could enter Jerusalem's Gates;
 For the sins of her Preachers, the crimes of her Priesthood, 13
 Who shed in her centre the blood of the Righteous,
 Who with their eyes torn out, reel blood-splashed in her streets, 14
 That no one is able to touch to their clothing.
 All exclaim, "Go! Unclean! Go!—Go!—Do not touch us!"— 15
 When flying they wander, they say in the heathen,—
 "They shall not stay here!"

STANZA 5.

The LORD turns from their part, He will no more regard them. 16
 Accepts not their Priests, and respects not their elders.
 Our eyes failed with watching for those who could help us, 17
 And we trusted a Nation who never could save!
 They step on our footmarks when walking our pathways! 18
 Our end comes!—the time fills!—Our harvest is with us!
 Our hunters are swifter than sky-flying Eagles;— 19
 On the mountains they pounce, in the Desert they wait!
 Took from the LORD'S Chosen the breath and the life,— 20
 In whose shade, we had said, we can rest from the heathen!

STANZA 6.

I am glad, O Bath-Edom, you traitor of Autzland, 21
 Next to you the cup goes;—you will drink and will stagger!
 Your woe ends, Bath-Zion,—no more to be captured;— 22
 Your grief comes, Edom's Daughter;—your sins are exposed!

LAMENT 6.

A Plea for Judah.

STANZA 1.

Think, LORD, about what has come on us, 5
 Attend, and regard our reproach!
 Our lands are transferred to the stranger, 2
 To the foreign our houses belong!
 We are become fatherless orphans, 3
 And widows our mothers are now!
 We drink our own water for money, 4
 Our own fuel comes to us for price.
 Upon our necks are our hunters; 5
 We are wearied, and may not have rest!

STANZA 2.

6 We gave our hand to the Mitzraim,
 We satisfied Ashur with bread ;—
 7 Our fathers have sinned, and are not ;—
 Yet we, ourselves, carry their sins !—
 8 They were slaves who now over us rule,
 There is none to release from their hands !

STANZA 3.

9 We bring in our bread by our lives,
 In the face of the sword, from the plain,
 10 Our skin is as hot as a kiln,
 For the fever of famine consumes !
 11 They have ravished the women in Zion,
 And in Judah's Cities the maids !
 12 The Princes are hung by their hands ;—
 To the Elders they pay no respect !
 13 The young men do work at the Mill,
 And the children are loaded with wood !

STANZA 4.

14 The Elders have ceased from the gate,
 And the youthful abandon their songs !
 15 Our heart has left off from its glee,
 Into mourning our dance has been turned 16 The wreath has fallen off from our head ;—
 Alas for us !—because we had sinned.
 17 Through that our heart has turned fain
 For that has our sight become blind.—
 18 Desolation now sits on Zion's hill ;
 And Jackals are prowling around !

THE ENVOY.

A Prayer for Pardon.

19 O LORD ! You endure for ever
 Your Throne is for age after age,
 20 Then will You forget us for ever ?
 Or abandon for long lapse of time ?
 21 O turn us back, LORD, and we shall be turned,
 And renew our days as of old ;
 22 For if You should wholly reject,
 Your anger would rise to excess !

THE END OF THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH.

ECCLESIASTES, OR THE PREACHER.

BOOK THE FIRST.

1 THE SERMONS OF THE PREACHER, THE SON OF DAVID, THE KING, IN JERUSALEM.

INTRODUCTORY DISCOURSE.

LECTURE I.

On the Pursuit of Knowledge.

- 2 VANITY of Vanities! says the Preacher; Vanity of Vanities, all is vanity!
- 3 What remains to a man from all the work that he does under the sun?
- 4 A generation comes, and a generation goes, but the earth endures for ever!
- 5 And the Sun rises, and the Sun sets;
and when the breeze of morn arises
there he is!
- 6 The Wind travels to the South, and revolves towards the North, travelling in circles; and in its revolutions returns to its place of origin!
- 7 All rivers run to the Sea, but the Sea is not full. To that place from which the rivers came, there they return in due course!
- 8 All language is feeble;—a man cannot utter himself!—The sight is not satiated by seeing; and the ear is not filled by hearing!
- 9 What has been,—that will be; and what has been done, will be done;—
for there is nothing new under the sun! If it is ever said, "See! This is new!" It has often been in former 11 times that were before us. For there is no record of past events, and there will be none of future ones, for them to be remembered by those who are still more future

The Pursuit of Knowledge.

The Preacher Declares who he is.

I, the Preacher, was king over 12
Israel in Jerusalem, and I devoted 13 my mind to investigation, and to scientific Research, over everything that occurs under the skies.—It is a difficult exercise which GOD has imposed upon the sons of Adam, to develop themselves by it.—I 14 examined all the things which they produced under the skies, and saw that all was vanity and vexation of spirit! The crooked could not be 15 straightened; and the wrong could not be righted. So I said to my 16 heart,—and said to myself,—I have enlarged and extended science beyond all who were before me in Jerusalem; and my mind has examined the result of Science, and Knowledge; I also 17 gave my mind to the investigation of Science, and the investigation of Madness and Folly. I learnt that their pursuit was feeding on wind!—
Science is a great grief; and whoever increases Knowledge increases sorrow!

LECTURE 2.

On the Pursuit of Happiness.

I consequently said to my heart, 2
"Come, now, I will try you with pleasure, and seek happiness."—But

I discovered that, also, was vanity.
 2 I said of laughter, it is mad;—and of mirth,—what does it accomplish?
 3 I intentionally tried to embolden my body by wine,—with my intellect
 4 scientifically guiding me,—and to seize upon folly until I could discover what was best for the children of Adam to do under the sun, for the number of the days they lived?
 5 I extended my operations,—I built myself houses; I planted myself vineyards; I made gardens and parks; and planted in them all kinds of fruit
 6 trees. I made myself pools and brooks, to water from them a forest of shadowy
 7 trees. I purchased men and women servants, and they had children in my house. I also had herds of cattle and great flocks,—more than all who were 8 before me in Jerusalem,—I accumulated for myself silver and gold, and royal treasures from my provinces. I had men and women singers trained for myself, with men and women waiters,—the luxuries of the sons of 9 Adam. Thus I enlarged and increased myself more than all that were before me in Jerusalem.—My scientific idea,
 10 however, remained with me.—But anything that my eyes demanded I withheld not from them; nor did I restrain my heart from any pleasure; for my heart rejoiced in all my endeavours;—and that was my reward for all my efforts.
 11 But when I reflected on all the work that my hands had done, and all the things I had striven to accomplish,—then I saw they were vanity of vanity, and vexation of spirit! and they had no result under the sun!
 12 Then I reflected, and examined my Science, and Madness, and Folly!—And what kind of man would succeed the King? With what he 13 might be able to do?—Then I saw that there is a result to Science, more than to Ignorance, as there is a result to Light, more than to Dark-14 ness,—For the eyes of the Instructed are in his head;—the Ignorant goes in Darkness;—but yet I perceived myself also, that one event happens to all of them.

So I said to my heart, "As it happens to the Ignorant, so it will also happen to me!—Then why am I more instructed than the rest?—So I said in my mind that also is useless! for there is no more remembrance of the Instructed than of the Ignorant in the grave for ever! In the times to come, all will be forgotten! For does not the Instructed die like the Ignorant?"

Therefore I hated life! since all the work I had done under the sun was a grief to me! For it was utterly useless, and a vexation of spirit. I also hated all my works,—that I had striven for under the sun, for I must leave them to the man after me; and who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will rule over all the things for which I have laboured, and the result of my science under the sun!—That also is vanity!

So I abandoned my mind to despair over all the objects I had attempted under the sun. For a man may work with science, and knowledge, and skill,—but must leave the result to a man who has not earned it! That, also, is vanity, and a great grief!—For what continues to a man from all his endeavours, and from all the efforts of his mind, that he has striven for, under the sun?—Where all his days are griefs, and his efforts sorrows, and his mind does not rest at night!—This also is vanity!

There is no benefit to a man to eat and drink and let his mind expect pleasure from his labour.—Yet I myself saw that this comes from the hand of GOD Himself.—For who could eat, and who excite himself more than I?—For to the man who pleases HIM, He gives science, and knowledge and pleasure; but to the offender He gives the trouble to gather and accumulate, to give the product to the pleasing before GOD.—This, however, is vanity, and vexation of spirit!

LECTURE 3.

On the Regular Periodicity of the Falls of Existence.

- 3 There is a period for every purpose,
 And for every desire under the sun.
 2 A time for birth, and a time for death;
 A time to plant, and a time to uproot;
 3 A time to wound, and a time to cure

- 4 A time to pull down, and a time to build;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh;
A time to mourn, and a time to dance!
- 5 A time to pick stones, and a time to cast out;
A time to fold hands, and a time to unfold;
- 6 A time to seek, and a time to lose;
A time to hoard, and a time to spend,
- 7 A time to tear, and a time to mend;
A time to be dumb, and a time to speak;
- 8 A time to love, and a time to hate;
A time for war, and a time for peace!

9 Yet what remains as the product,
10 for which they are done? I have examined the endeavours that GOD has appointed for the children of Adam by which to develop them-
11 selves.—He has made everything beautiful in its season. He has also placed Eternity in their minds, with the intention that man should never discover, from beginning to end, the complete Creation which GOD has 12 made.—I consequently learnt that there is nothing better for them, than to be glad, and do good in their 13 lives; and also for all men to eat and drink and experience pleasure in all the labours GOD has given to them.

14 I have learnt, that whatever GOD has made, that will endure for ever. There is no adding to it,—and there is no taking from it,—and that GOD'S Creation is wonderful, next to Him-
15 self. (What was produced formerly exists, and what was formerly will come again; for GOD attends to its course)

16 And, further, I observed under the sun, that on the Seat of JUSTICE there was VILLAINY, and on the seat of RIGHTEOUSNESS,—WICKED-
17 NESS! But I said to my heart, GOD will judge both Righteousness and Wickedness,—for there is a time for every purpose under the sun, and for all that is created there.

18 I reflected in my mind about the affairs of the sons of Adam;—which are that GOD intends to try them, to show they are, by themselves, mere 19 animals. For one event is for the sons of Adam, and one event for the animals;—and the one event that is to them is;—as these die, so those die; and the same breath is to all;—and man dies the same as the cattle! Is not the whole vanity?
20 The whole go to one place; the whole come from dust; and the 21 whole return to the dust. Who knows that the breath of the sons of Adam when it goes, ascends? and that the breath of the cattle, when it goes down, departs to the earth?—

Then I perceived there is nothing ²² better than that a man should rejoice in his works,—for that is his reward; for who can bring him to examine as to what may be after him?

LECTURE 4.

On Misgovernment.

I have applied myself and examined ⁴ into all the wrongs that are done under the sun; and I have seen the tears of the oppressed, and they had no consolation;—for Power was in the hands of their Oppressors!—so they had no consolation. Therefore ² I congratulated the Dead, who died in the past, more than the living who are still alive.—But, better than ³ either is he who has not come to sensation;—who has not seen in Creation the suffering that is produced under the sun!

I also turned and examined all ⁴ toil, and all the success produced by it;—that a man is envied for it by his neighbour. So it is also vanity and vexation of spirit! Yet the idler ⁵ folds his hands and eats his own flesh! —Yet a handful with quietness is ⁶ better than both hands full with anxiety and vexation of spirit!

Then I turned to examine this ⁷ vanity under the sun.—There may be a solitary without a companion; who possesses neither a son nor brother, yet there is no end to all his anxiety; nor are his eyes satiated with wealth;—nor does he ask, "For whom do I toil and deprive my life of enjoyment?" This also is vanity and a grievous trouble!

Two are better than one,—for there ⁹ is a better reward to them for work. And if the one falls his companion ¹⁰ can lift him up; but alas! for one

11 who falls when there is not another to help him to rise! Then if two lie together they will be warm; but if there is only one, where is the 12 warmth? And one may be defeated, where two associated could stand, and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

13 A poor and instructed youth is preferable to an ignorant and old king, who will never learn intelligence;—
14 who brings men from the house of a slave-dealer to govern;—whilst those born in his kingdom he brings to poverty!

15 I compared the whole of the living that walk under the sun with the next 16 generation coming after them.—There is no end to all the people,—to all who have been formerly,—yet their successors will not be cheered by it.
—So this, is vanity and vexation of spirit!

LECTURE 5.

On Reverence in the Worship of God.

17 Guard your foot when you go to the House of GOD, and approach to listen, rather than to offer the sacrifice of fools, for they do not understand that they do wrong.

5 Be not in a hurry with your mouth and your heart. Hasten not to pour out speech before GOD,—for GOD is in Heaven and you upon the Earth,
—therefore let your words be few,
2 for the dream comes from many anxieties, and a fool's voice with many words.

3 When you vow a gift to GOD, delay not to pay it,—for He is not pleased with evasions.—Do what you have 4 promised.—It is better not to promise, than to be promising and not performing. Do not allow your mouth to cause yourself to offend;—and do not say to the Messenger that it was a mistake.—Why should GOD be angered by your voice, and injure the 6 work of your hands? For in many dreams there are delusions and many readings. Therefore reverence GOD.

7 If you see oppression of the poor, and distortion of justice and right in a Province, do not be surprised at the perversion, for a higher than the highest watches,—and a Higher than 8 them.—Yet the most excellent thing of all for a land is a King who is the Servant of his Country!

LECTURE 6.

On Avarice.

The love of money will never be 9 satisfied with money;—nor he who loves wealth by its increase. That also is vanity. When wealth increases 10 the consumers increase.—Then what benefit to its possessor?—except to look on it with his eyes? The 11 labourer's sleep is sweet, whether he eats little or much; but the excess of the rich does not allow him to sleep.

There is a distressing misery I have 12 seen under the sun;—wealth kept to the injury of its possessor;—And that 13 wealth perishing by an unfortunate accident;—when he has begot a son, and he possesses nothing! As he 14 comes naked from his mother's womb, he will turn to depart as he came, and he takes away nothing for all his labour to carry in his hand.—Yes! this also 15 is a grievous misery all bear,—that as they came, so they go,—and what continues is vexation of spirit. He 16 also eats all his days in darkness, and much anxiety, sickness, and vexation.
—Therefore, what I myself have con- 17 cluded to be good and pleasant is, to eat and drink, and to see pleasure in all one's efforts that one attempts under the sun, for the number of the days that GOD gives to us;—for that is one's lot. Also that every man to 18 whom GOD has given wealth, and treasures, and power, should taste of them, and enjoy his lot, and take pleasure in whatever work GOD appoints for him, so that he may not 19 too much think upon the day of his life, when GOD removes him from the joys of his heart!

LECTURE 7.

On the Disappointment of Life.

There is a misery that I have 6 observed under the sun,—and it is great upon mankind, a man to whom 2
GOD has given wealth, and treasures, and honour, so that he wants nothing to wish for of all that he may look on,
—but GOD has not enabled him to partake of them!—but others consume.—This is a terrible misery!—
If a man beget a hundred, and pos- 3 sesses many years, and the days of his years become many,—but his life is not filled with pleasantness—when he also comes not to have a tomb,—I say an abortion is preferable to him:

4 For he comes to vanity, and goes to darkness, and his name is wrapped in 5 darkness!—He who has not seen the sun nor known it,—rests better than 6 him!—even though he should have lived a thousand years twice over, and has not experienced pleasure!—Do not the whole go to one place?

LECTURE 8.

The Hopelessness of Earthly Effort.

7 All the labour of a man is for his mouth;—and yet the mouth is not 8 filled! Then what remains with re educated more than with the ignorant,—and the poor,—who knows he walks with the living enjoying the 9 sight of his eyes and the course of his life?—This also is vanity and vexation of spirit!

Who existed formerly? A name
10 was given to him;—and it is known that name was ADAM. But he could not contend with a mightier than himself.

Where there are many words there
11 is much uselessness,—What does man gain? For who knows what is best 12 for man in his life?—for the number of the days of his worthless life which he passes as a shadow? for who can inform man what will be after him.
under the sun?

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE PREACHER.

POEMS AND LECTURES.

INTRODUCTORY POEM.

On the Best Objects of Life.

A good name is better than sweet perfume— 7
And the day of death, than the day of birth!

Better go to the house of sorrow, 2
Than go to the house of feasting;

For that, is the end of all men,
And the living will lay it to heart.

Sorrow is better than laughter, 3
For by a sad face, the heart is improved.

The heart of the Wise seeks the house of Grief, 4
But the heart of the Fools, the house of Joy.

Better hear the reproof of the Wise. 5
Than attend to the singing of Fools!—

As crackling thorns sound under a pot, 6
So the laughter of Fools is vain!

Oppression can madden the wise, 7
And a bribe perverts the mind.

The end of a thing excels the beginning,— 8
And a gentle spirit excels a proud.

Excite not your spirit to anger,— 9
For anger resides in the bosom of fools!

LECTURE 9.

On the Folly of Discontent.

10 Do not ask why the former times were better than these?—for it is 11 not wise to enquire why.—Science is good with an estate, and it is useful 12 to those who see the sun, for science is a defence, as money is a defence, and abundant knowledge of science
may preserve the life of its possessor.
13 Consider the Creation of GOD. Who is able to straighten what He has bent?

In the day of prosperity be happy; 14 and in the day of adversity reflect;
for GOD made both this and that.
To spare words, no man can discover anything about events after himself!

I have observed all this in my 15 unhappy days,—that sometimes a good man perished by his goodness; and sometimes a bad man is preserved by his crimes! Do not be 16

over good, or make yourself over learned;—why should you overwhelm yourself? Do not be very bad, and do not be foolish;—why should you kill yourself before your time? It is well that you should lay hold of this, and also not withdraw your hand from that;—but whoever reverences GOD will escape from all.

Science helps the educated, more than ten strong men who may be in a fortress; for there is not a clever man on earth who always does well, and never mistakes; so do not give your attention to all the things that are spoken, or perhaps you may hear your servant curse you, for your heart knows how often you yourself have cursed others.

I have ascertained all this scientifically. I declared I would become scientific.—But it was far from me.—

Where does extent go? and who can explore space?

I turned back, and decided to learn, and investigate and seek knowledge and skill, and to learn the wickedness of Folly, and Perversity, and Recklessness;—and I discovered that a woman who has craft and vices in her heart, and snares in her hands, is worse than death! May the Good before GOD escape from her; but the Offensive be captured by her!

I have discovered these, says the Preacher, by comparing one with another, to discover motives, with my mind continually thinking. I have discovered one man's motive in a thousand. But in all these I have not discovered a woman's! I have only discovered this;—that GOD made Mankind right, but they have sought out many villainies!

LECTURE 10.

On the Characteristics of the Philosophic Mind in a Monarch.

Who is philosophic? and who knows how to explain a thing?—

The education of a man brightens his face, and greatly changes his expression.

I commend a King to take care, because of the promises he swore to GOD. Be not in haste to go from before Him, nor persist in a wrong thing, for He does all He pleases.

Although a King's word is powerful, and who dare say to him, "What are you doing?"—regard The Law;— and learn not bad practices,—but with an intelligent heart learn opportunity, and justice. For there is an opportunity for every purpose, and decision, since many miseries are upon mankind. For none of us know what will be; and as to what may happen, who can inform us?

No man has power over the breath, to retain the breath, and none are powerful in the day of death. And there is no discharge from that war; and villainy cannot deliver its possessor.

I observed all this when I applied my mind to all the things that are done under the sun, during the period that man has power over man, to injure him. And I examined the tombs of the wicked carefully, who had come to, and departed from the Holy Place, and were forgotten in the City where they had done so.—They also were vanity.—

And I concluded that when quick punishment is not inflicted upon crime, then the heart of the sons of Adam is set in them to do wrong!— Yet, although a sinner does wrong a hundred times, and evades from it,— yet I myself know that it will be well for those who reverence GOD,—who fear before Him,—but it will not be well with the wicked; nor can they prolong their days like a shadow,— although they do not fear the presence of GOD.

LECTURE 11.

On the Mystery of Life.

This is a puzzle that occurs upon earth;—There are good men who are treated as if they had done like the wicked;—and there are wicked who are treated as though they had done like the good. I said to myself, this is a puzzle!—

So I, myself, commend cheerfulness, as there is nothing better for a man under the sun than to eat and drink, and be glad, and be at rest from his toil in the days of life which are given him under the sun.

When I applied my mind to learn science, and to the investigation of the phenomena that are produced upon earth, I perceived that day and night there must be no sleep for one's eyes. And having examined all the works of GOD, I perceived that it is not possible for a man to discover the 18 whole of the result that is produced under the sun;—since however a man endeavours to investigate, he cannot discover all. And even if a philosopher should assert "I know!" he has not been able to discover it.

9 For I had applied my mind to all that, and could only discover this,—That the Righteous and Philosophic in their labours, are in the hand of GOD. Whether he likes it or dislikes it, man cannot know all that is before him!—To the wicked,—to the good,—and to the pure;—and to the depraved;—and to the worshipper, and to the one who neglects worship;—to the Good and to the Bad alike;—to the Perjurer, and to him who respects his Oath, comes the same result!

3 This is the grief in all that is done under the sun;—that one event happens to all; therefore the mind of the Sons of Adam is full of grief, and agitation is in their hearts during their lives,—and after that,—the Dead! For who, of the living, has his choice? Who is hopeful? Yet a living dog is better than a dead lion!—The living, however, know they will die; but the dead know nothing whatever.—And they have no more fame;—for the remembrance of them is forgotten! And their former loves, and hatreds, and ambitions perish; and they have no more possession, for ever, in all that they accomplished under the sun!

LECTURE 12.

On the Enjoyment of Life.

7 Go! Eat your food with pleasure, and drink your wine with a merry heart;—for GOD is well pleased by your doing so. Let your clothing ⁸ always be handsome, and let not your head need oil! Enjoy life with ⁹ the wife you love, all the days of the worthless life given you under the sun!—all your worthless days!—for that is your lot in life, and your endeavour in all your efforts under the sun!

Whatever your hand finds to do,—¹⁰ do it with all your might! for there is neither Work, or Skill, or Knowledge, or Science, in the Grave to which you are going!

I have explored, and have seen ¹¹ under the sun, that the race is not to the swift; nor the battle to the strong;—nor bread to the wise;—nor wealth to the skillful; nor success to the prudent; but TIME and CHANCE happen to them all! Man, ¹² also, knows not his opportunity!—Like fishes caught in a cruel net,—and like birds caught in a trap,—the sons of Adam are caught like them, at a cruel time, that suddenly falls upon them!

Once I observed this result of intelligence under the sun,—and it was astonishing to me! There was a ¹⁴ little town with few men in it, and a great General came against, and surrounded it, and built entrenchments against it. But a poor person ¹⁵ possessing intelligence was found there, who rescued the town by his intelligence;—but the men did not remember that poor person!—I, however, ¹⁶ said, "Intelligence is better than strength. Nevertheless the intelligence of the poor is despised, and no one will listen to his words."

As dead flies make sweet oil stink, 10
So small follies, those held to be wise.

On the Evils of Incompetent Governments.

- 4 If the temper of the Ruler rises up against you, do not persist in your position, for great offences are remedied by submission !

There is a wrong I have seen under the sun, as an error proceeding from the Government; promotion is often given to the low,—while the high are depressed.—I have observed slaves on horses, and Princes walking like slaves on the ground.

Suggestions for our Conduct.

- 8 Who digs a pit, may fall into it ;
 Who breaks a fence, a snake may sting him !
 9 Who removes stones may be hurt by them ;
 Who fells trees is by them endangered ;
 10 If the iron is blunt, and edge not sharp,—
 Exert your strength, and use good skill.
 11 The serpent stings without a charmer,
 And an unbridled tongue the same.
 12 The words of a wise mouth profit,
 But a fool's lips will swallow himself,—
 13 The opening words of his mouth are folly ;
 And the last from his mouth wild madness !
 14 But why foolishly multiply words ?
 Man knows not what came before him,
 And what will succeed,—who can tell ?
 15 The endeavours of fools exhaust them,
 When they know not the road to the town !
 16 Woe to you, land, when your King is a Slave,
 And your nobles are drunk in the morning !
 17 Happy land, when your King is from Princes,
 And your Nobles seek health from food not excess !
 18 By neglecting, the rafters will rot,
 And the house falls from idling hands.
 19 A feast is made for enjoyment,
 And Wine cheers the living ;
 And money is useful for all things !
 20 Curse not the King in your thoughts ;
 And curse not the rich in your chamber ;—
 For a bird of the sky bears the sound,
 And the owner of wings tells the speech !

A Poem on Declining Life.

Your Creator remember in time of your youth, 12
 Ere sorrow's days come, and the years full of grief,—
 When you cry out, " In them is no pleasure for me !"—
 Ere the Sun and the Light become dim, and the Morn and the Stars, 2
 And the clouds go away after rain !
 When the Guards of the House will be trembling, 3
 And the strongest of men will bow down ;
 And the grinders will cease as but few ;
 And the light of the windows be dim,
 And doors closed to the feet and the shuffling step ; 4
 When the bird's voice alarms, and the singers depress ,
 When fears come from the above, and the roadway below ; 5
 And sleep flies away,—
 And the grasshopper loads,
 And Desire will fail ;—
 And Man seeks his Long Home,
 And the Mourners will walk round the streets.—
 Ere the silver cord's loosed, or the golden bowl broke ; 6
 Or the Cup is found smashed at the spring,
 Or the Wheel is found lost at the Well,
 And Man goes to the earth that he was, 7
 And his Soul will return to the GOD Who gave it !

OLD EDITORIAL COMMENT.

- 8 "Vanity of Vanity," said the Preacher, "Vanity of Vanity !"
 9 But for the rest, the Preacher was skilful so far as teaching science to the People, and he was listened to, and selected many proverbs.
 10 The Preacher sought to discover pleasing words, and wrote accurately truthful conclusions.
 11 The discourses of philosophers are like pegs, and stakes, fixed by masterly shepherds. They keep the flock together. But nevertheless my son, be 12 warned by this, that there is no end to the making of many books, and much learning is a weariness of the flesh.

When all is heard, this is the conclusion of the whole matter. "Reverence GOD, and keep His commands. 13 —They are for all mankind.—For GOD will bring every act into judgment, along with every secret, whether Good or Bad !"

THE BOOK OF ESTHER.

The Great Feast of Khushrush.

- 1 It was in the period of Khushrush. The Khushrush who was Emperor from Houd¹ to Kush,²—a hundred and twenty-seven provinces. In those days whilst this king reigned Khushrush fixed the throne of his Empire in the Palace of Shushan.
- 3 In the third year of his reign he made a feast for all his Princes and Ministers, and the powerful Officers of the Medes and Persians, and the Governors of the Provinces who were present with him, when he displayed the splendid wealth of his Empire, and the most beautiful treasures of his dominions for a number of days, 5—a hundred and eighty days. And when that period was run out, the King made one to all the people who were found at the palace of Shushan :—a feast for seven days to the small and great, in the Garden-court of the King's residence.
- 6 Curtains of muslin and purple hung on white cords, with fringes, on rings of silver from columns of marble. The sofas were of gold and silver, on a pavement of porphyry, and marble, and alabaster, and greenstone. And they drank out of golden cups of various patterns, plentifully of the royal wine, at the cost of the King.—
- 8 And this was the rule of the feast,—there was no control,—for so the King had ordered to the Steward of his Palace, that every one should do as he wished.

The Queen sent for.—Vashti's Refusal to Obey.

- 9 Vashti, the Queen, also made a feast for women in the Royal Palace of King Khushrush. On its seventh 10 day, when the King was elated by wine, he ordered Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcas, the seven Chief Eunuchs, who attended King Khushrush, to bring the Queen Vashti to 11 the royal presence, with her Queenly crown, to show the people and nobles her beauty,—for she was charming to look at. But the Queen Vashti 12 refused to come at the order of the King by the hand of the Eunuchs. The King was consequently very furious, and his rage fired him. The 13 King therefore asked for the Judges who understood the customs,—as the King was accustomed to do towards all who understood affairs, and law, —and Carsheba, Shethar, Admatha, 14 Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, Memucan, seven Princes of Persia, and Media approached him. They were the privy counsellors of the King, and Presidents of the Empire.

"What should be done to Queen 15 Vashti according to Law, because she has not obeyed the order of the King Khushrush, given through the Chamberlains?" he asked.

And Memucan replied before King 16 Khushrush and the Princes, "Vashti the Queen has not only insulted the King, but all the Princes, and all the People who are in all the Dominions of King Khushrush, for the action of 17 the Queen will excite all the women to despise their masters in their sight, when they are told that King Khushrush commanded Vashti the Queen to be brought to him,—and she would not come! And to-day 18 it will be told to the ladies of Persia and Media. And when all the King's nobles hear of the action of Queen Vashti, there will be contempt and anger! Therefore, if it is pleasing 19 to the King, let this be recorded in the laws of the Persians and Medes, —so that it may not be passed by,—that Vashti shall no more come into the presence of Khushrush, and that her Queendom be given by the King to the least amongst her companions. 20 Thus when the Decree that the King has made is published in all his Kingdoms,—for they are many,—then all the wives will respect their husbands from the greatest to the least."

- 21 This advice was satisfactory in the opinion of the King and the nobles. So the King acted on the advice of 22 Memucan, and sent out letters to all the royal provinces. To province and province according to its writing; and to People and People, according to its language, that every man should be master in his own house. He also published it in the language of his own People.

Ahshurush Grietes after Dismissing Vashti.

- 2 After these events the fury of King Khushrush having subsided, he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what had been decreed 2 against her. So the personal attendants of the King advised the King to seek young girls of charming beauty 3 for the King. The King consequently appointed officers in all the provinces of his Empire, who collected all the charmingly beautiful maiden girls to the Palace of Shushan, to the women's apartments, under the control of Hegai, the eunuch of the King, the Guardian of the wives, to give them 4 baths; and the girl who might be pleasing to the eyes of the King was to reign instead of Vashti. This suggestion was good in the opinion of the King, and it was adopted.

History of Esther.

- 5 There was a man, a Jew, an attendant in the Palace of Shushan, whose name was Mordecai-ben-Jair-ben-Shimei-ben-Kish, a man of 6 Benjamin, who had been carried from Jerusalem with the transports, when Jeconiah, the King of Judah, was transported by King Nebukad- nezzar to Babel, and he had brought up Hadassah,—who is Esther,—his 7 niece, for she had neither father nor mother, and the girl was exceedingly beautiful, and attractive to look at, and on the death of her father and mother Mordecai took her to his own 8 home. And when the command and decree of the King was published, and many girls were collected at the Palace of Shushan under the care of Hegai, Esther was also taken to the Palace of the King, to the care of Hegai, the Guardian of the wives; and the girl was attractive in his 9 opinion, and she acquired kindness from him, and he hastened her preparations, and the appointments to be given to her, and selected seven girls to be given to her from the royal household. He also removed her and her maids to the house of the handsome women.

Esther, however, did not inform 10 her people or her relatives, for Mordecai had ordered her not to inform them. But every day Mordecai 11 walked before the Court of the women's house, to enquire about the health of Esther, and what was done with her.

The Royal Marriage Custom in Ancient Persia.

When a girl's turn came, and that 12 girl went to King Khushrush, at the end of her preparations according to the usage of the women, during twelve months,—for then the period of the baths were accomplished,—six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with perfumes, and female baths. The girl went to the King in 13 this way;—all that she asked for was given to her to accompany her from the women's apartments to the apartment of the King. She went in the 14 evening, and returned in the morning to the apartment of the secondary wives, to the care of Shashgaz, the Royal Eunuch, Guardian of the favourites. She never again went to the King, except the King was pleased with her, and might invite her by name.

Esther made Queen.

But when the turn of Esther, the 15 daughter of Abihail, the uncle of Mordecai, who had adopted her as a daughter, arrived to go to the King, she did not request anything, except what Hegai, the Royal Eunuch, the Guardian of women suggested. Yet Esther found admiration from the eyes of all who saw her. Thus Esther 16 was taken to the apartment of King Khushrush in the tenth month,—which is the month Tebeth,—in the seventh year of his reign. And 17 the King loved Esther more than all the women, and she acquired favour and consideration with the King more than all the girls, so he placed the Queenly crown on her head, and she Queened instead of Vashti.

Mordecai Promoted to the Royal Court.

- 18 The King also made a great feast on the occasion to all his Nobles and Ministers,—the feast of Esther,—and made a remission to his provinces, and distributed presents from the King's hand. And when the girls were assembled again, then Mordecai was promoted to the Royal Court.
- 20 Esther, however, had not disclosed this to her relatives, or her people, as Mordecai had instructed her;—for Esther did as Mordecai commanded her, the same as when she was brought up by him.

Mordecai Discovers a Conspiracy.

- 21 During the period when Mordecai sat in the Royal Court, two of the Royal Chamberlains, Bigthan and Teresh, of the Guardians of the Gate, were insulted, so they conspired to assail King Khushrush. But Mordecai was informed of the affair, and reported it to the Queen Esther, and Esther told it to the King, in the name of Mordecai.
- 23 So he enquired into the matter and discovered it, and hung both of them on a tree, and had it recorded in the record of the daily events before the King.

Haman made Prime Minister.— His History.

- 3 After these events King Khushrush promoted Haman-ben-Hammedatha, the Agagite, and ennobled him, and set his chair above all the Princes he had. So all the ministers of the King who were in the Royal Gate knelt and bowed to Haman, for the King commanded it. But Mordecai would not kneel or bow. Consequently the ministers of the King, who were at the Royal Gate, said to Mordecai, "Why do you disobey the King's order?"
- 4 And they repeated this to him day by day, but he would not listen to them. So they informed Haman to ascertain if Mordecai could retain his position, for he had informed them he was a Jew. When Haman learned that Mordecai did not kneel or bow to him, Haman was filled with fury.

But it was despicable in his eyes to lay hand on Mordecai alone,—for they had informed him of the race of Mordecai,—so Haman plotted to destroy the whole race of the Jews who were in the whole empire of Khushrush, along with Mordecai.

Haman Conspires to Exterminate the Jews.

In the first month,—which is the 7 month of Nisan,—in the twelfth year of King Khushrush, they threw the arrows (which are their lots),—before Haman from day to day, and from month to month, until the twelfth, which is the month of Adar.—Then Haman said to King Khushrush, "There exists a single people dispersed and scattered amongst all the provinces of your Empire, with different customs from all the people, and they do not obey the Edicts of the King. Consequently it is no advantage to the King to protect them. If, therefore, the King approves 9 of an-edict to destroy them, I will pay ten thousand talents of silver for the hands of those who execute the business, and bring it to the King's treasury."

So the King took his seal from off 10 his finger and gave it to Haman-ben-Hammedatha, the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews. The King also said to 11 Haman, "I will give the money to you. But as for that People,—do what you like with them!"

A Proclamation Issued to Destroy the Jews.

Then the Royal Trumpet was blown 12 on the thirteenth day of the first month, and it was written, exactly as Haman ordered, to the Viceroys, and the Governors who were over Province and Province; and to the Generals of the Forces, and the Peoples in their own languages, it was written in the name of King Khushrush, and sealed with the Royal seal. Letters were also 13 sent by means of the post to all the provinces of the King, "To destroy, to kill, and exterminate, the whole of the Jews, from youths to old men, with the infants and women in a single day,—in the thirteenth day of the twelfth month,"—which is the month of Adar,—and to plunder their property. A 14 copy of this letter to be published as a Decree in every Province, and the Provincial Authorities to distribute it to all the Peoples, for them to be prepared for that day." The Mails were sent out urgently as if by command of the King, and the Decree was published at the Palace of Shushan, while the King and Haman sat drinking. But the City of Shushan was thrown into confusion.

Mordecai prays God to Defeat the Jews' Enemy.

4 Mordecai, however, knew of all that was done. Mordecai, therefore, tore off his robes, and clothed in a sack, and went to the centre of the City, and shrieked with a great and bitter shriek! Then he went opposite the Royal Gate,—for he might not enter the Gate of the King clothed in a sack. 3 And in every Province and Provincial village where the Order of the King, and the Decree arrived, there was great depression among the Jews, who fasted, and wept, and mourned in sacking, and ashes were spread under many.

Esther is Informed of the Decree.

4 But Esther's maids and her eunuch came and informed her; and the Queen was in great anguish, and sent clothing to Mordecai to clothe himself, and to ask him to strip the sacking off him. But he would not accept it. 5 Esther consequently called to Hatak, one of the Royal Chamberlains, who waited on her, and ordered him to go to Mordecai to learn what this meant, 6 and what it was? Hatak accordingly went to Mordecai, into the Market-place of the town, which is opposite the King's Gate, and Mordecai informed him of all that had happened, and the sum of money that Haman had promised to pay into the King's treasury for the extermination of the 8 Jews. He also gave him a copy of the enrolled Decree, which was deposited at Shushan, for their destruction, to show to Esther, and he commanded her to go to the King to arouse him, and to intercede with him for her People. 9 Hatak then returned and reported the words of Mordecai to Esther. But Esther replied to Hatak and dispatched him to Mordecai;—"All the servants of the King, and the People of the Royal Provinces know that any man or woman who goes to the King into the Inner Court, who has not been invited, has one fate,—to die!—except the King extends to them his Golden Sceptre. So it will be with myself. I have not been invited to go to the King this three days."

So he reported the words of Esther 12 to Mordecai.

But Mordecai replied in return to 13 Esther, "Do not imagine in your mind that the household of the King will escape more than all the Jews!—For 14 if you keep silent at this period, yet life and deliverance will arise to the Jews from some other quarter, but you and your father's house will be destroyed.—But who knows if it was not for this occasion you were raised to the Queendom?"

Then Esther commanded to reply 15 to Mordecai, "Go! Collect the whole 16 of the Jews who are found in Shushan, and let them fast for me, and neither eat nor drink for three days, night and day, and I also and my maids will fast. I will then go to the King, although contrary to the law,—and if I perish I shall perish."

Mordecai accordingly went and did 17 all that Esther commanded.

Esther Intercedes with the King for her People.

And when the third day arrived 5 Esther the Queen dressed herself and appeared in the Inner Court of the Royal Palace, opposite the King's apartments; and the King sat on the royal throne in the Palace, under the verandah of the Palace. And when 2 the King saw Queen Esther, she raised admiration in his eyes,—and the King extended the Golden Sceptre to Esther. So Esther approached to the end of the sceptre, when the King 3 asked, "What is it Queen Esther? And what do you ask?—It shall be given to you, even if half of my Empire!"

When Esther answered, "If it 4 pleases the King that the King and Haman would come to a dinner which I have made for them?"

Then the King said, "Order Haman 5 to be quick, and accomplish the request of Esther."

The King and Haman dine with Esther.

The King and Haman consequently went to the dinner that Esther had prepared, and the King asked 6

Esther while drinking his wine, "Whatever you ask shall be given to you; even if you ask half of my Empire,—it shall be done."

- 7 And Esther replied and said, "If I have found favour in the sight of the King,—and if it pleases the King to grant my request, and to do what I ask,—let the King and Haman come to a dinner that I will make for them, and to-morrow I will make a request to the King."

Haman Determines to Hang Mordecai.

- 9 Haman consequently went out that day glad and delighted at heart. But when Haman saw Mordecai at the Gate of the King, and that he did not rise or tremble before him, Haman was filled with fury against Mordecai.
- 10 However, Haman restrained himself, and went to his home, where he sent and collected his friends and his wife
- 11 Zeresh, and Haman related to them his great wealth, and his numerous children, and how the King had advanced him, and how he had raised him above all the Princes and
- 12 Ministers of the King. "And," Haman continued, "Esther the Queen also did not admit with the King any one to the Dinner that she made, except myself! And also to-morrow I am invited by her, together with
- 13 the King!—But all this is nothing to me, so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sit in the Court of the King!"
- 14 So Zeresh and all his friends said to him, "Let them make a Gallows fifty cubits high, and in the morning speak to the King, and he will hang Mordecai upon it. Then go to the dinner with the King, happy and glad hearted!"
- This advice was good in the opinion of Haman.

Khushrush cannot Sleep.

- 6 On that night sleep wandered from the King, so he ordered the records of the current events of his days to be brought, and they were read before
- 2 the King; and the record of the information given by Mordecai about Bigthan and Tharash the Royal Chamberlains who guarded the threshold, who conspired to lay hands on
- 3 King Khushrush, was lit upon. When the King asked, "What has been done in value and advancement to Mordecai for that?"

And the young men who attended on the King replied, "Nothing has been done for him."

So the King asked, "Who is in the Court?"

Just then Haman had come to the Outer Court of the Royal Palace to ask the King to hang Mordecai on the gallows he had prepared for him; so the pages of the King said to him, "We see Haman standing in the Court;" and the King replied, "Let him enter!"

The Man the King Delights to Honour.

Haman consequently entered, and the King asked him, "What should be done to the man whom the King delights to honour?"

But Haman said to his heart, "Whom would the King delight to honour, except myself?" Therefore Haman replied to the King,

"For the man whom the King may delight to honour, let them bring Royal Robes, such as the King himself has worn, and a horse that the King has ridden upon, and which has the Royal Plume on its head; and let them give the robes and the horse into the hand of a man among the most distinguished of the King's Nobles, and let them be put upon the man whom the King delights to honour with distinction, and let him ride on the horse through the streets of the City, and proclaim before him;

'It is done thus to the man whom the King delights to honour!'

Haman Ordered to Honour Mordecai.

The King then said to Haman, "Make haste! Take the robes and the horse, as you have said, and do so to MORDECAI the JEW, who sits in the Royal Gate! Do not omit anything from all that you have suggested."

Haman therefore took the robes and the horse and clothed Mordecai, and he rode through the Squares of the City, and it was proclaimed before him,

"IT IS DONE THUS TO THE MAN WHOM THE KING DELIGHTS TO HONOUR!"

Then Mordecai returned to the Royal Court, but Haman went to his home depressed and with an aching head. And Haman related to Zeresh his wife, and to all his friends, all that had happened, when his advisers and his wife said to him;

"If this Mordecai is of the Jewish race, before whom you have begun to fall, you cannot resist him,—but will fall before him." ❧

Esther's Second Dinner.

- 14 While they were talking with him the King's Chamberlains approached and commanded Haman to come to the dinner that Esther had prepared.
7 So the King and Haman went to dine with Queen Esther.

Haman begs his Wife of Esther and is Refused.

- 2 Then the King said to Esther, on the second day, while drinking his wine, "What do you ask, Queen Esther, and it shall be given to you? Even if you ask for half of my Empire—it shall be done!"

- 3 And Queen Esther answered and said, "If I have found favour in your eyes, King;—and if it is the pleasure of the King—Give me my life, at my request, and my People's on my Petition! For we are sold,—I and my People,—to Destruction, to Murder, and to Extermination! And if we had only been sold for bondmen and women, I would have been silent; but there is no affliction comparable to the King's loss!"

- 5 But King Khushrush answered, and asked of Queen Esther, "Who is he,—and what is he,—who has planned in his heart to do this?"

- 6 And Esther replied, "A cruel and hateful man;—That wicked Haman!"

- 7 Then Haman was terrified at the faces of the King and Queen. And the King rushed in his fury from the wine table to the Palace Garden; but Haman stayed to beg for his life from Esther the Queen; for he saw that complete ruin from the King was before him.

- 8 When the King returned from the Palace Garden to the Wine-room, Haman was fallen on the sofa that Esther was upon, so the King exclaimed, "Will he also ravish the Queen before me in the Palace?"

So the word went out of the King's mouth, and they covered Haman's face, and Harbonah, one of the Royal Chamberlains, said, "There is ready the gallows of fifty cubits high that Haman made for Mordecai, who spoke good news to the King. It stands near the Palace of Haman!—If the King commands he can be hung upon it!"

So they hung Haman on the 10 Gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai! Then the fury of the King was appeased.

Haman's House given to Esther.

On the same day King Khushrush 8 gave to Queen Esther the house of Haman, the Jew-hater, and Mordecai was brought before the King, for Esther had informed him what he was to her, and the King took off 2 his ring,—that which he had recovered from Haman,—and gave it to Mordecai. And Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman.

Esther begs the Wife of her People.

Then Esther again spoke to the 3 King, and fell at his feet, and wept, and besought him to redress the wickedness of Haman, the Agagite, and the conspiracy he had contrived against the Jews. And the King 4 extended the Golden Sceptre. So Esther arose and stood before the King, and said, "If it is good to the 5 King, and if I have found favour before him, and it is acceptable before the King, and I am pleasing in his eyes,—let it be written to reverse the letters that Haman-ben-Hammadatha the Agagite contrived, when he wrote to exterminate the Jews, who are in all the Provinces of the King. For how can I bear to 6 see the misery that will find my People? And how can I endure to look on the destruction of my relatives?"

King Khushrush, however, replied 7 to Esther the Queen, and to Mordecai the Jew, "You see I have given the Palace of Haman to Esther, and they have hung him upon the Gallows, because he stretched out his hand against the Jews.—But 8 you must write to the Jews, as seems best in your opinion, in the name of the King, and you can seal with the Royal Seal,—for a letter that has been written in the Royal Name, and sealed with the Royal Seal, is not able to be reversed!"

The Imperial Order to the Jews to Defend Themselves.

- 9 They consequently summoned the Royal Secretaries for the purpose in haste, on the twenty-third day of the month Sivan,—the third month,—who wrote as they were instructed by Mordecai the Jew, to the Viceroy, and Governors, and Generals of the Provinces, which were from Houd to Kush, a hundred and twenty-seven Provinces, Province by Province, according to the writing of the People, and according to the language of the People, and to the Jews in their Alphabet and Language.
- 10 They wrote in the name of the King Khushrush, and sealed it with the Royal Seal, and sent the letters by the Posts on horseback, on Race-
- 11 horses, bred in the royal stud, by which the King granted to the Jews who were in every town to collect and stand for their lives, and to destroy, to kill, and exterminate all forces of the people or province who assailed them, to infant, and wife,
- 12 and to plunder their property, on the same day in all the Provinces of King Khushrush, on the thirteenth of the twelfth month,—which is the month of Adar.
- 13 A copy of this letter was also published as a decree in every Province and Government, openly, to all the Peoples, that the Jews might be ready against that day to defend themselves from their enemies.
- 14 The Posts therefore went out mounted on race-horses from the studs, hurried and impelled by command of the King. The Decree was also published at the Palace of Shushan.

Mordecai made Prime Minister of Persin.

- 15 Then Mordecai left the presence of the King completely clothed in Royal Robes of blue and white, and a great wreath of gold, and a shawl of muslin and purple; and the City of Shushan shouted and rejoiced.
- 16 And the Jews had light and delight,
- 17 and joy, and honour. And all over, Province by Province, and in every City, and Village where the Royal Message and Decree arrived, the Jews were glad and rejoiced, with festivity, and a good day, and many from among the population of the country became Jews, for a terror of the Jews fell upon them.

The Jews Destroy their Assailants.

So in the twelfth month,—that is 9 the month of Adar,—on the twelfth day of it, when it approached to put the Royal Command and Decree into practice;—on the day that the enemies of the Jews hoped to dominate them;—it then turned about that the Jews dominated those who hated them! And the 2 Jews collected in the towns, and in all the Provinces of King Khushrush, and assailed all who sought to injure them, and no man could resist them, for a terror had fallen on all the Peoples. And all the Generals of 3 the Provinces, and the Viceroy, and Governors, and Executive Officers of the Royal affairs, assisted the Jews, for the terror of Mordecai had fallen upon them. For Mordecai 4 was great in the Palace of the King, and his fame travelled to all the Provinces, for the man Mordecai advanced and was great.

The Jews therefore struck with the 5 edge of the sword all their enemies, and slew, and destroyed, and did to their enemies as they pleased. And 6 in the Palace of Shushan the Jews killed five hundred persons, and 7 Parshomdatha, and Dalphon, and Aspatha, and Poratha, and Adalia, 8 and Aridatha, and Parmashta, and Arisal, and Aridal, and Vaizatha, 9 the ten sons of Haman-ben-Hamma- 10 datha, the Jews' enemy, they killed, but did not lay hands on their property.

On the same day the number of 11 the slain at the Palace of Shushan was brought before the King, when 12 the King said to Esther the Queen, "In the Palace of Shushan the Jews have slain and destroyed five hundred persons, and the ten sons of Haman;—What have they done in the rest of the Royal Provinces?—Now what is your request?—and it shall be given to you!—And what is your petition further?—and it shall be done!"

And Esther replied, "If it is the 13 King's pleasure, grant that the Jews may do to-morrow what they have done to-day in Shushan,—and let them hang the ten sons of Haman on the Gallows!"

- 14 And the King replied, "It shall be done." So a Decree was issued in Shushan, and the ten sons of 15 Haman were hung up. The Jews also who were at Shushan collected on that day, and slew in Shushan three hundred persons, but laid not their hands upon their property.
 16 And the rest of the Jews who were in the Royal Provinces collected and stood for their lives, and for peace from their enemies, and killed seventy-five thousand of their haters, but did not seize their property.
 17 On the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, but rested on the fourteenth, and made it a day of festivity and 18 rejoicing. The Jews in Shushan, however, collected on the thirteenth and fourteenth of it, but rested on the fifteenth, and made that a day
 19 of festivity and pleasure. Consequently he scattered Jews who resided in the scattered villages make the fourteenth day of the month Adar a delight and festivity, and a good day, and send presents to their neighbours.

The Feast of Purim Appointed to the Jews.

- 20 Mordecai afterwards recorded these events, and sent letters to all the Jews who were in the whole of the Dominions of King Khushrush, near or far, to ordain to them to celebrate the fourteenth day of the month of Adar, and the fifteenth day of it, from year to year, as days upon which safety came to the Jews from their enemies, and as the month which was turned from agony to delight for them, and from despair to be a pleasant day, and to make them days of festivity and delight, and for sending presents everyone to his neighbour, and gifts to the poor.
 23 The Jews consequently undertook to continue it, as they had begun to do, and as Mordecai had written to them, for Haman-ben-Hammadatha, the Agagite, the oppressor of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews to exterminate them, and he had thrown the arrow, (that was his lot), to defeat and exterminate them.
 25 However, when it came to be discovered, the King commanded by letters to turn the wicked plot, that he had contrived against the Jews, upon his own head, and they hung him and his sons on a Gallows.

They consequently name those 26 days, "Purim,"¹ from the word for an Arrow. Therefore on the receipt of these letters, and an account of what they had experienced, and what had occurred to them, the Jews 27 decreed and imposed upon themselves and on their descendants and all who joined them, that they would not omit to do year by year on these two days as the letters directed. And that those days should be 28 remembered and practised from generation to generation, in every family, province, and town, and that these days of Purim should not be omitted amongst the Jews, nor the memory of them cease from their race.

Esther Confirms the Feast of Purim.

Esther, the Queen, also, wrote 29 with full authority to confirm the second Decree of Purim; and sent 30 letters to all the Jews of the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the Empire of Khushrush, as messages of peace and security. And confirmed 31 the fixed days of Purim as Mordecai and Queen Esther had appointed to them; and which they had taken upon the souls of themselves and their race, with acts of fasting and crying.—So the Command of Esther confirmed the affairs of the Purim, and it was recorded in this book.

The Greatness of Mordecai.

King Khushrush afterwards laid a 10 tax on the land and the isles of the sea. And as to all the result of his 2 authority and power, and the wide greatness of Mordecai, how great he was with the King, they are recorded in the history of the events of the days of the Kings of Media and Persia. For Mordecai the Jew was second 3 to King Khushrush, and great among the Jews, and delightful to the man of his countrymen. He sought to benefit his People, and made safety for all his race.

THE BOOK OF DANIEL.

BOOK THE FIRST.

HISTORY OF DANIEL.

Nebukadnezzar orders Daniel and Others to be Educated.

1 NEBUKADNEZZAR, King of Babel came in the third year of Jhoiakim King of Judah, to Jerusalem, and besieged it, and the ALMIGHTY gave Jhoiakim, King of Judah into his power, with part of the furniture of the House of God, and he carried them to the land of Shinar, to the House of his God, and he put the furniture into the treasury of his God.

2 Then the King commanded Ashphenaz, his High Chamberlain, to select some of the children of Israel, and some of the Royal Family, and some of the nobles. Boys in whom there was no defect, and pleasing in appearance, and to educate in every science, and have them taught in knowledge, and trained in affairs,—who might have ability in them to attend in the Royal Palace; and to teach them the alphabet and language of the Kasdim. The King also assigned them daily a portion of the Royal food, and wine from his own altar, and to educate them for three years, and at the end for them to attend before the King.

3 And there were amongst them, from the children of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishal, and Azariah.

4 But the High Chamberlain changed their names, and gave to Daniel, Beltishazur, and to Hananiah, Shadrak, and to Mishal, Meshak, and to Azariah, Abed-nego. Daniel, however, decided in his heart not to pollute himself with the king's food, or wine from his cellar, so he requested of the High Chamberlain that he might not be defiled. And GOD gave Daniel favour and acceptability with the High Chamberlain. The High Chamberlain, however, said to Daniel, "I am afraid of my Master the King, who has appointed what your food and drink shall be, and he will observe your faces more gloomy than the lads who are around you, and I shall forfeit my head to the King!" But Daniel replied to Meltzar who had been appointed High Chamberlain over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishal, and Azariah. "Pass by your servants, I pray, for ten days, and give us grain to eat, and water to drink. And compare our appearance for yourself, with the appearance of the lads who eat the King's food, and do with your servants according to the result."

5 So he listened to this request of his, and passed them for ten days, and at the end of the ten days he made an examination of the result, which was they were better and fairer in body than all the lads who ate the Royal provisions. So he gave them grain.

6 And GOD gave to these fair lads intelligence and skill in all books, and science; and to Daniel understanding about all visions and dreams. And at the end of the period the King had commanded for their production, the High Chamberlain brought them to the presence of Nebukadnezzar. Then the King conversed with them, and found none amongst them all equal to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishal, and Azariah. So they attended in the Royal presence, and in every matter of scientific knowledge that the King enquired of them about, he found them ten times better informed than all the Engineers and Mathematicians who were in his whole Empire. And Daniel lived until the first year of King Kuresh.

Nebukadnezzar's Dream.

It occurred in the twelfth¹ of the reign of Nebukadnezzar that Nebukadnezzar dreamed dreams, and his

¹ NORZ.—Ch. 2, v. 1. "Second" for "Twelfth year" is a chronological impossibility, as will be seen by Second Kings, ch. 24, v. 1. It is examined; and also the statement in Daniel, ch. 1, that it was at least three years after Nebukadnezzar's return from the capture of mind was disturbed, and his sleep 2 left him. The King consequently ordered to call the engineers and mathematicians and enchanters, and Kasdim¹ to explain the King's dreams

 3 before the King. When the King said to them "I have dreamed a dream, and my mind is disturbed to understand the dream."
 4 But the astronomers replied to the King in Aramic, "King may you live for ever! Tell the dream to your Slaves, and we will explain it clearly!"
 5 He responded to the Astronomers, and said, "The purport has gone from me!—But look! If you do not inform me what the dream was, and explain it, you shall be cut in pieces, you slaves, and your houses be made 6 a dung-hill!—But if you show the dream and explain it, you shall be given gifts and great honours!—Relate, therefore, what I saw first, and show me the dream, and explain it!"
 7 They again answered, and said,
 "Let the King tell to his slaves the dream, and we will explain its meaning!"
 8 The King retorted and said, "I know assuredly that you are putting off, because you discover that the 9 matter has gone from me.—Therefore, if you do not inform me what the dream was,—you have one fate;
 —for you utter lies, and rotten contrivances, to talk before me till my mood changes;—Look sharp! Tell me the dream!—when I shall know that you can explain its meaning!"
 10 The astronomers replied to the King, and said, "There is never a man on earth who is able to accomplish the King's demand! Because no Great King or Ruler ever asks such a thing, of any engineer, enchanter, or astronomer! And the 11 statement the King demands is tremendous! And besides there is no one who could accomplish it to the King, except the Gods, whose dwelling is not in flesh!"

Because of this the King was angry, 12 and excessively furious, and ordered the destruction of all the Scientists in Babel! and a Decree was pub-13 lished to kill all the Scientists, and they searched after Daniel and his associates to kill them.

Daniel, however, met Ariok, the 14 Captain of the Guards, who had been sent by the King to kill the Scientists of Babel. He addressed and asked 15 Ariok, the Superintendent of the King,—“On what account is the Decree of the King so sudden?”

And Ariok informed Daniel of the affair. Then Daniel rose, and went 16 to the King, and begged to be given a fixed time when he would explain it to the King.

Daniel then returned to his house
 17 and communicated with Hananiah, Mishal, and Azariah his companions, about the matter, and entreated them 18 to request the GOD of HEAVEN not to hide this thing, so that Daniel and his friends might not be destroyed with the rest of the Scientists of Babel. After that the secret was 19 revealed to Daniel in a vision at night, and Daniel thanked the GOD of HEAVEN. Daniel addressed Him
 20 and said;

Daniel's Anthem of Thanks.

"Should not the Name of GOD be blessed,
 For ever and ever?

For wisdom and power are His;

And He changes the times,

And appoints opportunities;

He raises kings and depresses kings;

He to the wise gives wisdom,

And He gives knowledge and skill,

He reveals the deep and the hidden;

He knows what is obscure,

And light resides with Him.

Jerusalem, before Daniel had finished his education and been introduced as a Page at Court, as stated in Daniel 1, as above. We cannot, therefore, doubt but that the word עשר (aser)—"ten" has been omitted after the first numeral שתיים (shethim)—two, which in Hebrew form one word, "twelfth."

 I consequently translate it as "twelfth year."

¹ Astronomers.

23

I thank You, GOD of my Fathers,
And praise for giving me science, and power,
And revealing what we sought from You ;
Revealing this thing of the King's."

Daniel asks an Audience.

- 24 In consequence of this Daniel went to Ariok, whom the King had appointed to destroy the Scientists of Babel, and said to him, "Do not destroy the Scientists of Babel!—Bring me before the King, and I will myself explain it to him."
25 Ariok consequently went in haste with Daniel to the King and said to him, "I have found a man from among the Captive Jews who can tell the King the meaning."
26 The King then addressed, and asked Daniel,—who was named Beltshazar;—"Are you able to tell me the Dream that I saw, and explain it?"
27 Daniel replied to the King and said,— "The secret that the King demands no Scientist, Enchanter, or Engineer is able to decide and show
28 to the King!—However, there is a GOD in Heaven who reveals the hidden, and He has made known to King Nebukadnezzar what will be in future times.—

Nebukadnezzar's Dream.

- "Your Dreams, and the visions of your head upon your bed were these. From you, King, your thoughts ascended on your bed, as to what would be after now, and the Revealer of the Hidden made known to you,
30 what will be! But not for any Science that I possess, more than any living, has this secret been revealed to me, but, with the object for me to make it known to the King, and that you might know the thoughts of your mind.
31 "You, King, were looking, and saw a Great Image. This Image which was great, and its splendour dazzling, stood before you, and its aspect was terrible. The head of the Image was of fine gold; its breast and arms of silver; its belly and thighs of brass; its legs of iron; its feet part of iron
32 and part of clay! You looked at it until a stone was cut without hands and thrown against the iron and clay feet of the Image, and broke them to pieces. Then at once, the Iron, Clay, 33 Brass, and Gold were broken, and became like chaff from thrashing wheat, and the whole were carried away by the wind, and no rest was found for them; but the stone that struck the Image became a Great Mountain, and filled the earth!

"THAT WAS THE DREAM.—Now the meaning shall be told to the King.

"You, King, are a King of Kings!

to whom the GOD of HEAVEN has given this Empire, its power, its might, and splendour. And wherever the sons of men reside, the beasts of the field, and the birds of the skies, he has given into your hand, and you rule all of them.—You are the Head of Gold!

"But after you another Kingdom
29 will arise inferior to yours! and another third kingdom of brass, which will rule over all the country. Then a fourth kingdom that will be 30 as strong as Iron. Because as Iron breaks and crushes all, so like iron it will break all in pieces, and crush. And as you saw its feet and toes were 31 formed part of clay, and part of iron; that Kingdom will be a divided one: yet the firmness of iron will be in it, because you saw the iron mixed with 32 tempered clay. So as the toes were part of iron, and part of clay, part of that Empire will be strong, and part brittle; and as you observed the iron
33 was mixed with the tempered clay, they will mix themselves with the races of mankind;—but will not stick together with each other, as iron does
34 not unite with clay. But in the days of those kings, the GOD of HEAVEN will establish an EVERLASTING EMPIRE, and Indestructible,—whose Sovereignty will not be transferred to another People. It will subdue and 35 break all the Kingdoms, and will stand for ever! And as you saw a stone cut from a rock,—but not by hands,—which broke the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold;—the GREAT GOD has revealed to the King what will come after now,—and the Dream is certain, and my Interpretation true!"

Nebukadnezzar's Astonishment and Terror.

Then King Nebukadnezzar fell on 45 his face and did reverence to Daniel, and commanded to present a gift and perfumes to him. Then the King addressed Daniel and said :

" I know by a proof that your GOD is a GOD of Gods, who makes kings, and reveals the hidden, since you have been able to disclose this hidden thing ! "

Daniel is Promoted.

48 The King afterwards promoted Daniel, and presented him with great gifts, and made him Governor over all the Province of Babel, and President of all the Scientists of Babel. Daniel, however, asked it from the King, and he appointed as Administrators of the Province of Babel Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego. But Daniel continued at the King's Court.

The Golden Column.

3 Nebukadnezzar the King made a Golden Column, whose height was sixty cubits, and its breadth six. He erected it on the plain of Dura, in the Province of Babel.

Dedication of the Golden Column.

2 Then Nebukadnezzar sent to collect the Viceroy, Presidents, and Lawyers: the Judges, the Treasurers, the Counsellors, the Justices, and all the Governors of Provinces, to assemble for the dedication of the column that King Nebukadnezzar had erected.

3 Consequently all the Viceroy, Presidents, and Lawyers, with Judges, Treasurers, the Counsellors, the Justices and all Governors of Provinces assembled to the dedication of the Column that King Nebukadnezzar had set up. Then the Herald proclaimed :—

The Fiery Furnace.

" It is commanded to you.—Peoples,

5 Nations, and Languages, that at the time you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, harp, sackbut, psaltery, bagpipe, and all kinds of music, you shall fall down and worship the Column of Gold that Nebukadnezzar the King has erected !—And whoever does not fall down and worship it,—shall immediately be flung into the middle of the burning fiery furnace ! "

7 Consequently at the time appointed when all the Peoples heard the sound of the horn, the pipe, the harp, the sackbut, the psaltery, the bagpipe, and all kinds of music, all the Peoples Nations, and Languages, fell and worshipped the Golden Column that King Nebukadnezzar had set up !

The Jews Accused of not Worshipping it.

However, at that time some men of 8 the Kasdim approached and accused the Jews. They addressed King 9 Nebukadnezzar,

" May you live for ever, King !—Did 10 not you yourself, King, appoint a Decree for all men, when they heard the sound of the horn, the pipe, the harp, the sackbut, the psaltery, the bagpipe, and all kinds of music, to fall down and worship the Golden Column? And that whoever did not fall down 11 and worship, should immediately be flung into the middle of the burning fiery furnace ?—But there are men of 12 the Jews whom you have appointed over the administration of the Province of Babel, Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego ;—these men have not obeyed you, King ! They have not fallen down to your God ; and have not worshipped the Golden Column that you have set up ! "

Then Nebukadnezzar, in rage and 13 fury, commanded Shadrak, Meshak and Abed-nego to be brought. And the men were brought before the King: when Nebukadnezzar addressed and 14 said to them.

" Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, why do you not honour and fall down to my God, nor worship the Golden Column I have erected ?—However, are you prepared, at the 15 time you hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the harp, the sackbut, the psaltery, the bagpipe, and all kinds of music to fall down and worship the Column that I have made ?—If you will not worship, you shall be immediately flung into the middle of the burning fiery furnace !—And who is the God that can deliver you from My hand ? "

Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego 16 replied, and said to King Nebukadnezzar ;—

" We do not care enough about this Decree to answer you !—Be sure 17 there is a GOD Whom we worship, Who is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace ! And HE will deliver us from your hand, King !

- 18 But if not, let it be known to yourself, King, that we will not reverence your God, nor worship the Golden Column you have set up!"

The Despot's Fury.

- 19 Then Nebukadnezzar was filled with fury, and the shape of his face was changed, at Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, so in reply he ordered them to heat the furnace seven times more than usual, and commanded the strongest men in his army to bind Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, and to fling them into the fiery furnace!
- 20 Consequently these men were bound in their trousers, waistcoats, mantles, and turbans, and flung into the middle of the burning fiery furnace. However, because the furnace was made excessively hot, owing to the urgent command of the King, the men who took up Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego were killed by the flame of the fire; but those three men, Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego fell bound into the centre of the burning fiery furnace!
- 21 Then Nebukadnezzar was terrified, and rose up hastily, and addressed his Counsellors, and asked, "Did we not throw three men bound into the middle of the burning fiery furnace?" They answered and said, "Certainly, King!"
- 22 He replied and said,—“How then do I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and unimpaired? And the appearance of the fourth is like a SON of a GOD!”
- 23 Then Nebukadnezzar approached the entrance of the burning fiery furnace, and called, and said,—“Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, servants of the HIGHEST GOD, come out, and come here!”
- 24 Then Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego came out of the midst of the fire, and the Viceroy, the Presidents, and the Counsellors of the King, saw the men, and that the fire had not had power over their bodies, and that the hair of their heads was not singed, and their clothing not injured, and the smell of fire was not upon them.
- 25 Nebukadnezzar consequently exclaimed, “Thank the GOD of Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, Who sent His Messenger, to deliver His servants who trusted upon Him, who disregarded the Royal Decree, and gave up their bodies, and would not serve, and would not worship any God, but their own GOD! Therefore I now 29 Ordain a Decree to every People, Nation, and Language, that whoever shall speak insultingly of the GOD of Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, shall be cut to pieces, and their houses made a dung-hill, because there is not another GOD who is able to deliver like Him!”

The King afterwards promoted 30 Shadrak, Meshak, and Abed-nego, in the Province of Babel.

(Ch. 4. A.V.) Nebukadnezzar's Proclamation of Gratitude to the God of Israel.

“Nebukadnezzar the King, to all 31 Peoples, Nations, and Languages, who reside on all the earth,—Perfect Peace!—

“It is a pleasure to me to declare 32 the signs and wonders which the HIGHEST GOD has shown towards me. How great are His Signs! And how mighty His wonders! He reigns king for ever! And His Government is for ages of ages! (Ch. 4. Heb.)

“I, Nebukadnezzar, was at peace in my home, and flourishing in my Palace. I dreamed a vision, and 2 was depressed, and the thoughts upon my bed, and the visions, terrified my head. Therefore I issued an order 3 to bring before me all the Scientists of Babel to explain the purport of my dream. Consequently the 4 Engineers, the Enchanters, the Astronomers, and Mathematicians came, and I related my Dream to them;—but they could not explain its meaning. At last, however, 5 Daniel came before me;—whom I have appointed Prince of Bel,—after the name of my God,—and in whom there is the spirit of the Holy Gods,—to whom I related my Dream;—...

Nebukadnezzar's Second Dream.

“Bel-Tishazur, Chief of the Engi- 6 neers, because I know that the spirit of the Holy Gods is with you, and no secret is hidden from you, look at the vision I dreamed, and tell me its explanation, for the visions of 7 my head on my bed were these.—I looked, and saw a tree in the middle of the land, and it was very high. The tree grew, and strengthened, 8 and its top touched the skies, and it could be seen to the extent of the country. Its foliage was pleasant, with plenty of fruit, and food for all upon it. The beasts of the field sheltered under it, and the birds of the skies dwell on its branches, and all animals were fed by it. I watched, looking at the vision of my head on my bed, and saw a Holy Watchman descend from the heavens. He spoke with Authority, and said, 'Cut this tree down! Cut off its branches! Shake off its leaves, and scatter its fruit. Drive the beasts from under it, and the birds from its boughs.'

"However, leave its roots in the earth, with a fence of iron and brass, in the grass of the field and moisten it with the dew of the skies, and let its lot be with the beasts of the earth. Change his heart from a human, and let the heart of a beast be given to him, and let seven seasons pass over him. By Decree of the Watchers it is decreed, and by the command of the Holy Ones is the Order about the affair; so that the living may learn that the HIGHEST rules in the kingdom of men, and gives it to whoever He decides, and raises the vilest of men over it!"

"That was the Vision I dreamed, I Nebukadnezar. But you, Bel-Tishazar tell the explanation, for all the Scientists of my Empire are not able to explain or to interpret it, so I called you to Myself; because the Spirit of the HOLY GOD is in you.

"Then Daniel, whom I had appointed Prince of Bel, was at first amazed on hearing it, and his thoughts troubled him.

"Therefore I, the King, addressed Bel-Tishazar and said, 'Do not let the Dream or its explanation trouble you!'

"But Bel-Tishazar replied, and said,—'May the portent of the dream be to those who hate, and its explanation of those who oppose you!—The Tree that you saw, that was great and strong and whose top touched the skies, and that was seen all over the land, whose foliage was beautiful, and with plenty of fruit, with food for everyone upon it; under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and the birds of the skies nestled on its boughs; It was YOURSELF, KING!

who have grown, and strengthened, and increased in power, and touch the skies, and govern the bounds of the land! And as you saw a Holy Watcher descend from the skies, and command to fell the tree and destroy it, yet to leave its roots in the ground, and surrounded with iron and brass in the grass of the field, and to be moistened with dew from the skies; and its lot to be with the beasts of the field, until seven Seasons had passed over it;—This is its explanation, and, King! it is a DECREE of the HIGHEST, proclaimed against my Lord, the King,—and to drive you from among men. And you will be driven to be with the beasts of the field, and you shall eat the grass like oxen, and be wet with the dew of the skies,—and seven Seasons shall pass over you, until you learn that the MOST HIGH rules over the Empire of man, and gives it to whoever He decides!

"But since they were ordered to leave the stump of the roots of the tree,—your kingdom will be reserved for you, until you understand that the Heavens rule!

"Consequently, King, let my advice be pleasing to you, and redeem your sins by righteousness,—and your faults by mercy to the wretched. Then there may be a continuance of your prosperity!"

All this happened to King Nebukadnezar.—At the end of twelve months he was walking upon the Royal Palace of Babel, when the King exclaimed and said;—

"Is not this Great Babel itself what I have built, for the residence of My Majesty, by MY might, and for the Splendour of MY MAGNIFICENCE?"

Immediately after the King had spoken, a voice fell from the heavens—"King Nebukadnezar! it is proclaimed against you!—The Empire has gone from you! And you shall be driven out from mankind, and you shall stay with the beasts of the field. You shall eat grass like oxen; and seven Seasons shall pass over you, until you learn that the HIGHEST rules in the kingdoms of men, and gives them to whoever He decides."

"In that hour at that moment it was accomplished on Nebukadnezar and he was driven out from mankind, and ate grass like oxen, and he was wet with the drops of the skies rained upon him, until his hair grew like eagles and his claws like birds. But at the end of the period I, Nebukadnezzar, raised my eyes towards the heavens, and my understanding returned to me, and I blessed the HIGHEST, and praised and honoured Him LIVING FOR EVER;—for His Government rules for ever,—and His Dominion for ages of ages. For all the dwellers on earth may be considered as nothing;—but HE rules as with His army in the Host of the Heavens, and over the inhabitants of the earth, and there is none who can restrain His hand, and say to Him 'What are You doing?'

"At the same time my intellect returned to me, and the splendour of my Empire, my honour, and glory came back to me; and my Advisers and Nobles came and fixed me in the empire, and they granted power to me.

"Consequently, I, Nebukadnezzar, praise and exalt, and honour the KING OF HEAVEN; for all His acts are right, and ways just;—and He is able to depress those who walk in pride."

BOOK THE SECOND.

THE FALL OF BABYLON.

(538 B.C.) The Pride, Wickedness, and Fall of Bel-Shazzar.

5 The King Bel-Shazzar made a great supper for a thousand of his Nobles, and drank wine with the thousand
2 Lords. Bel-Shazzar while excited by wine, commanded to bring the cups of gold and silver which Nebukadnezzar his ancestor had brought from the Temple at Jerusalem, that the King, his Nobles, his wives, and concubines might drink from them. So they brought the cups of gold which had been carried from the Temple of the House of GOD, at Jerusalem, and the King and his Nobles, with his wives and concubines drank from them. They drank wine, and praised the Gods of gold, and silver, brass, iron, wood and stone.

The Writing on the Wall.

5 In the same hour the fingers of a man's hand appeared, and wrote opposite the lamp on the wall of the Palace of the King,—and the King watched the portion of a hand as it
6 wrote. Then the brightness of the King changed, and his thoughts troubled him, and the joints of his loins were relaxed, and his knees
7 struck one against the other. The King therefore cried loudly to bring the Mathematicians, Astronomers, and Lawyers, whom the King addressed, and said to the Scientists of Babel;—

"Whatever man can read that writing, and explain its meaning, shall be clothed in purple, and have a chain of gold put on his neck, and shall be one of the three Governors of the Empire!"

Then all the King's Scientists entered, but they were not able to read the writing, or to explain the meaning of it to the King. King Bel-Shazzar was consequently greatly troubled and the brightness of his expression was changed, and his Advisers were perplexed.

Because of the consternation of the King and his Counsellors, the Queen Dowager came into the banqueting house, and addressed the King and said,

"May you live for ever, King!—Let not your thoughts trouble you, or your expression change.—There is a man in your Empire in whom is the spirit of the HOLY GODS; and in the times of your ancestors, light and intelligence and science, like the science of the Gods, was found in him, and King Nebukadnezzar your ancestor appointed him chief of the Engineers, Enchanters, Astronomers, and Mathematicians, because a spirit of light, and knowledge, and understanding in the explanation of Dreams, the solution of problems, and loosening of difficulties was found in him,—in Daniel,—by the king, who appointed him as Prince of Bel.—So let Daniel be called, and he will explain the problem."

Bel-Shazzar's Offer to Daniel if he reads The Writing on the Wall.

13 Daniel was therefore brought before the King; when the King addressed him and said to Daniel,

- "Are you the Daniel of the sons of the Captives who were brought by my Ancestor from Judea? For I have heard that the spirit of the Gods is in you, and light, and intelligence, and that supreme science is found in you.
- 15 Now the Scientists, and Enchanters, have been brought to me to read that Inscription and explain its meaning, but they are not able to explain the meaning of the phenomenon. But I have heard about you, that you could explain it clearly, and solve its difficulties. Therefore if you are able to read the writing, and explain its meaning, you shall be clothed in purple, and a chain of gold be put on your neck, and be of the three who govern the Empire!"

Daniel Refuses the Reward, but reads the Writing.

17 Daniel, however, answered and said to the king;—

- "Keep your gifts to yourself! And your plunder for others!—However I will read the Inscription for the King; and explain its meaning.—As regards yourself, King, the HIGHEST GOD gave your ancestor Nebukadnezzar this Empire, and Greatness, and Power, and Majesty:—And at the Grandeur given to him, all the Peoples, Nations, and Languages were trembling and fearing before him.—Whoever he decided, was murdered; and whoever he decided should live, they did live; and he promoted whoever he chose, and threw down whoever he determined.
- 20 But when his heart became exalted, and his mind overbearing insolent, he was driven from the throne of his Empire, and they took his glory from him, and he was driven from mankind, and lived with the beasts, and dwelt among the wild asses, eating grass like oxen, and was wet with the dropping rain of the skies, until that he learn that the HIGHEST GOD rules over the Kingdoms of Men, and places whoever He decides over them.—Yet you, Bel-Shazzar, his 22 descendant, although you knew all this, have not humbled your heart, but have exalted yourself against the 23 LORD of the HEAVENS and have brought the cups of His House out to yourself,—and you, your Nobles, your wives, and concubines, have drunk wine from them, and honoured the Gods of silver and gold; brass, iron, wood, and stone,—who neither see, nor hear nor know;—but you have not thanked the GOD in Whose hand your breath is, and Who knows all your ways;—from Whom, also, 24 was sent the part of a hand that affixed this inscription. And this is 25 the Inscription that is affixed:—

"MENA, MENA, THEKEL; OH! FARSIN!"¹

"This is the explanation of the 26 Mandate.

"MENA. Decided — (GOD has 27 decided about your kingdom, and destroyed it).

"THEKEL. Weighed — (You have 28 been weighed in the scales and found insufficient).

"O! FARS! (Your empire is Per- 29 sianized, and given to the Medes and Persians!)"¹

Bel-Shazzar commanded, and they 30 clothed Daniel in scarlet, and put a chain of gold upon his neck, and proclaimed him as one of the three Rulers of the Empire!

Bel-Shazzar King of the Kasdim was slain on that night, and Dariush 31 the Mede seized the Empire, being 6 then sixty-two years of age.²

(538 B.C.) A Medo-Persian Republic Established in place of the Despotism of Babel.

It was decided for Dariush to be 2 President; But there were appointed a hundred and twenty-seven Viceroyes over the Empire, who were to join in ¹ NOTE.—Ch. 5, v. 29. The exact meaning is, "Decided! Decided! Weighed;—Ahoy! Persians!"—F. F.

3 all the Government.¹ But over them were three Premiers of whom Daniel was the Chief, to whom the Viceroy were to give accounts, so that the King might not suffer loss.

The Plot against Daniel.

4 Daniel, however, himself was appointed the Premier over the Senators, because he had an enlightened mind, and the King set him over the 5 whole Empire. The superintendents and Viceroy consequently looked out to find something against Daniel in reference to his administration. But they were unable to find an error or fault, because he was faithful, and no error or fault could be found about 6 him. These men consequently said; "We shall not find anything wrong against Daniel, unless it is found in 7 regard to the law of his GOD." These Superintendents and Viceroy therefore approached the King and said thus to him,—

"King Dariush, may you live for 8 ever! All the Superintendents, Governors, and Viceroy, Counsellors, and Deputies, of the Empire have consulted together to pass a Royal Decree, and to proclaim an edict, that any one who may seek a request from any God or Man for thirty days,—except from yourself, King,—shall be flung into the Den of 9 Lions! Therefore, King, confirm the Interdict, and sign the record, so that it cannot be altered, according to the law of the Medes and Persians which cannot be abolished."

10 The King Dariush accordingly confirmed the Interdict.

11 But although Daniel knew the Record was signed, he went to his house, and opened the window of his chamber towards Jerusalem, and kneeling thrice a day on his knees, he prayed and gave thanks, as he had done formerly to GOD. These men 12 then visited him and found Daniel asking and entreating of GOD as formerly. They consequently ap-13 proached and asked the King, about the Interdict.

"Did you not sign an Interdict against any person who should ask anything from any God or Man, for thirty days?—except, King, from you,—that they should be thrown into the Den of Lions?"

The King replied and said;—"I did establish that, according to the law of the Medes and Persians that alters not."

Then they responded and said to the 14 King, "That Daniel, who is one of the sons of the Captives, does not regard you, King, or the Interdict that you signed, but prays three times a day, making his requests!"

When, however, the King heard this 15 statement he was exceedingly disturbed over it, and set his heart to deliver Daniel, and exerted himself till the departure of the sun, to rescue him. Those men however pressed on 16 to the King, and said to the King, "You know, King, the Law of the Medes and Persians, that any Interdict or Decree confirmed by the King cannot be altered."

Daniel Flung into the Den of Lions.

The King consequently said, "Let 17 it be done to Daniel!" So they flung him into the Den of Lions.

The King, however, addressed Daniel and said, "Your God, Whom you constantly serve, will deliver you."

They then placed a large stone at 18 the mouth of the Den, and the King sealed it with his seal, and his Nobles also sealed it, so that the trap might not be opened for Daniel. Then the 19 King returned to his palace, and sat down fasting, and did not permit food to be brought before him, and sleep fled from him. The King conse-
20 quently rose at early dawn, and went in anxiety to the Lions' Den; and 21 when he approached to the Den, he called in an agonized voice to Daniel. The King addressed him and said, "Daniel! Daniel! servant of the LIVING GOD! Has the GOD Whom you serve continually been able to deliver you from the Lions?"

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 6, v. 2. This shows that the Medo-Persian rule was, at least originally, a Federal, or Constitutional Commonwealth, with Darius as Imperial President, Cyrus as Vice-President, and an Oligarchic, or probably an Elected Parliament of 127 leading men as Legislators, for by the subsequent history of Daniel it is quite clear that Darius or Cyrus, as individuals, had no legislative, but only administrative functions in the New Empire. These facts should be borne in mind, for the ignorance of them by the Old Translators, and all commentators, has introduced wild confusion and error into the study of the Historical Scriptures—error that has been seized greedily by the assailants of revelation to attack our faith.—F. F.

- 22 When Daniel replied and said,
 "Yes, King, yes! May you live for 23 ever, King! GOD sent His Messenger and closed the mouths of the lions, who could not devour me! Because I was innocent before Him. And also against you, King, I have done no wrong."

Daniel Released from the Den.

- 24 The King consequently was exceedingly glad about it, and commanded to release Daniel from the Den. So they released Daniel from the Den, and no injury was found upon him, for he had trusted in GOD.

The Conspirators Flung to the Lions.

- 25 Then the King commanded and they brought those men who had accused Daniel, and flung them into the Den of Lions, they, their children, and wives; and they had not arrived at the floor of the Den before the lions seized them, and broke all their bones.

Conversion of Darius and the Worship of God Ordained.

Darius the King afterwards wrote:—

"To All Nations, Peoples, and Languages, who dwell on all the Earth,—much Peace to you:—From Myself I issue a Decree, that in all the Governments of my Empire they must tremble and do reverence before the GOD of DANIEL; for He is a LIVING GOD, and exists, and His Dominion cannot be destroyed; and His Government is to eternity! He delivers and rescues; and produces signs and wonders in the heavens and on the earth;—for he delivered Daniel from the power of the Lions."

Thus Daniel prospered in the empire of Darius, and the empire of Kuresh the Persian.

END OF THE HISTORY OF DANIEL.

THE BOOK OF DANIEL.

BOOK THE THIRD.

THE PROPHECIES OF DANIEL.

(555 B.C.) The Four Beasts.

- 7 In the first year of Bel-Shazzar, King of Babel, Daniel dreamed a dream,—and a vision of his head upon his bed. He therefore wrote the dream of his 2 head, and related the matter. Daniel spoke and said:

The Vision of the Four Beasts.

- "I saw a vision, in the visions of the night, and noted the four winds of the sky rush out upon the Great Sea! And four Great Beasts arose from the sea, different from one 3 another. The First, like a Lion, with wings like an Eagle; I continued watching until it folded its wings and alighted upon the land, and stood on its feet like a man, and a human heart was given to it.
 4
 5 "Then I saw another beast,—the Second—like a Bear, and it established a Dominion. It had three tusks in its mouth amongst its teeth; and it was commanded to arise and devour much flesh.

"After that as I was looking I saw 6 another, like a Leopard, and it had four wings like a bird on its back, and four heads, and life and a Dominion were given to it.

"After that I looked and saw 7 BEINGS in the visions of the night;

"Then I noted a Fourth Beast,—Terrible, Dreadful, and very Strong! And it had iron teeth. It devoured much, and stamped and broke with its feet the rest. It was, however, different from all the previous beasts; —and had Ten Horns. While I was 8 reflecting about the Horns, I observed another little horn rise amongst them, but three of the former horns were pulled up before it. I, also, observed eyes like human eyes in this Horn, and a mouth speaking magniloquently! —

9 "I continued watching until the thrones were flung down, and The SPLENDOR OF TIME sat. His robes glittered like snow, and the hair of his head was like clean wool. His Throne was flames of fire! Its wheels flashing
10 fire! A river of fire proceeded, and flamed before him; thousands of thousands served him; and crowds on crowds stood before him.—He sat to judge; and the records were opened.

11 "I was looking for that time, because of the magniloquent words that the Horn spoke.—

"I continued looking, until the Beast was slain, and its body destroyed, and given to the burning fire! But the rest of the Beasts had a period of Dominion, and a continuance of life was given to them, for a Period, and a Time.

13 "I continued watching, in the vision of the night, and saw in the clouds of the heavens one who was like a SON OF MAN, who advanced to the SPLENDOR OF TIME, and was introduced to him, and he gave him a Dominion, and Glory, and Kingship;—and all Nations, and Peoples, and Languages bowed to him. His Dominion will dominate for ever, and not pass away, and his Empire will not be destroyed.

15 "The Spirit of myself, Daniel, was pained in its sheath, and the thoughts of my head disturbed me, so I advanced to one of the by-standers and determined to enquire of him what all this meant, and he replied to me, and explained its purport.

17 "'Those four Great Beasts that you have seen are four Empires, which 18 will be established on the earth. The Saints of the MOST HIGH will afterwards take the Empire, and possess it for ever, and for ever and ever!'

19 "Then I determined to ascertain about the Fourth Beast, why it was different from them,—terrible, dreadful, with teeth of iron, and its claws of brass,—devouring, trampling, and 20 smashing the rest with its feet? And about the Ten Horns on its head, and the one that sprung up, when three fell before it? That Horn that had eyes and a mouth, and spoke magniloquently, and whose expression was more haughty than its companions?—

21 So I continued watching, and that Horn made war with the Saints, and 22 defeated them, until the SPLENDOR

OF TIME arrived, and gave Judgment for the Saints of the MOST HIGH, and the time came for the Saints to possess the Empire.

"Then he said, 'The Fourth Beast 23 is a Fourth Empire on earth. It will be different from all the Empires, and devour all the earth, and thrash it, and break it. And the Ten Horns, 24 Empire, are Ten Kingdoms that will arise; but another will arise after them, and it will differ from these kingdoms, and will depose three kings. It will also speak in opposition to the 25 HIGHEST, and persecute the Saints of the MOST HIGH, and determine to change the Times, and the Laws;—and they will be given into his hand for a period, and periods, and half a period. Then the Tribunal will sit, and 26 its Dominion will be terminated, and destroyed, and abolished completely, when the Empire, and Dominion and Grandeur of the Empire under the 27 whole heavens, will be given to the Holy People of the MOST HIGH. His Empire is an eternal Empire, and all Dominions shall be subject to, and serve, Him.—There is the end of these affairs.'

"I, myself, Daniel, reflected greatly, 28 —was troubled,—and my thoughts disturbed me, but I kept the matter in mind."

The Vision of the Ram and Goat.

"In the third year of the reign of King 8 Bel-Shazzar, a Vision appeared to me, Daniel, after the former one that appeared to me. And I looked at the 9 Vision.—The Vision came to me when I was at the Palace of Shushan, which is in the Province of Elam,—and it seemed in the Vision that I went to the river Auli, and lifting my eyes in the vision I looked, and saw a Ram stand by the river with two horns; and the horns were upright, and one higher than the other. But the higher grew up last. I watched the Ram 10 pushing west, and north and southward. No animal could stand before him, and none could escape out of his power, but he did as he pleased, and became great.

"And I continued to look out, and 5 saw a He-Goat come from the west, above the surface of the earth, and not touching the ground, and the Goat had a strong horn between the eyes, 6 and he went at the Ram with the two horns that I saw standing by the river,

- and rushed at him with furious force.
- 7 Thus I saw him approach close to the Ram; and he struck the Ram, and broke his two horns, for the Ram had no power to stand before him, so he flung him to the ground, and stamped on him, and the Ram had no escape from his power.
- 8 "Then the He-Goat became very great. But when at his full strength his great horn was broken, and instead of it four Powers arose from the four winds of the heaven, and from one of them came out a little Single Horn, which became splendidly great against the South, and against the East, and against the SPLENDOUR. Then it exalted itself to fight with the Heavens and threw down some of its Army, and some of the Stars, and trod on them! It even stood up against the COMMANDER of THAT ARMY! and took from him the Perpetual Offering, and threw down his Holy Dwelling!
- 12 And an army was given to it against the PERPETUAL, for wrong-doing, and it threw down TRUTH to the ground;—yet it was active and prospered.
- 13 "Then I heard a Saint speak, and ask another Saint, 'Can you say for how long the Vision is, and the desolation of the Wicked is granted, during which the HOLY ARMY will be trodden down?'
- 14 "And he replied to him, 'For Two Thousand and three hundred evening-mornings, after which the Sanctuary will be Sanctified.'
- 15 "And while I, Daniel, looked at the Vision, and tried to understand it, I saw something like the appearance of a man stand before me, and I heard a human voice near the Auli, and it called, and said, 'Gabriel! make this man understand the Appearance!'
- 17 "So he came to my side, but I was terrified at his approach, and fell on my face, when he said to me, 'Understand, Son of Adam, that the Vision is for a terminable period.'
- 18 "While he was speaking with me, I fell into a stupor with my face to the earth, but he approached and raised me, when I stood up, and he said to me: 'I will inform you what will come in the future.—What will come at the appointed time.

The Explanation of the Vision.

- 20 "The Ram that you saw possessing two horns are the kingdoms of Media and Persia. And the He-Goat is the 21 kingdom of Ionia, and the Great Horn that was between his eyes is the first king. But he will be broken, 22 and four kingdoms will arise instead of him from the Nation;—but not with his vigour. And at the end of 23 those kingdoms, when the offences are expiated, a king of fierce expression and who understands policy will arise, with mighty power,—but 24 not his own power,—and be wonderfully corrupt, but prosper, and be energetic and destroy the mighty and Holy People. And his policy and 25 diplomacy will increase with his power, so that he will enlarge himself to his own mind, and destroy many by treachery.—Then he will stand up against the PRINCE of PRINCES,—and be broken without a hand!

"Be sure the Vision of the Even- 26 ing-Morning that you were told is true; but shut up that Vision for it is far distant.'

"Then I, Daniel, fainted, and was 27 sick for days.—I afterwards arose and did the king's business. But I was astonished at the revelation, and could not understand it."

(538 B.C.) The Period of Restoration.

and Daniel's Prayer for it.

"In the first year of Darius, son of 9 Klushrush, of the Median Race, who became King over the Empire of the Kasdim,—in the first year of his 2 reign, I, Daniel, ascertained from the records the years that the LORD had said to Jeremiah, the Preacher, should pass for the completion of the ruin of Jerusalem.—Seventy years. 3 So I turned my face to seek 4 ALMIGHTY GOD, by prayer and supplication, with fasting and sackcloth, and ashes. I also prayed to 4 the LORD my GOD, and gave thanks and said, Daniel's Prayer.

"O, LORD! the GREAT and terrible 5 GOD! Who keeps the covenant with those who love Him, and keep His commands,—we have offended and 5 sinned, and revolted and turned from your instructions, and decrees! 6 And we have not listened to your 6 servants the Preachers, who spoke in Your Name to our kings, princes, and fathers, and to all the People of the country. Righteousness is Yours, 7

ALMIGHTY! but to us shame of face, as at this day;—to the men of Judah, and the population of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, whether near or afar, in every country where they have fled, because of the sin they have sinned against You.

- 8 "ALMIGHTY! with us, our kings, our princes, and fathers, who sinned 9 against you, is shame of face! But with our ALMIGHTY GOD are pities and mercies, although we have 10 rebelled against Him, and have not listened to the voice of the LORD our God to walk in His paths that He prepared before us, by the means
11 of His servants the Preachers. And all Israel has transgressed Your laws, and gone away so as not to listen to Your voice! Consequently the curse has been poured upon us, and the threat that was written in the Law of Moses, the servant of GOD, because we sinned against Him.
12 And He has confirmed His words that He spoke against us, and against our Rulers, who governed us, that HE would bring upon us great sufferings such as were never heard of under all the heavens, and which 13 occurred at Jerusalem, as they had been written in the Laws of Moses,—all those sufferings have come upon us!—Yet we appeased not the face of the EVER-LIVING GOD, by turning 14 from our sins and by comprehending the truth. Consequently the EVER-LIVING watched for the suffering, and brought it upon us,—for the EVER-LIVING GOD is absolutely right in all the acts that He does.—but we do not listen to His voice.
15 "But now, ALMIGHTY GOD, who brought Your People from out of the land of the Mitzeraim with a strong hand, and made yourself renowned, as at this day,—we have offended!
16 We have done wrong! ALMIGHTY, although You are right in what You have done, turn away Your anger, and wrath, I pray, from Your city, Jerusalem,—Your Holy Hill,—because by our offences, and the sins of our fathers, Jerusalem and Your People are a reproach amongst all
17 around them. So now, listen, our GOD, to the prayer of Your servant, and to his entreaty, and let Your face shine upon Your desolate 18 Sanctuary. For my sake, LORD, incline your ear, my GOD, and hear,—open Your eyes and see the desolations of the City upon which Your name was invoked,—because not for our righteousness do we let our entreaties fall before Your face, but because of Your many mercies.

"ALMIGHTY! listen! ALMIGHTY, 19 pardon! ALMIGHTY, hear, and act Delay not for Your own sake, my GOD, because Your Name was invoked over Your City and over Your People."

Then while I was speaking and 20 praying, and confessing my faults, and the faults of my People, Israel, and letting my entreaty fall before the LORD my GOD, on account of the Holy Hill of my GOD,—then, 21 while I was speaking and praying, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the previous Vision when exhausted, approached me, about the time of the evening offering, and, entering, spoke and said to me:—

Gabriel's Revelation on his Second Appearance.

"Daniel, I have come to teach you to understand. At the beginning of 22 your entreaty the command was issued, and I am come to say you 23 are highly honoured, so reflect upon the affair, and reflect upon the revelation.

"Seventy weeks are fixed upon 24 your People, and upon the Holy City, for all their revolts, and to expiate their offences, and to expiate their sin, and to bring forward Eternal righteousness, and to accomplish the Vision, and Prophecy, and the MESSIAH—the HOLIEST of the HOLY.

"So know, and comprehend;— 25 that from the issue of the order to restore and rebuild Jerusalem, until the MESSIAH arrives, is seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks.

"(It will be restored and built with streets and moat, in times of distress.)

"And after the sixty-two weeks, 26 the MESSIAH will be slain,—and none support Him.

"After that, the City, and the Sanctuary will be desolated by a Dominating People who are brought on.—But its end will be with a torrent, and its abolition by war. The desolations are fixed. But the 27 Covenant will be guarded by many for a week, and in the middle of the week, He will make the sacrifice and the offering to cease, and the Loathsome Brute will desolate to the extreme;—but at last a wound will be given to the Desolators."

The Vision by the River Hidakel.

- 10 In the third year of Korusli, King of Persia, a message was revealed to Daniel, who was appointed by name Prince of Bel, and the purport is true and very certain, so understand the matter that was explained to him by a revelation.
- 2 During those days I, Daniel, was in depression for a period of three weeks. I ate no pleasant food—and flesh, or wine, did not enter my mouth; nor did I lubricate myself until the completion of the three weeks period.
- 4 And on the twenty-fourth day of the first month, while I was on the banks of the Great River Hidakel, I raised my eyes, and looked, and saw a man clothed in trousers, and his waist belted with gold of Aufaz. His body was like a Tharshish-gem, and his face like the gleam of lightning, and his eyes like lamps of fire; and his arms and legs like the glitter of bright brass, and the sound of his speech like the sound of a crowd.
- 7 And I, Daniel, alone saw the Appearance,—for the persons who were with me did not see the Appearance,—but a great faintness fell upon them, and they fled to hide themselves, and I was left alone. So I watched this great Appearance, although there was no strength left in me, and my energy was destroyed, and I retained no power. Yet I heard the sound of his words, but when I heard the sound of his words, I was laid on my face in a stupor with my face to the earth. But I perceived a hand approach me, and I staggered on to my knees and the palms of my hands.
- 11 Then he said to me, "Daniel, you fully accepted man, attend to the words which I speak to you, and stand upon your feet, for I have now been sent to you."
- 12 When he spoke this speech to me I stood up trembling. And he said to me, "Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day that you gave your heart to examine and humble yourself before your GOD, your words were heard;—so I have come to speak with you. But the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia stood opposing me for twenty-one days, but Mikal one of the First Princes, came and helped me, and I was relieved then from the restraint of the governors of Persia, and I have come to inform you of what will happen to your own People in future times;—because the Vision is yet at a distance."

And as he spoke these words to me, I hung my face to the earth, and was silent. But I saw whilst silent a man touch my lips, when I opened my mouth and spoke, and said to the Stander before me, "Sir, by this Appearance, my anguish has returned upon me and my strength has failed! So how can your servant talk with you, sir, when I have now no strength to stand by myself, and I have no breath left in me?"

Then one with the appearance of a man touched me again, and said, "Fear not, you chosen man! Peace to you! Be bold! be bold!" And when he spoke with me I was encouraged, and replied, "Let my lord speak, for I am reassured."

The Revelation of the Future.

Then he said, "I will teach you what will come to you.—But now I must return to fight with the Prince of Persia;—and when I am gone, you will see the Prince of I'on come. However I will inform you of the record in the book of Truth—for there is no one who helps me about these things, except Mikal your Prince, and I stood up in the first year of Dariush, the Mede, to encourage and strengthen him.

"But now I will inform you of the fact. There will yet be three kings stand up in Persia, and a fourth, rich, far richer than all of them, and he will embolden himself in his wealth. The whole will excite the Kingdom of I'on. Then a powerful king will arise, and rule with great dominance, and do as he desires." But as he stands his Empire will be shattered, and divided to the four winds of the heavens, but not for his posterity, and not like the Dominion that he ruled, for his Empire will be uprooted for others than his own. And the King of the South, who was one of his Generals, will be strong, and bolder than he, and rule with a wide dominion made from his Empire. But at the conclusion of the years 6

they will associate, and the daughter of the king of the South will be brought to the king of the North, to make rectifications. But she will not retain the strength of her arm, and his arm will not continue; but she will be betrayed, with her attendants and her parent, and her supporter in those times

- 7 "But a shoot from her roots will stand in his position and go against the army, and come to the fortress of the king of the North, and assail and 8 seize; and also carry off captive their Gods with their Princes, and beautiful furniture of silver and gold, into the Mitzeraim and he will endure more years than the king of the North,
9 who will advance to the dominions of the king of the South,—but return to his own country, and vigorously exert himself, and collect a numerous army, and advance and flood, and pass onwards, and arouse himself to
10 his full strength. But the king of the South will be furious, and advance and fight with him,—with the king of the North,—who had arranged the numerous host, but the crowd will
11 be given into his power, and the crowd will be carried away.—Then his spirit will be exalted, and he will defeat numbers,—but not succeed, for the king of the North will return, and array a greater number than the former, and at the end of periods of years will advance with a great army and numerous 12 cavalry. And at the same time many will arise against the king of the South;—and the fierce fellows of your People will rise up to accomplish this Vision,—but will fail!

- 13 "Then the king of the North will come and pile up an Embankment, and capture the fortified Cities and the arms of the South, for his choice army will not be able to stand, and none have power to resist; but the assailant will do as he desires to him, for none can stand before him, but he will establish himself with destruction in his hand, in the glorious land, 14 and turn his face to advance with all the power of his Empire, and his squadrons with him, and succeed. But a daughter of women will be given to him to destroy him, but she will not attain, or come to him.
15 "Then he will set his face to the Coasts, and capture many. But a prince will stop his incursions,— indeed he will turn his insolence on himself, when he will return to the 19 Capital of his own country, and stumble and fall, and not be found.

"There will then succeed to his 20 office an imposer of taxes upon the honour of the Empire, but in a few days he will be destroyed, yet neither in anger nor war. When a mean fellow 21 will succeed to his Office, to whom they will not confer the honour of the Empire, but he will come in by briberies, and obtain the Empire by intrigue; and with force of a flood they will be 22 overwhelmed and broken before him, and also the princely treaty; and he 23 will work for himself by crafty negotiations, and advance and strengthen himself by a few people, and by peace 24 he will bring his government to prosperity, and do what neither his fathers, nor his father's fathers have done, by that, and distribute wealth and prosperity in it, and his policy will be against physical force for a period.

"But when he is strong and hearty 25 he will assail the king of the South with a great army; and the king of the South will contend in the war with a very great force, but will not succeed, for he will contrive plots against him, and those in his own 26 pay will destroy him, and his army will be overwhelmed, and many fall wounded.

"And the intention of the two 27 kings will be to do mischief, and they will talk lies at one table,—but not succeed,—for the appointed end is at its period.—But he will return 28 towards his own country with great wealth, when his heart will assail the Holy Covenant, and effect his purpose and return to his own country.

"After a period he will come again, 29 and advance to the South, but he will not meet with success as he did formerly, for the ships of the Kathim 30 will come and assail him, so he will retreat, and be furious and work against the Holy Covenant.

"Then he will turn and favour those who abandon the Holy Covenant. And arms will succeed with him, and 31 he will defile the Sanctuary of the Capital, and they will abolish the Perpetual Sacrifice, and establish the Desolating Brute. Then the re- 32 voltors from the Covenant will apostatize to defilements;—but the 33 People who acknowledge GOD, will be bold, and act. But the seducers of the People who control the Many, will perish by the sword, by flame, and in captivity, and by slaughter for 34 a period. But in their fall they will be helped with some assistance, and many will be joined to them by 35 policy. And some of the teachers will fall to refine them, and purify and beautify them for the appointed time,—for the period is future;—

 36 therefore the king will effect his object and exalt himself, and enlarge himself like a god, and against the GOD OF GODS, uttering astonishing things. Yet he will prosper until his insolence is complete,—for what is decreed will be done,—for what is 37 decreed will be done. And he will neither reverence the God of his fathers, nor care for the delight of women, or care for any God, for he will exalt himself above all.
 38 " But in his place he will honour the GOD OF FORCE! And to that God, whom his ancestors did not acknowledge, he will pay honour with gold and silver, and precious stones, and luxuries, and make strong fortresses to the strange God whom he admires. He will extend his glory, govern many, and allot the land for sale.
 39 " But at the end of the period the King of the South will contend with him, and the North will rush against him with chariots and cavalry, and many ships, and advance to his territories, and flood and overflow, and arrive at the Glorious Land, where many will fall; but these will escape his hand,—Edom and Moab, and the 40 Capital of the Beni-Amon. But he will extend his hand to the territories, and the land of the Mitzeraim will not be a refuge for them; for he will control her treasures of gold and silver, and all the luxuries of the Mitzeraim, and Lubim, and Kushim, will be at his feet;—when reports from the East and the North will disturb him, and he will proceed in great 41 fury to destroy and devote many, and pitch his palatial tent between the seas, on the Glorious Holy Hill,—then go to his reaping—and none can save him.
 42 " And at that period, Mikal, the Great Prince, who defends the children of your People, will stand up, and a period of distress will come, such as has not come from the existence of the Nation to that period, but in that period your People shall escape.—All who are written in the Book of Record.—And many sleeping 2 in the dust of the earth will awaken. Some to Everlasting Life;—and some to Everlasting shame and contempt. But the Teachers will shine like 3 Lights in space; and those who have led many to Righteousness, like Stars for ever and ever! So you, Daniel, 4 conceal the events, and seal the record, until the fixed period, when many will travel and knowledge will be increased."

The Vision of the Two Sentinels.

I, Daniel looked again, and saw 5 two Sentinels stand, one on this bank of the River, and the other on that bank of the River, and the man who 6 was clothed in trousers, who was upon the waters of the river, asked, " How long is it to the end of these wonders? "

Then I listened to the man clothed 7 in trousers, who was on the waters of the river, as he held up his right and left hands to the heavens, and swore by the ETERNAL LIFE, " That in a Period, and a Period, and a Half;—and when they have completely broken to pieces the power of the Holy People, all these would be accomplished."

I heard but did not understand,— 8 so I asked, " My Lord, what will come after this? "

But he replied, " Go away, Daniel, 9 because that is hidden and sealed until the fixed time. Many will purify, 10 and cleanse, and refine themselves. But the rebellious will be wicked, and none of the wicked will understand; but the Teachers will understand. And from the Period when the Perpetual Sacrifice is taken away, and the DESOLATING BRUTE is set up, there will be One Thousand, two hundred, and ninety days. Happy 12 will be the Hopeful, who attain to the Thousand, Three hundred, and Thirty-five days!—But, you, go until 13 the Period:—for you shall rest, and stand in your place, at the end of the times."

THE END OF THE BOOKS OF THE PROPHET DANIEL.

BOOK THE FIRST.

HISTORY OF THE FIRST RETURN FROM BABYLON, LED BY ZERUBBABEL.Cyrus Orders the Restoration of the Temple.

1 IN the first year of Kuresh King of Persia, the promise of the EVER-LIVING through the mouth of Jeremiah was fulfilled by the EVER-LIVING exciting the mind of Kuresh king of the Persians. He consequently published a proclamation to all his Empire, and also recorded it to say;—

Cyrus's Proclamation.

- 2 "Kuresh the king of the Persians commands thus: to all kingdoms of the Empire, which the EVER-LIVING GOD of the Heavens gave to me,—Who has appointed me to build a Temple for Him at Jerusalem, in Judea.—
- 3 "Whoever, of all His People is with you, may GOD be with him, so let him go up to Jerusalem, that is in Judea, and build the Temple of the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel. He is the GOD,—Who is in Jerusalem.
- 4 And let all the residents in any place where they are lodged assist those persons in that place with silver and gold, and provisions, and cattle; and with offerings for the Temple of the GOD who is in Jerusalem."

The Restoration begins in the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin.

- 5 Then the heads of the families of Judah and Benjamin arose, with the Priests and Levites, and all whose spirit GOD had excited to go up to build the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, which is in Jerusalem, and all around encouraged them by giving articles of silver and gold, and provisions, and cattle, and jewels, beside the free will offerings. And King Kuresh brought out the vessels of the Temple of the LORD, which Nebukadnezzar had brought from Jerusalem and put into the Temple of his God,—those,
- 8 Koresch king of the Persians brought out under the care of Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them to Shashbazar the Governor of Judea.
- 9 And this was their number; Thirty basins of Gold; a Thousand basins of Silver; Twenty-nine knives; Thirty 10 cups of gold; next Four hundred and ten cups of silver; and of other vessels one Thousand. All the vessels 11 of Gold and Silver were Five thousand Four hundred.—The whole of them were carried by Shashbazar, with the returning transports, from Babel to Jerusalem.

Descendants of David who Returned.

And these are the sons of the Royal 2 Family who returned from the captives of the transportation, whom Nebukadnezzar, King of Babel, transported to Babel, who returned to Jerusalem and Judea, each to his own village,—who came with Zerubabel; 2 Joshua, Nehemiah, Saraiah, Raliah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, Banah.

A New Altar Built.

Thus the Priests and the Levites, and some of the People, and the Singers, and the Gate-keepers, and the Attendants, returned, with many

3 of Israel to their villages, and on the arrival of the seventh month, after the Children of Israel had reached their towns, the People assembled

2 like one man at Jerusalem. Then Jeshua-ben-Josadak arose with his brother Priests, and Zerubabel-ben-Shalthial, and his brothers, and built an Altar to the GOD of Israel, to offer Burnt-offerings upon, in accordance with the record in the Law of Moses, the MAN of GOD. And they 3 built the Altar on its own foundation, although fear was upon them from the people of the Countries, and offered Burnt-Offerings on it to the EVER-LIVING at the morning and evening. They also made the 4 Feast of Tabernacles, according to the Records, and Offerings day by day in number as the Decree commands, day by day.

After that for the perpetual Offer- 5 ings, and the New Moons, and all the Holy Festivals of the EVER-LIVING, and for every one who offered of free will to the EVER-LIVING. They began from the first 6 day of the seventh month to offer Burnt-Offerings to the EVER-LIVING although the foundation of the Temple of the EVER-LIVING was not yet laid. They also gave money 7 to the stone-cutters and carpenters, and food and drink to the Zidonians and the Tzurites to bring cedar wood from Lebanon by sea to Joppa, in accordance with the Grant of Koresh King of the Persians to them.

Rebuilding the Temple.

And in the second year of their 8 arrival at the HOUSE of GOD in Jerusalem, in the second month, Zerubabel-ben-Shalthial, and Jeshua-ben-Josadak, and the rest of their friends, the Priests and Levites, and all who had come from the Captivity to Jerusalem, and they appointed the Levites from twenty years of age and upwards, to superintend the works at the House of the EVER-LIVING. He then appointed Joshua his son, 9 and his friend Kadmiel, and his son, sons of Hodaviah, to superintend together the execution of the works at the House of the EVER-LIVING GOD, with the sons of Henadad, and their sons and relatives, the Levites. When they laid 10 the foundations of the buildings of the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, the Priests stood robed and with trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, to praise the EVER-LIVING, according to the arrangement of David king of Israel, and responded:—

"Praise and thank the LIFE,
For He is good:—
For His Mercy endures for ever
To Israel!"

Then all the People cheered with a great cheer to praise the EVER-LIVING at the laying of the foundation of the House of the LORD. But many of the old Priests and Levites and heads of Houses, who had seen the former House, and the foundation of this House before their eyes, wept with a loud voice, but many cheered for joy at the top of their voice; so none of the people could distinguish the sound of the cheering from the sound of the weeping of the people,—for the people cheered with a great cheering,—and the sound was heard afar.

Their Enemies Assail the Jews.

4 When the enemies of Judah and Benjamin heard that the sons of the Transports were building a Temple to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, 2 they approached Zerubabel, and the Heads of Houses, and said to them;—"We will build with you; for we follow your GOD like yourselves; but we have not sacrificed from the days of Ezerhadon, king of Ashur, who brought us up here." 3 But Zerubabel, and Jeshua, and the rest of the Heads of the Houses of Israel replied;—"You shall not!—But we will build the House of our GOD; for we alone can build for the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, as king Koresh, king of the Persians, commanded us."

(529 B.C.)

4 The People of the countries therefore impeded the plans of the People of Judah, and interfered with them in building, and hired persons against them, and conspired to break their intention, all the time of Kuresh king of the Persians and up to the period of Darius the king of the Persians.

(446 B.C.)

6 [[Afterwards, in the reign of Akhashorush, they wrote to accuse the inhabitants of Judea and Jerusalem. 7 And again in the times of Arthakshasta, in a time of peace, Mithradath, Tabal, and the rest of their companions wrote to Arthakshasta King of Persia, and the wording of their letter was in Aramith,—and I copy it from the Aramith;— 8 Rehum, Master of the Rolls, and Shemshai the Secretary wrote a letter in conjunction against Jerusalem to the king Arthakshasta in this form:—

The Samaritan Petition against the Jews.

"Rehum the Master of the Rolls 9 and Shemshai the Secretary, and their associates, of the Dinia, and Afrasthakia, Tarfia, Afrasia, Arkair, Babalia, Shushaukia, Dahira, Almia, and the rest of the Peoples whom the Great and beloved Asnaper brought over to his City of Shameron, with others over the River."

(This is copied from the letter 11 they sent to King Arthakshasta.)—"Your servants of the men over the 12 river, and others, inform the king himself of the Jews who ascended from you to us at Jerusalem, who are building the rebellious and bad City, and have finished the walls, and they are joining them. However, it should 13 be made known to the king, that if this City is rebuilt, and its walls are completed, they will not pay tribute, tax, or toll, and then the king will suffer. Consequently because we eat 14 of the salt of the Palace we have advised the king; for it is not right for us to look at such dishonour, and we have sent to inform the king, so that 15 the books of records of your fathers may be searched, when you will find in the book of records that this City, is a rebellious town, and dangerous to kings and governors, and exerted itself to excite disturbance in former times;—and for that reason this City was burnt down. We wish therefore 16 to advise the king, that if this City should be rebuilt, and its walls completed, you will have no province over the river in consequence."

The King's Reply.

The King replied by a letter:— 1 "To Rehum, the Master of the Rolls, and Shemshai, the Secretary, and the rest of their Associates, who reside in Shameron and the district beyond the river, health and the rest;— 2 "The letter you sent to us has been 18 openly read before us, so I signed an order, and they searched, and have found that this City from former times, has risen against the kings, and rebelled, and excited sedition in itself. 19 And that powerful kings have existed 20 in Jerusalem, and governed all beyond the river, and tribute, tax, and toll, were paid to them. Consequently, you must make a decree to restrain these men, and that this City must not be rebuilt, until I shall sign a Decree; and learn not to be slow to execute this. Why should the Royal affairs be endangered?"

The Building of the Temple Stopped.

When the copy of the letter of king Arthakshasta was read before Rehum, and Shemshai the Secretary and their Associates, they at once proceeded to Jerusalem, against the Jews and prevented them by force of an army. Thus the work at the House of GOD in Jerusalem was stopped until the third year of the reign of Dariush king of the Persians.]]

(529 B.C.) The Temple again Begun.

Then the Preachers Hagai and Zakeriah-ben-Adna preached to the Jews who were in Jerusalem with the power of the GOD of Israel upon them. Consequently Zerubabel-bar-Shalthai, and Jeshua-bar-Jozadak began again to rebuild the House of GOD at Jerusalem, and the Preachers of GOD helped them.

The Governor of Samaria Interferes.

Then Tatnai the Governor of the Over-river, and Shatharboznai, and their Associates sent and enquired of them, "Who gave a permission to rebuild this Temple and to close up this wall?" They also continued to ask them, "What are the names of the men who are erecting this building?" However the eye of GOD was upon the leaders of the Jews, and they did not prevent them until a despatch could be sent to Dariush, and a reply received about it.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 24. The passage which I place in brackets from v. 6 to v. 24 of Ch. 4 of "Ezra," was evidently written long after the period of Zerubbabel, who led the First Return under the Decree of Cyrus, in 536 B.C., and is a note of explanation of the course of events between him and Ezra the Priest, whom I call the "Second Ezra," and "Nehemiah the Second," who lived nearly a century after Zerubbabel. The failure of previous translators to perceive this has involved the history in a wild confusion, of which Anti-Christians have taken full advantage.—F. F.

Copy of Tatnai's Letter.

A Copy of the letter, that Tatnai the Over-river Governor, and Shetharboznai, and their associates, the Afaraskia, who were over the river, sent to the king Dariush. (They sent a letter to him written in this form.)

"To Dariush the King; Perfect health!"

"It should be known to the king that on our going to the Province of the Jews, to the Temple of the GREAT GOD, we found it rebuilt with great stones, with timber fixed in the walls, and the work is being pushed forward, and the works prosper in their hands. We consequently asked the Leaders, 'Who gave you a Decree for this Temple?—to build it, and close in the walls?' We also demanded the names of their leaders so as to inform you of the names of those men. When they returned us this answer:—'We are the servants of the GOD of Heaven and Earth! and we are rebuilding the Temple that was formerly here many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and furnished. But because our ancestors provoked the GOD of HEAVEN, he gave them to the hand of Nebukadnezzar, king of Babel, the Kasdia, and he overthrew that Temple, and transported the People to Babel. But in the first year of Koresh king of Babel, King Koresh signed a Decree for this Temple to be rebuilt. And also the gold and silver furniture of the Temple of GOD, which Nebukadnezzar transferred from the Temple of Jerusalem, and carried to the Temple of Babel, King Koresh transferred from the Temple of Babel, and delivered to Shashbazar who was appointed Governor there, and said to him, 'Take this furniture, and carry it to the Temple of Jerusalem, and rebuild the House of GOD on its own foundations. Shashbazar consequently came,—and laid the foundations of the House of GOD at Jerusalem,—and from that time until now it has been building and is not completed.'

"Consequently, therefore, if it pleases the king, let there be a search at the Royal Treasury at Babel, to ascertain if King Koresh did sign a Decree for the rebuilding of this House of GOD in Jerusalem? And let the king send us information about this affair."

Darius Orders a Search for Cyrus's Decree.

6 King Dariush consequently signed an order, and they searched in the Record Office of the Treasury where the archives were kept in Babel, and found at Akhmetha the Capital of the Government of Media, a roll,¹ on which was written round the records:—

Copy of the Decree of Cyrus.

3 "In the first year of Koresh the King:

"King Koresh signs a Decree concerning the House of GOD at Jerusalem:—

"Let a House be built for the Sacrificing of Sacrifices. And let the foundations be constructed in length sixty cubits, and sixty cubits broad.

4 "Let it be built of three courses of great stones, and a course of timber: and let the cost be paid from the Royal Palace.

5 "And also let the gold and silver furniture of the House of GOD, that Nebukadnezzar removed from the Temple of Jerusalem, and carried to Babel, be restored, and taken to the Temple in Jerusalem, and put in its proper place in the House of GOD: "

Confirmation by Darius.

6 "Consequently, Tatnai, Governor of the Over-river, Shathar-boznai, and

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 6, v. 2. "A roll"—or probably it should be translated "Cylinder,"—a staff of clay, which at that period was the usual substance upon which Government records and other writing was written, or rather engraved, and the clay then baked into pottery in a kiln, so as to be indestructible, as the Assyrian and Babylonian discoveries of Layard and others have shown by exploration of the buried ruins of those ancient Cities. These discoveries throw great light upon the contemporary Biblical histories, and prove that at the time under review here, the Fourth century before Christ, papyrus or other paper had not been invented. The גללי (Galali) Rolls spoken of in the Scriptures of earlier date than 400 a.c. were undoubtedly of the above kind, and the ספרים (Seferim), Books, were slabs, slates, or thin board tablets, as the word means "a split-off." I note this, for the fact disposes of certain attacks upon the Biblical records, and of the alleged authenticity of (asserted) stupendously ancient "Papyri," containing statements contradictory to the Scriptural histories. Those "Papyri" are in reality modern forgeries to meet the desires of European sceptics who seek to assail the Christian Faith.—F. F.

your associates, the Afarskia, of the Over-river, must refrain from interference. Let the works at the House of GOD be done. Let the Governor of the Jews, and the leaders of the Jews construct the House of GOD upon its site.

"And I further sign this Decree as to what you shall provide for these Leaders of the Jews who are building this House of GOD;—That there shall be paid from the Royal Treasuries,—from the taxes of the Over-river,—the expenses that may be incurred by those men, and without delay. And whatever is needed, whether of young bullocks, and rams, and lambs, to offer to the GOD OF THE HEAVENS,—wheat, salt, wine, oil, as demanded by the Priests in Jerusalem, you shall give to them, day by day;—of which fail not!—for them to present perfumes to the GOD OF THE HEAVENS, and to pray for the life of the King and his children.

"And I sign a Decree, that every person who may alter this letter a beam shall be taken from his house, and he shall be nailed upright upon it, and his house be made a dunghill for it. And may the GOD who dwells there, confound and overthrow every king and People who extends his hand to alter or injure the House of GOD that is in Jerusalem!

"I, Dariush, have confirmed this Decree. Let it be executed at once."

Therefore Tatnai, the Governor of the Over-river, Shethar-boznai, and their Associates, because of what King Dariush had sent them in the above, acted at once; and the Leaders of the Jews built, and prospered, through the Preaching of the Preachers Hagai, and Zakeriah-bar-Adoa. So they built and completed, according to the order of the GOD of Israel, and the Decrees of Koresh and Dariush and Arthakshasta the kings of the Persians.

(B.C. 515.) The Temple Finished and Dedicated.

So the temple was finished on the third day of the month Adar, in the sixth year of the reign of King Dariush, when the Children of Israel, with the Priests and Levites, and the rest of the sons of the Transports, celebrated the Dedication of the House of GOD with delight. At this Dedication they offered in the House of GOD a hundred bullocks, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs; and for a sin-offering for all Israel, twelve He-goats, for the number of the Tribes of Israel.

- 18 They also appointed the Divisions of the Priests, and the courses of the Levites for the service of GOD at Jerusalem, as written in the book of Moses.

The Passover Festival Restored.

- 19 Then the Sons of the Transports made the Passover on the fourteenth of the first month; for the Priests and Levites had purified themselves together,—all of them were purified,

—so they slew the Passover for all the sons of the Transports,—both for their brothers the Priests, and for themselves, and all the Children of Israel ate it.—Those who had returned from the Transportation, and all who were purified from the defilement of the Heathen land, who had come to seek the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel. So they made the Feast of Unfermented bread for seven days, with joy, for the LORD had gladdened them, and softened the heart of the king of Ashur towards them to strengthen their hands in the works at the House of the GOD of Israel.

END OF THE HISTORY OF THE FIRST RESTORATION.

EZRA.

BOOK THE SECOND.

(457 B.C.) The Autobiography of the Second Ezra.¹

- 7 And after these affairs, in the reign of Arthakshasta, king of Persia, Ezra-ben-Seriah-ben-Azeriah,-ben-2 Hilkiyah,-ben-Shalom,-ben-Zadok, 3 -ben-Ahitub-ben-Ameriah-ben-Azeriah,-ben-Morioth,-ben-Zerakia, 5 -ben-Uzi,-ben-Buki,-ben-Abishua, -ben-Phinehas,-ben-Eleazer,-ben-6 Aaron,—the High Priest,—he, Ezra went up from Babel. He was well accomplished in the Laws of Moses, that the LORD the GOD of Israel gave. The king also endowed him, on account of the power of the EVER-LIVING GOD upon him, with all that 7 he requested from him. There also went up some of the Children of Israel, and some Priests and Levites, and Singers, and Attendants, to Jerusalem, in the seventh year of king 8 Arthakshasta, who arrived at Jerusalem in the fifth month of the 9 seventh year of the king. For on the first of the first month the ascent from Babel was commanded and in ¹ NOTE.—Ch. 7, v. 1. I think there were two statesmen named Ezra, the history of whose administrations is given in this Book, or these two Books, for the period of time between the Ezra of Cyrus's restoration and that under Arthakshasta, 79 years, is too long to have been the active life of one man. I therefore separate the two narratives. This second Ezra was, as stated, a priest, the first Ezra, or Zerubabel, being clearly a civil statesman.—F. F.

the first of the fifth month he arrived at Jerusalem, by the good help of his GOD to him; for Ezra had set his heart to study the Law of the LORD, and to practice and teach its Institutions and Decrees of Israel.

Arthakshasta's Letter of Appointment of Ezra.

Now this is a copy of the Letter which King Arthakshasta gave to Ezra the Priest, the accomplished in the commands of the EVER-LIVING, and His Institutions, to Israel.

"ARTHAKSHASTA, the King of Kings, to Ezra the Priest, the Accomplished in the writings of the Beneficent and Perfect GOD OF THE HEAVENS:—

"I have signed a Decree that all the People of Israel in my Empire with their Priests and Levites who wish to go with you to Jerusalem, may go. Because you are sent from the Presence of the King, and his seven Counsellors, to enquire about Judea and Jerusalem, with the Law of your GOD in your hand, And to carry the silver and gold given by the King and his Counsellors to the GOD of Israel, who dwells in Jerusalem. Also, all the silver and gold that you have collected in all the Provinces of Babel, with the free-will offerings of your People, and the Priests who present freely to the House of their GOD in Jerusalem.

- 17 "On this account you shall purchase diligently with that money, oxen, rams, lambs, and their food and drink offerings, and offer them upon the Altar of your GOD at Jerusalem. And you may do with the remainder of the silver and gold what seems best in the opinion of yourself and your friends for your GOD. And also the furniture that is given to you to place in the House, offer them as a present to GOD, in Jerusalem. But whatever besides may be needful for the House of your GOD, that it occurs to you to present, provide for it from the Royal Treasury.
- 21 "And I, myself, Arthakshasta, the King, sign this Decree to all the Treasurers of the Over-river, that whatever Ezra the Priest, the Accomplished in the Law of the GOD OF THE HEAVENS, demands of you, you shall immediately execute it, to the amount of one hundred talents of silver, and to a hundred Kors of wheat, and to a hundred baths of wine, and a hundred baths of oil, and of salt without noting.
- 23 "All that is commanded by the GOD OF THE HEAVENS, let it be done quickly for the House of the GOD OF THE HEAVENS;—for why should there be anger against the Dominions of the King and his children?
- 24 "And we notify you, that regarding all the Priests, Levites, Singers, Door-keepers, Attendants, or Servants of this House of GOD; it is not allowed to impose upon them tribute, tax, or toll.
- 25 "And you, Ezra, according to the Science of your GOD that you possess, appoint Judges, and Magistrates, who can administer Justice to all the People of the Over-river. All should understand the Law of your GOD; and if they do not know it, teach them. But whoever will not practise the Laws of your GOD, and the laws of the king, let swift justice be done on him at once; whatever results, whether death, or uprooting, or fining, or imprisonment."
- 27 I thanked the LORD GOD of our fathers who put such things into the heart of the King, to adorn the House
- 28 of the LORD at Jerusalem; and who has extended mercy to me before the King and his counsellors, and all the Great Generals of the king! Thus I was bold, because the hand of the LORD GOD was with me, and I collected some of the heads of my People to ascend with me.

Ezra Collects his Camp.

I collected them at the River that 15 goes by Ahava; and encamped there three days, where I reviewed the People and the Priests, and discovered there were none from the Beni Levi

16 there. I consequently sent to Aliezar and Arial and Shemiah, and Alnathan, and Jarib, and to Alnathan, and to Nathan, and Zakeriah, and to Meshulam, their Chiefs, and to Joirib, 17 and to Alnathan, the Teachers, and despatched them to Aho the Chief in the district of Kasiphia, and put a message in their mouths to transmit to Aho, and the Attendants their relatives in the District of Kasiphia, to send to us Guardians of the House of 18 our GOD. And they sent to us, by the good hand of our GOD being with us, intelligent men from the Beni Makhli-ben-Levi-ben-Israel; and Sharbiah and eighteen of his sons and brothers; with Hashabiah, and 19 Jeshaiiah, from the Beni Merari, with twenty of his brothers and sons. 20 And from the Attendants who were appointed by David, and his Officers to serve the Levites, as Attendants two hundred and twenty, all of them properly catalogued.

A Fast to Pray for a Safe Journey.

21 I then proclaimed a Fast at the River by Ahava to humble ourselves before our GOD, to seek from him a safe journey, for ourselves, our children, and all our baggage, for I was 22 ashamed to ask the king for an army and cavalry to guard us from enemies on the road, because we had said to the king the power of our GOD was with all who seek Him to benefit them, but His power and anger upon all who 23 forsake Him. We consequently fasted and entreated from our GOD about this and He was ready with us.

The Subscriptions to the Temple.

24 I next selected twelve from the Chief Priests—that is Sherbiah and Hashabiah, and ten of their companions with them, and weighed the silver and gold to them, as well as the vessels presented to the House of GOD, the presents of the King and his Counsellors, and his Generals, 26 and the subscriptions of all Israel. I there weighed into their custody six hundred talents of silver, and a hundred and fifty talents of silver vessels and a hundred talents of gold.¹

Beside twenty bowls of gold of a 27 thousand Danics, and two vessels of best bronze gold, as valuable as gold. I then said to them, "You are con- 28 secrated to the LORD, and the sacred vessels, and the silver and gold are presented to the EVER-LIVING GOD of your fathers, so guard and preserve 29 them, until you weigh them to the chief Priests and Levites, and the Chiefs of the Families of Israel at Jerusalem, who will bring them to the House of our GOD."

The Priests and Levites then ac- 30 cepted the silver and gold, and the vessels, to carry to Jerusalem to the House of our GOD.

The March Begun from the Ahava.

We afterwards marched from the 31 River by Ahava, on the twelfth of the first month, and the hand of GOD was with us, and protected us from the hand of any enemy, or robber on the journey. Thus we arrived at Jeru- 32 salem and rested for three days, and on the fourth day the silver, gold and vessels for the House of our GOD were weighed by the hand of Meremoth- 33 ben-Adriah the Priest, and with him were Aliezar-ben-Phinchas, and with them Jozabad-ben-Ishua, and Noadiah- 34 ben-Bigvi, the Levite, the whole were by number and weight, and the whole weight was recorded at the time.

The Returned Transports Offer Gifts.

The sons of the Transportation, 35 who had come from captivity, then offered burnt-offerings to the GOD of Israel;—Twelve bulis, for all Israel; Ninety-six rams; Seventy-seven lambs; and Twelve he-goats as a sin-offering;—The whole were a burnt-offering to the LORD.

They afterwards delivered the 36 Decrees of the king to the Royal Governors and Administrators of the Over-river, and they assisted the People and the House of GOD.

The Second Ezra, the Priest.

Separates the Jews from Pagans.

When all this was done, the Chiefs 9 approached me and said; "The take ten times as the equivalent, it represents £7,188,150 sterling. If fifteen times, it reaches £10,592,300 sterling, and even that is probably below the then commercial power of this magnificent subscription.—F. F.

People of Israel have not separated themselves, or the Priests and Levites, from the populations of the countries, with their abominations,—that is of the Cananites, the Khithites, the Perizites, the Jebusites, the Amonites, the Moabites, the Mitzeraim, and the Amorites,—for they have taken some of their daughters for themselves, and their sons have corrupted their Sacred Race, with the Peoples of the countries, and the hand of the nobles and gentry has been the first in this sin."

- 3 When I heard this report I tore off my robes, and cloak, and pulled the hair off my head, and beard, and sat
4 down in consternation, and all who were terrified at the words of the GOD of Israel collected to me about this great wrong, and I sat in consternation until the evening sacrifice.
5 But when the evening sacrifice was offered I rose from my depression with my robe and cloak torn, and knelt on my knees, and spread my hands to my
6 EVER-LIVING GOD, and exclaimed;—
"My GOD! I blush and am ashamed to raise my face before You! for our passions increase on our head, and our sins are piled up to the skies!
7 From the times of our fathers we have been in great sin to this day! and for our faults, we, our kings, and Priests have been given to the hands of the kings of the Peoples; to ruin, to shame, and to degradation, and a
8 blushing face, as we now are. But now when a little momentary kindness has come from our EVER-LIVING GOD for a portion of us to escape, and to give us a nail in this Sacred Place,—that our GOD may enlighten our eyes, and grant us a little revival
9 in our bondage,—for we are slaves,—but our GOD has not forsaken us in our slavery,—but has extended mercy to us before the king of the Persians,—to grant us a revival, and to raise the House of our GOD, and to repair its ashes, and has given us a fence for 10 Judah in Jerusalem;—then now, what can be said to our GOD after this,—when we abandon Your 11 commands, which You commanded by the means of your servants, the Preachers, saying;—

"The land which you are going to possess, is a defiled country from the defilements of the People of the country, and from their depravities with which they have filled it from place to place, in corrupting themselves. Consequently give not your 12 sons to their daughters, nor your daughters to their sons, and never seek their peace or prosperity for ever! So that you may be strong and eat the produce of the country, and transmit it to your children for ever!"—And after all that has come 13 upon us for our bad practices, and for our great offences,—although You our GOD, have punished us less than our sins,—and given us an escape like this,—we again break Your 14 commands, and marry with these depraved people!—Be not angry with us to the extreme!—lest no portion should escape!—EVER-LIVING GOD 15 of Israel! You are righteous, for we a remnant, have escaped, as to-day;—Look! we are before You in our guilt! for none can stand up before You about this!"

The People Promise to Reform.

And when Ezra was praying, and 10 confessed himself in tears, and had flung himself down before the House of GOD, a very great crowd of men, women, and children from all Israel collected to him;—and they wept with much weeping. And Shekariah- 2 ben-Jekhiel, one of the sons of Aulam, addressed, and said to Ezra;—

"We have done wrong to our GOD, when we turned to marry women from the Peoples of the country; yet there is hope for Israel over this. So 3 now let us make an agreement with our GOD to expel all the women and the children born of them, according to the advice of my Lord, and of those who tremble at the commands of our GOD! But let it be done according to law. Arise for the affair 4 is yours,—and we will support you in its execution."

Ezra consequently arose and swore 5 the Chief Priests, and Levites, and all Israel to do according to this proposal;—And they swore it.

(B. C. 456.) A Public Meeting Called to Decide How.

Then Ezra arose from before the 6 House of GOD, and went to the residence of Jhokhanan-ben-Alishib where he lodged. He ate neither bread nor drank water, for he was grieved at the great wrong. But they 7 made a proclamation in Judah and Jerusalem, to all the sons of the

- Transportation, to assemble at Jerusalem; and that every one who did not come at the third day, as advised by the Chiefs, and Judges, all his property should be forfeited, and himself excluded from the Great Assembly.
- 9 The whole of the Officers of Judah and Benjamin therefore collected at Jerusalem on the third day, which was the twentieth of the ninth month, and all the people who sat in the Square of the House of GOD, were trembling about the business, and for the rains.

The Public Debate.

- 10 Then Ezra the Priest arose, and said to them;—
- “You are guilty, and have married foreign women, to add to the faults of Israel.—But now confess it to the EVER-LIVING GOD of your fathers, and do what will please Him, and separate yourselves from the Peoples of the country, and from the wives you have married!”
- 12 All the assembly thereupon answered, and said with a loud voice, “Let it be done as you have said to us. The people are very wet and it is the Rainy Season,—and we are not able to stand outside,—and the business cannot be settled in a day or two,—for we are many who
- 14 have erred in this thing. Let our Chiefs, now, be appointed by all the public, and let anyone in our towns who have married strange women go to them, at appointed times, and the Magistrates of every village, and the Judges, until the hot anger of our GOD about this matter is turned from us.”
- 15 However Jonathan-ben-Ashal and Jhaziah-ben-Thikna stood up against this,—and Meshulam, and Shabthi the Levite, supported them.
- 16 The sons of the Transportation effected it nevertheless, and they selected, with Ezra the Priest, Princes heads of Families of their ancestors, and appointed all of them, to sit on the first day of the tenth month to
- 17 examine into the business, and they finished about all the men who had married foreign women by the first day of the first month.
- 18 They also found some among the sons of the Priests who had married foreign women, Jeshua-ben-Josadak and his brother Masiah, and Aliazer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah, but they 19 undertook to divorce their wives, and offer a sin-offering of the flock for their sin.

And from the Beni Amer Hanani, 20 and Zebadiah and from the Beni 21 Kharim, Masiah, and Aliah, and Shemiah, Ikhizal, and Uziah; and 22 from the Beni Phashkur, Alzoaini, Masaiah, Ishmael, Nathanal, Jozabad, and Alashah.

And from the Levites; Jozabad, 23 Shimei, and Keliiah, surnamed the Dwarf, Pethaiah, Judah and Aliazor.

And from the Singers; Aliashib. 24 And from the Doorkeepers Shalum, and Telem, and Uri.

And from Israel; 25 From the Beni of Parosh; Raniah and Iziah, and Malkiah, and Beniah; and from the Beni Elam; Mataniah, 26 Zekariah, Aliah; and of the Beni 27 Zatu, Aliani, Aliashib, Mataniah, and Jeremoth, and Zabad, and Aiziza. And of the Beni Babi, 28 Jhohanan, Hananiah, Zabi, Athli; and from the Beni Meshulam, Malak, 29 and Abdiah, Jashub, and Shal, and Ramoth. From the Beni Pathath 30

Moab; Adna, and Kalab, Benaiah, Masiah, Mataniah, Bozalal, and Binni, and Manaseh. And of the Beni 31

Harum; Aliazer, Ishiah, Maikiah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, Benjamin, 32

Maluk, Shemoriah; Of the Beni 33 Hashum; Matni, Matatah, Zabad, 34 Alifelet, Jerimi, Manaseh, Shimi; Of the Beni Bani; Madi, Amram, and

Auwel Benaiah, Bedaiah, Keluhi; 35 Veniah, Meremoth, Aliashib, Mata- 36 riah, Matani, and Jasu; and Bani, 37

and Binni, Shinai, and Shelemiah, 38 and Nathan, and Adiah, Maknadabi, 39

Shashi, Shari, Azarel, and Shelemiah, 40 Shemeriah, Shalum, Amariah, Joseph; 41

Of the Beni Nebo Jebel, Matithiah, 42 Zabad, Zebina, Ido, and Joel, Beniah. 43 All these had married foreign 44 women, and some of these wives had borne children. . . .¹

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 10, v. 44. The End of Ezra, as we have it in the Hebrew text, is apparently only a fragment of his autobiography, for it evidently stops in the middle of a sentence, either by the death of that statesman, or from accident to his manuscript; hence, I would suggest that the books in the Apocrypha, which have come down to us only by a Greek translation, are really parts of his history, and should follow on here.—F F

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

THE SECOND STATESMAN OF THAT NAME.
AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

Nehemiah flourished about 446 B.C.

1 The History of Nehemiah-ben- Shakhaniah

1 IT happened in the month of Nisan,¹ in the twentieth year
(of Arthakshasta) when I was at the 2 Palace of Shushan, Hanani, one of my relatives, and another man came from Judah and Jerusalem from the Jews who had escaped, who were left behind from the Captivity and 3 were in Jerusalem, and they told me that the remnant who were left there out of the Captivity in that Province, were in great distress, and contempt, and the walls of Jerusalem were broken, and its gates had been burnt with fire.

Nehemiah's Prayer for Israel.

4 When I heard their account of this, I sat and wept, and was depressed for some time, and then I fasted and prayed before the GOD
5 OF THE HEAVENS, and I exclaimed ;
" EVER-LIVING GOD of the Heavens
—the GREAT GOD, and Terrible,
Who remembers the Covenant, and shows kindness to those who love
6 Him, and obey His commands,—let Your ears now listen, and Your eyes open to receive the prayer of Your servant, which I pray before You, from day to day, and night to night,
an account of the children of Israel
Your servant, who have sinned against
You ;—and I and my father's family have sinned. We have offended 7 against You, and not obeyed the commands, and Institutions, and Decrees, which You commanded to Your servant Moses. Remember 8 now the promise You communicated to Your servant Moses, saying,

' If you abandon them, I will scatter you amongst the Nations ; but if you 9 return to Me, and guard My Commands, and practise them, although you may be scattered to the extent of the skies, I will collect you from thence, and bring you to the place where I have chosen that My Name should dwell.' And these are Your 10 servants, and Your People whom You redeemed by Your Great Power, and strong hand! ALMIGHTY! I now 11 entreat You let Your ears attend to the prayer of Your servant, and to the prayers of Your servants who delight in and reverence Your NAME, and I pray You to give Your servant success to-day, and grant him favour before this man."

I was then butler to the king.

The King Talks with Nehemiah.

It was in the month of Nisan, in 2
the twentieth year of King Arthak-shasta, when he was at wine, that I carried the wine, and gave it to the King, but my face was sad before him, so the King asked me, " Why is 2 your face sad, when you are not ill?
That can be nothing except sorrow at heart! "

' Then I was very much afraid, but 3 replied to the King ; " May the King live for ever !—Why should not my face be sad, when the town of the tombs of my fathers is ashes, and its gates consumed by fire? "

When the King answered, " What 4 do you ask for? "

So I prayed to the GOD OF THE

1 NOTE.—Ch. 1, v. 1. The month should be Nisan, נִסָּן, not כִּסְלִי, Kislu, see Ch. 2,
v. 1. In the Hebrew alphabet the slip of a pen in copying makes the difference. The opening of Nehemiah seems to intimate that a revolt of the pagan colonists had occurred between 457 and 446 B.C., in which Jerusalem was burnt and the Second Ezra was slain.—

- 5 HEAVENS and said to the king, "If it seems good to the king, and if your servant has favour before you, it is to send me to Judea to the burial town of my fathers,—and I will rebuild it."
- 6 The King then asked me—and the Queen sat beside him—"How long will you be gone? and when will you return?"

The King makes Him Governor of Jerusalem.

- Thus it pleased the King, and he sent me, and I fixed a time with him, and said to the king, "If it is pleasing to the king, let them give me letters to the Governors of the Over-river, so that they may allow me to proceed 8 until I arrive at Judea. And letters to Asaph, the Keeper of the King's Parades,¹ that he may give me timber to construct the Gates of the Burial-place belonging to the spot, and for the walls of the town, and for the house I am going to."

- The King consequently gave me them by the good influence of GOD 9 upon me, and I proceeded to the Governors of the Over-river, and gave them the letters of the king. The King had also sent with me Officers of the Army and cavalry.
- 10 But when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah his slave, the Amonite, heard the affair, it grieved them very greatly, that a man should come to try to benefit the Children of Israel.
- 11 I, however, went to Jerusalem and 12 was there three days; but had risen in the night, and a few men with me, and had informed no man what GOD had put into my heart to do for Jerusalem,—and I had no animal with me, except the animal I rode upon, and at night I went out by the Valley Gate, opposite the Snakes' Well, and on to the Dung Gate, and I saw the walls of Jerusalem that were shattered and broken and its Gates consumed by fire. From there I passed to the Well Gate, and the King's Reservoir, but there was not a place 15 for my animal to pass through. I afterwards went and viewed by night along the brook, and surveyed the shattered wall,—thence I turned and entered by the Vale Gate, and came 16 back. But the Deputy Governors did not know that I had gone, or what I had done; nor had I informed the Jews, or the Priests, or the Deputies, or the nobles, and the rest, what I had done. I said, however, to them, "You see the misery that we are in.—How Jerusalem is ashes, and its gates burnt with fire.² Let us go and rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, when we shall no longer be an object of contempt." I also explained to them the beneficent hand of the EVER-LIVING that was with me, as well as the promises of the King which he had promised me, when they replied, "We will arise and rebuild"; and they invigorated their hands for good.

But when Sanballat the Horonite, 19 and Tobiah his slave, the Amonite, and Geshem, the Arabian, heard it, they laughed at, and jeered about us, and asked "What is this business that you are doing? Are you going to rebel against the king?"

I, however, replied to them, and said: "The GOD OF THE HEAVENS has given us prosperity, so we rise up and build;—but you have no share in it, nor right, nor traditions in Jerusalem."

The Walls of Jerusalem Rebuilt.

Aliashib the High Priest, and his 3 relatives the Priests accordingly arose and built the Sheep Gate, consecrated, and set up its doors, and consecrated from the Tower of Hamah to the Tower of Hananal. And the men of Jeriko built from the side of it; and next to them Zikriben-Amri built. And the sons of Hasenah built the Fish Gate and set up the doors, with its bolts and bars. And Merimoth-ben-Auriah, 4 ben-Akkoz repaired their side; and next to them Meshalum-ben-Berekiah-ben-Meshabzabel repaired; and next to them, the Thakotes repaired, but their gentry did not bring their necks to the work of their Master.⁴ And Jorada-ben-Pask, 6 and Meshulam-ben-Basodiah, repaired the Old Gate; they built it and set up its doors, and bolts and bars. And next to them Melatiah, 7 the Gibanite, and Jadon the Merothnite, men of Gibaon and Mizpha, Presidents of the Over-river Court, repaired, and next to them Uziel- 8 ben-Harakhiah, and the Goldsmiths repaired; and next to them Hananiah, head of the Apothecaries, and set Jerusalem free to the breadth of 10 ben-Ilur the Governor of half the district of Jerusalem repaired; And next to them Jediah-ben-Harumaf repaired, and all before his house; 11 and next to him Hatorh-ben-Has-habniah. * Next from there Malkiah-ben-Ilarim repaired; and Hashub-12 ben-Pathakh-Moab repaired to the Foundry Tower; And next to them Shalem-ben-Halukash, Governor of half of the district of Jerusalem, re-13 paired, joined with his daughters;

 Hanan and the people of Zanoth repaired the Valley Gate; they built it, and set up its doors, and bolts and bars, besides building a thousand cubits of wall, as far as the Dung
 14 Gate; And Mikiah-ben-Rekab, the Governor of the District of Beth-Nakerim, repaired the Dung Gate.
 He built it, and set up the doors,
 15 bolts, and bars. And Shalum-ben-Kolhozah, Governor of the District of Mitzfa, repaired the Well Gate.
 He built it, roofed, and set up the doors, bolts, and bars, with the wall of the pool of Shilah, to the King's Garden, and as far as the Stairs going up to the City of David.
 16 After him, Nehemiah-ben-Azebuk,
 Governor of half the District of Beth Zoar, repaired to opposite the Tomb of David, and as far as the Reservoir he made, and to the Barracks of the 17 Guards. After him, the Levites, Rehum-ben-Bami, repaired at that side, and Shebiah the Governor of the half-district of Qailah with its 18 district. After him, his relatives the Beni Bani, and Benhadad, Governor
 19 of half the district of Qailah. Next to him Azer-ben-Jeshua, Governor of Mizfah, repaired another opposite the ascent to the Arsenal corner.
 20 After him, Baruk-ben-Zabi energetically repaired another length from the Corner to the entry of the House 21 of Alishah the High Priest. And after him, Merimoth-ben-Auriahben-Akutz, another length from the entry of the House of Alishib to the extent of the residence of Alishib.
 22 And after him, the Priests of the Circuit repaired. And after them,
 Benjamin and Hashub, opposite their 23 houses. * After them Azriah-ben-Mashiah-ben-Ananiah, at the side of 24 his house. After them, Binni-Ben-hadad another length from the residence of Azriah, to the Corner and 25 the turning. Palal-ben-Auzi opposite the Corner and the tower that projects from the Higher Royal Palace where the Guards' Barracks are. After him, Pediah-ben-Parash, with the Attendants who were 26 lodged on the Hill, opposite the Water Gate, towards the East, where the Tower projects. After them, the 27

 Thakoites repaired another length, from opposite the Great Projecting Tower to the wall of the Hill. From 28 the Horse Gate, the Priests each repaired opposite his house. After 29 them, Zadok-ben-Amer, repaired opposite his house. And after him, Shemaiah-ben-Shakniah the Keeper of the East Gate repaired. And then 30 Hananian-ben-Shalamiah repaired; and Kanun-ben-Zalaf, the Shishite, another portion; after him, Meshallam-ben-Barakaih repaired opposite his lodgings. After him Malkiah 31 ben-Azrofi repaider as far as the House of the Attendants, and of the Merchants opposite the Guards' Gate, and as far as the ascent of the Corner.
 And between the ascent of the Corner, 32 and the Sheep Gate, the Goldsmiths and Merchants repaired.

Sanballat's Fury at the Restoration of the Wall.

(Ch. 4, A. V., v. 1.

But when Sanballat heard that we 33 had rebuilt the wall, he was furious.
 He insulted and laughed at the Jews, and asked of his companions and the 34
 garrison at Shameron, enquiring:
 "What would these beggarly Jews do? Would they fortify themselves?
 Would they sacrifice? Can they in a day revive the stones from the heaps of dust into which they were burnt?"

And Tobiah the Amonite supported 35 him and said; "Why if a fox assails what they build,—it could break the wall they have built?"

"Hear, our GOD, how they insult us! 36 and return their contempt on their own heads, and deliver them to be plundered in a land of captivity, and 37 do not cover up their villaiuy nor blot out their sins from before You, for they have jeered in the presence of the builders."

We, however, rebuilt the walls,— 38 and the wall joined to its half, for the heart of the People was in the work.

Sanballat decides to Assail Nehemiah and Destroy the Wall.

- 4 But when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and Amonites, and Ashdodites heard that the extent of the walls was erected at Jerusalem—that the breaches began to be closed,
- 2 they were very furious, and all of them agreed together to go to war with Jerusalem, and to cause trouble to it, but we prayed to our GOD, and appointed a guard against them by day and night to oppose them.
- 4 Then Judah said, "The strength of the labourers fails, at the heaps of burnt ashes, so we are not able to build at the walls."
- 5 And our opponents said, "They shall not know, nor perceive until we are come into the midst of them and kill, and stop their work."
- 6 And when the Jews who resided amongst them came they told us repeatedly "Wherever you turn round they will assail you!"
- 7 I therefore placed in the bottom of the moat behind the walls, in the dry parts, a Guard of troops for the People, with swords, spears and
- 8 bows. Thus I revived them, and stood up, and said to the Captains and Subalterns, and the rest of the Force, "Fear not before them! Remember the ALMIGHTY, the GREAT and TERRIBLE,—and fight for your countrymen, your sons and daughters, your wives and homes."
- 9 Thus our Opponents heard that we knew,—and that GOD had broken their intention, and that we had all returned to our work on the wall.—
- 10 But from that day half of the youths worked at the wall, and half with the guards, with spears and shields, and bows, and coats of mail, with Officers
- 11 over them. All the House of Judah built at the Wall, with the labourers. The men worked on the one side at the work, and on the other went on
- 12 guard. The builders also had each a sword girt at his waist. Thus they built,—and the Trumpeter was at my side. I also said to the Officers and Subalterns, and the rest of the people, "The work is great and extensive, and we are scattered upon the wall
- 14 at a distance one from the other. In whatever place, therefore you hear the sound of the trumpet, collect there to us,—Our GOD will fight for us.

Thus we did at the work;—and 15 half kept guard with spears from the rise of dawn until the stars came out. I also, at this time, said to each man 16 and his assistant, "Lodge in Jerusalem and be with us at night as a guard, and work by day," and neither I, nor 17 my brothers, and attendants,—or the men of my Guard, who followed me, —ever regarded our clothing. - - - Each went to the water, - - -

However, the People and their 5 wives complained greatly against their Judean countrymen, and some said 2 "We have many sons and daughters, —let us reap the corn, and eat and live."

Others said, "We are mortgaging 3 our farms, and vineyards, and houses, and are buying corn for hunger."

And there were others who said, 4 "We have had to borrow money to pay the King's taxes on our farms and vineyards!—And now our bodies are 5 like the bodies of our slaves and our children like their children's bodies! For see! we are bringing the bodies of our sons and daughters into slavery! And some of our daughters have become slaves;—so GOD is not with us,—for foreigners possess our farms and vineyards!"

Nehemiah Calls a Public Meeting

But I was very furious when I 6 heard these complaints, and these statements, yet I reflected in my 7 mind, and reproved the Officers and Subalterns, and said to them; "It seems you all exact usury from your countrymen." I consequently appointed a Great Meeting about them, when I said;

Nehemiah's Condemnation of Slavery.

"We have redeemed our Judean 9 brothers who had been sold to the heathen, as far as we could,—but you even sell your own brothers, who should be sold to us!"

And they were silent, and could not find a word.—So I continued;—

"The thing that you do is not right—should you not walk in the fear of our GOD, because of the contempt of the heathen, our enemies? 10 And even if I, my brothers, and attendants have lent them money and corn on interest!—we will now 11 abandon that interest.—I beg of you to return to them to-day their farms and vineyards, their oliveyards, and their houses, and also the one per cent.¹ on the money, and of the corn, and wine, and of the oil that you lend to them."

12 And they replied, "We will restore, and will no more demand it from them. Thus we shall do as you say."

Then I called the Priests, and swore them to do according to that declaration.

13 I afterwards shook out my lap and exclaimed, "May GOD shake out like that every person from His House and property who does not adhere to this declaration!—May he be shaken out like that and dissipated!"

And all the Meeting said "So be it," and thanked the LORD. And the People acted in accordance with the declaration.

Neheemiah Appointed Governor of Judea.

14 And further, from the day I was appointed to be Governor of the country of Judea—from the twentieth year to the thirty-second year of King Arthakshasta,—twelve years,—neither I, nor my relatives, have taken the salary of the Governor, 15 while the former Governors who were before me burdened the people, and exacted from them bread and wine, along with forty shekels of silver. Their Attendants also lorded over the people;—but I did not do so,— 16 because of the fear of GOD. I also persisted in work upon the wall, and bought no estate, and all my attendants collected there at the work. 17 And of the Judeans and officers there were a hundred and fifty persons at my table, beside the guests who visited us from the surrounding 18 nations. What was prepared daily was an ox, six fat sheep, and fowls, for me; and every ten days a sufficient quantity of various wines; and yet I never demanded the Governor's Provisions, for that slavery was heavy upon the people.—Remember me, 19 my GOD, for all the good that I have done to this People.

Sanballat Thyrulens Neheemiah.

When, however, it was reported 6 to Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Gheshem, the Arabian, and to the others of our enemies that I had rebuilt the wall, and no breach was left in it, except that at the time the doors were not fixed in the Gates, San- 2 ballat, and Gheshem with him, sent to me and said, "Come and let us see each other in a village on the plain of Anno." But they intended 3 to do me an injury. I consequently sent a messenger to them to reply;— "I am doing a great work, and cannot come down. Why should the work cease by my absence, and going to you?"

They, however, sent me a similar 4 message four times, and I returned to them the same answer. Then 5 Sanballat sent his servant to me a fifth time, and an open letter in his hand in which was written;—

Sanballat's Letter.

"It is reported amongst the peo- 6 ples,—and Gheshem says it,—that you and the Judeans are preparing to rebel;—consequently you are building the wall, and that you hope 7 to be their king, according to these reports. And that you have set Preachers to proclaim about you in Jerusalem; to call you King of Judea. But now the King has heard these reports. So now come, and we will consult together."

Neheemiah's Answer.

But I sent to him to say; 8 "None of those things that you assert have been done, but you contrive them out of your own heart; 9 for all of them are to terrify us; but you have not succeeded; you only strengthen my hands."

I then went to the house of 10 Shemaiah-ben-Daliah-ben-Mahitabel who was ill,—and he said "Let us meet at the House of GOD,—at the inner Temple,—and close the doors of the Temple, for they will come by night to murder you!"

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 5, v. 11. "One per cent. on the money." This no doubt means one per cent. per month, which down to our day is the legal rate of interest in Syria and India for loans from the village bankers.—F. F.

- 11 But I replied, "Should a man like me fly? And, who in my position has gone to the Temple and lived?—I will not go!"

Nehemiah finds Preachers have been Hired against Him.

- 12 Then I investigated and saw that GOD had not sent him, but he preached this message to me because Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him. They 13 hired him for the purpose that I might be terrified, and do so, and commit a blunder, which would provide an opportunity for them to accuse me, for they could have accused me upon that act.
14 My GOD, remember Tobiah and Sanballat on account of these actions, and also Nodiah the Preacheress, and the rest of the Preachers who tried to terrify me.

(445 B.C.) Completion of the Wall.

- 15 On the twenty-fifth day of Elul the 16 Wall was completed.—And when all our enemies heard it, and all the heathen who were around us saw, they fell greatly in their own opinions, and perceived that the work was done by our GOD.

The Nobles Plot Against Nehemiah.

- 17 However in those days many of the nobles of Judea sent letters to Tobiah, and in the same way letters 18 from Tobiah came to them. For many of the gentry in Judea were sworn to him, for he was son-in-law to Shekariah-ben-Arah, and Jhohanah his son had married the daughter of Mishulam-ben-Berekiah, so his compliments were sent to me and my words were carried to him, and letters sent from Tobiah to terrify me.

Nehemiah Appoints his Brothers Governors of the Garrison.

- 7 When the Wall was built, and I had fixed the doors, and appointed the Door-keepers, and the Singers and 2 Levites, I then installed my brothers Hanani, and Hananiah Governors over the Castle of Jerusalem, for they were faithful men, and feared GOD more than many.
3 And I commanded them not to open the Gates of Jerusalem until the sun was hot. And, until the Guards were set to keep the Doors shut, and fastened. And appointed

Police for the inhabitants of Jerusalem, each to his district, and every man to his own house.

But the City was wide and large, 4 while the people few for the space of it, and there were no houses built. So my GOD put it into my mind, and 5 I collected the nobles, and gentry, and the People by the register, for I had discovered the Former Registry Records of Genealogy and found written in them.¹

How Ezra Read the Law and Restored it.

- 8 "All the People afterwards collected as one man, to the Square opposite the Water Gate, and requested Ezra the Scholar to produce the Book of the Laws of Moses, which the LORD communicated to Israel.

"Ezra the Priest consequently brought the Law to the Meeting both of the men and the women, for all intelligently to hear it, on the first day of the seventh month, and read it in the Square which is opposite the Water Gate from dawn until mid-day, before the men and women, and the intelligent, and the whole of the people listened to the Book of the Law. Ezra, however, stood to read the book, on a platform of wood that had been made for him and Mathiah for the purpose, and Shema, and Aniah, and Auriah, and Hilfiah, and Masiah stood beside him, on his right, and on his left Pediah, and Mishal, and Malkiah, and Hasham, and Hashbadanah, Zekeriah, and Meshalum. Then Ezra opened the Book in the sight of all the People,—for he was above all the people,—and when he opened it, all the People stood up. Ezra first blessed the GREAT EVER-LIVING GOD:—

"And all the People responded 'Amen! Amen!' with a lifting up of their right hands, and bowed and did reverence to the EVER-LIVING with their face earthwards. Then Jeshua, and Bani, and Sherabiah, Jamin, Akub, Shabthi, Hodiah, Masiah, Kalita, Azriah, Jozabad, Hanan, Piliiah, and the Levites, translated the Law to the People, while the people stood up.

"And they read from the Book of the LAW of GOD with an Interpreter, who translated the meaning, so that they might understand what was read.

"Thus Nehemiah,¹ who was the Governor, and Ezra the Priest, read, and the Levites who translated to the People, said to all the People,

"This day is holy to your EVER-LIVING GOD!—Do not be depressed, and do not weep,—for all the people were weeping as they heard the words of the Law,—'but,' he said to them, 'go, eat the best and drink the sweetest, and send some thing to those who have nothing ready, for the day is sacred to our MASTER ;

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 8, v. 9. This Nehemiah mentioned here was not the writer of the history so called, but another former Governor of the same name (see the Book of Ezra, Ch. 2, v. 2), accompanying Zerubbabel 91 years before —F.F.

- so do not grieve, for to rejoice in the EVER-LIVING will strengthen you.'
- 11 "The Levites also comforted all the people by saying 'Go! for to-day is sacred to the EVER-LIVING, so do not be in grief.'
- 12 "So all the People went to eat and drink, and to send presents, and to make plenty of pleasure, because they understood what had been said to them.
- 13 "But, the day after the Heads of Houses of all the People with the Priests and the Levites collected to Ezra the Scholar, to examine the records of the Law, and found written in the Law which the EVER-LIVING communicated by means of Moses, that the Children of Israel should reside in tents in the seventh month.
- 14 They consequently proclaimed, and passed the proclamation to all the villages, and to Jerusalem to order:
- "Go out to the hills and bring branches of Olive, and branches of good trees, and branches of Myrtle, and branches of Palms, and branches of brushwood, to make tents as it is written.'
- 16 "The people consequently went out, and made themselves tents, each for his family, in their courts, and in the courts of the House of GOD, and in the Square of the Water Gate, and in the Square of the Ephraim

Gate. All the company of those who had returned from the Captivity also made tents and resided in the tents, although the Children of Israel had not done so since the times of Joshua the son of Nun, till that day, and they enjoyed themselves very greatly.

"They also read in the Book of the Law of GOD day by day, from the first day, to the last day, for they kept the feast for seven days, and on the eighth day they closed it, according to the decree.

"Afterwards, on the twenty-fourth day of that month, the Children of Israel met to fast with sackcloth and earth upon them, when all of the race of Israel separated themselves from all the sons of foreigners, and they stood up and confessed about their sins, and the faults of their forefathers. They also stood up at the Place and read in the Book of the Laws of their EVER-LIVING GOD a quarter of the day, and they confessed in sackcloth to their EVER-LIVING GOD for a quarter.

"Then the Levites Jeshua and Bani, Kadmial, Shebaniah, Buni, Sharbiah, Bani, Kanani arose and cried to their EVER-LIVING GOD with a loud voice, and the Levites Jeshua, and Kadmial, Bani and Hashabiah, Shanbnah, Hodiah, Pethakaiah rose on the platform and said; 'Stand up!'

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 9, v. 7. Heb. Aurl signified "Fire," and is so interpreted by the Rabbis, but by us usually taken for the name of an unknown City or Town. I confess to a leaning towards thinking the Hebrew tradition that it means "A Fire" into which the Kasdim threw Abram for refusing their idolatry, is the true reading.—F. F.

8 the country of the Cananite, the Hittite, the Amorite, the Perizite, and the Ghergashite, to his race and You fulfilled Your promise,—for You are just.

9 " You also saw the sufferings of our forefathers amongst the Mitzeraim, and heard their shrieks at the Red
10 Sea, and produced portents and terrors against Pharaoh and all his Ministers, and all the people of his country, because they had been cruel against them;—so made Yourself a 11 NAME on that day, when the sea divided before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea, on the dry, and You flung their pursuers into the deeps, like a stone in the mighty waters!

12 " Then You led them by a Pillar of Cloud by day, and by a Pillar of Fire by night, to light them on the way they had to march, and descended upon Mount Sinai, and spoke with them from the skies; and gave them just Decrees, and True Laws, Institutions, and Beneficial Commandments. You also made known to them Your Holy Sabbath, and Commandments, and Institutions, and Laws, instructing them by means of Moses Your servant.

15 " Then You gave them bread from the skies, when hungry, and brought water from the rock for them when they thirsted, and commanded them to advance to seize the country which You had raised Your hand to give to them.

16 " But they, and our fathers, were haughty, and stiffened their neck, and would not listen to Your instructions; but refused to obey, and would not remember the wonders You had done for them, but stiffened their neck, and in rebellion appointed a Leader to restore them to their slavery.—

" But You are a GOD of forgiveness,—kindness and pity,—slow to anger, and plentiful in mercy,—so 18 did not forsake them.—Although they made for themselves a cast metal Calf, and said ' This is your GOD who brought you up from Mitzeraim,' and 19 offered many insults. Yet You in Your many mercies did not abandon them in the Desert; You did not take away the Pillar of Cloud from them by day, but led them in the way they 20 ought to march. You also gave Your beneficent spirit to instruct them, and did not withhold Your Mana from their mouth, and gave them water when thirsty, and provided for them 21 forty years in the Desert! They were not destitute. Their clothing was not in rags, and their feet were not swollen. You afterwards gave 22 them Kingdoms and Peoples, and distributed portions to them, so they seized the country of Sihon and the country of the King of Heshbon, and the country of Og, King of Bashan, while You increased their children

23 like the stars of the skies, and they arrived at the land which You had promised to their forefathers to bring them to possess; and their children
24 advanced and seized the country, for You subdued the Cananite inhabitants of the land before them, and gave them to their power, and they did whatever they desired with the kings and peoples of the country.

" They also captured the fortified
25 towns, and the fertile lands, and seized houses full of furniture, wells dug out, vineyards, oliveyards, and fruit trees, in plenty, and they ate, and were full, and fat, and luxuriated on Your benefactions. Then they
26 revolted from You, and flung Your Laws away,—following the Heathen,—and slew your Preachers who instructed them to return to You, and committed great outrages. You con-
27 sequently gave them to the hand of their oppressors, who oppressed them, but in the period of oppression they cried to You, and You heard them from the heavens, and from Your great mercies gave them Deliverers who delivered them from the power of their oppressors.

" But when they had rest, they 28 did wrong before You, so You abandoned them to the hand of their enemies who persecuted them—and again they returned and cried, and You heard them from the heavens,—saved, and rescued them frequently, in accordance with Your many mercies, and instructed them to con-
29 duct themselves according to Your laws, but they were haughty and would not listen to your Commands and Decrees, sinning against what a man ought to practise, and live in. But they set a perverse shoulder and a stiff neck and would not obey! Yet for many years You held out 30 Your hand to them, and taught them Your spirit by means of Your Preachers, but they would not listen; —so You delivered them to the power of the people of the countries. 31 Yet, owing to Your great mercies, You did not entirely destroy them, nor desert them;—for You are a kind and merciful GOD. Therefore now, 32 our GOD,—the GREAT, MIGHTY, and TERRIBLE GOD, who keeps his Beneficent Covenant,—let not all the trouble that we and our kings, and princes, and priests, and our preachers, and fathers, and all Your People, have met, be little before You, from the days of the kings of 33 Ashur to this day, although You are right in all You have brought upon us, for You have practised TRUTH, 34 but we FALSEHOOD. And our kings, our princes, our priests, and our fathers have not practised Your laws, and have not attended to Your Commandments, and the instructions which You taught to them. For 35 they did not serve You in their reigns, and the plentiful prosperity You gave them, and in the rich and fertile country that You gave to their faces; nor did they turn from their wickedness.—Therefore we are slaves 36 to-day, and the land that was given to our forefathers, that they might eat its fruits and its products,—we are slaves upon it! Yet it produced 37 much for the kings You have set over us for our sins, and they control our bodies, and our cattle, at their pleasure, while we are in great distress.

33 We also imposed upon ourselves as a law, to give the thir of a Shekel a year to the service of the House of our GOD, for the Show-bread; and for the Perpetual Offering, and the Perpetual Burnt-offering of the Sabbaths; of the Months; and of the Public Meetings; and for the Sanctifications and the Sin-offering to expiate about Israel, and all the services of the House of our GOD.

" We also cast lots about the Gift of Wood for the Priests and Levites, which the people were to bring to the House of our GOD, from the Heads of Ancestral Families at fixed times, year by year, to be burnt on the Altar of our EVER-LIVING GOD, as written in the Law.

" Also to bring the first-fruits of our ground, and the first product of all fruit-trees, year by year to the House of our GOD;

" Also the firstborn of our children, and cattle as written in the Law; and to bring the firstborn of our herds and our flocks to the House of our GOD, to the Priests who serve in the House of our GOD.

" And that the first part of our harvest and fruit of all trees; and of wine, and oil, should be brought to the Priests who reside at the House of our GOD; with the tythe of our grounds to the Levites;—and that those Levites should tythe all the profit of our labours. But that a priest a Descendant of Aaron should be with the Levites, when the Levites tythed, and that the Levites should take up a tythe of their Tythe to the House of our EVER-LIVING GOD, to the Treasury Chamber. But that the Children of Israel, and the Children of Levi should bring the presentations of the Corn, the Wine, and the Oil, to where the Sacred Vessels are, and the Priests, the Ministers, the Singers, and Guardians;—and that we would not forsake the House of our GOD."

END OF THE FIRST EXTRACT FROM THE ROLL OF EZRA.

(440 B.C.) RESUMPTION OF THE SECOND NEHEMIAH'S NARRATIVE.

A Conscriptio Ordered to Secure a Population for Jerusalem.

11 The gentry of the people stayed in Jerusalem, and the rest of the people threw lots to send one from ten to reside in Jerusalem, the Holy City, and nine to go out to the villages, and the People thanked all the men who were willing to stay in Jerusalem.

The Garrison of Jerusalem.

Now these are the Chiefs of the Garrison who stayed in Jerusalem,—(while in the villages of Judea each man of Israel resided on his own estate, in their towns;—with the Priests, and Levites, and attendants, and the descendants of the servants of Solomon. But some of the children of Judah and the children of Benjamin stayed in Jerusalem.

- Of the Children of Judah;—Athiah-ben-Haziah; -ben-Zakeriah, -ben-Amariah, -Shefatiah,-ben-Malaliah,-ben-Faretz. And Masiah-ben-Baruk-ben-Kalkaziah -ben-Haziah, -ben-Adiah -ben-Jozarib -ben-Zakeriah,-ben-Hashibari. All descendants of Faretz. They stayed in Jerusalem. Four hundred and sixty soldiers.
- 7 And these were of the Beni-Benjamin;—
- 8 Sala-ben-Shulam,-ben-Joad,-ben-Padiah, -ben-Koliah, -ben-Masiah,-ben-Aithial,-ben-Jeshiah,—and along with him, as defenders of the towers, nine hundred and twenty-eight, over whom Joal-ben-Zikri was Commander, and Judah-ben-Haseniah as Lieutenant over the City.
- 9 From the Priests;—

- 10 Jadiah - ben - Joiarib,-ben - Jakin, Seriah,-ben - Hilha,-ben - Meshalum,-ben - Zadok,-ben-Merioth,-ben - Akhtub, was Governor of the House of GOD, and the associates who did the work at the House of GOD were eight hundred and twenty-two, and Odiah -ben-Jeroham,-ben -Pelaliah,-ben-Anatzi,-ben - Zakeriah, -ben - Pashkur, -ben-Malekiah, and his brother, were Chiefs of the fatherhoods, with two hundred and forty-two, and one hundred and twenty-eight of their relatives, as soldiers. Over whom Zabdiel was Commander.

- 15 And from the Levites;—
- 16 Shemiah - ben - Khashub, - ben - Azrikam,-ben-Hashabiah-ben-Bani, —with Shabthi and Jozabad, of the Levitical Chiefs, over the outer business of the House of the LORD.
- 17 And Mathaniah -ben - Mika, -ben-Zabdi, -ben -Asaf, who was Chief leader of praise and prayer, with Bakbakiah as his Assistant, with their company. And Abda-ben-Shamna,-ben-Galal-ben-Jadithem.

- 18 All the Levites in the Holy City were two hundred and eighty-four.

And the Doorkeepers were Akub, 19 Talmon, and their company in the Guards of the Gates,—one hundred and seventy-two.

And the rest of Israel, with their 20 Priests, and Levites were in all the towns of Judea, each on his own estate. And the Assistants resided 21 in Afel; and Ziha, and Ghishfa, were over the attendants.

But the Commander of the Levites 22 in Jerusalem was Azi-ben-Bani-ben-Hashbiah - ben - Mathaniah, - ben - Mika, from the Beni Asaf, of the Singers, for the performances in the House of GOD; for the king had com- 23 manded about them and arranged the Daily Course for the Singers; and Pathakiah-ben-Meshazabal, 24 of the Beui Zarakh,-ben-Judah,—was appointed on the part of the King, to superintend affairs for the People.

Re-populating Other Cities.

Now about the walled towns in 25 the country;—

Some of the Children of Judah settled in Krith-arba; and its villages; and in Dibon, and its villages; and Ikbezal, and its towns; and in Jeshua, and Moliah, and Beth- 26 flat; and in Khatzer-Shoal, and 27 Barsheba, and its villages; and in 28 Ziklag, and Makona, and its villages; and in Ani-rimon, and 29 Zaraha, and Jermoth; Zankh, 30 Aulan, and their towns; Lakish, and its fields; Azekah, and its villages;—Thus they settled from Barsheba to the Valley of Hinom. And the Beni Benjamin from Gaba 31 Mikmash, Aia, and Bethel, and its villages; Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah; 32 Hazar, Rama, Githim; Hadid, 32 Zeboim, Niblat; Lod, and Auno;— 34 Ghikrashim; with a portion of the 35 Levites for the districts of Judah and 36 Benjamin.

(440 B.C.) THE SECOND NEHEMIAH'S NARRATIVE RESUMED.¹

- 26 The following relates to the times of Joyakim-ben-Jeshua, ben-Jozadak, and the times of NEHEMIAH the Governor and EZRA the Priest and Scholar.
 27 When the Walls of Jerusalem were dedicated they sought the Levites from all their homes, and brought them to Jerusalem to make the dedication, with rejoicing and thanks and singing, with cymbals, lutes, and 28 harps. They consequently collected the descendants of the Singers from the district surrounding Jerusalem, 29 and from the towns in Nitof, and from Beth-Gilgal, and from the plains of Geba, and Hazmavoth,—for those towns had been built for the Singers around Jerusalem.
 30 The Priests were also purified, with the Levites. They also purified the People, and the Gates, and the Walls.

Then I led the Nobles of Judah on 31 to the Walls, and arranged them in two great divisions, and marched to the right upon the Wall to the Dung Gate. And Hoshiah, and half the 32
 Nobles of Judah marched after them, with Azariah, Ezra, and Meshulam, 33 Judah, and Benjamin, and Meshiah, 34 and Jeremiah.

Next, some of the Sons of the 35
 Priests with trumpets and Zekeriahben-Jonathan, -ben-Meshiah, -ben-Mathaniah, -ben-Mikiah, -ben-Zahur,
 -ben-Asaf, with his companions 36
 Shemiah, and Azral, Milali, Galali, Mai, Nethanal and Judah, Hanani, with at their head all the musical instruments of DAVID the Man of GOD, and EZRA the Scholar. They 37 ascended by the Well Gate and afterwards up the stairs of the City of David, by the stairs of the wall, up

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 12, v. 26. The reader must not confuse the NEHEMIAH and EZRA mentioned here with the NEHEMIAH of Zerubbabel's Restoration, recorded in the "Book of Ezra," ch. 2, v. 2. NEHEMIAH the GOV-ERNOR, and his associate here recorded as "EZRA the PRIEST," lived about 100 years after the time of Zerubbabel.—F. F.

- to the Palace of David, as far as the
- 38 Water Gate on the east. While the second procession marched to meet them;—and I after it with half of the People upon the wall, up to the Foundry Tower, the whole extent of
- 39 the wall. Thence above the Ephraim Gate, and to the Old Gate, and to the Fish Gate, and the Tower of Hananal, and the Tower of Hanah, and on to the Sheep Gate, and halted at the Guards' Gate.
- 40 There both the Bands halted at the House of GOD, and I, and half
- 41 of the Representatives with me, and the Priests Aliakim, Masiah, Minimam, Mikiah, Aliazer, Zekeriah,
- 42 Hanani, with trumpets; and Masiah, and Shemiah, and Aliazer, and Azi, and Johanan, and Malkiah, and Ailim, and Azer, and the Choristers singing loud under their leader Izrahiah.
- 43 On the second day they sacrificed great sacrifices, and rejoiced, for GOD made them glad with great delight. The women also and the children rejoiced, and the delight of Jerusalem was reported afar.

Treasuries Appointed for the Temple.

- 44 At the same period men were appointed over the Treasures, the Presentations, the First-fruits and the Tythes, to collect them from the fields and villages the legal portions for the Priests and Levites, for Judca was glad of the Appointment of the
- 45 Priests and Levites, who guarded the Ordinances of GOD, and the Ordinances of purity, with the Singers, and Doorkeepers, as David, and
- 46 Solomon his son ordered. For formerly, from the days of David there were Chief Choristers, who sang
- 47 praises to GOD. Consequently all Israel in the times of Zerubabel, and in the times of NEHEMIAH paid the Singers and the Doorkeepers a daily salary, and consecrated the Levites, and the Levites consecrated the Descendants of Aaron.

The Reading of the Law Restored and Results.

- 13 At the same period the Law of Moses was read in the hearing of the People, and there was found written in it "that an Amonite or Moabite gregation of GOD for ever! Because 2 they did not meet the Children of Israel with bread and water, and had hired Balam to curse them, but GOD turned the Curse into a Blessing." Consequently when they heard that 3 Law, they separated all the half-breeds from Israel. But before that 4 Aliashib, the Priest, the Chamberlain of the House of our GOD, being related to Tobiah, had made him a 5 great residence where formerly were stored the meal-offerings, and frankincense, and the vessels, and tythes, of corn, and wine, and oil, ordered for the Levites, and Choristers, and Doorkeepers, as well as the presents for the Priests. But during all this 6 I was not at Jerusalem; for in the thirty-second year of Arthakshasta, King of Babel, I went to the King—but at the expiration of a period, I requested from the King, and pro- 7 ceeded to Jerusalem, and understood the wrong that Aliashib had done for the sake of Tobiah, by making him a residence in the Courts of the House of GOD, which provoked me greatly. 8 I consequently removed all the furniture from the residence of Tobiah, from his lodging to the street.

(434 B.C.) Reforms Made in the Administration of the Government.

Then I commanded, and they 9 purified the Chambers, and I placed there the vessels of the House of GOD, with the meal and incense. I 10 also ascertained that the allowance of the Levites had not been given to them, so that the Levites and the Choristers who should have done the work had fled each to his village. I therefore summoned my Deputies, 11 and demanded; "Why have you neglected the House of GOD?"—Then I collected them and fixed them in their places, when all Judea 12 brought the tythe of corn, and wine, and oil, to the stores. I also ap- 13 pointed Store-keepers over the Stores;—Shelmiah, the Priest, and Zadok the Secretary, and Padiah, for the Levites, and as assistants, Hanan, ben-Zakur, ben-Mathaniah,—for they were trustworthy,—and their duty was to pay out to their associates.

Remember me, my GOD, about 14 this, and blot not out the affection I have shown to the House of GOD and its ordinances.

Sabbath Observation Enforced.

- 15 At this time I saw in Judea treading of winepresses on the Sabbath, and some who carried sheaves and loads upon asses; as well as wine, grapes, and figs and various loads which they brought to Jerusalem.
- 16 The Tzurites also who resided there brought fish, and various merchandize, and sold it on the Sabbath to the Children of Judah, and
- 17 in Jerusalem. I consequently reproved the gentry of Judea, and demanded of them, "What vile thing is this that you are doing? and
- 18 defiling the Day of Rest? Was not this what your fathers did, in consequence of which GOD brought all this suffering upon us, and upon this City? And would you renew the anger upon Israel, by profaning the Sabbath?"
- 19 So when the Gates of Jerusalem were closed before the approach of the Sabbath, I commanded that they should fasten the doors, and ordered them not to be opened until after the Sabbath, and I placed my soldiers at the Gate so that no loads might be
- 20 brought in upon the Sabbath. Consequently the hawkers and merchants had to stay outside Jerusalem a few
- 21 times. I also spoke to and asked them, "Why are you staying near the walls? If you do so again, I shall arrest you after this time. —You must not come on the Sabbath."
- 22 I also commanded the Levites, who were of the ordained, and they became keepers of the Gates, so as to sanctify the Sabbath.

Remember me, my GOD, and have mercy on me in Your great kindness.

(434 B.C.) Mixed Marriages Forbidden.

In this period, also, I observed the 23 Jews who lived with Ashdodite, Amonite, and Moabite women, the 24 speech of whose children was half Ashdodish, and they were not able to talk Judith,—but like a dialect of the two people. I therefore found 25 fault with them, and blamed and flogged those men, and pulled out their hair, and swore to them by GOD, "You should not give your daughters to their sons, nor take any of their daughters for your own sons, or for yourselves. Was it not in this way 26 that Solomon king of Israel sinned? Yet in many Nations there has not been a king like him who loved his GOD, so that GOD made him king over all Israel, but these foreign women made him sin. So should 27 we listen to you to commit this great wrong against our GOD, of living with foreign wives?"

And although one of the sons of 28 Joiada,—Aliashib, the High Priest, was son-in-law to Sanballat, the Horonite, yet I drove him from me.

Remember them, my GOD, for their 29 pollutions of the Priesthood, and the Priestly and Levitical Covenants.

Thus I purified them from all 30 strangers, and I established rules for the Priests and Levites, each in his own work, and for the supply of wood 31 at stated times, and the first-fruits.

Remember me, my GOD, with beneficence.¹ . . .

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 13, v. 31. As with Ezra, the autobiography would appear to be only a part of a longer history, for the final result of his re-organization of the Jewish State is not given, or even when his Governorship ended.—F. F.

FIRST BOOK OF CHRONICLES,

NAMED IN THE HEBREW

THE RECORDS OF THE TIMES.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The beginning of Chronicles is not a History up to the end of Ch. 9, which closes a series of Pedigrees of noble families in Israel, but as they are not arranged in Chronological order, and are full of repetitions, it is almost impossible to comprehend them as to historical import. Only here and there we see curious and interesting historical and ethnologic comments inserted, as in Ch. 4, vv. 21—23, 1 Chron. and Ch. 4, v. 39, Ch. 5, all through, Ch. 7, vv. 3—5, Ch. 8, vv. 8—9, Ch. 9, vv. 1—20, &c., intimating that a Negro population preceded the Hebrews, at least in the South-Eastern part of the country they conquered, and alluding to various colonizing expeditions not mentioned in the history of the Judges or Kings. But, owing to the chronological confusion of the author, it is difficult to fix the dates. Some were evidently close after Joshua, others in the anarchy after his death till the rise of Samuel and Saul, and others even after the period of Nebukadnezzar's ravages. Then the Pedigrees sometimes start at Sinal, and sometimes at the period of Samuel and David; others again in the days of Ezra, and Nehemiah, as far as I can trace, and at the end of them we hark back to the defeat of Saul at Gilboa, beginning at Ch. 10, which begins the real History, but of the House of David only, not of Israel as a Race.

The preceding pedigrees were probably compiled by one of the Ezras or Nehemiahs to settle the claims to restoration of offices and properties amongst the returning Transports who accompanied them back from Babel, and so were never put into chronological order, and were copied by the historian from the Records alluded to by the Second Nehemiah, as preserved in the caskets of the Temple—F. - 37 The sons of Rawal; Nahath, Zerah, Shamah, and Miza.
- 38 And the sons of Sair; Lotan, Shubal, Tzibaon, and Anah, and Rishu, and Atzer, and Dishan.
- 39 And the sons of Lotan; Hori, and Homam, and Akhoth, Lotan, Thimna.
- 40 The sons of Shubal; Alian, and Manhath, and Aibal, Sheh, and Annam.
- And the sons of Tzebaon; Aiah,
 and Anah.
- 41 The sons of Anah; Dishon, and the sons of Dishon, Hamram, and Ashban, and Ithron, and Karan.
- 42 The sons of Atzer; Bilhan, and Zacan, and Jakan.
- The sons of Dishon; Autz, and Aran.
- 43 And these are the Kings who reigned in the country of Edom, before kings reigned in the land of Israel¹;
- Bela-ben-Baor; and the name of his City was Dinabah;
- 44 When Bela died, Jobab reigned after him. Jobab was son of Zarak of Bazrah.

When Jobab died; then Horham 15 who came from the country of the Themanites, reigned after him.

When Hosham died, Hadad, ben- 46
 Bodad, who defeated Midian, on the plain of Moab, reigned after him, and the name of his City was Aivith.

When Hadad died, Shamlah from 47
 Maskerah reigned after him.

When Shamlah died; Shaul from 48
 Rakhoboth, on the River, reigned
 after him.

When Shaul died, Bal-Hannan- 49
 ben-Akbor, reigned after him.

When Bal-Hannan died, Hadad 50 reigned after him, and the name of his City was Phai, and the name of his wife Hitabal, daughter of Matred, daughter of Mi-zahb.

When Hadad died, they made 51
 Chiefs in Edom; Chief Thimna;
 Chief Aliahl, Chief Ithath; Chief 52
 Aholibamah; Chief Alah, Chief
 Phinan; Chief Kenan, Chief Thiman, 53
 Chief Mibzar; Chief Magdial; Chief 54
 Airam. Those were the Chiefs of Edom.

THE SONS OF ISRAEL.

These were the sons of Israel; 2
 Reuben, Shimeon, Levi, and Judah, Issakar, and Zebulun; Dan, Joseph, 2 and Benjamin; Naphthali, Gad and Ashur.

THE SONS OF JUDAH. 3

Aunan, and Shelah; the three born to him by Bathshua, the Cananiteess.
 But the firstborn of Judah was bad in the sight of the LORD, and He caused him to die.

Then Tamar his daughter-in-law 4 bore Paraz and Zarah to him.—

All the sons of Judah were five.
 Of the Beni Pharaz were Hatzron, 5 and Hamal.

Zimri, and Aithom, and Hamian, 6
 and Kalkol, Dara;—

All of them five.

And of the sons of Karmi was— 7
 Akar, the Troubler of Israel, when he carried off the devoted property.

And of the Beni Aithan, Azariah. 8

And of the Beni Hatzron, who were 9 born to him, were Irakhmal and Ram, and Kelubi.

And Ram begot Aminadab, and 10
 Aminadab, Nakshon, a Prince of the Beni Judah.

¹ NOTE.—See my note on Genesis, Ch. 36,
 v. 31. The list here is a reversal of the lists of Chiefs and Kings of Edom given there.
 Also see my note 1 Chron. Ch. 1.—F. F.

- 11 And Nakshon begot Salma, and Salma begot Boaz, and Boaz begot 12 Oubed, and Oubed begot Jeshai, and 13 Jeshai begot his firstborn Aliab, and Abinadab, the second, and Shemia, 14 the third, Nathanael, the fourth, Radi, the fifth, Atzam, the sixth, David,
 15 the seventh, and their sisters were Zeruiah, and Abigail.
 16 And the sons of Zeruiah were three, Abishai, and Joab, and Ashabel.
 17 And Abigail bore Amasa, and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite.
 18 And Kaleb - ben - Zeruiah begot Azubah of his wife, Ishah, and Jeraioth. And Jasher, and Shobab, 19 and Arden, were also her sons. When Azubah died, Kaleb married Afrah, and she bore him Hur.
 20 And Hur begot Auri, and Auri begot Betzaiel.
 21 And after Hazron came to the Daughter of Makir, the father of Gilad, and married her, when he was sixty years old, and she bore him Seguo.
 22 And Segub begot Jair, who had twenty-three villages in the land of Gilad. But Gheshur and Aram took 23 the villages of Jair from them, with Kenath and its hamlets,—sixty villages.
 All these were sons of Makir father of Guad.
 24 And after the death of Hozren, in Kaleb-Efrathah, the wife of Hezron, bore Ashkur, the father of Tekoa to him.
 25 The sons of Jeramhal were, the firstborn, Hazron, Ram, Bunah, and Arad, and Azam, and Akhiah. There also was another wife of Jeramhal, whose name was Atarah. She was the mother of Annan.
 27 And the son of Ram,—The firstborn of Jeramhal, Matz, and Jamin and Akar.
 28 And these were the sons of Annan; Shama, Jada;
 And the sons of Shamai; Nadab, and Abishur. And the name of the wife of Abishur was Abikhil, and she bore to him Akleban, and Molid.
 30 And the sons of Nadab, were Selad and Afaini; but Selad died without children.
 31 And the sons of Afaini were, Ishi, and the son of Ishi was Sheshan, and the son of Sheshan Akhli.
 32 And the sons of Jada, the brother of Shami, were Jether, and Jonothan. But Jether died childless.

And the sons of Jonothan were, 33 Feleth, and Zoza;

These were the sons of Jeramhal.

But to Shishan there were no children except daughters. But Shishan had a Mitzerite Slave whose name was Jarkha, and Shishan gave his daughter to Jarkha his slave for a wife, and she bore Athi to him.

And Athi begot Nathau, and Nathan 36 begot Zabar, and Zabar begot Afal, 37 and Afal begot Aubed, and Aubed 38 begot Jhava, and Jhava begot Azariah, and Azariah begot Khaletz, and 39 Khaletz begot Alashah, and Alashah 40 begot Sisini, and Sisini begot Shalum, and Shalum begot Jakimah, and 41 Jakimah begot Alishama.

And the sons of Kaleb, brother of Jerkamal, were Misha, his firstborn, he was the father of Zif, and the son of Marsha, the father of Hebron.

And the sons of Hebron, Korah, 43 and Thakfukh, and Rekem, and Ishama. And Ishama begot Rakhm, 44 the father of Jarkam; and Jarkam begot Shamai; and the son of Shamai 45 was Maon, and Maon was the father of Bethzur.

And Aifah, the secondary wife of 46 Kaleb bore Shaber and Motza and Gazaz, and Kharan begot another Gazaz.

And the sons of Jahdi were Regem, 47 and Jotham, Ghishan, and Felet, and Aitah, and Shaf.

Makah, a secondary wife of Kaleb, 48 bore Shaber, and Mirkamah; she also bore, Shaf, the father of Madbankh, Shava, the father of Gibaa, and the daughter of Kaleb, Aksah.

These were the sons of Kaleb-ben- 50 Hur. The firstborn Afrathah, and Shobal, the father of Krith Jarim; Shalim, the father of Bethlehem; 51 Kharef, the father of Geth-Gadez.

And Shobal the founder of Krith 52 Jarim made other colonies,—The Rah-Khatzi, the Menukoth, and the clans in Krith-Jarim, of the Jetheri, 53 and Puthi, and Shumathi, and Mishari; from whom went out the Tzarathi, and the Ashtali.

Shalma founded also Bethlehem, 54 and the Natofathi, Atroth, Beth-Joab, and the parts of the Manakthi, the Tzarathi, and the families of the 55 Writers who resided in Jabetz, the Doorkeepers, the Tutors and the Weavers, who were Kenites, who came from Hamath, a colony of the House of Rekab.¹

- 8 These however, are the sons of David who were born to him in Hebron;—
 The firstborn Amon by Ahinoam the Izraalite; the second Daniel,²
 2 by Abigail, the Karmelith; the third Absalom, the son of Makah, the daughter of Talmon King of Gheshur; the fourth Adoniah, the son of Hagith, 3 the fifth Shefatiah, by Abital; the sixth Ithram, by Aglah his wife. Six were born to him at Hebron, where he reigned seven years and six 4 months, but in Jerusalem he reigned thirty-three years.
 5 And these were born to him in Jerusalem:
 Shamna, and Shobad, and Nathan, and Solomon,—four by Bathshua, the 6 daughter of Bathanial; and Ibkhar, 7 and Alishama, and Alifalat; and 8 Nogah, and Nefeg, Jafa, and Alishama, and Alida, and Alifalat,— 9 nine.
 9 All these sons of David were born in Jerusalem; sons of Secondary wives, as well as Thamer their sister.
 10 But the son of Solomon was Rehabam; his son Abiah; his son Asa; 11 his son, Jhoshafat; his son Joram; 12 his son Ahaziah; his son Joash; his son Amaziah; his son, Azariah, his 13 son Jotham; his son, Ahaz; his son, 14 Hezekiah; his son, Manasseh; his 15 son, Amon; his son Josiah; And the sons of Josiah, the eldest Jokhanom; the second, Jhoiakim; the third, Zedekiah, the fourth Shalom.
 16 And the sons Jhoiakim,—Jekoniah;

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 2, v. 55. From much of the above it is clear that the words "Son" and "Father" in Hebrew, and in Hebrew Genealogies, do not always mean, as with individuals, bodily Sons and Fathers, but frequently colonies, or villages founded or built by a man. Forgetfulness of this linguistic fact has led to endless blunders in Chronology, and even in Theology. But it should never be lost sight of in studying the Scriptures.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Ch. 3, v. 1. This Daniel, I suggest, was the Daniel referred to by Ezekiel in the often-quoted passage, "If Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it," for owing to the periods of time in which Ezekiel and the Prophet Daniel lived, it was impossible for Ezekiel to have referred to Daniel the Prophet, who was probably not born until after Ezekiel's death. I note this because some sceptical writers have made that reference to a "Daniel" as a wise and good man, a ground of assault upon the book of Ezekiel.—F. F.

his son Zedekiah; and the son of 17 Jekoniah, Aser; and his son, Shal-thial; and Malkiram; and Pediah; 18 and Shenazer; Jekeniah; Hoshama; and Nedabiah.

And the sons of Pediah, were 19 Zerubabel, and Shemar, and the sons of Zerubabel, Meshulam, and Hananiah, Shelamith, was their sister; with Khashubah, and Ahel, Berakiah, 20 Khasadiah, Joshab, Khasad—five.

And the sons of Hananiah, Flatiah, 21 and Ishiah; the sons of Rephiah were Arkan, Abadiah, Shekaniah.¹

And the sons² of Shekaniah, She- 22 miah; and the sons of Shemiah, Khatosh, and Igal, and Beriakh, and Nariah, and Shafat,—six. And the 23 sons of Shafat, Nariah, Alzwaim; and Hezekiah, and Azrikam,—three. And the sons of Alzwaim, Hodaiah, 21 and Alishab, and Faliah, and Akub, and Jonathan, and Deliah, and Aani, —seven.

The sons of Judah. Ferez; Haz- 4 ron; and Karmi; and Shobal; and 2 Raiab-ben-Shobal begot Jakhath; and Jakhath begot Akhami; and Lakhad; These are the clans of the Zarites.

And these are the sons of Aitam;— 3 Izraal, and Ishma, and Idbash; and the name of their sister was Zalel-falom, with Pennal the founder of 4 Ghedor; and Azer the founder of Hoshah. These were the colonies of Hur's firstborn,—Afrathah was the founder of Bethlehem.

And Ashkur the founder of Tekoa 5 had two wives, Halah and Narah; and Narah bore to him Akhurzan and 6 Hefer; and Thmini, and Akshethoral;—these were the sons of Narah. But 7 the sons of Halab, Zereth, Itzkar, and Athnaan, and Kutz begot Auub; 8 and Zababah, and the clan of Akaral-ben-Harum.

But Jabez was more energetic than 9 his brothers, and his mother called his name Jabez,³ for she said, "I have borne him to my sorrow." The "Ruffian," however, relied on 10 the GOD of Israel and said, "If You

² "Son."

³ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 9. "Jabez." "Jabetz." "Ruffian"? He evidently was a rough, wild lad.—F. F.

- bless me, and extend my border, and Your hand goes with me,—and You keep me from harm,—I shall not be ruffled." And GOD granted what he asked.
- 11 And Kelub, the brother of Shukliah begot Maklur; he was the father of
- 12 Ashton. And Ashton founded the House of Rafa, and Fasah, and Thekniah, the founder of the city of Naksh. Those are the men of Rekah.
- 13 And the Beni Kenan were, Athnial, and Sheriah, and of the Lower Athnial.
- 14 And from Aunothi were begotten Aferah; and Seriah, begot Joab, the founder of the lower Kharoshim;—for they are the Kharoshim.
- 15 And the sons of Kaleb-ben-Jafuneh; were,—Airu, Alah, and Nam. And the sons of Alah were, Alah and Kenez.
- 16 And the sons of Jhalelal; Zif, and
- 17 Zifah, Thiriah, and Ashral. And the sons of Azrah were, Jether, and Merad, and Afer, and Jalon, and Thahr, and Ishakh, the founder of
- 18 Ashtemoah. Judiah his wife bore Jared, the founder of Gheder; and Kheber, the founder of Shoko Jekuthal the founder of Zanokh, these were the sons of Bethiah, the daughter of Pharaoh, who married Merad.
- 19 And the sons of the wife of Hodiah, the sister of Naham, the founder of Kailah, of the Gerannites, and Ashlemoah of the Makathites.
- 20 And the sons of Shimon were, Annon, and Rinah; and Ben-Kanan; and Tholan. And the sons of Ishai were Zokhath, and Ben-Zokhath.
- 21 The sons of Shilah were Ben-Jhodad; Ar, the founder of Likah; and Ladah, the founder of Marshab; and the clans of the houses of Bethabelath,—the splendid House of
- 22 Ashba, and the Jokim, and the Princes of Kozna, and Joask, and Saraf, who were Masters in Moab, and resided in Lakhem, according to
- 23 old records. They were Mechanists and settled in Colonies and Municipalities. They settled there to work for the king.
- 24 The sons of Shimeon.
- Nemual, and Janin, Jarib, Zarakh,
- 25 Shaul. His son Shalim; his son
- 26 Mibsham; his son Mishma. And the sons of Mishma, were Khamwal; his son of Zaker, his son Shamai;

and Shamai had sixteen sons, and 27 six daughters, but his brother had not many sons, nor did the whole family increase like the sons of Judah. But they occupied Barsheba, 28 and Moladah, and Khatzar-Shual, and Bilahah, and Atzam, and Tholad, and Bathnal, and Kharmah, and 29 Ziklag; and Beth-Markaboth, and 30 Khatzer, and Susini, and Beth-Birai, and Sharam;—These were their Cities 31 until the reign of David.

And their towns were Aitam, and 32 Ain-rimon, and Thokom, and Ashan;—five towns, and all the villages 33 around the cities, whom they controlled, with their title-deeds from the family registers, and records of 34 restored estates, and successions, and property of eldest sons; who were, Joal, and Jhoa-ben-Joshibiah, ben-Seriah-ben-Ashial; and Aliwani 35 and Jakbah, and Ishokhiah, and 36 Asiah, and Adial, and Isimal, and Beniah; and Ziza, ben-Shifai-ben-Alon-ben-Jadiah-ben-Shimri-ben-Shamiah; These became Princes by 38 name, in their clans, and extended the houses of their ancestors,—when 39 they emigrated to Gheder in the eastern plain, to seek pasture for their flocks, and found rich and good 40 pasture and a wide country ready for them, and quiet and peaceable, for the previous inhabitants there were Blacks.¹ So those mentioned by 41 name, above, advanced in the days of Hezekiah King of Judah, and attacked their tents, and the wells that they found there, and succeeded them until this day, and settled in their place,—for there was pasture for their flocks. Some of the de- 42 scendants of Simeon, five hundred men, went from them to Mount Sair, with Flatiah, and Nariah, and Refiah, and Azial, ben-Ishai was at their head, and attacked the remnant of 43

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 34. I think confirms my view that these lists are a heterogeneous mass of enquiries by Ezra in endeavouring to ascertain and settle the claims of the returned Transports from Babel to the lands of their ancestors. See general note at the beginning of Ch. 1.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 39. "Negroes." This short historical note is of importance in an ethnological point of view, and illustrates the value of the Scriptural records to the student of human history, as compared with the ethnological blindness of the Pagan Writers.—F. F.

the refugees of the Amalakites;—and they reside there to this day.

- 5 Now for the Beni Reuben, the first-born of Israel. For he was the first-born; but because he defiled the bed of his father, his birthright was given to the Beni Joseph-ben-Israel, and he was not recorded as the eldest, but Judah dominated his brothers, and became our Leader, although the Birthright belonged to Joseph.
- 3 The Beni Reuben, the Firstborn of Israel.
Hanok, and Falwa, Hazron, and Karmi.
- 4 The Beni Joal; his son Shamiah, his son Gog, his son Shamai, his son Mikah, his son Raiiah, his son
- 6 Bal; hisson Bariah, whom Thilgath-Pilneser, King of Ashur, transported, when he was Prince of the Reubenites.
- 7 Now for his brothers, by their clans, genealogies, and birth Chiefs;—Jaial, and Zakariah, and Bela-ben-Azaz-ben-Shema-ben-Joal;—He occupied Aroar, and Nebo, and Bal-amon; and eastward he occupied as far as the Pass of the Desert from the river Frath,¹ for they had many herds in
- 10 the land of Gilad, and in the days of Saul they made war with the Hagarites, who fell beneath their power; so they resided in their tents over all the extent of the east from Gilad.
- 11 Now for the Beni Gad, next to them;—
They occupied the country of Bashan, as far as Salkah;—
- 12 Joal was the Chief, and Shafam his Lieutenant, who managed and
- 13 governed in Bashan. And their relatives, by their Ancestral Houses, were, Mikal, and Mesholam, and Sheba, and Jori, and Jakan, and Zia, and Aber;—seven.
- 14 These are the Beni Abikhil-ben-Hori - ben - Jarokh, - ben - Gilad - ben - Mikal - ben - Jeshishi, - ben - Jakhdo, - ben - Zaz-ben-Akhi, - ben - Abdial, - ben - Guni, Chiefs of their Ancestral Houses.
- 16 And they resided in Gilad, in Bashan, and its villages; and in all the pastures of Sharou, as far as they
- 17 extended. All of them had birth Registers in the days of Jotham, King of Judah, and in the days of Jarabam, King of Israel.
- 18 The Beni Reuben and Gad, and the Half-tribe of Manasseh;—

¹ Euphrates.

Of brave men who bore shield and sword, and drew the bow, and were disciplined for war, there were forty-four thousand, seven hundred and sixty, who could go out to fight; and they made war with the Hagarites, and Itur, and Nafish, and Nodab, and overpowered them, and the Hagarites were delivered to their hand, with all their forces, for they cried to GOD in the battle, and He was helpful to them, because they trusted on Him; So they captured from their herds fifty thousand camels; and two hundred and fifty thousand sheep; and of human beings a hundred thousand; for many fell wounded; for the battle was from GOD; and they resided in their place; until the Transportation.

The sons of the Half-tribe of Manasseh also settled in Bashan at Balherinon and Senir and Mount Hermon—They were numerous. And these are the chiefs of their Ancestral Houses;—That is—Afer, and Ishi, and Alial, and Azrial, and Irmiah, and Hodaviah; and Jakbdiai;—Great Princes;—Powerful Men; named Chiefs of Ancestral Houses.—But they revolted from the GOD of their fathers; and wandered after the Gods of the people of the Country, whom GOD had destroyed before them. The GOD of Israel consequently stirred up the temper of Pul, King of Ashur, and of Thilgath-Pilneser, King of Ashur, who transported the Reubenites, and Gadites, and the Half-tribe of Manasseh, and carried them to Khalakh, and Khabor, and Hara, and to the river of Gozan;—to this day.¹

The Beni Levi.

- Ghershon, Kath, and Morari;
And the Beni Kahth; Amram, Itzar, and Khabron, and Azial;
And the Beni Amram;—Aaron, and Moses, and Miriam;
And the Beni Aaron; Nadab, and Abihua; Aliazar, and Aithamar.
Aliazar begot Phinebas; and Phinehas begot Abishua; and Abishua begot Buki; and Buki begot Azi;
Azi begot Zerakhiah; and Zerakhiah begot Merioth; Merioth begot Amariah; and Amariah begot Akhitub;

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 5, v. 26. These districts are now provinces of Armenia and Baku in the Russian Empire and Azerbaijan in Northern Persia, on the shores of the Caspian Sea.—F. F

34 and Akhitub begot Zadok; and Zadok
 35 begot Akhimatz; and Azariah begot
 36 Jokhanan; and Jokhanan begot
 Azariah, who was Priest in the House that Solomon built at Jerusalem.
 37 And Azariah begot Amariah; and 38 Amariah begot Akhitub; and Akhitub begot Zadok; and Zadok begot
 39 Shalom; and Shalom begot Khilkiah, 40 and Khilkiah begot Azariah; and Azariah begot Seriah; and Seriah begot Jhozadak; and Jhozadak was taken with the Transports of the LORD from Judah and Jerusalem, by the hand of Nebukadnezzar.

6 The sons of Levi.

2 Ghershon, Kahth, and Merari.

And these are the names of the sons of Ghershon, Libni and Shimiah.

3 And the sons of Kahth;—Amram, and Itzahr, and Khabron, and Azial.

4 The sons of Merari; Makhil, and Mushi.

And these are the clans of Levi by their ancestry:

5 From Ghershon, his son Libni, his 6 son Jakhath; his son Zimah; his son
 Joakh; his son Ado; his son Zarakh;
 his son Jathri.

7 The Beni Kahth; Aminadab; his
 8 son, Korakh; his son, Asir; his son, Alkanah; his son, Abisaf; and his 9 son Asir; his son, Thakhath; his son, Auriel; his son, Aziab; his son, Shaul.

10 And the Beni Alkomah;—Amasi,

11 Akhimoth; his son, Alkanah; his son
 Alkanah; his son, Yzofi; and his son,
 12 Nakhath; his son, Aliab; his son,
 Irokhani; his son, Alkanah.

13 Now the Beni Shamuel, Habkor and Sheni, and Abiah.¹

14 The sons of Merari.

Makhli, Libni; his son Shimai;
 15 his son, Azah; his son, Shamaa; his son, Khagiah; his son, Asiah.

16 These were appointed by David over the Choir of the House of the 17 LORD when he fixed the Ark, and they were with the Singers before the Tabernacle, in the Hall of Assembly with the Choir, until Solomon built the House of the LORD in Jerusalem. And they attended to their duties in succession.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 6, v. 13 (in the Hebrew notation). The text seems to give no names except that of Abiah, according to the old translators, who I believe are in error, so I give the three above names as I read them in the original Hebrew.—F. F.

These also attended with their 18 descendants.

From the Beni Kahthi;—Himan—the Musician—ben-Joal—ben-Shamwal—ben-Alkanah—ben-Irkham—ben-Alial—
 19 ben-Thokh—ben-Zif—Alkanah—ben-20
 Makhath—ben-Amasi—ben—Alkanah—21 ben-Joal—ben-Azariah—ben-Zefaniah—ben-Thakhath—ben-Asir—ben—Abisaf—22 ben-Korakh—ben-Itzahr—ben-Kahth—23 ben-Levi—ben-Israel.

And after him; 24

Asaph was appointed at his right hand.

Asaph—ben-Berekiah—ben-Shimaa—
 25 ben-Mikal—ben-Basiah—ben—Malkiah—26 ben-Athai—ben—Zerakh—ben—Adiah—27 ben-Aithan—ben—Zimah—ben-Shimai—28 ben—Jakhath—ben—Ghershom—ben—28
 Levi.

Then the Beni Morari; their 29 brother on the left hand;—

Aithan—ben—Kishi—ben—Aldi—ben—30 Maluk—ben—Khashabiah—ben—Amat-31
 ziah—ben—Kilkiah—ben—Amtzi—ben—31
 Bani—ben—Shamar—ben—Makhli—ben—32
 Mushi—ben—Merrari—ben—Levi.

With their relatives the Levites, 33
 Attendants, and all the Ministers of the Tabernacle of the House of GOD.
 But Aaron and his Descendants 34 offered incense on the Altar, with the Burnt-offerings; and upon the Altar of Incense, with all the Ministrations of the Sanctuary, and to expiate for Israel, according to all that Moses,
 the Servant of GOD, commanded.

Now these were the Beni Aaron; 35 his son, Alazar; his son Phinehas; his son, Abishua; his son, Buki; his 36 son, Azi; his son, Zerakbiah; his 37 son, Merioth; his son, Ameriah; his son, Akhitub; his son, Zadok; his 38 son, Akhimatz.

And these were their residences 39
 and castles in their borders;—

To the Beni Aaron;—for the Clan of the Kahthites, for whom the lot came out,—they gave Hebron, in the land 40 of Judah, with the pastures around it; with the Town fields, but they 41 gave the villages to Kaleb—ben-Jefuneh.

They also gave to the Beni Aaron, 42
 the Cities of Refuge;—Hebron; and Libnah; with their pastures, and Jatir, and Ashtemoah, with the pas-43 tures; and Hilen, with its pastures;
 and Debir with its pastures; and 44 Ashan with its pastures; and Bethshemsh, with its pastures.—

And from the tribe of Benjamin, 45

- Geba, with its pastures; and Alemeth, with its pastures; and Anathoth, with its pastures; all the Cities were thirteen cities. Each City with its pastures.
- 46 And to the others of the Beni Kahth; from the Clans of the Tribes;—From the villages of the Half-tribe of Menasseh;—ten Cities by lot;
- 47 And to the Beni Ghershom; from the Clans of the Tribe of Issakar and the Tribe of Ashur; and from the Tribe of Nafthali, and from the Tribe of Menasseh, in Bashan, thirteen cities;
- 48 To the Beni Merari; from the Clans of the Tribe of Reuben, and the Tribe of Gad, and the Tribe of Zebulon; Twelve Cities by lot. Thus the Children of Israel gave the Cities and their pastures.
- 50 They also gave by lot, from the Tribe of the Children of Judah, and from the Tribe of the children of Simeon, and from the Tribe of the children of Benjamin, those cities mentioned by name.
- 51 But some of the Clans of the Beni Kahth had cities in the bounds of the
- 52 Tribe of Ephraim. They also gave to them these Cities of Refuge;—Shekem, with its pastures in Mount Ephraim; and Gebir, with its pastures,
- 53 Jakman, with its pastures; and Beth-horon, with its pastures; and Ailon, with its pastures; and Beth-rimon, with its pastures; And from the villages of the Tribe of Menasseh
- 55 Aner, and its pastures; and Bilani, and its suburbs; To the other clans of the Beni Kahth.
- 56 To the Beni Ghershom; From the Clans of the Half-tribe of Menasseh;—Golan, in Bashan, and its pastures; and Asheroth; with its pastures;
- 57 And from the Tribe of Issakar, Kadesh, and its pastures; and Dabrath, and its pastures; and Remoth, with its pastures; and Anam, and its pastures;
- 59 And from the Tribe of Ashur, Mashal, and its pastures; and Abdou, and its pastures; and Khagok, with its pastures; and Kekhob, with its pastures;
- 61 And from the Tribe of Nafthali; Kadesh, in Gilgal; with its pastures; and Khamon, and its pastures; Krithaim, with its pastures;
- 62 To the rest of the Beni Merari; From the Tribe of Zebulon Rimono, and its pastures; Tabor, and its pastures; and over the Jordan, 63 Jerikho-on-the-east-of-Jordan. From the Tribe of Reuben; Bezar in the Desert, and its pastures; and Jhat-zah, with its pastures; and Ked-moth, and its pastures; and Mifath, with its pastures;

And from the tribe of Gad; 65 Ramoth-in-Gilgal, with its pastures; and Makhaim, with its pastures; and Heshbon, with its pastures; and 66 Jazer, with its pastures.

But about the Beni Issakar: 7

Tholah, and Phuah, Jashub, and Shimron: four.

And the Beni Tholah:—Azi, Rafiah, 2 and Irial, and Jakmi, and Ibsam, and Shanal, Chiefs of Ancestral Houses of Tholah. They were Great men in their generations. They numbered in the days of David twenty-two thousand and six hundred.

And the Beni Azi; Izrakhiyah; and 3 the Beni Izrakhiyah, Mikal, and Abadiyah, and Joal, Ishiah, Khimishah, All of them Chiefs, who could go 4 up by their genealogies to Ancestral Houses. Their disciplined army for 5 war was thirty-six thousand, for they had many wives and children. Their relatives of all the Clans of Issakar, the disciplined men, were eighty-seven thousand,—all enrolled.

Benjamin; Bela, and Beker, 6 Jadiaal;—three.

And the Beni Bela;—Azbon, and 7 Azi, and Azial, and Irimoth, and Airi;—five,—Chiefs of Ancestral Houses, powerful men, and their registered forces were twenty-two thousand and thirty-four.

And the Beni Beker; Zemirah, 8 and Joash, and Aliazar, and Aliwaini, and Amri, and Irimoth, and Abiah, Anathoth, and Alameth; all these were Beni Beker, and registered by 9 their generations, Chiefs of Ancestral Houses,—with disciplined men,—twenty thousand two hundred.

And the Beni Jediaal;—Bilahn, 10 and Bani; Billon, Jaish, and Benjamin, and Aliod, and Kananah, and Zithom, and Tharshish, Akhishakhar.

All these of the Beni Jediaal were 11 Ancestral Chiefs,—with disciplined men, seventeen thousand and two hundred, able to march with the army to battle. Beside the Shupites 12 and Khupites, the followers of Air, and the Knights who followed Akher.

The Beni Nafthali. Jekhzial, and 13

- Guni, and Jatzer, and Shalum, sons of Bilah.
- 14 The Beni Menasseh. Asrial, whom his secondary wife bore;—The Aramith bore Makir, the founder of Gilad. And Makir married women from the Khupites, and the Shupites; and the name of his wife was Makah. And the name of his second son was Zeloftad; and Zeloftad had beautiful daughters.
- 16 But Makah, the wife of Makir bore a son, and called his name Feresh, and his brother's name was Sheresh, and his sons Aulam, and Rakem.
- 17 And the sons of Aulam were Bedan.—These were the sons of Gilad-ben-
- 18 Makir-ben-Menasseh. And his sister Hamoleketh bore Aishohr, and
- 19 Abiazer, and Makhlah. And the sons of Shamida were, Akhian, and Shekem, and Likki, and Abiam.
- 20 Now the Beni Ephraim. Shothlakh, and his son Bered, and his son, Thakhath, and his son Aladah, and
- 21 his son Thakhath, and his son Zabad, and his sons Shothelak, and Azar, and Alad. But the men of Gath, natives of the country killed them, when they went down to steal
- 22 their cattle. And Ephraim,¹ their father, mourned for them many days, but his friends came to him to com-
- 23 fort him. Then he went to his wife and she bore a son, and he called his name Beriah,² because suffering
- 24 had come to his house. And he had a daughter Sarah who founded Beth-horon the Lower, and the Higher, and Azan-sarah. Refakh was his
- 25 son, and Keshef, and his son Thelakh, and his son Thakhan, with his son
- 26 Adan, and his son Amihud, his son
- 27 Alishama, his son Kan, his son
- 28 Jhoshua; and they possessed and settled Beth-el, and its Hamlets, and to the east Naran and Marab, Gezer, and its Hamlets, and Shekum, and its Hamlets, to Azah, and its Hamlets. And at the side of the Beni Menasseh,—Bethshan, and its Hamlets; and Anak, and its Hamlets; Megido, and its Hamlets; Dod, and its Hamlets; The Beni Joseph-ben-Israel resided in these.

The Beni Ashur. Imnah; and Ishvah; and Ishvi; and Beriah; and Serah, their sister.

And the Beni Beriah:—Heber, and Malkiah; he was the founder of Birzavith. And Heber begot Jaflet, and Shamer, and Kotham, and Shuaa, their sister.

And the sons of Jaflet; Fasak, and Bimalel, and Ashua. Those were the children of Jaflet.

And the sons of Shamar; Akhi, Ruhgah, Ikhubah, and Aram;

and of the Ben-helem his brother, Zofakh—and Imna, and Shelsh, and Aral. The sons of Zofakh, Sukh, Kharnafer, and Shual, and Beri, and Imrah; Betzer, and Hud, and Shama, and Shilshak, and Ithran, and Bara; And the sons of Ither Jefimeh, and Fisfah, and Ara. And the sons of Ala, Arakh, and Khanial, and Bitzia.—All these were of the Beni Ashur, Chiefs of Ancestral Houses. Illustrious, Great Men. Princely Chiefs, with pedigrees, with a number of twenty-six thousand men for war and battle.

Now Benjamin begot, Bela, his firstborn, Ashbal the second, and Akhrakh, the third. Nokbah, the fourth, and Refa, the fifth.

And Bela had sons;—Adar, and Nera, and Abihud, and Abishua, and Naman, and Akhokh, and Gera, and Shafusan, and Khoram.—These are a few descendants;—those of them who are Ancestral Chiefs to the settlers in Goba whom they emigrated with to Makhath, when Naman, and Akhukham, and Gera, emigrated together; he also begot Azah, and Ahikhud. He also begot Mulattos in the plain of Moab, from imported Kushites and from his barbarian wives. So he begot from Khodsh, his wife, Jobab, Zibia, and Misha, and Malkam; Javatz, and Shabia, and Mirmah.—These sons of his were Ancestral Chiefs. And from the Khushites he begot, Abitub, and Alfal. And the sons of Alfal

¹ Note.—Ch. 7, v. 22. The "Ephraim" named here was certainly not Ephraim the son of Joseph, the great Statesman, who after the Seven Years of Famine remoulded the tribes of Egypt into one homogeneous and powerful Nation, and thus was the first man who conceived the idea of Government by Nations instead of by Tribes. The Ephraim who was his son had died several hundred years,—say 500,—before the man mentioned here was born. The Ephraim of 1 Chronicles, v. 22 was a Chief of a Clan of the Palestine Hebrews somewhere about the period of Samson, and in this pedigree is cited to prove a claim to lands by his descendants on the return from Babylon under Zerubbabel, about 536 before Christ.—F. - were Aber, and Misham, and Shanar, —he founded Auno,—and Lod, and 13 its hamlets. And Beriah and Shana, were the Ancestral Chiefs of the 14 settlers in Ailon, whence they ex-15 pelled the settlers from Gath. And 16 Akhio, and Shashak, and Iremoth, Zebadiah, and Arad, and Adar, and 17 Mikal, and Ishfah, and Jokha,—were 18 sons of Beriah. And Zebadiah and Meshalum, and Hizekiah, and Khe-
 19 ber; and Ishmeri, and Izliah, and Jobab, were sons of Alfal; and 20 Jakim, and Zikri, and Zabdi; and Aliaim; and Zilthi, and Alial;
 21 and Adiah and Beriah, and Shimrath, were sons of Shimi; and Ishfan,
 23 and Aber, and Alial; and Abdon,
 24 and Zikri, and Khanan; and Khananiah, and Ailain, and Anthothiah;
 25 and Ifdiah, and Finial, were sons
 26 of Shashak. And Shamsheri, and 27 Shakheriah, and Athaliah, and Jarshiah, and Aliah, and Zikri, were 28 sons of Jerokham. These were Ancestral Chiefs. Chiefs to their descendants. They resided in Jeru-29 salem.
 But in Ghibaon resided Beni
 30 Ghibaon, and the name of his wife was Makah, and his firstborn son 31 was Abdon, then Tzur, and Kish, and Bal, and Nadab, and Geder, and 32 Akhio, and Zakur, and Mikloth who begat Sheniah;—and they resided in Jerusalem beside their relatives.
 33 And Ner begot Kish, and Kish
 begot Shaul, and Shaul begot
 Jhonathan, and Melkishua, and Abinadab and Ashbal.
 34 And the son of Jhonathan was Meribal, and Meribal begot Mikah.
 35 And the sons of Mikah were, Fithon, and Melek, and Thara, and Akhaz;
 36 and Akhaz begot Jhoadah, and Jhoadah begot Alamath, and Azmavith, and Zimri, and Zimri begot 37 Motza; and Motza begot Binah, his son was Refa,—his son Alashah, his 38 son Atzal. And Atzal had six sons; and these are their names;—Azrikam, his firstborn, and Ishmaal, and Shariah, and Abadiah, and Khanan;
 —all these were the sons of Atzal.
 39 And the sons of Ashk, his brother, were Aulam, his firstborn Jabash, 40 the second, Alifalet, the third. And the sons of Aulam became men of great distinction for skill with the bow, and he had many sons and a hundred and fifty grandchildren.—
 All these were of the Beni Benjamin.

For all Israel were registered, and 9

Judah, however, was transported to 2

 text further supports my view that all these Pedigrees are portions or copies of the evidence of ancestry produced by claimants to estates, by the returned transports from Babylon when proving their claims before the First Nehemiah and Ezra about 536 B.C., and which some subsequent compiler had copied out indiscriminately from the Records of the Land Registry Office at Jerusalem long after, and by the error of old Transcribers they have been confused with the Book called in Hebrew "The Events of the Ages" and by us "Chronicles." I call attention to this to remove a common error which looks on them as sacred documents.—F. F.

 and Berakiah, ben-Asa, ben-Alkanah, who settled in the villages of the 17 Netofathi; with the Doorkeepers, Shalum, Akub, and Talmon, and Akhiman, and their companions.
 18 Shalum was their Chief; and they were settled at the east of the King's Gate. They were the Guards for the 19 camps of the Levites. And Shalum-ben-Kora-ben-Abisaf-ben-Korakh and his companions of his Ancestral House of the Koreites, were to superintend the execution of the Service.
 They guarded the Thresholds of the Hall, for their ancestors had been over the Camp of the LORD as Guards
 20 of the entry. And Phinehas-ben-Eliezer was Prince over them, before
 the LORD.
 21 Zekariah-ben-Meshelemiah, was Door-opener at the Hall of Assembly.
 All of them were chosen as Gatekeepers to the number of two hundred and twelve in their family villages.
 22 They were appointed by David and Samuel to attend to their duties;
 23 and they and their descendants; are attendants at the Door of the House of the LORD, as they were at the 24 House of the Tent, as Guards; they were at the Gates on the four sides;¹
 —the East, the West, the North 25 and the South. And their relatives came from their villages for periods of seven days, in their turns along 26 with them. But the Levites who were the Four Chiefs, of the Gates officially superintended the Lodgings, 27 and the Treasury of the House of GOD, and lodged all who came up for duty; and they were at the Opening Services from morning to morning. They also had to attend 28 to the vessels; for they brought them in by number, and returned back by number. And others of them were 29

 Officers over the furniture; and over the Sacred Vessels; and over the flour; and wine, and oil, and incense, and spices. But some from the 30 descendants of the Priests prepared the confection of spices.

And Mathethiah, of the Levites, 31 who was the firstborn to Korakh was appointed over the bakers. But 32 others from the descendants of Kahth, with their relatives superintended to the Shew-bread, to arrange it Sabbath by Sabbath.

And these are the Ancestral Chiefs 33 of the Levite Singers, exempt from duty in the sanctuaries,—for they were at work day and night. They 34 are the Ancestral Chiefs, Chiefs according to their pedigrees,—who resided in Jerusalem.

And in Gibaon resided the Beni 35
 Gibaon, Janal, and the name of his wife was Makah, and his firstborn 36 son was Abdon, and Tzur, and Ner, and Nadab,—and Gedor, and Akhio, 37 and Zekeria, and Mikloth. And Mikloth begot Shimam, and they 38 settled in Jerusalem near their relatives.

And Ner begot Kish; and Kish 39
 begot Shaul; and Shaul begot
 Jhonathan; and Milkishua; and Abinadab; and Ashbal. And the 40 sons of Jhonathan were Merib-Bal, and Meribah begot Mikah. And the 41 sons of Mikah were Pithen, and Melek, and Thakhra, and Akhaz, 42 who begot Jarab; and Jarab begot Alemath, and Azmavath, and Zimri, and Zimri begot Motza; and Motza 43
 begot Binaa, Rifiyah, his son, Alasah his son, Atzal his son, and Atzal had 44 six sons, and these are their names:—
 Azrikaim, his firstborn, and Ishmaal, and Shariah, and Abadiah, and Khami,—These are the sons of Atzal.

FIRST BOOK OF CHRONICLES,

NAMED IN THE HEBREW

THE RECORDS OF THE TIMES.¹

HISTORY OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID.—BOOK I.

(1056 B.C.) Introductory Chapter.

- 10 THE Philishtim were at war with Israel, and the men of Israel fled before the Philishtim, and fell 2 defeated on the hills of Gilboa where the Philishtim pressed on after Saul, and after his sons, and the Philishtim had slain Jhonathan, and Abinadab, 3 and Melkishua, the sons of Saul; so the battle was heavy upon Saul, and the Archers opposed him with their bows, and he was wounded by the 4 archers. Saul consequently said to his Squire, "Draw your sword and stab me with it, for these blackguards are coming, and will insult me." But his Squire was not willing for he was terribly afraid, Saul therefore took the sword and fell upon it.
- 5 When the Squire saw Saul was dead, he also fell on his sword, and died.
- 6 Thus Saul and his three sons, with all his house, died at one time.
- 7 When all the men of Israel who were on the Plain saw how they fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead; they abandoned their villages and fled, and the Philishtim advanced and occupied them.
- 8 But morning arrived, and the Philishtim came to strip the wounded, and found Saul and his sons fallen 9 on Mount Gilboa. So they stripped him and took off his head and his armour, and sent them round to the country of the Philishtim to exhibit them to their Idols and People.
- 10 They also placed his arms in the House of their Gods, and fixed his head on the House of Dagon.

¹ NOTE.—See my Introductory Note, Ch. I, First Chronicles. The actual history only begins, however, at this point, the preceding nine chapters having no connection with it.—F. F.

But the Forces occupying Jabish 11 Gilad heard of all that the Philishtim had done to Saul, so they arose every 12 man of the army, and carried off the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh, and buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh. Then they fasted seven days.

Thus Saul died in the transgression 13 that he transgressed against the LORD,—about the Command of the LORD which he did not obey. And also for going to enquire of a Spirit-raiser, instead of going to the LORD. Thus he was killed, and the Kingship transferred to David, the Son of Jessai.

(1048 B.C.) History of the House of David.

The forces of Israel ultimately 11 collected to David at Hebron, and said, "We are your bones and your flesh. In the past also, while Saul 2 existed as King, you led out and brought back Israel, and your EVER-LIVING GOD said to you, 'You shall Shepherd My People Israel, and you shall be Prince over My People Israel.'"

(1048 B.C.) Jerusalem Assailed and Captured.

Then all the Parliament of Israel 3 came to the King at Hebron, and made a Treaty with David at Hebron before the LORD, and elected David as King over Israel, as the LORD had promised by the means of Samuel.

David and the army of Israel then 4 marched to Jerusalem;—It was Jebus,— and the Jebusites, the 5 natives of the country, were there, and the inhabitants of Jebus said, 6

"You cannot get in here," yet David captured the Fortress of Zion,—now the City of David,—and David proclaimed, "Whoever first defeats the Jebusites, shall be the Chief Governor." And Joab-ben-Zeruiah advanced and became the Chief. But David settled in the Fortress, therefore it was called the City of David. He also walled it around, from Miloa, and to its circuit; but Joab was Governor of the City. Thus David advanced and was great, for the LORD of Hosts was with him.

List of the Generals.

Now these are the leading Generals who were with David, who joined themselves with him to confirm him, with the Forces of Israel, in his Kingship over Israel as the LORD had promised. They are copied from the Roll of Generals who were with David;

Jashabam, the son of a Hakmonite, was the chief of the Staff-Officers. He extended his spear over three hundred slain in one action.

And next to him Alazur-ben-Dodo the Hakkokite. He was a General of the Staff. He was with David at Pasdanim, when the Philistim advanced to battle there, and a portion of the field was filled with barley, and the force fled before the Philistim. But they were rallied in the middle of that plot, and he defended it, and defeated the Philistim, and the LORD won a great victory. These three went down, from the Chiefs' Staff Officers, in discontent to David when in the cave of Adulam, and when a troop of the Philistim was encamped in the vale of Refaim while David was in a trap,—for the Philistim then garrisoned Bethlehem. David, however, was parched with thirst and asked, "Who will get me a drink of water from the Well of Bethlehem? that by the Gate?" So the three broke through the Camp of the Philistim and drew water from the well which is by the Gate of Bethlehem, and lifted it up and brought to David. Then David was not willing to drink it, but poured it out to the EVER-LIVING, and exclaimed;—"May I be cursed by my GOD if I do! This is the blood of those men! Should I drink in their lives? For they went with their lives,—and I am not inclined to drink them."

These three heroes did that. And Abshai, the brother of Joab, was a General of the Staff. He extended his spear over three hundred slain. But he was not equal to the Three. His rank was on the Second Staff. He was their Commander;—but he was not one of the Three.

Beniah-ben-Jhoiada,—was the son of a brave man of Kabzal. He defeated the two Champions of Moab. He also went down and killed a lion in the middle of a pit, on a snowy day. He also defeated the Egyptian Leader,—a man of five cubits high, when the Egyptian had a spear in his hand like a weaver's beam, but he went at him with a club, and wrenched the spear from the hand of the Egyptian, and slew him with his own spear!—Beniah-ben-Jhoiada, did this, so he ranked with the Heroes of the Staff. He ranked with the Staff-Officers, but did not attain to the Three. But David appointed him over his Council.

And the Generals of the Army were;—Ashahel the brother of Joab; Alkhanan-ben-Dodo, of Bethlehem; Shamoth, the Hararite; Khletz, the Pelanite; Aira-ben-Akosh, the Theraite; Abiazer, the Anethothite; Sibki, the Hushathite; Aili, the Akhoki; Mahri, the Netofathite; Kheled-ben-Banah, the Netofathi; Aithi-ben-Bibi, from Gibath of the Beni Benjamin; Beniah, the Pirathoni; Khori of Mahli-gash; Abial, the Aribathite; Azmuth, the Bakhromite; Alikhebah, the Shalbani; the sons of Hashem, the Ghizanite; Johnathan-ben-Shaga, the Hararite; Akhiam-ben-Sakar, the Hararite; Alifal-ben-Aur; Khafer, the Makeraite; Akhiah, the Pelouite; Khetzro, the Carmelite; Nari-ben-Azbi; Joal, the brother of Nathan, Nubkhar-ben-Hagri; Zelek, the Amonite; Nakhri, the Berothite,—the Armour-bearer of Joab-ben-Zeruiah. Aira, the Ithrite; Gareb, the Ithrite; Auriah, the Hitite; Zabad-ben-Akhli; Adina-ben-Shiza, the Reubenite;—Chief of the Reubenites,— and he went with the Thirty—Khanan-ben-Makah, and Joshafat, the Mithnite; Aziah, the Ashthrahitite; Shama, Javal, the sons of Khotam, the Ararite; Jadiel-ben-Shimri, and Jokha his brother, the Thitzite; Alial, the Makhavite; and Iribi, and Joshuah, the sons of Alnam; and Ithmah, the 47 Moabite, Alial, and Aubed, Jashial, the Metzobite.

- 12 And these came to David at Ziklag while he was shut out from the favour of Saul-ben-Kish, and they were among the hard fighters in battle.
- 2 They could draw the bow with both right and left hand, in slinging stones or in shooting arrows. They were from Benjamin,—tribesmen of Saul.
- 3 The Commanders were Akhiazer, and Joash, sons of Shamaa, the Ghibaonite; and Izual, and Felet, sons of Azmuth; and Berakah, and Alia, the Anathothite; and Ishmaiah, the Ghibaonite, a General in the Thirty, and who Commanded the Thirty; Jeremiah, and Jakhazial, and Jokhanan, and
- 5 Jozabad the Gherathite; Alnazi and Jerimoth, and Bahiah, and Shemariah, and Shefatiah, the Kharufite; Alkanah, and Ishiah, and Azaral, and
- 7 Japazer, Jashabam, and Joalah, and Zebadiah, sons of Jerokham, from Ghedar.
- 8 And from the Gadites there deserted to David, when in hiding in the Desert, brave men, Princes of war in battle. Trained to the shield and spear, and their faces were faces of lions, and they were swift as gazelles on the hills. Their Commander was Azer; Abadiah, the
- 10 Second; Aliab, the Third; Mishmanah, the Fourth; Iremiah, the
- 11 Fifth; Attu, the Sixth; Alial, the
- 12 Seventh; Jokhanan, the Eighth;
- 13 Alsabad, the Ninth; Iremiho, the Tenth; Makabani, the Eleventh.

(1058 B.C.)

- 14 Those were Officers in the Army from the Beni Gad; the least over a hundred, the greatest over a thousand.
- 15 These were the men who crossed the Jordan in the First month, when it was flooded over all its banks, and routed the whole of the Dalesmen, both on the east and west.
- 16 Some also came to David from the Beni Benjamin, and Judah, when in hiding, and David came out to meet them, and he addressed and said to
- 17 them, "If you come for peace and come to me to help me, my heart is ready to unite with you.—But if to betray me to my oppressor, when there is no wrong in my hand, the GOD of our fathers will see it, and punish it."

Then passion clothed Amasai, 18
Commander of the Staff;

"We are yours, David! and with you,
Son of Jessai!
Peace, Peace! to you, and to your friends!

For your GOD helps you!"

David then accepted them, and made them captains of troops.

Some also deserted from Menasseh 19 to David when he marched with the Philishtim to fight against Saul. But they did not help, for upon consultation the Lords of the Philishtim sent him away, remarking, "He will desert with our heads to his Master, Saul!" When he marched to Ziklag there 20 deserted to him from Menasseh, Adinah, and Jozabad, and Idiaal, and Mikal, Jozabad, and Alihua, and Zilthi, Colonels of regiments that 21 came from Menasseh, and they helped David with their troops, for they were all brave men, and they became Generals in the Army. From 22 day to day also others came to help him, until there was a great army like a divine army.

(About 1056 B.C.) The Israelite
Generals who elected David as King.

And these are from the records of 23
the Generals of Division of the Army, who came to David at Hebron, to transfer the Kingship of Saul to him, as the EVER-LIVING commanded:—

With the Princes of the 24
Beni Judah; carrying shield and spear—Six thousand, eight hundred, disciplined for war; 6,800

From the Beni Simeon; 25
brave men of war, Seven thousand, one hundred; 7,100

From the Beni Levi,—Four 26 thousand, six hundred; 4,600

And Jhoiada the Prince of 27
the Descendants from Aaron, and with him,—Three thousand and seven hundred; 3,700

And Zadok a young brave 28 man, and the Officers of his father's family,—Twenty-two; 22

And from the Beni Benjamin, the Tribe of Saul, Three 29 thousand,—for until then the majority kept their duty to the House of Saul; 3,000

From the Beni Ephraim,— 30
Twenty thousand and eight

- hundred brave men of fame in their Ancestral Houses. 20,800

Their connections
- 39 also from as far off as Issakar, and Zebulon, and Nafthali, brought bread on asses and camels and mules, with cattle, with corn, meal, dried figs, raisins; and wine, and oil, and bullocks and sheep in abundance. For all Israel was glad.¹
- (1045 B.C.) David asks the Generals to have their Election of him Confirmed by a National Civilian Meeting.
- 13 David afterwards consulted with the Generals, and Captains, and all the Princes; and then David said to the Parliament of Israel;

"If it seems good to you, and pleasing to our EVER-LIVING GOD, send to our brothers,—the remainder of our brothers in all the districts of Israel,—and with them to the Priests and Levites in the suburbs of their Cities, let them collect to us, and we will seek the Ark of our EVER-LIVING GOD, for that has not been attended to in the days of Saul."

And all the Parliament replied, "Let that be done"; for the thing was right in the sight of all the People.

The Ark brought up from Krith Jarim.

David consequently convoked the Representatives of all Israel from the River of Mitzer, to the Pass of Hamath, to bring the Ark of GOD from Krith-Jarim. Then David, and the Representatives of Israel went up to the Corporation of Krith-Jarim, which is in Judah, to bring up the Ark of GOD,—the LORD dwelling with the Kerubim, who are represented there,—and carried the Ark of GOD upon a new waggon from the House of Abinadab; and Azah, and Akhio, the Priests, were in the waggon, while David and the Representatives of Israel rejoiced with all their power before GOD, with harps, and lutes, and drums, and timbrels, and trumpets, and advanced as far as Kidens-barn, when Azah extended his hand to support the Ark, for the oxen were restive. But the anger of the LORD burnt against Azah, so he struck him, because he had extended his hand upon the Ark—so he died there before GOD!

David, however, was angry that the LORD had broken Azah, so he called that place Azah's-breach. As it is still to-day. David also feared GOD, from that day, and said "The Ark of GOD shall not come to me!" So David did not transfer the Ark to the City of David, but placed it in the House of Abd-adom, an officer in his Palace, and the Ark of GOD remained in the house of Abd-adom three months. But the LORD blessed the family of Abd-adom, and all who were with him.

(1043 B.C.) Hiram of Tyre makes Friends with David.

14 Hiram King of Tzur afterwards sent Ambassadors to David, and Cedar timber, and masons, and carpenters to build him a Palace. Then David knew that the EVER-LIVING had fixed him as King over Israel.

3 David also took more wives in Jerusalem, and David begot more sons and daughters, and these are the names of those who were born to him in Jerusalem;—

5 Shamua, and Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, Ibkhar, and Alishua, and 6 Alifalat, and Nogah, and Nefeg, and 7 Jafia, and Alishama, and Balida—Alifalet.

(1047 B.C.) The Philistines assail David.

8 But the Philistim heard that David enjoyed the Kingship over all Israel, so the Philistim forces came up to seek David; but David heard it, and 9 went out to meet them. Then the Philistim spread over the plain of 10 Refaim. Therefore David enquired of GOD to ask "Shall I advance against the Philistim? And will You give them into my hand?" And the EVER-LIVING replied to him, "Advance! and I will give them into your hand."

Defeat of the Philistines.

11 They accordingly advanced to Balfratzim,¹ and there David defeated them. So David exclaimed, "GOD has crushed my enemies by my hand, like a splash of water!" Therefore he called the name of that place Balpratzim, for they left their Gods there, whom David commanded to be burnt in fire.

13 But the Philistim collected again, and invaded the plain, when David again enquired of GOD, and GOD replied to him, "Do not advance on their van. Retreat from them. Then march on them from behind the 15 Willowwood, and when you hear the sound of a movement in the tops of the Willows, then advance to battle, for the Divine Messengers will advance before you to defeat the forces of the Philistim."

David consequently did as GOD commanded, and defeated the forces of the Philistim from Gebaon as far as Gazer. Consequently the fame of 17 David went out to all countries, and the EVER-LIVING put a terror of him upon all the heathen.

(1042 B.C.) David Builds Zinn, and brings up the Ark.

He afterwards made himself houses 15 in the City of David, and formed a place for the Ark of GOD, and erected a tent for it. David, however said 2 "None should carry the Ark of GOD except the Levites, for the LORD chose them to carry the Ark, and to attend to it for ever."

(1042 B.C.) David and the Parliament of Israel bring up the Ark.

Consequently David convoked the 3 Parliament of Israel, at Jerusalem, to bring up the Ark of GOD to the place he had constructed for it. David also 4 assembled the Descendants of Aaron and the Levites with Auriel the 5 Singer, and a hundred and twenty of his brothers of the Beni Kahth;

And Ashiah the Singer, and a 6 hundred and twenty of his brothers of the Beni Merari;

And Joal the Singer, and a hundred 7 and thirty of his brothers of the Beni Ghershom;

And Shemiah the Singer with two 8 hundred of his brothers of the Beni Alizafan;

And Alial the Singer with eighty of 9 his brothers of the Beni Khaberai;

And Aminadab the Singer with a 10 hundred and twelve of his brothers of the Beni Azial.

David also invited Zadok and 11 Abiathar the Priests and the Levites, with Auriel, Asiah, and Joal, Shemiah, and Alial, and Aminadab, and said to 12 them:

"You are the Ancestral Chiefs of the Levites. Sanctify yourselves, and your associates, and bring up the Ark of the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel to the structure for it. Because, when 13 you were not preceding it, the LORD our GOD broke us, for you ought rightly to precede it."

The Priests and Levites consequently sanctified themselves for bringing up the Ark of the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, and the Levites 15 carried the Ark of GOD as Moses ordered, according to the Command

37 In this manner he left Asaph and his companions to sing before the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-

38 day, with Abd-adom and sixty-eight of his associates. But Abd-adomben-Jeduthun and Hosah were the 17 But when David was settled in his own House, David said to Nathan the Preacher, "See, I am residing in a Palace of Cedar, but the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING is under curtains!"

2 When Nathan replied to David,
"Do whatever is in your heart, for GOD is with you."

3 But when it was night, a Message from GOD came to Nathan, to say;

4 "Go and say to David my Servant,
thus says the EVER-LIVING;

5 "You shall not build me a permanent House!—For I have not rested in a house from the day when I brought Israel up from the Mitzeraim to this day; but I have gone from Tent to Tent, and Tabernacle,—

6 Wherever I marched with all Israel, have I spoken a word to one of the Judges of Israel, whom I commanded to Shepherd my People, asking, 'Why have you not built Me a Palace of Cedar?'—Therefore, now, say this to my Servant David, 'Thus says the LORD of HOSTS, I took you from the Pastures, from following the sheep, to be a Leader over my People of Israel. And I have been with you,

8 wherever you went, and have defeated all your enemies before you, and have made you famous equal to the renown of the GREAT on the earth.
I am also preparing a place for My 9 People of Israel and am planting it, to dwell under itself and it shall never shake, and the sons of evil shall not continue to injure it as formerly, from the days when I 10 ordered the appointment of Judges over my People of Israel. I will also subject all your enemies. And I tell you further, the EVER-LIVING will build your house; and when you 11 days are filled to go to your fathers,
I will establish an heir after you, who shall be from your own sons, and fix him in his kingship. He shall build 12 Me a House, and I will fix his Throne for Ever. I will be a Father to him, 13 and He shall be a Son to Me, and I will not turn My affection away from him, as I turned it from him who was before you, for I will appoint him in 14 My House and in My Kingdom for Eternity, and his Throne shall be constructed for Eternity."

Nathan related all these promises,
15 and all this Vision to David.

Dabid thanks God for his Success.

King David consequently went, 16 and sat before the LORD and said;—

"Who am I, EVER-LIVING GOD, and what is my House, that You have brought me so far? But, GOD, 17 that was little in Your eyes, for You have promised to Your Servant's House for the future, and have looked upon me as exalted above Mankind.
18 EVER-LIVING GOD, what has David ever added to You, that You should honour Your servant? for You know 19 Your servant! EVER-LIVING, according to Your own heart You have done all these great things for Your servant

 20 There is no GOD except Yourself, from all we have heard with our ears.
 21 And who is like Your People of Israel? A singular People in the earth, whom GOD went to redeem for Himself. A People to bear Your great and terrible NAME, which advanced before Your People, whom You redeemed from the heathen
 22 Mitzeraim; and have made Israel Your People for ever! And You, EVER-LIVING, have been a GOD to them.
 23 "But now, LORD, the Promise that You have promised to Your servant and to his house, let it be firm for ever, and do according to Your promise! Yes! let it be firm, and enlarge Your NAME for ever, by the declaration that the LORD of HOSTS, the GOD of Israel, is the GOD for Israel; and that the House of David, Your Servant, is fixed before You for ever. For You LORD have revealed it to Your servant, that you will build him a house, and therefore let Your servant find his heart to pray before 26 You. For You are the EVER-LIVING GOD Who has promised this benefit to Your servant; as now You have been pleased to bless the House of Your servant to continue before You for ever,—so You, the EVER-LIVING, have blessed and will bless it for ever!"

(About 1040 B.C.) David subdues Philistia.

- 18 It was subsequently to this that David defeated the Philistim, and subdued them, and captured Gath and its villages from the hands of the Philistim.
 2 He then defeated Moab; and the Moabites became subjects of David, paying a tribute.

(About 1039 B.C.)

- 3 David afterwards defeated Hadadezer, King of Zobah,¹ as he marched to establish his power beyond the River Frath,¹ when David captured 4 from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand infantry. But David destroyed all the chariots, only reserving a hundred chariots from them.

But the Arami of Damask came to 5 assist Hadadezer, King of Zobah, when David slew twenty-two thousand in Aram. David afterwards settled Damascan Aram, and Aram 6 became subject to David, paying a tribute.

Thus the LORD gave David victory wherever he went.

David, however, took the shields 7 of gold which the guards of Hadadezer carried and brought them to Jerusalem. And from Tibkhath, and 8 Kan, cities of Hadadezer, David took a very great quantity of brass, of which Solomon made the Brazen Sea, and the Columns and Instruments of brass.

When Thaw the King of Hamath 9 heard that David had defeated all the forces of Hadadezer, King of Zobah,² he sent Hadoram his son, to 10 King David, to wish him health, and to congratulate him about how he had conquered Hadadezer, and defeated all his men. Thaw had been at war with Hadadezer; and he sent vessels of gold, silver, and brass. These also King David dedicated to 11 the LORD, with the silver and gold which was paid by all the Nations. By Edom, and Moab, and the Beniamon, and from the Philistim, and from the Amalakites.

Abishi-ben-Zeruiah also defeated 12 eighteen thousand of Edom in the Salt-vale. He then put garrisons in 13 Edom, and all Edom became subject to David, and the LORD gave David victory wherever he went, so David 14 reigned over all Israel, and brought Justice and Right to all the People.

Joab-ben-Zeriah commanded the 15 Army; and Jhoshafat-ben-Akhilud was Secretary of State; and 16 Zadok, ben-Akhitub, and Abimalek-ben-Abiathar were Priests; and Shansha, Secretary; and Beniah-ben-Jhoiada was over the Guards and Light Infantry, and the sons of David were the Princes at the side of the King.

(1037 B.C.) The Beni-Amon Insult David's Ambassadors.

19 It was after this that Naksh, King of the Beni-Amon, died, and his son reigned after him.

2 So David said, "I will show friendship to Hanun the son of Naksh, for his father showed friendship to me." David consequently sent Ambassadors to console him about his father. David's Officers accordingly went to the country of the Beni-Amon to Hanun to console him.

3 But the Princes of the Beni-Amon said to Hanun, "Does David honour your father in your sight that he sends you presents? Have not his Officers come to you with the object of examining, and inspecting, and surveying the country?"

4 Consequently Hanun seized David's Officers and shaved them, and cut off their robes half way up their buttocks, and sent them away! So they sent and informed David about those persons, and he sent to meet them, for they had been grievously outraged. Therefore the king commanded, "Stay at Jeriko until your beards are grown."

6 When the Beni-Amon, however, saw that they had insulted David, Hanun sent a thousand talents of silver to hire for himself chariots and cavalry from Aram-tween-rivers, and from Aram of the Plain, and from the Zobah,¹ and hired with them thirty-two thousand Charioteers and the King of the Plain and his forces, and advanced and encamped before Medeba, where the Beni-Amon were collected from their towns. From there they advanced to the war.

Joab Ordered to Resist the Beni-Amon and Allies.

8 But David heard it, and sent Joab and the Generals of the Army.

9 The Beni-Amon then drew out for battle opposite the City; with the kings, who had come to help them, separately in the open field. Joab consequently perceived that a Double Battle was before him;—on his front and rear. He therefore selected all the Israelite soldiers and disposed them to meet Aram; and put the rest of the forces into the hands of his brother Abishai, whom he ordered to meet the Beni-Amon; and said; 12

"If the Aramites are too strong for me, come and help me to defeat them. But if the Beni-Amon are too strong for you, I will rescue you. Be bold and resolute for our People, 13 and for the City of our GOD;—and let the LORD do what is best in His sight."

Then Joab, and the force that was with him advanced to the front of the Aramites to fight, and they fled before him. And when the Beni-Amon saw that Aram fled, they also ran from the face of Abishai, his brother, and entered the City.

Joab afterwards returned to Jerusalem.

The Aramians Ally with the Mesopotamians.

But Aram, seeing that they had been defeated by Israel, sent Ambassadors who went to Aram-over-the-River,¹ and hired the General of Hadadezer to help them. But this was reported to David, so he collected the Forces of Israel and passed over the Jordan, and advanced against them, when they arrayed against him, and David disposed his army to meet Aram in battle, and they fought with him. But Aram fled before Israel, and David slew seven thousand Charioteers and forty thousand Infantry, and killed Shofek the Commander of their army. But when the officers of Hadadezer saw that they were worsted by Israel, they made peace with David, and were subject to him; and the Aramites were unwilling to assist the Beni-Amon again.

(1036 B.C.) Joab Ravages the Beni-Amon.

When the period of the year came round,—the season for Generals to march out,—Joab led out the strength of the army and ravaged the country of the Beni-Amon. Then he went and besieged Rabah. But David stayed in Jerusalem; so Joab assaulted Rabah and stormed it.

2 Then David took the turban which was of the value of a talent of gold from off the King's head. There was also a precious stone in it, and it was placed on the head of David. They also brought very much plunder from the city, and brought out the people who were in it, and appointed them to the Mines, and to the Iron-works, and Sawpits. David did the same to all the cities of the Beni-Amon.

David then returned to Jerusalem.

(1035 B.C.) The Philistines Rebel.

4 It was after this that a battle occurred near Ghezar with the Philistim, when Sibki, the Khushahti, defeated Sipheri, of the race of the Repha.

5 There was war again with the Philistim, when Alkhanan-ben-Jaur slew Lakhumi, the brother of Goliath of Gath, whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

6 There was again war with Gath, and a man came out from there, a giant, whose fingers and toes were six and six,—twenty-four; and he

7 was of the race of the Repha; and he challenged Israel. But Jhonathan, ben-Shimaa, the brother of David,

8 defeated him. These were born of the Repha at Gath, but they fell by the hand of David, or by the hand of his Officers.

(1017 B.C.) Unbid Orders & Conscript for the Army.

21 Then Satan arose against Israel, and incited David to make a conscription of Israel. So David said to Joab, and the Generals of the Forces, "Go, conscript Israel from Barseba, to Dan. Then come to me, that I may know the number."

3 But Joab replied:—"May the LORD add to his People; that they may become a hundred-fold. Are they not all your Royal Majesty's? Your Majesty's servants? So why does his Majesty desire this? May not Israel be offended at this?"

4 Yet the command of the king prevailed over Joab. So Joab went out and travelled to every part of Israel, and returned to Jerusalem, where

5 Joab reported the number of the forces,—enrolled for David. And the Forces of Israel were One Million, One Hundred thousand men, disciplined to arms; and of Judah, Four Hundred and seventy Thousand men, disciplined to arms.¹ But Levi and 6 Benjamin were not enrolled amongst them, for Joab was disgusted at the command of the king. This com- 7 mand also was wrong in the sight of GOD, so He struck Israel.

Then David said to GOD "I sinned 8 greatly when I did that thing. But now I pray You to pass over the fault of Your servant, for I have been very foolish."

The LORD therefore spoke to Gad, 9 David's Seer, and said;

"Go to David and announce,— 10 'Thus says the EVER-LIVING, I will present three things to you. Choose one from them,—and I will do it for you!'"

Gad consequently went to David, 11 and said to him, "Thus says the EVER-LIVING; Choose for yourself! Either three years of Famine; or three years of flight before your assailants, and the sword of your triumphant enemies; or three days 12 of the Sword of the LORD! with a plague in the country, and the Messenger of the LORD exterminating the forces of Israel? Reflect, therefore, on the answer I am to return to my Sender?"

And David replied to Gad, "It is 13 very difficult for me. I would rather fall into the hand of the EVER-LIVING—for His mercies are many,—but I would not fall into the hand of Man!"

The LORD therefore sent a plague 14 to Israel, and seventy thousand of Israel fell. The LORD also sent the 15 Divine Messenger² to Jerusalem to afflict it; but as he was about to afflict it, the LORD looked, and had pity over the flock, and said to the Messenger, "You have punished enough! Now restrain your hand."

But the Messenger of the LORD stood opposite the Granary of Arnan the Jebusite; and David lifted his 16 eyes and saw the Messenger of the LORD standing between the Earth and the Skies, with his sword drawn in his hand, stretched out over Jerusalem! And David and his Counsellors, clothed in sackcloth, fell on their faces, and David said, to GOD; 17

 "Was it not I alone who commanded to conscript for the Forces?—I am the one who has sinned, and have committed the wrong;—but, these sheep,—what have they done? EVER-LIVING GOD! let Your hand, I beg, be upon me;—and do not afflict Your people!"

18 So the Messenger of the EVER-LIVING commanded Gad, to order David, to go up and raise an Altar to the EVER-LIVING at the Granary of 19
 Arnan the Jebusite. David consequently went there at the command of Gad, which he uttered in the name of the LORD. Arnan also turned and saw the King,—and he and his four sons who were with him, hid themselves;—for Arnan was thrashing 20 wheat. But David advanced to Arnan, when Arnan peeped and saw David, so came out from the Granary, and bowed to David, inclining his face towards the earth.

22 David then asked Arnan,—“Will you sell me the site of the Granary? for I wish to build an Altar to the EVER-LIVING. You shall sell it to me for full money value, so that the affliction may be removed from the Forces.”

23 But Arnan replied to David, “Take it for yourself. And let my Lord the King do what is fair in his opinion. Look! I also give the Bullocks for Burnt-offerings, and the wood of the Thrashing-machine, and the wheat as a Bread-gift.—I will give the whole.”

24 King David, however, answered to Arnan, “No!—But I will purchase it for full money value, for I will not offer your property to the EVER-LIVING, and thus sacrifice a costless sacrifice.”

25 So David paid Arnan for the place six hundred gold shekels as the price.¹

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 21, v. 25. About £1,081 sterling in bullion, at £4 per ounce, but its purchasing value would be enormously greater, if we consider that a slave in the prime of youth, 20 to 30 years of age, was then only worth £3 10s. sterling at bullion weight, that is 30 shekels of silver. In our day a slave of the same sort would have been on an American Slave Mart worth £200. I note this to show that David's Sacrifice was no

(1017 B.C.) David Builds an Altar.

Then David built an Altar there, 26 and offered a burnt-offering and a thank-offering, and called on the EVER-LIVING Who answered by fire from the skies to the Altar of the Burnt-offering. Then the LORD com- 27
 manded the Messenger and he returned his sword to its sheath.

David saw at that time, that the 28
 EVER-LIVING had answered him, at the Granary of Arnan the Jebusite, when he sacrificed there. For the 29
 Tabernacle of the EVER-LIVING which Moses made in the Wilderness, and the Altar for Burnt-offering were at that period at the Mound of Ghibaon.

David, however, could not go before 30 it to enquire of GOD for he was startled at the presence of the sword of the Messenger of the LORD. Conse- 22 quently David exclaimed:

“This shall be a House for the EVER-LIVING! And this shall be an Altar of Burnt-offering for Israel!” Therefore David commanded to con- 2 scribe the aborigines who were in Israel and made them stone-cutters to cut squared stones to build a Temple to GOD. David also prepared 3 a quantity of iron for the nails of the doors of the Gates and the joinings; and bronze without weight; Beside 4 cedar timber beyond count, for the Zidonians and Tzurians brought cedar wood in large quantity to David. For, David said, “Solomon 5 my son is young and weak, and the Temple that is to be built to the EVER-LIVING must be great, high, and renowned, and the wonder of the lands. I will prepare now for him.” Therefore David prepared before his death. He also conversed with his 6 slight affair, as the obsolete language of A.V. and R.V. leaves the impression, as it also does in many other places. I may add to remove a difficulty often raised, that in 2 Samuel, Ch. 24, v. 23 the price is stated at “Fifty shekels of money,” but here “Six hundred of gold.” I suggest that the writer of “Chronicles,” to show to the men of his day the cost of David's offering, calculated out the purchasing value of 50 shekels in David's time and its equivalent in the period he wrote, about the Third Century before Christ. We ought to recollect the depreciation in the value of bullion caused by the importations of Solomon, and others, into southern Asia of the vast amount of Gold from Africa, between the days of David and the writer of Chronicles.—F. son Solomon and instructed him in the plan to build the Temple to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel.

7 David also said to his son Solomon, "I had it in my heart to build a Temple to the name of the EVER-LIVING GOD myself, but there came to me a message from the EVER-LIVING to say, 'You have shed much blood upon the earth, and have made great wars. You shall not build a Temple to My Name,—for you have shed much blood upon the earth before Me.—However, there is your child,—

9 he will be a Man of Peace and I will make quiet for him from all his enemies around. Therefore his name shall be Solomon,¹ and I will make Peace and Security over Israel in his

10 days.—He shall build a Temple to My Name; and he shall be a son to Me,—and I will be a father to him, and I will fix the Throne of his Kingship over Israel for ever.'

11 "Now my son, may GOD be with you for ever, and make you prosper; that you may build the Temple of your EVER-LIVING GOD, as He promised

12 about you. Yes! May the EVER-LIVING give you intelligence, and understanding, and instruct you about Israel. Guard also, the Laws

13 of your EVER-LIVING GOD. You will then prosper, if you guard the Institutions and Decrees that the EVER-LIVING communicated to Moses for Israel. Be bold, and brave; fear not; and be not

14 depressed; for see how in my difficulties I have prepared for the House of the EVER-LIVING, a hundred thousand talents of Gold, a million talents of Silver,² I have no weights however of the Brass and Iron, but they are plentiful. I have also provided cedar timber and stones, and you can add

15 to them. And you have with you plenty of workmen for the work. Masons and mechanics in stone and wood, and they are all skilful at every

16 work. And for the gold, and silver, and brass, and iron—it is boundless!—Rise and act! and may the EVER-LIVING be with you."

17 David also ordered all the Nobles of Israel to assist his son Solomon.

"Is not your EVER-LIVING GOD ¹⁸ with you? And He will cause rest all round you, for He has given the populations of the land to my hand, and the land is subdued before the EVER-LIVING and before His People! Therefore give your hearts and minds ¹⁹ to seek your EVER-LIVING GOD; and rise and build the Sanctuary of your EVER-LIVING GOD, and bring the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING, and the Sacred Vessels of GOD to the Temple that will be built to the Name of the EVER-LIVING."

(1015 B.C.) David Crowns Solomon as Viceroy.

But David grew old and satiated ²³ with days, so he crowned Solomon his son over Israel, when all the ² Princes of Israel assembled, with the Priests and Levites.

A Census of the Levites Taken.

Then the Levites were numbered, ³ from thirty years old and upwards; and the number of men on their Registers was thirty-eight thousand. Twenty-four thousand of these were ⁴ appointed over the works of the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, and six thousand as Superintendents and Overseers. With four thousand as ⁵ Guards; and four thousand praised the EVER-LIVING with instruments that were made for praise.

Brigading the Levite Houses.

But David divided them into Divi- ⁶ sions, Of the Beni Levi; the Beni Ghershom; Kabth; and Merari.

Of the Ghershomites,—Zallon and ⁷ Shimi;

Of the Beni Ladan, the Head was ⁸ Jakhial, with Zitham and Joal as Officers;

Of the Beni Shemi, Shelomoth, and ⁹ Khazial, and Kharan as Officers. Those were the Heads of the Ancestral Houses of Shemi.

There were also of the Beni Shemi, ¹⁰ Jakhath, Zinah, Jaush, and Beriah. These four were of the Beni Shemi. But Jakhath was the Head, and ¹¹ Zinah the Second, and Jaush, and Beriah, had not many sons, so they were as an Ancestral House Registered on one.

The Beni Kabth; Amram, Itzahr, ¹² Khabron, Azial,—four.

- 13 The Beni Amram; Aaron, and Moses.—But Aaron was separated to Sanctification. He and his sons were strictly Consecrated for ever to offer incense before the EVER-LIVING, and to serve Him, and to bless in His Name for ever.
- 14 The Sons of Moses the MAN of GOD, however, were enumerated with the Tribe of Levi.
- 15 The sons of Moses, were, Ghershom and Aliazer;
- 16 Of the sons of Ghershom; Shebual, was the Chief.
- 17 And the sons of Aliazer were Rekhabiah, the Chief, and Aliazer had no other sons. But the sons of Rekhabiah, were too many to recount;
- 18 Of the sons of Itzahr Shelomith was the Chief;
- 19 Of the sons of Khabron Jerihu was the Chief; Amariah the Second; Jakhazial the Third; and Jakmas the Fourth;
- 20 Of the sons of Azial, Mikah was the Chief; and Ishiah, the Second;
- 21 Of the sons of Merari were Makhli and Mushi;
- The sons of Makhli were Alazar; and Kish. But Alazar died and had no sons,—only daughters,—and their cousins the sons of Kish married them.
- 23 The sons of Mushi were three, Makhli, and Adar and Jermoth;
- 24 These were the Ancestral Houses of the Beni Levi, according to the entries in the record of the names on their Registers. They administered the affairs of the services of the House of the EVER-LIVING, on arriving at twenty years old and upwards.
- 25 "For" David said, "the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel will bring comfort to His People of Israel, and they will dwell in Jerusalem for ever; so the Levites will not be needed to carry the Tabernacles, and all the instruments of His Services." Therefore by the last commands of David, the Beni Levi from twenty years old and upwards were registered. Their Station was to assist the Beni Aaron in the Services of the House of the EVER-LIVING in the Courts and in the Chambers, and in the Purificatories
- 29 for all the Sacred things; and to do the work of the House of GOD; and about the Show-bread, and fine flour for the Food-offering both of the Unfermented Biscuits and Food-offering; and about the confections, and all the liquids, and the vestments. And also to stand from 30 Morning to Morning to thank and praise the EVER-LIVING and the same at Dusk.

And in all the Burnt Offerings 31 burnt to the EVER-LIVING on the Days of Rest; and the New-moons; and to record the Festivals according to the Decree laid upon them,—to be continually in the presence of the EVER-LIVING. They also formed 32 the Guards of the Hall of Assembly; and the Guards of the Sanctuary; and the Guards of the Beni Aaron, their relatives, when serving in the House of the EVER-LIVING.

The Duties of the Family of Aaron.

Now for the arrangements for the 24 Beni Aaron.

The sons of Aaron were, Nadab, and Abhiua, Aliazar, and Aithamar. But Nadab and Abihua died before 2 their father, and had no sons, therefore Aliazar and Aithamar were Priests.

But David arranged, that, from the 3 Beni Aliazar, Zadok,—and from the Beni Aithamar, Akimalek, should be appointed for the Services. But 4 more of the Beni Aliazar were advanced to be men of power, than from the Beni Aithamar. Consequently there were assigned to the Beni Aliazar, as Heads of Houses, sixteen; and to the Beni Aithamar, as Heads of Houses, eight. They were, how- 5 ever, assigned by lots, one with another; so that there were Princes of the SANCTUARY, and Princes of GOD, both from the Beni Aliazar, and the Beni Aithamar. And Shemiah- 6 ben-Nathanael the Secretary recorded them from among the Levites in the presence of the King and his Officers, and of Zadok the Priest and Akimalek-ben-Abiathar.

And for the Ancestral Princes of the Priests and Levites, one Ancestral House was taken from Aliazar, and one taken from Aithamar, when 7 the first lot came out to Jhoiarib; the second to Jedaiah; the third to 8 Kharim; the fourth to Sarim; the 9 fifth to Malakiah; the sixth to Shishi; the seventh to Akotz; the eighth to 10 Abiah; the ninth to Jeshua; the 11 tenth to Shikaniah; the eleventh to 12 Aliashib; the twelfth to Jakim; the 13 thirteenth to Khufah; the fourteenth

- 14 to Jeshebah; the fifteenth to Bilgah; 15 the sixteenth to Shishah; the seventeenth to Khezir; the eighteenth to 16 Haftzitz; the nineteenth to Fethiah;
 17 the twentieth to Ikhzekel; the twenty-first to Jakim; the twenty-second to 18 Gamul; the twenty-third to Deliah;
 the twenty-fourth to Maziah.

Attendants Appointed for the Temple.

- 19 These were appointed to be their duties:—

- To enter the House of the LORD, as instructed by the hand of their ancestor Aaron, as he was instructed by the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel.
 20 But to the others of the Beni Levi;—from the Beni Amram, Shubal; from the Beni Shubal, Jakhdiah;
 21 From Rekhabiah,—from the Beni Rekhabiah,—the Chief Ishiah.
 22 From the Itzarites,—Shelomith; from the Beni Shilomith,—Jakhath.
 23 Of the Beni Jeriah, Amariah was second; Jakhzial the third; Jekamam, the fourth.
 24 From the Beni Azial, Mikah; from the Beni Mikah, Shamor; with the brother of Mikah, Ishiah; from the sons of Ishiah,—Zekeriah.
 26 From the Beni Merari, Makhli and Mushi, from the sons of Jaziah, his son.
 27 From the Beni Merari, also were Jaziah; Beno; and Sham; and Zakur; and Abri.
 28 From the Mahlites,—Alazath; who had no sons.
 29 From Kish,—of the Beni Kish,—Irakhmal;
 30 From the Beni Mushi,—Makli; and Adar; and Jeremoth.

- These were from the Beni Levi, by 31 Ancestral Houses, who also threw their dice along with their relatives of the Beni Aaron, before King David, and Zadok, and Akimalek, and the Ancestral Chiefs, for the Priests; and with the Ancestral Chiefs for the Levites, along with their lower relatives.

(1015 B.C.) David and the Generals Appoint the Singers.

- 25 David and the Generals of the Army selected also some of the sons of Asaph, and Heyman, and Jeduthun, the reciters with harps, lutes, and cymbals, and a certain number of men to perform regularly:—

From the sons of Asaph,—Zakur, 2 and Joseph, and Nethaniah, and Asharalah, sons of Asaph, who were under the hand of Asaph, the Reciter, in the presence of the King;

From the sons of Jeduthun; Jedu- 3 thun, Geddiah, and Tzari, and Ishihu; Khashabihu, and Natihiah, —six under the hand of their father Jeduthun, to recite thanks and praise to the EVER-LIVING with the lute;

From the sons of Heyman;—Hey- 4 man, Bukihu, Mathaniah, Azial, Shebual, and Jeremoth; Khananiah, Khanani, Aliathah, Gidalthi, and Romamthi; Azar, Jashbakshah, Malathi, Hothir, Makazioth; who 5 were all sons of Heyman, the King's Seer, in discourse with GOD. (They played the horn), for GOD had given Heyman fourteen sons and three daughters. All of them were under 6 the hand of their father, to sing in the House of the EVER-LIVING with Cymbals, Lutes, and Harps, for the Service of the House of GOD.

Asaph, and Jeduthun and Heyman 7 were under the control of the King.

The whole number of the Trained Singers to the EVER-LIVING with their associates, was two hundred and eighty-eight. They also threw 8 lots for their mutual Offices, whether small or great,—both the teachers and the scholars.

But the First lot came out for 9 Asaph and Joseph; the second for Gedaliah,—for him and his companions,—for his sons were twelve;

The third for Zikur, and his twelve 10 sons and companions;

The fourth for Itzri, and his twelve 11 sons and companions;

The fifth for Nathanihu, and his 12 twelve sons and companions;

The sixth to Bukihu, and his twelve 13 sons and companions;

The seventh to Isaralah, and his 14 twelve sons and companions;

The eighth to Jeshihu, and his 15 twelve sons and companions;

The ninth to Nathanihu, and his 16 twelve sons and companions;

The tenth to Asiri, and his twelve 17 sons and companions;

The eleventh to Azaral, and his 18 twelve sons and companions;

The twelfth to Khashabiah, and 19 his twelve sons and companions;

The thirteenth to Shubal, and his 20 twelve sons and companions;

- 21 The fourteenth to Matithihu, and his twelve sons and companions;
 22 The fifteenth to Ire moth, and his twelve sons and companions;
 23 The sixteenth to Khananihu, and his twelve sons and companions;
 24 The seventeenth to Jashbekashah, and his twelve sons and companions;
 25 The eighteenth to Khanani, and his twelve sons and companions;
 26 The nineteenth to Malothi, and his twelve sons and companions;
 27 The twentieth to Aliathah, and his twelve sons and companions;
 28 The twenty-first to Hothir, and his twelve sons and companions;
 29 The twenty-second to Gedaliah, and his twelve sons and companions;
 30 The twenty-third to Makhazioth, and his twelve sons and companions;
 31 And the twenty-fourth to Azer, and his twelve sons and companions.

26 The Divisions of the Doorkeepers.

- The Choristers were under Meshalaminihu-ben-Kora, from the Beni
 2 Asaph; and of the sons of Meshalaminihu, Zekeriah was the elder, Idial the second, Zebadihu, the third, and 3 Ithnial the fourth. Ailam, the fifth, Jhokhanan the sixth, Aliraini the 4 seventh. Abd-adom had sons;—Shemiah the eldest, Jozabad, the second, Joakh the third, and Zakar the fourth, and Nethanar the fifth, Amial the 5 sixth, Issakar the seventh, Falthi the eighth;—for GOD blessed him.
 6 Sons were also born to Shemiah his son, who ranked as with the Ancestral Houses, for they were great and powerful.
 7 The Beni Shemiah.
 Athni and Refal; and Aubed; and Abzabad; his brothers were brave men, Alihu, and Smakihu.
 8 All these were from the Beni Abd-adom.
 9 And from Meshalaminihu;—sons and relatives,—there were eighteen powerful men.
 10 And from Hosah, of the Beni Merari, there were sons;—Shimri, the Chief,—for although he was not the firstborn yet his father put him as first.
 11 Khilkihu, the second, Tebalihu, the third, Zakarihu, the fourth, all sons or brothers of Hosah, were thirteen.
 12 With these were the Officers of the Gates, as Superintendents of the strong assistants to help their associates who served in the House of the EVER-LIVING.

And lots were thrown for the 13 lowest to the highest positions in their Ancestral Houses, for each of the Gates.

And the lot for the East fell to 14 Shalaminihu, and Zakerihu; Then they threw the dice for his son Zekerihu, a wise statesman, and his die came out for the North;

For the South, Abd-adom; and the 15 Treasuries for his sons.

For the West-gate, where is the 16 descent from the Cliff by the stairs, was for the Shutin, and Hosah to keep in alternation;

On the Eastward were six Levites; 17 on the North four, daily; on the South four daily; and for the Treasuries by two and two.

For the Precincts. 18

Toward the West, four; and two at the pathway to the Precinct.

These were the Appointments for 19 the Doorkeepers, from the Beni Korakh and the Beni Merari.

But their relatives of the Levites 20 were over the Treasuries of the House of GOD, and the Sacred Treasures.

From the Beni Ladan—Beni 21 Ghershom;

From the Ancestral Chiefs of the Ladan-Gershoms, Jekhal.

The sons of Jekhal were Zitham, 22 and Joal, his brother, appointed over the Treasuries of the House of the LORD.

From the Amram Itzabri, Khal- 23 rani; and Aziali;

And Shobal the descendant of 24 Ghershom-ben-Moses, was Chief Treasurer.

But his relatives, the descendants 25 of Aliazar (by Rekhahihu his son, and Ishaihu, his son, and Joram, his son, and Zikri, his son, and Shelomoth, their descendants.)

Shelomoth and his brother were 26 over the Consecrated Treasures, which were Consecrated by King David, and the Ancestral Chiefs, which the Generals and Officers of the Army had consecrated, out of the prize-money, and out of their plunder to help towards the House of the EVER-LIVING.

With all that had been consecrated 28 by Samuel the Seer, and Saul the son of Kish, and Abner, ben-Ner, and

- Joab, ben-Zeruiah, had consecrated, was under the hand of Shelomith and his brother.
- 29 From the Itzahri; Khananihu, and his sons were appointed for the exterior affairs over Israel, in the Magistracy, and in Judicial matters.
- 30 From the Khalroni; Khashabiah, and for his assistants one thousand seven hundred skilful men were appointed in Israel, from beyond Jordan to the west, for all the affairs of the EVER-LIVING, and the affairs of the King.
- 31 Jeriah was the Chief of the Khabronites, according to the Ancestral Genealogies, which were examined in the fortieth Year of King David's reign, who discovered them to be powerful people at Jazir in Gilad.
- 32 His relatives, also were powerful people:—a thousand seven hundred heads of families, so King David appointed them over the Reubenites, Gadites, and the Half-tribe of Manasseh, for all the affairs of GOD, and affairs of the King.
- 27 But the number of the Children of Israel who attended to the King, with their Ancestral Chiefs, as Officers of Regiments and Companies, to control them,—the whole arranged in Divisions that came and went month by month, for each month of the year, each single Division was twenty-four thousand.
- 2 Jashaban, ben-Zabdial commanded the First Division for the First Month, and his Division was twenty-four thousand.
- 3 The Chief of all the Officers of the Soldiers of the First Month came from the Beni Perez.
- 4 Dodi, the Akhokhite Commanded the Division for the Second Month; with his Division, and Princely Staff. And there were twenty-four thousand in his Division.¹

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 27, v. 4. The Hebrew text of this verse seems to have been completely blundered by some very ancient transcriber. As it stands in the current Hebrew there is no connected sense in the succession of words—in fact, they are contradictory. The Septuagint translators for making the word מקלות, "M'kloth," read as a proper name, instead of taking it as a noun in its sense of a "Mace," "Staff," or "Club," still further confused the meaning. I would suggest that the words—וּמְלוֹכְתוֹ "umloktho," for מקלות, "umkloth"—are a blundering

The Commander of the Third Army 5 for the Third Month was Benihu-ben-Jhoiada the Chief Priest, with twenty-four thousand in his Division.

Benihu was of the Thirty Heroes, 6 and Commanded the Thirty. Amizabad his son was also in his Division.

The Fourth, for the Fourth Month, 7 was Ashahel, the brother of Joab, and Zebadiah his son succeeded him. His Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Fifth for the Fifth Month, was 8 Shamuth, Irshrakli, and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Sixth for the Sixth Month, was 9 Aira, ben-Akash the Thekoite; and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Seventh for the Seventh Month, 10 Khilaty, of the Guides of the Beni Ephraim; and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Eighth for the Eighth Month 11 was Sibki, the Kushathi from the East, and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Ninth for the Ninth Month was, 12 Abiazer, the Anathothi, from the Benjamins, and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Tenth for the Tenth Month 13 was, Mahri, the Netofathi, from the East; and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Eleventh for the Eleventh 14 Month was, Beniah, the Pirathoni, of the Beni Ephraim; and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

And the Twelfth, for the Twelfth 15 Month, was Kheldi; son of Othnial, the Netofathi; and his Division comprised Twenty-four thousand.

The Commanders of the Tribes 16 of Israel.

The Prince of the Reubenites was, Aliazar, ben-Kikri; of the Simeonites, Shefatihu, ben-Makah;

Of the Levites, Khashabiah, ben- 17 Ramual; with Zadok for the Aronites;

repetition of "umkloth," ("The Division"); or if not that, then we ought to read and translate the verse thus:—

"Dodi, the Akhokhite, Commanded the 4 Second Division, who were Mace-men, and that Division was twenty-four thousand."

We then see the purport to be clear, instead of the current absurdity of the usually-accepted reading.—F. F.

- 18 Of Judah, Olibu, from the brothers of David;
Of Issakar, Amri, ben-Mikal;
- 19 Of Zebulon, Ishamihu, - ben - Abadihu;
Of Maphthali, Jeremoth, - ben - Azrial;
- 20 Of the Ephraim, Hosha, - ben - Azazihu;
Of the Half-Tribe of Menaseh, Joel, ben-Pedihu;
- 21 Of the Half-Tribe of Menasseh in Gilad, Ido, ben-Zekarihu;
Of Benjamin, Jashial, - ben - Abner;
- 22 Of Dan, Azaral, - ben - Jerokham;—
Those were the Princes of the Tribes of Israel.
- 23 For David did not raise by the conscription from twenty years of age and upwards for the troops, although the EVER-LIVING had promised to increase Israel like the stars of the skies.
- 24 Joab, - ben - Zeruiad did begin to conscript, but did not finish. But because of that there was anger against Israel; therefore the conscription was never recorded among the events of times of King David.
- David's Cabinet Ministers.
- 25 Azmuth, - ben - Adial was Superintendent of the Royal Treasuries.
Jhonathan, - ben - Azihu, was Superintendent of the Stores in the country, in the towns, in the villages, and fortresses.
- 26 And Azri, - ben - Kelub was Superintendent over the works in the country and cultivators of the ground.
- 27 Shimi the Rahmathi was Superintendent of the vineyards, and oliveyards, with Zabdi the Shifami for the wine stores.
- 28 Bal-Khanan the Gaderi was Superintendent of the Oliveyards, and the Sycamore Groves that were on the slopes, with Joash over the Oil Stores.
- 29 Shitri, the Sharoni was Superintendent of the flocks pastured in Sharon; with Shafut, - ben - Adali over the herds in the plain.
- 30 Aubil, the Ishmaelite, was Superintendent of the Camels, with Jedihu, the Meronothi over the Asses.
- 31 Jaziz, the Hagari, was Superintendent of the flocks. All these were Controllers of the property that David possessed.
- 32 Jhonathan, the Uncle of David, was Prime Minister. He was a man of understanding and a scholar. And Ikhial, - ben - Hakmoni was Tutor of the King's Sons. But Akhithofel was 33 the King's Privy Councillor, and Hushi, the Arkite, was the King's friend.

And after Akhithofel were Jhoiada, - 34 ben - Benhihu, and Abiathah, while Joab was Commander of the Army.

(1015 B.C.) David Assembles the Nobles and Army to Confirm Solomon's Election.

David assembled all the Officers of 28 Israel; the Chiefs of Tribes; and the Generals of the Divisions in the King's service; with the Colonels of Regiments, and Captains of Companies; and the Officers of all the King's cattle; and his own sons with their attendants; and Staff-officers; and all the powerful men, to Jerusalem;—

Then King David stood up on his 2 feet and said:—

"Listen to me, My Friends, and My People!—I had in my heart to build a House of Rest for the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING, and as a stool for the feet of our GOD! And I had prepared to build it;—

"But GOD said to me, 'You shall 3 not build a House to My Name! For you have been a man of War,—and have shed blood.'

"Yet the EVER-LIVING GOD of 4 Israel chose me from all my father's family to be King over Israel for ever!—For He chose Judah to lead,—and in the House of Judah He chose the House of my father,—and from the sons of my father He was pleased to cause me to be crowned over all Israel!

"And of all my sons, (for the 5 EVER-LIVING has given me many sons,) He has chosen Solomon, my son, to sit upon the throne of the Kingship from the EVER-LIVING over Israel; and said to me, 'Your son 6 Solomon shall build My House and My Courts, for I have chosen him for Myself as a son, and I will be a father to him.

"I will also found his Kingship 7 for ever:—If he is firm to guard My Instructions, and Decrees, as he does at present.'

"So now, in the sight of all Israel, 8 —the Congregation of the EVER-LIVING,—aud in the hearing of our GOD,—preserve and examine all the Commands of your EVER-LIVING GOD, so that you may possess this beautiful country, and transmit it to your children after you for ever.

- 9 "And, you, Solomon my son, recognize the GOD of your father, and serve Him with a willing heart and delighted mind; for the EVER-LIVING examines all hearts, and all the ideas devised by the mind:—If you seek Him,—you will find Him; but if you abandon Him, He will fling you off for ever!
- 10 "Therefore reflect; for the EVER-LIVING has chosen you to build a House and Sanctuary.—Be brave and do it!"

(1015 B.C.) David hands Solomon the Plans for the Temple in Public view.

- 11 Then David gave to Solomon his son the plans for the Portico with its buildings, and stores and staircases, and the private chambers; and the
- 12 House of the Mercy-seat; with the drawings of all that was in his mind for the Courts of the House of the EVER-LIVING; with all the lodges around; and the Treasuries of the House of GOD, and the Treasuries for the Sacred things,
- 13 With the Courses for the Priests and Levites, and all who conduct the Services of the House of the EVER-LIVING; as well as for all the furniture of the House of the EVER-LIVING.
- 14 With Gold by weight, for all the golden vessels of the Service; and Silver by weight for all vessels of the Services, for every kind of Service;
- 15 And a weight of Gold for the Lampstand, and golden reflectors. Weighed for lamp by lamp and reflector by reflector. With a weight of Silver for each lamp and its reflector, to be used lamp by lamp.
- 16 With a weight of Gold for the Tables of Show-bread, table by table, and Silver for the tables of silver;
- 17 And for the hooks and basins of pure gold; and for the Golden Expiatories, by weight, Expiatory by Expiatory, and for Silver Expiatories, by weight Expiatory by Expiatory.
- 18 And for the Altar of Incense, refined Gold by weight; with gold for the construction of the carriage of the overshadowing Kerubim, who protected the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING.

"The whole are described;

"I have described them from having the hand of the EVER-LIVING upon me, causing me to understand all the results of these plans."

Then David said to Solomon his son: "Be brave and bold! and fear not, nor be depressed, for the EVER-LIVING GOD, my GOD will be with you; He will not leave nor abandon you, until the completion of all the works and labours for the House of the EVER-LIVING.

"And here are the Courses for the Priests and Levites, and for all the Services of the House of GOD. Besides you have with you for every work, every kind of skilled intelligence and all kinds of operatives, and the Nobles of the People will support you in everything."

King David also said to all the Meeting; "The ONE GOD has chosen Solomon my son for Himself; but he is a youth and tender, and the business is great,—for the effort is not for Man, but for the LIVING GOD.

"However, I have prepared with all my power for the House of GOD, Gold, for the Golden; and Silver, for the Silvern; and Brass, for the Brazen; Iron, for the Iron; and Timber for the Wooden; Onyx-stones for setting; and variegated Marble; and all kinds of precious stones, and plenty of White-marble.

"And since I have delighted in the House of my GOD, I have by me a private store of Gold and Silver,—which I give to the House of my GOD, in addition to all I have provided, for the Holy House!

"Three thousand talents of Gold; of the refined Gold of Aufer; and seven thousand talents of pure refined Silver, to overlay the walls of the buildings.

"The Gold, for gilding; and the Silver for silvering; and for any wages paid to the workmen.—And whoever has a will for the business, let him hand himself to the EVER-LIVING to-day!"

A Public Subscription to the Temple.

Then the Ancestral Chiefs, and the Chiefs of the Tribes of Israel,

- and the Colonels and Captains of Companies, and Chiefs of the Royal Affairs, gave to the works for the House of the EVER-LIVING, five thousand talents of Gold, and ten thousand dariks,¹ and ten thousand talents of Silver, and eighteen thousand talents of brass, and one hundred thousand talents of iron.
- 8 While those who possessed jewels gave them to the Treasury of the House of the EVER-LIVING, into the custody of Jakhial the Ghershni.
- So the People were glad, on account of their contributions, for they contributed with a willing heart to the EVER-LIVING, and King David also rejoiced with great delight.
- Then David blessed the EVER-LIVING in the sight of all the Meeting, and David exclaimed;—

STANZA 1.

"Blessed be You, the EVER-LIVING,—
The GOD of our Father Israel,—
From Eternity to Eternity!
With You LORD, is Greatness, and Power, 11
And beauty, and splendour, and glory!
For all the Heavens and the Earth are Yours, LORD! 12
The Government, and Exaltation,
And Headship of all!

STANZA 2.

"Therefore, our GOD, we all thank You, 13
And praise Your Majestic Name.
For who am I, and who are my People, 14
That we are able freely to give like this?
For all comes from You,—

STANZA 3.

"To You we only give Your own!
For we are only travellers before You, 15
And lodgers, as all our fathers were!
Our days are like a shadow on the Earth
And are without hope!

STANZA 4.

"LORD OUR GOD all this wealth that is given, 16
To build a House to Your Name,
As Your Sanctuary, was from Your hand,
And is all Yours.

STANZA 5.

"As I know my GOD, 17
That You refine the heart,
And delight in uprightness,
I, in trueness of heart,
Have given all this;
And now I have seen Your People.
Here give gladly to You,
LORD, the GOD of our fathers, 18
Abraham, Isaac, and Israel.
Oh! keep them for ever,

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 29, v. 7. The mention of "Dariks," a Persian coin, fixes the date of the writing of the "Chronicles," named in Hebrew "The Events of Time," as being after the return from the Captivity; and lends a support to my view given in a former Note, that in the values of moneys the historian brought them into scale with the purchasing values of his own day, and does not give them as in the period of David. This fact accounts for the Hebrew editors of the Second Temple putting Chronicles as the last book of the Books in the Bible.—F. F.

- And fix in the People's minds
Their thoughts upon You |
- 19 And give to my son Solomon,
A heart to regard Your Commands,
Your Proofs and Decrees,
To work and build this Temple,
As I have prepared."
- 20 Then David said to all the Assembly;—
" Bless now your EVER-LIVING GOD."

And all the Meeting blessed the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers, and lowered their heads, and reverenced to the EVER-LIVING, and the King.

- 21 They then afterwards sacrificed sacrifices to the EVER-LIVING ; and burned Burnt-offerings to the EVER-LIVING, with Food-offerings on that day ; a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, a thousand lambs, with their Drink-offerings, with numerous sacrifices from all Israel.
- 22 And ate and drank before the EVER-LIVING, on that day, with great delight.

(1015 B.C.) Solomon's Election
Confirmed by the Parliament.

They also again elected Solomon the son of David, King for the second time, and consecrated him to the EVER-LIVING as LEADER, and Zadok
as Priest.

- 23 Solomon, consequently sat on the Throne of the LORD as King, in place of his father David, and the Parlia-24 ment of Israel obeyed him, with all the Nobles, and Generals ; and the sons of David placed their hands under Solomon as King.

The EVER-LIVING afterwards 25 greatly exalted Solomon in the eyes of all Israel, and gave him honour and Majesty, such as had not been upon any King before him in Israel.

Thus David, - ben - Jessai reigned 26 over all Israel.

He was King over all Israel for a 27 period of forty years ; Reigning in Hebron for seven years, and reigning in Jerusalem thirty-three years.

Then he died with good grey hairs, 28 and satiated with days, wealth and honour ; and Solomon his son reigned
after him.

The achievements of King David 29 from first to last can be seen recorded in the History of Samuel, the Seer, and in the History of Nathan, the Reciter, and in the History of Gad, the Preacher, as well as all his Kingship, and Heroism, and Vicissitudes that passed over him, and over Israel, and over all the Kingdoms of the Countries.

SECOND BOOK OF CHRONICLES.

NAMED IN HEBREW

THE RECORDS OF THE TIMES.

HISTORY OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID.—BOOK II.

(1015 B.C.) Solomon as King.

- 1 Solomon, the son of David, was fixed in his Kingship, and the EVER-LIVING his God was with him, and exalted him greatly.
- 2 Solomon consequently convoked all Israel, with the Officers of the Army, and Magistracy, and all the Princes, and all the Chiefs of Ancestral Houses. Who went with Solomon and the Parliament of his People, to the Mound that was in Gibaon, where the Hall of Assembly of GOD was, which Moses the Servant of the EVER-LIVING had made in the Desert.
- 3 David, however, had brought the Ark of God from Krith-Yarim to David's structure for it;—for he had pitched a Tent for it at Jerusalem.
- 4 The Brazen Altar however, which Bazalal-bea-Auri-ben-Ihur, had made, was there¹ before the Tabernacle of the EVER-LIVING, so Solomon and the Parliament went down to it.
- 5 And Solomon offered Sacrifice before the EVER-LIVING upon the Brazen Altar, which was in the Hall of Assembly, and offered as his sacrifice a thousand Burnt-offerings.

God's Promise to Solomon.

- 7 In that night GOD appeared to Solomon, and said, "Ask what I shall give you."
- 8 And Solomon replied to God, "You showed great kindness to my father David, and have made me King after him; therefore EVER-LIVING GOD, confirm Your promise to my father David, for You have made my Empire over People as numerous as the dust of the earth,—so give me wisdom and Knowledge, to conduct myself before these People. For who can Govern this Great People of Yours?"

When GOD answered Solomon, "Because this has been in your heart, and you have not asked wealth, treasures, and honour, nor the life of your enemies, nor have asked great length of days, but have asked wisdom and Knowledge, by which you may Govern My People, over whom I have given you the Empire,—Wisdom and Knowledge shall be given to you, and I will also give wealth, and treasures, and honour, such as have not been with the Kings who were before you, and there shall not be such after you."

Solomon then returned from the Mound of Gibaon to Jerusalem, from the Hall of Assembly, and reigned over Israel.

Solomon Re-organizes the Army.

Solomon then collected Chariots and Horsemen, and possessed one thousand four hundred Chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he stationed in Chariot Barracks, and with the king in Jerusalem.

The King also made silver and gold in Jerusalem to be like stones; and planted Cedars like Sycamores that are on the slopes for number.

But the horses that Solomon possessed were brought out of Mitzeraim.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. I, v. 5. "Altar was there," that is at Gibaon, not Jerusalem.—F. F.

17 The drovers of the King collected them in droves, at fairs, and collected and brought out from Mitzeraim a Chariot for six hundred Silvers, and a horse for one hundred and fifty; and the same from all the Chiefs of the Hittites, and the Chiefs of Edom; they were brought by their means.

(1015 B.C.) Solomon prepares to Build the Temple.

2 Solomon also commanded to build the House of the EVER-LIVING, and a Palace for His Empire. Consequently Solomon enrolled seventy thousand men as labourers, and eighty thousand men, as woodsmen in the hills, with three thousand six hundred as foremen over them.

Solomon proposes to hire Tzurian Workmen of Hiram to help in Building the Temple.

2 Solomon also sent to Hiram King of Tzur to say:—

"As you assisted my father David, in sending Cedars to him, when building himself a House to reside in; do with me in building a Temple to the Name of my EVER-LIVING GOD, as a Sanctuary for him, and to burn to him sweet-spiced incense, with a continuous ritual; and for the Morning and Evening Sacrifice; and for the Sabbaths; and Months and for the Festivals of our EVER-LIVING GOD. For this to be for ever in Israel.

4 "And the Temple that I shall
5 build will be large; for our GOD is greater than all Gods. Yet who has ability to build Him a House? for the Heavens, and the Heavens of the Heavens are not enough for Him! So who am I who would build Him a House? except to worship before Him?

6 "Therefore now send me skilful men able to work in Gold, and Silver, and Brass, and Iron; and in purple, and crimson and blue; and skilled in the carving of engravings, to work along with the mechanics who are with me in Judea and Jerusalem, whom my father David provided.

7 "Send me also Cedar, fir, and Algum timber from Lebanon, for I know that your subjects understand how to cut Timber in Lebanon, and 8 my subjects shall help yours. And prepare me plenty of timber, for the Temple I am about to build will be large and wonderful.

"In return I will pay for the wood-9 cutters who fell the timber, who are your subjects, twenty thousand Kors of ground wheat, and twenty thousand Kors of barley, with twenty thousand baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil."¹

The King of Tzur's Reply.

Hiram, King of Tzur replied by 10 letter, and sent it to Solomon.

"Because the EVER-LIVING loves His people He has made you King over them."

And Hiram continued, "I bless 11 the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, who made the Heavens and the Earth, because He has given a wise son to King David, educated in intellect and understanding, who will build a Temple for the EVER-LIVING, and a House for His Empire.

"I have therefore sent a man of 12 genius, who was educated in construction by Hiram my father. He 13 is the son of a woman, from the Tribe of Dan, but his father was a native of Tzur. He understands to work in Gold, Silver, Brass, Iron, Stone and Timber;—in purple, in blue, in flax, and crimson; and to carve engravings, and to contrive all kinds of enginery that may be required along with your mechanics, and the mechanics of your father David. So now 14 let my Master send to his Vassal the wheat, barley, oil, and wine that he says, then we will cut the timber in 15 Lebanon for all your requirements, and bring it to you in floats by sea to Jaffa, and you can take it up from there to Jerusalem."

Solomon Conscripts Labourers.

Solomon consequently collected all the foreigners who were in the land of Israel, according to the census which his father David conscribed, and found them to be a hundred and fifty-three thousand six hundred.

He made seventy thousand of them labourers, and eighty thousand woodcutters in the hills, with three thousand six hundred overseers of the works of those people, (1012 B.C.) Date of Beginning the Temple.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 2, v. 9. Equivalent to 160,000 bushels of wheat, 160,000 bushels of ground barley, 150,000 gallons of wine, and 150,000 gallons of oil. See Dr. Angus's "Bible Hand-Book."

- 3 Thus Solomon began to build the House of the EVER-LIVING in Jerusalem, on the Hill of the APPEARANCE, of what appeared to his father David, which place was that of the granary of Arnon the Jebusi, which David
- 2 bought. He began to build it in the second month of the fourth year of his Empire.
- 3 And this was the foundation made by Solomon for the building of the House of GOD.—The length in cubit measure was sixty cubits on the floor line, and the breadth twenty.
- 4 And the Porch which was opposite the front at the entrance of the Square Court of the House, was twenty cubits square, and its height was one hundred and twenty, and the outside was plated with pure Gold.
- 5 And he also lined the Great Temple with cypress wood, and plated it with fine Gold, and depicted on it Palmtrees and Creepers.
- 6 He also adorned the house with handsome costly stones to beautify it, and the Gold was Parvim Gold.
- 7 Beside which he plated the Temple, the approaches of the thresholds, and the walls, and doors with gold, and carved Kerubim on the walls.
- 8 He also made the Temple of the Holy of Holies. Its length was that of the breadth of the Temple.—twenty cubits and it was plated with six hundred talents of fine gold, with fifty shekels weight of gold for the nails. He also plated the steps with gold.
- 10 He also had two Kerubim made by sculptors in the Temple of the Holy of Holies, and covered them with gold.
- 11 The wings of the Kerubim extended for twenty cubits;—one wing for five cubits from the side of the wall of the House, and the other wing five cubits from the tip of the wing of the first Kerub; and the wing of the first Kerub of five cubits long, touched the other wall of the House; and the wing of the second Kerub of five cubits, touched the wing of the first Kerub.
- 13 Kerub. The wings of these Kerubim spread twenty cubits, and they stood on their feet, but their faces were from the Temple.

He also made the veils of blue, and 14 purple, and crimson, and linen and depicted Kerubim upon them.

He also made two Columns before 15 the Temple of thirty-five cubits high, with crowns on the top of them of five cubits.

Then he made wreathing chains, 16 and fixed them on the top of the columns, and prepared a hundred pomegranates which were attached to the chains. He afterwards raised 17 the Columns in front of the Temple one on the right and the other on the left, and called the name of the Right-hand one Firmness (Jakin), and of the other Activity (Boz).

He also made an Altar of Brass, 4 twenty cubits long and twenty cubits broad, and ten cubits high.¹

He also made the Sea by a casting, 2 of ten cubits from lip to lip, circular in form, and five cubits high, and a line of thirty cubits encircled it, with 3 the likeness of bosses under it, circling all round. There were ten in a cubit all round the Sea. The bosses were in two rows, cast when it was cast. It stood upon twelve bullocks; 4 Three facing the North; and Three facing the West; and Three facing the South; and Three facing the East; and the Sea was upon them, and all their buttocks were inwards. It was a palm thick, and 5 its lip was worked like the lip of a cup, as a lily flower. Its capacity was three thousand Baths complete.

He also made ten lavers, and 6 placed five on the right, and five on the left, in which to wash what was prepared for the Sacrifices, by dipping them.—But the Priests washed in the Sea itself.

He made also the Golden Lamps, 7 as they were Decreed, and placed them in the Temple; five on the right, and five on the left.

He also made ten tables and 8 placed them in the Temple, five on the right, and five on the left. And made a hundred basons of gold.

He also constructed the Priests' 9 Court; and the Great Enclosure; and ¹ NOTE.—Ch. 4, v. 1. There must be some error of an old transcriber here, for the dimensions are impossible. In Exodus, Ch. 27, v. 1, it was ordered to be five cubits only. It should probably read two cubits high.—F. F.

the doors to the Enclosure; and plated the doors with bronze.

- 10 Then he placed the Sea at the right corner, towards the South-east.
- 11 Hiram also made the boilers, and shovels, and basons. Thus Hiram completed the whole of the work which he had to do for King Solomon, at the House of God.
- 12 The two Columns; and the Vases, and the Diadems on the top of the two Columns; and the two networks covering the two vases of the Diadems which were on the top of the Columns.
- 13 And the four hundred pomegranates, interwoven row by row separately to cover the two Vases which were on the heads of the Columns;
- 14 And the bases, and the lavers upon the bases;
- 15 The Single Sea, and the twelve bullocks under it;
- 16 With the boilers, and the shovels, and flesh-hooks; Hiram, along with his father, made all these appliances of bright brass for the House of the EVER-LIVING, for King Solomon.
- 17 And he modelled them for the King in the stiff clay district of the Jordan, in the ground between Sukoth, and Zeredah.
- 18 And Solomon made all these things in very great quantities, for he did not weigh out his brass.
- 19 Solomon also made all the furniture of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Golden Altar, and the Tables, upon which the Show-bread was;
- 20 with the Lamps to be burnt as Decreed before the Pulpit of pure
- 21 Gold. With the cups, and lamps, and tongs, of gold, it was perfect
- 22 Gold; and the snuffers, and basons, and spoons, and fire-pans of pure Gold; and the doors of the House, with their Eaves at the inner doors of the Holy of Holies;—and the doors of the structure of the Temple of Gold.

(1005 B.C.) Dedication of the Temple.

- 5 When all the work of Solomon at the House of the EVER-LIVING was finished, Solomon brought in the Consecrations of his father David, both the Silver and Gold, and all the furniture he gave to the Treasury of the House of God. And Solomon convoked for this purpose, the Magistrates of Israel, and all the Chiefs of the Tribes, and the Ancestral Princes of the Children of Israel, to Jerusalem, to carry up the Ark of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING from the City of David,—which is Zion. The King 3 also invited every person in Israel to the Festival that occurs in the seventh month.—All the Magistracy 4 of Israel consequently came,—but the Levites carried the Ark. The 5 Levites also brought up the Tent of Assembly, and all the sacred furniture that was in the Tent, the Levitical Priests carrying them.

Then King Solomon, and all the 6 Representatives of Israel, who were assembled with him before the Ark, sacrificed sheep, and oxen without number, and not estimated for quantity.

The Priests then brought the Ark 7 of the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING, to its place at the Pulpit of the House, to the Holy of Holies, under the Canopy of the Kerubim;—for the 8 Kerubim spread their wings over the place for the Ark, so that Kerubim covered the Ark, and its Staves, from above. But the Staves projected, 9 and the ends of the Staves were seen from the Ark, at the front of the Pulpit,—but not seen beyond;—(and they were there permanently;—) there 10 was nothing in the Ark except the two slabs which Moses deposited at Horeb, when the EVER-LIVING made a Covenant with the People of Israel on bringing them out from the Mitzraim.

When this was done, and all the 11 Priests came out from the Sanctuary,—for all the Priests had been brought to the Sanctuary,—they were not separated,—and the singing Levites, —and Asaph, and Heyman, and Jeduthun, and their sons, and companions, clothed in linen, with 12 Cymbals, and lutes, and harps, stood by the Altar, with a hundred and twenty Priests sounding their trumpets,—with the trumpeters and singers 13 in unison,—proclaimed with one voice, praise and thanks to the EVER-LIVING. And when the sound of the trumpets, and Cymbals, and all the instruments of song arose, with the,—

“Praise the LORD for His Goodness,
For His mercy endures for ever,”

the House was filled by a Cloud, the House of the EVER-LIVING. so that the Priests were not able to stand to serve, on account of the Cloud, for the glory of the EVER-LIVING filled the House of GOD.

Solomon's Medication Address.

- 6 Then Solomon exclaimed :—
 "The LORD declared He would dwell in the Gloom!
 2 Yet I have built a Residence for You! and constructed a Rest for You for Ages!"
 3 The King then turned his face and blessed all the Assembly of Israel, while all the Assembly of Israel stood up ;
 4 And he said :—
 "Thank the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel Who promised with His mouth to my father David, and has accomplished it by His own hands, saying :—
 5 "From the day when I brought My people from the land of the Mitzeraim, I have not chosen a City from any of the Tribes of Israel where a House should be built to My NAME; nor have I chosen a person to be Prince over My People Israel, but now I am choosing for My NAME to be in Jerusalem; and am choosing in David a Superintendent over My People of Israel!"
 7 "Then it came into the heart of my father David to build a House to the NAME of the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel. But the EVER-LIVING said to David my father, 'Regarding what is in your heart about building a House to My NAME, you have done
 9 well that it was in your heart. However you shall not build Me a House, but a son of yours, who comes from your loins, shall build a House to My NAME!'"
 10 "The EVER-LIVING has now accomplished the promise that He promised; for I am raised after David, and sit upon the Throne of Israel, as the EVER-LIVING promised, and I have built this House to the NAME of the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel!
 11 "I have also placed the Ark there, in which is the Covenant of the EVER-LIVING, that He made with the Children of Israel."

Solomon Blesses the Assembly.

- 12 Then he stood up before the Altar of the EVER-LIVING, opposite all the Parliament of Israel, and spread out his hands. For Solomon had made 13 a Platform of bronze, and fixed it in the centre of the enclosure.—It was five cubits long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high,—and he stood upon it and blessed with his blessing before all the Parliament of Israel, and spread out his hands towards the Heavens, and said :—

"EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel! 14 There is none like You! GOD in the Heavens and on the Earth. You keep the Covenant, and have Mercy for Your servants who walk before You with a whole heart.—You who 15 have kept to Your servant, my father David, what You promised to him,—which You promised with Your mouth, and have accomplished by Your hands,—on this day! So now EVER- 16 LIVING GOD of Israel, keep to Your servant, my father David, what You also promised to him, when saying :—
 'A man shall not be wanting to you, in My Presence, to sit on the throne of Israel;—if only your children guard their conduct to walk in My Laws, as you have walked before Me.' Therefore EVER-LIVING GOD 17 of Israel, let Your promise, that You promised to my father David be verified.

"But will GOD truly dwell with 18 Mankind upon earth? Look! The Heavens, and the Heaven of the Heavens cannot contain You! Then how can this House that I have built? Yet turn to the prayer of 19 Your servant, and to his entreaty, EVER-LIVING GOD, and listen to the cry, and the prayer which Your servant prays before You! Let Your 20 eyes be open to this House day and night; to the place where You have said You would place YOUR NAME, and hear the prayer which Your servant prays about this place; and 21 listen to the entreaty of Your servant, and of Your People of Israel, which they pray at this place; and let Yourself hear from Your dwelling-place, from the Heavens,—and when You hear, forgive!

"If a person sins against his neigh- 22 bour, and a Curse is laid upon him to swear about it, and the Curse is brought before Your Altar, in this House; — Then hear from the 23 Heavens, and act, and decide about Your servants, and return on the head of the wicked the results of his course, and to the righteous, the

- results of his righteousness, when he has done right.
- 24 "And if Your People of Israel are routed before their enemies, because they have sinned against You; when they turn, and appeal to Your Name, and pray and entreat before You in this House; then hear from the Heavens, and forgive the sins of Your People of Israel, and restore them to the Country which You gave to them and their ancestors.
- 25 "When the skies are restrained, and rain comes not, because they sin against You; when they pray from this place, and appeal to Your Name, and turn from their sins, because You punish them; then hear from the Heavens, and forgive the sins of Your servants, and of Your People of Israel, and teach them the better way in which they should walk, and give rain upon Your Country, which You entrusted to Your People to possess.
- 26 "When famine comes to the Land; when plague comes; blasting; or mildew; if locust or caterpillar should come; if its enemies besiege it in the gates of the country; or any contagion, or any disease; any inflection, any distress, such as comes to all Mankind, and to Your People of Israel, which all men know in themselves; when in their sorrow they spread their hands to this House; then hear from the Heavens, the place of Your rest, and forgive, and grant to the person whose heart You know, what is right for his conduct,—for You alone know the hearts of the sons of Adam,—so that they may reverence You, and walk in Your ways, all the days of their lives on the face of the Land which You gave to our fathers.
- 27 "And also the foreigners, who are not sprung from Your People of Israel, who came from distant countries, for the sake of Your GREAT NAME, and Your strong hand, and Your directing arm:—when they come and pray at this House,—then listen from the Heavens from the Abode of Your Rest, and do all that is asked of You by those foreigners, so that all the Peoples of the Earth may know Your Name, and reverence You, like Your People of Israel, and may learn that Your NAME has been invoked upon this House that I have built.
- 28 "When Your People go out to war with their enemies, on a path that You send them, and pray to You towards this City that You have built for it, and the House which I have built to Your NAME; listen from the Heavens to their prayer and entreaty, and do them justice, when they sin against You,—for there is no man who does not sin,—and You are angry with them, and abandon them before their enemies, and their captors remove them to a distant land, or a near one; when they turn their hearts in the land where they have been carried, and say, 'We have sinned, and been wilful, and wicked.' And they turn to You with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of captivity where they are captive, and pray towards the country which was given to their fathers, and the City that You have chosen, and the House which I have built to Your NAME;—then listen from the Heavens, from the abode of Your rest, to their prayers and entreaties, and do justice, and forgive Your People who have sinned against You.

"Now, My GOD, let Your eyes be open, and Your ears listening to the prayers in this place.

"So now, EVER-LIVING GOD, establish Your consolation,—Yourself,—with the Ark of Your strength. Let Your Priests, EVER-LIVING GOD, be clothed in Salvation, and Your Saints rejoice in Beneficence! EVER-LIVING GOD! turn not Your face from Your Consecrated; remember the good deeds of Your Servant David!"

(1005 B.C.) The Divine Manifestation at the Consecration of the Temple.

When Solomon had finished praying, the fire rushed down from the Heavens, and consumed the Burnt-offering, and Sacrifices; and the Glory of the EVER-LIVING filled the House, so that the Priests were not able to enter the House of the EVER-LIVING, for the Glory of the LORD filled the House of the EVER-LIVING; and all the Children of Israel saw the down-rushing fire and the Glory of the EVER-LIVING on the House, and they knelt face to the earth, on the pavement, and worshipped, and gave,

"Thanks to the EVER-LIVING, for He is good;
For His Mercy endures for ever!"

The National Dedicatory Sacrifice.

- 4 The King and the Representatives of the People, afterwards made a Sacrifice before the EVER-LIVING.
- 5 But King Solomon sacrificed a Sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen, and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep. Thus the King and all the People dedicated the House
- 6 of GOD, while the Priests stood in their official robes, and the Levites, with the instruments of music, which King David had made for the EVER-LIVING, "To praise the LORD. For His Mercy endures for ever!" as when David praised by their Ministry. And the Priests were near them with trumpets, and the Representatives of Israel stood up.

Solomon Consecrates the Temple Court.

- 7 Solomon afterwards Consecrated the Middle Court, which is before the House of the EVER-LIVING, for there he offered Burnt-offerings, and the fats of the Thank-offerings, because the brazen Altar that Solomon had made was notable to receive the Burnt-offerings, and the Food-offerings and the fats.

The National Festival.

- 8 Solomon also made a Festival at that time for seven days,—and all Israel with him,—a very great Assembly,—from the Passof Hamath, to the Canal of Mitzer.
- 9 But in the eighth day they made a concluding Feast,—for they had made the Dedication of the Altar for seven days; and the Festival for seven days.
- 10 So on the twenty-third day of the Seventh Month, he dismissed the People to their Homes, glad and pleased at heart, at the prosperity that the EVER-LIVING had provided for David and Solomon, and for His People of Israel.
- 11 Thus Solomon completed the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Palace of the King, with all that came to the mind of Solomon to do to the House of the EVER-LIVING, and to his own Palace, he effected it.

Solomon sees a Divine Vision.

- 12 Then the LORD appeared to Solomon at night, and said to him,—
"I have heard your prayers, and I have chosen this place for Myself as a place of Sacrifice.

"If I close the skies so that rain 13 comes not; or if I order the locusts to devour the country; or if I send a Plague upon My People; when My 14 People, upon whom My NAME is invoked, kneel and pray, and seek My Presence, and turn from their wicked courses, then I will listen, and forgive their sins, and will restore health to their land. Mine eyes will 15 always be open, and My ears attentive to the prayers from this place,—because I have chosen, and have 16 consecrated this House for My NAME to be there for ever, and My heart there for all times.

"And yourself, if you walk before 17 Me, as your father David walked, and do all that I have commanded you, and observe My Institutions, and Decrees; —Then I will cause the Throne of 18 your Empire to be established, as I undertook to your father David, when I said, 'A man shall not be wanting to you to govern Israel.'

"But if you turn from them, and 19 abandon them, and serve seducing Gods, and worship them, I will as a 20 result be pulling you up out of the ground where I planted you, and from this House, that I have consecrated to MY NAME;—I will fling you from My Presence, and make a proverb and bye-word to all the Nations! So that all who pass by 21 will be astonished at this House which was so high, and ask, 'Why has the EVER-LIVING done this to this land, and to this Temple?' They will 22 answer, 'Because they abandoned the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers, who brought them out of the country of the Mitzeraim, and have attached themselves to Seducing Gods, and worshipped them; therefore all this suffering has come upon them!'"

(992 B.C.) Solomon's Army conquers Hamuth in the Delta.

It occurred at the end of the twenty 8 years in which Solomon built the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, and his own Palace and the towns that Hiram 2 had sold to Solomon, where Solomon built and settled the Children of Israel, that Solomon advanced against 3 Hamuth in the Zobah¹ and captured it.

1 NOTE.—Ch. 8, v. 3. That is the Delta of the Euphrates and Tigris on the Persian Gulf, "Zobah" in Hebrew meaning "Marshy" or "Fenlands."—F. F.

- 4 He also built Thadmor-in-the-Desert,¹ and several Colonial Cities that he built about Hamuth. He built as well Beth-horon-the-Lower; —all fortified Cities with walls, gates, and bars.
- 6 And Balath, and all the Colonia Cities that Solomon possessed, and all the Barracks, for Chariots and Cavalry, with all that Solomon devised to build for his amusement in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in the whole of the country he governed.

(1015 B.C.) Solomon Conscribes the Aborigines.

- 7 Solomon raised a conscription, which lasts to this day, from all the mass of the population who were not descended from Israel, the Hitites, the Amorites, the Perizites, the 8 Hivites, the Jebusites, the descendants of those who remained in the country, whom the Children of Israel had not destroyed.
- 9 Solomon, however, did not make slaves of the Children of Israel for his works, but they were soldiers, and officers, and Commanders of his charioteers, and horsemen.
- 10 King Solomon's General Officers were two hundred and fifty, who commanded the forces.

Solomon removes his Wife, Pharaoh's Daughter, from Zion.

- 11 Solomon, however, took the daughter of Pharaoh from the City of David, to a house he had built for her; for he said, "My wife shall not reside in the Palace of David, King of Israel, for that, where the Ark of the EVER-LIVING was brought, is sacred."
- 12 Solomon was accustomed to offer Burnt-offerings to the EVER-LIVING on an Altar to the LORD, which he had built before the Porch, regularly, day by day, with the Burnt-offerings as commanded by Moses; and on the Sabbaths, and Holy-days, and at the Assemblies three times in the year; at the Feast of the Unfermented Bread, and at the Feast of Weeks,
- 14 and the Feast of Tabernacles. And, as his father David had Decreed, he set up the Courses for the Services of the Priests, and the Levites and their Officers, to give praise and sing in association with the Priests regularly day by day; with the Door-keepers in courses from Gate to Gate, as David the MAN of GOD had commanded. He did not depart from 15 the arrangements of that King about the Priests and Levites in anything, or about the Treasuries.

Thus all the works of Solomon 16 were finished about the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, from the day of its foundation to the entire completion of the House of the LORD.

Solomon Trades with Ophir.

Solomon also went to Azion-gabar, 17 and Ailoth, on the shore of the Sea of the Land of Edom; and Hiram 18 united with him by supplying the crews with his Officers, ships, and sailors, who understood the Sea, who proceeded with the sailors of Solomon to Aufer, and brought from there four hundred and fifty talents of Gold¹ and delivered them to Solomon.

(992 B.C.) The Queen of Sheba hears of Solomon from the Sea Captains.

So the Queen of Sheba heard of 9 the fame of Solomon, and came to Jerusalem, to test him by problems, with a very great retinue, and Camels loaded with spices, and a quantity of Gold, and precious stones, which she brought to Solomon, and spoke with him about all she had in her mind; and Solomon informed her about all 2 her enquiries, and she stated no difficulty, that Solomon could not explain to her. But when the Queen 3 of Sheba perceived the wisdom of Solomon; and the Palaces he had built; and the provision of his table; 4 and the discipline of his servants; and the appointments of his Ministers, and their Uniforms; his Cup-bearers, and their dresses; and the stairs by which he went up to the House of the EVER-LIVING, there was no more spirit in her, and she exclaimed to 5 the King:—

"It was a true report that I heard in my country, about your achievements and wisdom! But I did not 6 trust to their words, until I came, and 7 my eyes saw it! And indeed they did not tell me half the extent of your acquisitions! You surpass reports that I heard!

"These Princes and your Ministers are happy who always stand before 8 you and hear your wisdom. Let your EVER-LIVING GOD be thanked, Who has been pleased to place you on His Throne, to govern for your EVER-LIVING GOD. Your GOD must have loved Israel, and would fix it to Himself for ever, when He made you King over it, to execute Justice and Right!"

The Queen of Sheba's Presents to Solomon.

- 9 Then she gave the King a hundred and twenty talents of Gold, and a quantity of spices, and precious stones.—There were never such spices as those which the Queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon!
- 10 The servants of Hiram also, and the servants of Solomon, who brought Gold from Aufer, brought Algum wood, and precious stones.
- 11 From the Algum¹ wood the King made brackets in the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, and the King's Palace, and Harps, and Lutes for the singers, for nothing of that kind had been seen before in the land of Judah.

Solomon gives Presents to the Queen of Sheba.

- 12 But King Solomon gave to the Queen of Sheba all she desired, whatever she asked, except what she had brought to the King. Then she departed, and she and her attendants returned to her own country.

Solomon's Wealth.

- 13 The weight of Gold that came to Solomon each year was six hundred 14 and sixty-six talents of Gold; beside what the Merchants, and Commercial duties brought in, and the Gold and Silver that the Kings of Arabia, and the Governors of Provinces contri-15 buted to Solomon. King Solomon, consequently, made three hundred targets of wrought Gold. Six hundred of wrought Gold went to one target.

And three hundred shields of wrought Gold. Three hundred of Gold went to one shield, and he put them in the Palace of Lebanon.

The King also made a great Throne 17 of Ivory, and plated it with pure Gold; and six steps to the Throne, 18 with a foot-stool of Gold fastened to the throne, and arms on each side at the seat, with two lions standing at the side of the arms. Twelve lions 19 also stood, there on the six steps, one on each side. None such were ever made in any Kingdoms.

And all King Solomon's drinking 20 cups were of Gold, and all the furniture of the Forest-Palace of Lebanon were of fine Gold. Silver and brass were thought nothing of in the days of Solomon!—for the ships of the King 21 went to Tharshish, at the same time as the servants of Hiram, for a three years' voyage. These ships brought from Tharshish cargoes of Gold, and Silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks.

Thus Solomon was greater than all 22 the kings of the earth, in wealth, and science. And all the kings of the 23 land sought the presence of Solomon to hear the sciences, that GOD had placed in his mind, and each brought 24 as his tribute, articles of silver, and articles of gold, or fabrics, or armour, or spices, with horses and mules, every year, yearly. For Solomon had 25 four thousand stables for horses and Chariots, and twelve thousand Cavalry, whom he lodged in the Chariot Barracks, or with the King in Jerusalem. And he was Emperor 26 over all the kings from the River,¹ to the country of the Philistim, and as far as the border of the Mitzeraim.
This king made silver in Jerusalem 27 like stones, and he planted Cedars like sycamores on the plain for number; and they brought horses to 28
Solomon from Mitzeraim and from all other countries.

Visions of Jadi the Seer, against Jerabam, ben-Nebat?

- 30 Solomon, however, reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel for forty years.
31 Then Solomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the City of David his father, and Rehoboam his son succeeded him.

(975 B.C.) Rehoboam's Folly.

- 10 Then Rehoboam went to Shekem;—for the Parliament of Israel had come to Shekem to make him King; and it occurred that Jerabam, ben-Nebat heard of it. He was in Mitzeraim, where he had fled from King Solomon, and Jerabam resided amongst the Mitzeraim. But they sent and invited him,—and Jerabam came to the Parliament of Israel, and they addressed Rehoboam and said:
4 "Your father was hard upon us,—so will you lighten the slavery of your father's oppression? and lift up the load which he placed on us?—Then we will serve you!"
5 When he replied to them; "Wait for three days,—and return to me." So the Parliament went away.
6 Then King Rehoboam consulted the Old Men, who had stood before his father Solomon, while he was alive, and asked, "What do you advise me to return as an answer to these people?"
7 And they said to him; "If you make yourself pleasant to these people, and please them, and speak good words to them, they will then be your subjects for all time."
8 But he rejected the advice of the Old Men, which they had advised him, and asked advice of the lads who had grown up with him, and stood in his presence, and said to them:—
9 "What do you advise that I should return as answer to these people? who ask me, saying, 'Ease off what your father put on us!'"
10 So the lads who had grown up with him, said; "Reply thus to the people who addressed you saying, 'Your father loaded upon us,—but you lighten off from us!' Say this to them,—'My little finger is thicker 11 than my father's loins!—So as my father loaded you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke;—My father scourged you with whips,—but I with scorpions!'" 12 Jerabam and all the Parliament with him returned to Rehoboam on the third day, as the King had said to them, "Come to me on the third day," when the King answered them harshly; for King Rehoboam forsook the advice of the Old Men, and answered them in accordance upon the advice of the lads, and said;—

"My father was heavy upon you, but I will add myself to him! My father chastised you with whips,—but I with scorpions!" Thus the King did not listen to the people.

But it came round from GOD, so that he might confirm the Message of the LORD, which was delivered by means of Akhihu, the Shilonite to Jerabam, ben-Nebat.

When the Parliament of Israel saw that the King would not listen to them, then the people replied to the King and exclaimed; "What advantage have we in David?—There is no benefit in the son of Jessai! Every one to your Tents, Israel! Now look to your own House David!"

Rehoboam provokes a Revolt by his Folly.

And the Army of Israel went to their Tents. (But Rehoboam reigned over the Children of Israel who resided in the Cities of Judah.) King Rehoboam, however, sent to them Hadoram who was Superintendent of the Conscription; but the Children of Israel overwhelmed him with stones, and killed him, so King Rehoboam got in a hurry into his carriage and fled to Jerusalem.—Thus Israel rebelled from the House of David to this day.

Rehoboam tries to Subdue the Revolt.

When Rehoboam arrived at Jerusalem, he summoned from the Houses of Judah and Benjamin a hundred and eighty thousand soldiers, trained for War, to fight with Israel, and to recover the Kingship to Rehoboam, but a Message from the LORD came to Shemaihu, a MAN of GOD, to say; "Speak to Rehoboam, ben-Solomon, King of Judah, and to all Israel in Judah, and Benjamin, and say; 'Thus says the EVER-LIVING,— You shall not advance against, nor fight with your brothers!—Return every man to your houses, for this event has come from Me.'" So they listened to the commands of the

EVER-LIVING, and refused to march 5 against Jerabam. Consequently Rehoboam returned to Jerusalem; but he built Fortified Cities in Judah.

(974 B.C.)

- 6 He also built Bethlehem, and Aitam, and Thiqla;
7 And Beth-tzur, and Shoko, and Adlam;
8 And Gath, and Marshah, and Zif;
9 And Adorim, and Lakish; and Azkah;
10 Tzarah, and Ailon; and Hebron, which are fortified Cities in Judah and 11 Benjamin, of which he strengthened the defences, and appointed Commanders over them, with stores of 12 food, and oil and wine, and shields and arms, and made them very strong. So Judah and Benjamin remained his.

The Priests in Israel Collect to Rehoboam.

- 13 The Priests and Levites, who were in Israel collected to him from all 14 quarters; for the Levites abandoned their pasture-lands, and possessions, and emigrated to Judah, and Jerusalem, because Jerabam expelled them, and their sons from the Priest-
15 hood of the EVER-LIVING, and appointed Priests for himself at the Mounds, for the Satyrs, and Calves that he made. Those also who gave 16 their hearts to seek the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel followed them, and came to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the GOD
17 of their fathers. Thus they strengthened the Kingdom of Judah, and invigorated Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, for three years,—and he followed the path of David and Solomon for three years.
18 Rehoboam took as his wife, Makhalath, - ben - Jerimoth, - ben - David; and Abikhil, the daughter Aliab, - 19 ben - Jessai, and she bore sons to him, Jaush, and Sheberiah, and Zahm.
20 And after her he married Makah, the daughter of Auriel of Gibaah,¹ and she bore him Abiah, Athi, and 21 Ziza, and Shelomith. And Rehoboam loved Makah, the daughter of Auriel more than all his wives, and secondary wives, although he married eighteen wives, and sixty secondary-wives, and begot twenty-eight sons, and sixty daughters.

So Rehoboam appointed Abiah the 22 son of Makah as the Chief, to rule amongst his brothers, and to make him King. Consequently he acted pru- 23 dently, and distributed all his sons over the country of Judah and Benjamin, in various fortified Cities, and gave them liberal allowances, and selected a number of wives for them.

(972 B.C.) Shishak of Egypt invades Judah.

But when Rehoboam was fixed in 12 the Kingship, and had strengthened himself, he abandoned the Laws of the EVER-LIVING, and all Israel followed him. Then in the fifth year 2 of Rehoboam's reign, Shishak, the King of the Mitzeraim, came up against Jerusalem, because they had risen against the EVER-LIVING, with twelve 3 hundred Chariots, and sixty thousand Cavalry, and an innumerable army with him, from the Mitzeraim, Lubim, Sukiim, and Kushim, and they captured the Fortified Cities in Judah, and arrived at Jerusalem. Then 5 Shemiah the Reciter came to Rehoboam and the Princes of Judah, who had collected at Jerusalem in flight from Shishak, and said to them;—

"Thus says the EVER-LIVING, 'You abandoned Me, so I have abandoned you to the hand of Shishak.'"

The Princes of Israel, and the King 6 then humbled themselves, and replied, "The EVER-LIVING is right."

So when the LORD saw that they 7 were penitent, a Message from the EVER-LIVING came to Shemiah, to say, "They have repented; I will not desolate them; but will give them in a little while an escape; and My anger shall not be passed on Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak; but they shall 8 be his subjects and learn the difference of subjection to Me, and subjection to the Kings of the countries."

But Shishak the King of the Mit- 9 zeraim advanced against Jerusalem, and took the treasures of the House

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 11, v. 20. By the error of some old transcriber the current Hebrew text has "Makah," the daughter of Absalom, which is impossible, owing to the length of time that elapsed between the period of Absalom

—upwards of half a century—and the date of Rehoboam's marriage. The name and parentage are given correctly in Ch. 13, v. 2, as I give them above in my version.—F. F.

of the EVER-LIVING, and all the treasures of the King's Palace, and seized the Golden Shields that Solomon had made.

- 10 King Rehoboam consequently made Shields of brass instead of them, and entrusted them to the care of the 11 General of the Infantry who kept guard before the Royal Palace, and when the King went to the House of the EVER-LIVING the Infantry came and carried them, then returned them to the Infantry store.
 12 But when they were humiliated the anger of the LORD turned from them, and they were not completely desolated; and comforting messages also 13 came to Judah, so King Rehoboam settled himself in Jerusalem, and reigned.

Rehoboam was forty-one years old at his Coronation, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the City that the EVER-LIVING had chosen from all the Tribes of Israel to fix His NAME there. His mother's name was Namah the Amonith. But he did wrong, for he did not fix his heart to seek the EVER-LIVING. However, the doings of Rehoboam, the first and the last, are they not recorded in the Histories of Shemiah the Reciter, and also the Prophet, with his Genealogy, and the Wars of Rehoboam, and Jerabam all the time?

- 16 At last Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the City of David, and Abiah his son reigned in his stead.

(958 B.C.) Abiah begins to Reign.

- 13 In the eighteenth year of King Jerabam, Abiah began to reign over Judah. He was King for three years in Jerusalem, and the name of his mother was Makah, the daughter of Aerial of Gibaah. When war began
 3 between Abiah and Jerabam, Abiah arranged the battle with a force of disciplined soldiers of four hundred thousand men, and Jerabam arrayed against him for battle with a force of eight hundred thousand men,
 4 trained troops. And Abiah occupied the top of the Zimarim hills, which are in Mount Ephraim, and proclaimed:—

"Listen Jerabam, and the army of Israel;—

- 5 "Is it not known to you that the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel gave the Kingship over Israel to David for ever?—To him, and to his sons, by a Covenant of Salt? But Jerabam, 6 ben-Nebat, an Officer of Solomon, ben-David rebelled against his Master, and idle fellows, men of Belial, col- 7 lected to him, and encouraged him against Rehoboam, ben-Solomon, when Rehoboam was young and light-hearted, and could not resist them. So now you think to resist the King- 8 ship of the LORD, in the hand of the sons of David, because you are a great mob, and the Golden Calves that Jerabam made for your Gods are with you!

"Have you not expelled the Priests 9 of the EVER-LIVING, the Beni Aaron, and the Levites, and made yourselves Priests like the peoples of the countries, so that every one who goes to fill his hands with a bullock and seven rams, can become a Priest to the Not-gods?

"But for us,—the EVER-LIVING is 10 our GOD, and we will not forsake him! And our Priests, who serve the EVER-LIVING, are descendants of Aaron, and the Levites are assistants, who consume to the EVER-LIVING, 11 morning by morning, Burnt-offerings; and evening by evening; and present perfumes, and arrange bread on the pure table, with the Golden Lamps, and their Reflectors, to burn from dusk to dusk. For we regard the Trusts of the EVER-LIVING, our GOD,—but you have abandoned them. So look out for GOD is at our head, 12 and His Priests with trumpets to sound an alarm against you.—Sons of Israel, fight not against the EVER-LIVING, the GOD of your fathers, for you will not prosper!"

But Jerabam directed an ambush 13 to go to their rear.—Thus he was at the front of Judah, and the ambuscade at their rear, and when Judah turned, 14 they saw there was a battle for them before and behind; so they cried to the EVER-LIVING, and the Priests sounded with the trumpets; and the 15 men of Judah cheered; and when the men of Judah cheered, GOD defeated Jerabam, and the Israelite forces before Abiah and Judah.

Thus the Children of Israel were 16 routed before Judah, and GOD gave them into their hand; and Abiah and 17 his army defeated them, with a crushing defeat, and five hundred thousand brave men of Israel fell wounded.

18 The Children of Israel were consequently weakened from that time, and the Children of Judah encouraged, because they relied on the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers.

(957 B.C.) Abiah Defeats Jerabam.

19 Abiah then followed after Jerabam, and captured from him the Cities of Beth-el, and its villages; and Jeshanah, and its villages; and Afren, and its villages, and Jerabam never recovered his strength in the times of Abiah: for the EVER-LIVING struck 21 and defeated him, but Abiah was strengthened, and married fourteen wives, and begot twenty-two sons, and sixteen daughters.

22 The remainder of the deeds of Abiah, and his proceedings, and his affairs, are recorded in the Commentaries of the Reciter Ado.

23 Then Abiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the City of David, and Asa his son reigned instead of him. In his time the Country was at peace for ten years.

(955 B.C.) Asa's Reign.

14 Asa also did what was good and right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, and removed the foreign altars, and the Mounds, and broke the Columns, and felled the Groves, and commanded Judah to seek the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers, and to practise his 4 Laws and Instructions. He also removed the Mounds from the towns of Judah and the Images of the Sun. So his reign was in peace before him.

Asa Fortifies Judah.

5 He also built fortresses in Judah, for the country was at rest, and he had no war in those years;—for the 6 EVER-LIVING was kind to him, therefore he said to Judah: "Let us be building these Cities, and surround them with walls and forts, doors and bars, whilst the country is quiet, now we have sought our EVER-LIVING GOD, and He has given us rest around." So they built, and prospered.

Asa's Large Army.

7 Yet Asa had an army who bore shield and spear, of three hundred thousand men of Judah. And two hundred and eighty thousand from Benjamin, who carried shields, or drew the bow. All these were disciplined soldiers.

Zerah, King of Cush, assails Asa.

Afterwards Zerah, the Kushite,¹ 8 advanced against them with an Army of a million, and three hundred Chariots, and arrived at Mareshah, and Asa went out to meet him, and 9 prepared to fight in the plain of Zefathah near Mareshah, where Asa cried 10 to his EVER-LIVING GOD, and said:—"LORD! there is no difference with You, when helping, between the weak and the strong." Help us, our EVER-LIVING GOD, for we rely upon You, and in Your Name we come against this host. You are our EVER-LIVING GOD,—let not man prevail against You!" And the EVER-LIVING routed 11 the Kushites before Asa, and before Judah,—so the Kushites fled. But 12 Asa pursued them, with the force that was with him, to Gherar, where he overwhelmed the Kushites, and gave no quarter, for they were broken before the EVER-LIVING, and before His army, and very great plunder was collected.

He next assailed all the towns 13 around Gherar,—for a terror from the LORD came upon them,—and sacked all the Cities, for there was much property in them. They also attacked the cattle folds, and captured many sheep, and camels, and afterwards returned to Jerusalem.

(941 B.C.) Azariah's Address to Asa and his Army.

Then the Spirit of the LORD came 15 upon Azariah - ben - Audad, and he went out to meet Asa, and said 2 to him; "Listen to me, Asa! and the Army of Judah, and Benjamin! The EVER-LIVING is with you, so you be with Him;—for if you seek Him, He will be found by you;—and if you abandon Him, He will abandon you. For a long time Israel had had 3 no TRUE GOD, or Teaching Priest, and no Law, yet when in its distress 4 it turned to the GOD of Israel, and sought Him, He was found by them, and in those past times there was no 5 safety in going out or in coming in,

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 14, v. 8. "Zerah, the Kushite." The Kush of the Hebrew Histories was a state extending from the Persian Gulf across Northern Arabia to the Gulf of Akabah in the Red Sea. and revolutions came upon all the 6 population of the country. Tribe assailed Tribe, and City, City,—for GOD let them be tormented with every 7 distress; but you, be bold, and do not drop your hands, for your work will be rewarded."

(941 B.C.) Asa attempts a Moral Reformation.

5 And when Asa heard these words, and the Sermon of Audud the Preacher, he was encouraged, and expelled the abominations from all the land of Judah, and Benjamin, and from the towns he had captured in Mount Ephraim, and restored
the Altar of the EVER-LIVING 9 that was before the Porch of the LORD, and collected the Representatives of Judah, and Benjamin, and the settlers amongst them, from Ephraim and Manasseh and Simeon,
—for many from Israel had deserted to him, when they saw that his EVER-LIVING GOD was with him.

10 These assembled at Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year 11 of the Kingship of Asa, and sacrificed to the EVER-LIVING some of the prizes. They brought seven hundred bullocks, and seven thousand sheep, 12 and came to a Resolution to seek the EVER-LIVING GOD of their forefathers with all their heart, and all their mind;
and that all who would not seek the 13 EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel should be put to death, from the least to the 14 greatest, whether man or woman; and swore it to the EVER-LIVING with a loud voice, and with cheering, and 15 with trumpets and horns. And the Representatives of Judah swore gladly, for they swore with complete heart, and sought Him with full delight, and found Him, for the EVER-LIVING gave them rest all round.

Asa deposes his Mother from her Queendom for Idolatry.

16 King Asa also dismissed Makah, his mother, from her station, because she had made a filthy image to LUST.
Asa also cut up the foul image, and crushed it, and flung it into the Kedron brook.

17 He did not, however, remove the Mounds from Israel,—yet the heart of Asa was sound all his days, and he brought all the Consecrations of silver and gold of his father, and the Con-secrations of himself, into the House of the EVER-LIVING.

There was no more war afterwards, 15 until the thirty-fifth year of the Kingship of Asa.

(940 B.C.) Basha of Israel assails Judah.—Asa allies with Ben-hadad.

In the thirty-sixth year of the 16
Kingship of Asa, Basha King of Israel came up against Judah, and built Ramah, so as not to allow a passage to Asa King of Judah.

Asa consequently took silver and 2
gold out of the Treasures of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Royal Palace, and sent to Ben-Hadad, King of Aram, who was Resident in Damask,
and said;

"There is a Treaty between myself and you, as there was between my father and your father, therefore I 3 have sent silver and gold to you to break the treaty with Basha, King of Israel, that he may retreat from me."

(940 B.C.)

And Ben-hadad listened to King Asa, 4 and sent the Generals of his forces against the Cities of Israel, and they assailed Aion, and Dan, and Abelmaim, and all the prosperous Towns of Naphthali; and when Basha heard 5 it he ceased from the building of Ramah, and left his works, and King 6 Asa took the forces of Judah, and carried off the stones and timber, with which Basha was building, from Ramah, and built Gheba and Mitzfah with them.

The Preacher Hanani denounces the Treaty with Ben-hadad.

But at that time Hanani, the 7
Preacher, came to Asa King of Judah, and said to him:—

"Because you have trusted yourself to the King of Aram, and have not trusted upon your EVER-LIVING GOD, the Army of the King of Aram will slip from your hand! Were not the 8 Kushim and the Lubim, with their great Army of Chariots and horsemen, very numerous?—But because you relied upon the EVER-LIVING, they were given to your hand. For the eyes of 9
the EVER-LIVING dart to all the earth, to strengthen, if the heart is sound to him!—You have done foolishly about this,—therefore from now there will be wars for you!"

- 10 Consequently Asa was furious at the seer, and put him into the Prison of the Stocks, for he was enraged with him about it. Asa also oppressed the 11 people at the same time. But you must seek the beginning and end of the affairs of Asa as they are recorded in the records of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

Asa Suffers from Gout in his Old Age.

- 12 In the thirty-ninth year of his Kingship, Asa became lame in his feet,—His suffering was very great.—However, in his suffering he did not consult the EVER-LIVING,—but Physicians, 13 so Asa slept with his fathers, and died in the forty-first year of his reign.

(914 B.C.)

- 14 But they buried him in his own tomb which he had formed for himself in the City of David, and laid him on a bed that was filled with perfumes, and spices, and preservatives, prepared by chemists. They also burnt a very great burning for him.

(914 B.C.) Jhosaphat begins to Reign.

- 17 And Jhosaphat his son reigned in his place, and strengthened himself
2 against Israel, and put a force in every Fortified City of Judah, and appointed commanders in the country of Judah, and in the Cities of Ephraim,
3 that Asa his father had captured, for the EVER-LIVING was with Jhosaphat, because he walked in the paths of David his ancestral father, and did
4 not seek Baals, but the GOD of his fathers: and followed his instructions, and not as Israel did. Consequently 5 the EVER-LIVING fixed the government in his hand, and all Judah paid tribute to Jhosaphat, and he possessed
6 wealth and much honour, and he exalted his heart in the paths of the EVER-LIVING, and he expelled the Mounds and Shrines from Judah.

(912 B.C.)

- 7 In the third year of his reign, also he sent his Officers Ben-khail, and Abdiah, Zakeriah, and Nathanael, and Mikhibu, to teach in the Cities of 8 Judah; and with them the Levites,

Shemhiu, and Nathanihu, and Zakarihu, and Asahal, and Shemiramoth, and Jhouathan, and Aduihu, and Tobihu, and Tob-adoniah, the Levites, and Alishama, and Jhoram the Priests, 9 who taught in Judah. They had a book of the Laws of the EVER-LIVING with them, and they went round in all the towns of Judah, and taught the people, so that a reverence for the EVER-
10 LIVING came upon all the Kings of the neighbouring countries around Judah, and they did not fight with Jhosaphat.

The Philishtim also brought tribute
11 to Jhosaphat, and a money tax; while the Arabians brought him of sheep seven thousand seven hundred rams; and seven thousand seven hundred he-
12 goats. Thus Jhosaphat advanced and increased continually, and built 13 Palaces in Judea and residential towns. He had many well-disciplined soldiers in the Cities of Judah, and a large army of brave men in Jerusalem, whose Commanders, of their Ancestral 14 Houses, were the following:—As Generals in Judah were Aduah, the Commander-in-Chief, and three hundred thousand soldiers under him.

And his Lieutenant was General
15 Jhehanan, and with him were two hundred and eighty thousand.

And under him Amasiah, -ben-Zikri,
16 the Volunteer, and with him two hundred thousand trained men.

Aliada was the Commander of the 17 disciplined troops from Benjamin, and had with him of Archers and Shield-men, two hundred thousand.

His Lieutenant was Jhozabad, who 18 contracted for a hundred and eighty thousand armed for war.

These served the King, besides those 19 the King placed in the Fortified Cities of Judah.

(897 B.C.) Jhosaphat's Prosperity.

He joins Ahab against Ramoth-Gilead.

Jhosaphat thus possessed wealth
18 and honour, in plenty, and made friendship with Ahab, and went down
2 at the end of Summer to Ahab at Shomeron, when Ahab sacrificed many sheep and oxen, as did his people, and he persuaded him to advance against Ramoth-Gilad. For 3 Ahab, King of Israel, said to Jhosaphat, King of Judah, "Will you go with me to Ramoth-Gilad?"

When he replied, "You and I are alike! And your people as my people in battle."

- 4 "But," Jhosaphat said to the King of Israel, "let us, I pray, enquire what day the EVER-LIVING says!"
- 5 The King of Israel consequently collected seven hundred men of his Preachers, and asked them, "Should we go up to Ramoth-Gilad to fight,—or refrain?"
- And they replied, "Advance! and the Gods will give it to the hand of the King!"
- 6 But Jhosaphat asked, "Is there not here any Preacher of the EVER-LIVING, that we may enquire from Him?"
- 7 And the King of Israel replied to Jhosaphat, "There is one man! from whom we could enquire of the EVER-LIVING,—but I hate him;—for he never proclaims success to me, but misfortune all his time. He is Mikiah, ben-Imla."
- Jhosaphat, however, answered, "Let not the King say so!"
- 8 The King of Israel therefore called to a Chamberlain, and said, "Bring Mikiah, ben-Imla."
- 9 And the King of Israel, and Jhosaphat, King of Judah, each sat on his throne, clothed in splendid robes, and placed in the Square opposite the Gate of Shomeron, with all the Preachers reciting before them;
- 10 and Zedekihu, ben-Kananiah, had made iron horns for himself, and exclaimed, "Thus says the EVER-LIVING, you shall push Aram with these to destruction!"
- 11 And all the Preachers recited the same, and said, "Go up to Ramoth-Gilad, and prosper! For the LORD will give it into the hand of the King!"
- 12 Consequently the Messenger who had gone to invite Mikiah, said to him: "You will perceive the promises of the Preachers are unanimously for good to the King! So let your promise be like one of theirs, and promise good!"
- 13 But Mikiah answered: "By the life of the EVER-LIVING! Whatever GOD commands by me to him, I shall say!"
- 14 When they came to the King, the King asked him, "Mikiah, should I go to Ramoth-Gilad to fight, or should I refrain?" And he replied, "Go up and prosper;—when they are given to your hand!"

But the King answered him, "How often must I put you on Oath, that you will not speak to me, except the truth in the Name of the EVER-LIVING?"

The Vision of Zedekihu,

Then he replied: "I saw all Israel 16 scattered on the mountains, like sheep who have no shepherd, and the EVER-LIVING asked, "Have these no masters? Let every one return to its own home in peace!"

Consequently the King of Israel 17 exclaimed to Jhosaphat, "Did I not tell you, he would not proclaim good to me, but only misfortune?"

So he answered: "Therefore, hear 18 the Message of the EVER-LIVING! I saw the EVER-LIVING seated on HIS THRONE, and all the Hosts of the Heavens, stationed on His right hand and on His left, and when the EVER-LIVING asked, 'Who will entice Ahab King of Israel, so that 19 he may go up, and fall at Ramoth-Gilad?' And this one said thus, and another said that.

"Then a Spirit came forward and 20 stood before the EVER-LIVING, and said, 'I will entice him!' When the EVER-LIVING asked him how?

"And he replied, 'I will go, and 21 become a lying Spirit in the mouth of all his Preachers.' So He answered, 'You may entice him, and also succeed! Go, and do so.'

"And now, look! The EVER- 22 LIVING has put a lying Spirit into the mouth of those Preachers of yours;—but the EVER-LIVING told me bad news about you!"

Then Zedekihu, - ben - Kananiah, 23 approached, and struck Mikiah on the jaw, and asked, "By what road did the Spirit from the EVER-LIVING pass from me to speak to you?"

When Mikiah answered, "You 24 will see on that day when you go to an inner Chamber to hide yourself!"

Then the King of Israel exclaimed, 25 "Seize Mikiah! and hand him to Amon the Commandant of the Citadel, and to the Prince Joash, and 26 say to them:—"Put this fellow into the prison, and feed him with bread of affliction, and water of affliction, until I return in safety!"

But Mikiah replied, "If you re- 27 turn in safety the EVER-LIVING has not spoken by me!" Then he shouted, "Listen, all you People!"

Ahab and Jhosaphat advance to Ramoth-Gilad.

- 28 So the King of Israel, and Jhosaphat King of Judah, advanced to Ramoth-Gilad, where the King of Israel said to Jhosaphat, "I will disguise myself when going to battle; but you shall wear your robes." The King of Israel consequently disguised himself when he went to battle.
- 30 The King of Aram, however, had ordered the Commanders of his Chariots, saying;—"Do not fight with small or great, but only with the King of Israel himself."
- 31 So when the Commanders of the Chariots saw Jhosaphat, they said, "That is the King of Israel," and they surrounded him to fight. But Jhosaphat cried out, when the LORD helped him, and GOD made him
- 32 escape from them. Then when the Commanders of the Chariots perceived that he was not the King of Israel, they returned from following him. A man, however, drew a bow 33 at a venture, and hit the King of Israel between the joints of his armour, when he said to his Charioteer, "Pull in your hand, and take me out of the battle, for I am wounded!"

(897 B.C.) Death of Ahab.

The battle, however, went on that 34 day, and the King of Israel was supported in his Chariot opposite Aram until the evening, but he died at the time of Sun-set.

But Jhosaphat, King of Judah, 19 returned to his home at Jerusalem in safety.

Jehua the Preacher Denounces Jhosaphat.

However, Jehua, ben-Khanani, the 2 Prophet, went out to meet him, and said to the King Jhosaphat;—

"Why did you help the wicked?
And love the haters of JEHOVAH?
For that, the wrath of the LORD is on you
However good things are found in you;
For you expelled Ashroth from the land,
And settled your heart to seek your GOD,"

- 4 Thus Jhosaphat returned to Jerusalem, and rested.

(896 B.C.) Jhosaphat Reforms the Church and Civil Courts.

He afterwards travelled amongst the people from Bar-sheba to Mount Ephraim, and turned them to the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers.

- 5 He also established Judges in the country, in every Fortified Town of Judea, from City to City; and said to the Judges, "Be careful in what you do, for you do not Decide for man, but for the EVER-LIVING, who is with you when you are pronouncing
- 7 Judgment. Therefore let the fear of the EVER-LIVING be upon you. Be careful when deciding; for there is no corruption with our EVER-LIVING GOD; or making pretences; or taking of bribes."

Jhosaphat Establishes Courts of Appeal.

- 8 In the same way Jhosaphat appointed Judges in Jerusalem from the Levites and Priests, and from the Ancestral Chiefs of Israel, for the Decrees of the EVER-LIVING, and for Appeals. Those resided in Jerusalem. And he commanded 9 them,

"You shall do thus, and examine for the EVER-LIVING, in faithfulness and purity of heart. And in every 10 Appeal that comes to you from your Associates who reside in the towns, between blood and blood, between law and command, or institution, or Decrees, you shall advise them not to offend against the EVER-LIVING; or there will be anger against you, and your Associates. Do that, and you will do no wrong.

"And you see Amarihu, the Chief 11 of the Priests, is your Superintendent in all matters about the EVER-LIVING; with Zebadihu-ben-Ishmaal, the Prince of the House of Judah, for any affairs of the King; and the Levites will be present with you as Recorders. Be earnest, and act; and may the EVER-LIVING be with you in good."

(896 B.C.) The Moabites and Allies assail Judea.

- 20 It occurred after this that the Beni-Moab, and Beui-Amon, with some of the Mennim, came to war against Jhosaphat.
- 2 And messengers came and reported it to Jhosaphat, saying; "A great multitude from Aram-beyond-the-Lake is advancing, and are at Hazeron-Thamar, that is Aingedi."
- 3 Jhosaphat consequently was afraid and turned himself to enquire of the EVER-LIVING, and proclaimed a fast to all Judea. Judea therefore collected, to entreat from the EVER-LIVING, and came from all the cities of Judea to entreat the LORD.
- 5 When Jhosaphat stood up in the Parliament of Judea and Jerusalem, in the House of the EVER-LIVING, in front of the New Court, and said:—

He addresses the Parliament.

- 6 "EVER-LIVING GOD of our fathers, are You not GOD in the Heavens? and You rule in all the Kingdoms of the Heathen, and power and might are in Your hands, and none can resist You. Are not You our GOD, who drove out the inhabitants of this country before Your people of Israel, and gave it to the race of Abraham, Your friend for ever?
- 8 And they have dwelt in it, and have built a Sanctuary to Your Name in it, reflecting, 'If trouble comes upon us, the punishing sword, or plague, or famine, we can stand before this Temple, and before You, for Your NAME is in this Temple,—and cry to You in our distresses, You will listen and hear.' So now see, the Beni-Amon, and Moab, and Mount Sair that it was not granted to Israel to assail, when they came from the land of the Mitzeraim, so they turned from them and did not ravage them;
- 11 —Yet look at them! how they reward us, by coming to expel us from Your inheritance, which You allowed us to possess!
- 12 "OUR GOD! Is there no punishment for them? For we have no power before this great host that is coming against us; so we know not what to do; but our eyes are on You!"

Zekeriha addresses Parliament.

And the Representatives of Judea¹³ stood before the LORD with their infants, and wives, and sons;

And Ikhazial, ben-Zekeriha, ben-Baniah, ben-Jazal, ben-Mathaniah, the Levite, of the Beni Asaph, had the Spirit of the EVER-LIVING come upon him in the middle of the Assembly, and exclaimed:—

"Listen Representatives of Judea, and Inhabitants of Jerusalem, with King Jhosaphat,—Thus says the EVER-LIVING to you: "Fear not for yourselves, nor be dejected in the presence of this great host! for the battle is not with you, but with GOD!—Descend against them to-morrow.¹⁶ You will see them ascending by the ascent of Ziz; and you will find them at the end of the stream opposite the pastures of Jerual.—You need not¹⁷ fight with them. Station yourselves! Stand! and see the victory of the EVER-LIVING for you!—Fear not, and be not depressed, Judah and Jerusalem!—Go out to-morrow to meet them, and the EVER-LIVING will be with you!"

Then Jhosaphat bent his face earth-ward, and the Representatives of Judea, and the Inhabitants of Jerusalem fell before the EVER-LIVING, and bowed to the LORD. But the Levites, of the Beni Kahth and the Beni Korakh, arose, and praised the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel with a loud and high voice.

Jhosaphat marches to Battle.

Early in the morning, they aroused and marched out to the pastures of Thekoa, but before their march Jhosaphat stood up and said;

"Listen to me, Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem! Trust upon your EVER-LIVING GOD and trust yourselves:—trust on His Preachers, and you will succeed!"

And having arranged the army, he appointed Singers to the EVER-LIVING, and they went with sacred splendour, marching before the troops, and exclaiming, "Praise the LORD, for His Mercy endures for ever!" And at the moment they began to cheer, and praise, the EVER-LIVING acted unexpectedly against the Beni Amon, Moab, and Mount Sair, who were advancing against Judah, and routed them; for the Beni Amon, and Moab, assailed the people of Mount Sair with slaughter and destruction, and when they had destroyed the People of Mount Sair, each helped to ruin the other! So when Judah came to the Watch-tower in the Pastures, and advanced towards the host, they saw their carcasses fallen on the earth, without fugitives. Then Jhosaphat, and his army went to seize the plunder, and found amongst it property, and clothing, and beautiful jewels, which they stripped for themselves, more than they could carry; and they were three days collecting the spoil, for it was great.

On the fourth day they assembled in the Vale of Thanks, where they thanked the EVER-LIVING. Therefore they called the name of the place "The Vale Thanks" to this day.

Then all the men of Judah, and Jerusalem returned with Jhosaphat at their head, and came to Jerusalem with delight, for the EVER-LIVING had delighted them upon their enemies. So they came to Jerusalem, with lutes and harps and trumpets, and to the Temple of the EVER-LIVING.

A terror of the EVER-LIVING afterwards came upon all the Kingdoms of the Heathen, when they heard how the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel. Consequently the Empire of Jhosaphat had rest, and the EVER-LIVING gave him comfort all around.

Character of Jhosaphat.

Thus Jhosaphat reigned over Judea. He was thirty-five years old at his coronation, and was King in Jerusalem for twenty-five years. His mother's name was Azubah, the daughter of Shilki. He walked in the path of his father Asa, and never turned from it, but did right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING. However, he did not overthrow the Mounds; and the people did not yet fix their hearts on the GOD of their ancestors.

But the remainder of the affairs of Jhosaphat,—the first and the last,—can be seen recorded in the history of Jehua, ben-Khanani; who was Superintendent of the Records of the Kings of Israel.¹

¹ NOTE.—This 34th verse has apparently been misplaced by some ancient transcriber, Jhosaphat tries to restore Trade with Tharshish and South Africa.

After this Jhosaphat King of Judea united himself with Ahaziah, King of Israel, (which was a wrong act). He, however, united with him to build ships to go to Tharshish. They also built ships at Ezion-gaber. Consequently Aliazar, ben-Dodavhu, of Maresheth, preached against Jhosaphat, and said, "Because you have united with Ahaziah, the EVER-LIVING will break your efforts, and the ships will be wrecked, and not be able to go to Tharshish."

(890 B.C.)

At last Jhosaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his ancestors, in the City of David, and Jhoram, his son reigned instead of him.

His brothers the sons of Jhosaphat were Azariah, Jakhial, and Zakerihu, and Azrihu, and Mikal, and Shefatiah.—All these were sons of Jhosaphat, King of Israel, and their father gave them large endowments in money and property, with fortified towns in Judea; but gave the Kingdom to Jhoram, because he was his first-born.

But when Jhoram arose to the dominions of his father, and had secured himself, he murdered the whole of his brothers, and also some of the nobles of Israel.

(889 B.C.)

Jhoram was thirty-two years of age at his coronation, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem, and followed the path of the Kings of Israel,—just as the House of Ahab did,—for the daughter of Ahab became his wife. So he did evil in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING. But the EVER-LIVING did not wish to desolate the House of David, because of the Covenant made with David, and because he promised to give a light to him and his sons for all time.

(889 B.C.) Edom Revolts from Juden.

In his days Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah, and elected for the sense it should be read after the 37th verse of this chapter, of which as placed in the common text, it breaks the sense — F. F.

- 9 a King over themselves. Jhoram therefore advanced along with his Generals and all his chariots; but he was risen upou in the night and was defeated by Edom, who surrounded himself, and the Commanders of his 10 chariots. Thus Edom revolted from under the hand of Judea to this day. Libnah also at the same time revolted from under his hand, because he had abandoned the EVER-LIVING GOD of his fathers.

Jhoram's Wickedness.

- 11 He also erected Mounds in the Cities of Judah, and caused the population of Jerusalem to whore, and 12 forced Judea to do it. So a letter came to him from Elisha,¹ the Preacher, to say;—
" Thus says the EVER-LIVING, the GOD of David your ancestor, since you have not followed the course of your father Jhosaphat and the path
13 of Asa, King of Judea, but have walked in the ways of the Kings of Israel, and have prostituted Judea and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as the House of Ahab prostituted; and also have murdered your brothers of your father's family, who were better
14 than yourself; be sure the EVER-LIVING will strike with a great disease your children, and your wives, and 15 property, and all your people; and yourself with many diseases in your bowels; until your bowels will come out day by day in consequence of your disease!"

(887 B.C.)

- 16 The EVER-LIVING consequently aroused the spirit of the Philistim against Jhoram, with the Arabians, who were at the side of the Kushim, 17 and they came up to Judea and broke into it, and captured all the property they found belonging to the family of the King, and also his children and wives, and did not leave him a child except Jhoakhaz, his youngest 18 son. And after all that the EVER-LIVING struck him within his bowels
19 with an incurable disease, which recurred from day to day, and as time went on, at the end of a period of two years, his bowels came out in consequence of his disease, and he died in grievous sufferings. Consequently his people did not make burnings for him, like the burnings for his fathers.

Character of Jhoram.

At his coronation he was thirty-two years of age, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years;—and he departed unregretted. So they buried him in the City of David, but not in the Tombs of the Kings.

(885 B.C.) Ahaziah Elected King.

Then the Population of Jerusalem² elected Ahaziah his youngest son in his place, for all the elder ones had been murdered by the troops who came with the Army of the Arabians. So Ahaziah, ben-Jhoram reigned in Judea.

(885 B.C.) Ahaziah's Wicked Reign.

Ahaziah was twenty-two years old at his coronation, and reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, the daughter of Amri. He also followed the courses of the House of Ahab, for his mother was his wicked adviser. He consequently did evil in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, like the House of Ahab, for they were his counsellors after the death of his father, and destroyed him.

So he followed their advice, and went with Jhoram, ben-Ahab, King of Israel, to fight against the King of Aram at Ramoth-Gilad, where the Aramites wounded Jhoram, who returned to Jezreel to be cured of the wounds which he had received at Ramoth in his fight with Hazahel, King of Aram. So Azariah, ben-Jhoram, King of Judea, descended to see Jhoram, ben-Ahab in Jezreel, where he was an invalid. But the degradation of Ahaziah came from GOD by his going to Jhoram, for on his visit he went out with Jhoram against Jehu, ben-Nimshi, whom the EVER-LIVING had consecrated to cut off the House of Ahab. For it happened that when Jehu was executing the family of Ahab, he found the Nobles of Judea, and the sons of the brothers of Ahaziah attending to Ahaziah, and he murdered them.

9 He also searched out Ahaziah and captured him, for he was hidden in Shomeron, and he was brought to Jehu, who killed him. But they buried him, for they said, "He was descended from Jhosaphat, who sought the EVER-LIVING with all his heart." Thus none of the family of Ahaziah attained power in the Government.

(831 B.C.) Athaliah Murders her Husband's Children.

10 When Athaliah, the mother of Ahaziah, saw that her son was dead, she arose with intention to destroy all the Royal race of the House of Judah, but the Royal Princess Jhoshabath, took Joash, the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from amongst the children of the King who were being killed, and placed him and his nurse in a bed-chamber. Thus Jhoshabath, the daughter of King Jhoram, the wife of Jhoiada the Priest, concealed him, (for she was sister of Ahaziah), from Athaliah, so that he 12 was not killed, but was hidden with them for six years, while Athaliah was Queen over the country.

(878 B.C.) Jhoiada the High Priest decides to Restore the Throne of David to the Throne in Azariah.

23 But in the seventh year Jhoiada emboldened himself, and took Azeriah, ben-Jerokham, and Ishnael, ben-Jokhanan, and Azarihu, ben-Aubed, and Masihu, ben-Adihu, and Alishafat, ben-Zikri, Captains in the 2 Army, into his confidence, and they travelled about Judea, and invited the Levites from all the towns of Judea, and the Ancestral Chiefs of 3 Israel, to come to Jerusalem, when all those assembled made an agreement in the House of GOD with the King.

Then he said to them, "You know that a Prince should reign, as the EVER-LIVING promised to the sons of David. What you must do therefore is this;—A third part of you must come on the Sabbath to the Priests and Levites who guard the 4 Thresholds of the Gates; and a third go to the Royal Palace; and a third go to the Gate of Consultation, when all the People are in the Courts of the House of the EVER-LIVING. But 6 let none enter the LORD'S House, except the Priests, who minister, with the Levites.—They may enter, for they are sacred,—and let all your forces guard the Ministrations of the EVER-LIVING. Then let the Levites close 7 round the King, each with his vessels in his hands. But kill all else who wish to enter the Temple; but you must accompany the King when he enters and when he departs."

So the Levites, and the Representatives of Judea, did everything as Jhoiada the Priest ordered, and each took his men on the arrival of the Sabbath,—the Sabbath on which they were to act, when Jhoiada the Priest did not dismiss the courses.

Jhoiada the Priest then gave the 9 Captains the spears and shields, and bucklers which had been King David's, and were in the Temple of GOD.—He next stationed all the force, each with his weapon in his hand, from the right shoulder of the Temple, to the left shoulder of the Temple; and from the Altar to surround the Royal apartment. After- 11 wards he brought out the Prince, and they paid homage to him, and administered the Oath, and crowned him. Jhoiada and his sons consecrated him, and exclaimed,—

"May the King live!"

Athaliah, however, heard the noise 12 of the people running and cheering the King, so she came to the Parliament in the House of the EVER-LIVING, and when she looked, and 13 saw the King standing on a platform at the entrance, with the Nobles and Trumpeters around the King, and all the people in the place in delight; and the trumpeters and singers sounding with their instruments of music as a choir of thanksgiving,—then Athaliah tore her robes, and exclaimed, "Treason! treason!" But Jhoiada the Priest ordered out 14 the Captains he had appointed over the force, and said to them,—

"Take her out from among the troops! and whoever follows her, let him die by the sword!" For the Priest said, "Do not kill her in the House of the EVER-LIVING!"

So they laid their hand on her, and 15 brought her to the entrance of the Horse Gate, of the Royal Palace, and killed her there.

Athaliah Swears to the Constitution.

16 Jhoiada afterwards wrote a treaty between himself, and the Representatives of the people, and the King, that they would be the people of the EVER-LIVING.

17 All the people afterwards went to the Temple of Bal and threw down his Altar, and shattered his Image, and killed Mathan the Priest of Bal before his Altar.

(878 B.C.) Jhoiada Re-organises the Service of the Temple.

18 Jhoiada subsequently appointed Officers for the House of the EVER-LIVING, beside the Priests and Levites, whom David had arranged for the LORD'S Temple, to offer Presentations to the EVER-LIVING, as they are directed in the Laws of Moses, and to rejoice and sing as 19 arranged by David. And he appointed Doorkeepers at the Gates of the EVER-LIVING'S Temple, so that anything unclean might not enter.

(877 B.C.) A National Parliament Convoked.

20 After that he assembled the Military Officers, and the Nobles, and the Governors of the People, and the Representatives of the People of the country, and brought the King down from the House of the EVER-LIVING, and proceeded through the High Gate to the Royal Palace, and placed the King on the Throne of Government.

21 And all the Representatives of the People of the Country rejoiced that they had killed Athaliah with the sword.

(878 B.C.) Jhoash Begins to Reign.

22 Jhoash was seven years old at his coronation, and reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name
2 was Zebiah of Bar-Sheba. And Jhoash did right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, all the days of Jhoiada
3 the Priest. Jhoiada chose two wives for him, and he begot sons and daughters.

Jhoash Repairs the Temple.

4 It ultimately came into the mind of Jhoash to repair the Temple of the 5 EVER-LIVING, so he assembled the Priests, and Levites, and said to them, "Go out to the towns of Judea and collect money from all Israel, to restore the House of your GOD, from year to year, and be energetic in the matter."

But the Levites were not energetic.

The King consequently summoned 6 Jhoiada their Chief, and asked him, "Why have you not ordered the Levites to bring in from Judea and Jerusalem the Tax of Moses the Minister of the EVER-LIVING, and of the Parliament of Israel, for the Hall of Witnesses? Although the infamous 7 Athaliah and her sons dilapidated the House of GOD, and also used the sacred things of the LORD'S Temple for their Bals!"

A Collection Box Ordered for the Temple.

The King then ordered, and they 3 made a chest, and placed it at the outer-gate of the Temple of the EVER-LIVING. He also made a 9 proclamation to Judea and Jerusalem to bring to the EVER-LIVING the Taxes which Moses, the Servant of the LORD laid upon Israel in the Desert.—This pleased all the Nobles 10 and People, and they brought them, and poured into the chest until it was full; and when the chest was 11 brought to the King's accountants by the Levites, and they saw that there was much money, the clerks of the King came with an Officer of the High Priest, and emptied the chest, then returned it to its place again. They did this from time to time, and collected a quantity of money, which 12 the King and Jhoiada gave to carry out the works about the House of the EVER-LIVING, and to pay the wages of the masons and carpenters who repaired the Temple of the EVER-LIVING. And the workmen did the 13 work, and it proceeded regularly under their hands. They thus built up the House of GOD in its proportions and restored it.

When they had completed it, they 14 brought the rest of the money to the King and Jhoiada the Priest, who made vessels for the House of the EVER-LIVING; vessels for the Services, and Offerings, and Cups; and furniture of Gold and Silver, which were for use in the Offerings at the EVER-LIVING'S Temple continually, all the time of Jhoiada.

(850 B.C.)

15 But Jhoiada grew old, and satiated with days, and died,—a hundred and 16 thirty years old at his death. And they buried him in the City of David, with the Kings,—because he had benefited Israel, both towards GOD and His House.

The Nobles persuade the King to restore Idolatry.

17 But after the death of Jhoiada, the Nobles of Judea came and flattered the King, and the King listened to them, and they forsook the House of the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers, and served the Idols of LUST, and other Idols; so anger came upon Judea and Jerusalem, because of their 18 sins. However HE sent Preachers to turn them back to the EVER-LIVING and to warn them, but they would not listen.

Zekariah's Warning against Idolatry, and his Murder by the King and Mob of Courtiers.

20 Consequently, the Spirit of God clothed itself in Zekariah, - ben-Jhoiada the Priest, and he stood up before the Parliament and said to them;—"GOD asks this! Why do you transgress the Instructions of the EVER-LIVING? You do not prosper! —Because you have abandoned the LORD,—He will abandon you!"
21 They however conspired against him, and murdered him by stoning, by command of the King, in the Court of the House of the EVER-
22 LIVING!—for Jhoash the King did not remember the kindness that Jhoiada his father had shown to him, but murdered his son, who as he died exclaimed, "The EVER-LIVING sees, and will enquire for it!"

(840 B.C.)

23 And indeed on the revolution of a year, the Army of Aram came up against him, and entered Judea and Jerusalem, and ruined Judea and the great Nobles of the People, with the Parliament, and sent all the booty
24 to the King of Damask, although the Aramite army came with a small number of men, yet, the EVER-LIVING gave a very large force into its power, because they had abandoned their EVER-LIVING GOD.—Thus Justice was executed upon Jhoash. And when they 25 retired, leaving him in many troubles, his Ministers conspired against him, on account of the blood of the son of Jhoiada the Priest, and murdered him on his bed. Thus he died, and they buried him in the City of David; but he was not buried in the Tombs of the Kings.

The following were the conspirators 26 against him:—

Zabad, - ben-Shimath, the Amonite; and Jozabad, - ben - Shimerith, the Moabite.

But about his sons, and the great 27 load upon him, and his repairing of the House of GOD, can be seen related in the record books of the Kings.

(839 B.C.) The Reign of Amaziah.

His son Amaziah reigned after him, who executed his father's murderers.

Amaziah was twenty-five years old 25 when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jhoadan, of Jerusalem. He did 2 right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, yet not with a constant heart. When 3 he became secure in the Government, however, he slew those Ministers who had assaulted the King, his father, but he did not kill their children, for 4 it is written in the Book of the Laws of Moses, as the EVER-LIVING commanded, expressly:—"You shall not kill the fathers on account of their children; nor the children on account of their fathers; but each man shall be put to death for his own crime."

Amaziah calls a Reformatory Parliament.

Amaziah then assembled Judea, 5 and organized the Ancestral Houses, with Generals and Captains for all Judah and Benjamin, Regimenting them from the age of twenty years and upwards, and formed from them three hundred thousand troops to go out for war, trained to spear and shield. He also hired from Israel 6 hundred thousand trained soldiers, for a hundred talents of silver, but 7 Man of GOD came and said to the King:—"Israel must not go out with you in war; for the EVER-LIVING is not with Israel, or any of the sons of Ephraim. Therefore if you go out 8 with them made strong for battle, GOD will defeat you before the enemy; because there is power with GOD to help, or to defeat."

- 9 Amaziah, however, asked the Man of GOD:—"What am I to do for the hundred talents of silver which I have paid the Israelite troops?"

When the Man of GOD replied, "GOD is the LORD! He can give you more than that."

- 10 Consequently Amaziah disbanded the troops who had come to him from Ephraim, and marched them home. They were, however, very furious against Judah, and returned to their homes in burning anger.

- 11 Amaziah then emboldened himself, and led his people out and marched to the Vale of Salt, and slew ten thousand of the Beni Sair.

- 12 The Children of Judah also captured ten thousand persons and brought them to the top of the crags, and threw them from the top of the cliffs, and they were all broken.

- 13 In the meantime, the men of the troops whom Amaziah had dismissed from marching with him to the war, flung themselves upon the villages of Judah, from Shomeron and Beth-horon, and slew thirty thousand, and plundered a great booty.

- (839 B.C.) Amaziah adopts Idolatry.

- 14 When Amaziah came back from defeating the Edomites, he brought the Gods of the Beni Sair, and set them up as his own Gods, and bowed before them, and made offerings to them. The EVER-LIVING was consequently angry with Amaziah, and sent a Preacher to him, who asked him:—

"Why have you sought the Gods of a people, who could not deliver that people from your hand?"

- 15 But while he was addressing him, he replied to him, "Who made you Adviser to the King?—Drop it!—Why would you kill yourself?"

So the Preacher ceased, after saying, "I warn you that GOD intends to destroy you, for having done that, and not listening to my advice!"

- 826 B.C.) Amaziah declares War with Israel.

- 17 Amaziah, King of Judah, however, advised himself, and sent to Joash-ben-Jhoahaz, the son of Jehu, King of Israel, to say; "Come on! Let us look face to face!"

But Joash King of Israel, sent to Amaziah King of Judea, in reply; "The Bramble that was in Lebanon, sent to the Cedar that was in Lebanon to say, 'Give your daughter to my son as a wife!' When a beast of the field that was in Lebanon passed over, and trampled the Bramble down!

"You think, 'Look! I have defeated Edom!' So your heart is exalted, and you boast!—Stay in your home! Why should you incite yourself to suffer by it, and fall, and Judah with you?"

But Amaziah would not listen; for it was from GOD, because he had pledged himself that he would worship the Gods of Edom. Consequently Joash, King of Israel advanced, and they met face to face, he and Amaziah, King of Judea, at Beth-Semesh, in Judea, where Judea was routed before Israel, and each fled to his home, and Amaziah, King of Judah-ben-Joash-ben-Jhoahaz, was captured by Joash, King of Israel, at Beth-Shemish, who brought him to Jerusalem, where he broke down the walls of Jerusalem from the Gate of Ephraim, to the Corner Gate for four hundred cubits. He also transferred all the Gold and silver, and all the vessels that he found in the House of GOD, with Abed-Edom; and the Treasures of the Royal Palace, with the securities, and lodged them in Shomeron.

But Amaziah-ben-Joash, King of Judea, lived after the death of Joash-ben-Jhoahaz, King of Israel, for fifteen years.

The rest of the events of Amaziah, the first and the last, can be seen recorded, in the records of the Kings of Judea and Israel.

(810 B.C.)

But after the time that Amaziah revolted from the EVER-LIVING, they contrived a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lakish. They, however, sent after him to Lakish, and killed him there, and carried him on horses, and buried him with his fathers in a village of Judea.

(B.C. 810.) The Parliament elect Uzihu King.

Then the Parliament of Judea took Uzihu, who was sixteen years old, and crowned him in place of his father, Amazihu.

- 2 He built Ailoth, which he recovered for Judea, after that King slept with his fathers.
- 3 Uzihu was sixteen years old at his coronation, and he reigned fifty-two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jakilah of Jerusalem. He did right in the sight of the EVER-LIVING, in all that his father Amazihu had done, and sought GOD in the days of Zakerihu, the instructor in the manifestation of GOD, and in the period when he sought the EVER-LIVING GOD gave him success. So he went out and fought with the Philishtim, and broke the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabnah, and the wall of Ashdod, and Jabnah in the Wood, and built Cities near Ashdod, and amongst the Philishtim. For GOD helped him against the Philishtim, and against the Arabians, and the population of Garbal, Maninim. The Amonites also paid tribute to Uzihu, and his power extended to the passage into Mitzeraim, for he advanced to high power.

Uzihu Fortifies his Country.

- 10 Uzihu also built Forts in the pastures, and excavated many reservoirs, for he had much cattle, both on the slopes, and the plain, with farms and vineyards on the hills, and in Karmel, for he was a lover of the ground.

(810 B.C.) He trains a Standing Army.

- 11 Uzihu had also an army trained for war, who went out to war, in numbered regiments, under the control of Javal the Secretary and Masiah the organizer, under the command of Hananiah the General of the King.
- 12 The whole number of Ancestral Chiefs in the Army was two thousand six hundred, and under their hand a warlike force of three hundred and seven thousand, five hundred disciplined for battle. A powerful force to support the King against the enemy. And Uzihu provided them with shields and spears, and helmets, and armour, and bows, and stone slings. He also made artillery in Jerusalem, contrived to be fixed in the Forts, and at the bastions, to shoot arrows, and great stones. His fame consequently went out afar, for he was remarkably skilful as well as bold. But as he strengthened himself his heart mounted to destruction, and he sinned against his EVER-LIVING GOD; for he entered the Temple of the EVER-LIVING, to offer incense on the Altar of Incense. But Azarihu the Priest entered after him, and eighty Priests of the EVER-LIVING with him,—brave men,—who withstood Uzihu the King, and said to him:—

"It is not for you, Uzihu, to offer incense to the EVER-LIVING but for the Priests, the descendants of Aaron, who are consecrated to offer incense. Go from the Sanctuary,—for you have sinned,—and it will not be accepted from you by the EVER-LIVING GOD!"

And Uzihu was furious, but had incense in his hand to offer incense, and in his fury with the Priests, the Leprosy rose up in his forehead, before the Priests, in the House of the EVER-LIVING, beside the Altar of Incense!

Then Azarihu the Chief Priest and all the Priests turned upon him, and saw that he was a Leper in the forehead, so dragged him from there, and he also hastened to go out, for the EVER-LIVING afflicted him.

Uzihu Dies a Leper.

Thus King Uzihu became a Leper to the day of his death, and resided in a house of retreat for Lepers, for he was excommunicated from the House of the EVER-LIVING, and Jotham his son governed the People of the Country from the Royal Palace.

But the other acts of Uzihu, the first and the last, Isaiah-ben-Amoz, the Preacher wrote. When Uzihu slept with his fathers, they buried him with his ancestors, in a field where the Kings were not, "for," they said, "he was a Leper." Then his son Jotham reigned in his stead.

(758 B.C.) Jotham begins to Reign.

Jotham was twenty-five years of age at his coronation, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem, and his mother's name was Jerosha, the daughter of Zadok. He also did right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, as Uzihu his father did, but he did not enter the Temple of the EVER-LIVING; whilst the People continued their corruptions.

3 He rebuilt the High Gate of the House of the LORD, and rebuilt a great part of the walls of Ophal. He also built towns in the highlands of Judea, and erected castles and towers in the Jungles.

Jotham Subdues the Beni Amon.

5 However, he had war with the Beni Amon, and conquered them, and the Beni Amon paid him yearly a hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand Kors of wheat, with ten thousand of harley. The Beni Amon paid this to him year by year for three years.
6 Thus Jotham became powerful because he fixed his courses before the LORD his GOD.

(765 B.C.)

7 Regarding the remainder of the affairs of Jotham, and all his wars, and his conduct, they can be seen in the records of the Kings of Israel and 8 Judea. He was twenty-five years old at his coronation, and reigned sixteen 9 years in Jerusalem. Then Jotham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the City of David, and Ahaz his son reigned in his place.

(748 B.C.) Ahaz begins to reign.

He reverts to Idolatry.

28 Ahaz was twenty years old at his coronation, and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem; and did not do right in the eyes of the LORD, like David his 2 Ancestor, but followed the courses of the Kings of Israel, and also made 3 temples to Balim. Beside he burnt incense, in the Valley of Ben-hinom, and burnt his children in the fire, like the abominable heathen, whom the EVER-LIVING drove out before 4 the Children of Israel. And he sacrificed and offered incense on the Mounds, and on the Hills, and under 5 every shady tree; consequently the EVER-LIVING GOD delivered him to the hand of the King of Aram, who defeated him, and captured a great many from us, as prisoners, and brought them to Damask. He also gave him to the power of the King of Israel, who defeated him with a great 6 slaughter, when Pekah-ben-Remaliah killed on one day in Judea a hundred and twenty thousand, all disciplined soldiers, because he had abandoned the EVER-LIVING GOD of his fathers.
7 And Zikri, a General of Ephraim killed the King's son, Masiah; and Azrikam, the Superintendent of his Palace; and Alkanah the King's Prime Minister. After that they 8 captured of the Children of Israel, two hundred thousand men and women, and plundered much property from them, and carried the plunder to Shomeron. A Preacher 9 of the EVER-LIVING was there, however, named Adad, and he went out to meet the army, as it advanced to Shomeron, and said to it;

"Look!—Because the EVER-LIVING GOD of our ancestors was angry against Judea, He gave it into your hands;—but you have slaughtered amongst them in a fury that has reached the Heavens!

"And now you purpose to degrade 10 into bondmen and women for yourselves, the sons of Judah and Jerusalem! But have you, yourselves, no sins against your EVER-LIVING GOD? Therefore listen to me now:—send 11 back the captives whom you have dragged after you, or the indignation of the EVER-LIVING will be upon you!"

(741 B.C.) The Israelite Generals order a Release of Captives.

Then some men of the Chiefs of 12 the children of Ephraim stood up; Azarihu-ben-Jhohanan, Berekiah-ben-Meshilmoth, and Jkhiziah-ben-Shalum, and Amasa-ben-Khadi, against those who came from the army, and said to them:—

"You shall not bring the captives here! For the indignation of the EVER-LIVING would come upon us. Do you intend to add to our sins? and to our offences? Our sins are quite enough for us! and the burning anger of the EVER-LIVING is upon Israel!" 13

The Soldiers Obey, and the Officers Clothe the Prisoners.

The soldiers consequently resigned 14 the captives and their property to the Generals, and all the Senate, and the 15 Princes, who have been specified by name, arose and comforted the captives, and clothed all the naked amongst them from the spoil, and shod them, and fed them, and gave them drink, and anointed them, and mounted all the feeble of them upon asses, and took them to Jerikho, the City of Palms, to the shelter of their countrymen, and then returned to Shomeron.

(740 B.C.) Ahaz applies to Aram for Help.

- 16 At this time King Ahaz, sent to the 17 King of Aram, to help him, for the Edomites had come and attacked 18 Judea and carried off captives. The Philishtim also in the Cities on the slope and the south, revolted from Judah, and captured Beth-Shemsh, and Ailon, and Ghederon, and Soko, and its villages, and Thimnah, and its villages, and Ghimzo, and its villages 19 and stayed there. For Judea had provoked the EVER-LIVING by means of Ahaz King of Judea,¹ who had become lawless in Judea and sinned grievously against the LORD.

Thilgath-Pilneser betrays him.

- 20 So Thilgath-Pilneser, King of Ashur came, and consulted with him but did 21 not strengthen him; although Ahaz contributed from the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Royal Palace, and from the Nobles, and paid the King of Ashur,—he was no help to him.

(740 B.C.) Ahaz adopts the Syrian Idolatry as the Court Fash.

- 22 Yet King Ahaz sinned still more against the EVER-LIVING in the 23 period of his distress, for he sacrificed to the gods of Damask who defeated him, and said, "Because the gods of the King of Damask help him, I will sacrifice to them so that they may help me!" But they were to him and all Israel a cause of ruin.
24 So Ahaz collected the vessels of the House of GOD, and cut up the vessels of GOD'S House, and closed the Doors of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and made Altars for himself in all 25 the squares of Jerusalem. In every City of Judah he also made Mounds to offer incense to seducing gods, and provoked the EVER-LIVING GOD of his fathers.
26 But his other doings, and all his courses, the first and the last, can be seen written in the records of the Kings of Judah and Israel. At last 27 Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the City of Jerusalem, for they would not bring him to the Tombs of the Kings of Israel. Then his son Hezekiah reigned instead of him.

(726 B.C.) Hezekiah begins his Noble Reign.

King Hezekiah was twenty-five 29 years old; and he reigned in Jerusalem twenty - nine years. His mother's name was Abiah, the daughter of Zekerihu.

He Restored the National Worship of God.

He did right in the eyes of the 2
EVER-LIVING, as David his Ancestor had done. He, in the first month of 3 the first year of his coronation, opened the Doors of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and repaired it. Then he 4 brought the Priests and Levites, and assembled them in the East Square, and said to them;— 5

Hezekiah's Speech to the Priests.

"Listen now to me, you Levites;
Consecrate yourselves, and consecrate the House of the EVER-LIVING, the GOD of your fathers, and carry out the filth from the Sanctuary, for 6 our fathers sinned, and did wrong in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING GOD, and abandoned and turned away their faces from the dwelling of the EVER-LIVING, and turned their backs.
They even closed the doors of His 7 Hall, and put out the Lamps, and burnt no incense, and burnt no offerings in the Sanctuary to the GOD of Israel! Consequently the anger 8 of the EVER-LIVING came upon Judea and Jerusalem, so He delivered them to agitation, and terror, and perplexity, as we can see with our eyes.
For, look! our fathers fell by the 9 sword, and our sons and our daughters, and our wives were captured on account of it. However it is in my 10 heart to make a Covenant with the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel, that He may turn from us His indignant anger.
"My sons! Be not idle! For the 11 EVER-LIVING chose you to stand before Him, and to Minister to Him, and to be Ministers and to offer
Incense."

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 28, v. 19. The ordinary Hebrew text reads "Israel."—but as Ahaz was King of Judea, I rectify the Copyist's error.—F. F.

The Levites Reconsecrate the Temple.

- 12 Then the Levites arose;—Mak-hath, ben-Amasi, and Joal-ben-Azarihu, of the Beni Kabth; and of the Beni Merari, Kish-ben-Abdi, and Azarihu-ben-Jkhalelal; and from the Ghersoni, Joakh - ben - Zimah, and Aden-ben-Joakh; and from the Beni Alizafan, Shimri and Javal; and from the Beni Asaph, Zekerihu, and Mathanihu. And from the Beni Heyman, Jekhoal, and Shimai; and from the Beni Jeduthun, Shemiah, and Azial;—who collected their relatives, and consecrated themselves, and went, as the King ordered, to the business of the EVER-LIVING,—to purify the House of the LORD. But the Priests preceded them to the House of the EVER-LIVING, to purify it, and they flung out all the defilement that they found in the Sanctuary of the EVER-LIVING, and the Court of the LORD'S House, and the Levites carried it out to the brook of Kidron.
- 17 They began on the first day of the first month to cleanse, and on the eighth day of the month they reached the Porch of the EVER-LIVING, and consecrated the House of the EVER-LIVING for eight days, and finished on the sixteenth day of the first month.

(726 B.C.) They report the Purification to the King, and he Reconsecrates the Temple.

- 18 They then went to the presence of King Hezekiah, and said:—"We have cleansed all the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Altar of Burnt-offerings, and all its instruments, and the Table of the Showbread, with all its appliances, and all the instruments which King Ahaz defiled in his reign, by his crimes,—we have repaired and consecrated, and you can see them before the Altar of the EVER-LIVING."
- 20 King Hezekiah consequently made ready, and assembled the nobles of the City, and they went up to the
- 21 House of the EVER-LIVING, and brought seven bullocks and seven rams, with seven lambs, and seven perfect goats, for sin offerings, for the Kingdom, and for the Sanctuary, and for Judea, and commanded to the Descendants of Aaron,—the Priests and Levites,—to offer them on the Altar of the EVER-LIVING. So they slaughtered the bullocks, and 22 the Priests took the blood and sprinkled it upon the Altar. Then 23 they brought the Goats for the Sin-offerings before the King, and the Parliament, and they laid their hands upon them. The Priests afterwards 24 slew them, and made with their blood Sin-offerings on the Altar, to expiate for all Israel; "Because," said the King, "let the Sin-offerings, be offered for all Israel."

He also appointed the Levites in 25 the House of the EVER-LIVING, with cymbals, and lutes, and harps, as David, and Gad, the King's Seer, with Nathan the Preacher, had ordained;—He ordained the same from the hand of the EVER-LIVING, by the medium of his Preachers.

So the Levites stood with the 26 Davidian instruments, and the Priests with trumpets, when Hezekiah com- 27 manded to offer the Burnt-offering on the Altar, and as the Offering began, they sang of the EVER-LIVING with trumpets, and by hand on the Davidian instruments of the King of Israel. Then all the Senate bowed, 28 and the Singers sang, and the trumpets sounded, until the whole of the Offerings were completed. And, 29 when the Offering was completed, the King knelt, and his guests bowed with him, and Hezekiah the King, 30 and his Nobles requested the Levites to praise the EVER-LIVING in the words of David, and Asaph the Seer. So they praised him gladly, and bowed themselves and worshipped.

Then Hezekiah spoke and said:— 31 "Now you have filled your hand for the EVER-LIVING, approach and bring Sacrifices and Thank-offerings to the House of the LORD."—So the Assembly brought offerings, and all of a willing heart, offered up. Consequently the number of the 32 Offerings that the Parliament brought were seventy bullocks, a hundred rams, and two hundred lambs, as a Burnt-offering to the EVER-LIVING for all of them.

The Levites called to Help in the Consecration.

But the Consecration was six hun- 33 dred bullocks, and three thousand sheep, so that the Priests were too 34 few, and were not able to strip the

- whole of the Burnt-offerings, therefore their relatives, the Levites had to help them, until the completion of the work, and until the Priests should consecrate themselves, for the Levites were more right-hearted to the consecration of themselves than the Priests. And they also burnt the most of the fat of the Thank-offerings, and the drink-offerings with the Burnt-offerings, and arranged the Services of the EVER-LIVING'S House.
- 35 So Hezekiah, and all the People were pleased at what GOD had provided for the People, for the affair was unexpected.

Hezekiah invites all Israel to a Royal Festival to God.

- 80 Hezekiah next sent to all Israel and Judea, and wrote a letter to Ephraim and Manasseh, to invite them to the House of the EVER-LIVING at Jerusalem, to make a Passover to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel. For the King, and his Nobles, and all the Parliament at Jerusalem had decided to make a Passover in the Second Month, because they were not able to make it at its proper period, for the Priests were not consecrated in sufficient numbers, and the People had not collected to Jerusalem. So the thing was right in the opinion of the King, and in the opinion of all the Parliament. Consequently they fixed by a Decree to send abroad a proclamation to all Israel from Barsheba to Dan, for them to come to make a Passover to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel at Jerusalem,—for not many made it according to the Scriptures. Runners were therefore sent with letters from the hand of the King and the nobles of all Israel and Judea, as the King had commanded, to say to the Children of Israel:—
- "Return to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Israel, and He will return to the fugitive remnant of you from the hand of the Kings of Ashur;—and be not like your ancestors, and your countrymen who have risen against the EVER-LIVING GOD of your fathers, Who delivered them from the wasting you now see. Do not now stiffen yourselves, like your fathers! Give your hand to GOD! Come and make yourselves holy, as He is Holy for Ever, and serve your EVER-LIVING GOD, when He will turn His indignant anger from you. For when you turn to the EVER-LIVING, your brothers and children will find compassion before those who captured them, and will be returned to this land; for your EVER-LIVING GOD is gentle and merciful, and will not turn away from you,—if you return to Him."

(726 B.C.) Hezekiah's Appeal Ridiculed.

So the Runners went from City to City in the country of Ephraim and Manasseh, and as far as Zebulon, but they were a subject of scorn and laughter for them. Except that some persons from Manasseh and Zebulon obeyed, and came to Jerusalem. In Judea, however, the hand of the EVER-LIVING was given to them, with one heart to act upon the order of the King and nobles in the affair of the EVER-LIVING. Consequently a great many people collected at Jerusalem to keep the Feast of Unfermented Bread in the Second Month. A very great crowd, who rose up and overturned the pagan Altars which were in Jerusalem, and overthrew all the Incense-Altars and flung them into the Kidron brook, and slew the Passover on the fourteenth of the Second Month. Then the Priests and the Levites became ashamed, and consecrated themselves, and brought Burnt-offerings to the House of the EVER-LIVING, and stood at their duty as Decreed in the Laws of Moses the MAN of GOD,—the Priests sprinkling the blood from the hand of the Levites.

For there were many in the Parliament who had not consecrated themselves, therefore the Levites conducted the Killing of the Passovers, for all who were clean for the Sanctuary of the LORD;—Because of the crowds of people; the crowds from Ephraim, and Manasseh, and Issakar, and Zebulon, who had purified themselves.—Thus they ate the Passover, but not according to the Records. But Hezekiah prayed for them, and said, "O EVER-LIVING, be kind, and expiate for it to every one whose heart is settled to seek for GOD,—the EVER-LIVING GOD of our ancestors,—although not according to the cleansings of the 20 Sanctuary." And the EVER-LIVING listened to Hezekiah, and accepted the people.

The Feast of Unleavened Bread Restored.

21 So the Children of Israel who were found in Jerusalem, made the Feast of Unfermented Bread for seven days with great gladness, the Levites and Priests giving thanks to the EVER-LIVING day by day with powerful 22 instruments unto the LORD. While Hezekiah spoke to the heart of every skilful Levite who showed good will for the EVER-LIVING. And the Assembly ate for seven days of the Sacrifices of the Altar, and Thank-offerings, and confessed to the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers.

A Second Feast.

23 Then all the Parliament decided to celebrate for seven days after. So they made a Festival of seven days, 24 when Hezekiah King of Judah gave up to the Assembly a thousand bullocks, and seven thousand sheep; and the nobles gave to the Assembly a thousand bullocks, and ten thousand sheep, and many Priests consecrated 25 themselves. Then all the Parliament of Judah with Priests and Levites rejoiced, with all the crowd who came from Israel, and the foreigners who came from the country of Israel, 26 and the residents in Judea. So there was great Festivity in Jerusalem;—for from the days of Solomon-ben-David, King of Israel, there had never been like that in Jerusalem.

726 B.C.) A National Destruction of Idols.

31 And when they had finished all this, all the Israelites who had been there, went out to the towns of Judea and smashed the Columns, and cut up the Lust-Booths and overturned the Mounds, and the Altars in all Judea, and Benjamin, and Ephraim, and Manasseh totally. Then all the Children of Israel returned each to his own home, and village.

Hezekiah restores National Worship.

2 After that Hezekiah restored the Courses of the Priests and Levites, with the regulations for the work of each band of the Priests and Levites. For the Burnt-offerings, and for the Thank-offerings, for Ministrations, and for Thanks-givings, and for Praise at the Gates of the Lord's Camp. And the King gave from his 3 own property the Burnt-offerings for the Morning Sacrifice, and the Evening Sacrifice; for the Sabbaths; and for the Months; and for the Assemblies; as they were prescribed for in the Laws of the EVER-LIVING.

He also commanded the residents 4 in Jerusalem; "Give gifts to the Priests and Levites, because they instruct you in the Laws of the EVER-LIVING." And when the order 5 was promulgated, the Children of Israel heaped up the first-fruits of corn, and wine, and oil, and honey, and all the produce of the land. Many also brought the tythes. The 6 Children of Israel, and Judah, with the residents in the villages of Judea, also tythed the cattle and sheep, and dedicated the tythes to the Sanctuary of their EVER-LIVING GOD, and brought and heaped them in heaps. They began in the third Month 7 collection, and completed it in the seventh month, when Hezekiah and 8 the nobles went and examined the stacks, and thanked the EVER-LIVING, and the People of Israel.

Decision as to Distribution of the Tythes.

Hezekiah then enquired of the 9 Priests and Levites about the stacks, when Azarihu the Priest, the Head 10 of the House of Zadok, answered him and said; "From when the Offerings began to come to the House of the EVER-LIVING, we have had enough food and plenty to spare; for the EVER-LIVING has blessed His people, and this great mass remains."

Hezekiah re-organizes the Endowments of the National Church.

Consequently Hezekiah ordered to 11 store it in the chambers of the House of the EVER-LIVING. So they stored it. And brought in the offerings, and 12 tythes, and gifts, honestly, and appointed over them Konenihu, the Levite; and Shimai his brother as his assistant; with Jekhial, and Azarihu, 13 and Asahal, and Jerimoth, and Josabad, and Alial, and Ismakihi, and

Mathath, and Ben-Hihu, officers under the hand of Konehiu, and Shimai his brother, whom Hezekiah the King appointed, and Azeriah, the Governor
 14 of the House of GOD But Koraben-Imnah, the Levite, the Door-keeper on the East, was Superintendent of the Vows made to GOD, to distribute the offerings made to the EVER-LIVING, and the consecrated 15 gifts, with Adan under his hand, and Miniamin, and Jeshua, and Shemihu, Anarihu, and Shekanihu, in the Cities of the Priests, as Trustees to distribute to their associates their 16 shares, whether great or small; along with those on the Genealogical records, from the age of three years and upwards, with all who entered the House of the EVER-LIVING, to serve from day to day in their Services, and Ministrations, in their 17 Courses. With the Genealogized Priests, by their ancestral Houses; and the Levites, from the age of three years and upwards, in their 18 Trusts by their Courses. And for the registration of all infants, wives, and sons, and daughters, belonging to the whole aggregate, for it was entrusted to them as a Sacred 19 duty. And for the Descendants of Aaron in the pasture lands of their Cities, in all, city by city, men were appointed by name to pay to every male; and the salaries to the Priests, and to all the Registered Levites.
 20 Hezekiah did this in all Judea, and acted well, and rightly, and truly before his EVER-LIVING GOD.
 21 For in every work that he began,—in the Services of the House of GOD,—or in the Law,—or in the Ordinances,—he sought his GOD with all his heart, in the work,—and he prospered.

(713 B.C.) Senakerib assails Judea.

32 After these events, and this faithfulness, Senakerib King of Ashur came and advanced against Judea, and encamped against the Fortified Cities, to clutch them for himself.
 2 But when Hezekiah saw how Senakerib advanced, to fight resolutely
 3 against Jerusalem, he consulted with his Nobles and Generals how to obstruct the waters from the springs that were outside the City,—and they 4 helped him. So they collected many people, and turned the springs aside, and the brook that wound through the country, reflecting;—"Why should the King of Ashur come and find plenty of water?" They also strengthened 5 and rebuilt the whole of the wall that had become dilapidated, and heightened the towers, and formed another outer wall, and repaired the fortress of the City of David, and made missiles and plenty of shields.

He also placed Military Officers 6 over the people, and collected them to himself in the Square of the Tower Gate, and spoke to their hearts and said,

"Be bold and courageous! and 7 fear not, nor be depressed at the face of the king of Ashur; or at the face of all the rabble who are with him, for there are more with us, than with him. With him there is an arm of 8 flesh;—with us is our EVER-LIVING GOD to help, and to fight our battles."

And the people were pleased at the speech of Hezekiah, King of Judah.

(710 B.C.) Senakerib sends his General against Jerusalem.

After that Senakerib, the King of 9 Ashur, sent his Minister to Jerusalem, against Hezekiah, King of Judah, and all of Judea who were with him in Jerusalem; but himself with his Commanders was at Lakish, and they said:

Senakerib's Speech.

"Thus asks Senakerib, King of 10 Ashur! Upon what do you rely, that you remain in the Fortress of Jerusalem? Let not Hezekiah se-
 11 duce you, to give you to Death, by Famine and Thirst, by saying, 'Our EVER-LIVING GOD will rescue you from the hands of the King of Ashur!' Is that not Him whose Mounds and 12 Altars Hezekiah has thrown down? and commanded to Judea and Jerusalem, saying, 'You shall worship at a single Altar, and offer incense on it?' Do you not know what I, and my 13 fathers have done to all the Peoples of the Countries? Were the Gods of the Nations of the Countries able to rescue their lands from My Hand? Who among all these Gods of the Nations
 14 whom My Ancestors desolated,—who has been able to rescue them from My Hand? So now, let not Hezekiah 15 deceive you, no, seduce you. Like that,—and do not trust to him!—For none of all the Gods of any Nation or Kingdom has been able to rescue his people from My Hand, or from the hand of My Fathers! So that GOD of yours cannot rescue you from my hand!"

- 16 His Officers declaimed still more against the EVER-LIVING GOD, and against Hezekiah, His servant. He also wrote letters to insult the LIVING GOD of Israel, and said to Him, "You are like the Gods of the Nations of the Countries who could not rescue their Peoples from My Hand! So the GOD of Hezekiah cannot rescue His people from My Hand!" Then they shouted with a loud voice in Judith to the People of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to terrify and dispirit them, so that they might capture the City. They consequently spoke of the GOD of Jerusalem as of the Gods of the Peoples of the earth, made by the hands of men!

- 20 But Hezekiah the King, and Isaiah-ben-Amoz the Preacher, prayed about this, and cried to the Heavens, and the EVER-LIVING sent His Messenger, and destroyed all the soldiers of the Army, with its Commander, and Generals, in the camp of the King of Ashur. So he returned disgraced back to his own country, and went to the House of his God, and the progeny of his own bowels caused him to fall there by the sword.

- 22 Thus the EVER-LIVING saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of Senakerib King of Ashur, and from the hand of all, and turned them back. Consequently many brought gifts to the EVER-LIVING at Jerusalem, with congratulations to Hezekiah, King of Judea, and he was raised in the opinion of all the Nations after that.

Hezekiah is taken Ill.

- 24 At this period Hezekiah was ill nearly to death, but he prayed to the EVER-LIVING, Who answered him, and performed a sign for him. But Hezekiah did not repay to Him in return; for his heart was proud. Therefore anger came upon himself, and Judea, and Jerusalem.

(710 B.C.) Hezekiah's Prosperity.

- 26 Then Hezekiah lowered the pride of his heart, and the People of Jerusalem with him, so that the anger of the EVER-LIVING did not come upon them in the days of Hezekiah. Then Hezekiah became 27 rich and very greatly honoured, so he made himself treasuries for the silver and gold, and precious stones, and for the spices, and the shields, and 28 all his costly furniture, and barns to collect corn, and wine, and oil; and yards for all kinds of cattle; and cattle and flocks for the yards. He 29 also made villages for himself, and acquired sheep and oxen in abundance; for GOD gave him very great Prosperity. It was Hezekiah also 30 who turned the upper waters of the Gihon, and conducted them to a bed on the West of the City of David, for Hezekiah succeeded in all that he did.

But, however, in the affair of the 31 Scientific Inquirers, who were sent to him from Babel, to enquire about the remarkable Event which had happened to the Earth, GOD left him, to test him, and know all his heart.¹

But the rest of the doings of Hezekiah, and his piety, they can be seen written in the Visions of Isaiah-ben-Amoz, the Preacher, in the History of the Kings of Judah and Israel.²

(698 B.C.)

Then Hezekiah slept with his 31 fathers, and they buried him on the top of the Tombs of the Descendants of David, and made a mourning for him. After his death all Judea, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, elected Manasseh, his son King in his stead.

(698 B.C.) Manasseh begins to Reign.

Manasseh was twelve years old at 33 his coronation, and reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem.

¹ NOTE.—Ch. 32, v. 31. This referred to the going back of the Shadow on the Dial, which the Chaldean Astronomers had noted, and enquired after, as the Greek pagan Historians tell us they informed Alexander the Great that it was one of the wonders they had recorded in their Scientific Books. See Professor A. L. Totton's Chronology.—F. F.

² NOTE.—Ch. 32, v. 32. This statement and that in Ch. 16, v. 22, of II. Chronicles, prove, I think, that the Prophet Isaiah was the writer of the Six Historical Books, from Judges to Second Kings inclusive, and accounts for their masterly and philosophic style as compared to those later written records of the family of David, called "The Chronicles."—F. F.

The Idolatry and Wickedness of Manasseh.

2 But he did wrong in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, like the abominable heathen, whom the EVER-LIVING had driven out from before the children of Israel, and went and rebuilt the monu-
3 ments that Hezekiah his father had overturned, and raised altars to Balim, and made Lust-booths,—and bowed to all the Host of the skies,
4 and served them. He also built altars in the House of the LORD, where the EVER-LIVING had said to Jerusalem, HIS NAME should be for ever!
5 Yes! He built altars to all the Host of the skies, in the Second Court of the House of the EVER-LIVING! He, himself, also, passed his children to the fire in the Valley of Ben-hinom! and to clouds, and snakes, and incantations; and practised necromancy with ventriloquists; and did much evil in the sight of the EVER-LIVING,
7 to provoke Him. He also placed an Image of the Imagination which he had formed, in the House of GOD; of which GOD had said to David, and Solomon his son, "In this House, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the Tribes of Israel,
8 to fix My NAME for ever. And I will not again turn the foot of Israel off from the ground that I appointed for their fathers;—if only they will practise all that I directed them, and all My Laws, and Institutions, and Decrees by the hand of Moses."

(577 B.C.)

9 Yet Manasseh seduced Judea, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to practise depravity more than the Heathen whom the EVER-LIVING wasted before the face of the Children of Israel. The EVER-LIVING,
10 however, spoke to Manasseh and to his people, but they would not listen. Consequently the EVER-LIVING brought upon them the Generals of the Army of the Kings of Ashur, who took Manasseh with hooks, and chained him in chains, and transferred him to Babel, when in his distress he appeased the anger of the EVER-LIVING GOD, and humbled himself very greatly before the GOD of his fathers, and prayed to Him, 13 Who pitied, and listened to his supplication, and restored him to Jerusalem, to his Kingship. Then Manasseh acknowledged that the EVER-LIVING was GOD.

Manasseh Repents his Apostasy, and Restores God's Worship.

After that he built an outer wall to the City of David, alongside of the brook Ghihon, and extending to the Fish-gate, and around the hill, and it was very high. He also placed Military Officers in all the Fortified Cities of Judea; and threw out the foreign Gods, and the Image from the House of the EVER-LIVING, and all the altars he had built on the Hill of the LORD'S House, and in Jerusalem, and flung them out of the City. Then he 16 rebuilt the Altar of the EVER-LIVING, and sacrificed upon it Thank-offerings, and confessed, and promised to the EVER-LIVING, to serve the LIVING GOD of Israel. However, the people
17 still sacrificed at the Mounds, but only to the EVER-LIVING GOD.

Summary of his Life.

But the other acts of Manasseh,
18 and his prayer to his GOD, and the speeches of the Seers, who addressed him in the NAME of the LIVING GOD of Israel, can be seen in the Histories of the Kings of Israel, with his 19 prayer, and the pity shown him, with all his sins and wickedness, and the places in which he built mounds, and set up Lust-booths, and Idols before he repented, can be read as recorded in the Books of the Seers.

(641 B.C.)

At last Manasseh slept with his 20 fathers, and they buried him in his own Palace, and Amon his son reigned in his place.

Amon begins to Reign.

Amon was twenty-two years old at 21 his coronation, and reigned two years in Jerusalem, and did evil in the sight
22 of the EVER-LIVING, as Manasseh his father had done; and to all the Idols that his father had made Amon sacrificed and served. And he never 23 repented before the EVER-LIVING, as his father Manasseh repented; but Amon himself offended more.

(639 B.C.) Amon Murdered by his Ministers, who are afterwards Murdered by a Popular Revolution.

24 His Ministers consequently conspired against him, and killed him in 25 his own Palace. But the People of the country assailed all the conspirators against King Amon; then the country people elected Joash his son King in his place.

(641—634 B.C.) Joshiah begins to Reign. His good Life and Conduct.

34 Joshiah was eight years old at his coronation, and reigned thirty-one
2 years in Jerusalem, and did right in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING, and walked in the ways of his Ancestor David, and turned not to the right or 3 the left, but in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet a youth, he began to seek the God of his Ancestor David; and in the twelfth year began to cleanse Judea and Jerusalem from the Mounds and Lust-booths, and
4 Images, and Castings. He had the Altars to the Balim smashed in his own presence; and cut down the Images of the Sun that were elevated over them, and ground to powder the Lusts, and Idols, and Castings, and scattered the dust on the surface of the graves of the sacrificers to them. He also burnt the bones of the Priests on their Altars.—Thus he cleansed Judea and Jerusalem, with the Cities of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphthali; he destroyed
7 them all round, when he broke the Altars, and the Lusts, and Images, and reduced them to powder, and cut down all the Images of the Sun, in the land of Israel. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

(630 B.C.) Joshiah Repairs the Temple.

8 Thus in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had cleansed the country, and the Temple, he ordered Shaphan-ben-Azalihu, and Shamihu, Governor of the City, and Joakh-ben-Joakhaz, the Recorder, to repair the 9 Temple of the EVER-LIVING. So they went to Hilkihu, the High Priest, and delivered the money to repair the House of God, which the Levites who guarded the Threshold had collected from the hands of Manasseh and Ephraim, and from all the Remnant of Israel, and from all Judea, and Benjamin, and which they had brought to Jerusalem, and he paid it 10 into the hands of the Superintendents who did the work at the House of the EVER-LIVING, and they paid it to the workmen who worked in the LORD'S House to mend and repair the Temple. They also paid it to the carpenters 11 and masons, and bought stone from the cutters, and timber for girders, and rafters, for the houses that the Kings of Judah had destroyed. And 12 the men did their work faithfully, and the Directors over them were, Jakhath, and Abdiu;—Levites from the Beni Merari; and Zekariah, and Meshulam, from the Beni Kahth; to Superintend, and Levites who all understood carpentry work. They 13 superintended the labourers, and directed all the work done, in one sort or the other. But the accountants, and architects, and valuers were from the Levites.

(624 B.C.) The Autograph Copy of the Law engraved by Moses on Tablets, discovered.

Once when they were drawing
14 money from the Treasury of the House of the EVER-LIVING, Hilkihu the Priest found the Book of the EVER-LIVING'S Laws, in the handwriting of Moses.¹

So Hilkihu the Priest spoke to 15 Shaphan the Secretary and said: "I have found the Book of the Law in the House of the EVER-LIVING"; and Hilkihu handed the Book to

16 Shaphan. Thus Shaphan took the Book to the King, and reported to the King saying:—

"All that you committed to the hands of your servants has been done. For they have removed the money found in the House of the EVER-LIVING, and given it to the custody of the Superintendents, and to the hands of those working in the business." Shaphan the Secretary further informed the King saying, "Hilkihu the Priest has given me a Book." Then Shaphan read from it to the King. But when the King heard the words of the Law, he tore his robes.—

20 Then the King commanded Hilkihu, and Akikam - ben - Shaphan, and Abdon-ben-Mikah, and Shaphan the Secretary, and Asiah, the King's servant, to: "Go and enquire of the EVER-LIVING, about me, and about the remnant in Israel, and in Judea, regarding the Book that has been found. For a great anger of the LORD may be poured on us, because our ancestors have not regarded the Commands of the EVER-LIVING, to practise all that is written in this Book."

Huldah's Reply.

22 So Hilkihu and the King's Messengers went to Huldah the Preacheress, the wife of Shalum-ben-Thokahth-ben-Khasrah, Keeper of the Wardrobe, who resided in Jerusalem, in the Seminary, and asked her about it; when she replied to them:—

"Thus says the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel! 'Say to the man who sent you to me,—thus says the EVER-LIVING, I will bring evil on this place, and on its inhabitants.—The whole of the curses written in the Book that you read before the King of Judah; because you forsook Me, and burnt incense to Seducing Gods, by which they provoked Me in every act of their hand. Therefore I will pour My indignation on this place, and it will not be extinguished! But to the King of Judah who sent you to enquire of the EVER-LIVING,—Say thus to him: ' Thus says the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel about the things you have heard.

27 "'Because your heart is impressionable, and you were humble before GOD, when you heard His words against this place, and against its inhabitants, and humbled yourself before Me, and tore your robes, and wept before Me, I also have listened, says the EVER-LIVING. Therefore I will gather you to your fathers, and you shall be added to your Tomb in peace, and your eyes shall not see all the misery that I will bring on this place, and on its inhabitants!'" So they related this Message to the King.

The King Assembles the Parliament on the Matter.

The King consequently sent and collected all the Magistracy of Judea to Jerusalem, when the King ascended to the House of the EVER-LIVING, and all the Parliament of Judea with him, and the People of Jerusalem, with the Priests and Levites, and all the Public, from the greatest to the least, and read in their hearing all the contents of the Book of Laws which had been found in the LORD'S House. After that the King stood up on his platform, and made an Agreement before the EVER-LIVING to walk after the Lord, and to keep His Commands, and Evidences, and Institutions with all his heart, and all his mind, and to practise the realities of the Covenant written in that Book. He then stationed all who were present in Jerusalem, and in Benjamin; and they with the inhabitants of Jerusalem made the same Promise to GOD, the GOD of their fathers. So Josiah expelled all the abominations from the whole country that belonged to the Children of Israel, and compelled all resident in Israel to serve, Yes, to serve the EVER-LIVING GOD.—They did not turn from the following the LIVING GOD of their fathers all his days.

(623 B.C.) King Josiah makes a Passover.

Josiah afterwards made a Passover to the EVER-LIVING in Jerusalem, and slew the Passover on the fourteenth day of the First month, when he appointed the Priests to their duties, and exhorted them to the services of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and commanded the Levites, to instruct all Israel about their duties to the LORD; and, "To take the Holy

Ark to the apartment that Solomon, the son of David, King of Israel had built. "Let it no more be borne on your shoulders.—Serve your EVER-LIVING GOD now, with the People of 4 Israel; and arrange yourselves by your Ancestral Houses, according to your Divisions, as recorded by David King of Israel, and by the records of 5 his son Solomon, and attend to your duty by sections of Ancestral Houses, with your brothers, the sons of the People, and the Divisions of the Ancestral Houses of the Levites. So 6 kill the Passover, and consecrate yourselves, and unite with your brothers to practise the Command of the EVER-LIVING, sent by the Hand of Moses."

Joshiah gives a free Passover.

7 Joshiah then gave to the Children of his People lambs from the sheep, and young goats, for the Passover, to all present, to the number of thirty thousand, and three thousand oxen. These were the private property of the King.

The Gifts of his Ministers.

8 And his Ministers gave of free will to the People, the Priests, and the Levites,—Hilkihu, and Zekarihu, and Jehkial, the Leaders of the House of GOD, they gave to the Priests for their Passover two thousand and six hundred (lambs), and three hundred 9 oxen. Koneuihu and Shimihu, and Nathanael, his brother, and Khashabihu, and Javal, and Jozabad, nobles of the Levites, gave to the Levites for their Passover, five thousand (lambs), and five hundred oxen. 10 Thus the Service was prepared, and the Priests appointed, and the Levites in their Divisions, according to the order of the King. And they killed the Passover. Then the Priests sprinkled from their hands, and the Levites 11 stripped, and removed the Burnt-offering that had to be presented by the Sections of Ancestral Houses of the Children of the People, and approached the EVER-LIVING, as prescribed in the Book of Moses. 12 And the same with the oxen. They then roasted the Passover with fire, as Decreed, and boiled the Consecrations in boilers and cauldrons, and pans, and distributed to all the Chil- 13 dren of the People; and afterwards prepared for themselves, and for the Priests, because the Priests, the Descendants of Aaron, were offering Burnt-offerings from the Dawn until night. So the Levites prepared for themselves, and for the Descendants of Aaron.

The Choir Restored.

The Singers, also, the Descendants 15 of Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun, the Royal Seer, and the Door-Keepers from Gate to Gate, who could not themselves go away from their duty, like their brothers,—the Levites prepared for them. They also prepared 16 for all the Services of the EVER-LIVING on that day, in making the Passover, and offering the Burnt-offerings, upon the Altar of the LORD, as King Josiah commanded.

Thus the Children of Israel who 17 were present at that time made the Passover, and the Feast of Unfermented Bread for seven days. No 18 Passover like this was made in Israel from the days of Samuel the Preacher, by all the Kings of Israel. They did not make a Passover such as Josiah made, with the Priests and Levites, and all Judah and Israel present, with the inhabitants of Jerusalem.— Josiah made this Passover in the 19 eighteenth year of his reign.

(610 B.C.) Pharaoh Neko Invades Judæa.

After all this when Josiah had 20 repaired the Temple, Neko, King of the Mitzeraim came up to attack Karkemish on the Frath,¹ but Josiah went out to oppose him. When he 21 sent Messengers to ask, "What is there between you and I, King of Judah?—I have not prepared to-day against you, but against the House I am at war with, and GOD commanded me to make haste.—Restrain yourself from opposing GOD Who is with me, and He will not destroy you."

Josiah, however, would not turn 22 from opposing him, but determined to fight, and would not listen to the statements of Neko from the mouth of the EVER-LIVING, but went to battle with him on the plain of Megiddo, where the Archers shot 23 King Josiah. So the King said to his servants, "Take me to the rear;

¹ Euphrates.

- 24 —for I am badly wounded!" His servants consequently took him to the rear from amongst the chariots, and placed him on another chariot he had, and they carried him to Jerusalem, where he died, and was buried in the Tombs of his fathers. But all Judea and Jerusalem mourned over
- 25 Josiah. Jeremiah also lamented over Josiah, and all the Men and Women Singers speak in their Laments of Josiah to this day, and they are remembered in Israel, and can be seen written in the Elegies.
- 26 For the rest of the events of Josiah, and his piety in accordance to the Written Laws of the EVER-
- 27 LIVING, and his Speeches, the first and the last, are recorded in the Records of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

(610 B.C.) The People Elect as King Jhoahaz.

- 30 Then the People of the country took Jhoahaz - ben - Josiah, and crowned him in his father's stead, at Jerusalem. Jhoahaz was twenty-three years of age at his coronation, and reigned three months in Jerusalem, for the King of the Mitzeraim expelled him from Jerusalem, and fined the country a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of Gold. The King of the Mitzeraim also made Aliakam King over Judea and Jerusalem, and changed his name to Jhoiakim. Then Neko took Jhoahaz his brother and sent him to the Mitzeraim.

(610 B.C.) Jhoiakim dethroned by Nebukadnezzar.

- 5 Jhoiakim was twenty-five years old at his coronation, and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem, but did evil in the
- 6 eyes of the EVER-LIVING GOD, and Nebukadnezzar, King of Babel advanced against him, and bound him in chains, and carried him to Babel.
- 7 The rest of the doings of Jhoiakim, and the depravities he committed, and were habitual with him, are written in the Records of the Kings of Israel
- 8 and Judah. But Jhoiakim, his son reigned after.

(607 B.C.) The Vicerealty of Jhoiakim under Nebukadnezzar.

- 9 Jhoiakim was eighteen years old at his coronation, and reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem, and did wrong in the sight of the EVER-LIVING; But, at the turn of the year King Nebukadnezzar sent and had him brought to Babel, with the precious vessels of the House of the LORD, and made Zekeriah his brother King over Judea and Jerusalem.

(599 B.C.) Zekeriah's Vicerealty under Babylon.

Zekeriah was twenty-one years of age at his coronation, and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. But he did wrong in the eyes of the EVER-LIVING GOD. He did not submit and repent at the words of Jeremiah, the Preacher, from the mouth of the EVER-LIVING; and also he revolted from Nebukadnezzar to whom he had sworn obedience by GOD, and stiffened his neck, and encouraged his heart, against turning to the EVER-LIVING GOD of Israel. All the Nobles, also, the Priests and the People, heaped crime upon crime, with all the depravities of the Heathen, and defiled the House of the LORD, which had been Consecrated in Jerusalem. Although the EVER-LIVING GOD of their fathers sent to them, by the hand of His Messengers, diligently sending, because He was grieved for His People, and for their sons. But they jeered at the Messengers of GOD and despised His Messages, and were disgusted at His Preachers, until the indignation of the LORD arose against His People without remedy, and he brought up against them the King of the Kasdim, who slaughtered their choice young men in the Consecrated House, and had no pity over boy or girl, old man, or grey-haired — He gave all to his power!

(588 B.C.)

And all the vessels of the House of GOD, great or small, and the Treasures of the House of the EVER-LIVING, and the Treasures of the King, and his Nobles, he carried the whole to Babel. Then he burnt the House of GOD, and threw down the walls of Jerusalem, and burnt all the Palaces with fire, and destroyed all their costly furniture, and transported to Babel the remnants from the sword, and they became slaves to him, and his children, until the Empire of the King of Persia, and accomplished the Message from the EVER-LIVING by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had enjoyed its Sabbaths, for all the time it was waste, it rested, for a complete seventy years.

(536 B.C.) Cyrus Proclaims Freedom to the Jewish Captives of Babylon.

22 But in the first year of Kuresh, King of Persia, was completed the promise of the EVER-LIVING by the mouth of Jeremiah, and the EVER-LIVING aroused the spirit of Kuresh, King of Persia, and he passed a proclamation to all his Empire, and also recorded it in writing, to command;—

"Thus says Kuresh King of Persia ²³ to all the Kingdoms of the earth; the EVER-LIVING GOD of the Heavens gave to me the whole Empire of the earth. He has also appointed me to build Him a Temple in Jerusalem, which is in Judea. Whoever of His People is with you,—the LORD GOD is with him, let him go on."

PREFACE TO THE NEW TESTAMENT.

THE Translator believes he can claim for his Version of the Scriptures both of the Old and New Testaments, that it is the only one ever made into our language absolutely direct from the original Hebrew and Greek of the sacred writers without any intermediate translation, whether ancient or modern, intervening between the English and the original languages used by the Biblical writers. To attain this end, for nearly forty years he never read the New Testament except in the Greek, and for several years the Old in the Hebrew and Chaldee, so as to arrive at their meaning from the ancient writers themselves alone. He also has had before him no theological or historic theories to assail or support; his one aim having been to show the import of the Scriptures, for the following reasons:—

In early manhood, about 1852, he became convinced, after a study of the then called German School of Biblical Criticism, but now the Higher Critics, that unless the Sacred Scriptures were translated afresh into current spoken English, a belief in the Christian Religion as a Faith would perish, for that by the unavoidable ignorance of the Old Translators, and the obsolete dialect of the A. V. and subsequently the Revised Version, its documentary basis had become unintelligible to us.

In 1883 the Pauline Epistles were issued, and met with the direct approval of the late Professor BLACKIE, of Edinburgh, and the heartiest appreciation of the general public, Christian, literary and illiterate, British and foreign, alike.

This portion of the work, however, together with the other books comprised in the New Testament, has been translated afresh from the excellent Greek Text of Drs. WESTCOTT and HORT. To these eminent scholars the Translator desires to express his indebtedness; as also to the late Bishops WORDSWORTH and BLOOMFIELD, Professor ALFORD, and others. And for invaluable assistance received from many friends—both clerical and lay—in the revision of the work, the heartiest thanks are hereby tendered. Special mention must be made of the critical examination made by an accomplished Finnish gentleman, who has compared the whole with the Original Texts of Professor TISCHENDORF and others, besides personally assisting in the English composition.

The present issue thus constitutes a fresh translation entirely founded upon Drs. Westcott and Hort's critically accurate Greek Text, and with all weak or faulty renderings corrected. To it the Translator has added critical notes, to passages seeming to require them, and he hopes they may be of use to his readers.

During its progress this work has been approved by Dr. TAIT, Archbishop of Canterbury; Dr. BENSON, Archbishop of Canterbury; Prof. J. S. BLACKIE, of Edinburgh University; Prof. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, of Boston, U.S.A.; Prof. C. A. L. TOTTEN, of Yale University, U.S.A.; the Very Rev. E. PLUMPTRE, D.D., Dean of Wells; The Rev. H. S. CHAMPNEYS, Rector of Epperstone; The Rev. J. BOWEN, B.D., Rector of St. Lawrence, Pembroke; KESHUB CHUNDR SEN, Calcutta, India; The Rev. H. STRETTON, Vicar of Eastville, Lincs; The Rev. CHARLES GARRETT, Ex-President of the Wesleyan Conference; The Rev. J. DAVIS, D.D., Ontario, Canada; and numerous others, who urged the Translator to complete his work by a version of the whole Bible on the same plan, which he has now accomplished, by the help of God.

THE GOSPEL AS RECORDED BY ST. JOHN.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.—The Gospel of John is here placed first in order for the following reasons:—

- (1) This Gospel is specially the Doctrinal Record of our Lord's life. The Great Teacher has here elaborated the thought and purpose of God concerning His plan of salvation by a Gift; and upon this basis have been formulated and propagated the doctrines of the Christian faith. This record should therefore precede the Historical Narratives. All those passages which I put between brackets [—] are comments of the Evangelist upon his narrative, made in his old age, when he translated it into Greek from his original Hebrew for the Greek Churches.
- (2) There is ample reason for believing that the Gospel of John was written at an earlier date than those of the other three Evangelists. For a discussion on this subject the reader is referred to "WHAT THINK YE OF THE GOSPELS?" by the Rev. J. J. Halcombe (Edinburgh; T. & T. Clark), and Bishop Westcott's "ST. JOHN'S GOSPEL."

"The Word" and Creation.

- 1 The WORD existed in the beginning, and the WORD was with God,
- 2 and the WORD was God. He was present with God at the beginning.
- 3 All came into existence by means of Him; and nothing came into existence
- 4 apart from Him; What originated in Him was Life; and the Life was
- 5 the Light of Mankind. That Light shines in the darkness; but the darkness did not absorb it.

"The Word" and the Light.

- 6 A man came, sent from God; his
- 7 name was John. He came for witness, in order that he might give evidence concerning that Light, so that all might believe through him.
- 8 He was not himself the Light; his mission was to give evidence concerning that Light. The real Light was
- 9 that which enlightens every man coming into the world. He was in
- 10 the world, and the world was created by means of Him; yet the world did not recognise Him.
- 11 He came to His own home; but His own family did not welcome
- 12 Him. But whosoever welcomed Him, believing in His power, He bestowed upon them the right to become children
- 13 of God. They were not begotten from blood, nor from natural desire, nor yet from the design of man; but from God Himself.

"The Word" and Mankind.

- 14 And the WORD became incarnate, and encamped among us—and we gazed upon His majesty, such majesty as that of a Father's only Son—full of beneficence and truth.

[John gave evidence concerning 15 Him, proclaiming:

"This was the One concerning Whom I said, 'He Who follows me takes rank above me; because He existed before me.'"]

So out of His fulness we were all 16 supplied, with gift heaped upon gift. Although the Law was given through 17 Moses; the true gift came through Jesus Christ. No one has ever yet 18 seen God; He has been made known by the only Son,¹ Who exists in union with the Father.

The Deputation from Jerusalem.

Now, this is the evidence given by 19 John, when the Judeans of Jerusalem sent priests and Levites in order that they might ask him,

"Who are you?" Without attempt- 20 ing to deny it, he frankly stated, "I am not the Messiah." "What then?" 21 asked they. "Are you Elijah?"² He replied, "I am not." "Then are you the Prophet?"³ "No," he replied. 22 They therefore asked him, "What are you? Tell us, in order that we may give an answer to those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?"

He replied: "I am but a voice pro- 23 claiming in the desert, 'Make ready the highway for the Lord,' as was foretold by the prophet Isaiah."⁴

¹ Some of the oldest authorities read THE ONLY God.

² Mal. iv. 5. ³ Deut. xviii 15. ⁴ Isa. xl. 3.

24 Now the deputation had been sent 25 by the Pharisees. They therefore asked him:

"Why do you then baptize, if you are not the Messiah, nor Elijah, nor yet the Prophet?"

26 In reply, John said to them:

"I baptize in water; but among you is standing One Whom you know not—He Who follows me. His shoes
I am not even worthy to unfasten."

28 This interview took place in Bethany on the other side of the Jordan,
where John was then baptizing.

John's Testimony to the People.

29 On the following day he saw Jesus coming towards him, and exclaimed:

"See the Lamb of God, Who takes 30 away the sin of the world! This was the One about Whom I said, 'There follows me a Man Who takes rank above me, since He was in existence
31 before me.' I did not myself know Him; but I came baptizing in water, in order that He might be manifested
to Israel."

32 John also gave further evidence, saying:

"I saw the Spirit descending from heaven in the likeness of a dove, and alighting upon Him. Yet I should 33 not myself have known Him; but He
Who sent me to baptize in water,
He said to me, 'Upon Whomsoever you see the Spirit descending and alighting, He is the Baptizer in Holy 34 Spirit.' And I have myself seen, and have given my evidence that this is the Son of God."

The Testimony of Disciples.

35 Again, on the day after that, John was standing along with two of his 36 disciples; and watching Jesus walking, he exclaimed:

"See! there is the Lamb of God!"

37 The two disciples, hearing him speak in this way, followed Jesus.
38 Jesus, turning round, and observing them following, asked them:

"What do you seek?"

In reply, they asked: "Rabbi [which, when translated, means Teacher], where are you staying?"

39 "Come, and you shall see," He said. They accordingly went and saw where He was staying, and remained with Him for the rest of that day; it was then about four o'clock in the afternoon.

Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, 40 was one of the two who heard the remark of John, and followed Him.
He first of all sought out his own 41
brother Simon, and told him:

"We have found the Messiah," [which, when translated, means, in Greek, the Christ]. Andrew then took 42 Simon to Jesus. Jesus, looking at him, said: "You are Simon, the son of John; you shall be called Kephias"
[which, when translated, means a Stone, or Peter].

Philip and Nathanael.

At a subsequent time Jesus desired 4:
to return to Galilee; and, meeting
Philip on the way, He said to him:

"Follow Me."

Now Philip belonged to Bethsaida, 4:
the native town of Andrew and Peter.
Philip sought out Nathanael, and said 4:
to him:

"The One to Whom Moses referred in the law, and of Whom the Prophets also wrote, we have found in Jesus, the son of Joseph, Who came from Nazareth."

Nathanael, however, asked:

"Is it possible that anything good 4:
can come out of Nazareth?"

"Come and see," replied Philip.

Jesus, seeing Nathanael coming to- 4:
wards Him, remarked about him:
"Here is an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no duplicity."

"What do You know concerning 4:
me?" asked Nathanael.

"Before ever Philip called you," replied Jesus, "while you were under the fig-tree, I saw you."

"Teacher!" Nathanael answered 4: Him, "You are the Son of God; You are King of Israel."

"Do you really believe," asked 5:
Jesus, "because I said I had seen you beneath the fig-tree? You will see far more than that. Most assuredly 5
I tell you," He added, "you shall see the heaven open, and the messengers of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."¹

The Marriage at Cana.

Three days later there was a mar- 2
riage at Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was present; and 2
Jesus was invited to the marriage, with His disciples. And when the 3 wine ran short, Jesus was spoken to by His mother, who said to Him :

" They have no more wine."

4 Jesus, in reply to her, said :

" What is that to you and Me, mother ? My time has not yet come."

5 His mother then said to the attendants :

" Whatever He bids you, let it be done."

6 Now there were standing there, for the Jewish purifications, six stone water-jars, holding from two to three firkins.

7 Jesus said to them :

" Fill the jars with water."

They accordingly filled them to the brim. He then said to them :

" Now pour out, and take it to the master of the festival." They accordingly did so.

9 And when the master of the festival had tasted the water, which had become wine (not knowing where it came from, although the servants who had drawn the water knew), he called the bridegroom, and said to him :

10 " A man usually serves out the best wine at the beginning, reserving the inferior until the guests have tasted ; but you have kept the best wine until now."

11 This, as a beginning of His evidences, Jesus performed in Cana of Galilee, and displayed His majesty ; and His disciples believed in Him.

12 After that, He went down to Capernaum, Himself, His mother, His brothers, and His disciples ; and stayed there not many days.

First Visit to Jerusalem.

13 Now when the Jewish Passover was near, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 14 And entering the temple, He found dealers in oxen, and sheep, and pigeons, as well as money-brokers transacting their business. Then, 15 having made a whip of cords, He drove all out of the temple, including the sheep and oxen ; and He scattered the money of the brokers, 16 overturning their stands ; and said to the pigeon-dealers :

" Take these outside ; do not turn My Father's house into a market."

17 His disciples were then reminded that it was written :

ZEAL FOR YOUR HOUSE WILL CONSUME ME.¹

The Jews then addressed Him, asking :

" What proof do You show us for doing this ?"

19 " Demolish this temple," Jesus answered, " and in three days I will rear it."

" This temple has been building for 20 forty-six years," replied the Jews ; " and will You rear it in three days ?"

21 He, however, spoke about the temple of His body. Afterwards, 22 when He was raised from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this ; and they believed the Scriptures, as well as the statement of Jesus.

Jesus and the People.

Now while He was among those of 23 Jerusalem, at the feast of the Passover, many believed on His Name, seeing the proofs which He gave. Jesus, on His part, however, did not 24 trust Himself to them ; because He knew all ; and because He had no 25 need that any one should give Him evidence about man ; for He Himself knew what was in man.

Jesus and Nicodemus.

There was, however, among the 3 Pharisees, a man named Nicodemus, one of the Judean princes. He came to 2 Him during the night, and said to Him :

" Rabbi, we know that You are a Teacher come from God ; because no one could produce the proofs which You do unless God were with him."

3 " Most assuredly I tell you," replied Jesus, " that unless any one is born from above, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

Nicodemus therefore asked :

4 " How can a man be born when he is old ? Can he be conceived of his mother a second time, and be born ?"

5 " Most assuredly I tell you," replied Jesus, " that if a man is not born from water and Spirit, he is unable to enter into the Kingdom of God. That which 6 is born from the flesh is flesh ; and that which is born from the Spirit is spirit. Do not be surprised that I told 7 you, ' You must be born from above.' The wind indeed, blows where it 8 pleases, and you hear its sound ; but yet you neither see whence it comes from, nor where it goes ; so it is with all born of the Spirit."

Nicodemus, answering Him, asked : 9 " How can this be ?"

- 10 "Are you the teacher of Israel," remarked Jesus, in response to him, 11 "and yet unable to discern this? I tell you most certainly, that what we know, that we declare, and we witness to what we have seen; but you do not 12 accept our evidence. If you do not believe when I tell you about earthly matters, how can you credit what I tell you relating to the heavenly? No one has ascended to the heaven, except the One Who descended from heaven—the Son of Man.¹ And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, so it is necessary for the Son of Man to be lifted up; so that all believing in Him may have eternal life."

A Comment by the Evangelist.

 17 God did not send His Son to the world that He might condemn the world; but that He might save the world through Him. The believer in Him will not be condemned; whoever does not trust, however, is already convicted, because he has not confided on the only-begotten Son of 21 may not be detected. But he who does right comes to the light, so that his actions may be displayed; because the origin of his conduct is in God.]

Jesus in Judea.

- 22 After this, Jesus and His disciples proceeded to the district of Judea, where He resided with them, and 23 baptized. And John was also baptizing in Ænon, near Salim, because there was plenty of water there; and they came and were baptized: for John had not as yet been imprisoned.
 25 A discussion accordingly took place between some of the disciples of John and a Judean concerning purification.
 26 So they came to John, and said to him:

"Teacher, the Man Who was with

Visit to Samaria.

Then when the Lord learned that the Pharisees had heard told, "Jesus is securing and baptizing more disciples than John"—although Jesus Himself did not baptize, but only His disciples—He left Judea and returned to Galilee. It was necessary for Him, however, to pass through Samaria. He accordingly approached a town of Samaria, named Sychar, near the estate which Jacob gave to his son Joseph; and Jacob's well was there. Now Jesus, being wearied by the journey, seated Himself just as He was beside the well. It was then about noon.

The Samaritan Woman.

A woman from Samaria then coming along to draw water, Jesus said to her, "Give Me a drink"; for His disciples had gone to the town to buy 9 food. The Samaritan woman, however, replied to Him :

"How can You, being a Judean, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?" [for Judeans do not associate with the Samaritans.]

10 "If you had recognised the gift of God," Jesus answered her, "and Who He is Who is saying to you, 'Give Me a drink,' you would have asked from Him, and He would have given you Living Water."

11 "Sir," the woman replied, "You have no draw-bucket, and the well is deep; where then have You the
12 Water of Life? Surely You cannot be greater than our forefather Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank from it himself, as well as his sons and his cattle?"

13 "All who drink of this water," Jesus said to her, "will thirst again; but whoever may drink of the water which I will give him will never more be thirsty; but the water that I will give to him will become in him a spring of water flowing into life eternal."

15 "Sir," said the woman, "give me that water; so that I may not get thirsty, nor have to come all the way here to draw."

16 "Go," said Jesus to her, "call your husband, and return here."

17 "I have not a husband," replied the woman.

"You answer well, 'I have not a husband,'" Jesus said to her; "for you have had five husbands; and the one you have at present is not your husband: there you spoke truly."

Spiritual Worship.

19 "I perceive, Sir," said the woman, "that You are a prophet. Our forefathers worshipped in this very mountain; but you say that in Jerusalem is the spot where one ought to worship."

21 "Woman, believe Me," Jesus answered her, "the time is coming, when neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem, will you pay homage to the Father. You pay homage without knowledge; we pay homage with knowledge: because the salvation comes from among the Judeans. The time will come, however, and is even now here, when the real worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth; because, indeed, the Father desires such to be His worshippers. God is Spirit; and those worshipping Him must worship in spirit and truth."

The woman said to Him: "I know 25 that Messiah, the One Who is called Consecrated, is coming; when He Himself arrives, He will tell us all."

Jesus said to her, "I AM; He Who 26 speaks to you."

At this point, His disciples returned; 27 and they were much surprised to find Him talking with a woman. Yet none asked, "What are You discussing?" or, "What do You talk to her about?"

The woman leaving her draw-28 bucket, thereupon went off to the town, and said to the men:

"Come here! see a Man Who has 29 told all I have ever done! Must not this be the Messiah?"

So they left the town, and were 30 coming towards Him. In the mean-31 time His disciples pressed Him, saying,

"Master, take something to eat."

But He answered them, "I have 32 food to eat, of which you know nothing."

The disciples then began asking 33 each other,

"Has any one brought Him food?"

"My food," Jesus said to them, "is 34 to do the will of My Sender, and to accomplish His work. Do you not say, 'The harvest comes with the fourth month'? See! Look up, I tell you, and survey the fields; for they are already white for harvesting. Now the reaper receives wages, and 36 gathers fruit for eternal life; so that both the sower and the reaper may rejoice together. For in this thought 37 is truth: 'THE SOWER IS ONE, AND THE REAPER ANOTHER.'¹ I have sent 38 you to reap that which you have not cultivated; others have cultivated, and you enter into their cultivation."

The Work in Sychar.

Many of the Samaritans of that 39 town believed in Him on account of the statement of the woman, asserting, "He told me all that I had ever done."

When, therefore, the Samaritans 40 came, they invited Him to remain with them; and He stayed there two days. Many more then believed be-41 cause of His own discourse; and they 42 said to the woman:

- 10 "If you had recognised the gift of God," Jesus answered her, "and Who He is Who is saying to you, 'Give Me a drink,' you would have asked from Him, and He would have given you Living Water."
- 11 "Sir," the woman replied, "You have no draw-bucket, and the well is deep; where then have You the
- 12 Water of Life? Surely You cannot be greater than our forefather Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank from it himself, as well as his sons and his cattle?"
- 13 "All who drink of this water," Jesus said to her, "will thirst again;
- 14 but whoever may drink of the water which I will give him will never more be thirsty; but the water that I will give to him will become in him a spring of water flowing into life eternal."
- 15 "Sir," said the woman, "give me that water; so that I may not get thirsty, nor have to come all the way here to draw."
- 16 "Go," said Jesus to her, "call your husband, and return here."
- 17 "I have not a husband," replied the woman.
- "You answer well, 'I have not a
- 18 husband,'" Jesus said to her; "for you have had five husbands; and the one you have at present is not your husband: there you spoke truly."
- Spiritual Worship.
- 19 "I perceive, Sir," said the woman,
- 20 "that You are a prophet. Our forefathers worshipped in this very mountain; but you say that in Jerusalem is the spot where one ought to worship."
- 21 "Woman, believe Me," Jesus answered her, "the time is coming, when neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem, will you pay homage to the
- 22 Father. You pay homage without knowledge; we pay homage with knowledge: because the salvation
- 23 comes from among the Judeans. The time will come, however, and is even now here, when the real worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth; because, indeed, the Father
- 24 desires such to be His worshippers. God is Spirit; and those worshipping Him must worship in spirit and truth."

The woman said to Him: "I know 25 that Messiah, the One Who is called Consecrated, is coming; when He Himself arrives, He will tell us all."

Jesus said to her, "I AM; He Who 26 speaks to you."

At this point, His disciples returned; 27 and they were much surprised to find Him talking with a woman. Yet none asked, "What are You discussing?" or, "What do You talk to her about?"

The woman leaving her draw- 28 bucket, thereupon went off to the town, and said to the men:

"Come here! see a Man Who has 29 told all I have ever done! Must not this be the Messiah?"

So they left the town, and were 30 coming towards Him. In the meantime His disciples pressed Him, saying,

"Master, take something to eat."

But He answered them, "I have 32 food to eat, of which you know nothing."

The disciples then began asking 33 each other,

"Has any one brought Him food?"

"My food," Jesus said to them, "is 34 to do the will of My Sender, and to accomplish His work. Do you not 35 say, 'The harvest comes with the fourth month'? See! Look up, I tell you, and survey the fields; for they are already white for harvesting. Now the reaper receives wages, and 36 gathers fruit for eternal life; so that both the sower and the reaper may rejoice together. For in this thought 37 is truth: 'THE SOWER IS ONE, AND THE REAPER ANOTHER.'¹ I have sent 38 you to reap that which you have not cultivated; others have cultivated, and you enter into their cultivation."

The Work in Sychar.

Many of the Samaritans of that 39 town believed in Him on account of the statement of the woman, asserting, "He told me all that I had ever done."

When, therefore, the Samaritans 40 came, they invited Him to remain with them; and He stayed there two days. Many more then believed be- 41 cause of His own discourse; and they 42 said to the woman:

"We no more believe through your assertion, for we have heard Him ourselves; and we see that He is truly the Saviour of the world."

Second Visit to Galilee.

- 43 Now after these two days He took His departure from there for Galilee; 44 although Jesus had Himself declared that a prophet has no honour in 45 his own country. Then when He arrived in Galilee, the Galileans welcomed Him, having seen all that He had done at Jerusalem during the festival; for they also went to the festival.

The Nobleman's Son Cured.

- 46 He returned then to Cana of Galilee, where He had made the water wine. Now there was a nobleman, whose son was ill at Capernaum. This man having learned that Jesus had arrived in Galilee from Judea, went to Him, begging that He would go down and cure his son; for he was at the point 48 of death. Jesus therefore said to him, "Unless you see signs and wonders, you will not believe." 49 "Come down, Sir," said the nobleman, "before my boy dies." 50 "Go away," Jesus answered him; "your son lives." The man accordingly believed what Jesus had told him, and went away. 51 As he was returning home, however, his servant met him, saying, "Your boy is alive." 52 He therefore asked them the hour at which he began to recover. They replied: "Yesterday, at one o'clock the fever left him." 53 The father then recognised that that was the very time at which Jesus said to him, "Your son lives." And he himself believed, as well as his whole 54 family. This again, as a second sign, was effected by Jesus while passing from Judea into Galilee.

Second Visit to Jerusalem.

- ### The Cure at the Pool of Bethesda.
- 5 After this there was a Judean festival; and Jesus went up to 2 Jerusalem. Now there is in Jerusalem, near the sheep-market, a public bath, called in Hebrew, Bethesda, having 3 five covered walks, in which lay a great number of sick people, blind, lame, paralyzed.¹

And there was a man there who had 5 been detained by his sickness for thirty-eight years. Jesus, noticing 6 him prostrate, and knowing that he had been ill for a long time, asked him:

"Do you desire to become well?"

"Sir," replied the sick man to Him, 7

"I have no one to throw me into the bath when the water is agitated; but while I am coming, some one else goes down before me."

Jesus said to him, "Rise up, take 8 up your rug, and walk."

And the man was at once restored; 9 and, taking up his rug, he began to walk.

Sabbatarianism.

That day, however, happened to be the Sabbath. The Judeans therefore 10 said to the restored man:

"This is the Sabbath; it is not allowable for you to carry your rug about."

But he answered them:

"The Man Who made me well, told me Himself to take up my rug, and walk."

They then asked:

"Who is the fellow that said to you, 'Take it up and walk?'"

The restored man, however, did not 11 know who He was; for a crowd being on the spot, Jesus had withdrawn Himself. Jesus afterwards met him 12 in the temple, and said to him:

"Reflect! you have been made well; sin no more, so that nothing worse may come to you."

The man then went away, and re- 13 ported to the Judeans that it was Jesus Who had made him well. The 14 Judeans for this reason began to persecute Jesus, because He had done it upon the Sabbath. Jesus, however, 15 said to them:

"My Father is working until now; and I will work."

For this reason the Judeans sought 16 to murder Him; because He was not only breaking the Sabbath, but also called God His own Father, thus making Himself equal to God.

somewhat to the following effect:—"Expecting the agitation of the water; (4) for an angel of the Lord at stated times descended to the bath, and agitated the water. Then whoever first went down, after the disturbance of the water, was relieved of whatever disease he happened to be afflicted with."—See Westcott and Hort's Greek Testament and Appendix.

The Prerogatives of the Son.

19 Jesus, therefore, addressed them, saying:
 "I tell you very truly, the Son is able to do nothing from Himself, unless He sees the Father doing it; for whatever He may do, the Son also does the same. For the Father regards His Son, and shows Him all that He Himself is doing; and, indeed, He will show Him greater works than these, so that you will wonder. For, as the Father raises the dead, and restores to life; thus also the Son restores to life whoever He pleases. For the Father decides nothing; but has deputed every decision to the Son; in order that all may honour the Son, as they honour the Father. Those who do not honour the Son, cannot honour the Father Who sent Him. I tell you truly, that whoever listens to My teaching, and trusts in My Sender, possesses eternal life, and will not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life. I tell you most assuredly, that the time will come, and has even now come, when the dead shall listen to the voice of the Son of God; and the hearers will live. For as the Father possesses life within Himself, so He has conferred upon the Son the possession of life within Himself; and He has also invested Him with authority to execute His decision, because He is Son of Man. Do not be surprised at this; because the time comes, in which all those in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come out: those who have done good to a resurrection of life; and those who have done evil to a resurrection of judgment.

The Testimony of God to Christ the Life.

30 "From Myself I can do nothing; as I hear, so I decide, and My decision is right: because I do not seek My own purpose, but the purpose of My Sender. If I should testify about Myself, My evidence would not be reliable. There is another witness for Me; and I know that the evidence which he gave about Me is reliable. 31 You have yourself sent to John, and he has given evidence to the truth. I do not, however, accept the evidence of a man; but I mention this, in order 32 that even you may be saved. He was the burning and the shining lamp: and you were willing to be delighted for a time with its light; but I have better evidence than that of John; for the works which the Father has appointed Me to accomplish—these works which I am doing—give evidence about Me, that the Father has sent Me. And the Father Who sent Me has Himself given evidence concerning Me. You have never at any time listened to His voice, nor looked upon His Ideal; and you have not His thought dwelling in you, because you do not believe the One Whom He has Himself sent. You search the Scriptures, because you imagine in them to have eternal life; and they are the witnesses about Me: yet you do not desire to come to Me, so that you might have life. I do not crave human honour; but I have known you, that you have not the love of God in yourselves. I have come with the power of My Father, and yet you do not receive Me. If another should come with his own power, you would accept him! How can you possibly believe, taking approval, as you do, from one another; while you do not desire the rectification which comes from the only God? Do not imagine, however, that I will accuse you before the Father. But one accuses you: Moses, in whom you trust! For if you had believed Moses, you would have believed Me; for he wrote about Me. But if you disbelieve his writings, how can you rely upon My statements?"

Feeding the Five Thousand.

After this, Jesus went beyond the lake of Galilee, near Tiberias. And a large crowd was following Him, because they saw the wonders which He effected upon the sick people. And Jesus climbed up the mountain, and there sat down along with His disciples. At that time the Judean festival of the Passover was near. Jesus then looking up, and seeing that a large crowd came towards Him, remarked to Philip:

"Where shall we buy bread, so that all these may eat?"

He said this to test him, for He Himself knew what He was about to do.

"Twenty pounds' worth of bread," Philip answered Him, "would not be sufficient to satisfy them, even if each of them only took a little."

- 8 One of the disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, observed to Him :
- 9 " There is a little lad here who has five barley loaves and two fishes ; but what are they among so many ? "
- 10 " Make the people sit down," said Jesus ; for there was plenty of grass at that spot. So the men sat down, to the number of about five thousand.
- 11 Jesus then took the loaves, and having given thanks, He distributed to those reclining ; and in the same manner, as much of the fish as they wished.
- 12 Then, when they were satisfied, He said to His disciples :
- " Collect now the broken pieces which are left, so that nothing may be lost."
- 13 They accordingly collected them, and filled twelve bags with the broken pieces of the five barley loaves which
- 14 the eaters had to spare. Then when the people saw the evidence which He had produced, they exclaimed :
- " This must certainly be the Prophet Who was to come into the world."

Walking on the Water.

- 15 Jesus, perceiving then that they were about to come and seize Him, for the purpose of making Him king, again withdrew Himself to the mountain alone. And when dusk arrived, His
- 17 disciples went down to the lake ; and having embarked in a boat, they were returning over the lake, in the direction
- 18 of Capernaum. But darkness had now arrived, and Jesus had not yet come to them. The water was also getting rough, on account of the violent wind then blowing. When, however, they had rowed about two miles, they observed Jesus walking upon the water, and approaching the boat ; and they
- 20 were terrified. But He said to them :
- " I AM ; be not afraid ! "
- 21 They, therefore, very willingly took Him into the boat ; and the boat went straight towards the land they steered for.

Christ the Bread of Life.

- 22 On the following day, the crowd upon the other side of the lake, knowing that there had been no boat there except the one in which the disciples had embarked ; and that Jesus did not embark in the boat along with His disciples, who had departed by themselves (although other boats had come
- 23 from Tiberias, near to the spot where they had eaten bread, after the Lord had given thanks) ; so when the crowd saw that neither Jesus was there, nor yet His disciples, they themselves embarked in the boats, and came to Capernaum, searching for Jesus. And finding Him across the lake, they asked : " When, Teacher, did You come here ? "

" I tell you most assuredly," Jesus answered them, " you search for Me, not because you have seen evidences ; but because you have eaten of the bread, and have been satisfied. Strive not only for that perishable food ; but also for that lasting into eternal life, which the Son of Man will give to you : for Him has God the Father marked out."

They therefore asked Him :

" What, then, must we do, in order that we may carry out the purposes of God ? "

" This is the purpose of God," Jesus answered them, " that you believe in Him Whom He sent."

They therefore asked Him :

" What evidence, then, do You produce, so that we may see it, and confide in You ? What can You do ? Our forefathers ate the manna in the desert, as it is written :

HE GAVE THEM BREAD TO EAT FROM OUT OF HEAVEN."¹

Jesus, however, said to them :

" I tell you assuredly, Moses did not himself give you that bread from heaven ; but My Father will give you the real bread from heaven : for the bread of God is He Who descends from heaven, and gives life to the world."

They, therefore, said to Him :

" Give us, Sir, this bread always."

Jesus answered them, " I am the Bread of Life : the one who comes to Me will never hunger ; and the one who believes in Me will never thirst. I have also told you that although you have seen, yet you have not believed. Every one whom the Father gives Me will come to Me ; and whoever comes to Me I will not cast out : for I descended from heaven not to carry out My own intention, but the intention of My Sender. And this is the intention of My Sender, that of all which He has entrusted to Me, I should lose nothing, but should restore it at the last day. This, also, is the intention of My Father, that every one who sees the Son, and confides in Him, should possess eternal life; and I will restore him at the last day."

41 The Judeans then muttered concerning Him, because He said, "I am the Bread which descended from heaven; and they said:

"Is not this fellow Jesus, the son of Joseph, Whose father and mother we know? How then can He now say, 'I came down from heaven'?"

43 Jesus replied, and said to them: 44 "Do not mutter to one another. No one is able to come to Me, unless the Father Who sent Me draws him; and 45 I will restore him at the last day. It is written in the prophets:

AND THEY SHALL ALL BE TAUGHT FROM GOD.¹

"Every one who has listened to the Father, and learnt, comes to Me.

46 Not that any one has seen the Father, except He Who was with God; that 47 One has seen the Father. I tell you most decisively that the believer pos-

48 sesses eternal life. I am the Bread of 49 Life. Your forefathers ate the manna in the desert, and died. This is the 50 Bread coming down from heaven, so that any one may eat of it, and not

51 die. I am the Living Bread, which descended from out of heaven: if any one should eat of this Bread, he will live for ever; and the Bread also is My body, which I will give for the life of the world!"

52 The Judeans then discussed with one another, asking, "How can this Man give us His body to eat?"

53 Jesus therefore said to them:

"I tell you most certainly that unless you eat the body of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, you do not possess life in yourselves. Who-

54 ever eats My body, and drinks My blood, has eternal life; and I will restore him at the last day: for My

55 body is a true food, and My blood is a true drink. Whoever eats of My

56 body, and drinks of My blood, abides with Me, and I with him. As the living Father sent Me, I also live through the Father; so that the one who eats

57 Me, shall also live through Me. This is the Bread descending from heaven; not such as that of which your forefathers ate and died. Whoever eats of this Bread shall live for ever."

He spoke this in a synagogue, as 59 He was teaching in Capernaum.

The Effect of the Discourse.

Many even among the disciples, 60 however, on hearing this declaration, remarked:

"This is an extraordinary declaration! who can listen to it?"

But Jesus perceiving in Himself 61 that His disciples complained about it, He said to them:

"Does this make you stumble? Then what if you should see the Son 62 of Man ascending to where He was at first? The Spirit is the life-giver; the 63 body is worth nothing. The ideas which I have expressed to you are spirit and are life. There are some 64 among you, however, who do not believe." [Because Jesus knew from the first who the unbelievers were, and who it was that would betray Him.]

Continuing, He said, "For this 65 reason I forewarned you that none can come to Me, unless it be given to him from the Father."

Disaffected Disciples.

Many of His disciples hereupon 66 turned back, and accompanied Him no longer. Jesus, therefore, said to 67 the twelve:

"Do you also not desire to go away?"

Simon Peter answered Him, "To 68 whom, Master, can we go? You have the ideals of eternal life. And 69 we are confident and satisfied that You are the Holy One of God."

Jesus answered them, "Have I not 70 chosen you, the twelve, and one of you is a Traitor?" He here referred to 71 Judas Simon Iscariot; for that man, who was one of the twelve, was about to betray Him.

After this Jesus travelled in Galilee; 7 for He would not travel in Judea, because the Judeans were seeking to murder Him.

Third Visit to Jerusalem.

When the Judean feast of Taber- 8 nacles was near, His brothers said to 3 Him:

"Remove from here and go into Judea, so that those disciples of Yours may also see the works which You do; for no one does anything privately 4 who desires to become famous himself. If You do them, exhibit Yourself to

- 5 the world." For even His brothers did not believe in Him.
- 6 Jesus, therefore, answered them: "My opportunity has not yet arrived; but your opportunity is always at hand. The world cannot hate you; but it hates Me, because I give evidence against it, that its doings are wicked. You yourselves can go up to the festival; I am not going up yet to this festival, because My time is not yet fulfilled."
- 9 And, having told them this, He stayed in Galilee.

Discourses at the Feast of Tabernacles.

- 10 When His brothers had gone up to the festival, however, He also went up Himself—not publicly, but quietly.
- 11 The Judeans were, however, searching for Him at the festival, and kept asking, "Where is He?"
- 12 And there was much muttering among the crowds respecting Him. Some even said, "He is a benefactor"; while others exclaimed, "Not He! on the contrary, He deceives the multitude." None, however, spoke openly about Him, for fear of the Judeans.
- 14 When, however, the festival was half over, Jesus went up to the temple, and began teaching. The Judeans then, in their astonishment, exclaimed: "How can this fellow know theology, having never studied?"
- 16 Jesus, in reply to them, said: "My teaching is not My own, but that of My Sender. If any one desires to conform to His purpose, he will recognise the doctrine, whether it originates from God, or whether I speak from Myself. The man who speaks from himself studies his own reputation; but the One Whose aim is to honour His Sender, He is true, and there is no falsehood in Him.
- 19 Has not Moses given you the law? yet none of you observe the law! Why do you aim at murdering Me?"
- 20 The crowd replied, "You have a demon. Who wants to murder You?"
- 21 "I have done one thing," said Jesus in reply to them, "and you were all astonished.
- 22 "Moses instituted the circumcision among you for a purpose (not, however, that it originated with Moses, but with your ancestors); and you
- 23 circumcise a man on the Sabbath. If, then, a man is circumcised on a Sabbath, so that the law of Moses may not be disregarded, why are you furious against Me because I have restored a grown man to perfect health on a Sabbath? Do not decide at a glance, but think out the decision judicially."

Some of those of Jerusalem then re- marked:

"Is not this the Man Whom they wish to murder? Yet here He is speaking in public, and they say nothing to Him! Perhaps, however, the authorities have come to recognise the fact that this Man is the Messiah?"

[Others said], "We know where this fellow comes from; but when the Messiah comes, no one will know from where He comes."

Jesus therefore shouted, when teaching in the temple, saying:

"You both know Me, and know from where I come; and that I have not come from Myself. But My Sender is true, Whom you do not know. I know Him; because I am from Him, and He Himself sent Me."

They therefore sought to arrest Him; yet none laid hands upon Him, because His time had not arrived. Among the crowd, however, many believed in Him, and said:

"When the Messiah does come, will He produce more proofs than this Man has done?"

An Attempt to Arrest Jesus.

The Pharisees heard the crowd muttering about Him in this way; and the chief priests and the Pharisees despatched officers to arrest Him.

Jesus therefore said: "For a little time, I am still with you, then I go to Him Who sent Me. You will search for Me, and fail to find Me; and where I am you are unable to come."

The Judeans, therefore, remarked to one another thus: "Where will this fellow go, that we cannot find Him? Surely He will not go to the Dispersion among the Greeks, and teach the Greeks? What is the Man's meaning, when He says: 'You will search for Me, and fail to find Me?' and where I am, you are not able to come?"

Now on the closing day, the great day of the festival, Jesus stood up, and called aloud, exclaiming:

"If any man is thirsty, let him come

38 to Me and drink. Whoever trusts in Me, as the Scripture says,

RIVERS OF LIVING WATERS SHALL FLOW OUT FROM HIS HEART."¹

39 [He said this, however, in reference to the Spirit, which the believers in Him were afterwards to receive; for The Spirit was not yet revealed, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.]

40 Many among the crowd, hearing this declaration, then began to say: "This is certainly the Prophet."

41 Others remarked: "This is the Messiah." But some said: "What! does the Messiah come out of Galilee?"

42 Has not the Scripture said that the Messiah shall come from the race of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David was?"

43 So a division took place among the crowd on account of Him. And some of them wished to arrest Him; yet no one laid hands upon Him.

45 The officers, however, returned to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them: "Why have you not brought Him?"

46 "No one ever spoke like this Man," they replied.

47 The Pharisees therefore retorted:

48 "Are you also led astray? Have any of the nobles or of the Pharisees believed in Him? But this mob, that know not the law, are contemptible."

50 Nicodemus, who was one of themselves, and who had previously come to Him, said to them: "Would our law convict a man, if it had not first examined about Him, and ascertained what He has done?"

52 They retorted, and said to him: "Are you also from Galilee? Search, and see that no prophet has ever sprung from Galilee."²

8 The Light of the World.

12 Jesus again addressed them, saying: "I am the Light of the world. My followers shall not walk in the darkness, but shall go out into the Light of Life."

² The narrative of the sinful woman (chap. vii. 53 to chap. viii. 11) is rejected by the most competent authorities as a spurious interpolation. The question will be found fully discussed in the introduction to the larger edition of Westcott and Hort's Greek New Testament (page 299, section 388); and it is given as their opinion that this particular passage "has no right to a place in the Text of the Four Gospels." The language of the MSS. containing the passage varies considerably; but the generally accepted reading I have added at the

The Pharisees therefore said to 13 Him:

"You are giving evidence about Yourself; Your evidence is not reliable."

Jesus replied, and said to them: 14

"Although I give evidence about Myself, My evidence is nevertheless reliable; because I know from where I come, and where I go; but you neither know where I come from, nor where I am going. You condemn from a 15 human standpoint; I Myself condemn none. Yet even if I should condemn, 16 My decision would nevertheless be valid; because I am not alone, but I and He Who sent Me. Moreover, 17 in your own law it is written that the evidence of two men is valid. I am 18 witnessing about Myself; and the Father Who sent Me gives evidence about Me."

"Where is Your Father?" they 19 therefore asked Him.

Jesus answered: "You neither know Me, nor My Father. If you had known Me, you would have known My Father also."

These remarks were made by Jesus 20 in the treasury, while teaching in the temple; and none arrested Him, because His time had not yet come.

The Fate of the Unbeliever.

He, therefore, further said to them: 21

"I am going away, and you will search for Me, and will die in your sin. Where I am going, you are unable to follow."

The Judeans therefore said: 22

"Is He going to kill Himself? since He says, 'Where I am going, you cannot follow.'"

"You are from below," He an- 23 swered them; "I am from above: you belong to this world; I am not from this world. I therefore told you 24 that you would die in your sins; for unless you believe that I AM, you will die in your sins."

"You! Who are You?" they then 25 asked Him.

Jesus answered them: "What I told you from the beginning; I have 26 much to say and decide about you. But My Sender is reliable, and what I have learned from Him, that I declare to the world."

end of this Gospel, where it is placed as an appendix for reference, but not in any way as a part of the Sacred Text.

- 27 However, they did not perceive that He spoke to them about the Father.
- 28 Jesus, therefore, said to them :
 " When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then will you know that I AM, and that I do nothing from My own self; but as the Father has instructed Me, I must speak. And My Sender is with Me; He has not left Me alone; because I do what is pleasing to Him everywhere."
- 30 While He was speaking in this way, many became believers in Him.

The Slavery of Sin.

- 31 Jesus said, therefore, to the Judeans who had not believed Him :¹
 " If you establish yourselves in My doctrine, you will in reality be My disciples; and you will recognise the truth, and the truth will set you free."
- 33 " We are the offspring of Abraham," they answered Him, " and have never at any time been enslaved to any one; what do You mean by saying, ' You will be set free ' ? "
- 34 " I tell you plainly," replied Jesus, " that whoever sins is a slave of sin. The slave does not constantly stay with the family; the Son stays permanently. If, therefore, the Son shall set you at liberty, you will be free in reality. I am aware that you are the offspring of Abraham; yet you plot to murder Me, because My thought has not a place in you. What I have seen with the Father I declare; and what you have learned from your father you also do."
- 39 They retorted, and said to Him, " Our father is Abraham."
- 40 " If you were children of Abraham," Jesus remarked, " you would continue the works of Abraham. But now you plot to murder Me; a Man who has told you the truth, which He learned from God. Abraham did not do so."
- 41 You do the works of your own father."
- 42 " We were not born of fornication," they answered Him; " we have the same Father, God."
- 42 " If God were your Father," Jesus said to them, " you would respect Me; for I came from God, and am here; for I have not come of Myself; but
- 43 He sent Me. Why do you not comprehend My language? Because you will not listen to My message. You are from your father, the Devil; and it is your desire to practise the lusts of your father. He was himself a murderer from the first; and stands not by the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaks falsehood, he speaks in his own way; for he is a liar, and the father of such. Because I speak the truth, however, you will not believe Me. Who among you can convict Me of wrong? If I speak the truth, why will you not believe Me? Whoever is attracted by God, listens to the thoughts of God; for this reason you do not listen, because you are not in harmony with God."

The Judeans retorted, and said to Him: " Were we not correct in saying that you are a Samaritan, and have a demon? "

" I have not a demon," replied Jesus; " but I honour My Father, and you dishonour Me. I do not, however, strive for reputation for Myself; there is One Who investigates and judges. I tell you most assuredly that if a man holds on to My message, he will by no means see death for ever."

" Now we know that You possess a demon," the Judeans retorted to Him. " Abraham died, as well as the prophets; yet You say, ' If a man holds fast My message, he will not taste of death for ever.' Are You greater than our forefather Abraham, who died? and the prophets died. Who do You make Yourself? "

Jesus answered: " If I should praise Myself, My praise is worthless. There is My Father Who is praising Me; of Whom you say that He is your God; and you have not recognised Him; but I know Him. And if I should say that I do not know Him, I should be like yourselves, a liar. But I do know Him, and retain His message. Your father Abraham exulted that he should see My day; and he saw it, and was delighted."

" You are not yet fifty years old," said the Judeans to Him in reply, " and have You seen Abraham? "

Jesus said to them: " Most assuredly I tell you, before Abraham was born, I AM."

They then took up stones to hurl at Him; but Jesus became invisible, and went out from the temple.

Enesight for a Man born Blind.

As He was going along, He ob-

¹ NOTE ON V. 31.—It is clear from the sense, that the Greek negative "μη," "not," has been omitted from the Text by some early copiers, so I restore it, to retain the original purport.—F. F.

- served a man who had been blind from his birth.
- 1 His disciples accordingly asked Him: "Teacher, who sinned; this man, or his parents, in consequence of which he was born blind?"
- 2 "Neither did this man sin, nor his parents," replied Jesus; "but he is so, in order that the workings of God
- 3 may be displayed through him. I must do the business of My Sender while it is day; the night comes
- 4 when none are able to work. While I am in the world, I am the world's Light."
- 5 Spitting upon the ground as He said this, and mixing clay with the spittle,
- 6 He applied it to his eyes; and said to him: "Go, wash yourself in the bathing-place of Siloam" [which, when translated, means, Sent]. He therefore went and washed himself, and returned seeing.
- 7 The neighbours, and those who formerly saw him when he was a beggar, asked: "Did not this man sit and beg?"
- 8 Some said, "This is the man"; others, "No, but he is very much like him." He himself said, "I am he."
- 9 They therefore asked him, "How were your eyes opened?"
- 10 He replied, "The Man Who is called Jesus mixed clay, and applied it to my eyes, telling me to 'Go to Siloam, and wash yourself.' So I went, washed, and received my eyesight."
- 11 "Where is He?" they then asked him.
- 12 "I do not know," he replied.
- 13 They then took the man who had once been blind, before the Pharisees; for it was a Sabbath on which Jesus mixed the clay, and gave him
- 14 eyesight. The Pharisees therefore asked him again in what way he had gained his eyesight.
- 15 "He applied clay to my eyes," he answered them, "and I washed, and now see."
- 16 Some of the Pharisees therefore said: "That Man is not connected with God, because He does not observe the Sabbath."
- 17 "How could such evidences be effected by a sinful man?" remarked others. And they were divided among themselves.
- 18 They therefore asked the blind man once more: "What do you say about Him, seeing that He opened your eyes?"

- "That He is a Prophet," replied he. The Judeans, however, did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and had received his eyesight, until they called the parents of him who had received his eyesight, and questioned them: "Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?"
- "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind," his parents answered: "but how he now sees we do not know; nor do we know who opened his eyes. He is old enough; ask him; he can speak for himself."
- His parents said this, because they dreaded the Judeans; for already the Judeans had decided, that should anyone acknowledge Him as Messiah, he should be expelled from the synagogue. It was for this reason that his parents said, "he is old enough; ask him."
- They accordingly recalled a second time the man who had been blind, and said to him: "Give thanks to God; we know that this fellow is wicked."
- "I do not know whether He is wicked or not," he replied; "one thing I do know, that having been blind, I can now see."
- "What did He do to you?" then asked him once more. "In what way did He open your eyes?"
- "I have already told you," he answered them, "and you would not listen; why do you want to hear it again? Do you really wish to become His disciples?"
- They accordingly abused him, and retorted: "You are His disciple; but we are the disciples of Moses. We know that God spoke with Moses; but as for this fellow, we know nothing about where He comes from."
- "Well, the wonder is that you should not know," the man exclaimed, in reply to them; "and yet He opened my eyes! We know that God does not listen to sinners; but if any one is God-fearing, and does His will, He listens to him. Since the beginning of time, any one opening the eyes of one born blind has never been heard of. If this Man were not from God, He would not be able to do anything."
- "You were from head to foot born in sins," they retorted, in reply; "and would you presume to teach us?" They accordingly kicked him out.
- Jesus learned that they had kicked him out; and meeting him, He asked: "Do you believe on the Son of Man?"

- 36 "And Who is He, Sir?" he asked, "so that I may believe in Him."
 37 Jesus answered him, "You have seen Him, and it is Himself Who is now talking with you."
 38 "I believe, Sir," he exclaimed; and he bowed to Him.
 39 Then Jesus said: "I came into the world to be a Separator, so that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may become blind."
 40 Some Pharisees who were in His company, on hearing this remark, said to Him, "Surely we are not also blind?"
 41 "If you were blind," Jesus answered them, "you would not have sin; but because you say, 'We see,' therefore your sin remains."

The Allegory of the Sheep-fold.

- 10 "I tell you plainly, he who does not enter the sheep-fold through the door, but climbs in elsewhere, that man is a thief and a robber. But he who enters through the door is shepherd of the sheep. For him the door is opened by the door-keeper; and the sheep listen to his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name, and leads them out. And when all his own sheep have run out, he walks on before, and the sheep follow him, because they know his voice. A stranger, however, they will not follow; on the contrary, they will run away from him, because they do not know the voice of the strangers."
 6 This allegory was related by Jesus; but they did not understand what it was He was speaking to them about.
 7 Jesus, addressing them again, therefore said: "I tell you plainly, I am the Door of the sheep. All who came before Me were thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not listen to them.
 9 I am the Door. If any one enters through Me, he shall be safe; and he can come in, and go out, and find pasturage. The thief comes only in order that he may steal, kill, and destroy: I have come in order that they may enjoy life, and have it in abundance.

The Good Shepherd.

- 11 "I am the Good Shepherd: the Good Shepherd lays down His own life on behalf of the sheep. The mere servant, because he is neither shepherd nor owner of the sheep, on seeing the wolf coming, leaves the sheep, and takes to flight; and the wolf snatches and scatters them. He takes to flight because he is but a servant, and cares nothing about the sheep. I am the Good Shepherd; and I know My own, and My own know Me. And as thoroughly as the Father knows Me, I also know the Father; and I lay down My own life on behalf of the sheep. And I have other sheep beside these, which are not of this fold. Those also I must gather; and they will listen to My voice; and they will become one flock, one Shepherd. This is why the Father loves Me, because I lay down My own life, in order that I may receive it again. None can take it from Me; on the contrary, I resign it of My own free will. I have authority to resign it, and authority to take it back again. These are the instructions which I have received from My Father."

The Judeans divided about Jesus.

A division came again among the Judeans in consequence of these declarations. And many of them said: "He has a demon, and raves; why do you listen to Him?" Others remarked: "These are not the thoughts of a demoniac. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?"

Fourth Visit to Jerusalem. The Discourse at the Dedication Festival.

After this, the festival commemorating the re-consecration of the temple took place at Jerusalem. It was then the winter-time; and Jesus was walking about in Solomon's aisle in the temple. The Judeans accordingly surrounded Him, and began asking Him: "How long are You going to keep our minds in suspense? If You are really the Messiah, tell us so plainly."

Jesus replied to them: "I have told you, yet you do not believe. The works which I do by the power of My Father, they are evidence in support of Me. But as for you, you disbelieve because you do not belong to My sheep. The sheep that are My own listen to My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me; and I give them eternal life, and they shall never at any time be lost, and no one is able to snatch them out of My hands.

29 What My Father has endowed Me with is mightier than all; and no one is able to wrest from the hand of My

30 Father. "The Father and I are one."

31 The Judeans again armed themselves with stones, for the purpose of stoning Him.

32 Jesus addressed them: "Many are the beneficent acts which I have done for you from the Father; for which of these acts would you stone Me?"

33 The Judeans answered Him: "We will not stone You for a beneficent work, but for blasphemy; and because You, although You are but a man, make Yourself out to be a god."

34 Jesus answered them: "Is it not written in your own law, I SAID,

35 YOU ARE GODS?¹ If they are called gods, to whom the message came from God (and the Scripture cannot be set aside), do you say of the ONE Whom the Father has consecrated

36 and sent to the world, 'You blaspheme,' because I said, 'I am Son

37 of God?' If I do not carry out the works of My Father, do not believe

38 Me; but if I am carrying them out, although you have no faith in Myself, have faith in what I do, in order that you may understand more and more that the Father is one with Me, and I one with the Father."

39 They then made another attempt to arrest Him; but He escaped from 40 their hands. He accordingly returned once more to the other side of the Jordan, to the locality in which John was at first baptizing; and there He

41 stayed. Many persons then came to Him; and they said:
"John, in fact, produced no evidence; but all that John said concerning this Man was true." And many persons there became believers in Him.

The Raising of Lazarus.

11 Lazarus of Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha, was ill [and she was the Mary who bathed the Lord with perfume, wiping His feet with her hair, whose brother

3 Lazarus was ill]. The sisters, therefore, sent to Him, saying, "Master, Your very dear friend is now ill."
4 Jesus, on hearing it, however, remarked: "This illness is not for death; but, on the contrary, for rectification from God, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it."

Jesus had a friendship with Martha, 5 her sister, and Lazarus. Yet, when 6 He heard that he was sick, He still remained two days at the place in which He was; but after that He said " to His disciples, " Let us return again to Judea."

"Teacher!" exclaimed His dis- 8 ciples, "the Judeans were just now attempting to stone You; and are You going there again?"

"There are twelve hours in the day, 9 are there not?" replied Jesus. "If any one walks in the day, he will not stumble, because he has the light of this world; but if any one walks in the 10 night, he stumbles, because the light is not with him."

Having said this, He added, 11 "Lazarus, our friend, slumbers; but I am going that I may arouse him."

"If he sleeps, Master," the disciples 12 therefore said to Him, "he will be restored." Jesus, however, referred 13 to his death; but they supposed that He was speaking of refreshing sleep.

Then Jesus told them plainly, 14 "Lazarus has died; and for your 15 sakes I am glad that I was not there, so that you may believe. However, let us go to him."

Thomas, known as the Twin, there- 16 fore said to his fellow-disciples: "Let us go as well, so that we may die with Him."

So, when Jesus arrived, He found 17 that he had already been four days in the tomb. Bethany was near Jeru- 18 salem, about two miles distant; so 19 many from among the Judeans had come to console Martha and Mary concerning their brother. Martha, 20 however, when she learned that Jesus was coming, went and met Him; but Mary remained in the house. Martha 21 then said to Jesus: "Master, had You been here, my brother would not have died; but even now I know that what- 22 ever you may ask from God, God will grant You."

"Your brother shall rise again," 23 Jesus remarked to her.

"I know," responded Martha, "that 24 he will rise at the resurrection of the last day."

Jesus answered her: "I am the 25 Resurrection and the Life; whoever believes on Me, although he may die, he will live; and every one living and 26 believing in Me shall not die for ever. Do you believe this?"

"Yes, Master," was her reply; "I 27

- have believed that You are the Messiah, the Son of God, the One coming to the world."
- 28 And having said this, she returned, and told Mary, her sister, privately: "The Teacher stands near, and calls you."
- 29 On hearing it, she at once got up, and came to Him. Now Jesus had not as yet entered the village; but was at the spot where Martha met
- 31 Him. The Judeans then who were in her company, consoling her in the house, noticing the haste with which Mary got up and went out, followed her, supposing that she was going to
- 32 the tomb to grieve there. Then when Mary came to where Jesus was, she fell at His feet on seeing Him, and exclaimed: "Master, had You been here, my brother would not have died!"
- 33 When Jesus then saw her grieving, and the Judeans who accompanied her grieving, He was Himself sad and disturbed in spirit; and asked,
- 34 "Where have you laid him?"
- "Master, come and see," was their reply.
- 35 Jesus wept.
- 36 The Judeans then remarked: "See how fondly He loved him!" But some of them said: "Could not He, Who opened the eyes of the blind, also have arranged that this man should not die?"
- 38 Jesus, therefore, again sighing in Himself, came to the tomb. It was a cave, closed up at the entrance with a stone.
- 39 "Remove the stone," said Jesus. Martha, the sister of the deceased, said to Him:
- "Master, by this time the smell must be offensive; for this is the fourth day."
- 40 "Did I not tell you," replied Jesus, "that if you would believe, you should see the majesty of God?"
- 41 They accordingly removed the stone; when Jesus, looking upward, said:
- "Father, I thank You that You have heard Me. As for Myself, I know that You listen to Me at all times; but I am speaking for the sake of the crowd standing around, so that they may believe that You have sent Me."
- 43 And having said this, He called with a loud voice: "Lazarus, come out!"

He who was dead accordingly came 44 out, swathed hand and foot with bandages, and his head wrapped up in a napkin. Jesus then told them, "loosen and let him walk."

Many therefore of the Judeans who 45 had come to Mary and witnessed what He had done, believed in Him. But 46 some from among them repaired to the Pharisees, and reported to them what Jesus had done.

The Sanhedrim in Conference.

The priests and Pharisees accord- 47 ingly convened a meeting of the Senate, and said: "What shall we do? be- 48 cause this Man produces many evi- 48 dences. If we should leave Him as 48 He is, all will believe on Him; and the Romans will come and take from us this place and the nation."

But one of themselves, Caiaphas, 49 who was the High Priest for that particular year, told them: "You know nothing at all; nor do you reflect that 50 it is expedient for you that one man should die for the sake of the people, rather than that the whole nation should perish!"

A Comment by the Evangelist.

Now he did not say this from him- 51 self; but being High Priest that year, he foretold that Jesus would be put to death on behalf of the nation [and 52 not for the nation alone, but in order that the scattered children of God might be gathered into one]. From 53 that day they accordingly plotted in what way they could effect His murder. For this reason Jesus appeared no 54 longer publicly among the Judeans; but retired to the country near the desert, to a village called Ephraim: and He continued there along with His disciples.

Fifth Visit to Jerusalem.

The Jewish Passover was approach- 55 ing; and many went up to Jerusalem from that part, prior to the Passover, in order that they might purify themselves. They therefore searched for 56 Jesus; and, while standing in the temple, they remarked to each other, "What do you think? Will He not come to the festival?"

The chief priests and the Pharisees, 57 however, had issued instructions that if any one was acquainted with His whereabouts, he should report it, in order that they might arrest Him.

Jesus at Bethany: Mary's Rebution.

- 12 Jesus, however, six days prior to the Passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom Jesus had raised from among the dead. They therefore prepared a dinner for Him there. Martha superintended; but Lazarus was one of the guests who reclined with Him. Then Mary, having provided a pound of the essence of pure nard, which was very valuable, bathed the feet of Jesus, wiping them with her hair; and the house was filled with the perfume of the essence.
- 13 Judas of Iscariot, however, one of His own disciples who was about to betray Him, demanded: "Why was not this essence sold for thirty pounds, and given to the poor?"
- 14 Now he did not say this because he himself cared anything about the poor; but because he was a thief, and keeper of the purse, carrying all that was put in it.
- 15 Jesus, however, said, "Leave her alone! so that she may keep it for the day of My burial; for you have the poor with you always, but Me you have not always."
- 16 The masses of the Judeans, hearing then where He was, flocked to the place; not merely for the sake of Jesus, but also in order that they might see Lazarus, whom He had raised from among the dead. But the chief priests plotted to murder Lazarus as well; because, on account of him, many left the Judeans, and believed on Jesus.

The Royal Entry into Jerusalem.

- 17 On the following day a large crowd, who had come to the festival, learning that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, plucked branches from the palm trees, and went out to meet Him, shouting: HOSANNA! BLESS THE ONE COMING IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, AND THE KING OF ISRAEL.¹
- 18 Then Jesus, having found a young ass, seated Himself upon it, according to what is written:
- 19 FEAR NOT, DAUGHTER OF ZION! SEE! YOUR KING COMES, SITTING UPON THE FOAL OF AN ASS!²
- 20 Now, His disciples did not comprehend this at the time; but when Jesus was exalted, they called to mind that this was recorded concerning Him, and that this had been done to Him. The crowd also, who had accompanied Him, gave evidence that He had called Lazarus out of the tomb, and had raised him from among the dead. It was for this reason also that the crowd went and met Him, because they heard that He had produced that proof.

The Pharisees therefore said among themselves: "Do you not see that you are gaining nothing? All the world is going after Him!"

Greeks desire to see Jesus.

There were also some Greeks among those who had come up to worship at the festival. These, therefore, applied to Philip, a native of Bethsaida, of Galilee, with the request, "We would like, Sir, to see Jesus." Philip came and told Andrew; Andrew, in turn, came with Philip and told Jesus.

"The time has come," said Jesus, addressing them in reply, "when the Son of Man will be honoured. Most assuredly I tell you, that if a grain of wheat, thrown into the ground, does not arise from its bed, it remains alone; but if it arise, it bears much fruit. The lover of his life loses it; and who ever despises his life in this world will preserve it for life eternal. If any one would serve Me, let him become My follower; and where I am, there My servant will also be. If any one serves Me, the Father will honour him. My soul is now in distress; and what do I say? 'Father, deliver Me from this hour'?" On the contrary, I came to this hour for this very purpose. 'Father, glorify Your own Name!'"

Then a voice from heaven said: "I have both glorified it, and I will glorify it again." The crowd standing by, who heard it, however, remarked, "It thunders." Others said, "An angel has spoken with Him."

Jesus answered and said, "This voice has not come for My own sake, but for yours. Now is the crisis of this world; now the Prince of this world will be expelled. And when I am lifted up from the earth, I shall attract all towards Myself." He said this, however, illustrative of the death He was about to die.

The crowd, therefore, remarked to Him: "We have heard out of the law that the Messiah continues for ever; and so how can You say that 'It is necessary for the Son of Man to be lifted up'? Who is this Son of Man?"

² Zech. ix. 9.

- 35 Jesus said to them: "The Light is with you for a little while longer; walk while you possess the Light, so that darkness may not overtake you. The traveller in the dark does not know where he is going. While you possess the Light, believe in the Light, so that you may become sons of Light."

The Unbelief of the Jews.

- Having made these remarks, Jesus took His departure, withdrawing from them privately; for although He had produced so many evidences before them, yet they did not believe in Him: so that the word of Isaiah the prophet might be verified, which said:

LORD, WHO HAS BELIEVED OUR STATEMENT,

AND TO WHOM WAS THE ARM OF THE LORD REVEALED?¹

- 30 For this reason they were not able to believe, because Isaiah further said: 40 THEIR EYES WERE BLIND, AND THEIR HEART DEGENERATED; SO THAT THEY SEE NOT WITH THEIR EYES, AND UNDERSTAND NOT WITH THEIR HEART, AND RETURN, THAT I MIGHT HEAL THEM.²

- 41 [Isaiah said this when he saw His rectifying power, and spoke concerning Him. Even among the nobles, indeed, many believed on Him; but on account of the Pharisees they did not acknowledge it, lest they should be expelled from the synagogue; for they loved the approval of men more than the approbation of God.]

The Lord's Command to believe in God.

- 44 Jesus then raising His voice, said: "Let the believer in Me not believe on Me, but rather on My Sender; 45 then whoever sees Me will see My Sender. I have come a Light into the world; so that every one believing in Me may not continue in the darkness. 47 And if any one should hear My statements, and fail to observe them, I do not condemn him; because I do not come to the world to condemn the world, but so that I might save the world. Whoever rejects Me, and will not accept My declarations, is self-condemned; the message which I declared will itself convict him at the last day. For I have not spoken from Myself; but the Father Himself Who sent Me has given Me an order, what I should declare, and what I should publish. And I know that His order is life eternal. Whatever I therefore say, I say it in accordance with the Father's instruction to Me."

Jesus Washing the Disciples' Feet.

Now, prior to the festival of the 13 Passover, Jesus, knowing that His hour had come—the time for departure from this world to the Father—having loved His friends in the world, He loved them to the end. And during a supper—the Devil having already put it into the heart of Judas Simon of Iscariot that he should betray Him—knowing that the Father had given 3 everything into His hands, and that He had come from God, and was returning to God; He arose from the 4 table, and putting off His robes and taking a towel, wrapped it round Him, Then He poured water into the basin, 5 and began to wash the feet of the disciples, wiping them with the towel with which He was wrapped. He 6 came thus to Simon Peter, who said to Him: "Master, do You mean to wash my feet?"

"What I am doing you do not understand now," said Jesus, in reply to him; "but you will understand it afterwards."

"You shall never at any time wash 8 my feet," said Peter.

"If I do not wash you," replied Jesus, "you have no part with Me."

"Master, not my feet alone," said 9 Simon Peter to Him; "but also my hands and my head."

"He who has bathed," Jesus re- 10 plied, "only requires to have his feet washed; the rest of his body being perfectly clean. And you are clean, although not all." For He knew His 11 betrayer; therefore He said: "You are not all clean."

Then when He had washed their 12 feet, and taken His robes, and reclined again, He said to them:

"Do you know what I have done to you? You call Me Teacher and 13 Master; and you speak correctly, because I am so. If I, then, the 14

² Isaiah vi. 10.

Master and the Teacher, have washed your feet, you ought also to wash the feet of one another; for I have given you an example, so that you should also do as I have done to you. Most assuredly I tell you, a slave is not greater than his master; nor a messenger greater than his sender. If you know this, you are happy if you practise it. I do not refer to the whole of you. I know whom I have chosen; but it is so for the fulfilment of this Scripture:

THE ONE WHO PARTOOK OF MY BREAD,
HAS RAISED HIS HEEL AGAINST ME.¹

I tell you this before it happens, so that when it does come, you may believe that I AM. I tell you a fact: the man who receives any one whom I send, receives Me; and whoever receives Me, receives My Sender."

The Traitor Foretold.

Saying this, Jesus was distressed in spirit, and exclaimed: "I tell you most truly, that one of you will betray Me!"

The disciples looked at one another, in doubt as to whom He referred. One of His disciples—one whom Jesus loved—was leaning upon the lap of Jesus. Simon Peter therefore made a sign to him, saying: "Ask who it is He is speaking about." Leaning back, then, upon the breast of Jesus, he asked Him, "Who is it, Master?"

"He is the one," replied Jesus, "for whom I shall dip this morsel, and to whom I shall give it." When, therefore, He had dipped the morsel, He handed it to Judas Simon of Iscariot. And after receiving the morsel, Satan entered into him. Jesus therefore said to him: "What you have to do, do quickly."

None reclining at the table understood why He had spoken to him in this way; but some supposed that, as Judas was treasurer, Jesus had told him to "Buy the necessaries for the festival"; or, "Give something to the poor." Having, therefore, received the morsel, he at once went out; and it was night.

The New Commandment.

Then when he had gone out, Jesus said:

"Now the Son of Man shall be

exalted; and God will be exalted through Him; and God will exalt Him to Himself; and He will exalt Him immediately. Little children, I am still with you for a little while. You will search for Me; and what I told the Judeans I tell even now to you. 'Where I go, you are unable to follow.' I give you a new command. THAT YOU LOVE ONE ANOTHER: just as I have loved you, in the same way you ought also to love one another. By this all will know that you are My disciples, if you have love to one another."

A Warning to Simon Peter.

"Where, Master, are You going?" Simon Peter asked Him.

"Where I am going," answered Jesus, "you are not able to follow now; but you shall follow afterwards."

"Lord, why cannot I follow You even now?" Peter asked Him; "I will lay down my life for You."

"Will you lay down your life for Me?" replied Jesus. "I tell you most assuredly that the bugle¹ will not sound, until you have thrice denied Me."

Jesus Comforts His Disciples.

"Do not allow your hearts to be troubled. Trust in God, and trust in Me. In the home of My Father there are many abodes. If it were not so, I would have told you; because I am going to prepare a place for you. And after I have gone and prepared a place for you, I will return, and take you to Myself; so that where I am, there you may also be. And where I am going, you know the way."

Thomas exclaimed to Him: "Master, we do not know where You are going; and how can we know the way?"

"I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," Jesus answered him; "no one can come to the Father except through Me. If you had known Me, you would have known My Father also; from now you do know Him, and have seen Him."

Philip replied to Him, "Master, show the Father to us, and that will satisfy us."

¹ The Roman bugle, called in Latin, "Gal-lus," i.e., "The Cock," or, "The Crower." It was a Roman army bugle for signalling the relief of the Guard.

- 9 "Have I been with you all this time," replied Jesus, "and yet you have not known Me, Philip? He who sees Me, sees the Father: why then do you say, 'Show us the Father?' 10 Do you not believe that I am with the Father, and the Father with Me? The statements which I deliver to you, I do not deliver from Myself. As to the works, the Father dwelling with 11 Me does them Himself. Believe Me that I am with the Father, and the Father with Me; if not, believe 12 through the works themselves. I tell you most truly that the believer in Me shall himself do the works which I do; and he shall do greater than these, because I am going to the 13 Father. And whatever you shall ask in My Name, that I will do, in order that the Father may be exalted in the 14 Son. If, therefore, you ask anything in My Name, I will do it.

The Promise of the Holy Spirit.

- 15 "If you love Me, keep my commands. 16 And I will ask the Father, and He will send you another Helper, to continue with you for ever—the Spirit of Truth, Whom the world cannot accept, because it neither sees Him nor knows Him. You will know Him, however, for He will remain with you, and will be in you.

The Indwelling of the Father and the Son.

- 18 "I will not leave you fatherless; I 19 am coming to you. A little while, and the world will see Me no more; but you will see Me; because I am living, you will live also. In that day you will know that I am in My Father, 20 and you in Me, and I in you. Whoever keeps My commands, and regards them, he it is who loves Me; and the one who loves Me will be loved by My Father; and I will love him, and will make Myself known to him."

The Proof of Love.

- 22 Judas, not the Iscariot, asked Him: "Master, how will it happen that You will manifest Yourself to us, and yet not to the world?" 23 "If any man loves Me," Jesus answered him, "He will retain My message; and My Father will love him, and We will come to him, and take up Our abode with him. The 24 one who does not love Me will not retain My message; and the message which you hear is not My own, but that of the Father Who sent Me. I have told you this while remaining 25 with you; but the Helper, the Holy 26 Spirit, Whom the Father will send with My power, He will teach you everything, and remind you of all that I have Myself told you.

The Legacy of His Peace.

"Peace I leave with you; My own 27 peace I give to you. I do not give as the world gives. Do not allow your heart to be troubled, nor yet be discouraged. You have heard Me tell 28 you, 'I am going away, and I am returning to you': if you had loved Me, you would have been glad, because I am going to the Father; for the Father is mightier than Myself. And 29 I have told you now before it happens, so that when it does happen, you may be convinced. I shall not from now 30 have much conversation with you; for the Prince of this world approaches, and he has nothing in common with Me; but this is necessary in order 31 that the world may learn that I love the Father, and act in accordance with His instructions. Arise, let us go forward from here!"

The Allegory of the Vine.

"I am the true Vine, and My Father 15 is the Cultivator. Every branch on 2 Me not bearing fruit He removes it; and He prunes every fertile branch, so that it may become still more productive. As for you, you are already 3 pruned, by means of the message which I have delivered to you. Remain on Me, for I am with you. As 4 the branch cannot be fruitful of itself, unless it remains upon the vine, so neither can you, unless you remain on Me. I am the Vine; you are the 5 branches. He who remains on Me, and I with him, produces plenty of fruit; but, severed from Me, you can produce nothing. Any one not 6 remaining on Me, is at once thrown away as a branch, and withers; they are then collected, thrown into the fire, and burned. If you remain on Me, 7 and My teaching remains in you, what you may wish, you shall ask for, and it will come to you. By this My 8 Father will be honoured, when you bear much fruit, and you will be manifestly My disciples. Just as the 9 Father has loved Me, so I have loved you: continue in His love with Me.

 10 If you keep My commands, you will continue in My love; just as I have kept the commands of My Father, 11 and continue in His love. I have spoken to you so that My delight may be in you, and your delight may be 12 perfect. My command is this: that you love one another, just as I have 13 loved you. Stronger love has no one than this, that one should lay down 14 his own life for his friends. You are My friends, if you are doing what I 15 am commanding you. I no longer call you servants; because the servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you My friends; because everything I have 16 learned from My Father I have made known to you. It was not you who chose Me, but I have chosen you.
 And I planted you in order that you might take root, and become fruitful, and your fruit continue; so that whatever you may ask the Father in My 17 Name, He may grant it you. I am giving these commands in order that 18 you may love one another. If the world hates you, you know that it 19 hated Me before hating you. Had you belonged to the world, the world would have loved its own; but because you are not of the world, but I have chosen you from out of the world, for that 20 reason the world hates you. Think of that remark which I made to you:
 'A servant is not superior to his master.' If they persecute Me, they will also persecute you. If they had 21 obeyed My message, they would obey yours as well. But they will do all this to you because of My Name, because they knew not Him Who sent 22 Me. Had I not come and spoken to them, they would not have been guilty of sin; but now they have no excuse
 23 for their sin. Those who hate Me, 24 also hate My Father. Had I not done among them deeds which have been done by no one else, they would not have been guilty of sin; as it is, they have witnessed, and have hated both 25 Me and My Father. But thus is accomplished the statement recorded in their law: 'THEY HATED ME 26 WITHOUT A CAUSE.'¹ When, however, the Helper comes, Whom I Myself will send you from the Father,
 the Spirit of the Truth, which proceeds 27 from the Father, He Himself will give evidence about Me, and you also can corroborate, because you have been with Me from the beginning."

Anti-Christian Zeal.

"All this I have told you, in order 16 that you should not falter. They will 2 expel you from their synagogues; not only so, but a time is now coming when every one who murders you will imagine that he is offering a sacrifice to God. And they will do this be- 3 cause they neither recognised the Father nor Myself. I have told you 4 all these, however, so that when the time does come for them, you may be reminded that I told you of them.
 Yet I avoided telling you at the beginning, because I was with you.
 Now, however, I am going to My 5
 Sender, and none of you ask Me,
 'Where are You going?'

The Holy Spirit and the World.

"Yet because I have spoken to you 6 in this way, your hearts are full of sadness. I have, however, told you 7 nothing but the truth. It is better for you that I should take My leave of you: because if I do not depart, the Helper will certainly not come to you; but when I depart, I will send Him to you. He, on His coming, 8 will bring conviction to the world about a Sin; and about a Rectification; and about Justice: about a Sin, 9 because they have not confided in Me; about a Rectification, when I 10 go to the Father, and you see Me no longer; about Justice, when the 11
 Leader of this Conspiracy is convicted.

The Holy Spirit as Instructor.

"I have still much more to tell 12
 you; but you are not yet able to bear it. When, however, the Spirit of 13 Truth Himself comes, He will instruct you in all the truth: for His utterances do not proceed from Himself;
 but just what He learns He will declare, and the events that are coming
 He will announce to you. He Him- 14 self will honour Me; because what He receives from Me, He will transmit to you. All that the Father possesses 15 is Mine: that is why I said, 'It is of Mine that He takes and transmits to you.' Only a little while, and you will 16 not see Me; and again a little while,
 and you shall see Me."

Sorrow Turned to Joy.

- 17 Some of His disciples then remarked one to another: "What is this that He says to us, 'Only a little while, and you will not see Me; and again a little while, and you will see Me;' and, 'Because I go to the Father?'"
- 18 So they were saying, "What is this 'little while' that He speaks of? We do not know what He means."
- 19 Jesus, perceiving that they were anxious to ask Him, said to them: "Is it about this remark of Mine that you are questioning one another, 'Only a little while, and you shall not see Me; and again a little while, and you shall see Me'?" I tell you most assuredly that you will weep and grieve, while the world will rejoice; you will be grieved, but your grief will be transformed to gladness. A woman, when she is in labour, is in agony, because her time is come; but when the child is born, she no longer remembers the pain, for the joy that a man has been born into the world.
- 22 And so for the present you are also in distress; but I will see you again, AND YOUR HEARTS WILL REJOICE, and none shall rob you of your joy.
- 23 And at that time you will request nothing from Me. I tell you truly that should you ask the Father for anything in My Name, He will grant it you. Until now you have asked nothing in My Name; ask, and you will obtain; in order that your enjoyment may be complete.

Conclusion of the Discourses.

- 25 "All these things I had told you in figures of speech. The time has come, however, when I will no longer speak to you figuratively, but plainly, about the Father Whom I announce to you. In that day you will ask in My Name; and I need not tell you that I will Myself ask the Father on your behalf:
- 27 for the Father Himself loves you, because you have loved Me, and have believed that I came from the Father.
- 28 I did come from the Father, and came to the world; now I leave the world again, and return to the Father."
- 29 His disciples remarked to Him, "Well, now You are using plain language, and are not speaking in figures.
- 30 Now we understand that You know all, and that You have no need that any one should ask You. It is from this that we believe that You did come from God."

Jesus replied to them, "Do you³¹ already believe? Why, a time comes³²—and has come—when you will be scattered hither and thither, each one to his own home, and I shall be left alone; yet I am not alone, because I have the Father with Me. All this I³³ have told you, so that you might enjoy perfect confidence in Me. In the world you have distress; but take courage! I have conquered the world."

The Prayer of Jesus: for Himself.

After speaking in this way, Jesus¹⁷ raising His eyes into the heaven, said: "Father, the time has come! perfect Your Son, so that Your Son may magnify You; for You have invested² Him with authority over all mankind, in order that He may give eternal life to all whom You have entrusted to Him. And the eternal life is this: to obtain a knowledge of You the only true God, and the Messiah Whom You have sent. I have exalted You⁴ upon the earth, by completing the work which You entrusted Me to do. So now, Father, you restore Me to⁵ the honour which I had along with Yourself before the world existed.

Prayer for the Disciples.

"I have made Your power known⁶ to the men whom You entrusted to Me out of the world. They were Your own, and You entrusted them to Me; and they have carefully observed Your message. They now⁷ know that all which You have entrusted to Me proceeds from Yourself; because the truths which You have⁸ imparted to Me, I have delivered to them. And they have accepted them, and recognised truly that I came from You; and they believed that You sent Me. It is for them that I am praying.⁹ I am not praying for the world; but for those whom You have entrusted to Me, because they are Your own. And¹⁰ all that are Mine are Yours, and Yours are Mine; and I am honoured among them. I am now no longer in the¹¹ world; but they are in the world, and I am coming to You. Holy Father, preserve by Your power those whom You have entrusted to Me; so that they may be one, as We are. While I¹² was with them, I preserved by Your power those whom You entrusted to

Me. I have guarded them, and not one of them is lost, except the son of perdition, so that the Scripture might be verified. But I am now coming to You; and I declare these facts in the world, so that they may have My own joy perfected in themselves. I have delivered Your message to them; and the world has hated them, because they are not of the world, as also I am not of the world. I do not pray that You should remove them from the world; but that You should preserve them from the wicked. They do not belong to the world, as I also do not belong to the world. Make them holy by the Truth: the message—Your own—is TRUTH. As You have sent Me into the world, I have sent them into the world. And for their sakes I made Myself holy, so that they may become holy by TRUTH.

Prayer for all Believers.

"I do not pray, however, on behalf of these alone; but also for those who shall believe in Me by means of their teaching; so that all may be one; as You, Father, are with Me, and I with You, so that they may all be one with Us, in order that the world may believe that You sent Me. And the rectification which you gave to Me I have imparted to them; so that they may be one, as We are One: I in them, and You in Me, so that they may be perfect in unity; that the world may recognise that You sent Me, and that I have loved them, as You loved Me.

Prayer for the future gathering of all Believers.

"Father, it is My desire for those whom You have entrusted to Me, that where I am, they may be also: so that they may witness the majesty which You have given to Me; because You loved Me before the foundation of the world. O Righteous Father, the world indeed knew You not; but I knew You. And these knew that You sent Me; and I have revealed to them Your power, and will continue to reveal it: in order that the love with which You loved Me may be in them, and I in them."

The Betrayal.

When Jesus had said this, He went along with His disciples across the brook of Kedron, where there was a garden, into which He Himself and His disciples entered. Now Judas, who was betraying Him, also knew the spot, because Jesus often retired there with His disciples. Judas therefore taking the troops, and some officials from the chief priests and the Pharisees, proceeded there, with lanterns, torches, and arms. Jesus then, knowing all the events that were coming upon Him, advanced, and asked them: "For whom are you looking?"

"Jesus the Nazarene," was their reply.

"I AM," Jesus answered them. Judas, who was betraying Him, was also standing with them. No sooner then had He said, "I AM," than they started backward, and fell to the ground. He therefore asked them again: "For whom are you looking?"

"Jesus the Nazarene," replied they.

"I have told you," replied Jesus, "that I AM. If you therefore want Me, let these go away." Thus was verified what He had spoken: "Of those whom You entrusted to Me, I have not lost a single one."

Simon Peter, however, having a sword, drew it; and struck the servant of the High Priest, and cut off the tip of his right ear. The name of that servant was Malchus. Jesus, however, said to Peter: "Put the sword into its scabbard. Shall I not drink the cup which the Father has given Me?"

The Judean Trial.

The troops then, headed by their colonel, and the Judean officers, arrested Jesus, and having bound Him, they conducted Him in the first instance to Annas; because he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was High Priest for that one year. Now it was Caiaphas who had advised the Judeans that "It is profitable for one man to die on behalf of the people."

Simon Peter followed Jesus, however, as well as one other disciple. That disciple, being known to the High Priest, entered the court of the High Priest along with Jesus; but Peter was standing near the outer door. The other disciple, who was known to the High Priest, accordingly went out, and spoke to the portress, and brought Peter inside. The girl who acted as portress then asked

Peter, "Are you also one of the disciples of this Man?"

"I am not," was his reply.

18 Now the servants and officials having made a charcoal fire, they were standing round and warming themselves, for it was cold; and Peter was also standing and warming himself along with them.

19 The High Priest was then examining Jesus relative to His disciples, and His teaching.

20 Jesus answered him: "I have spoken publicly to the world. I constantly taught in synagogue and in the temple, where all the Judeans are accustomed to assemble; and in secrecy I have said nothing. Why do you ask Me? Question those who heard what I said to them. They know what I said."

22 When He answered thus, one of the attendant officials struck Jesus a blow with his hand, saying, "Do you answer the High Priest in that fashion?"

23 Jesus replied to him: "If I have said anything wrong, bring proof of the wrong; but if properly, why do you strike Me?"

24 Annas then remanded Him bound to Caiaphas, the High Priest.

Peter Denies his Master.

25 Simon Peter meantime was standing and warming himself. They therefore asked him, "Are you not also one of His disciples?" He denied it, and said, "I am not."

26 One of the servants of the High Priest, a relative of the man the tip of whose ear Peter had cut off, exclaimed, "Did I not see you with Him in the garden?" Peter then denied it again; and at once the bugle sounded.¹

The Accusation before Pilate.

28 They then led Jesus from before Caiaphas to the Palace; and it was yet early; but they did not themselves enter the Palace, lest they should be polluted, and be unable to partake of the Passover. Pilate therefore went out to them, and asked, "What charge do you bring against this Man?"

30 They answered him, "If He had not been a criminal, we should not have handed Him over to you."

"Take Him yourselves, and try³¹ Him according to your own law," said Pilate, in reply to them.

The Judeans then said to him: "It is not permitted to us to put any one to death." [Thus was fulfilled the saying of Jesus, foretelling the nature of the death He was about to die.]

Pilate accordingly re-entered the Palace, and calling Jesus, asked Him, "Are You the King of the Judeans?"

"Do you say this from yourself,³⁴ or did others tell it you about Me?" asked Jesus, in reply.

Pilate exclaimed: "Am I a Judean!³⁵ Your own nation and the chief priests handed You over to me. What have You done?"

Jesus answered: "My Kingdom is not from this world. If My Kingdom were of this world, then My officers would have fought, so that I might not have been handed over to the Judeans; but, however, My Kingdom is not here."

"You are a king, then?" Pilate remarked to Him.

"You say that I am a king," replied Jesus. "I was born for this, and I have come into the world for this, that I might give evidence to the truth. Every one that is of the truth listens to Me."

Pilate asked Him: "What is³⁸ truth?"

Having said this, he again went out to the Judeans, and said to them, "I can find nothing criminal about Him. But it is a custom with you that I³⁹ should liberate some one for you at the Passover. Is it your desire, therefore, that I should liberate for you the King of the Judeans?"

They accordingly yelled out in⁴⁰ reply, "Not this Man, but Barabbas!" Now Barabbas was a robber.

Pilate, therefore, took Jesus, and¹⁹ flogged Him. And the soldiers, wreathing a crown of thorns, placed it upon His head; and, having clothed Him in a purple robe, they approached³ Him, and said: "Good health to the King of the Judeans!" assaulting Him at the same time. Pilate, going⁴ out again, said to them: "See! I bring Him out to you, so that you may know that I find nothing criminal in Him."

Jesus, therefore, came out, wearing⁵

the crown of thorns and the purple robe, when Pilate said to them: "Behold the Man!"

6 When, however, the chief priests and officials saw Him, they yelled out, saying: "Crucify! crucify!"

Pilate said to them: "Take Him yourselves and crucify; for I find no crime in Him."

7 "We have a law, and, according to that law, He ought to die," the Judeans replied to him; "because He made Himself out to be a Son of a God."

8 When Pilate, however, heard this statement, he became still more terrified; and, re-entering the Palace, he

9 asked Jesus, "Where do You come from?" But Jesus gave him no answer. Pilate, addressing Him, therefore said: "Will You not speak to me? Do You not know that I have power to discharge You, and have power to crucify You?"

11 Jesus replied to him, "You have no power whatever over Me other than what may be granted to you from above. Therefore, the one who delivered Me up to you is the greater sinner."

12 Pilate hereupon endeavoured to discharge Him; but the Judeans were shrieking out: "If you discharge Him, you are not the friend of Cæsar! Any man setting himself up as king, is a traitor against the Emperor."

13 When Pilate, therefore, heard these threats, he brought Jesus out, and seated himself upon the bench in a place named The Pavement [but Gabbatha in Hebrew]. It was now the preparation-day for the Passover. It was about twelve o'clock. Addressing the Judeans, he said: "Behold your King!"

15 "Get off! get off!" they yelled out in reply; "crucify Him!"

"Shall I crucify your King?" exclaimed Pilate to them.

"We have no king but Cæsar," was the response of the chief priests.

16 He then accordingly delivered Him over to them, that He might be crucified.

The Crucifixion.

17 They therefore took Jesus; and He went out, carrying the cross for Himself, to the spot called "Skull-field," which, in the Hebrew, is named Gолгоtha; where they crucified Him, and with Him two others, one on each side, and Jesus in the middle. Pilate 19 had also written an inscription, and placed it upon the cross; and the words were, "JESUS THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JUDEANS."

Many of the Judeans, accordingly, 20 read this inscription; because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek. The 21 chief priests of the Judeans, therefore, said to Pilate: "Do not write, 'The King of the Judeans'; but merely that 'He said, I am King of the Judeans.'"

"What I have written," replied 22 Pilate, "I have written."

Dividing His Garments.

Then, when the soldiers had nailed 23 Jesus to the cross, they took His clothes, and, dividing them into four, gave to each soldier a share. They also took the robe, which, however, was seamless, knitted throughout from the top. They accordingly remarked 24 to each other: "Do not let us tear it, but let us throw for it, whose it shall be"; thus verifying the Scripture which said:

THEY DIVIDED MY CLOTHING
AMONG THEM;

AND OVER MY ROBE THEY THREW
DICE.¹

This was what the soldiers did.

Jesus, His Mother, and John.

But there were standing near the 25 cross of Jesus His own mother, His mother's sister, Mary, the Mary of Clopas, as well as Mary the Magdalene. When Jesus, therefore, saw His 26 mother, and the disciple whom He loved, standing near, He said to His mother: "Mother, see your son!" 27 He then said to the disciple: "See, that is your mother!" And from that hour the disciple took her to his own home.

"It is Finished."

After this, Jesus seeing that all was 28 now completed, so that the Scripture might be fulfilled, said: "I THIRST."² A vessel full of vinegar was standing 29 at hand; so, filling a sponge with the vinegar, they fastened it to a cane, and held it up to His mouth. Then, when 30 Jesus had received the vinegar, He said: "It is finished!" and bowing His head, He resigned His Spirit.

² Psalm lxxix. 21.

31 The Judeans, therefore, since it was preparation-day—for that day was the Great Day of the Week of Rest—so that the bodies might not remain on the cross on the Sabbath, requested Pilate that they might be removed 32 after their legs were broken. The soldiers, therefore, came and broke the legs of the first, as well as of the other one crucified along with Him; but when they came to Jesus, and seeing that He was already dead, they did not break His legs. One of the soldiers, however, with a spear pierced His side; when blood and water at once issued from it.

The Gospel attested.

35 And the eye-witness gives this evidence, and his evidence is truthful; and he himself knows that he speaks true, so that you may believe. For these events happened, in order that the Scripture might be verified: A BONE OF HIM SHALL NOT BE BROKEN.¹ Again, the Scripture elsewhere says: THEY SHALL GAZE UPON HIM WHOM THEY HAVE PIERCED.²

Joseph of Arimathea.

38 After this, Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus, but a secret one, owing to his dread of the Judeans, begged of Pilate to be allowed to take away the body of Jesus; and Pilate granted him permission. He accordingly came and took away His body. And Nicodemus, who in the first instance came to Him by night, also came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, weighing about a hundred 40 pounds. They, therefore, took the body of Jesus, and wrapped it up in a winding-sheet, along with the aromatics, in accordance with the custom of the Judeans when burying. Now, in proximity to the spot where He was crucified, there was a garden; and in this garden there was a new tomb, in which no one had ever been placed.
42 There, then, the tomb being near, they deposited Jesus, on account of the preparation-day of the Judeans.

The First Evidence of the Resurrection.

20 Now on the first day following the Sabbaths,³ while it was early, in fact,

² Zech. xii. 10.

³ This is literally according to the Greek text; and it is important to observe that at that still dusk, Mary the Magdalene went to the tomb, and observed that the stone had been removed from its entrance. She therefore came running to Simon Peter, and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and said to them: "They have taken away the Master out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have placed Him."

Peter therefore went out, along with the other disciple, and came to the tomb. They started running together; but the other disciple running more quickly than Peter, arrived first at the tomb, and stooping down, he observed the winding-sheet lying there; he did not, however, enter. Then Simon Peter, who was following him, also arrived, and entered into the tomb; when he saw how the grave clothes lay, as well as the napkin which had been upon His head, not lying with the winding-sheet, but folded up apart in a place by itself. The other disciple, who arrived first, then also entered the tomb, and saw and believed. [For they did not as yet understand the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead.] These disciples accordingly returned to their own companions.

Jesus appears to Mary the Magdalene.

Mary, however, stood outside, near the sepulchre, weeping. So crying, as she was, she stooped down to look into the tomb, when she saw two angels in white, sitting, one at the head, the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

Addressing her, they asked, "Why, woman, are you weeping?"

"Because they have taken away my Lord," was her answer, "and I do not know where they have placed Him." Having said this, she turned round, and saw Jesus Himself standing there, and did not perceive that it was Jesus.

Jesus said to her, "Woman, why do you weep? what do you seek?"

particular period, two Sabbaths, or days of sacred rest, actually fell together in the Jewish calendar. The Crucifixion took place on Thursday, not on a Friday, as is popularly supposed. This allows for the Lord Jesus having been held in the grip of death for three full days and three nights. (See Introduction to Westcott and Hort's Greek Testament.) This was Thursday, March 17th A. D. 29.

She, thinking that it was the gardener, said to Him: "Sir, if You have removed Him from here, tell me where You have placed Him, and I will take Him away."

- 16 Jesus addressed her: "Mary!" Turning round, she exclaimed in Hebrew, "Rabboni!" which means "Master!"
- 17 Jesus said to her, "Touch Me not, because I have not as yet ascended to the Father. Go to My brothers, however, and tell them, 'I go up to My Father and your Father; and My God and your God!'"
- 18 Mary the Magdalene came reporting to the disciples: "I have seen the Lord"; and what He had said to her.

Manifestation to the Ten.

- 19 On the evening therefore of that same day, the first after the Sabbaths, the doors having been shut where the disciples were, owing to dread of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them, and said to them: "Peace to you!" And having said this, He showed them His hands as well as His side. The disciples were accordingly delighted at seeing the LORD.
- 21 He therefore said to them again: "Peace to you! As the Father sent Me, so in the same way I send you."
- 22 And having said this, He infused Himself into them,¹ and said, "Receive Holy Spirit. If you expel sins from any, they will be free. If you subdue them, they shall be subdued."

Manifestation to Thomas and others.

- 24 Now Thomas, one of the twelve, called the Twin, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore told him: "We have seen the Lord." In reply to them, however, he said: "Unless I can see the impression of the nails in His hands, and can put my finger in the nail-holes, and can put my hand into His side, I shall certainly never believe it."
- 26 Eight days afterwards, the disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Although the doors were locked, Jesus appeared standing among them, and said: "Peace to you." Then to Thomas He said: "Reach your finger here, and look at My hands, and reach your hand, and thrust it into My side. Do not be unbelieving, but a believer."

¹ Gen. II., end of verse 7.

"My LORD and my GOD!" exclaimed Thomas, in reply to Him.

"Because you have seen Me, you have believed," answered Jesus; "happy they who have not seen, yet are believers."

Many other evidences were also produced by Jesus in the presence of His disciples, which are not recorded in this narrative. But these are recorded in order that you may believe that He is the Messiah, the Son of God; and believing, that you might become possessed of life by means of His power.

The Marvellous Take of Fish.

After this, Jesus again manifested Himself to His disciples at the Lake of Tiberias. And He appeared in this way: there were together, Simon Peter, Thomas, called the Twin, Nathanael of Cana, in Galilee, the Zebedees, as well as two more of his disciples. Simon Peter remarked to them: "I am going to fish." "We are also coming with you," was their reply. They went off, and entered into a boat; but during that night they caught nothing. When, however, the day began to dawn, Jesus stood upon the beach. The disciples, nevertheless, failed to recognise that it was Jesus.

Jesus, therefore, called to them: "Lads, have you caught anything to eat?"

"No," was their answer.

He accordingly said to them: "Throw your net upon the right side of the boat, and you will find some."

They, therefore, cast, and then found they were no longer able to haul it in, owing to the quantity of fish. That disciple whom Jesus loved then observed to Peter: "It is the Lord."

So when Simon Peter learned that it was the Lord, he slipped on his jacket (for he was stripped), and flung himself into the water. The other disciples, however, being only about a hundred yards distant from the shore, landed in the small boat, dragging the net with the fish. When they had got out upon the shore, they observed a charcoal fire, with fish and a cake placed upon it.

"Pick from the fish which you have now caught," said Jesus to them.

Simon Peter accordingly went and drew the net upon the beach, full of large fish, to the number of one hundred and fifty-three; and although there were so many, the net was not broken.

- 12 "Come, have your breakfast," said Jesus to them. And none of the disciples ventured to ask Him, "Who are You?" perceiving, as they did, 13 that it was the Lord. Jesus drew near, took the cake, and distributed among them, as well as of the fish.
 14 This was now the third occasion on which Jesus was manifested to the disciples after He had risen from the dead.

Peter's Affection for Jesus.

- 15 Now when they had breakfasted, Jesus said to Simon Peter: "Simon, son of John, are you My friend more than these?"
 "Yes, Master," he said, in reply: "You know that I love You."
 "Feed My lambs," said He.
 16 Again a second time He asked him: "Simon, son of John, are you My friend?"
 "Yes, Master," was his answer; "You know that I love You."
 17 "Shepherd My sheep." For the third time He asked him: "Simon, son of John, do you love Me."
 Peter was grieved because He asked him the third time, "Do you love Me?" and, in reply, he said to Him, "Lord, You know all; You know I love You." Jesus replied to him: "Feed My little sheep."
 18 Most assuredly I tell you, that when you were younger, you dressed yourself, and went wherever you liked; but when you get older, you will hold out your hands, when another will dress you, and carry you where you do not desire."

[He said this, intimating the nature 19 of the death by which he would pay honour to God.] And, having spoken this, He said to him: "Follow Me."

Peter, turning round, saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following—the one who lay near His breast at the supper, and asked: "Who, Master, is the one who is betraying You?" Peter, therefore, seeing him, said to 21 Jesus:

"But what about this one, Lord?"
 Jesus replied to him: "If I decide 22 for him to remain until I come, what is that to you? You must follow Me."

[This remark, therefore, led to a 23 general impression among the brothers that that particular disciple would not die. Jesus, however, did not say that he would not die, but, "If I decide for him to remain until I come, what is that to you?"]

Postscript.

It is this disciple who attests these 24 events, and wrote this narrative; and we know that his evidence is truth.

And very many more were the acts 25 of Jesus, which, were they to be severally related, I imagine the world itself could not contain the volume that would be written.

ADDRESS OF THE EVANGELIST TO HIS READERS.

COMMONLY CALLED

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE

JOHN

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.—I have appended "The First Epistle of John" to his Gospel, as it is evidently the concluding section of the same, and forms a perfect summary of the essentials of the Gospel Message. It would seem to have been added to the Ephesian edition of the Gospel by the Evangelist about A.D. 90, and not issued with the Jerusalem edition written shortly after the Crucifixion. This section forms an address from the writer to his readers, from which it is clearly seen why he merely recorded a few of the conversations of his Master, instead of writing an exhaustive history of His life.—F. F.

1 HE was from the beginning—Whom we have heard; Whom we have seen with our eyes; Whom we have contemplated; and our hands have felt, accompanying the LIVING 2 WORD: for the LIFE was manifested; and we have seen Him and have given evidence, and proclaim to you the LIFE Who was eternal, Who existed with the Father, and was 3 manifested to us—What we have seen and heard, we also declare to you, in order that you might be participators with ourselves; yes, and our union is with the Father, and with His Son 4 Jesus Christ. And we have written this, in order that your delight might be complete.
5 This, moreover, is the announcement which we have learned from Him, and convey to you: namely, that 6 GOD IS LIGHT, and darkness in Him there is none. If we say that we are in union with Him, and still follow the darkness, we are false, and act 7 not up to the Truth. But if, on the other hand, we follow the Light (as He Himself is in the light), we are in union with each other; and the blood of Jesus, His Son, purifies us 8 from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the 9 Truth is foreign to us. If we acknowledge our sins, He is faithful and just although he should take away our sins, and purify us from all our unright-10 eousness. If we deny that we have committed sin, we make Him false, and we do not grasp His doctrine.
11 My little children, I write this to you, in order that you may not sin.
And if any one should sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous. And He is an 2 offering for our sins; and not for ours alone, but also for all the world.

3 And by this we recognise that we know Him, if we observe His commands. Whoever says, "I know 4 Him," and fails to observe His commands, is a liar, and the Truth is not 5 in him. But whoever observes His message, the love of God is undoubtedly perfected in him. By this we recognise that we are in Him. Who-6 ever says that he remains in Him, ought to conduct himself in the same way as He conducted Himself.

Dear friends, I write to you no new 7 command; but on the contrary, an old command, the same which you possessed from the beginning. The old command is the message which you learned. Again, I write you a 8 new command, which is true in itself and also in you; because the darkness is clearing away, and the true Light already shines. Whoever,
9 therefore, says he is in the Light, yet hates his brother, is even until now in the darkness. Whoever loves 10 his brother, dwells in the Light; and there is no stumbling-block in 11 him. Whoever hates his brother, however, is in the darkness; he walks in the dark, and knows not where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

I write to you, little children, be-12 cause your sins are expelled through His Name. I write to you, fathers, 13 because you have known Him from the beginning. I write to you, young men, because you have conquered the

- Wicked One. I have written to you, youths, because you know the Father.
- 14 I have written to you, fathers, because you have recognised Him from the beginning. I have written to you, young men, because you are strong; and the message of God rests in you, and you have conquered the Wicked
- 15 One. Cherish neither the world, nor yet what is in the world. If any one cherishes the world, the affection of
- 16 the Father is not in him; because all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—are not from the Father,
- 17 but they are from the world. The world passes away, and its lusts; but he who works out the purpose of God continues for ever.
- 18 Youths, it is the last period; and, as you have learned that Antichrist would come—and already many antichrists have come—we consequently
- 19 know that it is the last period. They went out from among us, but they did not belong to us; because if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us. They left, however, in order that it might be evident that
- 20 they were not connected with us. But you hold a sacred appointment from
- 21 the Holy One. You know all. I have not written to you because you are ignorant of the truth; but because you do know it, and because nothing false can proceed from the truth.
- 22 Who is the liar, if not the one who denies that Jesus is the Messiah? He is the antagonist of Christ who denies
- 23 the Father and the Son. Whoever denies the Son, never has the Father. Whoever confesses the Son, possesses
- 24 the Father also. You, continue in what you learned from the beginning. If what you learned from the first remains with you, you will continue in union with the Son, and in union with the
- 25 Father. And this is the promise which He promised to us, the Life Eternal.
- 26 I have written this to you on account of those who would mislead
- 27 you. And as for you, the sacred appointment which you received from Him, retain it with you; and then you will require no other teacher; but this, His consecration, will teach you about everything; and it is truthful, and not false; and as He has taught you, hold on to Him.
- 28 And now, little children, abide in Him; so that at His appearance we may enjoy perfect freedom, and not feel ashamed about Him in His presence. If you know that He is righteous, you will also recognise that every one who acts righteously is born of Him,

Just think what a wealth of love the Father has lavished upon us, in order that we might be called children of God; and such we are! For this reason the world does not know us, because it did not know Him. Friends, we are now children of God; and it is not yet revealed what we shall become. But we do know that when He is manifested, we shall be like Him; because we shall see Him as He actually is. And every one who has this hope in Him will purify himself, as He is pure. Every one who commits sin acts lawlessly, for sin is broken law. You know also that He was manifested to remove sins; and He is sinless. All who continue with Him will not sin. Whoever sins has neither seen Him nor known Him.

Dear children, let none deceive you. Whoever practises righteousness is righteous, just as He is righteous. Whoever practises sin is from the Devil; for the Devil sinned from the first.

This was the purpose for which the Son of God was manifested, namely, that He might destroy the works of the Devil. Every one born from God does not practise sin; because His principle of life continues in him; and he does not value sinning, because he has been born from God. By means of this the children of God are manifest, as well as the children of the Devil. Whoever does not practise righteousness is not from God; nor yet is he who does not love his brother. Because this is the doctrine which you learned from the first, that we should love one another; not being impelled by the Wicked One, as Cain was, who murdered his brother. And on account of what did he murder him? Because his own practices were wicked, and those of his brother righteous.

Do not, brothers, be surprised if the world hates you. We know that we are transplanted out of death into life, when we love the brotherhood. Whoever does not love remains in death. Whoever hates his brother is a murderer; and you know that no murderer ever has eternal life existing 16 in him. His love is known to us from the fact that He laid down His own life for our sakes; so we ought also to lay down our lives for the sake of our 17 brothers. But whoever possesses the means of livelihood in this world, and sees his brother in want, yet locks up his pity from him, how can the love of 18 God dwell in him? Children, let us not love in pretence, nor with the tongue; 19 but in act and truth. By this we shall know that we are of the truth, and may tranquillize our heart in His presence; and our mind can discover that God is greater than our heart; 21 when all will be clear. Friends, even if our heart should not discover it, we have free approach to God; and what we may ask we shall receive from Him, when we regard His commands, and practise those virtues in 23 His sight. This also is His command, that we should believe in the Name of His Son, Jesus Christ, and love one another as earnestly as He gave us an instruction. And the observer of His commands remains in Him, and He in him. And by this we recognise that He dwells in us, by the Spirit with which He has endowed us.

4 Friends, do not believe every thinker; but test the teachings, whether they emanate from God: because many false teachers have gone out into the world. By this you can recognise the teacher from God: every teacher acknowledging that Jesus Christ came bodily is from God; and every teacher who does not acknowledge Jesus is not from God. This, then, is the test of the antagonist of Christ, whose coming you have heard of; and 4 now he is already in the world. You, children, are from God, and have defeated them; because the One Who is with you is mightier than the one who is in the world.

5 They belong to the world; their conversation is therefore worldly, and 6 the world listens to them. We are from God: whoever recognises God, listens to us; whoever does not proceed from God, regards us not. By this we can discern the spirit of Truth, as well as the spirit of Error.

7 Let us love one another, friends, because love is from God; and every one who loves is born from God, and 8 knows God. He who does not love, does not know God; for GOD IS 9 LOVE. The love of God was displayed in our own case, when God sent His only-begotten Son to the world, so that we might live by means of Him. Here was the love; not that we loved 10 God, but that He loved us, and sent His own Son as a reconciliation for our sins. Friends, if God loved us so 11 much, we ought also to love one another. No one has at any time 12 seen God. If we love one another, God dwells in us, and His love is perfected in us. By this we recognise that we 13 dwell in Him, and He in us, because He has endowed us with His own Spirit. And we have also seen, and 14 are giving evidence, that the Father has sent the Son a Saviour of the world. Whoever shall acknowledge 15 that Jesus is the Son of God, God remains in him, and he in God. And 16 we realise and rely upon the love which God has for us.

GOD IS LOVE; and whoever continues in love, dwells in God, and God in him. His love with us will be 17 perfected when we have free access in the Day of Judgment; because as He Himself is, we also shall be, in that world. There is no fear in love. But 18 perfect love expels fear, because fear is torture; and whoever is in fear has not reached the perfection of love. We love, because He first loved 19 us. If any one says, "I love God," 20 yet hates his brother, he is a liar; because whoever does not love his brother whom he has seen, cannot love God Whom he has not seen. This command, moreover, we have 21 received from Him—that the lover of God should also love his own brother.

Every one who believes that Jesus 5 is the Messiah is born from God; and every one loving the Father should love His offspring. We know that we 2 love the children of God, when we love God, and practise His commands.

For this is the love of God, that we 3 should keep His commands; and His commands are not burdensome. Be- 4 cause every one born from God conquers the world; and this is the conquest which has conquered the world—our faith. Who is the conqueror of 5 the world, if not the believer that Jesus is the Son of God?

That is Jesus the Messiah, Who 6 came through water and blood; not in the water only, but in the Water, and in the Blood; and the Spirit is the Witness; that Spirit Who is

7 the Truth—that there are three 8 who give evidence—the Spirit, and the Human Nature and the Earthly Life ; 9 and these three were in that One.¹ If we accept the evidence of men, the evidence of God is stronger ; and this is the evidence of God which He 10 adduced concerning His Son. The believer in the Son of God possesses the evidence in himself. Whoever disbelieves Him represents Him to be a liar ; because he relies not upon the evidence which God has 11 adduced concerning His Son. And this is the evidence—that God has granted to us eternal life ; and the 12 same life that exists in His Son. The possessor of the Son possesses that life ; whoever does not possess the Son of God does not possess that life.
 13 These facts I have written to you, in order that you may recognise that you are the possessors of everlasting life, and that you may believe upon 14 the Name of the Son of God. And this is the privilege which we possess towards Him, that if we ask for anything in accordance with His intention,

 He listens to us ; and if we are 15 assured that He hears us, whatever we may be asking, we know that we shall have the requests that we ask from Him.

If any one sees his brother sinning 16 a sin, if not a deadly one, should he ask, then He must grant him life for those not sinning mortally. There is mortal sin ; I do not say that he should supplicate about it. All in- 17 justice is sin ; and there is sin not mortal.

We know that whoever is born from 18
 God, will not sin ; on the contrary, he who is born from God guards himself, and the Wicked One does not touch him. We know that we are 19 from God ; but the whole world trusts in the Wicked One. We know also 20 that the Son of God has come, and has endowed us with intellect, so that we can recognise the True ; and we are in that Truth, with His Son
 Jesus, the Messiah. This is Divine Truth and Eternal Life. Dear chil- 21
 dren, guard yourselves from idolatry.

EDITORIAL NOTE ON ST. JOHN'S GOSPEL.—Long and careful study of St. John's Gospel has convinced me that we have in it a translation of an original Hebrew work of the Apostle into Greek, by the Evangelist himself, or under his own eye, in his old age, for use by his Greek converts, after the destruction of Jerusalem. To this he clearly has added commentarial notes incorporated by transcribers with the text, and these have led some to imagine it the last instead of the first Gospel.—I have put these comments into brackets [—] in this edition at the desire of several readers.—F.F.

NOTE ON VERSES 5 TO 8.—This rendering is that of the Evangelist's thought in his native Hebrew idiom, as if we put the words back to Hebrew can be seen according to the use of the word וְ in Moses and elsewhere.—F.F.

The Woman taken in Adultery.¹

(JOHN vii. 53; viii. 1—11.)

The narrative of the sinful woman (chap. vii. 53 to chap. viii. 11) is rejected by the most competent authorities as a spurious interpolation. The question will be found fully discussed in the Introduction to the larger edition of Westcott and Hort's Greek New Testament (page 299, section 388); and it is given as their opinion that this particular passage "has no right to a place in the Text of the Four Gospels." The language of the MSS. containing the passage varies considerably; but the generally accepted reading I have added here at the end of St. John's Gospel, where it is placed as an appendix for reference.—F.F.

53 [Every one then went to his own home.

8 Jesus, however, went to the Mount

2 of Olivet. And in the early morning

He returned again to the temple, and all the people came up to Him; and 3 sitting down, He taught them. The professors and Pharisees then brought forward a woman discovered committing adultery; and placing her in the centre, they addressed Him;

4 "Teacher, this woman has been caught in the very act of committing

5 adultery. Now Moses, in the law, ordered us to stone such as her; what,

then, do You say about her?"

6 They said this, however, for the purpose of entrapping Him, in order that they might lay an information against Him. Jesus, however, stooped down, and wrote upon the ground with His finger. But as they continued to 7 question Him, He raised Himself, and said to them: "Whoever among you is without sin, let him throw at her the first stone."

And again stooping down, He wrote 8

upon the ground with His finger. And 9

His hearers, being conscience-stricken, crept out one by one, beginning from the oldest down to the youngest;

Jesus being left alone, and the woman standing where she was in the centre.

Jesus then raising Himself, and seeing 10

none but the woman, He said to her:

"Why, woman, where are your accusers? Has no one passed sentence upon you?"

"None, Sir," was her reply. 11

"Neither do I pass sentence upon you," said Jesus; "go, from this moment sin no more."

THE GOSPEL AS RECORDED BY ST. MATTHEW.

The Genealogy of Jesus.

- 1 THE record of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham.
- 2 Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Judah and his brothers; and Judah begat Phares and Zarah by Thamar; and Phares begat Hesrom; and Hesrom begat Aram; and Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat Naasson; and Naasson begat Salmon; and Salmon begat Boez by Rahab; and Boez begat Obed by Ruth; and Obed begat Jesse; and Jesse begat David the king.
- David the king begat Solomon by the widow of Uriah; and Solomon begat Rehoboam; and Rehoboam begat Abia; and Abia begat Asaph; and Asaph begat Josaphat; and Josaphat begat Joram; and Joram begat Oziah; and Oziah begat Jotham; and Jotham begat Achaz; and Achaz begat Hezekiah; and Hezekiah begat Manasseh; and Manasseh begat Amos; and Amos begat Josiah; and Josiah begat Jechoniah and his brothers, about the time of the transportation into Babylon.
- 12 And after the transportation into Babylon, Jechoniah begat Salathiel; and Salathiel begat Zorobabel; and Zorobabel begat Abiud; and Abiud begat Eliakim; and Eliakim begat Azor; and Azor begat Sadok; and Sadok begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud; and Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Mathan; and Mathan begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary; from her was born Jesus, the Appointed MESSIAH.¹
- 17 Thus all the generations from Abraham to David were fourteen generations; and from David to the transportation into Babylon were fourteen generations; and from the transportation into Babylon to the Messiah were fourteen generations.

The Birth of Jesus.

However, the origin of Jesus the 18 Messiah was thus: Mary, His mother, was promised in marriage to Joseph; but before their union, she was found to have conceived from the Holy Spirit. Her husband Joseph, 19 however, was a righteous man; and not wishing to degrade her, felt inclined to divorce her privately. But while reflecting about it, he saw 20 a messenger from the Lord appear to him during a vision, saying:

"Joseph, son of David, you need not be afraid to accept your wife Mary; for what is conceived in her was produced by the Holy Spirit. And she will give birth to a Son, and 21 you shall name Him JESUS; for He will save His people from their sins."

Now all this took place so that the 22 statement of the Lord, as recorded by His prophet, might be fulfilled:

BEHOLD, THE VIRGIN SHALL CON- 23
CEIVE,

AND GIVE BIRTH TO A SON; AND THEY SHALL CALL HIS NAME
EMMANUEL,¹ which, when translated, means, THE

GOD AMONG US.

Then Joseph, having awakened 24 from his sleep, did as the messenger of the Lord commanded him, and accepted his wife; but kept apart 25 from her until she had given birth to her Son: and he named Him JESUS.

The Visit of the Magi.²

Soon after the birth of Jesus, in 2 Bethlehem of Judea, during the reign of King Herod, there arrived in Jerusalem Magi from the east, who inquired: "Where is the newly-born 2 King of the Jews? for we have seen His star in the east, and we have come to pay Him homage."

When Herod the king heard this, 3 he was terrified, and all Jerusalem with him. So assembling the chief 4 priests and professors, he demanded of them where the Messiah would be born. They replied, "In Bethlehem of Judea"; for it is recorded by the prophet:

6 AND YOU, BETHLEHEM, JUDAH'S LAND, ARE NOT THE LEAST AMONG THE DISTRICTS OF JUDAH; FOR OUT OF YOU SHALL COME THE LEADER, WHO SHALL SHEPHERD MY PEOPLE ISRAEL.¹

7 Then Herod, having privately interviewed the Magi, ascertained from them the exact time when the star made its appearance. He then sent them to Bethlehem, remarking, "When you arrive, ascertain very carefully everything about that Child; and when you have discovered all, inform me, so that I may also come and pay Him homage."

9 Having listened to the king, they accordingly proceeded on their way; and observed that the star which they had seen at its rising, went before them, until arriving, it rested above the place where the Child was. When they observed the star, they rejoiced with very great delight. And having come to the house, they saw the young Child with His mother Mary; and prostrating themselves, they paid Him homage: and having opened their treasures, they presented Him with gold, frankincense, and myrrh, as a tribute. And having been instructed by a dream not to return to Herod, they accordingly departed to their own country by another road.

The Flight into Egypt.

13 After their departure, a messenger from the Lord also appeared to Joseph in a vision, saying: "Arise! take the child and His mother, and fly to Egypt, and remain there until I tell you; for Herod is about to hunt out the Child to murder Him."

14 Arising, he accordingly took the Child and His mother by night, and removed to Egypt, remaining there until the death of Herod; so that the statement from the Lord, through the prophet, might be fulfilled, which declared

I CALLED MY SON OUT OF EGYPT.²

² Hosea xi. 1.

The Massacre of the Innocents.

Then Herod, when he found that he had been deceived by the Magi, was savagely furious; and sending to Bethlehem, he murdered all the male children there, as well as all that were in the neighbourhood, from two years of age and under, so as to include the date which he had ascertained from the Magi. Then was fulfilled what was spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

I HEARD A SOUND OF GRIEF IN RAMAH,

WEeping AND GREAT ANGUISH: RACHEL WEeping FOR HER CHILDREN:

AND SHE CANNOT BE CONSOLED, BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT.¹

When Herod was dead, however, a messenger of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a vision, while in Egypt, and said: "Arise! take the Child and His mother, and go into the land of Israel; for they are dead who sought the Child's life."

He then arose, took the Child and His mother, and came into the land of Israel. Hearing, however, that Archelaus reigned over Judea in the place of his father Herod, he was afraid to return there; and having been also warned by a dream, he withdrew into the district of Galilee. And on arriving, he settled in a town named Nazareth; so that the prediction through the prophet was fulfilled which said that he should be considered a NAZARENE.²

The Mission of John.

Some time after this period, John the Baptizer began to proclaim in the desert of Judea: "Reform! for the Kingdom of Heaven is near."

This man was the one foretold by the prophet Isaiah, where he says:

A VOICE CALLING OUT IN THE DESERT, PREPARE THE ROAD FOR THE LORD, MAKE STRAIGHT THE PATHWAY FOR HIS FEET.³

Now John himself had his clothing of camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist; and his food was locusts and wild honey.

Then Jerusalem, and the people about Judea, as well as the whole neighbourhood of Jordan, went to

6 him; and were baptized by him in the Jordan, when they had confessed 7 their sins. But observing many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he addressed them, saying:

"Spawn of vipers! who has directed 8 you to fly from the future fury? Produce then fruit displaying your conversion; and do not in your pride 9 say to yourselves, 'We have our ancestor Abraham'; for I tell you that God is able, even from these stones, to raise up children to Abraham. But the axe now lies at the root of the trees; every tree therefore which does not produce good fruit, will be cut down and thrown into the fire.

11 "I indeed baptize you in water, preparatory to conversion; but the One Who follows me is far stronger than I. I am not even worthy to carry His shoes. He will baptize you in the 12 Holy Spirit and fire. His winnower is in His hand, and He will perfectly cleanse His threshing-floor, and collect His wheat into the granary; while He will consume the chaff with inextinguishable fire."

13 Jesus also came from Galilee to the Jordan, applying to John to be baptized by him. John, however, wished to dissuade Him, saying: "It is more necessary for me to be baptized by You; and yet You would come to me!" 15 But Jesus replied, "Allow it for the present; for it is appointed thus to us to do all that is right." He then permitted Him.

16 And when Jesus had been baptized, He immediately came out from the water. And the heavens were opened to Him; and He saw the Spirit of 17 God descending like a dove, and coming and resting upon Him; and then a voice from the heavens said: "This is My Son, My Beloved, in Whom I have delight."

The Temptation of Jesus.

4 Jesus then went up into the desert, under the influence of the Spirit, to be 2 tried by the agency of the Devil. And having fasted forty days and forty nights, He at last became hungry.

3 The Tempter then approached Him, and said: "If you are a Son of God, order these stones to become loaves."

4 But Jesus in reply said: "It is written, MAN DOES NOT LIVE ON BREAD ALONE; BUT UPON EVERY WORD PASSING THROUGH THE MOUTH OF GOD."¹

Then the Devil, carrying Him into 5 the holy city, placed Him upon the high porch of the temple, and said 6 to Him: "If You are a Son of God, throw Yourself down; for it is recorded that

HE WILL COMMAND HIS ANGELS CONCERNING YOU, TO SUPPORT YOU WITH THEIR HANDS,

SO THAT YOU CANNOT DASH YOUR FOOT AGAINST THE PAVEMENT.²

Jesus in reply to him said: "And it 7 is elsewhere written, YOU SHALL NOT TEMPT THE LORD YOUR GOD."³

Again, the Devil carrying Him up 8 a very high mountain, pointed out to Him all the kingdoms of that region, and the splendour of them, and said 9 to Him: "I will give You all these, if You will pay me homage."

But Jesus in reply to him said: 10 "Begone, Satan! for it is written, YOU SHALL REVERENCE THE LORD, AND PAY HOMAGE TO HIM ALONE."⁴

The Devil then left Him, and angels 11 at once approached and ministered to Him.

Now Jesus, having heard that John 12 was betrayed, moved into Galilee; and leaving Nazareth, He went to 13 live in Capernaum by the sea, in the borders of Zebulon and Naphthali; so 14 that the prediction delivered through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled, which says:

OVER THE JORDAN, NEAR THE 15 SEA,

IN THE LAND OF ZEBULON, AND NAPHTHAL'S LAND,

IN THE HEATHEN GALILEE, THE PEOPLE LIVING IN DARKNESS 16

SAW A GREAT LIGHT; WHILE IN SOLITUDE CROUCHED,

AND THE SHADOW OF DEATH, A LIGHT HAS BEFORE THEM BURST 17

OUT.⁵

From that time Jesus began to 17 claim and say, "Change your minds: for the Kingdom of Heaven approaches!"

Choosing His Apostles.

While walking along the coast of 18 the sea of Galilee, He observed two brothers, Simon surnamed Peter, and his brother Andrew, throwing a cast-

 19 fishermen. Speaking to them, He said, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men."
 20 And immediately abandoning their nets, they followed Him.
 21 And going from there, He saw two other brothers, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in the boat along with their father, mending their nets; and He hailed them. And at once abandoning the boat and their father, they followed Him.
 22 Jesus then went through all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the good news of the Kingdom, as well as curing every kind of disease and infirmity among the 24 people. And the report about Him spread throughout all Syria; and they brought to Him all those who were afflicted with different mental diseases and sufferings—demoniacs, lunatics, and paralytics—and He restored them to health.
 25 And great crowds followed Him from Galilee, Decapolis, Jerusalem, and Judea, as well as from the other side of the Jordan.

The Sermon on the Mount.

- 5 Now observing those crowds, He ascended the hill; and seating Himself, His disciples approached Him. Then having opened His mouth, He addressed them as follows:
 3 "Blessed are the gentle in spirit; for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven.
 4 "Blessed are the sufferers; for they shall be comforted.
 5 "Blessed are the kind-hearted; for they shall inherit the earth.
 6 "Blessed are the hungering and thirsting for righteousness; for they shall be satisfied.
 7 "Blessed are the merciful; for they shall secure mercy.
 8 "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God Himself.
 9 "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be declared God's own sons.
 10 "Blessed are the persecuted on account of righteousness; because the Kingdom of Heaven is theirs.
 11 "You are blessed whenever they curse and persecute you, and say every vile thing against you, falsely, because 12 of Me. Be glad and delighted! because your reward in heaven will be great; for so they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

"You are the salt of the earth; but if the salt should lose its strength, with what can itself be salted? It is then good for nothing, but to be flung out and trodden under foot by mankind.

"You are the light of the world. A town built upon a hill cannot be concealed. A lamp is never lighted and placed under a corn measure, but upon the lampstand; and it gives light to all those in the house. Thus let your light shine in the presence of mankind; so that they may see your good conduct, and praise your Father Who is in heaven.

"Do not imagine that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets; I have not come to abolish, but to complete them. For I tell you indeed, that until the heavens and the earth shall pass away, a single dot or hairstroke shall not disappear from the law, until all has been completed. If, therefore, any one shall make light of one of the least of its commands, and shall teach men so, he shall be declared the least in the Kingdom of Heaven; but whoever teaches them and acts up to them, he shall be great in the Kingdom of Heaven. For I tell you that if your righteousness does not surpass that of the professors and Pharisees, you can by no means enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

The Law Explained.

"You have heard that it was said by the ancients, You shall not murder; and if a man should murder, he would be liable to punishment. But I tell you, that every man quarrelling with his brother will be liable to punishment; and if he should call his brother 'Scoundrel,' he will be liable to the High Court of Justice; and whoever shall call his brother 'Rebel,' will be liable to the branding by fire. Therefore, even if you have carried your offering up to the altar, and you should there discover that your brother has suffered any wrong by you, leave your offering even before the altar, and go away; first be reconciled to your brother, and then returning, present your offering.

"Make friends with your accuser quickly, even while you are in his company; for your accuser may drag you before the judge, and the judge may hand you over to the officer, and he in turn may take you to prison. I tell you indeed, that you will not

- depart until you have repaid the very last farthing.
- 27 "You have heard it said that you shall not commit adultery. But I tell you that every one who looks lewdly upon a woman, has already committed adultery with her in his own heart.
- 29 "If, therefore, your right eye leads you to sin, tear it out and throw it from you; for it will be profitable to you to destroy one of your members, rather than that your whole body should perish in the Pit. And if your right hand leads you to sin, cut it off and throw it from you; for it will be profitable for you to destroy one of your limbs, rather than that your whole body should perish in the Pit.
- 31 "It has also been decreed that if any one would dismiss his wife, let him have her divorced. But I tell you that if any one divorces his wife, except on account of fornication, he represents her to be an adulteress; [and if any one marries her when she has been divorced, he commits adultery.]
- 33 "Again, you have heard it was decreed to the ancients, that you shall not perjure yourselves, but give up your vow to the Lord. But I tell you in short, Do not vow at all; not by heaven, for that is the throne of God; nor by the earth, because that is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for that is the city of the great King.
- 36 Neither vow by your head, because you are not able to make a single hair white or black. But let your language be 'Yes, yes'; 'No, no': for whatever exceeds these proceeds from evil.
- 38 "You have heard that it was enacted, Eye for eye, and tooth for tooth.
- 39 But I tell you, Do not contend with the wicked; but whoever strikes you upon your right cheek, then turn the other to him as well. And whoever drags you to law, and takes your vest, let him have your cloak as well. And whoever forces you to go with him one mile, then go two. Give to the man who begs from you; and do not turn away from the one wishing to borrow from you.
- 43 "You have heard it was commanded that you should love your neighbour, and hate your enemy.
- 44 But I tell you to love your enemies; bless those who curse you; act generously to those who hate you; and pray for those who ill-use and
- 45 persecute you: then you will become the sons of your Father Who is in heaven; for He raises His sun over both bad and good, and rains upon both just and unjust. For if you should merely be friendly with your friends, what reward have you? Is not the same thing done even by the extortioners? And if you salute your associates only, is that anything to be proud of? for is not that done even by the extortioners? You, however, should be perfect, as your Father in heaven is perfect.

The Philosophy of Charity.

"Take care and do not display 6 your charities before men, with the intention of being observed by them; for if you do, you will not have a reward from your Father Who is in heaven. When, therefore, you do 2 kindness, do not blow a trumpet before yourself, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues, and in the streets, so that they may secure the praise of men. I tell you, however, that they obtain their reward. But whenever 3 you do a kindness, do not let your left hand know what your right hand does; so that your kindness may be 4 secret, and your Father Who looks into the secret will return it to you openly.

How to Pray.

"And when you pray, do not follow 5 the example of the hypocrites; for they delight to pray standing in the crowds and at the corners of the squares, so that they may be seen by men. I tell you, however, that they receive their wages. But when you 6 pray, enter your chamber, and, having shut your door, pray to your Father in that privacy; and your Father, seeing into that privacy, will return it to you openly.

"But when praying, make use of 7 no babble, like the heathen; for they imagine that they will be listened to because of their volubility. Do not 8 therefore imitate them; for your Father knows your necessities before you can ask Him. Consequently, you 9 must pray in this way:

Lord's Prayer.

"Our Father in the Heavens; Your Name must be being Hallowed;
"Your Kingdom must be being 10 restored

"Your Will must be being done both in Heaven and upon the Earth.

- 11 "Give us to-day our to-morrow's bread ;
 12 "And forgive us our faults,
 13 as we forgive those offending us, for You would not lead us into temptation, but deliver us from its evil.¹
 14 "For if you forgive men their faults, your heavenly Father will forgive you
 15 yours. But if you do not forgive those who wrong you, then neither will your Father forgive you your misdeeds.
 16 "Moreover, when you fast, become not like the hypocrites; for they distort their faces, so that it may be seen by men, that they are fasting. I tell you, however, that they receive 17 their wages. But when you are fasting, dress your head, and wash your 18 face; so that men may not know you are fasting, but only your Father, Who is in the secret; and your Father Who observes in secret, will reward you.

Worldliness, and what it Costs.

- 19 "Do not hoard up for yourselves treasure upon the earth, where moth and canker destroy, and where thieves
 20 may burrow through and steal; but store up your treasure in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroy, and where thieves cannot dig through 21 nor steal: for where your treasure is, there your heart will also be.
 22 "The eye is the lamp of the body; if therefore your eye is sound, your 23 whole body will be illuminated. But if your eye is diseased, your whole body will be in darkness. Consequently, if your sight is defective, all your body will be darkness.

The force of the Imperative 1st Aorist seems to me to be that of what is called a "Standing Order," a thing to be done absolutely, and continuously.—F. F.

"No man can serve two masters: 24 for either he will dislike the one, and be fond of the other; or else he will honour the one, and despise the other. So you are not able to serve both God and Mammon. Because of this I tell 25 you, do not embitter your lives how you shall eat; how you shall drink; nor respecting your body, how you shall be clothed. Is not the life more important than the food, and the body itself than its clothing?

"Just look at the birds in the sky! 26 They neither sow nor reap, nor collect into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them! Are you not much more important than they? Yet who among 27 you, by fretting, is able to add a single foot to his height? And why 28 should you fret about clothing? Reflect upon the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; and yet, I tell you, that even Solomon 29 in all his glory, arrayed not himself like one of them. If therefore God so clothes the flowers of the field, which flourish to-day, and to-morrow are thrown into the fire, how much more you! You of little faith! Never there- 31 fore fret, saying, 'What shall we eat?' 'What shall we drink?' nor 'How shall we find clothing?' for the 32 heathen hunt eagerly for all these! Your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. But first secure 33 the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things will be ready for you. Do not, there- 34 fore fret about to-morrow, for the morrow has its own trouble. The care of each day by itself is quite enough.

The Characteristics of the Kingdom.

"Condemn not, so that you may 7 not be condemned. For according to 2 the sentence you pronounce, you will yourself be convicted; and with the same measure with which you measure, you will be measured.

"But why do you take notice of 3 the dust in your brother's eye, while you cannot observe the chip in your own eye? or how can you say to 4 your brother, 'Let me remove the dust from your eye,' while the chip is in your own eye? Pretender! First re- 5 move the chip from your own eye, and then you will see straight to remove the dust from the eye of your brother.

"Give not what is holy to dogs. 6

- nor throw your pearls before swine; for fear they should trample them under their feet, and turning, rend you.
- 7 "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and
- 8 it will be opened to you: for whoever asks will receive, and the seeker will find, and they will open to him who
- 9 knocks. Is there even a man among you, who, if his son should ask bread of him, would hand him a stone?
- 10 And if he asked a fish, would he hand
- 11 him a serpent? If therefore you, who are corrupt, know how to bestow benefits upon your children, how much rather will your Father Who is in heaven give benefits to those who
- 12 ask Him! Whatever therefore you wish men to do to you, do the same yourselves to them; for this is the law and the prophets.
- 13 "Enter through the narrow gate; because the gate is wide, and the road well paved, that leads to destruction; and through it the majority go.
- 14 How narrow the gate, and difficult the path, that leads to life! and they are few who find it!
- 15 "But guard yourselves from the false teachers, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but who in their
- 16 hearts are plundering wolves. You can recognise them by their fruits. Do they ever gather grapes from
- 17 thorns, or figs from thistles? Thus every useful tree produces useful fruit; but the worthless tree produces worth-
- 18 less fruit. A useful tree cannot produce bad fruit; nor can a worthless
- 19 tree produce good fruit. Every tree not producing good fruit will be felled and used as firewood. Reject their
- 20 produce; for by this you can recognise them.
- 21 "Not every one who says to Me, 'Master! Master!' will enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; but only those who do the will of My Father Who is
- 22 in heaven. Many will say to Me in that day, 'Master! Master! have we not preached in Your Name? and have we not cast out demons in Your Name? and in Your Name have we not done
- 23 many wonders?' And then I shall declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from Me, you traders in lawlessness!'
- 24 "Therefore, every one who listens to these precepts of Mine, and practises them, I will compare him to a reflective man who built his house upon the rock; and the storm raged, and the floods came, and the wind blew, and assailed that house; and it fell not—because it was founded upon the rock. And every one who listens to these precepts of Mine, and does not practise them, I will compare him to a foolish man, who built his dwelling in the sand; and the storm raged, and the floods came, and the wind blew, and they demolished that house, and its wreck was complete!"

And it came about that when Jesus had finished these addresses, the crowd were astonished at His teaching; for He had been teaching them like a man possessing authority, and not as their professors.

A Leper Cured.

Now when He descended from the hill, a great crowd followed Him. And a leper, also approaching, bowed to Him, and said, "Master, if You will, You are able to cure me!"

And Jesus extending His hand, touched him, saying, "I am willing; be cured!" And at once he was relieved from his leprosy.

Jesus then said to him, "Take care and tell no one about this; but go at once, show yourself to the priest, and present the offering appointed by Moses, as an evidence to these people."

A Captain's Boy Cured.

When He was entering Capernaum, a captain approached, and addressing Him, said, "Master, my boy lies in the house paralyzed, in great anguish."

And Jesus in reply to him, said, "I will come and cure him."

The captain answering, however, declared, "I am not of sufficient rank, Sir, for You to come under my roof; rather order it only by a word, and my son will be restored. Although I am a man under a superior officer, I have soldiers under myself; and I say to this man, 'Go,' and he goes; to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

When Jesus heard this, He was surprised, and said to His followers:

"Indeed, I tell you, I have never found such faith as this in Israel. I also tell you, that many shall come from the east and west, and shall recline together with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of Heaven; when the sons of the Kingdom shall be flung into outer darkness, where there will be weeping, and gnashing of teeth."

- 13 Then Jesus said to the captain, "Go back; and, as you have believed, it shall come to you."

And the boy was cured from that very hour.

The Cure of Peter's Mother-in-Law.

- 14 When Jesus entered the house of Peter, He saw his mother-in-law on a couch and suffering from a fever. And as He touched her hand, the fever left her; and she arose, and served Him.

- 16 Then when evening came, they brought to Him many demoniacs; and He cast out the spirits with a word, and He cured all those who were sick; so that the statement made through Isaiah the prophet was verified:

HE TOOK AWAY OUR WEAKNESSES, AND ENDURED OUR MENTAL DISEASES.¹

Qualifications for Discipleship.

- 18 Once Jesus, seeing great crowds around Him, gave instructions to cross over to the farther shore. Then a lawyer approaching, said to Him, "Teacher, I will follow You, wherever You may go."

- 20 In reply, Jesus said to him, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the sky have roosts; while the Son of Man has not a place where He can lay His head."

- 21 And another of His disciples said to Him, "Master, allow me first to return and bury my father."

- 22 But Jesus said to him, "Follow Me; and let the dead bury their own dead."

The Storm on the Lake.

- 23 Then Himself embarking in the vessel, His disciples followed Him.

- 24 And soon after, a hurricane swept across the lake, so that the boat was overwhelmed by the waves; but He slept. And the disciples approaching, awoke Him, calling out, "Lord, save us! we are perishing!"

- 26 In reply, He exclaimed, "What cowards you are! How weak your faith is!"

- Then getting up, He commanded the winds and the sea, and perfect calm ensued. And the men expressed wonder, saying, "What kind of a Man is this? for even the wind and the sea obey Him!"

The Gadarene Demoniacs.

On landing with Him at the other side, in the district of the Gadarenes, two demoniacs, coming out of the tombs, opposed Him. They were very savage, and none were able to pass that road. And they howled out, exclaiming: "What is there between You and us, Jesus, Son of God! Do You come here before the time to punish us?"

Now there was pasturing at a distance a large herd of swine. And the demons calling out to Him, said, "If You cast us out, allow us to go away into that herd of swine."

"Begone!" said He to them. They accordingly departed, went into the swine, and at once all the herd rushed down the slope into the lake, and perished in the water. The feeders then fled, and arriving at the village, reported everything, including what had befallen to those demoniacs. And accordingly all the town went out to meet Jesus; and seeing Him, they begged that He would depart from their locality.

Cure of a Paralytic.

Consequently, embarking in the boat, He recrossed, and came to his own town. And then they brought to Him a paralytic, lying upon a rug; and when Jesus saw their faith, He said to the paralytic, "Take heart, man! your sins are forgiven you."

Some of the professors, however, muttered to themselves, "The Man blasphemeth."

But Jesus, reading their thoughts, replied, "Why do you think evil in your hearts?"

"For which is easier to say—'Your sins are forgiven'; or to say, 'Arise and walk'? But in order that you may see that the Son of Man has authority to forgive sins upon earth (He then said to the paralytic), Rise up! take your rug, and go into your own house."

And having got up, he went into his house. Then when the crowd saw it, they were astonished; and they gave praise to God, Who had given such power to men.

And passing on from there, Jesus saw a man named Matthew, sitting at the custom-house; and he said to him, "Follow Me." And arising, he did follow Him.

A Conversation at Table.

10 It so happened that while He reclined in the house, several tax-farmers and reprobates, arriving, reclined with 11 Jesus and His disciples. And the Pharisees, observing it, said to His disciples, "Why does your Teacher eat along with those tax-farmers and sinners?"

12 But Jesus, having heard it, replied, "The healthy have no need of a physician; but only those who are sick.
13 Go, however, and learn what this means:

I DESIRE MERCY, RATHER THAN SACRIFICE;¹

for I have not come to invite righteous men, but sinners."

14 The disciples of John afterwards approached Him, inquiring, "Why do we and the Pharisees often fast, while your disciples never fast?"

15 In reply, Jesus said to them, "The groomsmen must not be distressed while the Bridegroom is with them. But the time will come when the Bridegroom will depart, and they can

16 then fast. Further, no one patches an old coat with a bit of new felt; for the patch would disfigure the coat, 17 and be worse than the hole! Neither do they pour new wine into old wine-skins; for if they did, the skins would burst, the wine be spilt, and the skins destroyed. On the contrary, they pour new wine into new wine-skins, and both are safe together."

A Girl and a Woman Cured.

18 While He was thus speaking to them, a nobleman, arriving, bowed to Him, saying, "My daughter is almost dead. However, if You come and place Your hand upon her, she will live."

19 And Jesus rising, followed him with His disciples.

20 Then a woman who had suffered from hemorrhage for twelve years, approaching Him from behind, touched the hem of His robe; for she said to herself, "If I can but touch His robe, I shall be cured."

22 Jesus however turned, and seeing her, said, "Cheer up, daughter! your faith has saved you." And the woman was cured from that very hour.

When Jesus arrived at the house of 23 the nobleman, and found the musicians and the crowd lamenting, He said 24 to them, "Go away! for the girl is not dead, but has fainted." And they laughed at Him in ridicule. But when 25 He had dismissed the crowd, entering, He took her hand and raised the girl. And the report of it went through the 26 whole of that district.

Cure of Two Blind Men.

And when Jesus withdrew from 27 there, two blind men followed Him, calling out and saying, "Pity us, Son of David!" Then when He had 28 entered the house, the blind men came to Him; and Jesus asked them, "Do you believe that I can do this?"

"Yes, Sir!" was their answer.

He then touched their eyes, remark- 29 ing, "As your faith, so shall the result be."

And their eyes were opened; and 30 Jesus enjoined them to "Take care and inform no one about it." But 31 they, departing, published His fame through all that neighbourhood.

A Dumb Demoniac Restored.

Then as soon as they went out, 32 there was brought to Him a dumb man, a demoniac. And when He had 33 cast out the demon, the dumb man spoke; and the astonished crowd exclaimed, "Nothing like this has ever appeared in Israel!" The Pharisees, 34 however, remarked, "By the Prince of the demons He casts out the demons."

Jesus then went about all the towns 35 and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the good news of the Kingdom; as well as curing every mental disease and every sickness. Observing the crowds, how- 36 ever, He felt pity for them, because they were harassed and abandoned like shepherdless sheep. He therefore 37 said to His disciples, "The harvest is indeed plentiful, but the workmen are few. Ask therefore the Owner of the 38 harvest, so that He may send workmen to His harvest."

Then calling together His twelve 10 disciples, He gave them power over unclean spirits, so that they might cast them out, as well as cure every kind of mental disease and all sickness.

The Mission of the Twelve.

2 Now these are the names of those twelve apostles: First, Simon, surnamed Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the tax-farmer; James the son of Alphæus, and Lebæus, surnamed Thaddæus; Simon the Canaanite, and Judas the Iscariot, who also betrayed Him.

5 Jesus sent out these twelve, giving them these instructions: "Do not turn aside into the heathen districts, nor enter the towns of the Samaritans; but rather go to the lost sheep of Israel's house. And, as you travel, proclaim the fact that the Kingdom of Heaven is approaching. Restore the feeble, cure the lepers, cast out demons; you have received freely, give freely. Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor copper in your purses; nor yet a bag for the journey, nor two cloaks, nor shoes, nor staff: for the workman is worthy of his food. And into whatever town or village you may enter, inquire who in it is of good repute: stay there until you leave it. And when entering a house, show respect to it. And if the family are worthy of you, let your blessing come upon it; but if it should prove unworthy, keep your blessing to yourselves.

14 "And if it will not receive you, nor listen to your discourse, departing from that family or that town, shake the dust from your feet. I tell you indeed, that it will be more endurable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the Day of Judgment, than for that town.

16 "I now send you like sheep into the midst of wolves; be you therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. But guard yourselves from those men: for they will take you to the police-courts, and will flog you in their synagogues; and you will be dragged before governors and kings because of Me, so that you may give evidence to them and to the heathen about Me. But when they betray you, do not trouble as to what you can say; for in that hour you will be instructed what to say. You are not the speakers; but the Spirit of your Father will plead from within you. Then brother will betray brother to death, and father his child; and children will rise up against parents, and murder them. And you shall be hated by all for My Name's sake; but whoever endures to the end will be saved. When, however, they persecute you in this town, fly into the other; for I assure you that you will not have completed the cities of Israel until the Son of Man comes. The scholar is not greater than his teacher, nor a servant above his master. It is enough if the scholar can become equal to his teacher, and the servant equal to his master. If they call the master of the house Beelzebul, how much rather his attendants! Be not therefore afraid of them: for there is nothing concealed that will not be displayed; nor hidden which shall not become known. What I say to you in the darkness, speak in the light; and what is whispered to your ear, proclaim it upon the housetops. And do not shrink in fear from those who kill the body, for they are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear Him who has power to destroy both soul and body in the Pit.

"Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and not one of them has fallen to the ground without your Father! And even the hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not, therefore! you are worth many sparrows. Consequently, whoever declares for Me before men, I also will recognise him before My Father Who is in heaven; but whoever denies Me before men, I will also deny him before My Father Who is in heaven.

"Do not conclude that I have come to send peace upon the earth; I have not come to send peace, but a sword! For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and the bride against her mother-in-law; and the eninies of every man will be his own relatives. Whoever prefers his father or his mother before Me, is not worthy of Me; and whoever loves son or daughter more than Me, is not worthy of Me; and whoever will not take up his cross and follow Me, is unworthy of Me! Whoever finds his life will lose it; but whoever loses his life for My sake shall find it.

"Who receives you, receives Me; and My entertainer entertains the One Who sent Me. When a man entertains a prophet, he will receive a prophet's reward; and whoever receives the righteous because he is righteous, 42 will receive a righteous reward. And if any give one of the least of them but a drink of cold water because he is a disciple, I tell you indeed, that he shall not go unrewarded."

11 Now it came about that when Jesus had finished giving instructions to His twelve disciples, He dismissed them to teach and preach in their own towns.

Concerning John the Baptizer.

2 When John heard in the prison the doings of the Messiah, he sent two of his own disciples to ask Him, "Are You the coming One? or must we expect another?"

4 And Jesus, in reply, said to them, "When you return, report to John what you have heard and seen. The blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cured, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and to the poor is given hope.

6 And happy is he who will not be ashamed of Me."

7 But when they had gone, Jesus began to say to the crowd concerning John: "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed dancing under the wind? But what did you go out to see? A man attired in fine clothes? Those, however, who wear fine clothing are in the houses of kings. What then did you go to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and far more than a prophet: for he is the one about whom it is written,

SEE! I WILL SEND MY MESSENGER BEFORE YOUR FACE,
WHO WILL PREPARE YOUR WAY BEFORE YOU.¹

11 "I tell you indeed, that there has not been born of women a more exalted than John the Baptizer. Yet the very least in the Kingdom of Heaven is more exalted than he. But since the days of John the Baptizer until now, the Kingdom of Heaven is stormed, and the stormers will seize it. For all the prophets as well as the law foretold as far as John. And if you will accept it, he is the Elijah who was to come. Let all hear who have ears to hear.

16 "But to what shall I liken this generation? It is like children sitting in the markets, calling out to their mates, and saying, 'We have 18 piped to you, but you are not dancing; we have mourned to you, but you will not lament!' John came neither eating nor drinking, and so they say 'He has a demon!' The 19 Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Look! what a greedy, drunken fellow! A friend of tax-farmers and blackguards!' Yet Wisdom is justified by her children."

The Unrepentant Towns.

He then began to reproach the 20 towns in which most of His powers had been displayed, because they were not converted.

"Alas for you, Chorazin! Alas for 21 you, Bethsaida! Because if the powers displayed in you had been shown in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented in sackcloth and ashes. I tell you further, that it will be more 22 endurable for Tyre and Sidon in the Day of Judgment than for you! And 23 you, Capernaum, who have been raised as high as the heaven, will be thrown down as low as the grave; for if the powers which were displayed in you had been brought to Sodom, it would have existed until now. Nay, 24 more, I tell you that it will be easier for the land of the Sodomites in the Day of Judgment than for you!"

Knowledge and Rest.

Jesus at that time reflecting, said, 25 "I fully acknowledge Your wisdom, Father, Lord of the heavens and of the earth, that you have hidden these things from the intelligent and clever, but have made them known to simple men. Yes, Father; for thus it was 26 decided of old by You. All has been 27 committed to Me under My Father: and none except the Father fully knows the Son; and none fully knows the Father but the Son, and the one to whom the Son will decide to reveal Him.

"Come to Me, all who labour and 28 are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and 29 learn from Me; for I am gentle and kind-hearted; and you will find rest for your souls; because My yoke is 30 easy, and My burden light."

Sabbatarianism.

When Jesus was walking at that 12 time through the cornfields on the Sabbath, His disciples, being hungry, began to pluck the ears of corn and

- eat them. The Pharisees seeing it, however, said to Him, "Look! Your disciples are doing what the law forbids to be done on the Sabbath."
- 3 But in reply He said to them, "Do you not know what David did when he and those with him were hungry; how he entered the house of God, and ate the shew-bread, which it was not permissible for him, nor yet for his attendants, to eat, but the priests alone? Or have you not read in the law, that on the Sabbath the sacrificing priests may break the Sabbath, and be blameless? But here, I tell you, there is something more important than the temple. If, however, you had been acquainted with the text, I DESIRE MERCY RATHER THAN SACRIFICE,¹ you would not have condemned the innocent. For the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath."
- 9 Then taking His departure, He entered their synagogue; and a man with a paralyzed hand happening to be there, they asked of Him if it was allowable to effect a cure on the Sabbath? so that they might incriminate Him. But, in reply, He said to them, "Who is there among you, that has a single sheep, and if it should fall into a ditch on the Sabbath, would not get hold of it, and lift it out? By how much does a man differ from a sheep! Therefore it is allowable to do a kindness on the Sabbath."
- 13 He then said to the man, "Stretch out your hand!" He accordingly extended it, and it was restored to soundness like the other one.

The Plotting of the Pharisees.

- 14 The Pharisees consequently consulted together against Him, so as to find out a means of murdering Him; but Jesus knowing it, removed from there. And great crowds following Him, He cured them all, and enjoined them not to make Him known; so that the prediction delivered through Isaiah the prophet might be verified:
- 18 OBSERVE MY SON, WHOM I HAVE CHOSEN;
MY BELOVED, IN WHOM MY SOUL DELIGHTS!
I WILL PUT MY SPIRIT INTO HIM,
AND HE SHALL PROCLAIM JUSTICE TO THE HEATHEN.

HE WILL NEITHER WRANGLE NOR IS CONTEND;
NOR SHALL ANY HEAR HIS SHOUTING IN THE STREETS.
HE WILL NOT CRUSH A BRUISED REED,
NOR EXTINGUISH A FLICKERING LIGHT,
UNTIL HE LEADS JUSTICE TO VICTORY.
AND IN HIS NAME SHALL THE NATIONS HOPE.¹

A Blind and Dumb Man Cured.

They then brought to Him a blind and dumb demoniac; and He cured him, so that the blind and dumb both spoke and saw. And all the crowd were astonished, and said, "Must not this be the Son of David?"

But the Pharisees, who heard it, replied, "This fellow does not cast out demons, except by the help of Beelzebul, who rules over those demons!"

Then Jesus, Who read their thoughts, answered them: "Any kingdom divided against itself is desolated; and no city or house divided against itself can hold together; so if Satan expels Satan, he is divided against himself; how, therefore, can his kingdom hold together? And if I cast out demons through the help of Beelzebul, by whose help do your own followers cast them out? by that they should be your judges! But if I, by a Divine energy, cast out the demons, then the Kingdom of God has burst out above you! How, indeed, can any one enter the house of that strong man, and destroy his armaments, unless he can first overpower his strength? Then he may plunder his dwelling.

Blasphemy.

"Whoever is not on My side, is against Me; and whoever does not gather with Me, scatters. Because of this, I tell you, Every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven to men; but the blasphemy of the Spirit will never be forgiven to men. And if one gives expression to a thought against the Son of Man, he may be forgiven; but if one shall speak insultingly of the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, neither at the present time, nor in the future. Assume the tree to be good, when its fruit is good; or assume that the tree is worthless, when its fruit is worthless: for the tree is known by its fruit. You venomous breed! how can you preach purity, when you are yourselves depraved? For the mouth speaks from the overflow of the heart! The beneficent man draws from his treasury of purity, goodness; and the depraved man can only produce depravity, from his stores of depravity! I tell you, however, that every vile idea that men give expression to, they shall render a reason for it in the Day of Judgment. For by your thoughts you will be acquitted, and by your thoughts you will be convicted."

The Pharisees want a Proof.

Some of the professors and Pharisees then addressed Him, saying, "Teacher, we wish to see a sign from You." But in reply He said to them: "Does a depraved and debauched race ask for a Divine sign? None, however, will be given it other than the sign of the prophet Jonah; for as Jonah was for three days and three nights in the hold of the Whale, thus shall the Son of Man be for three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. The men of Nineveh shall rise up in the Judgment against this generation, and convict it; for they reformed under the preaching of Jonah; and now a mightier than Jonah is here! The Queen of the South shall rise up in the Judgment against this generation, and convict it; because she came from the most distant parts of the earth to learn the wisdom of Solomon: and yet a greater than Solomon is here! When, however, the foul spirit has gone out from a man, it wanders about in waterless places, seeking rest, and finding none. Then it reflects, 'I will return to my house from which I came'; and returning, he finds it quite ready for him, cleaned and decorated. He accordingly goes, and takes along with him seven other spirits more depraved than himself; and entering, they live there; and the last state of that man is worse than the first. It will be the same with this debased race."

While He was still speaking to the crowd, His mother and His brothers stood outside, desiring to speak with Him. And some one said to Him, "See, Your mother and brothers are outside, wishing to speak to You."

Addressing the one who told Him, 48 however, He asked, "Who is My mother? and who are My brothers?" Then extending His hand in the direction of His disciples, He said, 49 "Why, those are My mother and My brothers! For whoever does the will 50 of My Father Who is in heaven, he is My brother, and sister, and mother!"

The Parable of the Sower.

At this time, however, Jesus, going 13 out from the house, sat down by the sea. And a great crowd collected 2 about Him, so that He ascended into a boat, and sat down in it; while all the crowd stood upon the shore. And 3 He spoke many things to them in parables, saying:

"It happened that a sower went out to sow; and as he sowed, some 4 fell by the roadside, and the birds came and devoured it.

"Another part fell upon stony land, 5 where the soil was not deep enough; and it sprouted very quickly on account of the shallowness of the soil; but when the sun arose, it was scorched, 6 and it also withered for want of root. And another lot fell among the thistles, 7 and the thistles grew up and choked it. But the rest fell upon good land, 8 and produced grain, some a hundred-fold, some sixty, some thirty. Who- 9 ever has ears to hear, let him listen!"

The Rationale of Parables.

His disciples approaching Him, 10 afterwards asked, "Why do You speak to them in parables?"

"Because," He answered, "it is 11 granted to you to become acquainted with the secrets of the Kingdom of Heaven; but it is not granted to others. For whoever has a possession, 12 it will increase with him; but the one who possesses nothing, even what he has will be torn from him. I therefore speak to them in parables, 13 because seeing they see not, and hearing they do not hear, neither will they understand. Thus by them 14 is verified the prophecy of Isaiah, which says:

LISTEN TO A SOUND, AND NEVER UNDERSTAND IT;

AND SEEING, SEE, BUT NEVER PERCEIVE.

FOR THE HEART OF THIS PEOPLE 15 IS STUPEFIED,

AND THEY LISTEN WITH LOADED EARS,

AND THEIR EYES THEY HAVE CLOSED;
FEARING THEY SHOULD SEE WITH THEIR EYES,
AND HEAR WITH THEIR EARS, AND UNDERSTAND WITH THEIR HEARTS, AND TURN BACK, AND I WOULD RESTORE THEM.¹

- 16 "But your eyes are happy, because they see; and your ears, because they can listen. For I tell you truly, that many prophets and good men have ardently desired to see what you see, and have not seen it; and to hear what you hear, and have not heard it. Listen therefore to the parable of the sower. When any one hears the message of the Kingdom of Heaven, and does not comprehend, the Devil comes and snatches what was scattered in his heart. Thus it is with those sown along the roadside. But that sown upon stony land, that is the one who hears the discourse, and accepts it immediately with pleasure; but being without root in himself, he is therefore temporary: and when trouble or persecution comes against the truth, he at once falls away. Now as to what was sown among the thistles: that is the one who listens to the message; but the anxieties of this age, and the slavery of wealth suffocate the message, and it becomes fruitless. Now as to that which falls upon good soil: that is the man who listens to the reason, and comprehends it; he consequently produces grain, it may be to the extent of a hundred, sixty, or thirty-fold."

The Parable of the Weeds.

- 24 Continuing, He put before them another parable: "I may compare the Kingdom of Heaven to a man sowing good seed in his field; but while his men were asleep, his enemy came and sowed darnel weeds among the wheat, and went away. However, when the plant shot out, and should have produced grain, then the weeds were also seen. Then his servants coming to the farmer, asked him, 'Did you not, sir, sow perfect seed in your field? Then where did the weeds come from?' And in reply to them he said, 'Some enemy must have done this.' His servants then asked, 'Do you wish us to go and pull them up?' 'No!' was his reply; 29 'lest while you are plucking up the weeds, you should uproot the wheat along with them. Allow both of 30 them to grow together until the harvest; and during the harvest I will say to the reapers, First collect the weeds, and bind them into bundles to burn; but store up the wheat into my granaries.'"

The Parables of the Mustard and the Fermented Flour.

He also told them another parable, 31 saying, "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a grain of mustard, which a man took and sowed in his field. This is the smallest of such seeds; 32 but when it grows up, it is the largest of all garden herbs, and becomes a bush, so that the birds of the air come and shelter among its branches."

He told them another parable: 33 "The Kingdom of Heaven is like yeast, which a woman took and mixed in three stones of flour, so that the whole was fermented by it."

Explanation of the Parables.

Jesus spoke the whole of this to the 34 crowd in parables; and without a parable He seldom spoke to them; so that the statement delivered through 35 the prophet might be fulfilled, which says:

I WILL OPEN MY MOUTH IN PARABLES;

I WILL DIG UP WHAT HAS BEEN HIDDEN FROM THE FOUNDATION
OF THE WORLD.¹

Then Jesus, sending the crowd 36 away, went into the house; and His disciples came to Him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field." And replying to them 37 He said, "The sower of the perfect seed is the Son of Man; the field is 38 the world; the perfect seed are the sons of the Kingdom; the weeds are the sons of the wicked; while the 39 enemy who sowed them is the Devil; the harvest is the completion of the age; and the reapers are the angels. Just as they collect the weeds and 40 burn them, so it will be at the end of this period. The Son of Man will 41 send His messengers, and will collect out of His Kingdom every offensive thing, and whatever causes sin; and 42 will throw them into the furnace of fire, where will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous shall shine out like the sun in the Kingdom of their Father. Let all listen who have ears to hear!

Illustrations of the Kingdom.

44 "Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is comparable to a buried treasure in a field, which, if a man finds, he covers up; and in his delight he goes and sells whatever he possesses to enable him to buy that field.

45 "Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is like a merchant on the look-out for valuable pearls; who, having found a particular one of very great value, goes and disposes of all the others he has, and buys it.

47 "Again, the Kingdom of Heaven is like a drag-net, which has been spread out in the sea, and collects all kinds. Then, when full, they draw it up on the beach; and sitting down they select the good into baskets, and cast the bad away. Thus it will be at the completion of the period. The angels will pick out and carry away the wicked from the midst of the righteous, and throw them into the furnace of fire. There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

51 "Do you," asked Jesus, "understand all this?"

"Yes, Lord," was their reply.

52 "Since that is the case," He further said to them, "every teacher who has been trained into the Kingdom of Heaven is like one who is the master of a house, who brings out from his stores what is new as well as what is old."

The Prophet without Honour.

53 Now when Jesus had finished these parables, He removed from there. And coming into His own country, He taught them in their synagogue; and so greatly astonished were they, that they asked, "Where has this Man acquired this knowledge and power? Is He not the son of that carpenter? Is not His mother called Mary, and His brothers, James, Joseph, Simon, and Judah? And His sisters, are they not all here with us? Where then did He attain all this?" And they were embarrassed concerning Him.

Jesus, however, said to them, "A prophet is not without honour, except in his own country, and in his own house." And He did not display ⁵⁸ much power there, because of their unbelief.

The Murder of John the Baptist.

About this time Herod the tetrarch ¹⁴ heard the report concerning Jesus, and said to his companions, "This ² is John the Baptist; he must have risen from the dead, and therefore the powers energize him!" For ³ Herod had arrested John, put him in chains, and sent him to prison, on account of Herodia, the wife of his own brother Philip; because John ⁴ had told him, "It is not legal for you to have her." And although wishing ⁵ to murder him, he was afraid of the people, because all honoured him as a prophet. At Herod's birthday ⁶ feast, however, the daughter of Herodia danced before the guests, and delighted Herod. He thereupon ⁷ promised with an oath to give her whatever she might ask. And she, ⁸ having been previously instigated by her mother, said, "Give me here upon a dish the head of John the Baptist!" The king was horrified; but because ⁹ of his oaths, and those who reclined with him, he ordered it to be given to her. And sending, he beheaded John ¹⁰ in the prison. And his head was ¹¹ brought upon a dish, and handed to the girl; and she carried it to her mother!

His disciples then came forward, ¹² took the body, and buried it; and went to report it to Jesus.

The Feeding of Five Thousand.

And Jesus hearing it, went away ¹³ privately in a boat to a desert place; but the people having become aware of it, they followed Him by land from the towns. When Jesus came out, ¹⁴ He saw a great crowd, and pitied them; and restored the sick to health. But when the evening came, His disciples approached Him, saying, "This ¹⁵ place is a desert, and the hour now late; dismiss the crowd, so that, going into the villages, they may buy food for themselves."

"They have no need to go away," ¹⁶ remarked Jesus in reply; "give them victuals yourselves."

"We have nothing here," they ¹⁷ responded, "except five loaves and two fishes."

"Bring those to Me," He said. ¹⁸ And He ordered the crowd to recline ¹⁹ upon the grassy places. And taking the five loaves and the two fishes, looking up to heaven, He blessed; and then breaking, He distributed the loaves to His disciples, and the disciples among the crowd. And they all partook and were satisfied; and of the broken pieces remaining, they picked up twelve full bags. Now those who had eaten numbered about five thousand, besides women and children.

22 He then immediately instructed His disciples to embark in the boat, and to precede Him to the other side, until He could dismiss the crowd.

23 When He had sent the crowd away, He went up the hill privately, to pray. And during the evening He was there alone; while the boat was now in the middle of the sea, tossed by the waves, for the wind was against them. But about three o'clock in the morning He came towards them, walking upon the sea. And His disciples, seeing Him walking upon the water, were terrified, exclaiming, "It is a phantom!" and called out for fear. Jesus, however, at once spoke to them, saying, "Take courage! I live; be not afraid."

28 Peter in reply to Him said, "Master, if You live, order me to come to You upon the waters." "Come!" said He. Peter accordingly got out of the boat, and walked upon the water towards Jesus. But seeing the strength of the wind, he became afraid; and beginning to sink, he exclaimed, "Master, save me!"

31 Jesus at once holding out His hand, lifted him up, and said to him, "Faint heart! why did you hesitate?"

32 And when they had entered the vessel, He lulled the wind. Then those in the vessel coming to Him, paid homage, saying, "You most assuredly are a Son of God!"

34 And having crossed, they arrived in the land of Gennesaret. And the people of that place recognising Him, sent round the whole of the neighbourhood, and brought to Him all those who suffered from sickness; and begged that they might only be allowed to touch the hem of His cloak. And as many as touched Him were restored to health.

True and False Religion.

15 Professors and Pharisees from Jerusalem then approached Jesus, inquiring, "Why do Your disciples transgress the tradition of the elders?

for they do not wash their hands when they eat bread."

"Why," asked Jesus, in reply to them, "do you transgress the command of God by means of your own tradition? for God commanded, HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND YOUR MOTHER¹; and, HE WHO NEGLECTS FATHER OR MOTHER, LET HIS END BE DEATH.² But you say, 'If any one should say to his father or mother, What I might assist you with is consecrated to God; then he need not assist his father or mother'; and thus you set aside the command of God by your tradition. You hypocrites! Well did Isaiah prophesy about you when he said,

THIS PEOPLE COME NEAR TO ME WITH THEIR MOUTH, AND HONOUR ME WITH THEIR LIPS;
BUT THEIR HEARTS RUN AWAY FROM ME.
SO IN VAIN DO THEY PAY ME HOMAGE, TEACHING FOR DOCTRINES THE COMMANDS OF MEN!"³

Then having called the crowd to Him, He addressed them, saying, "Listen and understand! What goes into the mouth does not corrupt the man; but what comes out of his mouth does corrupt him."

His disciples, however, approaching Him, said, "Do you not see that the Pharisees were shocked when they heard Your assertion?"

But He replied, "Every plant that has not been planted by My heavenly Father shall be uprooted. Let them alone; they are blind guides of the blind; but when the blind guide the blind, both will fall into a ditch."

Peter then making answer, said to Him, "Explain this puzzle to us."

But Jesus replied, "Are you ignorant even yet? Do you not know that everything going into the mouth proceeds to the stomach, and is from there evacuated? But what come out from the mouth proceed from the heart, and corrupt the man. For there come from the heart wicked thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, perjuries, blasphemies. These are what corrupt the man; but to eat with unwashed hands does not corrupt the man."

Faith Rewarded.

- 21 When Jesus removed from there, He proceeded to the district of Tyre and Sidon. And there a Canaanitish woman of that part, running, called out to Him, saying, "Pity me, Master, Son of David! My daughter is horribly possessed with demons!" But no word did He answer her. His disciples then advanced and begged Him to "Relieve her; because she calls after us." In reply, however, He said, "I was not sent to other than the lost sheep of Israel's house." But she approaching, paid Him homage, saying, "Master, help me!"
- 26 "It is not right," was His reply, "to take the children's bread, and throw it to the dogs!"
- 27 "Most true, Master," she said; "yet even the dogs feed upon the crumbs falling from their masters' table."
- 28 "Noble woman!" exclaimed Jesus, in reply to her; "how firm your faith! Let it be even as you desire." And her daughter was restored from that very hour.
- 29 And when Jesus removed from there, He came along the shore of the sea of Galilee, and ascending the hill, He sat down. Great crowds then approached Him, bringing with them the lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and they threw them down near the feet of Jesus;
- 31 and He restored them; so that the crowd wondered, observing the dumb speaking, the maimed made sound, the lame walking, and the blind seeing; and they praised the God of Israel.

Four Thousand Fed.

- 32 Jesus then calling His disciples to Him, said, "I feel pity for the crowd; because they have now stayed with Me three days, and they have nothing to eat. I do not wish to send them away starving, for fear they should faint on the road." And the disciples asked Him, "Where can we procure bread enough in a desert like this, to satisfy such a crowd?"
- 34 "How many loaves have you?" Jesus asked them.
- "Seven, and a few small fishes," was their reply.
- 35 He accordingly ordered the crowd to be reclined upon the ground; and taking the seven loaves and the fishes, giving thanks, He broke and handed to His disciples, and the disciples to the crowd. And they all ate and were satisfied; and of the broken pieces left over, they afterwards gathered up seven baskets-full. And those who had partaken numbered four thousand men, besides women and children. Then having dismissed the crowd, He took the boat, and came to the neighbourhood of Magdala.

Concerning the Pharisees and Sadducees.

The Pharisees and Sadducees then 16 coming to Him, tried Him by asking Him to show them a sign from heaven. In response, however, He 2 told them, "When evening comes, you say, 'Sign of fine weather, for the sky is fiery.' In the morning, 'It will 3 be stormy, for the sky is fiery and threatening.' You pretenders! You know how to read the face of the sky; why not the signs of the times? This 4 depraved and corrupt race are in search of a sign; and no sign shall be given to it other than the sign of Jonah the prophet." And leaving them, He 5 went away. And upon reaching that other side, His disciples found that they had forgotten to bring bread.

Jesus then addressing them, said, 6 "Look out, and take care to keep free from the ferment of the Pharisees and Sadducees." But they, reflecting, 7 said among themselves, "It is because we have brought no bread." Jesus, 8 perceiving this, however, said, "You sceptics! why do you debate among yourselves because you have not brought bread? Besides, do you not 9 know, nor remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many bags you collected; nor the seven 10 loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered up? Why 11 do you not understand that I spoke not to you concerning bread, but about avoiding the ferment of the Pharisees and Sadducees?"

They then fully comprehended that He had not told them to guard against the ferment of the bread of the Pharisees and Sadducees, but about avoiding their teaching.

The Promise to Peter.

Now when Jesus arrived at the district of Cesarea Philippi, He asked His disciples, "Who do men say that the Son of Man is?" They replied, 14 "Some say, John the Baptist; others

- Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one 15 of the prophets." He said to them,
 "But Who do you say that I am?"
 16 Then Simon Peter, replying, said,
 "You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God!"
 17 Jesus answering said to him: "You are happy, Simon Bar-Jona; because flesh and blood have not revealed it to you, but My Father Who is in 18 heaven. And I also tell you that you have said it; and upon that Rock I will build My church, and the gates of the Grave shall not overpower it.
 19 And to you I will give the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven; and whatever you may bind upon earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatever you may dissolve upon earth shall be dis-20 solved in heaven." He then enjoined His disciples to tell no one that He was the Messiah.

Peter's Mistake.

- 21 From that time Jesus began to show His disciples that He must go to Jerusalem, and endure much from the elders, chief priests, and professors, and be murdered, and raised up 22 the third day. But Peter, taking His hand, began to remonstrate with Him, saying, "Mercy on You, Master!
 This will never happen to You."
 23 Turning round, however, He said to Peter, "Depart from Me, you enemy!
 you are a stumbling-block to Me;
 because you do not reflect upon the thoughts of God, but of men."

Renouncement of Self.

- 24 Addressing His disciples, Jesus then said: "If any one desires to come after Me, let him deny Himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me.
 25 But whoever wishes to save his life shall lose it; and if he should lose his 26 life for My sake, he shall find it. For what would it benefit a man, if he gain the whole world, but should lose his life? or what will a man give in 27 exchange for his life? For the Son of Man will come in the future in the majesty of His Father, accompanied by His angels; and then HE WILL REWARD EVERY ONE IN PROPORTION
 28 TO HIS ACTIONS.¹ I tell you indeed, that there are some of those standing here who shall not taste of death, until they see the Son of Man entering His own Kingdom."

¹ Job xxxiv. 11.

The Transfiguration.

About six days afterwards, Jesus 17 took Peter, James, and John his brother, and went with them up a high mountain privately; and He was 2 transfigured in their presence. And His face shone like the sun; while His garments became white like light.
 And there appeared Moses and Elijah, 3 conversing with Him. Then Peter, 4 addressing Jesus, said, "Master, how delightful it is for us to be here! If You wish, we will make three tents
 —one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."

While he was still speaking, a 5 shining cloud suddenly floated around them; and a voice from the cloud said, "This is My Son, My Beloved, in Whom I delight; listen to Him!"
 And the disciples, hearing it, fell upon 6 their faces, and were terrified; Jesus 7 coming, however, touched them, and said, "Arise, and be not in terror."
 Then looking up, they saw no one, 8 except Jesus alone.

And coming down from the moun- 9
 tain, Jesus enjoined them to "Report that vision to no person, until after the Son of Man is risen from the dead."
 His disciples then asked Him, "Why 10 do the professors then say that Elijah must come first?"

"Elijah indeed will come first, and 11 reform all," He answered; "but I tell 12 you that Elijah has already been, and they did not recognise him! On the contrary, they did with him what they pleased; and in the same way the Son of Man will be treated by them."
 The disciples then fully comprehended 13 that He spoke to them about John the Baptist.

An Epileptic Cured.

And when they came near to the 14 crowd, a man approached Him, kneeling to Him, and saying, "Master, 15 have pity upon my son, for he is epileptic, and suffers terribly! He frequently falls into the fire, and often into the water also. And I brought 16 him to Your disciples, but they were not able to cure him."

Then Jesus said in reply, "What 17 an unbelieving and perverted race!
 How long must I remain with you?
 How long must I support you? Bring him here to Me." And Jesus reproved 18 him, and the demon departed from him; and the boy was cured from that hour.

- 19 The disciples afterwards approached Jesus privately, and asked, "What was the reason why we could not cast that one out?" "The reason was," Jesus answered them, "your want of faith; for I assure you, if you possessed faith like a mustard seed, you could say to this mountain, 'Be removed from here to there,' and it would be removed! and to you nothing shall be impossible. But this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting."
- 22 And as they were travelling in Galilee, Jesus remarked to them, "The Son of Man is about to be delivered into the hands of men, and they will murder Him; but He will be raised up the third day." And they were deeply grieved.

Paying the Temple-Tax.

- 24 Then when they entered into Capernaum, the tax-collectors came to Peter and said, "Does not your Teacher pay the temple-tax?" "Yes," he answered. And when he entered the house, Jesus said to him before he spoke, "What do you think, Simon—from whom do the kings of the earth take tax, or toll? from their own children, or from other people?" "From other people," said Peter. "The sons are therefore free," said Jesus to him.
- 27 "But so that we may not aggravate them, go and cast a fishing-line into the sea, take the fish that first comes up, and on opening its mouth, you will find a stater-coin.¹ Taking that, give it to them for you and Me."

The Messiah's Little Ones.

- 18 About that time, the disciples approached Jesus, inquiring, "Who is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?" Then Jesus, calling a child to Him, placed him in the midst of them, and said:
- "I tell you indeed, that if you do not turn back, and become like those children, you will never enter the Kingdom of Heaven. Whoever therefore may humble himself like this child, he is the most exalted in the Kingdom of Heaven. And if any accept one such child for My Name's sake, he accepts Me; but if he cause to sin one of the least of such, who believe in Me, it would be better for him that a great millstone should be hung around his neck, and be sunk into the depth of the sea.

"Woe to the whole world because of 7 stumbling-blocks! It is necessary for stumbling-blocks to come; but woe to the man by means of whom they are set up! If even your hand or foot leads 8 you to stumble, cut it off, and fling it from you: for it is far better for you to enter into life maimed or lame, than to have two hands or two feet to be thrown into the enduring fire. And if your eye tempts you to sin, 9 pluck it out, and throw it from you: it is better for you to enter into life with but one eye, than having two eyes to be hurled into the fire of Gehenna. See that you do not slight 10 one of these little ones; for I tell you that in heaven their angels always gaze upon the face of My Father Who is in heaven.

On Forgiveness.

"What do you think? If it should 12 happen that a man possessed a hundred sheep, and one of them strayed, would he not leave the ninety-nine upon the hill, and go in search of the wanderer? And if he finds it, I tell 13 you indeed, that he rejoices over that one more than over the ninety-nine which did not go astray. In the same 14 way, it is the wish of My Father Who is in heaven that not one of these little ones should be destroyed.

"If your brother ever wrongs you, 15 go and remonstrate with him while you are by yourselves. If he should listen to you, you will have won your brother over; but if he will not listen, 16 take one or two others along with you, so that by the evidence of two or three witnesses the whole affair may be settled. Then, if he will not listen to 17 them, report it to the assembly; and if he also refuses to listen to the assembly, let him be to you just as a heathen and a tax-farmer.

"I tell you indeed, that whatever 18 you may settle upon earth shall be settled in heaven; and if you forgive upon earth, it will be forgiven in heaven. I tell you, further, that if 19 two of you agree together upon the earth concerning anything for which you ask, it will come to you from My Father Who is in heaven. For 20 where two or three gather together for the sake of My Name, I am there in the midst of them."

¹ An Attic silver coin, equivalent to about 6s. 3d. of our money.

21 Then Peter approached Him, and asked, "How often must my brother wrong me, and I forgive him? for seven times?" "I tell you not seven times merely," Jesus answered him; "but on the contrary, until seventy times seven!"

23 "Because of this, the Kingdom of Heaven may be compared to a particular king, who decided to settle accounts with his officials. And on his beginning to balance, one was brought to him who was indebted to the extent of ten thousand talents.¹ And as he possessed nothing with which to refund it, his master ordered him to be sold, along with his wife and children, and everything he had, so that a liquidation might be effected. The official therefore falling down, implored him, saying, 'Master, be patient with me, and I will repay you all.' The master of that official then took pity upon him, released him, and overlooked the debt. That selfsame official, however, on going out, met one of his fellow-officials, who owed him five pounds, and he seized him by the throat, exclaiming, 'Pay me all you owe!' Therefore his companion, falling at his feet, implored him, saying, 'Wait a little while, and I will repay you.' He would not, however; but sent the debtor to prison, until he should repay the amount due. Then his fellow-officials, seeing what had taken place, were greatly grieved; and going to their master, they related the whole of the particulars. Then the master, calling him forward, said to him, 'You contemptible scoundrel! I remitted to you the whole of that debt, when you asked me; would it not have been little enough for you to have pitied your fellow-official?' His infuriated master accordingly handed him over to the jailors, until he should refund the whole of his debt.

35 "In like manner, My Father, the Heavenly One, will do to you, if you do not every one from your hearts pardon your brothers."

Marriage and Divorce.

19 Then it occurred that when Jesus had finished these discourses, He removed from Galilee, and went into the borders of Judea, across the Jordan; and great crowds following

Him, He cured them there. And the Pharisees came to put Him to the test; and they asked Him, "Is it legal for a man to divorce his wife for any fault?"

In reply to them He asked: "Have you not read that the One Who made them, made them from the beginning male and female, and said, FOR THIS REASON A MAN SHALL LEAVE HIS FATHER AND MOTHER, AND SHALL CLING TO HIS WIFE, AND THEY TWO SHALL BECOME AS ONE PERSON?¹ They are therefore no longer two, but a single body. What then God has united, let it not be separated by man."

"Why then," they asked, "did Moses order the giving of a decree of divorce and separation?"

"Moses," He answered them, "having regard to the grossness of your natures, allowed you to divorce your wives; but it was not so from the beginning. I therefore tell you that if any one dismisses his wife, unless for fornication, and marries another, he commits adultery."²

His own disciples then remarked, "If this is the condition of the husband and wife, marriage would not be bearable."

Proceeding, however, He told them: "All cannot accept this doctrine; indeed none but those to whom it is granted. Still there are single-bedders who were born so from their mothers; and there are single-bedders who have been made so by men; while there are others who keep themselves single for the Kingdom of Heaven's sake. The one who can avail himself of it, let him do so."

Welcoming the Children.

Then children were brought to Him, in order that He might lay His hands upon them and pray; but the disciples forbade them. Jesus, however, said, "Allow the little ones, and do not prevent their coming to Me; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." And having laid His hands upon them, He went away.

The Rich Young Man.

Now, it happened that one approached Him, and said, "Teacher!

² NOTE.—I omit the clause, "And he who marries the divorced woman commits adultery," because it is only a comment of an ancient transcriber, as proved by the oldest MSS. of the Gospel. See Bishop Westcott and Hort's Greek Testament.—F. F.

What beneficent act shall I do, in order that I may secure everlasting life?"

17 "Why," He said in reply to him, "have you asked Me about beneficence?—beneficence is single! There is but One alone Who is beneficent. But if you would enter into life, keep the commands."

18 "How many?" he asked.

Jesus replied, DO NOT MURDER; DO NOT COMMIT ADULTERY; DO NOT STEAL; DO NOT COMMIT PERJURY; HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND MOTHER; and, LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOUR OWN SELF.¹

20 "All these," said the young man in reply to Him, "I have observed from my childhood: what more do I need?"

21 "If you wish to be perfect," Jesus then said to him, "go away, sell all your possessions, and hand over to the poor, and you will secure a treasure in heaven; and then become a follower of Mine!"

22 Having heard that advice, however, the young man departed, greatly grieved; for he was the owner of vast possessions.

The Barrier of Wealth.

23 Then Jesus said to His disciples, "I tell you indeed, that the wealthy will enter into the Kingdom of Heaven with difficulty! I can tell you more: it is easier for a camel to pass through a narrow doorway, than for a wealthy man to gain admittance to the Kingdom of God!"

25 When the disciples heard this, they were profoundly astonished, exclaiming, "Who then can be saved?"

26 Jesus, however, fixing His eyes upon them, replied, "By human power this is impossible; but by Divine power all is possible."

27 "Why," remarked Peter, in reply, "we have left all, and followed You; what then will be for us?"

28 "I tell you indeed," said Jesus to them, "that you who followed Me, in the new birth when the Son of Man will sit upon the throne of His majesty, shall then sit upon twelve thrones, reigning over the twelve tribes of Israel. And all who forsake houses, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or lands, on account of My Name, will receive a hundred times more; and shall inherit everlasting life. But many of the first will be last, and the last first.

The Labourers' Grievance.

"For the Kingdom of Heaven is 20 like a farmer, who went out in the early morning to hire labourers for his vineyard. When he had agreed 2 with the workmen for a denarius¹ the day, he sent them into the vineyard. Then going out again at nine 3 o'clock, he found others standing idle in the market-place; and he said to 4 them, 'You go also into my vineyard, and I will pay you whatever is right.' They accordingly went. Afterwards, 5 going out about noon, and at three o'clock, he did the same. Then going 6 out about five o'clock and finding others standing, he asked them, 'Why do you stand here idle all the day?' 'Because no one has hired 7 us,' was their reply. He said to them, 'Then you also go into the vineyard; and whatever may be right I will pay.'

"When the evening arrived, the 8 owner of the vineyard said to his manager, 'Call the workmen, and pay them their wages, beginning from the last, onward to the first.' And 9 those engaged about five o'clock received each one a denarius. Then 10 when the earliest hired hands came up, they concluded that they would receive more; but they only received each one a denarius. But on taking 11 it, they grumbled against their employer, exclaiming, 'Why, these last 12 comers have only worked one hour; yet you have made them equal to us, who have borne the weight of the day, and the scorching heat!'

"'My good fellow,' he answered 13 one of them, 'I do not wrong you; did you not bargain with me for a denarius? Take your wages, and go. 14 I intend to give this last comer the same as yourself. Am I not allowed 15 to do what I like with my own? or, is your eye malicious, because I am good-natured?' In the same way, the 16 last may be first, and the first last."

Going to Jerusalem.

Then, Jesus, going up towards Jeru- 17 salem, took the twelve disciples privately aside on the way, and said to them, "We are now going up to 18 Jerusalem: and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and professors, who will condemn Him to death, and deliver Him over to the 19 heathen to be insulted, and flogged, and crucified; but the third day He will rise again."

A Mother's Request.

20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee approached Him with her sons; and kneeling, asked Him to grant her a favour.

21 "What do you wish?" He asked her.

"Promise," she said to Him, "that these my two sons may sit, one upon Your right, and the other upon Your left, in Your Kingdom."

22 "You know not what you ask!" said Jesus, in reply. "Are you able to drink the cup which I am about to drink? and to be baptized with the baptism I shall be baptized with?"

"We are able," was their reply.

23 Then He said to them, "You shall certainly drink of My cup, and be baptized with the baptism I am baptized with; but to sit upon My right and upon My left is not Mine to grant, except to those for whom it is prepared by My Father!"

24 When the ten heard this, they were indignant about the two brothers.

25 But Jesus, calling them to Him, said: "You know that the rulers of the heathen lord it over them, and their strong ones oppress them; but it must not be so among you. On the contrary, whoever desires to be promoted among you, let him be your attendant; and whoever may desire to take rank among you, let him be your servant: just as the Son of Man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give up His own life as a ransom for many."

Eyesight for Two Blind Men.

29 When they were leaving Jericho, a great crowd followed Him. And two blind men, who were sitting by the roadside, learning that Jesus was passing by, called out, exclaiming, "Have mercy upon us, Master, Son of David!"

30

31 And the crowd ordered them to be silent; but they merely called out the louder, exclaiming, "Pity us, Master, Son of David!"

32 Then Jesus, standing still, spoke to them, and asked, "What do you wish Me to do for you?"

33 "Master," was their reply, "that our eyes may be re-opened."

34 Jesus, full of pity, accordingly touched their eyes; and at once they saw again: and they followed Him.

The Royal Entry into Jerusalem.

Now when they were nearing Jerusalem, and had come to Bethphage, at the foot of the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent forward two of His disciples, saying to them:

"Go into the village before you, and you will find an ass tied ready, and a colt along with her; loosen, and bring them to Me. And should any one speak to you about it, say in reply, 'The Master has need of them'; and at once he will send them."

And all this occurred in order that the statement might be verified which was delivered through the prophet, saying,

SAY TO THE DAUGHTER OF ZION, SEE! YOUR KING COMES TO YOU HUMBLY, AND SITTING UPON AN ASS, WITH A COLT,

A FOAL OF A BEAST OF BURDEN!¹

His disciples then went and did just as Jesus had ordered them; leading the ass and the colt, upon which they placed their cloaks, and He seated Himself upon them. And the mass of the people spread their own cloaks along the road, while others plucked branches from the trees, and scattered them upon the path; and the crowd going on before, and following in the rear, called out, exclaiming,

HOSANNA TO THE SON OF DAVID! BLESSED IS THE ONE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD;

HOSANNA FROM THE HIGHEST!²

And when He had entered Jerusalem, all the city became excited, asking, "Who is He?" To this the crowd made reply, "He is Jesus the Prophet, Who comes from Nazareth of Galilee."

Clearing out the Temple.

Then Jesus entered the temple of God; and sent out of the temple all the buyers and sellers, and overturned the tables of the money-brokers, and the stands of the pigeon dealers, and told them, "It is recorded, MY HOUSE SHALL BE CALLED A HOUSE OF PRAYER;³ but you have turned it into a den of thieves."⁴ They also brought blind and lame people into the temple, and He cured them.

But the chief priests and professors, observing the miracles which He performed, and hearing the young men cheering and exclaiming in the temple, "Hosanna to the Son of David," they became mad with indignation, and 16 asked Him, "Do You hear what these are saying?"

"Yes," said Jesus in reply to them; "have you never read that

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF CHILDREN AND SUCKLINGS

I HAVE OBTAINED PRAISE?"¹

17 Then leaving them, He went out of the city into Bethany, and there lodged for the night.

The Worthless Fig-tree.

18 Now in the early dawn, while returning to the city, He became 19 hungry; and seeing a fig-tree by the roadside, He went to it, but found nothing upon it except leaves. He accordingly said, "Never from now let more fruit grow upon you." And at once the fig-tree began to wither.

20 And the disciples, seeing it, wondered, exclaiming, "How quickly that fig-tree has dried up!"

21 "I tell you truly," Jesus answered them, "if you possessed faith, and never doubted, you could do not only what has been done to the fig-tree, but more; were you to say to this hill, 'Remove, and be flung into the sea!'

22 it would be done; and all that you ask believingly in prayer, you shall receive."

Credentials Demanded.

23 Now on His entering the temple, the chief priests and elders of the people approached Him, while He was teaching, demanding, "By what authority do You act in this way; and who gave You that authority?"

24 Jesus, replying to them, said, "I also will ask you just one question; which, if you can answer Me, I, in return, will tell you under whose authority I am working. The baptism of John, whence was it; from heaven, or from men?"

They accordingly consulted among themselves apart, saying, "If we should reply, 'From heaven,' He will ask us, 'Why then did you not believe him?' But if we should say, 'From men,' we must reckon with the public; for all regard John as a prophet."

27 Returning then to Jesus, they said, "We do not know."

"Neither will I," said Jesus in reply to them, "tell you by whose authority I am acting."

The Two Sons.

"But what do you think? A man²⁸ had two sons; and coming to the elder one, he said, 'Son, go and work to-day in my vineyard.' 'I will not,'²⁹ was his answer; but he afterwards repented, and went. Then going to³⁰ his second son, he said the same. 'I go, father,' was his reply; but he did not go. Which of these two did the³¹ will of his father?"

"The first," they replied.

Jesus, continuing, said to them, "I tell you indeed, that the extortioners and harlots will precede you into the Kingdom of God. For John came to³² you on a mission of righteousness, and you put no faith in him; but the extortioners and the harlots believed in him; while you, looking on, did not repent after all to believe him.

The Wicked Tenants.

"Listen to another illustration: A³³ particular landowner planted a vineyard, fenced it round about, and in it dug a wine-vat, and erected a watch-tower; then he let it out to tenants, and went off upon a journey. But³⁴ when the season arrived for the fruit to be ripe, he sent his servants to the cultivators for the rents.

"The tenants, seeing the servants,³⁵ maltreated one of them, murdered another, and stoned a third. He sent³⁶ again, and a larger number than on the first occasion; but they were treated in the same way. Afterwards³⁷ he sent his own son to them, saying, 'They will respect my son!' The³⁸ tenants, seeing him, however, said among themselves, 'This is the heir; come on, let us murder him, and seize his estate!' Laying hold of him, they³⁹ accordingly kicked him out of the vineyard, and murdered him. Therefore,⁴⁰ when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?"

They answered Him, "In their⁴¹ wickedness he will end them according to their deserts; and will let out his vineyard to other tenants, who will pay him, at the appointed time, that which is his due."

Jesus then said to them, "Have you⁴² never read in the Scriptures?—

A STONE WHICH THE BUILDERS
REJECTED,

THAT HAS BEEN FITTED AS THE
CHIEF KEYSTONE;
IT CAME FROM THE LORD, AND IT IS WONDERFUL IN OUR EYES.¹

- 43 "I therefore tell you, that the Kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and will be given to a nation that produces its fruits. And whoever falls upon this Stone shall be broken; but upon whoever it falls, it will crush him to dust."
44
45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees heard His parables, they perceived that He spoke about themselves; but when they desired to apprehend Him, they dreaded the public, who held that He was a prophet.

The Royal Wedding Banquet.

- 22 Jesus, addressing them again, and speaking in parables, said:
2 "The Kingdom of Heaven is like a king, who prepared a wedding banquet for his son. And he sent his officers to collect those who were invited to the marriage; but they declined the invitation. Then he again sent other officers, commanding, 'Say to the invited, Consider that I have prepared my banquet; my bullocks and fat calves are killed, and everything is ready: come then to the marriage.'
5 But treating the matter with contempt, they went off, one to his own farm, 6 and another to his shop; while the others, seizing the officers, maltreated 7 and murdered them. The king, on learning this, became furious; and sending his troops, he destroyed those murderers, and pillaged their city.
8 "He then said to his officers, 'The marriage is ready, but those invited 9 were unworthy of it. Go out, therefore, to the main roads, and as many as you can find, bring them in to the marriage.' Those officers, going out 10 into the main roads, accordingly collected all they could find, both bad and good; and the wedding was filled 11 with guests. But the king entering to look at the guests, he observed a man who was not wearing a marriage 12 robe; and he said to him, 'How, my good fellow, did you get in here without a wedding robe?' He, however, 13 remained silent. The king then said to his attendants, 'Tie him hand and foot; take him and fling him into the darkness without; there will be the weeping and gnashing of teeth.' For 14 many are called, but few chosen."

Tribute-Money as a Trap.

The Pharisees then went and held 15 a consultation among themselves, how they might ensnare Him in a discussion. And they sent to Him some of 16 their own pupils along with the Herodians, who said, "Teacher, we see that You are true, and that You teach the way of God in truth, caring nothing about any one; because You do not look at human position. Therefore tell us, What do You think? 17 Is it right to pay tribute to Cæsar, or not?"

Jesus, however, perceiving their 18 wickedness, said, "You impostors! Why do you try to entrap Me? Show Me the tribute-coin." They 19 accordingly produced a denarius.¹ He then asked them, "Whose portrait and inscription has it?"

"Cæsar's," was their reply. 21
"Return," He then told them, "Cæsar's own to Cæsar; and God's dues to God!"

And hearing this, they were astonished; and leaving Him, they went away.

The Sadducees' Difficulty.

During that same day, the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, approached Him, asking: "Teacher, Moses said, 'If a man 24 dies childless, his brother shall marry his widow, and shall raise up seed for his brother.' There were in our 25 part seven brothers; and the first, after marrying, died childless, and left the woman to his brother; and the 26 second, in turn, to the third, up to the seventh. And after them all the 27 woman also died. In the resurrection, 28 therefore, to which of the seven will she be wife? for all of them had her."

"You are in error," said Jesus in 29 reply to them, "through not comprehending the Scriptures, nor yet the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as angels of God in heaven. Respecting the 31 resurrection of the dead, however, have you not read the statement from God to you, which says, I AM THE GOD OF ABRAHAM, AND THE GOD 32

OF ISAAC, AND THE GOD OF JACOB? ¹ God is not God of the dead, but of the living." And the crowd, hearing this, were filled with admiration at His teaching.

The Greatest Commandment.

34 When the Pharisees learned that He had silenced the Sadducees, they collected at once. And one from among them, a lawyer, in order to test Him, asked Him the question, 35 "Teacher, which commandment of the law is most important?" 36 Jesus answered him, "LOVE THE LORD YOUR GOD WITH ALL YOUR HEART, AND WITH ALL YOUR SOUL, AND WITH ALL YOUR INTELLECT." 37 That command is first, and most important. But the second is equal to it: LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOURSELF. ³ In these two commands are comprised the whole law and the prophets."

The Pharisees in a Dilemma.

41 Now while the Pharisees were assembled, Jesus questioned them, saying, "What do you think about the Messiah? Whose Son is He?" "David's," was their reply. 42 "How then," asked He, "could David, under the influence of the Spirit, call Him Lord, saying, 43 THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD, BE SEATED AT MY RIGHT HAND, UNTIL I MAKE YOUR ENEMIES A STOOL FOR YOUR FEET." 44 "If therefore, David calls Him Lord, how can He be his son?" And none were able to answer Him a word; neither dare any one from that time debate further with Him.

The Pharisees and the Jewish Nation.

23 Jesus then addressing the people and His own disciples, said: 2 "The professors and the Pharisees 3 have usurped the place of Moses. All, therefore, that they tell you to observe, observe and do: but do not imitate their doings; for they do not 4 practise what they preach. On the contrary, they pack up heavy and unendurable loads upon men's shoulders; but they take care not to touch them with their own fingers. All their actions are done merely for the sake of being seen by men: they widen their phylacteries, and extend the fringes of their cloaks; they delight 6 to secure the places of honour at banquets, the principal seats in the synagogues, the salutations in the 7 markets; and to be addressed by men as 'My lord, my lord.' You, however, 8 must not be called 'Teacher'; because I alone am your Teacher, and you are all brothers! And upon 9 earth call none your father; for One is your Father, He Who is in heaven. Neither select leaders; for One is your 10 Leader, the Messiah. But the greatest 11 among you shall become an attendant; and whoever sets himself up shall be 12 brought low; and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted.

"Woe to you, play-acting professors 13 and Pharisees! because you lock up the Kingdom of Heaven in the face of mankind; while you yourselves neither enter, nor allow those arriving to go in.

"Alas for you, play-acting professors 14 and Pharisees! because you devour the property of the widows by the pretence of long prayers; for which you will receive a heavier punishment. Woe to you, play-acting professors and 15 Pharisees! who scour the sea and the desert in order to secure one convert; and, finding one, you make him a son of the Pit twice as much as yourselves!

"Woe to you, blind guides! who 16 say, 'If one swears by the temple, it is nothing; but if a man swears by the gold in the temple, that oath must be kept!'

"Fools and blind! which is the 17 greater?—the gold, or the temple which sanctifies the gold?

"You say, 'If one swears by the 18 altar, it is nothing; but if a man swears by the gift upon it, that oath must be kept!'

"Fools and blind! which is greater? 19 —the gift, or the altar that sanctifies the gift?

"A man, however, who swears by 20 the altar, swears by all that is upon it. And whoever swears by the temple, 21 swears by the One Who inhabits it. And whoever swears by the heaven, swears by the throne of God, and the 22 One Who sits upon it.

"Woe to you, canting professors and Pharisees! because you pay tithes 23 on mint, dill, and cummin, ignoring the more important statutes of the law — humanity, sympathy, faith;

these you ought to have observed, and 24 not to have cast the others aside.
 Blind guides! who strain out a gnat,
 and gulp down a camel!

25 "Woe to you, hypocritical professors and Pharisees! because you wash the outside of the cup and the plate, but fill the inside with extortion 26 and injustice. Blind Pharisee!
 cleanse first the inside of the cup and the plate, so that their outside may also become clean.

27 "Woe to you, shamming professors and Pharisees! you are just like white-washed tombs—pretty enough outside, but inside full of dead men's bones and every kind of corruption.
 28 So you too outwardly appear to men to be religious; but inwardly you are crammed with false pretence, and every form of lawlessness.

29 "Woe to you, professors and Pharisees, you hypocrites! because you erect monuments to the prophets;
 decorate the tombs of the martyrs;
 30 and say, 'If we had lived in the days of our forefathers, we would not have aided them in shedding the blood of 31 the prophets.' Thus, then, you give evidence against yourselves that you are the sons of the murderers of the 32 prophets! Fill up, then, the measures 33 of your fathers! Serpents! spawn of vipers! how can you escape the fury of hell?

34 "Lo, I will therefore send you prophets, and thinkers, and scholars;
 and some of them you will murder and crucify; while others you will flog in your synagogues, and drive from 35 town to town, in such a way that all the righteous blood shed upon the earth—from the blood of the just Abel, down to the blood of Zachariah, son of Barachiah, whom you assassinated between the entrance of the temple and the altar—may rest upon you.
 36 Indeed, I tell you, that all these shall come upon the present generation.

37 "Jerusalem! Jerusalem! who massaced the prophets, and stoned those sent to her! how often would I have gathered your children together, like the bird that collects her nestlings under her wings, and you would not!
 38 Now see your house left to yourselves.
 39 Yes, I tell you that after this you shall not see Me again until you say,

BLESS HIM WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD!¹

Fate of Jerusalem Foretold.

Then Jesus, leaving the temple, 24 was proceeding on His way, when His disciples came up to point out the buildings of the temple. Jesus then 2 said to them, "Do you not see all these? I tell you indeed, that a stone will not here be left upon a stone, otherwise than in ruins."

Afterwards, when He was resting 3 upon the Mount of Olives, His disciples approached Him privately, asking, "Tell us when this will be; and what is the signal of Your presence, and the completion of this age."

"Take care," said Jesus, in reply 4 to them, "that none may deceive you.
 For many will come in My Name, 5 asserting, 'I am the Messiah'; and will lead many astray. Then you will hear 6 of wars and rumours of wars; attend and fear not; for all must come—but the end is not yet. For nation shall 7 rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be famines and plagues, and frequent earthquakes. All these, however, only 8 begin the agonies. Then they will 9 deliver you up to tribulation, and will murder you; and you will be hated by all the heathen through My Name.
 And then many will abandon it; and 10 will betray one another, and hate one another. And many false prophets 11 will make their appearance, and multitudes will be misled. And through 12 the abounding lawlessness, sympathy for the many will be chilled. But 13 whoever holds out to the end will be saved. The good news of the King- 14 dom, however, shall be proclaimed throughout the whole Empire, as a witness to all nations; and then the end will come.

"When, therefore, you shall see 15
 the desolating beast, foretold through the prophet Daniel, take up his position on holy ground¹—let the reader comprehend—then let those in Judea 16 fly to the hills; and he who is upon 17 his balcony not descend to take anything from his house; and the man 18 in the field not turn back to take up his cloak.

"But alas for those with child, 19
 and those who nurse in those days!
 Pray, however, that your flight may 20 not come during the winter, nor upon a Rest-day; for there shall then be 21 wide-spread affliction, such as has not been known since the beginning of the world until now, no, nor will ever be known again. And if those times were not cut short, not a man would be saved; but for the sake of the chosen ones, those times will be cut short.

Future Signs Described.

23 "Then if any should say; to you, 'Look! the Messiah is here,' or 'there,' do not believe it. For false messiahs and false prophets will make their appearance; and will give out great and terrible omens, so as to mislead, if possible, even the chosen.

24 However, I have forewarned you. Therefore, if they tell you to 'Look! He is in the desert!' go not out; 'Come into the private apartments!' do not believe it. For as the lightning bursts out with a flash from east to west, in like manner will the presence of the Son of Man be. Where the corpses are, there the vultures will assemble.

25 "But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, the moon will fail to give her light, the stars will fall from the sky, the powers of the heaven: will be shaken: and then will appear the signal of the Son of Man in the sky, and all the tribes of the earth shall mourn when they see the Son of Man coming upon the clouds of the heaven, with power and full rectification. And He will send out His messengers with a loud and powerful bugle; and they will collect all His chosen from the four winds, from end to end of the heavens.

The Lesson of the Fig-tree.

32 "Now learn from the fig-tree its lesson: When its branches become soft, and the leaves sprout, you recognise that the summer is near. In the same way, you also, when you see all these, know that this is near, aye, close to the gates. I tell you indeed, that this present generation shall not pass away until all these arrive. The heaven and the earth may fade away; but My declarations will never pass away.

The Necessity of Watching.

36 "About the exact time, however, and the hour, none knows—not even the messengers of heaven; but My Father alone. And as in the days of Noah, so will also be the appearance of the Son of Man. For as they were, in the days before the Flood, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day arrived for Noah to enter the ark, and they would not understand until the Flood came and carried all away; so also will be the appearing of the Son of Man. Then two men may be in the field; one is taken, and one is left. Two women may be grinding in the mill; one is taken, and one is left. Keep guard, therefore; for you know not what hour your Lord may come. But recognise this, that if the master of the house had known at what time the thief would come, he would have kept awake, and not permitted his house to be dug through. On account of this, be ready! because it may be that the Son of Man will appear at a time you do not expect.

Faithful and Unfaithful Servants.

"Who, then, is the faithful and prudent servant, whom his master can place over his household, to give them their provision with promptitude? Happy will be that servant if his master shall find him thus engaged upon his arrival. I tell you indeed, that he will appoint him over all his possessions. But if some unfaithful servant should say in his heart, 'My master delays his arrival'; and should begin to ill-use his fellow-servants, and eat and carouse with the drunkards: the master of that servant will come upon a day he did not expect, and at an hour he is not thinking of, and will dismiss him, and send him about his business, to associate with the vagabonds. Then there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The Thoughtless Bridesmaids.

"Then the Kingdom of Heaven may be likened to ten bridesmaids, who, having received their lamps, went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were wise, and five were foolish. Those who were foolish, taking their lamps, took no oil with them; but the prudent ones took oil in their flasks along with their lamps. While, however, the bridegroom layed, they all slumbered and slept. But at midnight a shout was raised, 'Now, the bridegroom comes: go out to meet him!' All those maidens thereupon got up, and trimmed their lamps. The foolish then said to the prudent, 'Give us some of your oil; because our lamps are going out.'

- 9 But the prudent made reply, 'Lest there is not enough for us and for you, run rather to the shops and buy for yourselves.' While, however, they went to buy, the bridegroom came; and those who were ready went in to the wedding: and the door was shut.
- 10 The other maidens afterwards came calling out, 'Sir! sir! open the door for us.' But his answer to them was, 'No; indeed I tell you that I do not know you.'
- 11 "Therefore, keep awake; because you know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of Man will come.

The Story of the Talents.

- 14 "For it is like a man leaving his home, who called together his confidential servants, and entrusted them with his effects. To one he gave five talents, to another two, to another one; to each in proportion to his abilities, and took his departure.
- 15 Then the man who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and increased them into five talents more. And the receiver of the two likewise increased his into two more. But the man who had been entrusted with one went and dug a hole in the ground, and there hid his master's money.
- 16 "Now after a long time the master of those servants returned, and went through their accounts. And the one who had the five talents came bringing five talents beside, saying, 'Sir, you entrusted me with five talents; but look, I have increased them to five talents more!'
- 17 "Well done, you good and faithful servant!' exclaimed the master in reply; 'you have been faithful over a little, so I will entrust you with much: share in your master's success!'
- 18 "Then the one who had accepted the two talents said, 'Sir, you deposited two talents with me; but see, I have gained with them two talents more.'
- 19 "Very good, you useful and trusty servant!' said his master in reply; 'you have been faithful with a few; I will place you over many: share in your master's success!'
- 20 "Then the man who had accepted the single talent said, 'Knowing you, sir, to be an avaricious man, reaping where you had not sown, and raking up where you had not scattered; being afraid, I went and hid your talent in the ground. See, here is your own!'

"'You ungrateful idler!' said his master in reply to him. 'Granted that you knew I reaped where I had not sown, and raked up where I had not scattered: you ought, then, to have paid my money into the bankers; and on my return I could have got my own with interest. Now take from him that talent, and give it to the man who has the ten talents. For to the man who possesses much shall be given, and he shall have superabundance; but from him who possesses not, even what he has shall be taken from him.' And he flung the good-for-nothing fellow into the darkness without, where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth!

The Reckoning Day.

"But when the Son of Man appears in His majesty, and all His angels with Him, then He will take His seat upon the throne of His majesty; and collect all nations before Himself; and will separate them from one another, as a shepherd divides the sheep from the goats: and the sheep He will place upon His right hand, and the goats upon His left. The King will then say to those upon His right hand, 'Come! you approved of My Father: inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was hungry, and you gave Me food; I was thirsty, and you gave Me a drink; I was a stranger, and you entertained Me; naked, and you clothed Me; I was exhausted, and you attended Me; I was in prison, and you visited Me.'

"Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, 'When, Master, did we see You starving, and fed You? or thirsty, and gave You a drink? When did we see You a stranger, and entertained You? or naked, and clothed You? When did we see You sick, or in prison, and came to You?'

"And their King will reply to them, 'I tell you indeed, that whenever you did it to one of these My poorest friends, you even did it to Me.'

"Then He will say to those upon the left, 'Begone from Me, you accursed, into enduring fire, which is prepared for the Devil and for his angels! for I was starving, and you

- gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink. I was a stranger, and you did not entertain Me; naked, and you did not clothe Me; I was sick, and in prison, and you did not visit Me.'
- 44 "Then they too will answer, saying, 'When, Master, did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or forlorn, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not help You?'
- 45 "In reply to them He will then say, 'I tell you indeed, that since you never did it to one of the least of these, you never did it to Me.'
- 46 "And these He will dismiss into a long correction, but the well-doers to an enduring life."

The Approaching Passover.

- 26 Now it occurred that when Jesus had finished all these discourses, He
- 2 remarked to His disciples, "Do you know that after two days the Passover is to be celebrated; and that the Son of Man is now being betrayed to be crucified?"
- 3 After this the chief priests, the professors, and the elders of the people, assembled in the court of the High
- 4 Priest, who was named Caiaphas; and consulted among themselves as to whether they could arrest Jesus by means of a trick, and assassinate Him.
- 5 But they said, "Not during the festival, for fear a riot should break out among the people."

At Simon's Dinner.

- 6 When Jesus was in Bethany, at the
- 7 house of Simon the leper, a woman who had an alabaster jar of very valuable perfume, came and poured it upon
- 8 His head as He reclined. But the disciples, on seeing her, became indignant, saying, "To what purpose is all this waste? for this might have been sold for a good deal, and given to the poor."
- 10 Jesus perceiving it, however, said to them: "Why do you trouble the woman, seeing that she has acted nobly towards Me? Besides, you have the poor always with you; but Me
- 12 you have not always. For she having poured this perfume upon My body, has done it preparatory to My burial.
- 13 I tell you indeed, that wherever these glad tidings shall be proclaimed throughout the whole world, what she has done will be told as a memorial of her."

The Treachery of Judas.

Then one of the twelve, named Judas 14 Iscariot, having gone to the chief priests, asked them, "What are you 15 willing to give me, and I will deliver Him to you?" They accordingly weighed out for him thirty pieces of silver.¹ And from that time he sought 16 a fitting opportunity to betray Him.

The Last Supper.

At the first day of the unfer- 17 mented bread, the disciples came to Jesus, asking Him, "Where do You wish us to make preparation for You to eat the Passover?"

"Go into the city," He said, "to 18 such an one; and say to him, 'Our Teacher says, My time is near: I wish to observe the Passover at your house with My disciples.'"

The disciples accordingly did as 19 Jesus instructed them; and they made ready for the Passover.

When the evening arrived, He 20 reclined along with the twelve. And 21 while they were eating, He said, "I tell you indeed, that one from among you will betray Me."

And they were deeply grieved; and 22 each of them began to say: "I am not the one! Am I, Master?"

And in reply, He said, "One who 23 has dipped his hand with Me into the basin, he will betray Me! The Son 24 of Man will indeed depart, as it was written about Him; but woe to that man by means of whom He is betrayed! Well would it have been for him if he had never been born!"

Judas, the traitor, then answering, 25 said, "It is not I! Is it, Master?"

"You have said it," was His reply.

Then, as they were eating, Jesus 26 took a loaf; and having offered a blessing, broke it, and distributed it to His disciples, saying, "Take it, eat it; this is My body." And taking the 27 cup, and offering a blessing, He gave it to them, saying, "All of you drink of it; for this is My blood, that of the 28 New Settlement, which is shed for the removal of many sins! I tell you, 29 however, that at present I will not drink of this produce of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it with you new in the Kingdom of My Father."

NOTE.—It should be noted that no fermented wine might be used by the Hebrews during the Passover Week.

Peter's Protest.

30 Then singing a hymn, they went 31 out to the Mount of Olives; where Jesus said to them, "All of you will be ashamed of Me to-night; for it is written,

I WILL STRIKE THE SHEPHERD, AND THE SHEEP OF HIS FLOCK
WILL BE SCATTERED.¹

32 "But after My resurrection, I will go before you into Galilee."

33 Peter, however, replying to Him, said, "If all are ashamed of You, I will never be ashamed!"

34 "I tell you indeed," said Jesus, in reply to him, "that in this very night, before a bugle² sounds, you will thrice deny Me!"

35 "Even if it should be necessary for me to die with You," Peter declared to Him, "I will never deny You!"
And in this way spoke all the disciples.

In the Garden of Gethsemane.

36 Jesus afterwards accompanied them into a garden named Gethsemane, and said to the disciples, "Sit you here, 37 while I go yonder to pray." And taking Peter and two of the sons of Zebedee along with Him, He began to be distressed and overwhelmed.

38 He then said to them, "My soul is very full of grief, even to death; stay 39 here, and watch with Me." Then going forward a little, He fell upon His face, praying, and said, "My Father, if it is possible take this cup from Me! yet, not according to My desire, but according to Yours."

40 Then returning to the disciples, He found them sleeping, and remarked to Peter, "So it seems you are not strong enough to keep awake a single hour 41 with Me! Watch and pray, so that you may not fall into temptation;
your spirit indeed is willing, but the body weak."

42 Again, for a second time, going away, He prayed, saying, "My Father, if it is not possible for this cup to pass by Me without My drinking it, let Your will be done!"

43 On returning, He found them again asleep; for their eyes were heavy.
44 So leaving them, and going away again, He prayed for the third time, lus," i.e., "The Cock," or, "The Crower." It making use of the self-same words.

He then came to His disciples, and 45 said to them, "Sleep on now to the end, and refresh yourselves. The hour is near when the Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of sinners. Arise! let us go forward; 46 for My betrayer is now at hand."

The Arrest of Jesus.

And while He was still speaking, 47
Judas, one of the twelve, came along with a great crowd, armed with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people. Now 48
His betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "The Man I shall kiss, that is He; arrest Him!" And at once ap- 49 proaching Jesus, he said, "I hope You are well, Master!" and fervently kissed Him.

Jesus answered him, "Friend, 50 against whom have you come?"
Then rushing on, they seized hold of Jesus, and arrested Him. There- 51 upon, one of those who were with Jesus, stretching out his hand, drew his sword, and struck the officer of the High Priest, cutting off his ear.
Jesus, however, said to him, "Return 52 your sword into its place; for those who take the sword, will fall by means of the sword. Or do you 53 imagine that I am not able to call upon My Father, and He would even now provide Me with more than twelve armies of angels? How, then, 54 could the Scriptures be fulfilled, that it must come about in this way?"

Jesus, at the same time, addressing 55
the crowd, asked, "Have you come out against Me with swords and staves to arrest me like a robber? Day after day I have been sitting teaching you in the temple, and you did not arrest Me. But all this has occurred 56 in order that the writings of the prophets might be fulfilled."

All the disciples then leaving Him, fled.

Before Caiaphas.

Then those who had arrested Jesus, 57 took Him away to Caiaphas, the High Priest, where the professors and elders were collected. Peter also followed 58 at a distance, as far as the court of the High Priest; and entering, he sat down along with the officers, to see the end.

Now the chief priests, and the whole 59
senate sought out false witnesses

- against Jesus, so that they might 60 kill Him; but they could not procure them, although many liars came forward.
At last, however, two liars
61 came up, asserting, "This fellow said,
'I am able to demolish the temple of God, and rebuild it in three days' time!"
- 62 Then the High Priest, jumping up and addressing Him, exclaimed,
"Have You no reply? What do these men witness against You?"
- 63 But Jesus kept silent. The High Priest thereupon said to Him, "I put You upon Your oath before the God of Life, so that You must answer us.
Are You the Messiah, the Son of that God?"
- 64 "You have stated the fact," Jesus made answer. "I tell you more: in the future you will see THE SON OF MAN SITTING AT THE RIGHT HAND
OF THAT POWER, AND ADVANCING
UPON THE CLOUDS OF THE HEAVEN!"¹
- 65 "He blasphemeth!" exclaimed the High Priest, as he tore his robes;
"what need have we of further evidence? Why, now you have heard 66 His blasphemy! What do you decide?"
- "He is liable to be put to death," was their reply.
- 67 They then spat in His face, and beat Him upon the head; while others 68 struck Him with their staves, saying,
"Tell us, Master Messiah, who are those who assault You?"

The Perfidy of Peter.

- 69 Now Peter was still sitting outside in the court; and a girl coming to him, said, "Why, you were also with 70 Jesus, the Galilean!" He denied it, however, before them all; declaring,
"I do not know what you are talking about."
- 71 Then going out into the vestibule, another saw him, and said to those there, "This fellow was with Jesus, the Nazarene!"
- 72 With an oath he again denied it, saying, "I know nothing about the Man!"
- 73 After a little while, however, the bystanders approached, and said to Peter, "You are most certainly one of them; for your dialect proves it plainly!"
- 74 He then began to curse and swear; declaring, "I do not even know the Man." And immediately the bugle sounded.¹ Peter then remembered ⁷⁵

the words of Jesus addressed to himself—"Before a bugle sounds, you will thrice deny Me"; and rushing out, he wept bitterly.

In Consultation.

When the dawn arrived, the chief ²⁷ priests and leaders consulted together against Jesus, so that they might effect
His death. And having manacled ²
Him, they led Him away, and delivered Him over to Pontius Pilate, the governor.

The Conscience-stricken Judas.

(When Judas, who betrayed Him, ³ saw that He was condemned, he was horrified, and returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and leaders, exclaiming, "I have ⁴ sinned in betraying innocent blood."
"What is that to us?" was their reply; "look out for yourself!")

He accordingly flung down the ⁵ silver in the temple, ran away, and departing, he hanged himself. And ⁶ the chief priests, picking up the money, said, "It is not allowable to add it to the sacred gifts, seeing that it is the price of blood." Then having ⁷ consulted respecting it, they bought with it the potter's field, for the purpose of burying foreigners. That field ⁸ has consequently been called, "The Blood Field" down to the present time.
Thus was fulfilled the statement ⁹ livered through Zechariah the prophet, which says, AND I TOOK THE THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER—THE AMOUNT OF THE VALUATION AT WHICH I WAS VALUED BY THE CHILD-REN OF ISRAEL—AND GAVE THEM ¹⁰
FOR THE POTTER'S FIELD, AS THE LORD DIRECTED ME.²)

Before Pontius Pilate.

When Jesus was brought before the ¹¹
Governor, the Governor questioned Him, asking, "Are You the King of the Jews?"

"You say so," Jesus made answer.
When, however, He was accused by ¹²
the chief priests and the elders, He answered nothing.

Pilate then said to Him, "Do You ¹³ not hear how many things they charge against You?"

However, He never offered to say a ¹⁴

single word by way of defence: so that the Governor was very much surprised.

- 15 At festival-time, it was customary for the Governor to liberate one prisoner for the people, whomsoever they desired. And they had then a notorious prisoner, named Barabbas.
- 17 Pilate addressing them, therefore, asked, "Whom do you wish me to discharge? Barabbas, or Jesus, whom they call the Messiah?" For he saw clearly that it was merely on account of malice that they had delivered Him. And while he was sitting in the court of justice, his own wife sent a message to him, saying, "Have nothing to do with this just Man; for I have endured much in a dream this morning on account of Him." The chief priests and elders, however, incited the mob to demand Barabbas, and execute Jesus. But the Governor, addressing them, asked, "Which of the two shall I set free for you?"
- "Barabbas!" was their reply.
- 22 "What then," asked Pilate, "shall I do with Jesus, Whom they call the Messiah?"
- "Let Him be crucified!" was their unanimous reply.
- 23 "Why?" he asked; "what crime has He committed?"
- In reply, they yelled out more savagely than before, "Let Him be crucified!"
- 24 Pilate then seeing that he gained nothing by it, but, on the contrary, that the riot increased, took water, and washed his hands in the presence of the mob, saying, "See, I am innocent of the blood of this just Man; look to it yourselves!"
- 25 Then in reply to him, the whole mass of the people shouted out, "Let His blood be upon us, and upon our children!"
- 26 He then discharged Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he delivered Him over to be crucified.

Mocked by the Soldiers.

- 27 The Governor's soldiers then taking Jesus into the Prætorium, mustered all the troops. And dressing Him up, they robbed Him in a scarlet cloak; and plating a crown of thorns, they placed it upon His head, and put a cane in His right hand. Then kneeling before Him, they shouted out in ridicule "Long live the King of the Jews!" They also spat upon Him;

and taking the cane, they struck Him with it upon the head. Then when they had scorned Him, they took the cloak from off Him, and clothed Him in His own garments, and led Him away to be crucified.

The Crucifixion of Jesus.

When they were going out, they met a Cyrenian, Simon by name; whom they forced into their service, in order that he might carry His cross. On arriving at a place known by the name of Golgotha, which means Skullfield, they offered Him sour wine to drink, mixed with gall; but tasting it, He would not drink. Then, having crucified Him, they cast lots for the division of His garments among themselves. And sitting down they kept guard over Him there.

And over His head they placed His written indictment, thus: THIS IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JUDEANS.

They also crucified two robbers along with Him, placing one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

The passers-by also insulted Him, wagging their heads, and calling out, "You demolisher of the temple, and rebuild of it in three days, now save Yourself, if You can! If You are a son of a god, come down from the cross!" In the same way, the chief priests, with the professors and elders, derided Him, saying, "He saved others; He cannot save Himself! If He is the King of Israel, let Him come down from the cross, and we will believe in Him! He trusted upon God, let Him now rescue Him, if He wants Him; for He asserted, 'I am a Son of God.'" And even the robbers who were crucified along with Him reproached Him in the same way.

Then from mid-day until three o'clock in the afternoon darkness spread over all the land; and about three o'clock Jesus called out with a loud voice, exclaiming, "Eloi, eloi, lama sabachthani?" that is, "O My God! My God! to what have You forsaken Me?" And some of the bystanders, on hearing that, remarked, "He seems to call for Elijah." And at once one from among them ran, and taking a sponge, filled it with sour wine; and placing it upon a cane, gave Him a drink. But the others called out, "Let Him alone! Let us see whether Elijah will come and save 50 Him!" But another taking a spear pierced His side, when blood and water came out. Jesus, however, having again called out with a loud voice, resigned His spirit.

The Sequel to the Crucifixion.

51 And then the veil of the temple was torn into two from the top to the bottom; while the earth was 52 shaken, and the rocks were split. [The tombs were also opened, and many bodies of the saintly sleepers were 53 raised; and coming out of the tombs, after His resurrection, they entered the holy city, and were seen by many.] 54 Then the captain, and those who were along with Him, guarding Jesus, perceiving the earthquake and these other events, became dreadfully frightened, exclaiming, "In very truth this 55 was a son of a god!" And many women, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, attending to Him, were looking on 56 from a distance. Among these were Mary, the Magdalene; and Mary, the mother of James and Josés; as well as the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

The Entombment.

57 When the evening arrived, there came from Arimathæa, a rich man, named Joseph, who had himself also 58 been taught by Jesus. Going to Pilate, he asked for the body of Jesus.
Then Pilate ordered the body to be 59 given up. Joseph accordingly taking the corpse, wrapped it in a fine linen 60 shroud, and placed it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock; and having rolled a large stone 61 away. Mary, the Magdalene, and the other Mary, however, kept sitting opposite the tomb.

Making Assurance Doubly Sure.

62 Now on the morning following the preparation for the festival, the chief priests and the Pharisees assembled 63 before Pilate, stating, "Sir, we remember that this Impostor said when He was alive, 'After three days I 64 shall rise again.' Order, therefore, the tomb to be secured until the third day; for fear His disciples, coming, should steal Him, and say to the mob,
'He arose from the dead.' Thus the last imposture will be worse than the first."

¹ Ch. xxvii. vers. 52—53 are evidently an early note of a transcriber, and not a part of the original text.—F. F.

"Take a guard," exclaimed Pilate 65 in reply; "go away: secure it as you like!" They accordingly went and 66 secured the tomb, sealing the stone in company with the guard.

The Resurrection.

After the Sabbaths,¹ towards the 28 dawn of the day following the Sabbaths, Mary, the Magdalene, and the other Mary, came to examine the tomb. And a violent earthquake was 2 then felt; for an angel from the Lord, descending from heaven, approaching the stone, rolled it from the door, and sat upon it. His aspect resembled 3 lightning, and his garments were white like snow; and in dread of him the 4 guards trembled, and became as dead.
The messenger, addressing the women, 5
however, said, "You need fear nothing; I know that you are looking for Jesus the crucified. He is not here; 6
He has risen, just as He told you.
Come, look at the place where the Lord lay! Then go quickly, tell His 7 disciples that He has risen from the dead. And at once He will precede you into Galilee; you will see Him there, as I have told you."

In fear, mingled with intense delight, 8 they accordingly took their departure with all speed from the tomb, and ran on to report to the disciples. But 9
Jesus suddenly met them, saying,
"Good day to you!" and they, approaching Him, seized His feet, and paid Him homage.

"Fear not!" said Jesus to them; 10
"go on, and acquaint My friends; so that they may return to Galilee, where they shall see Me."

Tripping the Guards.

Now while they proceeded, some of 11
the guards at the same time, going into the city, reported all these events to the chief priests. They accordingly 12 assembled with the elders; and after consultation together, they gave the soldiers a large sum of money, instructing them to say, that "His dis- 13 ciples came at night and stole Him while we were asleep. And if this tale 14 should be heard by the Governor, we will make it right with him, and set you at your ease." They accordingly 15 took the money, and did as they were directed; and that tale is current among the Judeans until the present time.

The Farewell Charge to the Disciples.

16 The eleven disciples, however, went to Galilee, to the mountain where 17 Jesus had directed them; and seeing Him, they paid Him homage: but 18 some doubted. Then Jesus, approaching them, spoke, saying, "Every power has been given to Me in heaven, and upon earth. Go you out, therefore, 19 and instruct all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all that I 20 have commanded you: and then I am with you through all time, even until the completion of the age."

THE GOSPEL AS RECORDED BY ST. MARK.

The Mission of John.

1 THE beginning of the gospel of
2 Jesus Christ, Son of God, as Isaiah the prophet wrote:

LO, NOW I WILL SEND MY MES-SENGER BEFORE YOUR FACE,
WHO SHALL PREPARE THE ROAD
BEFORE YOU;

3 A VOICE PROCLAIMING IN THE DESERT, MAKE READY THE ROAD FOR THE LORD,

MAKE HIS PATHS SMOOTH.¹

4 John, baptizing in the desert, was the one who came and proclaimed a baptism of conversion for freedom 5 from sins. And all the people of the district about Judea and Jerusalem went out to him; and were all baptized under him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

6 John was clothed in camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist;
and he lived upon locusts and wild 7 honey. And he preached, saying
"There comes after me a Mightier than I, Whose shoelace I am not even worthy to stoop down and untie. I 8 certainly baptize you in water; but He will baptize you in Holy Spirit."²

The Baptism of Jesus

9 It was in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John, in the Jordan.
10 And immediately upon ascending from the water, he saw the heavens part asunder; and the Spirit, in the likeness of a dove, descended upon Him;

while a voice from the heavens said, 11
"You are My Son, My Beloved, in Whom I delight."

The Temptation.

Then at once the Spirit drove Him 12 to the desert, to be tried by Satan for 13 forty days; and He was in company with the wild beasts, but the angels ministered to Him.

The Good News.

After the betrayal of John, Jesus 14 came into Galilee, proclaiming the good news of the Kingdom of God and saying, "Because the time is 15 completed, and the Kingdom of God is near, be converted, and believe in
the good news!"

The First Disciples.

When walking along the shore of 16
the lake of Galilee, He saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, throwing a casting-net into the lake; for they were fishermen. And Jesus said to them, 17
"Come, be My followers; and I will make you fishers of men." And 18 leaving their nets, they immediately followed Him. Then proceeding a 19 little further, He saw James, the son of Zebedee, and his brother John;
they were also in the vessel mending their nets. And immediately He 20 hailed them. Then leaving their father Zebedee in the vessel with the sailors, they went after Him.

A Dæmonic Cured.

He then proceeded to Capernaum; 21 and entering the synagogue on the

- 22 Sabbath, He taught. And they were astonished at His teaching; for His manner was like one possessed of authority, and not like that of the professors. There was also in the synagogue a man in possession of a foul spirit; and he called out, exclaiming, "Ah! what is there in common between us and You, Jesus of Nazareth? Have You come to destroy us? I know You what You are, the Holy of God."
- 25 Jesus then commanded him, exclaiming, "Silence! and go out of him!"
- 26 And the foul spirit, convulsing him, and shouting with a loud voice, left him. Then they were all astonished, so that they questioned one another, saying, "Who is this? What is this new teaching? Why, He even commands the foul spirits authoritatively, and they obey Him!" And the report concerning Him rapidly spread throughout the whole region of Galilee.

The Cure of Peter's Mother-in-Law.

- 29 Then immediately quitting the synagogue, He entered the house of Simon and Andrew, together with James and John. Now the mother-in-law of Simon lay prostrate there with a fever; and they at once told Him about her. So approaching, and taking hold of her hand, He raised her; and the fever instantly left her. She then attended to them. Afterwards, when evening arrived, they brought to Him all those suffering from sickness, as well as the demoniacs; and the whole town was collected about the door. He accordingly cured many of those suffering from sickness and various mental diseases, and expelled many demons; but He did not allow the demons to speak, because they recognised Him.

Praying in Pribate.

- 35 Rising up very early in the morning before daybreak, He departed into a desert place, and there prayed.
- 36 Simon and the others who were with him, however, followed in search of Him; and having found Him, they said to Him, "All are in search of You."
- 38 "Let us go to the neighbouring villages," He answered them, "so that I may also preach there; for this is the purpose for which I was sent."
- 39 And throughout Galilee, He preached in their synagogues, and cast out demons.

A Leper Cured.

Then a leper came to Him, pleading, kneeling, and saying to Him, "If only You will, You are able to cure me!"

Then Jesus, full of pity, stretched out His hand, touched him, and said, "I will; be cured!"

And while He spoke the leprosy left him, and he was cured. Then at once dismissing him, He sternly enjoined him to "Take care and say nothing to any one; but go, present yourself to the priests, and, as an evidence to them, offer for your purification what Moses commanded."

Taking his departure, however, he began to proclaim all, and to report the matter broadcast; so that He was not again able to openly enter the city, but kept outside in desert places, where they came to Him from every quarter.

Power to Pardon.

He entered Capernaum again, however, after some days; and it was reported that He was in a house. A crowd accordingly collected at once, so that there was no room left, not even near the door; and He expounded to them the Message. And they brought to Him a paralytic, carried by four men; but being unable to approach Him, because of the crowd, they removed the roofing where He was, and effecting an entrance, they lowered the rug upon which the paralytic lay.

Then Jesus, observing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Child, your sins are removed from you."

Some of the professors who were sitting there, however, began debating in their hearts: "Who is it that blasphemes in this way? Who can forgive sins, except God alone?" Jesus at once perceiving in His spirit that they thus debated within themselves, asked them, "Why are you debating in your hearts in this way? Which is easier to say to the paralytic?—'Your sins are forgiven'; or to say, 'Arise! take your rug, and walk!' But in order that you may see that the Son of Man possesses power upon earth to remove sins (He now said to the paralytic), Arise, I tell you! take your rug, and go to your house."

And rising up at once, and lifting his his rug, he went out in the presence of them all; so that all were in ecstasy, and praised God, exclaiming, "We have never seen anything like this!"

The Call of Matthew:

The Dinner-table talk.

- 13 He afterwards went out again by the lake; and all the crowd coming to 14 Him, He taught them. And as He was passing along, He noticed Levi, son of Alphaeus, sitting at the custom-house; and He said to him, "Follow Me!" So starting up, he followed 15 Him. And it transpired that when He reclined in his house, many tax-farmers and sinners reclined with Jesus and His disciples; for they were many who followed Him. But the professors and Pharisees, seeing Him eating with the tax-farmers and reprobates, said to His disciples, "Why does He eat and drink in this way with tax-farmers and blackguards?"
17 Jesus, on hearing this, answered them, "The healthy have no need of a physician; but those who are sick. I have not come to call the righteous, but the sinners."
18 And when the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting, they came and asked Him, "What is the reason why the disciples of John and those of the Pharisees fast, but Your disciples do not fast?"
19 "Can the groomsmen fast while the Bridegroom is with them?" asked Jesus, in reply. "During the time they have the Bridegroom with them they must not fast; but a time will come when the Bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they 21 can fast in those days. No one patches an old cloak with a piece of new felt; but should this be done, the new patch would tear itself from the old, and make a worse rent. And nobody pours new wine into old wine-skins; but if done, the new wine would burst the skins, and both the wine and the skins would be wasted. On the contrary, new wine must be put into new skins."

A Walk through the Cornfields.

- 23 Once as He was proceeding through the cornfields on the Sabbath day, His disciples, while walking along, began plucking the ears of corn.
24 "Look!" exclaimed the Pharisees to Him, "how they are doing on the Sabbath what is not allowable."

"Did you never read," replied He, 25 "what David did when he had need, and was hungry, he as well as those who were with him? How, during the 26 time that Abiathar was High Priest, he entered the house of God, and ate the shew-bread—which was permitted to be eaten by none but the priests—giving also to those who accompanied him?"

"The day of rest," He added, "came 27 for the sake of man; not man for the purpose of the Sabbath; so that the 28 Son of Man is also Master of the Sabbath."

A Withered Hand Restored.

He entered the synagogue on 3 another occasion; and there was a man who had his hand paralyzed. They accordingly watched Him, to 2 see if He would cure him on the Sabbath day, in order that they might inform against Him. He then told 3 the man who had the withered hand to "Stand up!" and of them He 4 inquired, "Is it allowable to do good on the Sabbath, or to do harm? to save life, or to take it?" But they kept silent.

Then looking round upon them with 5 indignation, being grieved at the stupidity of their hearts, He said to the man, "Extend your hand!"

He accordingly extended it; and his hand was restored to its natural condition.

The Pharisees then went out, and 6 at once held a consultation with the Herodians against Him, as to how they could destroy Him.

At the Lake-side.

Jesus, however, withdrew with His 7 disciples to the lake, and a great crowd followed Him from Galilee; and others from Judea, from Jerusalem, from 8 Idumæa, and from the other side of the Jordan, as well as from the neighbourhood of Tyre and Sidon—an immense crowd—came to Him, having heard all that He had done. And on account 9 of the crowd, He asked His disciples to get a little boat ready for Him, so as to be clear of the crush; for 10 He cured many; and as many as were sufferers threw themselves upon Him in their endeavour to touch Him. And the foul spirits, whenever they 11 saw Him, fell before Him, and yelled, 12 exclaiming, "Because You are the Son of God!" But He sternly enjoined them that they should not make Him known.

Appointment of the Twelve.

13 Hethen ascended the hill; and calling those whom He had chosen, they went towards Him. And He appointed twelve, in order that they might be with Him; and that He might send them to preach, and to have authority to cure diseases and cast out demons; namely, Simon, whom He named Peter; James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (these He named Boanerges—that is, Sons of Thunder); Andrew, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James the son of Alphæus, 18 Thaddæus, Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who was His betrayer.

Perversity of Christ's Enemies.

20 They then returned home; where the crowd again collected, so that they were unable even to eat bread. And His relatives, on hearing it, went out to secure Him; for they said, "He is mad!" And the professors who came down from Jerusalem asserted, "He is possessed by Beelzebub!" and, "He casts out demons by means of the prince of the demons." 23 Then calling them, and addressing them in parables, He said, "How is Satan able to expel Satan? for if a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot exist. And if a house is divided against itself, that house cannot hold together. And if Satan goes to war against himself, and remains his own enemy, he cannot reign, but be deposed. No one can enter the house of the strong one, and plunder his furniture, unless he first overpowers his strength; and then he may loot his house. I tell you indeed, that all the sins of the sons of men will be pardoned, as well as the blasphemies with which they may blaspheme; but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit has no release in the present age, but is guilty of a perpetual sin"—because they said, He is possessed of a foul spirit.

His Mother and Brothers.

31 His mother and His brothers came, and while waiting outside, they sent Him an invitation. And some in the crowd seated round about Him, said,

"See, Your mother and brothers outside are asking for You."

"Who," He asked, in reply to them, 33 "are My mother or My brothers?" And looking over those who sat round about Him, He exclaimed, "Here are My mother and My brothers! for 35 whoever may do the will of God, the same is My brother, My sister, and mother!"

The Parable of the Sower.

At another time, He again began to 4 teach by the lake-side. And a great crowd collected to Him, so that entering the boat, He took His seat there upon the lake; while all the crowd were upon the shore. And He taught 2 them much in parables, saying to them in the course of His teaching:

"Listen! The sower went out to 3 sow; and it happened that while sowing, some seed fell by the roadside, 4 and the birds came and devoured it. Another part fell upon a stony spot, 5 where the soil was shallow; and it at once sprouted, because there was no depth of soil: but as soon as the sun 6 had risen, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered. And some again fell among thistles, 7 and the thistles grew up and choked it, and it produced no grain. Some, 8 however, fell upon good soil, and springing up, it produced grain, and increased; yielding, one thirty, one sixty, and one a hundredfold." He 9 then exclaimed, "Whoever has ears to hear, let him listen!"

The Explanation of the Parable.

When He was in private, those 10 who attended Him, and the twelve, asked Him about the parable.

"It is given to you," He answered 11 them, "to become acquainted with the hidden meanings of the Kingdom of God: but to those outside, all is in parables; that seeing, they may see, 12 and will not perceive; and hearing, they may hear, and will not comprehend; otherwise they would turn back, when their sins would be forgiven them. Do you not understand this 13 parable?" He asked them. "Then how will you understand all the parables? The sower sows the 14 message: and these by the roadside 15 are those in whom the message has been implanted; but when they receive it, Satan immediately comes and snatches up the message which is

- 16 scattered in their hearts. And so likewise, that which fell upon stony places are those who, receiving the message, at once accept it with delight; yet possessing no root in themselves, they are temporary: then when trouble or persecution comes by reason of the message, they immediately fall.
- 17 Again, these sown among the thistles are those who accept the message; but the anxieties of this age, the seductions of wealth, and the admission of other inordinate desires, choke the message, and it becomes unfruitful.
- 18 On the other hand, these sown upon good soil are those who receive the message; and, clinging to it, yield fruit, some thirty, some sixty, and some one hundredfold."
- 19 "Why is a lamp brought?" He proceeded to ask them; "is it to be placed under the corn-measure, or under the bed? Is it not rather in order that it may be placed upon the lamp-stand? For there is nothing hidden that cannot be revealed; nor so concealed that it may not come into view. Whoever has ears to hear, let him listen!"

Secret Growth.

- 20 He also said to them: "Be careful what you listen to. With the selfsame measure with which you measure, it will be measured to you, and applied to yourselves; for gifts will be given to whoever possesses; and from those having nothing, whatever they have will be taken away."
- 21 He further said to them: "The Kingdom of God is thus: it is like a man who throws seed upon the ground and sleeps, and rises night and day. The seed sprouts and grows up, yet he knows not how. The earth, by its own action, yields grain; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. But when the grain is ripe, he immediately sends the reapers, because the harvest is ready."

The Mustard Seed.

- 22 Continuing, He said: "To what shall I compare the Kingdom of God? or in what allegory shall I represent it? Just by a grain of mustard seed, which, when sown upon the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds which they sow upon the land; but when it grows up, it is the largest of all garden herbs, and produces great branches;

so that the birds of the sky can take shelter under its shadow."

And by many such allegories He often spoke to them the message, as they were able to listen to it. Indeed, He spoke nothing to them without an allegory; but in private He explained everything to His disciples.

Stilling the Storm.

When the evening of that day arrived, He said to them, "Let us go over to the other side." Then leaving the crowd, they took Him away, as He was, in the vessel; although other boats were with Him.

And a very heavy gale began to blow, and the waves rushed into the boat, so that it was rapidly filling. And He Himself was at the stern, lying asleep upon a cushion. They accordingly aroused Him, exclaiming, "Teacher! do You not care if we perish?"

And having woken up, He restrained the wind, and said to the sea, "Silence! be still!" The wind then lulled, and there was perfect calm. "Why," He asked them, "do you doubt in this way? How is it that you cannot yet have faith?"

But they became terrified; and said to one another, "What can He be? for even the wind and the sea obey Him!"

The Gadarene Demoniac.

Arriving at the other side of the lake, they landed in the district of the Gadarenes. And disembarking on the boat, a man possessed by a foul spirit, who had his dwelling among the tombs, at once ran to Him from the tombs. And none could restrain him, not even by binding; for they had often bound him with chains and shackles, and he had torn asunder the chains and smashed the shackles; and no man had the strength to tame him. Continually, night and day, he was among the tombs and mountains, shrieking, and bruising himself with stones. But seeing Jesus from a distance, he ran and knelt to Him; and calling with a loud voice, he said, "What is there between me and You, Jesus, Son of the Highest God? I put you on oath before that God that You will not torment me." He had said to Him, "Begone, foul spirit, out of the man!"

And He asked him, "What is your name?"

10 "My name is Legion," was his reply; "for we are many." And they urgently pleaded that He might not send them out of the district. (Now there was feeding on the side of the hill a great herd of swine.) And they pleaded with Him, saying, "Send us to the herd of swine, so that we may enter into them."

13 Jesus accordingly gave them permission; and departing, the foul spirits entered the swine. Then the herd, numbering about two thousand, rushed madly down the precipice into the sea, and were drowned in the deep. The feeders consequently took to flight; and having reported it in the town and in the country, the people came out to see what had occurred. 15 And approaching Jesus, they found him who had been possessed now seated, clothed, and quite sane, even the one who had the legion; and they were terrified. Those who had witnessed it explained what had happened to the demoniac, and also concerning the swine. They then began to urge Him to quit their shores.

18 And when He was embarking on the vessel, the one who had been possessed begged that he might accompany Him. Jesus, however, would not allow it; but told him, "Go back to your home, to your relatives, and tell them what the Lord has done for you, and has pitied you." So taking his departure, he began to report in Decapolis what Jesus had done for him; and all were filled with astonishment.

The Distress of Jairus.

21 Now when Jesus had again crossed over in the boat to the other side, a great crowd collected to Him; and He was near the lake. And one of the chiefs of the synagogue, Jairus by name, came; and seeing Him, fell at His feet, and earnestly appealed to Him, saying, "My little daughter is dying; come now, place Your hands upon her, so that she may be saved, and live." He accordingly went along with him; and a great crowd accompanied and pressed upon Him.

A Woman's Faith Rewarded.

25 A woman also, who had suffered from hemorrhage for twelve years, 26 and had been greatly tortured under many physicians—and had spent all she possessed without relief, but was rather getting worse—having heard 27 about Jesus, came into the crowd behind Him, and touched His robe; for she thought, "If I could but 28 touch His robe, I shall be made well." And at once the discharge of 29 blood was stopped; and she felt in herself that she was cured of that disease.

Jesus immediately perceiving that 30 power had left Him, turning round to the crowd, asked, "Who has touched My garments?"

"You see the crowd pressing around 31 You," the disciples answered Him; "and do You ask, 'Who touched Me?'" He looked round, however, 32 to discover who had done it. Then 33 the woman, trembling in terror, and conscious of what had happened to her, came and bowed to Him, and told Him the whole truth.

"Daughter, your faith has saved 34 you," He said to her; "go in peace, and you shall be relieved from your disease."

Raising Jairus' Daughter.

While He was speaking, some one 35 came to the chief of the synagogue, saying, "Your daughter is dead; why should you further trouble the Teacher?"

Jesus overhearing the message, how- 36 ever, said to the chief of the synagogue, "Fear not; only believe!" And He allowed none to accompany 37 Him but Peter, James, and John the brother of James.

On arriving at the house of the 38 chief of the synagogue, He saw a confusion and lamenting, and much wailing. And entering, He said to them, 39 "Why do you shriek and weep? The child is not dead, but only fainting." But they laughed at Him in ridicule. 40 Then dismissing them all, He took the father and mother of the child, with His companions, and entered the chamber where the child was laid; and, having taken the hand of the 41 child, He said to her, "Talitha cumi!" which, when translated means, "Girl, I tell you, rise up!" And the girl at once stood up, 42 and walked; for she was twelve years old. And they were greatly amazed, and overcame with gladness. He then 43 enjoined them to let no one know it; and ordered them to give her some food.

The Despised Nazarene.

- 6 He then went from there, and came to His own country; and His disciples followed Him. And when the Sabbath came, He began to teach in the synagogue; when many who heard were struck with admiration, exclaiming, "Where has He obtained this?" and "What is the wisdom given to Him?" and, "How can such results come from His hands? Is not this fellow the carpenter, the son of Mary? and only the brother of James, Joses, Judah, and Simon? and are His sisters not here among us?" And they were scandalized because of Him.
- 4 But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not dishonoured, except in his own country, among his relatives, and in his own house."
- 5 And He was there unable to do any powerful work; except that He cured a few sick people by laying His hands upon them. And He wondered at their disbelief. But He traversed the surrounding villages, teaching.

The Mission of the Twelve.

- 7 He then called to Him the twelve, and began to send them out by two and two; and He gave them authority over foul spirits. He also instructed them to take nothing for their journey, except a walking-stick alone; no bag, no bread, no money in their purse; but only to be shod with sandals, and not wear two cloaks. And He instructed them, "Wherever you may enter a house, remain there until you leave the place; and whoever will neither accept you nor listen to you, when you depart from there, shake off the dust from under your feet, as an evidence against them. I tell you indeed, that it will be more endurable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the Day of Judgment than for that town."
- 12 Then departing, they preached that they should change their minds. And they cast out many demons; and applied oil to many sick people, and they were cured.

The Murder of John.

- 14 King Herod also heard of it; for His name had become public; and he said, "It must be John the Baptizer, risen from the dead; and therefore the powers work through his hands." Others said, "It is Elijah;" while others again said, "He is a prophet, or like one of the prophets." Herod, however, hearing it, said, "John whom I beheaded, has himself been raised from the dead!" For Herod had sent to arrest John, and confined him in prison, on account of Herodia, the wife of his brother Philip; for he had married her, although John had said to Herod, "It is not allowable for you to take your brother's wife." Herodia herself consequently bore him a grudge, and longed to murder him; but was not able, for Herod respected John, knowing him to be a just and holy man, and had befriended him, and gladly listened to him, and did many things willingly when he heard him.

But upon the arrival of a suitable day, when Herod gave a dinner to his nobles, generals, and the gentry of Galilee, Herodia's own daughter entered and danced, greatly pleasing Herod and his guests. The king said to the girl, "Ask of me whatever you like, and I will give it you!" And he swore to her, "Whatever you ask of me, I will give it you, even to the half of my kingdom."

Then running out, she said to her mother, "What shall I ask?" "The head of John the Baptizer," was her reply. Rushing back to the king, she demanded, saying, "I wish you would give at once on a dish the head of John the Baptizer!" The king was horrified; yet because of his oath, and his guests, he did not like to refuse her. So the king at once sent one of his body-guards, with instructions to take off his head.

He accordingly went and beheaded John in the prison, and brought his head upon a dish, and gave it to the girl; and the girl gave it to her mother. Then his disciples, hearing of it, came and took possession of his body, and placed it in a tomb.

Ferding Five Thousand Men.

When the apostles returned to Jesus, they reported to Him everything that they had done, and all that they had taught. He then said to them, "Come and retire privately by yourselves to a quiet place, and rest a little"; for many were coming and going, so that they had no leisure, not even to eat. They accordingly retired privately by boat to a quiet place. Many, however, observed their departure; and recognising Him, they ran by land from all the towns, and arrived first,

- 34 So upon disembarking, He observed a great crowd; and He had pity upon them, because they were as scattered sheep who had no shepherd: but He then began to teach them many things.
- 35 And when many hours had passed, His disciples approached Him and said, "Seeing that this is a desert place, and it is now late, dismiss them, in order that they may go into the surrounding fields and villages, and buy bread for themselves; for they have nothing to eat here."
- 37 "Give them something yourselves to eat." He said to them in reply. And they asked Him, "Shall we go and purchase twenty pounds' worth of loaves, and give it to them to eat?"
- 38 "How many loaves have you?" He asked; "go and see." And on ascertaining, they replied, "Five, and two fishes." He then ordered them all to recline in parties upon the green grass.
- 40 They accordingly took their seats in groups, here a hundred, there fifty.
- 41 And taking the five loaves and the two fishes, He looked up to heaven, blessing them; and breaking up the loaves, He handed to His disciples to distribute among the crowd: while He divided the two fishes among them all.
- 42 And they all partook, and were satisfied. They then picked up twelve bags full of the broken pieces, and of the fishes. And those who had eaten of the bread numbered about five thousand men.

Jesus Walking on the Lake.

- 45 Immediately after, He urged His disciples to embark in the vessel, and proceed to the other shore, towards Bethsaida, while he dismissed the crowd. And having bidden them farewell, He withdrew to the mountain to pray. Then when the evening arrived, the boat was in the middle of the lake, and He alone upon the land. Seeing them struggling with the oars, for the wind was against them, at about three o'clock in the morning He made towards them, walking upon the water; and He came alongside of them. But they, seeing Him walking upon the water, concluded that it must be a phantom, and shrieked out in their terror; for they all saw Him. But addressing them at once, He said, "Take courage! I AM; do not be afraid." And when He got up to them in the boat, the wind lulled. And they were much astonished in themselves; for they did not reflect upon the loaves, because of their degenerate hearts.

In the Land of Gennesaret.

So when they had crossed over, they arrived in the land of Gennesaret, and moored to the shore. Then when they had disembarked from the boat, the people at once recognised Him; and ran through the whole neighbourhood, bringing on mattresses those who were sick, carrying them about to wherever they heard He was. And wherever He entered a village, town, or field, they placed the sick in the open places, and begged Him that they might but touch the fringe of His robe; and as many as touched Him were restored.

Table Etiquette.

The Pharisees, and some of the professors from Jerusalem, then collected about Him, and noticed some of the disciples eating bread with polluted or unwashed hands; for the Pharisees, and all the Judeans, do not eat unless they scrupulously wash their hands, in accordance with the rule of their forefathers. And returning from the public places, if they do not wash, they will not eat; and many other observances had been handed down to them, such as the washing of dishes, cups, plates, and lounges. The Pharisees and professors therefore asked Him, "Why do Your disciples not conduct themselves according to the rules of our ancestors? but, on the contrary, eat their bread with unwashed hands?"

In reply to them He said, "Admirably did Isaiah prophesy about you play-actors, when he wrote:

THESE PEOPLE HONOUR ME WITH THE LIPS,
BUT THEIR HEART RUNS FROM ME.
BUT IN VAIN DO THEY PAY ME
HOMAGE, TEACHING THE PRECEPTS OF MEN
FOR DOCTRINES!¹

"Abandoning the command of God, you cling to the order of men, in washing cups and dishes; and you attend to many other observances of that kind." And He further said to them, "You very finely throw aside the command of God, so that you may stick to your own regulation! For 10

Moses said, HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND YOUR MOTHER;¹ and, WHO NEGLECTS HIS FATHER OR HIS MOTHER, LET HIM END IN DEATH!²

11 But you say, 'If a man should say to his father or to his mother, 'All that I possess with which I might help you is 12 Korban—a gift to God': then you will never again allow him to do anything
13 for his father or his mother; thus distorting the word of God by your regulation, which you have handed down: and many similar things you do."

14 Then, calling to Him again the whole crowd, He said to them, "All of you listen to Me, and understand. Nothing that enters the man from without can pollute him; but, on the contrary, that which comes out of the man, that is what pollutes him. If any one has ears to hear, let him listen."

17 Now when He had entered the house, away from the crowd, His disciples asked Him about the parable.

18 And He said to them, "Are you also still ignorant? Do you not perceive that what enters into the man from without cannot pollute him? because it does not reach the intellect, but passes into the bowels; which eliminate all his foods. What comes out from the man," He added, "that pollutes the man. For from within, from the intellect of the man, proceed vile thoughts, adultery, fornication, murder, theft, avarice, wickedness, deceit, profligacy, a wicked eye, blasphemy, arrogance, and recklessness. All these corrupt things come out of and pollute the man."

The Syrophenician Woman.

24 Starting from there, He proceeded to the borderland of Tyre and Sidon, And going to a house, He wished no one to know it; but He could not be hid: for at once a woman, whose daughter was possessed by a foul spirit, having heard about Him, came and fell at His feet. The woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by race; and she begged Him that He would cast out the demon from her daughter.

27 But Jesus answered her: "Let Me first satisfy My children; for it is not fair to take the bread of My children, and fling it to the whelps."

28 "Yes, Sir," she said in reply to Him, "yet even the whelps under the table eat of the crumbs of the children."

"Because of this expression," He 29 answered her, "you may go; the demon has left your daughter."

And returning to her home, she 30 found the demon gone, and her daughter resting upon a couch.

A Deaf and Dumb Man Cured.

Then departing again from the dis- 31 tricts of Tyre and Sidon, He came towards the sea of Galilee, through the middle of the district of Decapolis. They then brought Him a deaf stam- 32 merer, and desired Him to place His hands upon him. So taking him aside 33 from the crowd, He placed His fingers in his ears; and having spit, He touched his tongue. Then looking up 34 to heaven, He sighed, and said to him, "Ephphatha!" which is, "Be opened!" And his hearing was im- 35 mediately restored, the defects of his tongue were remedied, and he spoke quite plainly.

He then enjoined them to tell no 36 one; but the more He urged them, the more persistently they proclaimed it. And their astonishment was so 37 intense, that they kept exclaiming, "How admirably He does everything! He makes both the deaf to hear, and the speechless to speak!"

Feeding Four Thousand.

About this time a very great crowd 8 collected; and having nothing to eat, Jesus called His disciples to Him, saying to them, "I am grieved for the 2 crowd, because they have remained with Me three days, and they have nothing that they can eat. If I there- 3 fore dismiss them to their homes, they will faint by the way; for some of them have come from a distance."

His disciples accordingly asked Him 4 in reply, "From where are we able, here in this desert, to satisfy all these with bread?"

"How many loaves have you?" He 5 asked them.

"Seven," was their reply.

He then instructed the crowd to be 6 seated upon the ground; and taking the seven loaves, having offered a blessing, He broke up and gave to His disciples for distribution, and they handed round to the crowd. Besides, 7 they had a few small fishes; and having blessed, He ordered these also to be distributed. And they ate, and 8

² Exod. xxi. 17.

were satisfied; and of the broken pieces that remained over, they gathered up seven hampers full. The eaters numbered about four thousand. He then dismissed them.

Pharisaic Ferment.

10 He immediately afterwards embarked in the boat together with His disciples, and came to the neighbourhood of Dalmanutha. There the Pharisees approached, and began to argue with Him, asking Him for a sign from heaven, testing Him.

12 But sighing deeply in His spirit, He said, "Why does this race hunt after a sign? I tell you indeed, that no sign shall be given to this race." And leaving them, He again took the boat, and returned to the other shore.

14 They had forgotten, however, to provide themselves with bread; and they had with them but one loaf in the boat. And He warned them, saying, "Take care! beware of the ferment of the Pharisees, and of the ferment of Herod."

16 They then consulted with one another, remarking, "It is because we have no bread."

17 But Jesus, perceiving it, said to them, "Why do you consult because you have no bread? Will you never reflect nor comprehend? Is your intellect dull? Having eyes, do you not see? Having ears, do you not hear? and do you not remember? 19 When I broke those five loaves among the five thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you pick up?"

"Twelve," was their reply.

20 "And of those seven among the four thousand, how many hampers full of broken pieces did you gather up?"

"Seven," they replied.

21 "Then how," He went on to ask them, "do you not yet understand?"

A Blind Man Cured.

22 Then when He arrived at Bethsaida, they brought to Him a blind man, pleading that He would touch him. 23 So, taking the blind man by the hand, He led him out of the village; and having spit into his eyes, He placed His hands upon him, asking him if he saw anything.

24 And looking up, he said, "I see men, I see them like walking trees!"

25 Then He again placed His hands over his eyes, and made him look up:

and he was restored, and saw everything quite distinctly. Jesus then sent him away to his home, saying, "Do not enter even the village, nor tell it to any one in the village."

Peter's Acknowledgment.

Jesus and His disciples afterwards proceeded to the villages of Cæsarea Philippi. And on the road He questioned His disciples, asking, "Whom do men say that I am?"

In reply they told Him, "John the Baptist; others Elijah; and others, again, one of the prophets."

"But Whom do you say that I am?" He asked them again.

"You are the Messiah," exclaimed Peter, in reply. He enjoined them, however, to tell no one about Him.

He then began to teach them that the Son of Man had much to endure, and to be rejected at the hands of the elders, chief priests, and professors; aye, even to be murdered; to rise again, however, after three days. He made this statement quite openly. Then Peter, seizing hold of Him, began to reproach Him. But turning round, and looking at His disciples, He repelled Peter, exclaiming, "Get behind Me, Satan; because you do not reflect upon the thoughts of God, but merely those of men."

Then calling the crowd to Him, along with the disciples, He said to them:

"Whoever wishes to come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me; for whoever desires to preserve his life, will sacrifice it; but if any one sacrifices his life for the sake of Me, and for the good news, he will preserve it. For what will it profit a man, if he should gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his life? If any one, however, is ashamed of Me and of My teachings in this adulterous and wicked race, then will the Son of Man be ashamed of him, when He comes with the holy angels in the majesty of His Father."

"I tell you indeed," He went on to declare, "that there are some of those standing here who shall not taste of death, until they see the Kingdom of God appearing with power."

The Glorification on the Mount.

- 2 And six days later, Jesus took Peter, James, and John, and went with them privately by themselves into a high mountain. And He was transformed in their presence; when His garments became sparkling bright, exceedingly white as snow, such as no bleacher on earth could whiten them. Elijah and Moses then appeared to them: and they conversed with Jesus.
- 5 Then Peter said to Jesus, "How delightful it is to be here! Let us make three tents; one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." For he knew not what he should say, being, as they were, exceedingly terrified.
- 7 A cloud also came, overshadowing them; and a voice came out of the cloud: "This is My Son, My Beloved: listen to Him!" And suddenly looking round, they saw no one, except Jesus, alone with themselves.
- 9 And while they were coming down from the mountain, He specially instructed them that they should disclose to no one what they had seen, until the Son of Man had risen from the dead. They, however, retained the event in their memory, puzzling themselves about this rising from the dead. They also asked Him, "Why do the professors say that Elijah must come first?"
- 12 "Elijah certainly coming first, will restore all," He replied. "And how is it written about the Son of Man? That He must suffer much, and be treated with contempt? I tell you, however, that Elijah has indeed come; and they have done to him whatever they liked, as it was written about him."

The Speechless Spirit.

- 14 Coming then to His disciples, He observed a great mob around them, and the professors engaged in discussion with them. But as soon as they saw Him, all the crowd were much astonished; and, rushing forward, they saluted Him. He then inquired of the professors, "What are you arguing against them?"
- 17 "Teacher," one of them answered, "I brought to You my son, who has a speechless spirit in possession of him; and whenever it seizes him, it throws him down, when he foams and grinds his teeth, and he wastes away. I accordingly asked Your disciples to expel it; but they have not the power."

"What a sceptical race!" He exclaimed, in reply. "Until when must I remain with you? Until when must I be burdened with you? Bring him to Me."

They accordingly brought him to Him; and, on seeing Him, the spirit at once convulsed him painfully; and, falling upon the ground, he wallowed, foaming. He then asked his father, "What length of time is it since this came to him?"

"From childhood," he replied. "And it often throws him into the fire, and into the water, so that it may put an end to him. If, however, anything is possible, have pity upon us, and help us."

"That depends upon yourself," said Jesus to him; "if you only believe, all is possible to the believer."

"I do believe," exclaimed the father at once; "succour me in my unbelief!"

Seeing, however, that the crowd rushed together, Jesus rebuked the foul spirit, saying to him, "You speechless and deaf spirit, I command you to go out of him, and never enter him again."

Then shrieking, and convulsing him, it took its departure; and he became as if dead, so that many said, "He is dead." But Jesus took his hand, lifting him, and he stood up.

And having entered a house, His disciples asked Him privately, "Why were we powerless to cast him out?"

"This sort can only be expelled by means of prayer and fasting," He told them in reply.

The Betrayal Foretold.

Then going away from there, they travelled through Galilee; and He did not wish any one to know it: because He was teaching His disciples, and repeating to them that "The Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of men, and they will murder Him; but having been murdered, He will rise again after three days." They did not, however, comprehend this statement, and they were afraid to ask Him.

Mobility Illustrated.

When they had come to Capernaum, and had entered the house, He asked them, "What were you discussing among yourselves on the road?"

But they kept silent; because upon the journey they had been arguing as to who was the greatest.

- 35 Then sitting down, He called the twelve, and said to them, "If any one wishes to be first, let him be the last, and the attendant upon all." And taking a little child, He placed it in the midst of them; and caressing it,
- 37 He said to them, "If any one shall accept one child such as this for My Name's sake, he accepts Me; and if any one accepts Me, he accepts not Myself only, but My Sender."
- 38 John said to Him, "Teacher, we saw a man casting out demons by means of Your Name; and we forbade him, because he was not one of our followers."
- 39 Jesus, however, said, "Do not forbid him; for no one who works a miracle in My Name, can easily speak ill of Me: because he who is not against us is upon our side. And whoever gives you a cup of water to drink because you bear the name of the Messiah, I tell you indeed, that he shall by no means go unrewarded.
- 42 And, on the other hand, whoever causes one of the weakest believers in Me to fall, it would be much better for him to have a large millstone hung round his neck, and be flung into the sea. If even your hand should cause you to fall, cut it off! It will be better for you to enter into life maimed, than possessing both hands to go into Gehenna, into the inextinguishable fire; where their worm never ends, and the fire is not quenched. And if your foot leads you astray, cut it off! It will be better for you to enter into life lame, than having two feet to be flung into Gehenna, into the inextinguishable fire; where their worm never ends, and the fire is not quenched.
- 47 And if your eye makes you fall, throw it away! It will be better for you to enter into the Kingdom of God with but one eye, than possessing both eyes, to be thrown into the fire of Gehenna; where their worm never ends, and the fire is not quenched.
- 49 For every one shall be salted by fire, AS EVERY SACRIFICE IS SALTED WITH SALT.¹ Salt is useful; but if the salt-rock should become saltless, how can itself be seasoned? Have salt in yourselves, and live at peace together."

Marrriage and Divorce.

- 10 Arising from there, He then proceeded to the borders of Judea, by way of the farther side of the Jordan. And a crowd again rushed together about Him; and, as was His custom, He again taught them. The Pharisees also approached Him with the inquiry, "Is it legal for a man to repudiate his wife?" thus testing Him.

"What did Moses order you?" He asked them, in reply.

"Moses," they answered, "gave a permission to secure a divorce, and to send her away."

"Because of your brutality he wrote you that order," said Jesus to them; "but God made them male and female from the beginning of creation. On account of this, a man must leave his father and his mother, and cling to his wife; and the two shall be as one body, so that they are no more two, but a single body. What, therefore, God has yoked together, let man not separate."

While in the house, His disciples again asked Him about this statement. And He answered them, "Whoever may repudiate his wife, and marry another, commits adultery against her; and if a woman should repudiate her husband, and marry another, she commits adultery."

Jesus and the Children.

And when they were bringing children to Him, in order that He might touch them, His disciples repelled those who brought them. But Jesus, seeing it, became indignant; and said to them, "Allow the little children to come to Me, and do not prevent them; for of such is the Kingdom of God. I tell you indeed, that whoever does not accept the Kingdom of God like a little child, he can never, by any means, enter it." Then, having caressed them, placing His hands upon them, He blessed them.

The Barrier of Wealth.

And as He was going out into the road, one ran up to Him, and, kneeling to Him, asked Him, "Perfect Teacher, what shall I do to inherit everlasting life?"

"Why do you call Me perfect?" asked Jesus, in reply. "None but One is perfect, God alone. You know the commands: YOU SHALL NOT COMMIT ADULTERY; YOU SHALL NOT MURDER; YOU SHALL NOT STEAL; YOU SHALL NOT COMMIT PERJURY: YOU SHALL NOT CHEAT;

HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND MOTHER.¹

- 20 "Teacher," he replied, "all these I have observed from my youth."
 21 Jesus then, gazing at him, admired him, and said, "One thing is missing in you. Go away, sell whatever you possess, and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then follow Me, carrying the cross."
 22 But he became crestfallen at that idea, and went away grieving; for he possessed many estates.
 23 Jesus then looking round, remarked to His disciples, "With what difficulty can those who possess wealth enter the Kingdom of God!"
 24 His disciples, however, were amazed at His language; but Jesus, speaking to them again, said, "Children, how hard it is for those who rely upon their wealth to enter the Kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God."
 26 They were then still more astonished than before, saying to one another, "Who then can be saved?"
 27 Jesus, gazing at them, replied, "By human power it is impossible; but not with the help of God: for with God everything is possible!"
 28 Peter then began to say to Him, "Why, we have abandoned all, and followed You."
 29 "I tell you indeed," said Jesus, in reply, "that no one who has abandoned home, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, on account of Me and the good news, but will receive a hundredfold in the present time—with homes, brothers, sisters, mothers, children, and lands, together with persecutions—and in the world to come eternal life. But many first will be last, and the last first."

On the Road to Jerusalem.

- μ They were now on the road, going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus was going in advance of them. And they were astonished, and followed Him in terror. Then calling the twelve to Him, He again began to tell them what would befall Him in the future.
 33 "Now," said He, "we are going up to Jerusalem; and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and professors; and they will condenn Him to death, and hand Him over to the heathen. They will also 34 insult Him, lash Him, spit upon Him, aye, and murder Him; yet, at the close of three days He will rise again."

Ambitious Disciples.

James and John, the two sons of 35 Zebedee, then approached Him, saying, "Teacher, we would like You to do for us whatever we may ask You."

"What do you wish Me to do for 36 you?" He asked them.

"Grant us," they replied, "that in 37 Your Majesty we may be seated, the one upon Your right hand, and the other upon Your left."

"You know not what you ask," said 38 Jesus to them. "Are you able to drink the cup of which I drink? or to be baptized in the baptism in which I shall be baptized?"

"We are able," was their reply. 39

Jesus, however, said to them, "You shall certainly drink of the cup of which I drink; and you shall be baptized with the baptism in which I shall be baptized. But to sit upon My right 40 hand and upon My left is not Mine to give, except to those for whom it is prepared."

And when the ten heard it, they 41 were very indignant concerning James and John. But Jesus, calling them to 42 Him, said to them, "You know that those chosen to govern the heathen lord it over them, and their nobles also domineer over them; but it must 43 not be so among you. On the contrary, if any one wishes to take rank among you, let him become your servant; and whoever among you wishes 44 to be exalted to a leadership, let him be slave for all. For indeed the Son 45 of Man came not to be served; but, on the contrary, to serve, and to sacrifice His life a ransom for many."

Blind Bartimæus.

They then arrived at Jericho; and 46 as He was leaving Jericho with His disciples and a great crowd, Bartimæus, a blind man, the son of Timæus, sat by the roadside begging. And hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to call out, and say, "Jesus, Son of David, pity me!" And many 48 reproved him, to make him keep silent; but he rather called out more loudly, "O Son of David, do pity me!"

49 Jesus then, standing still, said,
"Call him."

So, hailing the blind man, they said to him, "Take heart! Get up: He calls you!" Throwing off his cloak, he sprang up, and came toward Jesus.

51 "What do you wish that I should do for you?" Jesus asked him.

"Great Master," the blind man answered Him, "that I may see again!"

52 "Go away," said Jesus, in reply to him; "your faith has saved you." And he saw again immediately, and followed Jesus along the road.

The Triumphal Entry.

11 And when they drew near to Jerusalem, to Bethphage and Bethany, towards the Mount of Olives, He sent forward two of His disciples, instructing them: "Go into the village opposite you; and as soon as you enter it, you will find a colt, upon which no man has ever been seated: unfasten it and bring it. And should any one ask you, 'Why are you doing this?' reply, 'Because the Master has need of it'; and he will at once send it."

4 They accordingly went, and found a colt tied up against the door outside, in the open street; and they unfastened it. And some of those who were standing about, asked them, "What are you doing, untying that colt?"
6 They answered just as Jesus had instructed them; they then allowed them. And they took the colt to Jesus; and throwing their cloaks over it, He took His seat upon it. Then many spread their cloaks upon the road; while others cut off foliage from the trees, and scattered them upon the pathway. And those in advance and those in the rear shouted, exclaiming, HOSANNA!

BLESSED IS THE ONE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD!

10 Blessed be the approaching Kingdom of our father David;

HOSANNA IN THE HIGHEST!¹

11 Then, entering Jerusalem, and the temple, He examined everything; but it being now late, He returned again to Bethany, together with the twelve.

The Second Clearing of the Temple.

12 And on the morning following, when leaving Bethany, He was hungry.

And seeing at a distance a fig-tree¹³ with leaves, He went to see if He could find anything upon it. On coming to it, however, He found nothing but leaves; for it was not a good fig year. Then addressing it, 14 He said, "Never from now let any one eat fruit from you." And His disciples heard Him.

They then arrived at Jerusalem. 15 And Jesus, entering the temple, began to expel the buyers and sellers from the temple, overturning the tables of the money-brokers, as well as the stands of the pigeon-dealers; while 16 He would not allow any one to carry an article through the temple. He 17 also taught, saying to them, "Is it not written,

MY HOUSE SHALL BE SET APART AS A HOUSE OF PRAYER FOR ALL THE NATIONS?¹ but you have turned it into a CAVE OF ROBBERS."²

When the chief priests and professors heard it, however, they planned how they could murder Him; for they were afraid of Him, because all the masses were struck with admiration at His teaching. But when evening 19 came, He went out of the city.

The Withered Fig-Tree.

When returning in the early morning, they observed the fig-tree withered from the root. And Peter, remembering, 21 said to Him, "Rabbi, look! the fig-tree which You denounced is withered."

Jesus, addressing them, then said, 22 "Have faith in God. I tell you indeed, that if you should say to this mountain, 'Be taken away, and flung into the sea!'—and should not doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say could be—it will be done as you shall say. I therefore tell you 24 that whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you will receive it; and it shall come to you. And when you 25 stand praying, if you have anything against any one, forgive it: so that your Father Who is in heaven may forgive you your own trespasses. But 26 if you will not forgive, your Father Who is in heaven will not forgive your trespasses."

Concerning John the Baptizer.

When they returned to Jerusalem, 27 and while He was walking in the

28 Temple, the chief priests, professors, and elders approached and asked Him, "By what authority do You do this? and who gave You that authority so that You should do it?"

29 "I will Myself ask you one question," said Jesus, in reply to them; "and on answering Me, I will, in return, give you My authority for acting as I do. Was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men? Can you answer Me?"

31 They accordingly consulted privately among themselves, saying, "If we answer, 'From heaven,' He will ask, 'Why then did you not believe him?' But should we say, 'From men'—they dreaded the people, because all believed that John was really a prophet. In reply, they therefore said to Jesus, "We do not know."

And Jesus, answering, said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I act in this way."

The Parable of the Vineyard.

12 He now began to speak to them in parables. "A man," He said, "planted a vineyard, surrounded it with a fence, dug out a wine-vat, built a watch-tower, let it out to cultivators and took his departure. And at the right time, he sent a messenger to the tenants, in order that he might receive from the tenants the rent of the vineyard. But seizing him, they lashed him, and sent him away without anything. Again he sent another messenger to them; but at him they threw stones, injured his head, and maltreated him most disgracefully. Then he sent still another; and they murdered him. And of many others, some were lashed, and some murdered. Having still a very dearly-loved son, he even sent him to them at the last, thinking, 'They will surely respect my son.' But the cultivators said to one another, 'Since this fellow is the heir, come on! let us murder him, and the estate will be our own.' Then seizing him, they murdered him, and stung him outside the vineyard. What, therefore, will the owner of the vineyard do?"

"He will come and put an end to these tenants, and hand the vineyard over to others," was their reply.

10 "Then did you never read this Scripture—

A STONE WHICH THE BUILDERS REJECTED,

THAT SAME ONE WAS MADE THE CHIEF KEYSTONE. IT WAS DONE BY THE LORD, AND IS WONDERFUL IN OUR EYES."¹

And they longed to arrest Him; but they dreaded the crowd: for they perceived that He had spoken the parable against themselves. So leaving Him alone, they took their departure.

The Tribute Trap.

They then sent to Him some of the Pharisees, and of the Herodians, so that they might ensnare Him in discussion. And when they came, they said to Him, "Teacher, we know that You are to be trusted, and that You are partial to none; for You do not study a man's face, but on the contrary, truthfully teach the way of God. Is it right to pay tribute to Cæsar, or not? Shall we pay, or ought we not to pay?"

He, however, knowing their deception, replied, "Why do you tempt Me? Bring Me a denarius,² so that I may see it." And on their producing one, He asked them, "Whose is this portrait and inscription?"

"Cæsar's," was their reply.

Jesus then answered them, "Give back to Cæsar Cæsar's own; and to God what belongs to God."

And they were very much surprised at Him.

About the Resurrection.

The Sadducees, who hold that there is no resurrection, afterwards came to Him with the question, "Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if any one dies, leaving a wife childless, then his brother must take his widow, and rear children to his brother. There were seven brothers, and the first took a wife, and died without leaving offspring. And the second married her, and died, leaving no children behind him; so also the third. Indeed, the whole seven married her, and left no children. Last of all the woman also died. In the resurrection, therefore, when they will all rise, of which one of them will she be the wife? for all the seven married that woman."

"Are you not in deep error respecting this?" said Jesus, in reply to them,

² Denarius, equivalent to about 21. 6d.

- "on account of your ignorance of the Scriptures, and the power of God?"
- 25 Because, when they rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage; but are as angels in heaven.
- 26 But with respect to the dead, that they are raised: have you not read in the book of Moses, how God spoke to him at the bush, saying, I, THE GOD OF ABRAHAM, AND THE GOD OF ISAAC, AND THE GOD OF JACOB? ¹
- 27 He is not the God of dead, but of living men. You are consequently greatly mistaken."

A Hopeful Professor.

- 28 One of the professors, hearing their discussion, and finding that He had answered them well, now asked Him, "What is the most important of all the commands?"
- 29 "The first," answered Jesus, "is, ISRAEL, LISTEN! THE LORD OUR GOD IS ONE LORD; AND YOU SHALL LOVE THE LORD YOUR GOD WITH ALL YOUR HEART, AND ALL YOUR SOUL, AND ALL YOUR INTELLECT, AND ALL YOUR STRENGTH." ² That is the first command; and the second is like it, YOU SHALL LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOUR OWN SELF. ³ No other commands are greater than these."
- 32 The professor then said to Him, "Teacher, You have spoken the truth admirably; for One He is, and apart from Him there is no other. And to love Him with all the heart, and with all the intellect, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is better than all the burnt-offerings and sacrifices."
- 34 Jesus, seeing that he answered intelligently, said to him, "You are not far from the Kingdom of God."
- After that, none dared again to question Him.

Cross-Questioning.

- 35 Now, while teaching in the temple, Jesus inquired, "How can the professors say that the Messiah is a Son of David? David himself, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, said:
- THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD,
BE SEATED ON MY RIGHT HAND,
UNTIL I PLACE YOUR ENEMIES
BENEATH YOUR FEET. ⁴

"David himself calls Him his Lord; 37 in what way is He then his son?" And the many listened to Him with the greatest of pleasure.

The Professors Condemned.

In the course of His teaching, He ³⁸ told them, "Be on your guard against the professors, who delight to walk about in flowing robes, to be addressed in the markets, who secure the front ³⁹ seats in the synagogues, and the places of honour at banquets; they ⁴⁰ desolate the homes of widows, and then gabble long prayers by way of extenuation. Their punishment, however, will be all the more severe."

The Widow's Offering.

While seated opposite the treasury, ⁴¹ Jesus observed how the crowd threw money into the treasure-chest, and much was thrown into it by the rich people. A poor widow coming up, ⁴² however, put in two lepta, ¹ which make a kodrantes. ² Then calling ⁴³ His disciples, He said to them, "I tell you indeed, that this same poor woman has put more into the treasury than all the others: for they all gave ⁴⁴ but a part of their superfluity; while she in her poverty threw in all she possessed—the whole of her living."

The Destruction of Jerusalem Foretold.

And as He was leaving the temple, ¹³ one of His disciples said to Him, "Teacher, just see these large stones, and magnificent buildings!"

"Do you see these great buildings?" ² remarked Jesus, in reply to him; "there will not be one stone left upon another, except in ruins."

And while He was resting upon the ³ Mount of Olives, opposite the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew came to Him privately, asking, "Tell ⁴ us when will this be, and what is the sign of the accomplishment of these events?"

In reply, Jesus began to say to them, ⁵ "Be on your guard, for fear any one should lead you astray. Many will ⁶ come in My name, declaring 'I AM,' and will mislead many. But when ⁷ you hear of wars and rumours of wars, do not be afraid, for they must of necessity come; although that is not

8 the end. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; in many places there will be earthquakes; there will be famines and riots. These, however, are but the birth-pangs.

- 9 "But you—take care yourselves. For they will deliver you up to tribunals; you will be lashed in synagogues; and arraigned before governors and kings, as evidence to them about Me. The good news, however, must first be proclaimed among all the heathen. And when they arrest you, and hand you over, do not get distracted with anxiety beforehand as to how you can defend yourselves; neither be distressed: but in that hour speak whatever may be then given to you; because you are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit. Brother shall then deliver brother to death, and the father his child; while children will rise up against parents, and bring them to death. And because of My name, you will be hated above all men; but whoever holds out to the end shall be saved.

Prophetic Utterances of Christ.

- 14 "When, however, you see the brutal desolator spoken of by the prophet Daniel,¹ standing where it ought not (let the reader comprehend), then let those in Judea take flight to the hills.
- 15 And let him who is upon the balcony not descend into the house, nor enter it to take anything from his own dwelling; and whoever is in the field, let him not turn round to pick up his cloak. But alas for those with child, and for the nursing women in those days! And pray especially that your flight may not take place during the winter. For in those days there will be affliction, such as has never been known since the beginning of the creation which God created until now, and such as shall never be again.
- 20 And unless the Lord had cut short those times, none could be saved; yet for the sake of the elect, whom He has chosen, He has shortened those days.
- 21 "Theu, if any one should say to you, 'Look, the Messiah is here!' or,
- 22 'There He is!' believe it not; for false messiahs and false prophets shall make their appearance, and shall give out signs and wonders, to lead astray, if it were possible, even the elect.

But you, be on your guard, because I have foretold you all.

"In those days, however, after that affliction, the sun will be darkened, the moon will cease to shine, the stars of the sky will be disappearing, and the powers of the heavens will be convulsed. And then they will see the Son of Man appearing in the clouds with transcendent power and majesty. And He will then send out His messengers to collect the chosen ones from the four winds, from the extremity of the earth to the farthest bounds of heaven.

The Lesson of the Fig-tree.

"Learn now from the fig-tree this lesson: When its branch becomes soft, and the leaves sprout, you recognise that the summer approaches; and so also, when you see these events, you will know that they are near to the doors. I tell you indeed, that this generation shall not pass away until all this is accomplished. The heaven and the earth will pass away; but My declarations will remain. About that day or hour, however, none know, not even the angels in heaven, neither the Son—none but the Father.

The Need for Watchfulness.

"Be on your guard! watch and pray; because you do not know when the time is. Like a man travelling abroad, on leaving his house and giving instructions to his servants, to each one his own task, and ordering the porter that he should keep guard—Be on the alert: for you do not know when the master of the house will come, whether in the evening, or at midnight, or at dawn, or in the morning; coming suddenly, he may find you asleep. But what I say to you, I say to all—Be on the alert!"

Plot for His Destruction.

It was now the Passover, and the feast of unfermented bread two days later; and the chief priests and professors planned how they might arrest Him by treachery, and murder Him. For they said, "Not during the festival, for fear a riot might break out among the mob."

Mary's Offering.

And while He was in Bethany, reclining at food, in the house of Simon the leper, a woman came with an alabaster jar of very valuable perfume;¹ and having opened the jar, she poured it over His head. But there were some who grumbled among themselves, saying, "To what purpose is all this waste of the perfume? Why, this oil might have been sold for over three hundred denarii, and given to the poor." And they grumbled at her.

6 Jesus, however, said, "Let her alone; why do you grieve her? To Me she has done a noble act. The poor you always have with you, and you can render them a service whenever you feel inclined; but Me you have not always. She has done all she could; she has anointed My body beforehand for burial. Indeed, I tell you that wherever this good news may be proclaimed throughout the whole world, what this woman has done shall be related in memory of her."

The Compact with Judas.

10 Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went off to the chief priests, in order that he might betray Him to them. And when they learned it, they were delighted, and promised to reward him with money. He accordingly planned how he might conveniently hand Him over.

Preparing for the Supper.

12 And on the first day of the unfermented bread, when the Passover is offered, His disciples said to Him, "Where do You desire us to go and prepare that You may eat the Passover?"

13 He accordingly sent two of His disciples, instructing them, "Go into the city, and there a man will meet you carrying a jar of water; follow him.

14 And wherever he may enter, say to the master of the house that our Teacher says, 'Where is the dining-room, where I can eat the Passover with My disciples?' And he will himself show you a large upper room ready furnished; get in readiness for us there."

16 And His disciples departed, and came into the city; and finding just as He had told them, they prepared for the Passover.

At the Supper.

17 And when the evening arrived, He came with the twelve. And while they were reclining and eating, Jesus said to them, "Indeed I tell you, that one of you who is eating with Me shall betray Me."

And they began to grieve, and to 19 say to Him, one by one, never I!"

"One of the twelve," He answered to them, "who dips in the dish with Me. For the Son of Man departs, as it was written about Him; but alas for that man by whose means the Son of Man shall be betrayed! Better for him if that man had never been born."

The Old Settlement

Replaced by the New.

And while they were eating, Jesus took a loaf, and having offered a blessing, He broke it, and handed to them, saying, "Take it; eat it; this is My body." Then taking the cup, and having blest, He gave it to them; and they all drank of it. (See note in Matt. ch. 26 v. 28.) He then said to them, "This is My blood, that of the New Settlement shed for many. I tell you indeed, that I will not again drink of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it anew in the Kingdom of God."

Peter's Promise.

And singing a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

Jesus then said to them, "You will all be ashamed of Me to-night; because it is written,

I WILL STRIKE THE SHEPHERD,
AND THE SHEEP WILL BE SCATTERED.¹

After I am risen, however, I will go before you into Galilee."

But Peter replied, "Even if all are ashamed of You, yet I will not be!"

"I tell you indeed," said Jesus to him, "you yourself to-day, on this very night, before the bugle² sounds twice, will have thrice denied Me."

But he exclaimed still more emphatically, "Even if it is necessary for me to die with You, I will never deny You!" And all the others said the same thing.

In the Garden of Gethsemane.

They then arrived at a garden bearing the name of Gethsemane; and speaking to His disciples, He said, "Sit here, while I go forward to pray."

- 33 Taking with Him Peter, James, and John, He began to be agitated and agonized. And He said to them, "My soul is sick, even to death; you stay here and keep guard." Then going a little farther, He fell upon the ground; and He prayed that if it were possible, that hour might pass away from Him.
- 36 And He cried out, "Abba, Father, all is possible to You! take this cup away from Me; not, however, what I will, but what You will."
- 37 Then returning, He found them sleeping; and said to Peter, "Simon! are you asleep? Have you not strength to watch a single hour? Watch and pray, that you may not fall into temptation. Your spirit is ready, but your flesh weak." And going away, He prayed, uttering the same words.
- 40 Then returning, He again found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy; and they knew not what to answer Him. Then returning the third time, He said to them, "Sleep on now, and refresh yourselves. It has passed; the hour comes; now the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.
- 42 Arise, let us go forward; My betrayer is at hand!"

Judas at Work.

- 43 And immediately, as He was speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, approached, with a great crowd carrying swords and staves, sent by the chief priests, professors, and elders. Now His betrayer had given them a token, saying, "The one I shall kiss—that is He; arrest Him at once, and lead Him safely away." And approaching with all speed, he at once went to Him, saluting Him with "Rabbi, Rabbi," and fervently kissed Him. They accordingly arrested Him, and took Him.
- 47 But one of the bystanders, drawing his sword, struck the officer of the High Priest, and cut off a part of his ear. Jesus, addressing them, however, said, "Have you come out as though against a robber, with swords and staves to arrest Me? I was daily with you, teaching in the temple, and you did not arrest Me; but thus are the Scriptures fulfilled." Then leaving Him, they all fled.
- 51 Yet one of them, a young man, followed Him, with a shawl over him to hide his nakedness. And the lads caught hold of him; but leaving the shawl, he fled naked.

The Judæan Trial.

They now conducted Jesus to the High Priest; and there collected to him all the chief priests, the elders, and the professors. But Peter followed Him at a distance; and even into the court of the High Priest. And he took a seat with the officers, and warmed himself by the fire.

Now the professors and the whole council sought out evidence against Jesus, with the object of condemning Him to death; but they found none. For although many false witnesses came forward, their evidence did not agree. Other liars then came forward, asserting that they heard Him saying, "I will demolish this handmade temple; and in three days I will construct another without hand labour." But even in this their evidence did not agree.

The High Priest, then standing up among them, questioned Jesus, asking, "Have You nothing to say in Your defence? What is all this that they charge against You?" But He continued silent, answering nothing.

The High Priest again questioned Him, asking, "Are You the Messiah, the Son of the Blessed?"

"I AM," said Jesus in reply; "and you shall see the Son of Man seated upon the right of that Power, and coming in the clouds of heaven."

The High Priest thereupon tore his robes, exclaiming, "What need have we of further witnesses? You have heard His blasphemy. How does it appear to you?"

They all decided that He was liable to be put to death. And some began to spit upon Him, others to blindfold Him; and, striking Him on the head, asked Him to "Prophecy"; while the officers struck Him with their staves.

The Fall of Peter.

And while Peter was seated at the back of the court, one of the girls of the High Priest came forward; and noticing Peter warming himself, she gazed upon him, and said, "Why, you were with Jesus of Nazareth!"

But he denied, saying, "I neither know nor understand what you say."

And he went out into the passage; and the bugle¹ sounded.

- 69 But the same girl, seeing him again, began to say to the bystanders, "This fellow belongs to them." But he again denied it.

After a little, however, the bystanders said to Peter, "You are certainly one of them; for you are a Galilean."

- 71 Then Peter began to curse and to swear, saying, "I do not even know the Man you talk about!" And again the bugle sounded.

Peter then called to remembrance the prediction of Jesus, when He told him, "Before the bugle sounds twice, you will have denied Me thrice." And rushing out, he wept.

Before Pilate.

- 15 And as soon as the morning arrived, the chief priests, elders, and professors, and the whole senate, held a conference; and binding Jesus, they led Him away, and delivered Him over to Pilate.

- 2 Then Pilate inquired of Him, "Are You the King of the Jews?"

"You say so," Jesus replied.

- 3 The chief priests then brought many accusations against Him. Pilate again asked Him, "Can You say nothing in defence? See how many charges they bring against You."

- 5 But even then Jesus said nothing in reply; so that Pilate was much astonished.

- 6 Now at festival time it was customary for him to liberate for them one prisoner, whoever they might ask for. And there was one named Barabbas, imprisoned with the rebels, who had committed murder in the rebellion. And the mob began to yell out, demanding him to do what he had been accustomed to do for them.

- 9 "Well," said Pilate, in reply to them, "do you wish me to liberate for you the King of the Jews?" For he perceived that it was through malice that the chief priests had arraigned Him.

- 11 But the chief priests incited the mob to ask that he might rather liberate Barabbas.

- 12 Pilate, however, then said to them again, "What then do you wish that I should do with Him whom you call the King of the Jews?"

- 13 "Crucify Him!" they shouted in reply.

"Why, what crime has He committed?" Pilate asked them again.

"Crucify Him!" they yelled out more fiercely than before.

Then Pilate, deciding to satisfy the mob, liberated Barabbas; and after flogging Jesus, handed Him over to be crucified.

Military Tormentors.

And the soldiers led Him into the courtyard, known as the Palace, where they mustered all the troops. And they arrayed Him in a purple robe, and crowned Him with a crown of plaited thorns; and began to salute Him with, "Good health to the King of the Jews!" while, at the same time, they kept striking Him upon the head with a stick, spitting upon Him, and bowing before Him in homage. And when they had insulted Him, they took from off Him the purple robe, clad Him in His own attire, and led Him out for crucifixion.

And they seized a passer-by, from the country, Simon the Cyrenian, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to accompany them, in order that he might carry the cross. And they took Him on to Golgotha (which means Skull-field). And they offered Him wine medicated with myrrh; but He refused to drink it. They then crucified Him, and divided His clothing among them, casting lots what each should take.

The Death of Jesus.

It was about nine o'clock when they crucified Him. And the inscription of the indictment written over Him was, THE KING OF THE JUDEANS.

And with Him they crucified two robbers; one on His right, and one on His left.

And thus was fulfilled the Scripture, which says, HE WAS CATALOGUED WITH CRIMINALS.¹

The passers-by also railed at Him, shaking their heads, and exclaiming, "Aha! you Demolisher of the temple, and Rebuilder in three days, now save Yourself, and come down from the cross!"

The chief priests also sneered among themselves with the professors, and remarked, "He saved others; He cannot save Himself! You Messiah! you King of Israel! descend now from the cross, so that we may see it, and we will believe!" And those crucified with Him cursed Him.

- 33 And when twelve o'clock arrived, there was darkness over all the land until three o'clock. And at three o'clock, Jesus cried out with a loud voice, "Eloi! Eloi! lama sabachthani?" which, when translated, means, "My God! My God! who hath have You abandoned Me?"
- 35 Then some of the spectators, hearing it, exclaimed, "See! He calls Elijah." But one of them ran, and filled a sponge with sour wine; and, placing it upon a cane, offered it to Him to drink, saying, "Let Him alone! Let us see if Elijah will come to deliver Him!"
- 37 Jesus having given utterance to a deep groan, yielded up His spirit.
- 38 The veil of the temple was then torn in two from the top to the bottom. And when the captain on guard opposite to Him, saw that He thus expired, he exclaimed, "This Man was undoubtedly a son of a god!"
- 40 And there were also women looking on from a distance; among whom were Mary the Magdalene, Mary the mother of James the little, and Joses, and Salome; who, when He was in Galilee, were His followers, and ministered to Him. And many other women also went up with Him to Jerusalem.

The Burial.

- 42 And evening having now arrived, following which was the preparation, that is, the day preceding the Sabbath, Joseph of Arimathæa, a much-esteemed nobleman, who was himself expecting the Kingdom of God, came and went boldly to Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. But Pilate wondered if He were yet dead; and, summoning the captain, he inquired if He were already dead. And, ascertaining it from the captain, he presented the corpse to Joseph; who, having taken it down, wrapped it in a fine linen shroud which he had bought, and placed it in a tomb, which he had hewn out of a rock; and he rolled a large stone over the entrance to the tomb. And Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses, took note of where it was placed.

The Resurrection of Jesus.

- 16 Now when the Sabbath was over, Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought aromatic spices, so that they might embalm him. And at very early dawn, following the Sabbaths,¹ they came to the tomb as the sun was rising. And they were saying among themselves, "Who will roll away for us the stone from the entrance of the tomb?"

Looking about, however, they saw that the stone had been rolled back; for it was very large. Then entering the tomb, they saw a youth seated upon the right, attired in a robe of light; and they were awestruck. "Be not startled," he said to them; "you search for Jesus, the Nazarene, the Crucified. He is risen; He is not here; look at the spot where they laid Him! Go, however, tell His disciples and Peter that He will go before you into Galilee; you will see Him there, as He told you."

Then, hastening out, they ran from the tomb; for possessed as they were by trembling and ecstasy, they said nothing to any one—they were afraid, for,—

NOTE.—The following fourteen verses are omitted from the older MSS. They differ greatly in style and language from the rest of the book; and on this account it has been supposed that they were added by a later hand. Alford expresses the opinion that "in all probability they formed no part of Mark's original Gospel." (See also Westcott and Hort's Greek Testament.) I would suggest that these three so-called endings of St. Mark's Gospel are simply notes of ancient copyists or editors.—F. F.

The First to see Him.

[[However, having risen at the dawn of the first day following the Sabbath, He first appeared to Mary the Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven demons. She went and reported it to His companions, as they were mourning and weeping. But they, when they heard that He lived, and had been seen by her, disbelieved it.

After this, however, when two of them were walking along, going out into the country, He was manifested in another form. And they, turning back, reported it to the others; but neither did they believe them.

The Appearance to the Eleven.

- 14 At last, He was manifested to the eleven themselves, as they were seated together at a meal; and He reproached them with their unbelief and hard-heartedness, because they did not believe those who had seen Him after He was risen.
- 15 And He said to them, "Go out into all parts of the world, and proclaim the good news to the whole creation. The one who believes and is baptized shall be saved; but the unbelieving shall be condemned. And to the believing these signs shall follow: They shall cast out demons in My name; they shall speak in 16 new languages; they shall handle serpents; and if they were to drink poison, it would not in any way injure them; they shall lay their hands upon the sick, and fully restore them to strength."]

The Ascension.

[[Now after the Lord Jesus had discoursed with them, He was taken up into heaven, and took His seat at God's right hand. And they went 20 out, and proclaimed it everywhere, the Lord energizing them, and confirming the Message by the signs which followed.]]

ANOTHER TERMINATION.

[[But they reported all these events briefly to those about Peter. After that, however, Jesus Himself sent out by them the holy and incorruptible proclamation of the Everlasting Salvation, from the East to the West.]]

¹ NOTE.—St. Mark's Gospel is almost as entirely historical as St. John's is doctrinal, and shows that the ministry of our Saviour had captured the mass of the Jewish people, and had not fallen dead and resultless, as so many irreflective writers have asserted. His Divine mission succeeded in every object intended by God, His Sender, and is still doing so.—F. F.

THE GOSPEL AS RECORDED BY ST. LUKE.

The Dedication to Theophilus.

- 1 SINCE several have taken in hand to arrange a narrative concerning the events which have occurred 2 among us, exactly as those who were eye-witnesses and assistants of the Message from the first have delivered 3 them to us; I myself also decided, having critically examined all the above, to write it in regular order for 4 you, most noble Theophilus, so that you might ascertain the certainty contained in the doctrines about which you have been instructed.¹

The Forerunner Announced.

- 5 During the days of Herod, the king of Judea, there was a priest named Zacharias of the course of Abijah, who was married to Elizabeth, a 6 descendant of Aaron. And they were both just before God; walking blamelessly in all the commands and ob- 7 servances of the Lord. They had no family, however; because Elizabeth was childless, and both of them were advanced in years.

And it so happened, that while 8 he was serving in the ranks of his order before God, he was, in accord- 9 ance with the custom of the priesthood, elected to the duty of entering the sanctuary of the Lord and offering incense; while all the crowd of people 10 outside were praying at the hour of incense. Then a messenger of the 11 Lord appeared, standing at the right of the altar of incense. And on 12 seeing him, Zacharias was struck with awe, and gave way to fear.

"Fear not, Zacharias!" said the 13 messenger, addressing him; "because your supplication has been heard; and your wife Elizabeth will give birth to a son for you, and you shall give him the name of John. And he will be a 14 joy and delight to you, and many will exult at his birth; for he shall be 15 distinguished in the presence of the Lord, and SHALL DRINK NO WINE NOR STRONG DRINK.¹ And he shall be full of a spirit of holiness, even

- 16 from his birth; and he shall turn many of the sons of Israel back to the Lord their God. And he will advance in His presence in spirit and power like Elijah, to turn the hearts of fathers toward children, and the apathetic toward a thought of righteousness; to prepare a people in readiness for the Lord."
- 18 Zacharias then asked the messenger, "By what means can I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife is advanced in years."
- 19 "I am Gabriel," said the messenger in reply to Him, "the attendant in the presence of God; and He has sent me to talk with you, and to tell you this good news. You shall be silent, however, and unable to speak, until the time when these events take place; because you have disbelieved my message, which will be accomplished in due time."
- 21 The people, however, were expecting Zacharias, and wondered at his delaying in the sanctuary. But when he came out, he was unable to speak to them; and they recognised that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary; and he was himself making signs to them, but he remained dumb.
- 23 Accordingly, when the term of his course in residence was completed, he returned to his own house.
- 24 And after that time, Elizabeth, his wife, conceived; and she kept herself for five months in retirement, remarking, "The Lord has done this to me at the time He looked upon me, to take away my reproach among mankind."

The Messiah Announced.

- 26 Now, six months later, the messenger Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a maiden, betrothed to a husband named Joseph, a descendant of David; and Mary was the name of the maiden.
- 28 And the messenger, on entering, saluted her with, "Good health to you! much honour attends you; the Lord is with you!"
- 29 But she was thrown into confusion about his message, and reflected what that address might mean.
- 30 The messenger, however, said to her, "Fear not, Mary! for you have received a gift from God. And listen: you shall conceive, and give birth to a Son; and you shall give Him the name of JESUS. He shall Himself be greatly distinguished, and shall be called 'Son of the Highest.' And the Lord God shall give to Him the throne of His father David; and He shall reign over the house of Jacob throughout the ages: and His reign shall never end."

"How can this be?" Mary asked the messenger; "seeing that I know not a husband."

In reply to her, the angel said, "Holy Spirit shall shine upon you, and power from above shall overshadow you; and therefore the holy result shall be called 'Son of God.' Your kinswoman Elizabeth has herself also conceived a son in her old age; and this is the sixth month with her, who was considered childless: because no event is impossible with God."

"I am the servant of the Lord!" exclaimed Mary; "according to your statement, so let it be with me." And the angel left her.

The Song of Elizabeth.

Then Mary, about that time, arose, and hastened into the highlands, to a town of Judea; and entering the house of Zacharias, she congratulated Elizabeth. And it happened that when Elizabeth heard the address of Mary, the child felt alive within her; and Elizabeth was filled with Holy Spirit, and she chanted with a loud voice, saying:

"You are the happiest among women,
And happy is that which you nourish within you!
And why is this honour to me,
That the mother of my Lord should visit me?
For lo, as the sound of your salutation reached my ears,
The child, in exultation, leapt within me.
And happy is she in her trustfulness;
Because the declarations of the Lord to her shall be accomplished!"

The Magnificat.

And Mary said:
"My soul magnifies the Lord,
And my spirit exults in God my Saviour.
For He has looked upon the humility of His servant;

- And from now all nations shall bless me.
- 49 For to me the Almighty has done wonders;
- And His name is holy.
- 50 And His mercies cover generations of generations
- Of those who reverence Him.
- 51 He has shown strength in His arm;
- He has scattered the haughty by their own designs;
- 52 He has thrown down potentates from thrones,
- While exalting the lowly.
- 53 He has loaded the starving with benefits;
- And has dismissed the wealthy with nothing;
- 54 He has grasped Israel, His son, by the hand;
- To call His mercy to remembrance,
- 55 Which He promised to our forefathers—
- To Abraham, and his heir for ever."
- 56 Mary now remained with her for about three months, and then returned to her own home.

The Birth of John.

- 57 When Elizabeth's full time had
- 58 expired, she gave birth to a son. And her neighbours and relatives, learning that the Lord had increased His mercy towards her, congratulated her.
- 59 Now, as customary, on the eighth day, when they came to circumcise the child, they desired to name him
- 60 Zacharias, after his father; but his mother refused, saying, "It shall not be so; his name shall be John!"
- 61 "Why," said they, "not one of your relatives is known by that name!"
- 62 They accordingly made signs to his father what he desired the name to be. And having asked for a writing-tablet, he wrote upon it the reply, "His name is John." And they were all surprised. His mouth was then immediately opened; and regaining the use of his tongue, he began to speak, thanking God.
- 63 And fear came over all their neighbours; and these events were discussed in all the highlands of Judea.
- 64 And all the hearers treasured them in their heart, pondering, "Whatever can this boy be?" for indeed the hand of the Lord was with him.

Zacharias' Hymn of Praise.

- Zacharias his father was then filled 67 with the Holy Spirit, and spoke, saying:
- "Let the Lord, the God of Israel, 68 be blest!
- Because He has regarded and freed His people;
- And has raised up for us the horn 69 of deliverance
- In the house of David His son—
- As He declared through the mouth 70 of His holy prophets for ages,
- Deliverance from our foes, and from 71 the hand of all who hate us;
- To show mercy, as toward our fore- 72 fathers;
- And to remember His holy covenant, Which He sealed by oath to our 73 forefather, Abraham:
- To grant us, fearless, freed from 74 our enemies' hand,
- To serve Him in beneficence and goodness,
- Before His presence all our days. 75
- Yes, you, child, shall be chosen a 76 prophet of the Highest:
- You shall go before the presence of the Lord,
- To make His pathway ready;
- By instructing His people in the 77 way of salvation,
- With the pardon of their sins,
- Through the tender mercies of our 78 God;
- In which He will show us a day-break from heaven,
- To light those crouching in darkness 79 and the shadow of death,
- To direct our feet in the path of peace!"
- The boy then grew, and was 80 strengthened in spirit; and he remained in the deserts until the day of his appointment before Israel.

The Birth of Jesus.

- It so happened, that at that time 2 an order was issued by Cæsar Augustus that a census should be taken of the whole empire. This first census 2 was completed when Quirinus was governor of Syria. And all went to be enumerated, each to his own town. 3 Joseph accordingly went up from 4 Galilee, from the town of Nazareth, to Judea, to the town of David, known as Bethlehem (because by descent he belonged to the house of David), to 5 enrol himself along with Mary, his betrothed wife, who was now pregnant.

6 And it came about that while they were there, the time was completed
7 for her delivery. And she gave birth to her first-born son; and, wrapping Him in baby clothes, she laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

The Shepherds.

8 In that same district there were shepherds out in the fields, and keeping guard over their flocks by 9 night. And a messenger of the Lord descended to them, and the lustre of the Lord shone round about them; and they became terribly afraid. The messenger, however, said to them, "Do not be afraid; for I now come to make known to you a great Gift which 10 shall be to all the people; for to-day there is born in the town of David a Saviour, who is the Lord Messiah.
11 And the token is this: you shall find the Babe wrapped up in baby clothes, and lying in a manger." Then suddenly appeared with the messenger a whole heavenly army, praising God, and chanting,
12 "Honour among the highest, to God,
13 And peace upon earth, to men who accept."
14 The messengers then withdrew from them to heaven; and the shepherds said to one another, "Come now, let us go as far as Bethlehem, in order that we may see this event which the Lord has announced to us."
15 They accordingly went with all speed, and found Mary and Joseph; and the Infant lying in the manger.
16 Then when they saw it, they made known the event told to them concerning that Child; and all who heard it wondered at what was said respecting 17 Him by the shepherds. Mary, however, treasured up all these events in her mind, reflecting upon them in her heart. The shepherds then returned, worshipping and praising God for all that they had heard and seen, even as it had been announced to them.

The Circumcision and Presentation of Jesus.

21 And when the eight days were completed for His circumcision, they gave Him the name of JESUS; that being the name given by the angel before His conception.
22 And after the completion of the days of their purification, as directed under the law of Moses,¹ they took Him to Jerusalem, in order to present Him to the Lord; as it is recorded 23 in the law of the Lord, that EVERY MALE THAT IS THE FIRST-BORN OF A MOTHER SHALL BE SET APART AS HOLY TO THE LORD²; and to 24 offer a sacrifice in accordance with a command in the law of the Lord, A PAIR OF TURTLE-DOVES, OR TWO YOUNG PIGEONS.³

Simeon and his Song.

There was then in Jerusalem a man
25 named Simeon, honest and devout, who was awaiting the gladdening of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was upon him. And he had been promised by 26 the Holy Spirit that he would not see death before he had seen the Lord's Messiah. And he had come into the 27 temple full of the Spirit; and when the parents of the Child Jesus entered for the purpose of observing the cus-
28 tom of the law concerning Him, he took Him into his own arms, and praised God, and said:

"Now release Your servant, Master,
29 According to Your word, in peace! Because mine eyes have seen Your 30 salvation,
Which You have prepared in the 31 presence of all the peoples,
A LIGHT OF REVELATION TO THE 32 NATIONS,
AND THE HONOUR OF YOUR PEOPLE ISRAEL."⁴

Joseph and His mother, however,
33 wondered at what was spoken concerning Him. And Simeon blessed 34 them, and said to Mary, His mother: "Remember, He is appointed for the falling and rising again of many in Israel; and for an object to be abused; yes, and a sword shall run through 35 your own soul itself, until the designs of many hearts can be laid bare."

Anna, the Prophetess.

And there was Anna, a prophetess,
36 daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher (she was burdened with age, having lived with a husband seven years from the time of her girlhood, and had been a widow for about eighty-37 four years), who did not leave the temple, but worshipped day and night with fasting and prayer. And 38 coming up at that very moment, she gave thanks to God; and spoke about Him to all who were waiting for the release of Jerusalem.

Return to Nazareth.

- 39 And when they had completed all in accordance with the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their own town of Nazareth; where 40 the Child grew, and was strengthened in spirit, being filled with wisdom, and the favour of God rested upon Him.

The Lost Child.

- 41 His parents, however, went yearly to Jerusalem to the festival of the 42 Passover. And when He was twelve years old, they went to Jerusalem, as was customary, to the festival. And the time being completed, as they were returning, the Child Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem. His parents, however, did not know it; but thinking that He was in the party, they proceeded a day's journey, and searched for Him among their relatives and 43 friends. But failing to find Him, they returned to Jerusalem, searching for 44 Him. And it transpired that, after three days, they discovered Him in the temple, sitting among the teachers, both listening to and questioning them. And all who heard Him were 45 astonished at His intelligence and His answers. And when they saw Him, they were surprised; and His mother said to Him,

"Why, my Child, have You treated us in this way? Your father and I have been searching for You with aching hearts."

- 49 "Why then did you search for Me?" He asked them; "do you not know that I must be employed in My Father's house?"
50 They could not understand, however, the fact which He told them.
51 Yet He returned with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them; but His mother reflected on all these events in her heart. Jesus also advanced in wisdom and age, as well as in favour in the presence of God and men.

The Mission of John the Baptist.

- 3 Now in the fifteenth year of the government of Tiberius Cæsar—Pontius Pilate being chief governor of Judea, and Herod governor of Galilee, and his brother Philip governor of the territories of Ituræa and Trachonitis, and Lysanias governor of Abilene, during the High-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas—the message of God came to John, the son of Zacharias, while in the desert. And he went about the whole country of the Jordan, proclaiming a baptism of conversion for forgiveness of sins; as it is recorded in the book of the sayings of Isaiah the prophet:

A VOICE SHOUTING IN THE DESERT,

PREPARE THE HIGHWAY FOR THE LORD,

MAKE HIS PATHWAYS SMOOTH. LET EVERY VALLEY BE FILLED UP, 5

AND EVERY MOUNTAIN AND HILL CUT DOWN,

AND THE CROOKED PATHS MADE STRAIGHT,

AND THE ROUGH GROUNDS SMOOTH:

THAT ALL PERSONS MAY SEE THE 6 SALVATION OF GOD.¹

Addressing the crowd which had 7 come out to be baptized by him, he then said, "Spawn of vipers! who has warned you to fly from the coming fury? Produce at once, then, fruit 8 befitting conversion; and do not begin to say within yourselves, 'We possess as our forefather, Abraham'; for I tell you that God is able from among these stones to raise up children for Abraham. But already 9 the axe lies at the root of the trees; every tree therefore not producing good fruit will be felled, and thrown into the fire."

Enquiries of the Crowd.

"What then are we to do?" asked 10 the crowd.

In reply, he told them, "Whoever 11 possesses two coats, let him give one to the man who has none; and let him who has food do likewise."

Tax-farmers also came to be baptized, and they asked him, "What, teacher, must we do?"

"Never extort more than is legally 13 appointed to you," he replied.

And the soldiers on the march also 14 asked him, saying, "And we, what shall we do?"

He said to them, "Extort from no one money by threats or false accusations; but be content with your pay."

The Real Baptizer.

- 15 When the people were hesitating, and all of them debating in themselves about John, whether or not he might 16 be the Messiah, John addressed them, everywhere saying: "I certainly baptize you with water; but One stronger than myself will come, One whose shoe-lace I am not even great enough to untie; He will Himself baptize you with Holy Spirit and fire. His winnower is in His hand, to perfectly cleanse His threshing-floor; and He will store up the wheat in His granary; but the chaff He will burn with inextinguishable fire."
17
18 And with many other exhortations he evangelized the people. But Herod, 19 the governor, having been reprimanded by him about Herodia, the wife of his brother, and of all the wickedness of which Herod had been 20 guilty, heaped this upon the whole, and had John confined in prison.

The Baptism of Jesus.

- 21 It, however, occurred, when all the people were being baptized, Jesus having also been baptized, and praying,
22 the heaven was opened, and the Holy Spirit, in bodily appearance like a dove, descended upon Him, and a voice came out of heaven proclaiming, "You are My Son, My Beloved! in You I have delight!"¹

The Temptation in the Desert.

- 4 And Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, went away from the Jordan, and was carried by the Spirit into the desert, to be tried under the Devil for forty days. And He ate nothing during that time; but on their completion He at last was hungry.
3 The Devil then said to Him, "If You are a Son of God, command this stone, so that it may become a loaf."
4 In reply to him, however, Jesus said, IT IS WRITTEN, MAN SHALL

¹ NOTE.—I remove the Genealogy, vv. 23-38, and place it at the end of this Gospel for the following reason:—It is quite irreconcilable with the one of Joseph given by St. Matthew, which is capable of verification from the records of the Old Testament, while this interpolated one in St. Luke's Gospel cannot be so. It also breaks the continuity of the Text, in a manner that so accomplished a writer as that Evangelist would never have done. I am, therefore, perfectly satisfied that it is merely a note of some early editor, and never formed part of St. Luke's Gospel.—F. F.

NOT LIVE UPON BREAD ALONE, BUT BY EVERY DECREE OF GOD.¹

Then taking Him up a high 5 mountain, he pointed out to Him in a second of time all the surrounding kingdoms; and the Devil said 6 Him "I will give you all this power, and the splendour of them; for it has been entrusted to me, and I can give it to whoever I will. If You, there- 7 fore, will pay homage before me, they shall be Yours."

"Begone from Me, Enemy!" Jesus 8 replied; "for it is written, YOU SHALL KNEEL TO YOUR LORD GOD, AND WORSHIP HIM ALONE."²

He then carried Him to Jerusalem, 9 and placed Him upon the battlement of the temple, and said to Him, "If You are a Son of God, throw Yourself down from here; for it is written,

HE SHALL INSTRUCT HIS ANGELS 10 CONCERNING YOU, AND THEY WILL PROTECT YOU; AND WILL HOLD YOU IN THEIR 11 HANDS,

FOR FEAR YOU SHOULD CRUSH YOUR FOOT AGAINST A STONE."³

"Yet it has been said," Jesus an- 12 swered him, YOU SHALL NOT TRY THE LORD YOUR GOD.⁴

The Devil having then completed 13 every trial, departed from Him until another opportunity.

Preaching at Nazareth.

Jesus then returned to Galilee with 14 the power of the Spirit; and His reputation spread throughout the whole of the neighbourhood.

And He taught in their synagogues 15 with the approval of all. He afterwards came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up; and, as His custom was, He entered the synagogue on the day of rest. And standing up to read, there was handed to Him the 17 roll of the prophet Isaiah. And opening out the roll, He found the place where it was written,

A SPIRIT OF THE LORD IS UPON 18 ME,

BY WHICH HE HAS APPOINTED ME TO TELL GOOD NEWS TO THE POOR;

HE HAS SENT ME TO HEAL THE BROKEN-HEARTED;

TO PROCLAIM FREEDOM TO THE ENSLAVED,

³ Ps. xci. 11, 12. ⁴ Deut. vi. 16.

AND RESTORATION OF SIGHT TO THE BLIND; TO SET AT LIBERTY THOSE WHO ARE OPPRESSED;

19 TO PROCLAIM THE YEAR HONOUR-
ED BY THE LORD.¹

20 And having rolled up the book, He returned it to the attendant, and sat down. And the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed upon Him. Then He began to say to them, "To-day this Scripture is fulfilled in your hearing."

22 And they all commended Him, and wondered at the language of love which proceeded from His mouth; but remarked, "Is this not the son of Joseph?"

23 He then said to them, "You will all repeat this parable to Me, 'Physician, cure yourself': 'whatever we have heard that You have done in Capernaum, do also here in Your own country.'"

Rejection by the Nazarenes.

24 But He added, "I tell you indeed, that a prophet is never acceptable in his own country. Therefore, in truth I remind you that there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the sky was closed over three years and six months, so that a great famine came upon all the land; however, Elijah was sent to none of them, but only to Zarephath, of Sidon, to a widow woman. And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet; yet none of them were cured, but only Naaman the Syrian."

28 Then all in the synagogue, on hearing this, were filled with fury; and they rose up and forced Him out of the town, dragging Him to the brow of the hill upon which their town was built, in order to fling Him down from there. But gliding through the midst of them, He went His way.

Curing a Demoniac.

31 And coming down to Capernaum, a town of Galilee, He taught them every Sabbath; and they were delighted at His teaching, because His language was authoritative. And in the synagogue there was a man possessed of a foul spirit; and he shrieked out with a loud voice, exclaiming, "Ha! what is there common between us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have You come here to exterminate us? I know You, who

You are—the Holy One of God!" Jesus, however, repelled him, saying, 35 "Keep silent! and go out of him!" And when the demon had thrown him down among them in convulsions, he came out of him, leaving him uninjured. And terror came upon all, and they talked to each other, remarking, "What is this teaching? for He even commands the foul spirits with authority and power, and they depart!" A rumour about Him then 37 began to spread through every part of that region.

Cure of Simon's Mother-in-Law.

Then quitting the synagogue, He 38 entered the house of Simon. And Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a violent fever; and they pleaded with Him about her. And standing 39 over her, He arrested the fever, and it left her: and getting up at once, she attended to them.

Curing at Bethsaida.

When the sun was setting, all 40 who had sick from various diseases brought them to Him; and He placed His hands upon them, and cured them. Many demons were also cast 41 out, shrieking and saying, "You are the Son of God!" He restrained them, however, and would not allow them to say that they knew Him to be the Messiah.

And when the day dawned, He took 42 His departure to a desert spot; but the crowd, eagerly searching Him out, came to the same place, and urged Him never to leave them. But He 43 replied to them, "I must also preach the good news in the other towns; for that is the purpose for which I was sent."

And He was preaching in the syna- 44 gogues of Galilee.

The Obedient Fishermen.

It once occurred that, while He 3 was standing by the Lake of Gennesaret, the crowd pressed around Him, in order to listen to the message of God. And He observed two boats 2 lying at anchor at the lake side; but the fishermen had left them, and were washing their nets: so entering 3 one of the boats which belonged to Simon, He asked him to push off a little from the land. And, sitting down, He taught the people from the boat. Then when He had finished 4

speaking, He said to Simon: "Row out into the depth, and throw out your nets for a haul."

- 5 "We have toiled all the night, Sir, and have taken nothing," said Simon, in reply; "but at Your request I will lower the nets." And, having done so, they enclosed a large shoal of fishes; and their nets were beginning to break: they therefore beckoned to their partners in the other boats to come and help them; and, having come, they filled both the boats, almost to sinking.

- 8 When Simon Peter saw it, he fell at the knees of Jesus, exclaiming: "Go from me, Master; for I am a sinful man!" For astonishment had seized him, and all who were with him—and James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon—at the draught of fishes they had taken.

Jesus, however, said to Simon: "Do not fear; from this time you will be a catcher of men!"

- 11 Then having run their boats ashore, they left all, and followed Him.

Curing a Leper.

- 12 It once happened, when He was in one of the towns, that a man, full of leprosy, seeing Jesus, fell upon his face, and implored Him, saying: "Master, if You will, You are able to cure me!"

- 13 And, extending His hand, He touched him, saying: "I am willing; be cured!" and the leprosy left him at once. Then He enjoined him to tell no one; but, "go, show yourself to the priest, and present for your cleansing what was ordered by Moses as an evidence to them." But the report concerning Him spread more widely; and large crowds ran together to listen, and to be relieved of their sufferings. But He Himself retired into the desert to pray.

Curing the Paralytic.

- 17 One of those days, while He was teaching, it happened that there were Pharisees and teachers of the law sitting by, who had come out of several villages of Galilee and Judea, as well as from Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was in Him to cure sickness; when some men came carrying a paralysed man upon a rug, and they tried to get near, to place him before Him. But being unable to find a means of approaching Him, on account of the crowd, they mounted the verandah, and lowered him upon his rug through the skylight, into the midst, before Jesus; Who, seeing their faith, said to him, "Man, your sins are forgiven you!"

But the professors and Pharisees began to discuss it, remarking: "Who is this fellow that talks blasphemy? who is able to forgive sins, but God alone?"

Jesus, perceiving their reasonings, however, answered: "Why do you debate in your hearts? Which is easier to say?—'Your sins are removed from you'; or, 'Rise up, and walk!' in order that you may know, however, that the Son of Man has authority to remove sins upon earth (He said to the paralytic), 'To you, I say, get up; take your rug, and go to your own home!'" And he immediately got up in their presence, lifted what he had been lying upon, and went to his home, praising God. And they were all overcome with ecstasy, and they praised God; and being filled with fear, they exclaimed, "We have seen strange things to-day."

At Levi's Reception.

After this, He went out and observed a tax-farmer, named Levi, sitting at the custom-house; and said to him, "Follow Me!"

And leaving all, he got up and followed Him. Then Levi prepared a large reception at his own house; and a great company of tax-farmers and others were reclining together with Him. But the professors grumbled about them; and the Pharisees said to His disciples, "Why does He eat and drink among these tax-farmers and sinners?"

Jesus, in reply, said to them, "The healthy have no need of a physician, but the sick have! I have come not to call the righteous, but sinners to change their minds!"

They then said to Him: "The disciples of John, and of the Pharisees, frequently fast and pray; but Yours eat and drink!"

"Are the companions of the Bridegroom to fast while the Bridegroom is with them?" asked Jesus, in reply. "The days will come, however, when the Bridegroom has been taken from them; in those days they can fast."

He also related a parable to them: "No one tears from a new piece to patch an old garment; and if he does, he will not only tear the new, but the patch will not agree with the old.

37 And no one pours new wine into old wine-skins; for if he did, the new wine would burst the skins, and the wine be spilled, and the skins destroyed. On the contrary, new wine must be stored in fresh wine-skins; and both are preserved. But no man drinking old wine longs at once for new; for he says, 'The old is better.'

In the Corn-fields.

6 It once happened on a Sabbath that He was going through the corn-fields; and His disciples plucked the ears of corn, rubbing them in their hands, and ate them.

2 But some of the Pharisees said to them, "Why do you what is not allowable on Sabbaths?"

3 Jesus answered, "Have you never read this, what David did when he and those who were with him were hungry?

4 how he entered the house of God, and took the shew-bread, and ate it, giving also to his companions; although it is allowed to be eaten by none but the

5 priests? The Son of Man," He further said, "is Master even of the Sabbath."

A Withered Hand Restored.

6 On another Sabbath, He entered the synagogue and taught; and a man was there whose right hand was

7 withered. The professors and Pharisees accordingly watched Him, to see if He would cure on the Sabbath; in order that they might lay an information

8 against Him. Divining their reasonings, however, He said to the man who had the withered hand, "Get up, and stand out among us."

9 So he arose and stood. Jesus then said to them, "I ask you plainly, Is it allowable on the Sabbath to benefit or to injure? to save a life or to destroy

10 it?" Then looking round upon them all, He said to the man, "Extend your hand!" He did so; and his 11 hand was restored like the other. But they became mad with annoyance; and discussed among themselves what they could do to Jesus.

The Twelve Chosen.

12 About this time He went out, going into the mountain to pray; and He passed the whole night in prayer to 13 God. And when it was day, He called His disciples, and from among them He chose twelve, whom He named Apostles: Simon, whom He 14 also named Peter; and Andrew his brother; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew; Matthew and Thomas; 15 James the son of Alphaeus; Simon, who was called the Zealot; Judah the son of James; and Judas of Iscariot, who, however, became His betrayer.

And descending with them, He 17 stopped upon a level place, with a large number of his disciples, and a great crowd of people from all parts of Judea and Jerusalem, and the neighbourhood of Tyre and Sidon; who came to listen to Him, and to be cured of their mental sufferings. Those also 18 He cured who were tormented by foul spirits. And all the crowd tried 19 to touch Him; because power issued from Him, and cured them all.

The Happy and the Miserable.

Then gazing upon His disciples, He 20 said:

"Blessed are you poor; for yours is the Kingdom of God.

"Blessed are you who hunger now; 21 for you shall be satisfied.

"Blessed are you who weep now; for you shall laugh.

"Blessed are you when men shall 22 hate you, and when they shall expel and curse you, and bandy your name about as vile, for the sake of the Son of Man. Rejoice in that day, and 23 dance! for your reward is abundant in heaven; for their forefathers did the same to the prophets.

"But alas for you who are rich! 24 because you have taken your comfort.

"Alas for you who are filled! be- 25 cause you shall be hungry.

"Alas for you who now rejoice! because you shall mourn.

"Alas, when men speak well of you! 26 for this was what their forefathers did of the false prophets.

The Law of Love.

"But I say to you, my hearers: 27 Love your enemies; act nobly to those who hate you; bless those who 28 curse you; pray for those who assault you. If a man strike you on one 29 cheek, offer him the other; and if a man steal your coat, do not prevent him having your vest as well.

"Give to all who beg from you; 30 and from the plunderer of your property, plunder not again.

"And as you wish men to do to 31

- 32 you, do the same to them. For if you only love those who love you, what credit is it to you? for even the wicked love those who love them.
- 33 And if you only benefit those who benefit you, what credit is it to you? why, even the wicked do the same thing!
- 34 "And if you merely lend to those from whom you hope to receive back, what credit is that to you? even the wicked lend to the wicked, in order that they may receive an equivalent.
- 35 "But instead, love your enemies. "Be beneficent, and lend, expecting nothing in return. "And your reward will be abundant, and you will be the sons of the Highest. "For He is benevolent both to the ungrateful and the wicked.
- 36 "Become, therefore, kind-hearted, just as your Father is kind-hearted.
- 37 "Judge not, and you will not be judged. "Condemn not, and you will not be condemned. "Acquit, and you shall be acquitted.
- 38 "Give, and it will be given to you. Fair measure, pressed down, well-shaken, and overflowing, they will put into your bag. For with the same measure with which you measure, it will be measured back to you."

Sincerity.

- 19 He then told them a parable: "Can a blind man guide the blind? Would not both fall into a ditch?"
- 40 "The pupil is not above his teacher; but every one who is perfected shall be like his teacher.
- 41 "And why do you look at the dust in your brother's eye, when you do not notice the chip in your own eye? Or how can you say to your brother, 'Brother, allow me to pick the dust from your eye,' while you do not perceive the chip that is in your own eye? You play-actor! first clear away the chip from your own eye, and then you will see perfectly to remove the dust from the eye of your brother.
- 43 "That is not a good tree which produces bad fruit; nor does a worthless tree produce good fruit.
- 44 "For every tree is distinguished by its own produce. For figs are not to be picked from thorns; nor yet grapes from thistles.

"The benevolent man produces 45 goodness from the treasured beneficence of his heart; while the depraved man produces wickedness from the treasured depravity of his heart: for out of the overflow of the heart his mouth speaks.

True and False Foundations.

"Then why do you address Me, 46 'Master, Master,' and yet do not practise what I say? Whoever comes to Me, and listens to My message, and complies with it, I will show you what he is like. He is like a man 48 building a house, who digged, and kept deepening, and laid a foundation upon the rock; and when an inundation came, and the river rushed towards that house, it could not shake it, because of its good foundation. "But, on the other hand, the 49 listener who does not practise, is like a man building a house without a foundation upon the land: against which the river rushed, and at once it fell in a heap; and the wreck of that house was great."

Curing the Captain's Boy.

Then when He had expressed all 7 His ideals in the hearing of the people, He proceeded to Capernaum. And a 2 captain there had a boy, who was very precious to him, at the point of death. And, having heard about 3 Jesus, he sent to Him leaders of the Jews, requesting Him to come and save his boy. And when they ap- 4 proached Jesus, they begged Him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy that You should grant him this; for he 5 loves our nation, and has himself built our synagogue." Jesus accordingly went with them. 6 And when He had arrived within a short distance of the house, the captain sent friends to Him, saying: 'Master, do not trouble; for I am not of sufficient rank for You to come under a roof of mine; therefore 7 I did not consider myself worthy to approach You. But only say a word, and my boy will be cured. For I am 8 a man placed under a superior officer, having soldiers under myself; and I order this one to 'Go!' and he goes; to another, 'Come!' and he comes; and to my servant I say, 'Do this,' and he does it."

When Jesus heard this, He was 9 astonished at it; and, turning round to the crowd who followed Him, He said, "Not even in Israel, I tell you, 10 have I found faith so strong." The messengers, returning then to the house, found the boy quite well.

The Widow's Son brought back to Life.

11 Soon after this, He proceeded to a town called Nain; and His disciples accompanied Him, together with a 12 large crowd. Now as He came near to the gate of the town, they were carrying out, dead, an only son of his mother, and she was a widow; and many of the inhabitants of the town were with her. When 13 the Master saw her, however, He had pity upon her, and said to her, "Weep not!" And stepping forward, He touched the bier: then the carriers stood still; and He said, 14 "Young man, I say to you, Arise!" 15 when the dead man sat up, and began to speak. And He handed him to his mother. 16 Then fear took possession of all; and they praised God, exclaiming, "A great Prophet is risen among us"; and, "God has looked upon 17 His people." And this report concerning Him spread throughout the whole of Judea, and all the surrounding country.

The Deputation from John.

18 All this was reported to John by 19 his disciples. John then calling two special disciples, sent them to the Master, inquiring, "Are You the Coming One?—or are we to expect another?" And when these men arrived, they said to Him: "John the Baptizer has sent us to You to ask, 'Are You the Coming One?—or are we to expect another?'" 21 In that very hour He relieved many from diseases, afflictions, and wicked spirits, as well as granting eyesight to many who were blind. He then answered, saying: "You may now return, and report to John what you have seen and heard: the blind receive their eyesight; the lame walk; 22 the lepers are cured; the deaf hear; the dead are raised; the poor have good news told to them. And happy is he who shall not be ashamed of Me!"

Concerning John.

24 But when the messengers of John had taken their departure, He began to speak to the crowd concerning John: "What did you go out into the desert to gaze at?—a reed dancing under the wind? If not, what did you go out to see?—a man dressed in flowing robes? Why, those who have magnificent attire and luxury are in royal palaces. But what, then, did you go out to see?—a prophet? Yes, I tell you, and much more than a prophet. For he it is of whom it was 27 written:

NOW I WILL SEND MY MESSENGER BEFORE YOUR FACE, WHO WILL PREPARE YOUR ROAD BEFORE YOU.¹

"I therefore tell you that among 28 those born of women a greater prophet than John the Baptizer never existed; yet the least in the Kingdom of God is greater than he."

And all the people, including the 20 tax-farmers, hearing Him, gave thanks to God; they having been baptized with John's baptism. The 30 Pharisees and teachers of the law, however, not having been baptized under him, rejected for themselves the decision of God.

"To what, therefore," He added, 31 "shall I liken the men of this generation? They are like children sitting 32 in a market-place, and shouting out to one another, and saying, 'We piped to you, and you did not dance; we wailed, and you did not weep.' For 31 John the Baptizer came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and you say, 'A demon possesses him!' 31 The Son of Man is come eating and drinking; and you say, 'Look at Him!—an eater, and a drinker of wine; a friend of tax-collectors and profligates!' Wisdom, however, will 35 be justified by all her children."

The Sinful Woman and the Pharisee.

One of the Pharisees asking Him to 36 dine with him, He entered the house of that Pharisee, and reclined for the meal. Then a profligate woman of 37 the town, on learning that He was reclining in the Pharisee's house, came with an alabaster jar of perfume; and standing behind, she began to bathe His feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head; while she fervently kissed His feet, and soothed them with the perfume. But 39

the Pharisee who had invited Him, on seeing it, said to himself, "If this man were a prophet, He must have perceived who and what kind of a woman it is who touches Him; that, in fact, she is a profligate."

40 "Simon," said Jesus to him, "I have something to say to you."

"Say on, Teacher," was his reply.

41 "A money-lender had two debtors; one of whom owed five hundred 42 denarii,¹ and the other fifty.² As neither of them, however, had anything with which to pay, he forgave them both. Tell Me, now, which of them would love him most."

43 "I presume," said Simon, in reply, "it would be the one to whom he had forgiven most."

"You have rightly judged," He said 44 to him. Turning then to the woman, He said to Simon, "Do you mark this woman? I entered with yourself into your house: you gave Me no water for my feet; but she has bathed My feet with her tears, and wiped them

45 with her tresses. You greeted Me with no kiss; but she from the time I entered, has never stopped her 46 fervent kissing of My feet. You did not soothe My head; but she has 47 soothed My feet with perfume. For this, I tell you, her sins, which are many, are taken away—because she loved greatly; but from whom little is taken away, he will love but little."

48 He then said to her, "Your sins are taken away."

49 His fellow-guests, however, began to say to themselves, "Who is this who even takes away sins?"

50 Then again addressing the woman He said, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

The Story of the Sower.

8 Now after this He went about throughout the towns and the villages, preaching and relating the good news of the Kingdom of God. And the twelve accompanied Him, as well as some women who had been relieved of foul spirits and sicknesses, including Mary, called the Magdalene, from whom seven demons had been expelled; Joanna, the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward; Susanna, and many others, who assisted Him out of their own property.

Now when a great crowd—collected 4 from the towns—came out to Him, He addressed them in a parable:

"The sower went out to sow his 5 seed; and as he sowed some fell by the roadside; where it was trodden upon, and was eaten up by the birds of the sky. And some fell upon the 6 stones; but on sprouting, it withered for want of moisture. Some again 7 fell among the thistles; and the thistles growing up choked it. The 8 remainder, however, fell into good soil; and growing up, it yielded grain a hundredfold." Having said this, He cried out, "Whoever has ears to hear, let him listen!"

His disciples afterwards asked Him, 9 "What may this parable be?"

"It has been given to you," He 10 said, "to understand the secrets of the Kingdom of God; but to the rest in parables:

BECAUSE SEEING, THEY CANNOT SEE,
AND HEARING THEY WILL NOT UNDERSTAND.¹

"Now the parable is simply this: 11 The seed is the message of God. Those by the roadside are the hearers; 12 but the Devil comes, and snatches the message from their heart, so that they may not believe and be saved. And 13 those upon the stones are they who listen, and accept the message with delight; but being rootless, they trust for a time only, and in the hour of trial they fall away. And that falling 14 among the thistles are those who are hearers; but being choked under the anxieties, wealth, and pleasures of life, become totally unproductive. But that upon the good soil repre- 15 sents those who with an honest and pure heart listen to the message, hold it fast, and yield its fruit with persistence.

The Light, and how to use it.

"No one, having lighted a lamp, 16 hides it under a corn-measure, or puts it under a couch; but places it upon a lamp-stand, so that the light may be seen by those who enter. For 17 nothing is hidden which shall not be displayed; nor wrapped up in secret, that will not be brought to light. Beware, therefore, how you 18 listen: for whoever possesses shall have his store increased; but whoever possesses nothing shall be deprived of what he imagines he does possess."

Mother and Brethren.

- 19 His mother and brothers then came; but were unable to approach Him on account of the crowd. It was accordingly reported to Him, "Your mother and brothers are standing outside, wishing to see You."
21 "My mother and My brothers," He replied, "are those who listen to the message of God, and act up to it."

Stilling the Storm.

- 22 Now during one of those days, He went into a boat; and being accompanied by His disciples, He said to them, "Let us go across the lake."
23 So they sailed off. As they were sailing, however, He fell into a deep sleep; but a storm then blowing down upon the lake, they were being flooded, and were in extreme danger. So they went to arouse Him, exclaiming, "Master, Master, we shall be lost!" But He, roused from sleep, commanded the wind and the rolling waters, and they became calm.
25 He then asked them, "Where is your faith?" In their terror and amazement, however, they said to one another, "Who then is this? that He even orders the winds and the water, and they obey Him!"

The Gadarene Demoniac.

- 26 They then sailed to the district of the Gadarenes, situated upon the opposite shore to Galilee. And having disembarked, there met Him a man of that town, who was demonized; who for a long time had worn no clothes, and did not live at home, but among the tombs. And seeing Jesus, he shrieked out, and fell down before Him, and called with a loud voice, "What is there between me and You, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? Do not, I beg of You, torture me!"
29 For He had ordered the foul spirit to depart from the man, because it frequently took possession of him; and although he was kept under guard, bound with chains and shackles, yet breaking these, he used to be driven by the demon into the deserts.
30 "What is your name?" asked Jesus. "Legion," replied he; for many demons had gone into him.
31 And they implored Him that He would not order them to return to the pit.

There was a large herd of swine feeding upon the hill near by; and they begged that He would give them permission to enter them. He accordingly gave them leave. The demons then went out from the man to the swine; and the herd rushed headlong down the precipice into the lake, and were drowned. Then the feeders, seeing what had occurred, took to flight, and reported the matter in the town, and in the country. The people accordingly came out to see what had taken place; and coming to Jesus, they found the man, out of whom the demons had gone, sitting clothed, and in his right mind, near the feet of Jesus; and they were terrified. Those who had witnessed it then related how it occurred, and how the demoniac was cured.

Then all the people of the neighbourhood of the Gadarenes begged Him to leave them; for great terror took possession of them. So going into the boat, He returned. The man, however, out of whom the demons had departed, entreated to be allowed to accompany Him; but He sent him away, saying, "Return to your own home, and declare what God has done for you." And he went back, proclaiming through the whole town what Jesus had done for him.

But Jesus, on His return, was welcomed with delight by the crowd, for they were all waiting for Him.

The Daughter of Jairus.

A man named Jairus, a chief of the synagogue, then came to Him; and falling down at the feet of Jesus, he urged Him to go to his house, because he had an only child, a daughter twelve years old, and she was dying. But as He was going, He was pressed by the crowd.

Then a woman, who had suffered from hemorrhage for twelve years—who was not able to be cured by any one—having come behind Him, touched the fringe of His cloak; and at once her flow of blood was stopped.

"Who touched Me?" Jesus then asked. All denying it, Peter and the others who were with Him said, "Why, Master, the crowd besiege and press You, and You say, 'Who touched Me?'"

Jesus, however, said, "Some one did touch Me; for I perceive that power has issued from Me."

- 47 Then the woman, seeing that she could not be concealed, came forward trembling; and, falling down before Him, declared in the presence of all the people the reason for which she had touched Him, and told how she had been immediately cured.
- 48 "Daughter," said Jesus to her, "take courage! your faith has saved you; go in peace!"
- 49 While He was still speaking, a messenger came to the chief of the synagogue, saying, "Your daughter is dead; do not trouble the Teacher."
- 50 Jesus, overhearing it, however, said to him, "Do not fear! only believe, and she shall be saved." And, on arriving at the house, He allowed none to enter it with Him but Peter, John, and James, together with the father and mother of the girl; and all were mourning and lamenting her. But He said, "Do not weep; she is not dead, but has fainted." But they laughed at Him in derision, convinced that she was dead. He then turned them all out; and, taking her by the hand, He spoke, saying, "My girl, arise!" Her breath thereupon returned, and she at once got up. And He gave orders for her to have something to eat. And her parents were in ecstasy. He, however, enjoined them to tell no one what had occurred.

The Mission of the Twelve.

- 9 Afterwards, calling the twelve together, He endowed them with power and authority over all the demons, and to cure mental diseases. And sending them out to proclaim the Kingdom of God, and to restore the suffering, He said to them:
- "Take nothing for your journey, neither stick, nor purse, nor bread, nor money; nor yet provide two cloaks. And into whatever house you may enter, there stay until your departure; and whoever will not receive you, depart from that town, and shake off the dust from your feet as a witness against them."
- 6 Then, taking their departure, they went throughout the neighbouring villages evangelizing, and everywhere curing sickness.

The Alarm of Herod.

- 7 Herod the tetrarch also heard of all that was done. And he became much perplexed, because it was said by some people that John had risen from the dead; by some that Elijah had appeared; and by others that one of the old prophets had returned. But Herod said, "I have beheaded John; but who is this, about whom I hear such things?" And he endeavoured to see Him.

The Feeding of Five Thousand.

Upon their return, the apostles reported to Him what they had done; and taking them apart, He withdrew privately to a desert place near the town called Bethsaida. But the crowd, on learning it, followed Him; and He welcomed them, and spoke to them about the Kingdom of God; and those among them who required medical treatment He cured. Then when the day began to decline, the twelve came to Him, and said: "Dismiss the crowd, in order that they may go into the surrounding villages and towns, and procure lodgings and food; for we are here in a desert place."

"Give them food yourselves," He said to them.

"We have nothing more than five loaves and two fishes," they replied; "unless, indeed, we should go and buy provisions for all these people." (For they numbered about five thousand men.)

"Make them recline in parties of about fifty each," He instructed His disciples. They accordingly did so, making them all to be seated. Taking then the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up towards heaven, He blessed and broke them, and handed to His disciples to distribute to the people. And they all partook, and were satisfied; and of the broken pieces that remained over, they collected twelve baskets full.

The Declaration of Peter.

It occurred once that as He was praying in private, the disciples being with Him, He asked them, "Who do the crowd say that I am?"

Replying, they said, "John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and others that one of the old prophets has risen again."

"But whom do you declare Me to be?" He then asked them.

"The Messiah of God!" Peter replied.

He then enjoined, and ordered them to tell that to no one; adding, "The Son of Man has much to endure; aye, to be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and professors, and be murdered, and be raised again the third day." But, speaking to every one, He further said:

"If any one wishes to come to Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me. For should any one desire to preserve his life, he shall lose it; but whoever may lose his life on account of Me, he will preserve it. What, indeed, will it profit a man to gain the whole world, but destroy himself or suffer loss? For whoever is ashamed of Me and of My message, of him the Son of Man will be ashamed when He comes in the majesty of Himself, and of the Father, and of the holy angels. But, indeed, I tell you, there are some of those standing here who shall not taste of death, until they see the Kingdom of God."

A Glimpse of the Divine Majesty.

It was about eight days after these discourses that He ascended the mountain to pray, taking with Him Peter, John, and James. And while He was praying the appearance of His face became quite altered; and His clothes dazzled in their whiteness.

And two men also were talking to Him, who were Moses and Elijah; who, appearing in magnificence, spoke of His departure, which He was about to celebrate at Jerusalem. Now Peter and those who were with him had been heavy with sleep; but on being fully roused, they saw His majesty, and the two men standing with Him.

And as they were parting from Him, Peter said to Jesus, "Teacher, how delightful it is for us to be here! Let us make three dwellings; one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah," hardly knowing what he said.

As he was speaking, however, a cloud came and overshadowed them; but on their entering into the cloud, they became afraid. And a voice came out of the cloud, exclaiming, "This is My Son, My Chosen; listen to Him!" And when the sound had died away, Jesus was found alone. But they kept it silent, and in those days related to no one anything about what they had seen.

The Demoniac Boy.

At the close of the day, when they descended the mountain, a large crowd met Him. And a man from the crowd shouted out, exclaiming, "Teacher, I beg You to look upon my son, because he is the only one born to me. And at times a spirit seizes him, when he suddenly shrieks; and it convulses him so that he foams, and it leaves him in anguish, breaking him. I brought him to Your disciples, so that they might expel it; but they were unable."

"What a perverse and unbelieving race!" exclaimed Jesus, in reply; "how long shall I be with you, and bear with you? Bring your son here." And while he was on the way, the demon threw him down and convulsed him painfully. But Jesus restrained the foul spirit, cured the boy, and returned him to his father. And they were all astonished at the majesty of God.

But while they were all wondering at what Jesus had done, He said to His disciples, "Let these words sink into your ears; for the Son of Man is about to be delivered into the hands of men." But they did not understand the statement. And it was concealed from them, so that they should not comprehend it; and they were afraid to ask Him about the expression.

A Lesson of Meekness.

A discussion then took place among them, as to which of them must be the greatest. But Jesus, perceiving the debate in their hearts, took a little child, and placing him by His side, said to them: "Whoever receives this child in My name, receives Me; and whoever receives Me, receives My Sender; for the least esteemed among you all is the one who will be great."

A Lesson of Toleration.

John now said to Him, "Master, we saw some one expelling demons in Your Name; and we prohibited him, because he did not go with us."

"Do not hinder," said Jesus, in reply; "for whoever is not opposed to us is on our side."

Rejected by the Samaritans.

When the days previous to His crucifixion were drawing to a close, He Himself set His face to go up to Jerusalem. And He sent messengers to prepare His approach; and proceeding, they entered a village of the Samaritans, in order to prepare for Him. But they would not receive Him, because it appeared that He was going to Jerusalem. When His disciples James and John saw it, they exclaimed, "Master, is it Your wish that we should call fire down from heaven, and consume them?" But He turned round, and reproached them. They accordingly proceeded to another village.

The Three who sought Jesus.

57 And as they went on their way, a man said to Him, "I will follow You, Master, wherever You may go."

58 "The foxes have holes," said Jesus, in reply to him, "the birds of the sky have shelters; but the Son of Man has not even a place where He can lay His head."

59 Speaking to another, He said, "Follow Me!"

"Allow me first, Sir, to go and bury my father," was his reply.

60 "Leave the dead to bury their own dead," said Jesus to him; "but go you, and spread abroad the message of the Kingdom of God."

61 "I will follow You, Sir," remarked another to Him; "but allow me first to arrange my affairs."

62 But to him Jesus said, "No one, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is adapted for the Kingdom of God."

The Mission of the Seventy.

10 After these events, the Lord also appointed others, seventy in number, and sent them by twos before His arrival into every town and place which He intended to visit. And He said to them:

"The harvest is plentiful, but the labourers are few; therefore pray to the Master of the harvest, that He may send harvesters to His harvest. Go forward; even although I send you like lambs among a pack of wolves. Carry no purse, however, nor bag, nor shoes; and address none upon the road. And into whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house.' And if a son of peace is there, your peace will rest upon him; but if not, it will return to yourself. And continue in that same house, eating and drinking what they themselves have; for the workman is entitled to his wages. Do not change about from house to house. And if you enter any town, and they welcome you, eat just whatever is placed before you. Cure the sick people that are in it; and tell them, 'The Kingdom of Heaven is come near to you.' But if it should happen that you enter a town, and they do not welcome you, then go out into its streets, and say, 'Even the dust of your town, which sticks to our feet, we brush it off for you; know this, however, that the Kingdom of God has approached you.' I tell you, that in that day it will be more endurable for Sodom than for that town.

"Woe to you, Chorazin! woe to you, Bethsaida! because if the powers which were displayed in you had come to Tyre and Sidon, they would long ago have changed their minds, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. It will be more endurable, however, for Tyre and Sidon in the Judgment, than for you. And you, Capernaum, exalted high as the heavens, you will be cast down as low as the grave. Those who listen to you, listen to Me; and those rejecting you, reject Me; and whoever rejects Me, rejects My Sender."

When the seventy returned, they reported, with great delight, "Master, even the demons are being subjected to us through Your name."

He answered them, "I was observing Satan falling from the heaven like a lightning flash. Now I have given you the authority to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and upon all the might of the enemy; and none can resist you. Do not exult, however, because the spirits are subject to you; but rather be glad because your names have been recorded in the heavens."

A Moment of Spiritual Rapture.

In that very hour Jesus became enraptured in the Holy Spirit, and exclaimed: "I give thanks to You, Father of heaven and earth, because You concealed these facts from intellectual philosophers, and have revealed them to children. Yes, Father; because it was right in Your presence. All was entrusted to Me by My Father; and none knows Who the Son is, except the Father; and Who the Father is, except the Son, and the one to whom it is the pleasure of the Son to reveal Him."

Then turning toward His disciples, He privately said: "Blest are the eyes

24 that see what you have seen! For I tell you that many prophets and kings have longed to see what you see, and have not seen; and to hear what you hear, and have not heard."

The Good Samaritan.

25 A lawyer then rose up to put Him to the test, and asked, "What, Teacher, must I do in order that I may inherit eternal life?"

26 "What is written in the law?" He asked him; "how do you understand it?"

27 In reply, he said, LOVE THE LORD YOUR GOD WITH YOUR WHOLE HEART, AND WITH YOUR WHOLE SOUL, AND WITH YOUR WHOLE STRENGTH, AND WITH YOUR WHOLE INTELLECT; AND YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOUR OWN SELF.¹

28 "You have answered rightly," He replied; "do that, and you will live."

29 Wishing however, to justify himself, he asked Jesus, "Who is my neighbour?"

30 Jesus, in reply to him, said, "There was a man who, on going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, fell among robbers, who both stripped and assaulted him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 "By coincidence, a priest was going down by that road; but seeing him, he passed by on the other side. And in the same way, a Levite also, when he got to the place, looked upon him, and passed along. But a certain Samaritan, on a journey, who, on coming to where he was, and seeing

32 him, took pity, came to him and dressed the wounds, making use of oil and wine. Then seating him upon his own beast, he conveyed him to an inn, and took care of him. And as he was leaving, on the following day, he threw

33 down two denarii² for the landlord, and said, 'Attend to him; and whatever more you spend, I will repay you upon my return.' Which, therefore, of these three, do you think, proved a neighbour to him who fell among the robbers?"

37 "He that pitied him," was his reply. Jesus then told him, "Go you, and do the same."

Martha and Mary.

38 Once when they were travelling, He entered a village, where a woman named Martha received Him into her house. And with her she had a³⁹ sister named Mary, who, however, seated herself at the feet of Jesus, listening to His discourse. But Martha,⁴⁰ distracted about the preparations for the table, entered hurriedly, exclaiming, "Does it not trouble you, Sir, that my sister leaves me to serve alone? Order her to come and help me."

"Martha, Martha," the Master⁴¹ answered, "you are anxious and worried about many things; but one⁴² only is necessary. Mary, however, has chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

How to Pray.

Once when He was in a private¹¹ spot, praying, one of His disciples, as He paused, said to Him, "Master, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples."

In reply, He said: "When you² pray, say,

The Lord's Prayer.

"Father Your Name must be being hallowed;

"Your Kingdom must be being restored;

"Give to us every day our to-morrow's bread;

"And remove from us our sins, for we remove them from all who offend us; for You would not lead us into temptation, but deliver us from its evil."¹

He then said to them: "Who³ among you, if he had a friend, and, going to him at midnight, were to say, 'Friend, lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine has just arrived from a journey, and I have nothing to place before him.' Would he not reply to you from within?—'Do not disturb me: the door is now fastened, and my family, as well as myself, are in bed; I cannot get up to give it to you.' I tell you that although he⁸ will not get up to oblige him because of friendship, yet, at last, because of his persistence, he will get up and give him as much as he needs. And⁹ to you I also say, Ask, and it shall be given to you; search, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. For every asker receives; and every searcher finds; while to the one who knocks, it shall be opened. And is there a father¹¹ among you, who, if his son asks bread, will hand him a stone? or if he asks for a fish, would give him a serpent instead? or, asking for an egg, would he hand him a scorpion? If you, therefore, who are subject to wickedness, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much rather will your Father from heaven give good gifts to those who ask Him!"

A Warning against Dissension.

When He was expelling a demon from one who was dumb, it resulted that when the demon had departed, the dumb man spoke; and the crowd were astonished. But some of them said, "He casts out demons by the help of Beelzebub, the prince of the demons." Others, in order to test, demanded a sign out of Heaven from Him. But He, knowing their machinations, said to them:

"Every kingdom divided against itself is desolated; and house divided against house, falls. If, then, Satan is divided against himself, how can his kingdom be strengthened? Yet you assert that I expel demons through the help of Beelzebub. But if I by Beelzebub expel the demons, by whose power do your own sons expel them? By this they shall be your judges. If I, however, by a Divine finger, expel the demons, then, indeed, the Kingdom of God has anticipated you. When the strong, fully-armed, guards his own castle, his possessions are in peace; but when one more powerful than himself advances, and conquers him, he despoils him of the whole of the armament upon which he depended, and shares the plunder. Whoever is not upon My side is against Me; and whoever does not collect for Me, scatters.

"When the foul spirit goes out of the man, he wanders through waterless places in search of rest; but, finding none, he says, 'I will return to my house, out of which I came.' And upon his return, should he find it swept up and decorated, he then goes and takes seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and, entering, they live there; so the last condition of that man is worse than the first."

The More Excellent Blessing.

While He was speaking in this way, it happened that a woman in the crowd, raising her voice, exclaimed,

"Happy is the womb which gave You birth, and the breast at which You sucked!"

"Much more," He replied, "are they blest who listen to the message of God, and obey it."

Jonah and the Queen of the South as Examples.

And when the crowd were densely collecting around Him, He began to say:

"This generation is depraved—it seeks for a sign; and no sign will be granted to it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah. For as Jonah was a sign to the Ninevites, so also shall the Son of Man be to this race. The Queen of the South shall rise against the men of this generation in the Judgment, and shall condemn them; for she came from the extremities of the earth to listen to the philosophy of Solomon; and yet a greater than Solomon is here! Men from Nineveh shall stand up in the Judgment against this race, and shall convict it; because they were converted by the preaching of Jonah: and now a greater than Jonah is here!

Inward Illumination.

"No one having lit a lamp places it in a cellar, nor underneath the corn-measure; but upon the lamp-stand, so that those entering the house may see the light. The eye is the lamp of the body: when your eye is in good condition, your whole body also is enlightened; but when it is diseased, then your body is darkened. Take care, therefore, lest the light which is in yourself should be darkness. If, then, your whole body is light, having no part dark, all will be light; just as you are illuminated by the bright shining of the lamp."

Pharisaism Exposed.

While He was speaking, a Pharisee asked Him to breakfast with him. So He went in, and reclined. The Pharisee, seeing it, however, was surprised that before the breakfast He had not first bathed.

Jesus, however, said to him:

"Now you Pharisees cleanse the outside of the cup and plate, but your own inside is full of avarice and wickedness. You fools! did not the Maker of the outside make the inside as well? Exchange, however, the contents for kindness, and all will be pure for you.

- 42 "But woe to you, Pharisees! for you tithe mint, rue, and all herbs, and yet neglect justice and the love of God. These, however, you ought to have done; while, at the same time, not neglecting the others. Woe to you, Pharisees! because you love the front seats in the synagogues, and salutes in the markets. Woe to you! because you are like hidden tombs, over which men walk unknowingly."

The Iniquitous Lawyers.

- 45 But one of the lawyers, speaking to Him, said, "Teacher, in saying this, You insult us as well."
- 46 "And especially woe to you, lawyers!" He replied; "for you load men with heavy burdens, while you never help the burdened with one of your fingers! Woe to you! because you build the monuments of the prophets, who were murdered by your own forefathers! So you are witnesses for, and acquiesce in, the doings of your forefathers; for they undoubtedly murdered them, and you erect their monuments. Because of this also the wisdom of God said, 'I will send among them prophets and apostles; and some of them they will murder and reject'; so that the blood of all the prophets shed from the foundation of the world shall be discovered with this generation—from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zacharia, who was murdered between the altar and the house; indeed I tell you, it will be discovered with this generation. Woe to you, lawyers! for you take away the key of knowledge; you do not enter yourselves, and those who would enter you prevent."
- 53 Consequently, when He went out from there, both the professors and the Pharisees began to bitterly contradict Him, and provoke Him to say more; endeavouring to entrap Him by word of mouth, so that they might lay an information against Him.

The Necessity of Sincerity.

- 12 During these proceedings, an immense crowd speedily collected, so that they trod upon one another; and He began to say to His disciples:
- "Guard yourselves from the ferment of the Pharisees, which is play-acting. But nothing is dressed up so that it cannot be stripped; nor concealed so as not to become known. Whatever therefore you have said in the darkness, will be listened to in the light; and what you whisper in the ears in the private chambers, will be proclaimed upon the housetops.

"And I further tell you, friends, 4 Do not dread those killing the body, and who after that have nothing worse to do. But I will warn you whom you 5 ought to dread: Dread the One, who after the killing, has power to throw you into hell; yes, I say, that is the One you have to dread! Are not five 6 sparrows sold for two assaris?¹ yet not one of them is unnoticed in the presence of God. More than that, 7 the very hairs of your head are all counted. Therefore do not be afraid; you exceed in value many sparrows.

"But I tell you, every one who may 8 declare for Me in the presence of men, the Son of Man will also declare for him in the presence of the angels of God. But whoever denies Me in 9 the presence of men, shall be denied in the presence of the angels of God. And any who shall express a thought 10 against the Son of Man, it can be forgiven him; but to him who libels the Holy Spirit, that cannot be forgiven.

"But when they drag you up before 11 the synagogues, and the superior courts, do not embitter yourselves as to how, or by what, you can defend yourselves, or what you can say; for 12 the Holy Spirit will teach you in that very hour what you ought to speak."

Selfishness Condemned.

One of the crowd now said to Him, 13 "Teacher, order my brother to share the property with me."

"Man," He replied, "who appointed Me to be a judge or an arbitrator between you?" And He further 15 said to them, "Look out, and guard yourselves against avarice; because a man's life is not derived from the superfluity of his possessions."

The Fool and his Wealth.

He then addressed a parable to 16 them, saying:

"The estate of a rich man was very productive; and he reflected with 17 himself, saying, 'What shall I do? for I have nowhere to store my crops.' Then he said, 'This is what I will do: 18 I will pull down my storehouses, and build larger; and there I will store all 19 my produce, and all my goods. Then I will say to my life, 'Life! you have plenty of wealth stored up for many years to come; take your pleasure 20 ; eat, drink, and be merry.'"

 "But God said to him, 'You fool!
 this very night your life will be demanded of you; and what then will 21 your preparations be worth?' So it is with whoever hoards wealth for himself, if he is not rich toward God."

Lessons of Trustfulness in God.

22 He then said to His disciples:
 "Because of this, I tell you, Be not anxious about your life—'what you shall eat'; nor for the body—23 'what you shall be clothed with.' The life is more than the food, and the 24 body than the clothing. Look at the ravens; they neither sow nor reap;
 there is no storehouse nor barn for them; yet God feeds them. How much you exceed the birds in value!
 25 "And who among you by fretting can add a single foot to his height?
 26 If you cannot therefore even do the least, why do you fret about the rest?
 27 "Observe the lilies, how they grow:
 they neither toil nor spin; yet I tell you that even Solomon in all his magnificence was never arrayed like one of 28 them. If, then, the flower which exists to-day in the field and to-morrow may be thrown upon the fire, is thus adorned by God, how much more 29 you—you of little faith! And you —inquire not what you can eat, or what you can drink, and be not 30 agitated: for the heathen of the world
 hunt for all these; and your Father 31 knows that you need them. Seek instead the Kingdom of God, and all 32 these will be prepared for you. Do not be afraid, little flock; because it has pleased your Father to give to you the 33 Kingdom. Sell your possessions, and give kind-heartedly; acquire for yourselves an exhaustible wealth, a treasure inexhaustible in the heavens, where neither thief approaches, nor moth 34 destroys. For where your treasure is, there your heart will also be."

Fidelity and Watchfulness.

35 "Stand with your waists belted,
 36 and your lamps alight; and make yourselves like men expecting their master when he may return from the wedding; so that when he comes and knocks, you can at once open for him.

Happy are those servants who are 37 found by their master awaiting his coming; I tell you indeed, that he will gird himself, make them recline, and will himself wait upon them.
 And whether he returns at nine o'clock 38 or at twelve o'clock, if he finds them ready on his coming, happy will these servants be!

"But this you can understand, that 39
 if the owner of the house had known at what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have permitted him to break into his house. Be you also ready; for it 40 may be that the Son of Man will come at an unexpected moment."

Peter then said to Him, "Master, 41 have You spoken this parable merely for us, or for all?"

The Master replied: 42
 "Who, indeed, is the faithful 42 steward whom the master will appoint over his household, in order to serve out the proper food at the right time?
 Happy is that servant who, upon the 43 arrival of his master, is found doing it. Most certainly, I tell you, He will 44 appoint him over all his possessions.
 But if that servant should say in his 45 heart, 'My master delays his return;'
 and should begin to maltreat the other men and women servants, and to eat, carouse, and become drunken; the 46 master of that servant will come on a day when he will not be expected, and at an hour he cannot know, and will cut him off, and assign him a place with the faithless. And that 47 servant who knew the will of his master, and has not prepared for, nor obeyed his instructions, shall be severely punished. But the one who 48 knew it not, but has done what deserved correction, will be punished lightly. For to whom much has been entrusted, from him much will be required; and where much has been deposited with any one, they will demand more from him.

The Effect of the Mark of Christ.

"I came to throw fire upon the 49 earth; and how I wish it were already kindled! But I have a baptism to be 50 baptized with; and how oppressed I feel until it be effected!

"Do you imagine that I have come 51 to give peace to the earth? Not at all; I tell you, on the contrary, con-52 tention. For from now there will be five contending in a single house;

three against two, and two against 53 three. Father will contend against son, and son against father; mother against daughter, and daughter against mother; mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."

Premonitory Signs.

54 He then said to the crowd:
"When you see a cloud rising from the west, you say at once, 'A shower will come'; and so it does come.
55 And when the south wind blows, you say that 'A hot wind is upon us'; 56 and so it comes. You play-actors!
you know how to read the phenomena of the earth and of the sky—then why 57 can you not read this period? But why, from your own selves, do you 58 not judge correctly? so that while you accompany your prosecutor to the magistrate, you may use every effort to be free of him; or fear he should commit you to the judge, and the judge hand you over to the jailor, 59 and the jailor in turn throw you into prison? I tell you that you will not get liberated from there until you have repaid the very last fraction."

Pilate and the Galileans.

18 There arrived at that very moment some who informed Him about the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mixed with that of their sacrifices.
2 "Do you think," said Jesus in reply to them, "that those Galileans were the greatest sinners in all Galilee, because they were subjected to such 3 usage? By no means, I tell you;
but unless you repent, you will all be lost in the same way. Or those 4 Siloan fell, and killed them—do you think that they were the greatest sinners of all the inhabitants of 5 Jerusalem? Not at all; but unless you change your minds, the whole of you will be destroyed in the same way."

The Unfruitful Fig-Tree.

6 He also related this parable to them:
"There was a man who had a fig-tree planted in his garden; and he came looking for fruit upon it, but 7 found none. He then said to the gardener, 'This is the third year I have come looking for fruit upon this fig-tree, and have found none; cut it down: why should it exhaust the 8 ground?' 'Let it alone, sir, for one year longer,' he answered him, 'until

I dig about it, and manure it: when, or perhaps, it may produce fruit; but if not, you can afterwards cut it down."

Suffering and Sabbatarianism.

While He was teaching in one of 10
the synagogues on the Sabbath, a 11 woman was present, who, for eighteen years, was held fast by a spirit of infirmity; and she was so bent, that she could not at any time straighten herself. But when Jesus saw her, He 12 called her, and said to her, "Woman, you are freed from your weakness."
And, placing His hands upon her, she 13 was at once cured, and praised God.

The chief of the synagogue, mad 14 with rage because Jesus had performed a cure on the Sabbath, exclaimed to the people, "There are six days during which work should be done; come, therefore, on those days to be cured, and not on the Day of Rest."

"You hypocrites!" the Master an- 15 swered; "does not each one of you loose his ox or his ass from the stall, on the Rest-Day, and lead it to drink?
And this woman, who is a daughter of 16
Abraham, whom his enemy has bound for eighteen years, ought she not to be loosed from this bond on the Day of Rest?"

And when He said this, all His op- 17 ponents were ashamed; and the whole assembly rejoiced on account of the glorious deeds which were done by Him.

The Kingdom of God Illustrated.

"To what is the Kingdom of God 18 like?" He now asked; "and to what shall I compare it? It is like a grain of 19 mustard-seed, which a man took, and sowed in his own garden; and, growing, it became a large shrub, under the branches of which the birds of the sky came and took shelter."

Again He said, "To what shall I 20 liken the Kingdom of God? It is 21 like yeast, which a woman took, and mixed in three measures of flour, until the whole was fermented."

The Narrow Gateway.

He was travelling now through the 22 towns and villages, teaching, and making His way towards Jerusalem, when some one asked Him, "Master, 23 will only a few be saved?"

"Force yourselves through that 24 narrow gateway," He answered them;
"for many, I assure you, will endeavour to enter in, whose strength

25 will not be equal to it. When once the Master of the house has arisen, and locked the door, and you, standing outside, begin to knock at the door, and call out, 'Master, open for us!' He will answer you, 'I do not know where you come from!' Then you will begin to say, 'We have eaten and drunk in Your company, and You have taught in our streets.' But He will reply to you, 'I do not know where you come from; begone from Me, all you doers of iniquity.' There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when you shall see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as well as all the prophets, admitted to the Kingdom of God, but yourselves excluded. And they shall come from the east, the west, the north, and the south, and recline in the Kingdom of God. For those last shall be first; and these first shall be last."

A Message to Herod Antipas.

31 At that time, some Pharisees approached Him, saying, "Go out, and depart from here! for Herod intends to murder You."
 32 He answered them, "Go and tell that vixen,¹ 'Look! I will expel demons and effect cures to-day and to-morrow, and on the third day I shall complete My work. I must travel, however, to-day and to-morrow, as well as the following day; because it cannot be expected that a prophet should be murdered outside Jerusalem!'"
 34 "O Jerusalem! Jerusalem! who murdered the prophets, and stoned those sent to you! how often have I longed to collect your children as a hen gathers her brood under her wings; but you would not! Alas! your house is now left to yourselves alone; for I tell you that you shall not see Me again until the time comes when you shall say, BLESS HIM WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD!"²

The Pharisaic Plot.

14 It occurred on one occasion, when He entered the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees on a Sabbath, that they were watching Him; and one man in His presence was suffering from dropsy. So Jesus, addressing the lawyers and Pharisees, asked,

² Isa. cxviii. 26.

"Is it allowable to cure on the Day of Rest?" But they kept silent. 4

So taking hold of the man, He cured him, and dismissed him. He now asked them, "Who among you, if his ass or his ox fall into a pit on the Day of Rest, would not at once get hold of it, and pull it out?" And 6 to this question they were unable to give Him a reply.

Admonition to Humility.

Then observing how the invited 7 guests were selecting for themselves the places of honour, He addressed a parable to them, saying:

"When you are invited by any one 8 to a wedding, you should not recline upon the places of honour; for fear one should be invited more distinguished than yourself, and the one 9 who issued the invitations should come to you, saying, 'Make way for this man.' In shame you would then retire to a lower position. When, 10 however, you are invited, take for yourself the lowest position; so that when the host makes his appearance, he may say to you, 'Friend, go up higher!' You will thus be distinguished in the presence of the 11 whole company. Because every one who exalts himself shall be humiliated; and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted."

God-like Generosity.

Then addressing His host, He said: 12
 "Whenever you provide a luncheon or a supper, do not invite merely your friends, your brothers, your relations, nor your rich neighbours; for fear they should also invite you in return, and thus reward you. But, on the 13 contrary, when you provide an entertainment, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be 14 happy; because they have nothing with which to repay you. You will be repaid, however, at the resurrection of the just."

The Parable of the Great Supper.

One of the guests, on hearing 15 this, said to Him, "Happy will he be, however, who shall eat bread in the Kingdom of God!"

But to him He said: 16

"A man provided a great supper, and invited many; and he sent his 17 servant to inform the guests of the supper hour; 'Come then,' said he,

- 18 'when all will be ready.' But they all one by one began to make excuse. The first answered him, 'I have just bought a farm; and, of course, I must of necessity go and see it. Excuse me, I pray you.' Another said, 'I have bought five teams of bullocks; and I am going to examine them.
- 20 Excuse me, I pray you.' And another said, 'I have married a wife; and owing to this, I am unable to attend.'
- 21 "The servant accordingly returned, and reported this to his master.
- "Then the master of the house, being infuriated, said to his servant, 'Go out at once into the streets and lanes of the town, and bring in here the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind.'
- 22 The servant returning, said, 'What you ordered, sir, has been done; but still there is room to spare.'
- 23 "The master therefore said to his servant, 'Go out into the roads and by-paths, and persuade them to come in; so that my house may be filled.' For to you I declare that none of those who were invited shall taste of my supper."

Counting the Cost.

- 25 Once when great crowds were travelling with Him, He turned round to them, and said:
- 26 "Whoever comes to Me, and lessens not his regard for his own father, his mother, his wife, his children—yes, and his own life as well—he cannot be My disciple. And whoever will not carry his cross, and become My follower, cannot be My disciple.
- 28 "For who among you, wishing to build a castle, would not first sit down and calculate the cost; so as to ascertain whether he has enough for its completion? For fear that, after having laid the foundation, he should be unable to finish it; and all seeing it should begin to ridicule him, exclaiming, 'This fellow began to build, and could not finish.' Or again, what king, going to encounter another king in battle, does not first sit down and consult whether he can with ten thousand men attack the enemy who is advancing against him with twenty thousand? And if he cannot, he may, while the other is yet at a distance, send an embassy to sue for peace.
- 32 "Thus, therefore, every one of you who does not bid adieu to all his possessions, cannot be My disciple. Salt is, however, good; but if ³⁴ the salt becomes saltless, with what can it be itself seasoned? Being ³⁵ useless both for the soil and the manure-heap, they throw it away. He who has ears with which to hear, let him listen."

The Lost Sheep.

And all the tax-farmers and the ¹⁶ sinners were drawing near to listen to Him; but the Pharisees and professors were grumbling loudly, saying, "This fellow admits sinners, and eats with them." He accordingly addressed ³ this parable to them:

"What man among you, possessing ⁴ a hundred sheep, and losing one of them, would not leave the ninety-nine in the pasture, and go in search of the lost one until he has found it? And ⁵ having found it, he places it with delight upon his own shoulders; and ⁶ arriving at home, he calls upon his friends and neighbours to share his joy, saying, 'Rejoice with me, for I have-found my lost sheep!' In the ⁷ same way, I tell you, there will be more gladness in heaven over a converted sinner than over ninety-nine righteous persons who have no need of conversion.

The Lost Drachma.

"Or again, what woman, possess- ⁸ ing ten drachmas,¹ if she should lose one, would not light a lamp, sweep up the house, and search carefully until she has found it? And having found ⁹ it, does she not assemble her friends and neighbours, saying?—'Rejoice with me, for I have found the coin which I lost!' Thus I tell you, joy ¹⁰ comes in the presence of the angels of God over a single converted sinner.

The Prodigal Son.

He then said: "There was a man ¹¹ who had two sons; and the younger ¹² of them said to his father, 'Father, let me have the portion of the property to which I am entitled.' And he divided the estate between them. Not many ¹³ days after, however, the younger son collected the whole, and went off to a distant country; and there he squandered his wealth in a life of debauchery. And when he had spent ¹⁴ all, the country was visited by a fearful

¹ Drachma, a Greek coin, equal in value to about a florin.

15 famine; and he began to starve. So having wandered away, he hired himself to one of the citizens of that country; who sent him upon his farm as a swineherd. And he longed to fill his stomach with the carob-pods, upon which the swine were feeding; but no one gave him any.

17 "At length, on coming to himself, he said: 'How many servants of my father have bread, aye, and more than enough, while here I am dying of hunger! I will arise, and go to my father, and will say to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in your own presence. I am no longer fit to be recognised as your son; engage me as one of your servants.'

20 Arising then, he returned to his father, but while he was a still a long way off, his father saw him, and was filled with pity; and running to meet him, he fell upon his neck, and affectionately kissed him.

21 "'Father,' said the son, 'I have sinned against heaven, and in your own presence; I am no longer fit to be recognised as your son; engage me as one of your servants!'

22 "But his father said to his servants, 'Bring out the best robes and clothe him; and put a ring upon his finger, and get shoes for his feet; and bring the fat calf here, and sacrifice it, so that we may feast and be merry. For this man, my son, was dead, and he now lives again; he was lost, and is found.' They accordingly began to enjoy themselves.

25 "Now the elder son was on the farm; and coming near the house as he returned, he heard music and dancing. So he hailed one of the slaves, and asked, 'What does all this mean?' 'Your brother has returned,' was the answer; 'and the fat calf has been sacrificed by your father, because he has come back safely.' He therefore flew into a rage, and refused to go in. His father, however, came out and implored him. But he, answering his father, said, 'Look here! I have slaved for you all these years, and never at any time have I disobeyed your orders; yet you have never so much as given me a kid, so that I might entertain my friends. But immediately on the return of this son of yours, who has squandered your estate with harlots, you have actually sacrificed the fat calf for him!'

31 "'Child,' he replied, 'you are always with me, and all that I have is your own. It was but right that we should rejoice and be merry; because this brother of yours was dead, and he lives again; he was lost, and is found."

The Defrauding Steward.

He also told His disciples that 16 "There was once a rich man who had a steward, who was accused to him of embezzling his estate. So 2 having called him, he asked, 'What is this I hear about you? Render me an account of your management; for you shall no longer be my steward.'

"'Now what shall I do?' said the 3 steward to himself: 'for my master will take the stewardship from me. I am not strong enough to dig; I am ashamed to beg. I know what I will 4 do; so that when I am dismissed from my position, some may receive me into their houses.'

"Then inviting separately the whole 5 of his master's tenants, he asked the first, 'How much rent do you owe to my master?' 'A hundred baths¹ 6 of oil,' was his reply. 'Take your lease,' said the steward; 'sit down quickly, and write fifty.' He then 7 asked another, 'And how much is your rent?' 'A hundred kors² of wheat,' was his reply. 'Take your lease,' said the other, 'and write four-score.'

"And his master admired the ras- 8 cality of the steward, because he had acted reflectively; for the sons of this world are for their own generation more reflectively than the sons of the light.

"But I say to you make for your- 9 selves friends beyond the world of villainy, so that when it departs they may receive you into everlasting dwellings. The faithful in a very 10 little will also be the same in much; and whoever is unjust in little will also be unjust in much. It you are therefore dishonest with the 11 unstable wealth, who will entrust to you that which is real? And if you have 12 not been trustworthy in regard to what belongs to another, who will entrust you with anything for yourselves?

"No servant can serve two masters; 13 for either he will disregard the one, and cling to the other; or, he will respect the one, and despise the other.

² About 1200 bushels.

You cannot serve both God and mammon."

Address to Money-Worshippers.

- 14 The Pharisees, who were lovers of money, sneered at Him, however, when they heard all these remarks.
- 15 To them he said: 'As for you, you palm yourselves off as just in the presence of men; but God knows your hearts; for what is held up to human admiration is abhorred by God.
- 16 "You had the law and the prophets until the coming of John; from then the good news of the Kingdom of God has been preached, and all press
- 17 into it. It is easier, however, for the heaven and the earth to pass away, then for a single hairstroke of the law to be repealed.

The Rich Man and Lazarus.

- 19 "There was once a man who was rich, and arrayed himself in purple and fine linen, and who every day
- 20 lived in pleasure and luxury. And there was a beggar, named Lazarus, who, covered over with sores, was
- 21 laid before his gate; and he longed to be fed with the broken pieces which were thrown from the rich man's table; but, instead, the dogs came and licked his sores. By-and-by, however, the beggar died; and he was
- 22 conveyed by the angels to Abraham's bosom. The rich man also died, and
- 23 was buried. And, in the spirit land, being in torment, he looked up, and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus
- 24 in his bosom. And, shrieking out, he said, 'Father Abraham, have pity upon me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am in torture in this flame!'
- 25 "'Child,' said Abraham, in reply, 'remember that you exhausted your pleasures during your lifetime; and Lazarus in the same way his sufferings; but now here he is comforted,
- 26 while you are agonized. Beside all this, a huge chasm lies between us and you; so that those who might

NOTE.—V. 18 has evidently been misplaced by some old copyist, for the subject of the address was against the sins of avarice and selfish luxury, and NOT upon the law of marriage.

- 18 [{"Every one dismissing his own wife and marrying another commits adultery; and any man marrying a woman who has been dismissed by her husband, commits adultery."}] desire to go from here towards you cannot do so; neither can any come to us from where you are.'

"Then I beg of you, father,' replied the other, 'to send him to my father's house: for I have five brothers; that he may entreat them; so that they also may not come into this place of torment.'

"They have Moses and the prophets,' replied Abraham; 'let them listen to them.'

"Not so, father Abraham,' was his answer; 'but if some one would go to them from the dead, they would change their minds.'

"If they will not listen to Moses and the prophets,' was his reply, 'neither will they be persuaded even if one were to rise from among the dead.'"

Stumbling-Blocks.

He then said to His disciples: "It is impossible for stumbling-blocks to be avoided; but alas for him by means of whom they come!"

"Take care of yourselves. If your brother sins, remonstrate with him; and if he change his mind, forgive him. And even if he should sin against you seven times a day, and come again to you, saying, 'I mean to do better,' you must forgive him."

Urn and Gully.

The apostle then said to the Master, "Increase our faith!"

"If you possessed a faith like but a grain of mustard-seed," replied the Master, "you could say to this mulberry-tree, 'Be instantly up-rooted, and planted in the sea'; and it would obey you!"

"But who is there among you, having a servant ploughing or shepherding, would say to him on his return from the field?—'Come at once, and have your dinner.' On the contrary, will he not say?—'Get something ready for my dinner; also tidy yourself and wait upon me while I eat and drink; and after that you can yourself eat and drink.' Does he feel indebted to his servant for thus carrying out his instructions? I think not. In the same way, you, too, when you have discharged everything entrusted to you, should say, 'We are worthless servants, who have done what it was our duty to do.'"

The Ungrateful Tapers.

- 11 As He was journeying on the way to 12 Jerusalem, He passed through the 13 confines of Samaria and Galilee; and when about to enter one village, He 14 was met by ten leprous men, who, standing at a distance, shouted with loud voices, "Jesus, Master, have pity upon us!"
- 14 When looking upon them, He said,
 "Go, show yourselves to the priests."
 And it came about that as they were going, they were cured.
- 15 And one of them, perceiving that he was cured, turned back, praising God 16 with a loud voice; and, prostrating himself at the feet of Jesus, he returned Him thanks. This man was a Samaritan.
- 17 "Were not the ten cured?" asked Jesus; "but the nine, where are they?"
 18 Have none been found returning to thank God, except this foreigner?"
- 19 He then said to the man, "Arise and depart; your faith has saved you?"

Concerning the Kingdom.

- 20 Being now further questioned by the Pharisees respecting the time when the Kingdom of God would come, He told them in reply: "The Kingdom of God will not come in the way you 21 imagine; neither can they say, 'Look here!' or 'There!'; for see! the Kingdom of God exists within yourselves."

Premonitory Signs.

- 22 And to His disciples He said:
 "The time will come when you shall long to see one of the days of the Son of Man; and you shall not see it. And they shall shout to you, 'Look here!'
 23 'Look yonder!' Neither go, however, nor follow after; for just as the lightning flashes from the high heaven to the high heaven, so will the Son of 25 Man be in His own day. But, in the first place, He has much to endure;
 yes, to be rejected, by this generation.
- 26 And, as it happened in the time of Noah, even so will it also be in the 27 period of the Son of Man. They were eating, they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being betrothed, until the day arrived for Noah to enter the Ark; then the Deluge came, and 28 destroyed them all. So likewise was it in the days of Lot: they were eating, they were drinking, they were buying,
 they were selling, they were planting, 29 they were building; but when the day came for Lot to depart from Sodom, fire and brimstone rained from the sky, and destroyed them all. So will 30 it be upon the day in which the Son of Man is revealed. In that day, 31 whoever may be upon the balcony, let him not descend into his house to clear out his furniture; and let not the one who is in the field return home. Remember Lot's wife!

"Whoever attempts to preserve his 32 life shall lose it; but whoever does lose it shall preserve it. In that night, let 34 Me tell you, there shall be two men in one bed; the one will be taken, and the other left. Two women will be grind-35 ing together; the one will be taken, and the other left. Two may be in the field; 36 the one will be taken and the other left."

Then, in reply to Him, they asked, 37
 "Where, Master?"

"Where the carcass is," He an-38 swered them, "there too the vultures will be found assembled."

The Unjust Judge.

He also showed them, by means of a 18 parable, that they ought to persist in prayer, without becoming weary.

"There was in a town," He said, 2
 "a judge, who neither feared God, nor respected man. And in the same 3 town there was a widow, who kept coming to Him, pleading, 'Give me justice against my adversary.' He re- 4 fused, however, for some time. But afterwards he argued thus with himself: Although I neither fear God, nor care for man, yet, because this 5 widow gives me trouble, I will grant her justice; for if I do not, she will distract me at last by her coming."

"Mark, now," said the Master, 6
 "what the unjust judge determined.
 And will not God grant justice to His 7 chosen, who cry to Him day and night, and have pity upon them? He 8 will, I tell you, grant them justice very quickly. When the Son of Man comes, however, will He find this faith upon the earth?"

The Pharisee and the Tax-farmer at Prayer.

He then addressed this parable to 9
 some who were confident of their own righteousness, and despised the rest:
 10 "Two men went up to the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a tax-farmer. The Pharisee, 11 standing by himself, prayed thus:
 'O God, I thank Thee that I am not like the rest of mankind—greedy, unjust, profligate; nor even like this

- 12 tax-farmer. I fast twice a week; I 13 tithe all that I possess! But the tax-farmer, standing at a distance, did not dare even to raise his eyes to heaven; but merely struck his breast, exclaiming, 'O God, be merciful to me, the sinner!'
- 14 "This man, I tell you, returned home more righteous than the other;
 for everyone exalting himself shall be humbled, but the one who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Jesus and Little Children.

- 15 And they were also bringing to Him their babes, in order that He might touch them; but the disciples on see-16 ing it, prevented them. But Jesus hailed them to Him, saying, "Allow the little children to come to Me, and hinder them not; for of such consists 17 the Kingdom of God. I tell you indeed, that if anyone does not accept the Kingdom of God like a little child, he can by no means enter it. It would be better for him to have an upper millstone fastened round his neck, and be flung into the sea, rather than that he should cause a single one of these little ones to fall."¹

The Barrier of Wealth.

- 18 One of the nobles then asked Him,
 "Beneficent Teacher, what shall I do in order to secure everlasting life?"
- 19 "Why do you call Me beneficent?"
 said Jesus in reply; "One alone is 20 beneficent—God Himself. You know the commands: DO NOT COMMIT ADULTERY; DO NOT MURDER; DO NOT STEAL; DO NOT COMMIT PER-JURY; HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND YOUR MOTHER."²
- 21 "All these I have observed from my youth," was his answer.
- 22 Jesus, hearing this, said to him,
 "You are only deficient in one respect: sell all that you possess, and distribute to the poor; and you shall have wealth in heaven. Then return, and become My follower."
- 23 On hearing this, however, he became depressed; for he was exceed-24 ingly rich. And Jesus, observing him turning sad, remarked, "With what difficulty can those possessing wealth 25 enter the Kingdom of God! It is easier, indeed, for a camel to pass through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God!"

"Who then can be saved?" asked 26
 the bystanders.

"The impossible with men," He 27
 replied, "is the possible with God."

"Why," observed Peter, "we have 28 left everything, and followed You."

"I tell you indeed," was His reply, 29
 "there is not one who shall have forsaken home, or parents, or brothers, or wife, or children, on account of the Kingdom of God, who will not receive 30 in return much more in the present time, and in the age to come everlasting life."

Jesus Foretells His Death and Resurrection.

Then conversing aside with the 31 twelve, He said to them: "We are now going up to Jerusalem; and all that has been written through the prophets concerning the Son of Man will be accomplished. For He will 32 be handed over to the heathen, and will be ridiculed, assaulted, spit upon;
 and having flogged, they will murder 33
 Him; but upon the third day He will rise again."

They understood nothing of this, 34 however; for the thought was hidden from them, and they did not comprehend its meaning.

The Blind Beggar.

As He was approaching Jericho, a 35 blind man who sat at the roadside begging, on hearing the passing crowd, 36 inquired what it meant. They accord- 37 ingly told him that Jesus the Nazarene was passing by; upon which he at 38
 once shouted out, exclaiming, "Jesus,
 Son of David, pity me!"

And those going on before ordered 39 him to keep silent; but he merely shouted out the louder, "Jesus, Son of David, pity me!"

Then Jesus, stopping, commanded 40 the man to be brought to Him; and when he came near, He asked him,
 "What do you wish Me to do for you?" 41

"Master, was his reply, "that I may recover my eyesight!"

"Recover your eyesight," said 42
 Jesus to him; "your faith has saved you." And regaining his eyesight 43 immediately, he followed Him, praising God. And all the people, on seeing it, gave thanks to God.

Zacchæus, the Tax-farmer.

Then when He had entered and 19 was passing through Jericho, a man, 2

- Zacchæus by name, who was the chief tax-farmer, and was rich, endeavoured to see what sort of person Jesus was; but he could not for the crowd, because he was short of stature.
- Running ahead, however, he climbed a sycamore tree, in order that he might see Him when He passed by. When Jesus came to the spot, He looked up; and, seeing him, said, "Zacchæus, be quick and come down; for to-day I must stay at your house."
- He accordingly descended with all speed, and received Him with delight.
- On seeing it, however, they all grumbled, exclaiming, "Why, He is going to be entertained by a wicked man!"
- Zacchæus then presenting himself before the Master, said: "See, Sir, I give the half of my possessions to the poor; and if ever I have defrauded any one by means of false information, I will restore it fourfold."
- Jesus said to him: "Salvation has to-day come to this family; for this man is certainly a son of Abraham.
- For the Son of Man came to search out and save the lost."

Trustworthiness:

Parable of the Talents.

- As the people were attentive, He proceeded to relate a parable, because He neared Jerusalem, and they supposed that the Kingdom of God would immediately commence. He therefore said: "Once a nobleman went to a distant country, to procure for himself a kingdom, and then to return. So, calling ten of his own servants, he handed to them ten minahs,¹ and said to them, 'Carry on your business until I return.' His countrymen, however, hated him, and sent an embassy to follow him, saying, 'We will not have this fellow to reign over us.'
- "But, on his return, after having received the kingdom, he summoned before him those servants to whom he had entrusted the money, in order that he might ascertain what each had earned by trading. The first appeared, saying, 'Sir, your minah has earned ten minahs additional.'
- "'Well done, good servant,' was the reply, 'because you have been faithful with a very little, you shall have the governorship of ten towns.'
- "The second came, saying, 'Sir, your minah has gained five minahs.' And to him also he said, 'You can be the governor of five towns.'

"And another came, saying, 'Here, sir, is your minah which I have kept wrapped up in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are a hard master; you exact what you did not give, and reap what you did not sow.'

"He said to him: 'Out of your own mouth will I condemn you, you worthless servant. Let it be that I am a hard master, exacting what I did not give, and reaping what I did not sow; why then did you not place my money in a bank, so that upon my return I might have received it with interest? Take that minah from him,' he said to his attendants, 'and give it to the one who has the ten minahs.'

"'Why, he has ten minahs, sir,' was their reply.

"'I tell you,' replied he, 'that to all who possess shall be given; but from the one who possesses nothing, even what he holds shall be taken from him. Then, as to those enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and execute them in my presence.'"

The Triumphal Entry.

Having then said this, He journeyed on, going up to Jerusalem.

And when He approached Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount called Olivet, He sent forward two of His disciples, saying, "Go to the opposite village; on entering which you will find a colt tied up, upon which no man has ever been seated; unfasten, and bring him here. And if any one asks you, 'Why do you unfasten him?' tell him, 'The Master has need of him.'"

The messengers accordingly went away, and found everything as He had told them. And as they were untying the colt, the owner asked them, "Why are you untying that colt?" "The Master has need of him," was their answer. So they brought him to Jesus; and, covering the colt with their cloaks, they placed Jesus upon its back. And as they went, they flung their garments upon the road.

Then, as they reached the descent of the Mount of Olivet, the whole crowd of disciples began to exult and praise God in loud acclaim for all the powers they had witnessed, saying,

"BLESS THE KING COMING IN THE NAME OF THE LORD;"¹

Peace from heaven,
And majesty in the heights!"

39 Some of the Pharisees, however, from the crowd said to Him, "Teacher, reprimand Your disciples."

40 "I tell you," was His reply, "that even if they were to be silent, the stones would shout out!"

41 Then, as He approached, seeing the city, He wept on account of it; exclaiming, "Oh that you had known, even at last, in this your day, what would bring you peace! But now it is hidden from your eyes; because the days shall come upon you, when your enemies shall rear a rampart about you, hem you in upon every side, and raze you to the ground, and your children within you; and they will not leave in you one stone upon another, because you would not recognise the time for your preservation."

Jesus Purifying the Temple.

45 Then entering the temple, He began to drive out the dealers, saying to them, "It is written, MY HOUSE IS A HOUSE OF PRAYER;² but you have made it a DEN OF THIEVES."³

47 And in the temple He continued to teach daily. The chief priests, professors, and leading men, however, sought to murder Him; but they could not find an opportunity of effecting it; because all the people hung upon Him with the greatest attention.

The Sceptics Purged.

20 One of those days, while He was teaching and evangelising the people in the temple, the chief priests and professors came to Him with the elders, and questioning Him, they asked, "Tell us by what kind of authority You act; and who gave You that authority?"

3 "I Myself will ask you one question," He said, in reply; "and you can answer Me: 'The baptism of John—was it from heaven, or from men?'"

5 They accordingly discussed privately among themselves, saying, "If we say 'from heaven,' He will ask, 'Why then did you not believe in him?'"
6 But if we should say, 'from men,'

all the people will stone us; for they are firmly convinced that John was a prophet." They accordingly replied⁷ that they did not know from where,

"Neither will I tell you," Jesus answered them, "by what authority I act."

Parable of the Vineyard.

He also began to relate this parable⁹ to the people: "There was once a man who planted a vineyard, let it out to farmers, and went abroad for a long time. At the proper season, he¹⁰ sent a servant to the tenants, so that they might pay him the rent of the vineyard; but the farmers flogged him, and sent him back with nothing. He then proceeded to send another¹¹ servant; and him they also flogged, assaulted him disgracefully, and sent him back with nothing. And a third¹² one being sent, they wounded him, and kicked him out!

"Then the owner of the vineyard,¹³ upon reflection, said, 'What shall I do? I will send my own dear son; perhaps, on seeing him, they will respect him.' But the tenants, seeing¹⁴ him, consulted among themselves, saying, 'This is the heir; come on, let us murder him, so that the estate may become our own.' Flinging him¹⁵ accordingly out of the vineyard, they murdered him!

"What therefore," He asked, "will the owner of the vineyard do to them?"

"He will come and execute those¹⁶ tenants, and will give the vineyard to others."

On hearing this, some said, "Never let it happen." But gazing fixedly¹⁷ at them, He said, "What then is this which is written?—

THE STONE WHICH THE BUILDERS REJECTED, HAS BEEN CHOSEN FOR THE CHIEF KEYSTONE.¹

"Every one falling over that Stone¹⁸ will be bruised; but upon whoever it may fall, it will crush him to dust."

Plotting Frustrated.

The professors and the chief priests¹⁹ then attempted to seize Him at that very moment; for they perceived that He had related this parable against themselves, yet they dreaded the people.

Then plotting, they sent spies, who²⁰

³ Jer. vii. 11.

personated themselves to be good men, so that they might entrap Him by His speech; with the object of handing Him over to the magistracy, and to the jurisdiction of the Governor.

21 They accordingly said to Him, "Teacher, we know that You speak and teach rightly, and You are not bound by appearances; and on the contrary, You teach the way of God in truth: 'Is it legal for us to pay tribute to the Emperor, or not?'"

23 But perceiving their rascality, He answered them, "Show me a denarius.¹ Whose portrait and motto has it?"

"Cæsar's," was their reply.

25 "Give then," He told them, "Cæsar's own property to Cæsar; and to God what belongs to God."

26 So they were not able to entrap Him by His speech in the presence of the people; and wondering at His answer, they were silent.

Discomfiture of the Sadducees.

27 Afterwards some of the Sadducees, who deny a resurrection, came to Him with the question: "Teacher, Moses wrote for us, that if a brother of any one dies, leaving a wife who may be childless, the brother surviving shall marry the widow, and procure issue for his brother.² Now there were seven brothers, the first of whom, having taken a wife, died childless. The second married the widow, and also died childless; the third married her, as likewise did the others; all the seven dying without leaving issue. Last of all, the woman also died. In the resurrection, therefore, to which of them will she belong? for she was married to all the seven."

34 "The children of this age marry and are married," said Jesus, in reply to them; "but those considered worthy to attain to that period, and share the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage. For neither can they die again; because they are equal to the angels, and are sons of God, being sons by means of the resurrection. But that the dead are raised, even Moses reminded you at the bush, as he named the LORD, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.³ He is not, however, a God of the dead, but of the living; for they are all living with Him."

"Teacher, You have answered admirably!" exclaimed some of the professors. But none of them dared to question Him further.

David's Lord.

He then asked them, "How is it they say that the Messiah will be a Son of David? when David himself says in the Book of Psalms:

THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD,
BE SEATED AT MY RIGHT
UNTIL I MAKE YOUR ENEMIES A STOOL FOR YOUR FEET.¹

"David, therefore, calls Him 'Lord'; how then is He his son?"

Warning against Hypocrisy.

Then, when all the people were listening, He said to His disciples: "Guard yourselves from the professors, who like to march out in flowing robes, court recognition in the market-places; secure the principal seats in the synagogues, and the places of distinction at banquets; who devour the families of widows, and for a disguise offer up long prayers. Such will receive the severest punishment."

The Widow's Offering.

Looking round then, He saw the wealthy people throwing their gifts into the treasury; and He also observed one poor widow throwing in two lepta.³ And He remarked, "I tell you most certainly, that this poor widow has thrown in more than all. For all the others, out of their superfluity, have contributed to the gifts for God; but she, out of her poverty, has contributed all she had to live upon."

The Destruction of the Temple Foretold.

Now when some were speaking about the temple, remarking how it was adorned with beautiful stones, and consecrated gifts, He said: "You see these upon which you are gazing: the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another, which has not been thrown down."

"When, Teacher, will this be?" they then asked Him; "and what will be the sign of the accomplishment of these events?"

Signs of the End.

- 8 "Take care that you are not led into error," was His reply; "for many will come in My Name, declaring that 'I AM'; and that 'The crisis has approached': do not you however follow them. And when you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; for all these must come first: but the end is not immediately."
- 9
- 10 Continuing, He said: "Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be great earthquakes, and in many places famines and plagues; as well as terrifying signs from heaven. But before all these, they will apprehend and persecute you, handing you over to the synagogues and prisons, dragging you before kings and governors, on account of My name. The result, however, will be as an evidence in your favour. Resolve in your hearts, therefore, not to premeditate a defence; for I will Myself give you eloquence and wisdom, which none of your opponents will be able to refute or withstand. You will, however, be betrayed by parents, brothers, relatives, and friends; while some among you will be murdered: and you will be universally hated because of My name. Not a hair of your heads, however, shall be lost. By your patience you shall preserve your lives.

The Destruction of Jerusalem.

- 20 "But when you shall see Jerusalem encompassed with armies, reflect that her desolation is near. Then let those in Judea take flight to the hills; let those within her make their escape; and let not those in the neighbourhood enter therein: because these will be the days of her punishment, when all the recorded denunciations will be accomplished.
- 21
- 22 "Alas to those with child, and to nursing mothers in those days! for there will be great distress upon the land, and fury against the people.
- 23 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and be led captive into every nation; while Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the heathen, until the times of the heathen are completed.
- 24
- 25 "And there shall be signs in the sun, and moon, and stars; and upon the earth nations in despair, as when in terror of the roaring and raging sea: men expiring from fear, and apprehension of what is coming upon the world; for the powers of the heavens shall be shaken. And then shall they witness the Son of Man coming in a cloud, with transcendent power and majesty.

"But when these begin to appear, stand up and raise your heads; because your redemption then draws near.

The Sign of the Fig-Tree.

He now related this parable to them:

"Observe the fig-tree, and all the trees; when they first sprout, looking upon them, you yourselves know that the summer is approaching. In like manner you, too, when you witness these events, understand that the Kingdom of God is near. I tell you indeed, that this generation shall not pass away, until all will begin. The heavens and the earth may pass away; but My statements will not pass away. But take care of yourselves, for fear your hearts should be loaded with debauchery, and drunkenness, and business cares, and that day come swiftly upon you like a snare; for thus it will come upon all dwelling upon the face of the earth. Watch, therefore, at every season, offering prayer; so that you may be prepared to escape all the coming calamities, and take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man."

Closing Days of the Son of Man.

During the days He was teaching in the temple; and during the nights He went out and lodged in the hill known as Mount Olivet. And in the early morning, all the people rushed to the temple to listen to Him.

The Approaching Passover.

The festival of unfermented bread, known as the Passover, was now drawing near. And the chief priests and professors were seeking an opportunity to assassinate Him; but they were afraid of the people.

The Plot of Judas.

Satan then entered Judas, surnamed the Iscariot, who was numbered among the twelve. And he proceeded to converse with the chief priests and officers, as to how he could hand Him

5 over to them. And they were delighted, and bargained to give him 6 money. He accordingly consented, and awaited an opportunity to betray Him to them, away from the crowd.

Preparation for the Passover.

- 7 When the time arrived for the unfermented bread, when the Passover 8 ought to be offered, He sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare the Passover for us, in order that we may eat it."
9 "Where do You wish us to prepare it?" they asked.
10 "When you enter the city," He told them, "a man carrying a pitcher of water will meet you; follow him into 11 the house which he enters. Then say to the master of the house, 'The Teacher says to you, Where is the 12 assembly-room, where I can eat the Passover with My disciples?' And he will show you a large upper chamber, furnished; make ready there."
13 So they went; and finding everything as He had told them, they prepared for the Passover.

Institution of the Lord's Supper.

- 14 And when the hour arrived, He reclined, and the twelve apostles were with Him. And He said to them: "I have longingly desired to eat this Passover with you before My 15 suffering; however, I tell you that I shall not eat of it, until it can be administered in the Kingdom of God."
16 Then taking the cup, and giving thanks, He said: "Take this, and 17 divide it among yourselves; for I tell you that I will not drink of the produce of the vine, until the Kingdom of God has come."
18 He then took the bread, and giving thanks, He broke it, and handed it to them, saying, "This is My body, 19 [[which is delivered up for you; do this in remembrance of Me." And He did the same also with the after-dinner cup, saying, "This Cup is a New Settlement in My blood, which is 20 poured out for your sakes.]] But nevertheless the hand of My betrayer 21 is with My own upon the table: for the Son of Man is indeed going away, as has been determined; but alas for that man by means of whom He is betrayed!"
22 They then began to inquire among themselves who it could be that was about to do this.

The Question of Precedency.

A warm discussion now took place 21 among them, as to which of them should be considered the greatest.

"The kings of the heathen," He 25 observed to them, "exercise dominion over them; and their oppressors are styled 'benefactors': but you must 26 not do so. On the contrary, let the greater among you become as the younger; and the chief like a servant. For who is the greater—the guest? 27 the servant? Is not the guest? but I am among you as a Servant. But you 28 are accompanying Me in My trials; and I will grant you a Kingdom, such as 29 My Father has granted to Me: so that 30 you may eat and drink at My table, in My Kingdom, and sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

Peter's Denial Predicted.

The Master then added, "Simon, 31 Simon, see, Satan has demanded you, to sift you like wheat; but I have made 32 supplication for you, that your faith may not fail. And when you have recovered yourself, strengthen your brothers."

"Master," was his reply, "I am 33 ready to go with You to prison—yes, even to death!"

"Let Me tell you, Peter," He said, 34 "the bugle¹ will not sound to-day, until you have thrice denied that you know Me."

Then He asked them, "When I 35 sent you without purse, bag, or shoes, did you want anything?"

"Nothing," was their reply.

He answered them, "But now, 36 whoever has a purse, let him take it, and likewise a bag; and he that has no sword, let him sell his cloak and buy one. For I tell you, that which 37 was written must be completed in Me: THAT HE WAS ALSO RANKED AMONG THE OUTLAWS;² for indeed, what has been written about Me will have fulfilment."

"Master, see!" said they, "there 38 are two swords here."

"That will do," was His reply.

The Agony of the Son of Man.

Then going out, He retired, according to His custom, to the Mount of Olivet; and the disciples also followed Him.

- 40 When He arrived at the place, He said to them, "Pray, for fear trial should overtake you." And tearing Himself away from them, as far as a stone's throw, He knelt down, and
- 42 prayed; saying, "Father, if it be Your will, remove this cup from Me; yet not My will, but Yours be done!"
- 43 [[An angel from heaven then appeared to Him, strengthening Him.
- 44 And being in an agony of grief, He prayed all the more fervently; and the sweat fell from Him to the ground like drops of blood.]]
- 45 And rising up from His prayer, He came toward the disciples, and found them sleeping, overcome with grief;
- 46 and said to them, "Why do you sleep? rise up and pray, so that trial may not come upon you."

The Arrest.

- 47 While He was still speaking, a crowd made its appearance, headed by him who was called Judas, one of the twelve; and he came up to Jesus
- 48 to kiss Him. "Judas," exclaimed Jesus, "do you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?"
- 49 Now those about Him, foreseeing what would happen, asked Him, "Master, shall we strike with a
- 50 sword?" And one of them struck the servant of the High Priest, cutting off his right ear.
- 51 But Jesus, addressing him, said, "Here let the matter rest"; and, touching the ear, He cured it.
- 52 Jesus then asked those who came against Him from the chief priests, the officers of the temple-guard, and the elders, "Are you come out with swords and staves, as if you were in pursuit
- 53 of a robber? While I was daily with you in the temple, you did not attempt to arrest Me. But this hour, and that of the power of darkness, is yours."
- 54 Then arresting Him, they took Him to the house of the High Priest, Peter following at a distance. And when they had lit a fire in the middle of the court, and were standing around it, Peter seated himself among them.

Peter's Denial.

- 56 A maid-servant then noticing him sitting in the light, looked at him, remarking, "Why, this fellow was with Him!"

But he denied it, saying, "I do not 57 know Him, woman!"

A short time after, another saw him, 58 and said, "You, too, belong to them!"

"Man, I do not," was Peter's reply.

And about an hour afterwards, 59 another declared the same thing, saying, "By my oath, this fellow was also with Him; for he is a Galilean."

But Peter responded, "I do not 60 know, man, what you are talking about!" And immediately a bugle sounded while he was speaking.

Then the Master, turning round, 61 looked upon Peter; and Peter called to mind the word of his Master, how He had told him, "Before the bugle sounds you will have thrice denied Me." And, rushing out, he wept 62 bitterly.

The Derision of the Son of Man.

Now, those who had Jesus in charge 63 ridiculed and assaulted Him; and, 64 blindfolding Him, they struck Him in the face, and asked Him, saying, "Guess who it is that strikes You?" And many other insults they uttered 65 against Him.

The Judean Mock-Trial.

As soon as it was day, the represen- 66 tatives of the people, chief priests, and professors assembled; and they led Him into their senate, saying, "If 67 You are the Messiah, tell us."

"If I were to tell you," he answered 68 them, "you would not believe; and if I were to argue, you would neither discuss the matter nor discharge Me. From now, however, the Son of Man 69 will be seated at the right hand of the power of God."

"Are You the Son of God, then?" 70 they all exclaimed.

"You yourselves say that I am," He replied to them.

"What further need have we of 71 evidence?" they then shouted; "we ourselves have heard enough from His own mouth."

Before Pilate.

The whole assembly of them then 23 arose, and conducted Him before Pilate; where they began to accuse 2 Him, asserting, "We have found this fellow misleading the nation, and forbidding the payment of tribute to the emperor, asserting Himself to be an anointed king!"

- 3 Pilate then questioned Him, asking, "Are You the King of the Judeans?" "You say so," was His answer.
- 4 Pilate, then addressing the chief priests as well as the crowd, said, "I can find nothing criminal about this Man."
- 5 But they became more vehement, adding, "He raised sedition among the people by His teaching through the whole of Judea, from Galilee, where he started, even to this place."
- 6 The mention of Galilee then led Pilate to ask if the Man were a Galilean. And, learning that he belonged to the jurisdiction of Herod, he remanded Him to Herod, who was himself in Jerusalem at the time.
- 8 When Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad; for he had for a long time been anxious to see Him, on account of what he had heard concerning Him; and he expected to see striking evidence come from Him.
- 9 He accordingly asked Him a great many questions; but He explained nothing to him.
- 10 The chief priests and the professors, however, accused Him savagely.
- 11 Then Herod despised Him, and with his guards ridiculed Him, and sent Him back to Pilate, wrapped in a splendid cloak. From that very day Pilate and Herod became friendly with one another; for before they had lived in enmity.
- 13 Pilate, then addressing the chief priests, the nobles, and the people, said to them, "You have brought this Man before me on a charge of disturbing the people. Yet, having examined Him in your presence, I can find no such crime in the man as you accuse Him of; neither, indeed, has Herod; for he has sent Him back to us; and even he has decided that nothing has been done by Him to deserve death. Therefore, having flogged Him, I shall discharge Him."¹
- 18 But they all yelled out in chorus, "Away with this fellow! and let Barabbas be liberated for us!" He was one who had been imprisoned for raising an insurrection in the city, and for murder.
- 20 Pilate, anxious to liberate Jesus,

¹ Some of the MSS. read ver. 17: "For it was necessary to liberate some one to them at every festival." The best critics, however, and earliest MSS., show it to be only an ancient editorial note.—F.F.

again expostulated; but they now yelled out, "Crucify! crucify Him!"

Speaking to them for the third time, he asked, "Why? what offence has this Man committed? I can find Him guilty of no capital offence; I will therefore flog Him, and discharge Him."

But they, uniting in a general roar, demanded that He should be crucified; and their voices prevailed. And Pilate chose to give way to their demand; so he released the man who had been imprisoned for riot and murder, whom they asked; but he handed Jesus over to their will.

The Daughters of Jerusalem.

And as they led Him away, they seized Simon, of Cyrene, who was coming in from the country; and laying upon him the cross, they made him carry it behind Jesus.

And a large crowd of the people followed Him, including women, who were beating their breasts, and lamenting Him. Jesus, however, turning towards them, said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for Me; but weep for yourselves and for your children. For now the days are coming, during which they shall say, 'Happy are the barren, happy the childless, and happy those who have never nursed.' Then they will begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall upon us'; and to the hills, 'Bury us';¹ because if they do this with the green tree, what must happen to the rotten one?"

And two others, who were criminals, were also led with Him for execution.

The Crucifixion.

And when they arrived at a spot known as Calvary (that is, Skull-cap), they there crucified Him; one of the criminals being on the right, and the other on the left. And Jesus prayed, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

And casting lots, they divided His clothing among them.² And the people stood round as spectators; but they jeered, and the nobles also, exclaiming, "He saved others; let Him save Himself, if this fellow is the Messiah, the chosen One of God!"

The soldiers also ridiculed Him, coming and offering Him sour wine, and saying, "If You are the Judean King, save Yourself!"

² Psa. cxvii. 18.

38 There was also an inscription placed over Him in the Greek, Latin, and Hebrew languages: THIS IS THE KING OF THE JUDEANS.

39 One of the criminals suspended also abused Him, saying, "Are You not the Messiah? Save Yourself and us!"

40 But the other reproached him, saying, "Should you not fear God, seeing you are yourself in the same punishment? And we indeed rightly: for we justly receive it for what we have done; but this Man has done nothing wrong." Then he said: "Jesus, remember me when You come into Your Kingdom."

43 When He replied to him: "I tell you truly, To-day you shall be with Me in Paradise."

The First Words of the Son of Man.

44 It was now about midday, and darkness enveloped the whole land until about three o'clock in the afternoon from the sun being obscured; and the curtain of the temple was torn in two. Then crying with a loud voice, Jesus said, "Father, into Your hands I resign My spirit"; having said which, He expired.

17 Then the captain seeing the event, praised God, exclaiming, "This was undoubtedly an innocent Man."

48 And all the crowds that collected to witness this spectacle, on seeing what had taken place, returned home, beating their breasts. But all His friends stood at a distance from Him; and the women who followed Him from Galilee saw these things.

The Entombment.

50 And a man named Joseph, of the Judean town of Arimathæa—a benevolent and just man, and a member of the senate, who had not concurred in the determination and crime of the others—who was himself also expecting the Kingdom of God, proceeded to Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus. And taking it down, he wrapt it in linen, and placed it in a rock-hewn tomb, in which none had as yet been buried. That was a Preparation-day, and a Sabbath was approaching. And the women who had accompanied Him from Galilee having followed, observed the tomb, and how the body was placed. And returning, they prepared aromatics and myrrhs; but they rested upon the actual Sabbath, in accordance with the command.

But at day-break upon the first day 24 following the Sabbaths, they proceeded to the tomb, carrying the aromatics which they had prepared.

The Resurrection of the Lord Jesus.

They found, however, the stone 2 rolled away from the tomb; but, 3 having entered, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. Now while 4 they were searching about for it, suddenly two men stood near them in robes of dazzling brightness. And in 5 their terror they bent their faces to the ground; but the others asked them, "Why are you searching for the living among the dead? He is not here, 6 but is risen; recollect what He told you while He was still in Galilee, saying, 'The Son of Man must be 7 delivered over to the hands of wicked men, and be crucified, and rise again the third day.'"

They then remembered His state- 8 ment; and returning, they reported all 9 this to the eleven, as well as to all the others. It was Mary the Magdalene, 10 Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women, together with their friends, who reported this to the apostles. But the statements appeared 11 to them to be nonsense; and they disregarded them. Peter, however, 12 jumping up, ran to the tomb; and, stooping down, he saw the winding sheet lying there alone. He accordingly returned home, musing in astonishment respecting what had taken place.

The Journey to Emmaus.

Now that very day two of them 13 were going to a village, named Emmaus, a distance of seven miles from Jerusalem. And they conversed 14 between themselves about all these occurrences. While they were con- 15 versing and discussing the matter, however, Jesus Himself approached, and proceeded with them. But their 16 eyes were held, so that they were prevented from recognising Him. And He asked them, "What are these 17 ideas which you throw out to each other as you walk along?" So they 18 stood still, gloomily.

Then one named Cleophas asked Him in reply, "Are You the only resident of Jerusalem who does not know the events in it during these last few days?"

19 "What events?" He then asked them.

"Why, those concerning Jesus of Nazareth," was their reply; "He was a Prophet, powerful in act and word in the presence of God, and all the people; but the chief priests and nobles delivered Him to a sentence of death, and they have crucified Him. We had hoped, however, that He was coming to deliver Israel. But in addition to all this, to-day being the third since these events occurred, some women of our company have much surprised us; for having gone at day-break to the tomb, and not finding the body, they came and told us that they had seen a vision of angels, who said that He lives. So some of those with us proceeded to the tomb, and found it just as the women had stated; but they did not see Him."

25 "How senseless and slow your hearts are to believe all that the prophets have spoken," He remarked to them. "Ought not the Messiah to have suffered in this way, and taken possession of His majesty?" Beginning then with Moses, and going through all the prophets, he explained to them everything in the sacred writings which referred to Himself.

The Lord Jesus at Emmaus.

28 Arriving then at the village to which they were going, He made as if He would go further; but they pressed Him, saying, "Stay with us; for it is near evening, and the day declines." He accordingly went in to stay with them, and as they were reclining together at the table, He took the loaf, and He blessed and broke it, distributing it to them. Their eyes were then opened, and they recognised Him; but He withdrew from their presence.

32 And they said to one another, "Was not our heart burning within us while He spoke to us in the road, and explained the Scriptures to us?" 33 They then arose at once; and returning to Jerusalem, they there found the eleven assembled, with those who had reported that "The Master had risen indeed, and had appeared to Simon." 35 Then they themselves recounted what had occurred upon the road, and how He had been known to them in breaking the bread.

The Manifestation of the Lord Jesus to the Apostles.

While they were discoursing in this way, Jesus Himself stood among them, and said, "Peace to you!" But they were surprised and terror-stricken, imagining that they were gazing upon a spirit.

"Why are you startled?" He asked them; "and for what reason do doubts arise in your hearts? Look at My hands and My feet; it is Myself: touch Me, and see; for a spirit has not flesh and bones, such as you perceive I possess." So saying, He showed them His hands and His feet. But while they still disbelieved from delight and astonishment, He asked them, "Have you anything eatable here?" They accordingly gave Him a piece of baked fish; and taking it, He ate it in their presence.

He then said to them, "Those were facts which I told you while I was with you: how all that is written concerning Me in the law of Moses, the prophets, and the psalms, must of necessity be fulfilled."

He then opened their minds, to enable them to understand the Scriptures; saying to them, "Thus it was written, that the Messiah must suffer, and rise again from the dead the third day; and that a change of mind, with pardon of sins, be proclaimed to all the heathen, beginning at Jerusalem. You are witnesses of these events. And remember that I will send the promise of My Father; but stay in the city until you are endowed with power from on high."

The Ascension.

He then led them out as far as Bethany; and raising His hands, He blessed them. And while He was blessing them, He was removed from them, being conveyed to heaven.

Then, having paid Him homage, they returned to Jerusalem with intense delight; and were continually in the temple praising God.

1 NOTE.—I remove the Genealogy, vvs. 23—
 38 of ch. iii., and place it at the end of this Gospel for the following reason: It is quite irreconcilable with the one of Joseph given by St. Matthew, which is capable of verification from the records of the Old Testament, while this interpolated one in St. Luke's Gospel cannot be so. It also breaks the continuity of the Text, in a manner that so accomplished a writer as that Evangelist would never have done. I am, therefore, perfectly satisfied that it is merely a note of some early editor, and never formed part of St. Luke's Gospel.—F. F.

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

Introduction.

1 THE above narrative I compiled, Theophilus, concerning everything that Jesus began to do and 2 teach, from the beginning until the day when, having equipped the apostles whom He had selected with Holy 3 Spirit, He ascended: to whom He also presented Himself alive, with many proofs, after His suffering; appearing to them during forty days, and speaking regarding the welfare of 4 the Kingdom of God. And, being in their company, He enjoined them
 "not to remove from Jerusalem; but await the promise of the Father, concerning which you heard from Me.
 5 Because John indeed baptized with water; but you shall be baptized with Holy Spirit not many days from now."
 6 When they were together, however, they asked Him: "Master, will You at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?"
 7 "It is not for you," He answered them, "to know times or periods which the Father has reserved at His 8 own absolute disposal. But you shall receive power from the Holy Spirit coming upon you; and you shall be My witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the bounds of the earth."

The Ascension.

9 And saying this, even while they were looking, He ascended; and a cloud carried Him up from their view.

And as they were gazing intently into the heaven at His departure, two men in white robes suddenly stood beside them; who also said: "Men of Gali-11 lee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? This Jesus, Who has ascended from you to the heaven, will even return in the same way as you have seen Him depart to the heaven."

They then returned to Jerusalem 12 from the Mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey. And when they had entered 13 it, they ascended to the upper chamber, where they were staying; that is,
 Peter and John, James and Andrew,
 Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James of Alphaeus and Simon the Zealous, and Judas of James. All these were waiting in 14 full union in prayer together, with women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with His brothers.

Choosing a Successor to Judas.

On such an occasion, Peter standing 15 up among the brethren (who included about one hundred and twenty names), said:

"Men, brothers! it was necessary 16
 that the Scripture should be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit dictated through the mouth of David, concerning Judas, who became the guide to those who arrested Jesus; because he was enu- 17 merated with us, and obtained a share in this service."

18 (He bought a farm, however, with the wages of that wickedness; and, falling there, face downwards, the body burst, and the whole of his viscera fell out. And this was known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; so that in their own language the farm was named, "Aceldama," that is, "Blood-Farm." For it is recorded in the book of Psalms:

LET HIS HOUSE BE DESERTED, AND LET NONE BECOME ITS OCCUPANT;¹

and,

LET ANOTHER TAKE HIS OFFICE.²)

21 * It is therefore necessary that one of those men who have been included in our company during the whole of the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, beginning from the baptism of John until the day in which He was taken up from us, should be one of those who will be a witness with us of His resurrection."

23 They accordingly chose two, Joseph, surnamed Barsabas, who was also called Justus, and Matthias. And, praying, they said: "Lord, You Knower of all hearts, indicate which one of these two You have chosen to receive the position of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas went astray, so as to sink to his proper position." They then gave them their votes; and the vote fell on Matthias. He was accordingly elected to work with the eleven apostles.

Pentecost: The Holy Spirit.

2 During the celebration of the day of Pentecost, they were all harmoniously assembled in one place; when, suddenly, a sound was heard from the sky, similar to that of a very violent tempest-blast, filling the whole house in which they were seated.

3 And they saw distributed to themselves fiery tongues, which settled upon every one of them. And they were all filled with Holy Spirit; and began to speak in foreign languages, as the Spirit endowed them with clear expression.

5 There were then staying in Jerusalem devout Jews from every nation under heaven. And when this sound was heard, the crowd collected and were astonished, because each one heard them speaking his own peculiar dialect. And they were delighted, and wondered, saying, "Why, are not all these speakers Galileans? How, 8 then, do we each hear our own peculiar dialect in which we were born? Parthians, Medes, Elamites, 9 the inhabitants of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt, 10 and the neighbourhood of Libya about Cyrene, as well as Roman visitors, both Jews and converts, Cretans and Arabs, we hear them 11 speaking in our own languages the marvellous acts of God." So they 12 were all enraptured and puzzled, asking one another: "What can this mean?" Others, however, scoffingly 13 declared: "They are simply drunk with sweet wine."

Peter's Discourse.

Peter, however, standing up with 14 the eleven, raised his voice and spoke out to them as follows:

"Judeans, and all men residing in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and mark my assertions; for these 15 are not drunkards, as you imagine, seeing it is now but nine o'clock in the morning. But, on the contrary, this is what was said through the 16 prophet Joel:

AND IT SHALL BE IN THE LATTER 17 DAYS, GOD SAYS,

I WILL POUR OUT MY SPIRIT UPON ALL FLESH;

AND YOUR SONS AND YOUR DAUGHTERS WILL PREACH,

AND YOUR YOUTHS WILL SEE VISIONS;

AND YOUR OLD MEN SHALL DREAM DREAMS.

YES, INDEED, UPON MY SONS AND 18 DAUGHTERS IN THOSE DAYS

WILL I POUR OUT FROM MY SPIRIT; AND THEY SHALL PROCLAIM IT.

AND I WILL SEND MARVELS FROM 19
THE SKY ABOVE,

AND SIGNS FROM THE EARTH BELOW;

BLOOD, AND FIRE, AND SMOKING
VAPOUR.

THE SUN SHALL BE TRANSFORMED 20 TO DARKNESS,

AND THE MOON TO BLOOD,
BEFORE THE COMING OF THE DAY OF THE LORD,

THAT GREAT AND DAZZLING DAY;
AND THEN ALL CALLING ON THE 21

NAME OF THE LORD SHALL BE SAVED.¹

¹ Joel ii. 28-32.

- 22 "Men of Israel! listen to these statements: Jesus the Nazarene, a Man pointed out as from God by powers, and wonders, and signs, which God did through Him amongst you, 23 as you yourselves know; having betrayed, you murdered Him by crucifixion through lawless hands, in accordance with the settled purpose and foreknowledge of God. God, 24 however, has raised Him up, having liberated from the grip of Death; because it was not possible that He should be mastered by him. For David said concerning Him:
- I HAVE AT ALL TIMES SEEN THE LORD IN MY PRESENCE;
FOR HE IS UPON MY RIGHT, SO THAT I MAY NOT STUMBLE;
- 26 MY HEART THEREFORE REJOICED, AND MY TONGUE EXULTED.
MY BODY, MOREOVER, RESTED IN HOPE;
- 27 BECAUSE YOU WILL NOT LEAVE MY SOUL IN THE LAND OF SPIRITS, NOR WILL YOU ALLOW YOUR HOLY ONE TO SEE CORRUPTION.
- 28 YOU HAVE INSTRUCTED ME IN THE PATHS OF LIFE;
YOU HAVE ENRAPTURED ME WITH YOUR OWN PRESENCE.¹
- 29 "Men, brothers! it is necessary to speak to you with freedom about the patriarch David; because he died, and was buried, and his tomb is among us until the present time. Being, however, a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn to him with an oath, that from the fruit of his body One 30 should be seated upon his throne, he, foreseeing, spoke concerning the resurrection of the Messiah, that He was neither left in the land of spirits, nor did His body see corruption.
- 32 "God has raised Him, Jesus, of which we all are witnesses. Having also been exalted to the right hand of God, and having received the promised Holy Spirit from the Father, He has conferred this, which you now see and hear. For David has not ascended into the heavens; but he himself says:
- THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD,
BE SEATED AT MY RIGHT,
UNTIL I MAKE YOUR ENEMIES
A FOOTSTOOL FOR YOUR FEET.²
- 35 "Let the whole house of Israel therefore know most certainly, that God has made this Jesus, Whom you crucified, both Lord and Messiah."

The Effect of the Discourse.

Now on hearing it, they were stung 37 to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Men, brothers, what shall we do?"

But Peter said to them: "Change 38 your minds and be baptized, every one of you, in the Name of Jesus Christ, for a release from your sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. Because the promise is for you, and for your children, and to all afar off, whoever the Lord our God may call." And with many other reasons he persuaded, bore witness, and comforted them, saying: "Save yourselves from this perverse generation!"

Then those who accepted his statement were baptized; and that very day there were added about three thousand souls. And they attended 42 to the teaching of the apostles, and to the fellowship; to the breaking of the bread; and to the prayers.

Dread then took possession of every 43 soul, numerous wonders and signs being performed by means of the apostles. And all the believers were 44 united, and formed an organized community; and selling their estates and 45 possessions, they distributed to all, according to the needs of each. And 46 they assembled daily in harmony in the temple, taking, however, their meals at home; partaking of their food with gladness, combined with humility of heart; praising God, and enjoying 47 the respect of all the people. And the Lord united to them daily those who were for salvation.

Cure of a Lame Man.

Once Peter and John were going up 3 to the temple at the hour of prayer, three o'clock in the afternoon. And 2 a man, who had been lame from his birth, used to be carried, and placed daily at the door of the temple, called Beautiful, to ask charity from those who entered the temple; who seeing 3 Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked them to give him something. But Peter, with John, looking 4 intently upon him, said: "Look at us."

He accordingly paid attention to 5 them, expecting to receive something from them.

Peter, however, said, "Of silver and 6 gold I possess none; but what I have,

7 that I will give you: in the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk!" And seizing him by the right hand, he lifted him up; and his feet and legs were at once strengthened.

8 And rising up, he staggered, and began to walk; and entered the temple with them, walking, leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking
 10 and praising God; and they recognised him to be the same person who had been accustomed to sit begging at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with astonishment mingled with ecstasy over what had happened to him.

Peter's Address to the People.

11 And while he kept fast hold of Peter and John, all the people, being greatly astonished, ran towards them in the portico known as Solomon's.
 12 Then Peter, seeing this, thus addressed
 the people:

"Men of Israel: Why are you surprised at this? or why do you stare at us, as if by our own individual power, or active piety, we had enabled this man to walk?"

13 "The God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our forefathers, has magnified His Child Jesus; Whom, however, you betrayed and rejected in the presence of Pilate, when he had 14 decided to discharge Him. But you refused the Pure and Righteous, and demanded a man, a murderer, to be 15 granted to you; while you murdered the Prince of Life, Whom God has raised from the dead, of which we are 16 witnesses. And by the faith in His Name, this man whom you see and know, His Name has strengthened;
 yes, the faith which is through Him,
 has given to him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

17 "And now, brothers, I know that you did it through ignorance, as did 18 also your rulers; but what God foretold through the mouth of all the prophets concerning His Suffering
 Messiah, has thus been accomplished.
 19 Change your minds, however, and turn back towards that which can blot out your sins: so that a period of refreshing may come from the presence of the 20 Lord; and that He may send to you the pre-appointed Messiah, Jesus:
 21 Who must take possession of the heaven until the accomplishment of all that God has spoken through the mouth of His holy prophets for ages past. Moses, indeed, said: YOUR 22

 LORD GOD WILL RAISE UP FOR YOU,
 FROM AMONG YOUR BROTHERS, A PROPHET LIKE ME; LISTEN TO HIM
 IN ALL THAT HE MAY SAY TO YOU.
 AND IT SHALL BE THAT EVERY SOUL 23
 THAT WILL NOT LISTEN TO THAT PROPHET, SHALL BE EXPELLED
 FROM AMONG THE PEOPLE.¹ And 24
 all the prophets, also, from Samuel, and those that succeeded, as many, indeed, as have spoken, have also promised these days. You are the 25 sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God executed with our forefathers, saying to Abraham:
 AND BY YOUR HEIR SHALL ALL THE FAMILIES OF THE EARTH BE BLESSED.² God, having raised up 26
 His Son, has first sent Him to you, benefiting you, with the object of turning you all from your wickedness."

The Apostles Arrested.

But while they were speaking to 4
 the people, the priests, and the commander of the temple, and the Sadducees, made their appearance; being 2 very indignant because they were teaching the people, and announcing in Jesus the resurrection from the dead. They accordingly arrested 3 them, and took them into custody until the following morning; for it was now evening. But many of the 4 hearers believed the Message; and their number increased to about five thousand.

Then on the following day, they 5 collected at Jerusalem their own magistrates, elders, and professors, 6 and Annas the High Priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, together with as many as were relatives of the High Priest; and 7 placing them in the centre, they inquired: "By the authority of what power, or by the appointment of whose Name, have you done this?"

Peter's Address to the Council.

Then Peter, full of Holy Spirit, 8 answered them:

"Princes of the people, and elders, since we are to-day examined con- 9 cerning a benefit to a feeble man, by what means he has been cured, let it 10 be known to you, and to all the people

- of Israel, that by the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth—Whom you crucified, Whom God raised from the dead—by means of Him, this man now stands quite well before you.
- 11 This Man is the Stone despised by you, the Builders, which has become the Chief Keystone.¹
- 12 And there is salvation by no other; for there is not another name under heaven given among men, by which we can be saved."
- 13 Perceiving then the unfettered eloquence of Peter and John, and understanding that they were common, illiterate men, they were much astonished; and recollected that they had been with Jesus. But seeing the man who had been cured standing with them, they could not contradict it. Ordering them, therefore, to leave the council, they debated among themselves, saying: "What shall we do to these men? for a strange affair has undoubtedly occurred through them, which is perfectly clear to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and we cannot deny it. But so that it spread no further through the nation, let us terrify them with threats to speak no more to any man in this Name."
- 18 Then summoning them into their presence, they imperatively forbade them either to converse in any way, or teach about the name of Jesus.
- 19 Peter and John, replying to them, however, said:
- "Decide whether it is right in the presence of God to listen to you rather than to God. Because we have no power to do otherwise than tell what we have seen and heard."
- 21 Accordingly, finding no means of securing a conviction against them, they threatened them further and discharged them, on account of the people, because all the people praised God for what had been done. For the man upon whom the evidence of curing had been effected was upwards of forty years of age.

The Apostles Rejoicing in Persecution.

- 23 Being then dismissed, they returned to their own company, and reported everything that the chief priest and elders had said to them. And when they heard it, they sang in unison to God, and said:

"Almighty, You Who have made the heaven, the earth, and the sea, and all that is in them; Who by the Holy Spirit, through the mouth of our forefather David, Your servant, said:

WHY RAGE THE HEATHEN SO,
AND THE PEOPLE PLOT IN VAIN?
THE KINGS OF THE EARTH RANGE
THEMSELVES FOR ATTACK, AND THE JUDGES ARE COMBINED
TOGETHER

AGAINST THE LORD, AND AGAINST

For of a truth both Herod and Pilate plotted in this city against Your holy Son Jesus, Whom You had consecrated, inviting the heathen and people of Israel to effect what Your hand and counsel had decided should be done. And now, Lord, observe their threats; and grant Your servants full freedom to declare Your message; while You extend Your hand for restoring health, with signs and wonders to be done through the Name of Your holy Child Jesus!"

And while they prayed, the place in which they were assembled was shaken; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and spoke out the message of God with freedom.

Brotherly Love Exemplified.

But the crowd of the believers were one, heart and soul; and no one who possessed property claimed it as exclusively his own; but it was for the use of all. And the apostles, with much vigour, propagated the evidence of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. And goodwill reigned supreme among them; because none among them were in poverty. For some who were possessors of lands or houses sold them; and, bringing the price of the sales, and presenting the same at the feet of the apostles, a distribution was made to each according to his need.

For Joseph, who was surnamed by the apostles Barnabas (which, when translated, means Son of Consolation), a Levite, and a native of Cyprus, possessing an estate of his own, sold it; and bringing the money, he placed it at the disposal of the apostles.

Ananias and Sapphira.

- 8 Then a man named Ananias, with 2 his wife Sapphira, sold an estate, and he deducted part of the price, with the knowledge of his wife; and, bringing a part, presented it at the feet of the apostles.
- 3 But Peter said: "Ananias, why has Satan filled your heart, that you should attempt to deceive the Holy Spirit, and to deduct a part of the 4 price of the farm? While still remaining, was it not your own? and even when it was sold, was it not under your own control? Why then have you admitted this matter into your heart? You have not lied to men, but to God."
- 5 Ananias, on hearing these words, fell down and expired; and great fear took possession of all those who heard it. And the young men, getting up, 6 swathed the body; and, carrying it out, they buried it.
- 7 Then, after an interval of about three hours, his wife, ignorant of what had occurred, came in. And Peter said to her: "Tell me now, did you sell the farm for so much?"
- "Yes, for so much," was her reply.
- 9 Peter then said to her, "How is it that you have conspired together to try the Spirit of the Lord? The feet of those who have been burying your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out."
- 10 And she immediately fell down at his feet, and expired; and the youths, on entering, found her dead; and,
 carrying her out, they buried her by her husband.
- 11 And great terror came upon the whole church, and upon all who heard these facts.

Healing by the Apostles.

- 12 But through the hands of the apostles numerous startling evidences were produced among the people. And they agreed to meet in Solomon's 13 portico; but of the disreputable, none dared to join them. Yet the people 14 exalted them; while additional crowds of believers, including both men and women, attached themselves to the 15 Lord: so that they even carried the sick into the streets, laying them upon couches and rugs, in the hope that, as Peter passed, his shadow might at least fall upon some of them.
- 16 And a crowd collected from the towns surrounding Jerusalem, also brought sick people, and those troubled with foul spirits, all of whom were cured.

Imprisonment of the Apostles.

So the High Priest, and all his 17 supporters, who were of the heresy of the Sadducees, being mad with rage, arose, arrested the apostles, and 18 put them in the common prison.

But a messenger of the Lord opened 19 the prison doors during the night, and leading them out, said: "Go, take 20 your stand in the temple, and declare to the people all the doctrines of this Life."

On hearing this, they accordingly 21 went about daybreak into the temple, and taught. But the High Priest came, with his supporters, and assembling the senate, together with the full council of the sons of Israel, they sent to the prison to have them brought up. When, however, the 22 officers arrived, they did not find them in the prison; and returning, they reported, saying, "We found the 23 prison shut, and quite secure, with the guard stationed at the doors; but on opening, we found no one inside."

The Apostles and their Judges.

When the commander of the temple 24 and the chief priests heard these facts, they were much perplexed concerning them, as to what they could mean.

A man, however, came to them 25 reporting: "Why, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple teaching the people."

Then the commander going with the 26 officers, brought them, but without violence; for they dreaded the people, fearing that they should be stoned.
 And when they had brought them, 27
 they placed them before the senate;
 and the High Priest examined them, saying: "We absolutely prohibited 28
 you from teaching about this Name;
 and yet you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and you wish to bring upon us the blood of this Man."

A Bold Defence.

But Peter and the apostles, answer- 29
 ing, said:

"God ought to be obeyed rather than men. The God of our fore- 30 fathers raised up Jesus, Whom you murdered by hanging upon a tree.

31 God has exalted Him to His own right hand, to be Prince and Saviour, to give a change of mind to Israel, and release from sins. And we are witnesses of these statements; also the Holy Spirit, Whom God has given to those obeying Him."

Gamaliel's Counsel.

33 When they heard this, however, they were infuriated, and were deciding to have them executed. But one member of the senate, named Gamaliel, a Pharisee, and a doctor of the law—who was held in high esteem among all the people—stood up and asked for the men to be sent out for a short time. He then addressed them: "Men of Israel, now take care of yourselves in regard to what you intend to do to these men. For before our time, Theudas rose up, asserting himself to be somebody; with whom a number of about four hundred allied themselves: who, however, were slaughtered, and all who listened to him were scattered, and brought to nothing. After this, Judas the Galilean rose up during the time of the census, and led people after him: he was destroyed; and as many as listened to him were dispersed. Now let me tell you, Refrain from these men, and release them. Because if this doctrine or this work should be from men, it will be wrecked; but if it is from God, you will not be able to crush it; and perhaps you may find yourselves the opponents of God."

The Apostles Flogged.

40 They were accordingly persuaded by him; and calling the apostles forward, they flogged them, and forbade them to speak about the name of Jesus, and allowed them to go.

41 They therefore took their departure from the presence of the senate, delighted that they were considered worthy to be exposed to infamy for the sake of that Name. Yet every day, both in the temple and at home, they never ceased teaching and declaring the good news that Jesus is the Messiah.

The Election of Deacons.

6 But about this time, when the number of the disciples kept increasing, a complaint came from the Hellenists (or Grecian Jews) against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the distribution of relief. The twelve then convened the body of the disciples, and said, "It is not desirable that we should have to neglect the Divine teaching, in order to attend to mere money matters; therefore, brothers, choose from 3 among yourselves seven men of attested character, full of spirit and wisdom, whom we may appoint to look after this business. But we will 4 ourselves constantly attend to prayer, and to the office of teaching."

And the suggestion pleased the 5 whole assembly; and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of holy spirit; Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas and Nicolas, a convert from Antioch, whom 6 they presented to the apostles; and having prayed, they laid their hands upon them.

And the message of God extended; 7 and in Jerusalem the number of disciples greatly increased; besides which, very many of the priests were subdued to the faith.

Arrest of Stephen.

Stephen, especially, full of active 8 benevolence, produced great and wonderful evidences for the people. Some 9 of those, however, belonging to the synagogue known as that of the Libertinites, as well as of the Cyrenians, Alexandrians, together with some from Cilicia and Asia Minor, debated with Stephen. But they 10 were not able to withstand the intelligence and the spirit with which he spoke. They accordingly bribed 11 men to say, "We have heard him utter slanderous statements against both Moses and God."

And they incited the people, the 12 elders, and the professors. And, coming upon him, they arrested him and brought him before the senate; 13 and produced false witnesses asserting, "This man never ceases making statements against this Sacred Place and the Law; for we have heard him 14 say that this Jesus the Nazarene will demolish this Place, and change the constitution which has been transmitted to us from Moses."

Then all who were seated in the 15 senate, looking intently upon him, saw that his face had the appearance of the face of an angel.

"Is this really so?" asked the High 7 Priest.

Stephen's Defence.

- 2 In reply, he said: "Men, brothers and fathers, listen! The God of Majesty appeared to our forefather Abraham, while he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Charran; and said to him, DEPART FROM YOUR OWN COUNTRY, AND FROM YOUR RELATIVES, AND COME INTO A COUNTRY WHICH I WILL SHOW YOU.¹
- 4 "Leaving, therefore, the land of the Chaldeans, he resided in Charran; and from there, after the death of his father, he removed into this country in which you are now dwelling. But He gave him no estate in it; no, not even the breadth of a foot; yet He had promised to give it into his possession, and to his descendants after him, although he was as yet childless.
- 6 God, however, spoke thus: That HIS RACE SHOULD LODGE IN A FOREIGN COUNTRY, AND THEY WILL ENSLAVE AND OPPRESS IT FOUR HUNDRED YEARS.² AND THE NATION BY WHICH THEY ARE ENSLAVED, said God, I WILL JUDGE; AND AFTER THAT THEY SHALL COME OUT AND WORSHIP ME IN THIS PLACE.³ And He gave him a covenant by circumcision. And Isaac being afterwards born, he circumcised him the eighth day; then Isaac, Jacob; and Jacob the twelve patriarchs. But the patriarchs, hating Joseph, sold him into Egypt: yet God was with him, and rescued him from all his troubles, and gave him favour and wisdom in the presence of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and he appointed him prime minister over Egypt and all his household.
- 11 "But a famine came upon the whole land of Egypt and Canaan, and great distress; and our forefathers could find no food. But Jacob, on learning that there was wheat in Egypt, sent our forefathers there a first time. And during a second visit Joseph made himself known to his brothers; and Pharaoh then became acquainted with Joseph's race.
- 14 "Joseph then sent an invitation to his father Jacob, and to all his relatives, who were seventy-five persons. Jacob accordingly went down to Egypt, where he died, as well as our forefathers; and they removed him to Sychem, and placed in the tomb which Abraham had purchased for a sum of money from the sons of Emmor of Sychem. But when the time approached which God had promised to Abraham, the people increased and multiplied in Egypt, until the time that a FOREIGN KING CONQUERED EGYPT, WHO KNEW NOTHING OF JOSEPH.¹ This man's policy was to exterminate our race. He outraged our fathers, by making them cast out their infants, with the object that our race might not be reproduced.

"Then it was that Moses was born, and was divinely fair. For three months he was nursed in his father's house; and on being thrown out, the daughter of Pharaoh took him, and adopted him as her own son. Moses was thus educated in all the philosophy of the Egyptians; and he was powerful in his speech and actions. But when he had attained the age of forty years, it came into his heart to interest himself in his brothers, the sons of Israel. And seeing one assaulted, he defended him, striking the Egyptian assailant by way of punishment; because he concluded that his brothers would understand that God would grant them deliverance by means of his hand; but they did not understand it. Some time after, he saw them quarrelling, and attempted to bring them to peace, remarking, MEN, YOU ARE BROTHERS! WHY DO YOU INJURE EACH OTHER? But the aggressor of his neighbour retorted, WHO APPOINTED YOU A GOVERNOR AND A JUDGE OVER US? DO YOU MEAN TO MURDER ME, IN THE WAY YOU KILLED THE EGYPTIAN THE OTHER DAY?² At this remark Moses took to flight, and became a resident in the land of Midian, where two sons were born to him. Then when forty years had elapsed, an angel appeared to him in the desert of Sinai, in the flame of a burning bush. When Moses saw the appearance, he wondered at the sight; and as he approached to examine it, there came a commanding voice, I AM THE GOD OF YOUR FOREFATHERS, THE GOD OF ABRAHAM, OF ISAAC, AND OF JACOB.³ Then Moses, becoming terrified, dare not examine it. But the Lord said to him, UNFASTEN THE SHOES FROM YOUR FEET; FOR THE SPOT UPON WHICH YOU STAND

- 34 IS HOLY GROUND. HAVING LOOKED, I HAVE SEEN THE OPPRESSION OF MY PEOPLE NOW IN EGYPT; AND HAVING HEARD THEIR GROANING, I HAVE COME DOWN TO LEAD THEM OUT. AND NOW COME, I WILL SEND YOU TO EGYPT.¹
- 35 "This very Moses, whom they rejected—saying, WHO CONSTITUTED YOU A GOVERNOR AND JUDGE?—God sent him as a governor and deliverer by the hand of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.
- 36 This man led them out, having produced terrors and evidences in the land of Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the desert for forty years.
- 37 "This is the Moses who said to the sons of Israel, GOD WILL RAISE UP A PROPHET FROM AMONG YOUR
- 38 BROTHERS, LIKE MYSELF.² He was the ambassador to the congregation in the desert, with the angel who spoke to him, and to our ancestors at the Mount Sinai, who received living
- 39 messages to transmit to us. Our forefathers, however, were unwilling to be obedient to him; on the contrary, they revolted, and in their
- 40 hearts turned back to Egypt, saying to Aaron, MAKE FOR US GODS TO PRECEDE US; FOR AS FOR THIS FELLOW MOSES, WHO BROUGHT US FROM THE LAND OF EGYPT, WE DO NOT KNOW WHAT HAS BECOME OF
- 41 HIM!³ And in those days they made a calf; and bringing out sacrifice to this idol, they rejoiced over their own
- 42 handiwork. But God turned Himself from them, abandoning them to worship the army of the sky; as it is written in the book of the prophets:
- DID YOU OFFER TO ME VICTIMS AND SACRIFICES
FORTY YEARS IN THE DESERT, O HOUSE OF ISRAEL?
- 43 YES, AND YOU ERECTED THE TENT OF MOLOCH,
AND OF YOUR GOD, THE STAR REMPHAN—
THOSE IMAGES WHICH YOU MADE FOR YOURSELVES TO WORSHIP:
THEREFORE I WILL TRANSPORT YOU BEYOND DAMASCUS.⁴
- 44 "The tent of the witness, however, was with our forefathers in the desert, just as He Who spoke to Moses directed it to be made according to
- 45 the model which he had seen; which also our forefathers, in their turn, brought in with Joshua, on the defeat of the heathen, whom God drove out from the presence of our forefathers, until the time of David; who found 45 favour before God, and prayed to find a dwelling for the God of Jacob. 47 Solomon, however, built a house for Him; although the Highest dwells 48 not in hand-made structures; as indeed the prophet says:

THE HEAVEN IS MY THRONE, 49
AND THE EARTH A REST FOR MY FEET:

WHAT HOUSE CAN YOU BUILD FOR ME? SAYS THE LORD, OR WHAT IS THE PLACE OF MY REST?

HAS NOT MY OWN HAND MADE 50
ALL THESE?¹

"You stiff-necked and uncircum- 51 cised heathen in heart and ears! you are always in opposition to the Holy Spirit! As your forefathers were, so are you. Which of the prophets have 52 not your forefathers persecuted? and they murdered those who foretold the coming of the Just One: of Whom you have now yourselves become the betrayers and murderers; even you, 53 who received the law by means of the agency of angels, and have not observed it"—

The Murder of Stephen.

Now, on hearing this, which they were cut 54 to the heart, and they ground their teeth at him. But, possessing fulness 55 of Holy Spirit, looking up into the heaven, he saw a Divine Majesty, with Jesus standing at the right of God; and said, "Look! I see the heavens 56 open, and the Son of Man standing at the right of God!"

Then, shrieking out with a great 57 voice, they stopped their ears, and rushed in a mass upon him; and, 58 casting him out of the city, they stoned him. And the witnesses deposited their clothes at the feet of a Noble named Saul. And they stoned 59 Stephen, who prayed, saying, "Lord Jesus, accept my spirit!" Then, 60 kneeling, he cried aloud, "Lord, weigh not this sin to them." And so saying, he fell asleep. And Saul 8 concurred in his murder.

The First Missionaries.

Just then a violent persecution broke out against the assembly which existed at Jerusalem; and, with the exception of the apostles, they were all scattered through the villages of 2 Judea and Samaria. But some pious men took up the body of Stephen, and the mourning over him was great. 3 Saul, however, played havoc with the church; searching house by house he dragged out both men and 4 women, and imprisoned them. Those, therefore, who were scattered, went about preaching the good news of the Message.

Philip in Samaria.

5 Philip, arriving thus at a town of the Samaritans, proclaimed the 6 Messiah to them. Now the crowd, unanimously relying upon the things spoken by Philip, united with him, when they heard them and saw the evidences which he produced. For 7 from many of those possessed he expelled foul spirits, yelling with a loud voice; and many who were paralyzed 8 and lame were made well. And there was great rejoicing in that town.

Simon the Magician.

9 But a man named Simon had been professing magic in the town, and startled the people of Samaria, holding himself out to be something 10 extraordinary: to whom they all paid regard, from the least to the greatest, remarking, "This man is the power of God Who is called the Great." 11 And they relied upon him, owing to the length of time he had charmed them with his sciences. 12 But when they believed Philip, announcing the good news concerning the Kingdom of God, and of the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women 13 were baptized—even Simon himself also believed; and, having been baptized, he became an attendant on Philip, and was in ecstasy on seeing the powerful evidences which were produced. 14 When the apostles who were at Jerusalem learned that the Samaritans had accepted the message of God, they sent to them Peter and 15 John: who, going down, prayed for them, in order that they might receive 16 Holy Spirit; for as yet He had alighted upon none of them; they had only been baptized into the name 17 of the Lord Jesus. They then placed their hands upon them, and they received Holy Spirit.

And when Simon observed that 18 the Spirit was transmitted through the agency of the imposition of the hands of the apostles, he proffered them money, saying, "Grant this 19 power also to me, so that if I place my hands upon any one, he may receive Holy Spirit."

But Peter replying to him, said: 20 "May your wealth go with you to perdition, because you have imagined that the gift of God can be bought with money. There is no part nor 21 lot in this message for you; for your heart is not upright in the presence of God. Change your mind, therefore, 22 from this wickedness; and pray the Lord, if, perhaps, He will remove from you the intention of your heart. For I 23 see that you are in the gall of bitterness, and the bonds of iniquity!"

"Pray you to the Lord for me," 24 said Simon in reply, "so that nothing of what you have stated may come upon me."

Then when they had given evidence, and delivered the message of the Lord, they returned towards Jerusalem, preaching the good news in many of the Samaritan villages.

The Ethiopian Chamberlain.

But an angel of the Lord spoke to 26 Philip, saying, "Rise up, and go towards the south, upon the road descending from Jerusalem to Gaza; which is deserted." And, having 27 arisen, he went, and there met a man, an Ethiopian, a chamberlain of influence under Candacē, the queen of Ethiopia, who was also chancellor of her treasury: who had come to worship at Jerusalem, and was returning, 28 seated in his carriage, reading out the prophet Isaiah.

The Spirit then said to Philip, "Go 29 forward, and join yourself to this man's carriage." Philip accordingly 30 running up heard him reading Isaiah the prophet; and asked, "Do you at all understand what you are reading?"

But he said, "How is it possible 31 that I should, unless some one can explain it to me?" And he requested Philip to come up and sit with him.

Now the passage of Scripture which 32 he was reading was this:

HE WAS LED LIKE A SHEEP TO SLAUGHTER;
AND AS A LAMB BEFORE ITS SHEARERS IS DUMB,
SO HE OPENED NOT HIS MOUTH |

33 IN HIS GENTLENESS HE WAS DEPRIVED OF HIS TRIAL; WHO CAN EXPLAIN HIS GENERATION?

BECAUSE IT CUT HIM OFF FROM THE LAND OF THE LIVING.¹

34 Addressing Philip, the chamberlain then said, "I wish you would tell me about whom the prophet says this: about himself, or about some one else?"

35 Philip then opened his mouth, and beginning from that Scripture, told him the good news concerning Jesus.

36 And as they went along the road, they came to a brook; when the chamberlain observed, "See, water! what hinders me from being baptized?"

38 He then ordered the carriage to be stopped: and both Philip and the chamberlain stepped down into the water; and he baptized him. When they came up out of the brook, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip suddenly away; and the chamberlain saw him no more, for he proceeded on his way rejoicing.

40 Philip, however, was found at Azotus; and travelling through all the towns, he evangelized until he arrived at Caesarea.

The Conversion of Saul.

9 Meanwhile, Saul, still breathing threatenings and murder against the disciples of the Lord, applying to the

2 High Priest, demanded from him letters addressed to the synagogues of Damascus, ordering that if any should be found of the Way,² whether men or women, he should bring them under arrest to Jerusalem. But while he travelled, arriving near Damascus, a light from heaven suddenly flashed around him; and falling upon the ground, he heard a voice asking him, "Saul! Saul! why do you persecute Me?"

5 And he replied: "Who are you, Sir?"

"I am Jesus, Whom you persecute," was the response; "but rise up, and go into the town, and it shall be told you what you must do."

7 The men accompanying him, however, were stunned, hearing the voice indeed, but seeing no one. Saul then arose from the ground; but on opening his eyes, he could see nothing. They accordingly, leading him, entered into Damascus. And for three days he was without sight, and did neither eat nor drink.

The Vision of Ananias.

There was a disciple at Damascus, 10 named Ananias; and the Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias!"

"I am here, Lord," was his reply.

The Lord then said to him, "Rise 11 up, and go into the street called Straight, and inquire at the house of Judah for a man named Saul, a Tarsian; for he is now praying. And in 12 a vision he has seen a man named Ananias entering and laying hands upon him, in order that he may recover his eyesight."

Ananias answered, "Lord, I have 13 heard from many people about this man, how much injury he has done to Your holy ones at Jerusalem; and 14 here he is commissioned by the chief priests to apprehend all calling upon Your Name."

The Lord said to him, "Go, because 15 this man is an instrument specially chosen by Myself, to bear My Name in the presence of both the heathen and kings, as well as the sons of Israel; for I will show him what he 16 must endure for the sake of My Name."

Ananias accordingly went; and entering the house, he placed his hands upon him, and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, Who appeared to you during your journey, has sent me, so that you may recover your eyesight, and be endowed with Holy Spirit." And something like scales falling from 18 his eyes, he immediately saw again. Then getting up, he was baptized; and partaking of food, he was 19 strengthened.

Saul at Damascus.

And for some time afterwards he remained with the disciples in Damascus; and at once in the synagogues 20 he proclaimed Jesus, that He is the Son of God. But all who heard him were astonished, and exclaimed, "Is not this the very man who devastated 21 those who called upon this Name in Jerusalem; and who came here specially for the purpose of apprehending them, and bringing them before the chief priests?"

² NOTE.—"The Way" was the first name by which the Christian Faith was distinguished, and St. Paul so calls it even in his latest epistles.—F. F.

22 But Saul the more energetically overpowered and refuted the Judeans inhabiting Damascus, proving that He was the Messiah.

Judeans Conspire to Murder Saul.

23 After a considerable time had elapsed, however, the Judeans conspired to murder him; but their plot was made known to Saul. They even watched the gates day and night, to murder him. But his disciples, conveying him by night, lowered him from the wall in a hamper.

26 Afterwards, when he visited Jerusalem, he tried to associate himself with the disciples; but they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was himself a disciple. Barnabas, however, accepting him, introduced him to the apostles, and explained to them how he had seen the Lord during the journey; and how He had spoken to him; and how at Damascus he had spoken boldly for the Name of Jesus. And he went about in their company in Jerusalem, and spoke eloquently in the Name of the Lord. He also spoke and debated with the Grecian Jews; but they conspired to murder him. When, however, the brethren became aware of it, they took him down to Cæsarea, and sent him off to Tarsus.

31 The church through the whole of Judea, Galilee, and Samaria, accordingly had rest, being built up; and, progressing in the reverence of the Lord, they were being increased through the consolation of the Holy Spirit.

Peter at Lydda.

32 It now occurred that Peter, journeying through all, also came down to the holy residing at Lydda; and there he found a man, named Æneas, who, on account of paralysis, had been bedridden for eight years. And Peter, addressing him, said, "Æneas, Jesus the Messiah cures you! Rise up and straighten yourself." And he stood up straight. And all the inhabitants of Lydda and Sharon knew him, and turned to the Lord.

Peter at Joppa.

36 There was at Joppa a female disciple, named Tabitha,¹ which, when translated, means Dorcas; and she was conspicuous for her works of goodness and benevolence which she did. But it happened about that time that she fell sick, and died; and having washed the body, they placed it in an upper chamber. Lydda being near to Joppa, however, the disciples, learning that Peter was there, dispatched two men to him, with the message, "Come to us without delay."

Peter accordingly arose, and accompanied them. And on arrival, they took him to the upper chamber, where the widows stood round weeping; and showed him the jackets and cloaks which Dorcas had made while she was with them. Peter, however, put them all out; and having knelt, he prayed, and turning to the body, he said, "Tabitha, rise up!"

And she opened her eyes; but seeing Peter, she fell backwards. But giving her a hand, he assisted her up; and calling the holy ones and widows, he presented her to them alive. And it became known through the whole of Joppa; and many believed on the Lord. He afterwards remained in Joppa for a considerable time with Simon, a tanner.

Peter and Cornelius.

At Cæsarea there was a man named Cornelius, a captain of the detachment called the Italian, who was pious and God-fearing with all his household, giving many gifts to many people, and in all things seeking God. He saw distinctly in a vision about three o'clock in the afternoon, an angel of God coming towards him, and addressing him, "Cornelius!"

Gazing at him earnestly, and becoming terrified, he asked, "What is it, Sir?"

"Your prayers and your acts of charity have ascended as a memorial to the presence of God," was the reply; "so now send men to Joppa, and bring back Simon, who is surnamed Peter; he lodges with Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea-side."

Accordingly, as soon as the angel who had spoken to him had taken his departure, he summoned two of the domestics as well as a pious soldier from among his officers; and having explained everything to them, he dispatched them to Joppa.

Now on the following day, while they were travelling and approaching the town, Peter ascended the balcony

10 for prayer, about noon; and he became very hungry, and longed to taste something. While they were preparing, however, he fell into an ecstatic reverie; and he saw the sky open, and something descending from it, resembling a large sheet, supported at the four corners, and lowered to the ground; in which were all kinds of quadrupeds, reptiles, and birds of the sky. And a voice came to him, "Arise, Peter, sacrifice and eat."
 14 "By no means, Sir," replied Peter, "for I have never eaten anything vile and unclean."
 15 A voice addressed him a second time, "What God has purified, never treat as defiled!"
 16 This occurred three times; and the article was then taken up into the sky.
 17 While Peter was pondering in himself what the vision which he had seen might mean, the men sent by Cornelius, having found out the house of Simon, then stood at the gate; and, calling, they inquired whether Simon, surnamed Peter, lodged there.
 19 Then while Peter was reflecting about the vision, the Spirit said to him, "Three men are now inquiring for you; but rise up, descend, and accompany them unhesitatingly; because I have sent them."
 21 Peter accordingly went down to the men, and said, "I am the man you want; what is the object of your coming?"
 22 They answered, "Cornelius, a captain, a righteous and God-fearing man, whose character is attested by the whole of the Jewish people, has been instructed by a holy angel to bring you into his house, and to listen to instructions from you."
 23 He accordingly invited them in, and entertained them. Then, on the following morning, arising, he went with them, accompanied by some of the disciples from Joppa; and the day after they arrived at Cæsarea. And Cornelius, awaiting them, had collected his relatives and more intimate friends.
 25 Then as Peter was entering, Cornelius met him, and showed him respect by bowing at his feet. Peter raised him, however, saying, "Stand up; I am a man like yourself." And, conversing with him, he went in and found a considerable assemblage; and he said to them: "You know quite well how unusual it is for a Jewish man to join or associate with a foreigner. God has taught me, however, to regard no man as common or defiled. And therefore I have come without scruple on being sent for; I may now be allowed to ask for what reason you have brought me?"

"Four days ago from this time," replied Cornelius, "I was observing the hour of prayer, at three o'clock in the afternoon, in my house; when suddenly a man in lustrous robes stood before me, and said, 'Cornelius, your prayers have been heard, and your almsgivings are remembered in the presence of God. Send, therefore, to Joppa, and invite here Simon, who is surnamed Peter; he lodges in the house of Simon, a tanner, by the seaside.' This is the reason why I sent for you; and you have been very kind in coming. Now we are all here present before God, to learn from you all that has been entrusted to you by the Lord."

Peter then opened his mouth and said: "Of a truth I perceive that God is not a flatterer; but, on the contrary, in every nation, whoever reverences Him and practises righteousness, is acceptable to Him. The message which He sent to the sons of Israel—promising them the good news of peace through Jesus Christ, Who is Lord of all. You know the message of Jesus from Nazareth, which came through all Judea, beginning from Galilee, after the baptism which was proclaimed by John—when God had endowed Him with Holy Spirit and with power. He went about doing good, and curing all who were overpowered by the Devil; because God was with Him. And we are witnesses of all that He did, both in the villages of the Judeans, and in Jerusalem; Whom, however, they murdered by hanging Him upon a tree. But God raised Him the third day, and granted Him to become visible—not indeed to all the people; but to witnesses previously appointed by God, to ourselves, who ate together and drank together with Him after His resurrection from the dead. And He commanded us to proclaim it to the people, and to testify that He is the One appointed under God, Judge of both living and dead. All the prophets are witnesses to this, that every believer in Him shall receive release from sins through His Name."

- 44 Even while Peter was delivering these statements, the Holy Spirit fell upon all those who hearkened to the message; and the circumcised believers, who had accompanied Peter, were astonished that the gift of the Holy Spirit had also been poured out upon the Gentiles; for they heard them speaking languages, and exalting God.
- 47 Peter then asked, "Can any one prohibit the water for these to be baptized, since they have received the Holy Spirit as well as ourselves?"
- 48 He then ordered them to be baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ. And they asked him to stay with them for a few days.

Peter's Defence of Gentile Believers.

- 11 However, the apostles and brothers who were resident in Judea, learned that the heathen had received the message of God. And when Peter went up to Jerusalem, those from the circumcision criticised him, remarking, "Why do you associate with uncircumcised men, and even eat with them?"
- 4 But Peter began explaining it to them, step by step, saying, "I was in the town of Joppa praying; and entranced, I saw in a vision something like a large sheet carried by the four corners, descending from the sky, and coming near to myself. On which gazing, I looked carefully, and saw the quadrupeds of the earth, and the wild beasts, and the reptiles, and the birds of the sky. And then I heard a voice saying to me, 'Arise, Peter; sacrifice and eat!' But I replied, 'By no means, Sir; for never has anything common or impure entered my mouth.' A voice out of the sky then addressed me the second time, 'What God has purified is not defiled to you.' This occurred three times; and all were drawn up again into the sky. And at that moment, three men, sent to me from Cæsarea, approached the house where we were. The Spirit then instructed me to accompany them without the least hesitation. These six brothers also accompanied me; and entering the man's house, he related to us how he had seen the angel standing in his house, and saying, 'Send to Joppa, and fetch Simon, surnamed Peter, who will explain to you the means by which you, as well as all your family, may be saved!' And just as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them in the same way as upon us at the beginning. Then I remembered the declaration of the Lord, how He said, 'John indeed baptized with water; but you shall be baptized in Holy Spirit.'¹ If then God has granted the same gift also to them as to ourselves, when they believed upon the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I should be able to hinder God?"

When they heard this, they were silent, and thanked God, remarking, "Then God has indeed also given to the Gentiles conversion into life."

Missionary Enterprise.

Meantime those dispersed by the distress that arose on account of Stephen, traversed as far as Phœnicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, delivering the message to none but Jews only. But there were some of them, men of Cyprus, and Cyrenians, who, arriving at Antioch, spoke also to the Greeks, proclaiming the good news of the Lord Jesus. And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a large number, having believed, turned to the Lord.

The Assembly at Antioch.

And the report concerning them reached the ears of the assembly in Jerusalem. And they commissioned Barnabas to proceed to Antioch; who, on arrival, was delighted to witness the gift of God, and consoled and encouraged all their hearts to adhere to the Lord; for he was a genial man, full of the Holy Spirit and faith; and a considerable number were added to the Lord. He then proceeded to Tarsus, to search for Saul; and having found him, he took him to Antioch. So it came about that they were working together in that assembly for a whole year, and instructed a large number of people; the disciples, too, at Antioch first called themselves Christians.

At this time, some preachers came down from Jerusalem to Antioch; and one of them, named Agabus, standing up, announced, through the influence of the Spirit, that a severe famine would come over all the empire; which, indeed, did 29 occur under Claudius. The disciples then determined, according to their individual ability, to send assistance 30 to their brothers living in Judea; this they did, sending it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul

Martyrdom of James.

12 About that time king Herod¹ arrested some of those connected with 2 the assembly, to maltreat them; and James the brother of John he killed with a sword.

Peter's Deliberation from Prison.

3 And seeing that this pleased the Judeans, he also set about the apprehension of Peter. And it was then 4 the time of unfermented bread. So having arrested him, he placed him in prison with a guard of four bands of soldiers, intending after the Passover 5 to bring him out to the people. Peter was therefore confined in prison; but incessant prayer was offered to God 6 on his behalf by the assembly. When, however, Herod was about to produce him to the people, Peter was that very night sleeping in double chains between two soldiers, with a guard 7 watching the prison door; when suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared beside him, and the cell was lit up.
 And touching Peter on the side, he roused him, saying, "Arise quickly"; whereupon the chains fell from his 8 hands. The angel then said, "Clothe yourself, and put on your shoes." Having done so, he further said to him, "Throw your cloak around you, 9 and follow me." And going out, he followed. Yet he did not realize the actuality of what was done by the angel; but supposed that he had 10 seen a vision. Then passing the first and second guard, they came to the iron gate leading to the city, which opened to them of its own accord; and going out, they passed along one street, when, of a sudden,
 the angel vanished from his presence.

11 Peter then coming to himself, remarked, "Now I know of a certainty that the Lord has sent His angel, and has delivered me from the hand of Herod, as well as from all the expectation of the Judean people."

12 Then on reflection, he proceeded to the house of Mary, the Mother of John, surnamed Mark; where many 13 were assembled, and were praying.

And when he knocked at the hall door, a little girl named Rhoda came to listen. Recognising Peter's voice, 14 however, she did not in her delight open the door; but running back, reported that Peter was standing at the gate.

"You are mad!" they exclaimed 15
 in reply to her; but she confidently asserted that it was so. They then said, "It is his angel." But Peter 16 continued knocking; and when they had opened, they saw him, and were astonished.

Motioning to them with the hand 17 to be silent, he explained to them how the Lord had rescued him from the prison, adding, "Report this to James, and to the brothers." And taking his departure, he went to another place.

And when the morning came, there 18 was not a little consternation among the soldiers as to what had become of Peter. But Herod, when he had 19 himself searched for him in vain, examined the guards, and ordered them to be led out to execution.
 Leaving Judea then, he went down to Cæsarea, where he resided.

The Death of Herod Agrippa.

And he was at that time highly 20 incensed against the Tyrians and Sidonians; but they unanimously approached him. And having bribed Blastus, the King's chamberlain, they sued for reconciliation; because they were fed from the territories of the king. So upon an appointed day, 21
 Herod robed himself in a royal splen-dour, and seated upon the platform, delivered a popular oration to them.
 And the mob shouted out, "It is the 22 voice of a god, and not of a man."

But an angel of the Lord imme- 23 diately struck him, because he had not given up that honour to God; and being eaten by worms, he died. The 24 message of God, however, extended and increased.

Barnabas and Saul, when they had 25 completed their mission, then returned from Jerusalem, taking with them John, surnamed Mark.

The Dedication of Barnabas and Saul.

There were connected with the 13 assembly at Antioch preachers and teachers, particularly such as Barnabas, Simeon called Niger, Lucius the Cyrenian, and Manaen, the school-fellow of Herod the tetrarch and Saul. And while they were worshipping the Lord, and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "You must set apart for Me Barnabas and Saul for the work which I have allotted them." Then fasting and praying, and laying their hands upon them, they dispatched them.

4 Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, they accordingly went down to Seleucia; and from there they sailed to Cyprus. And arriving at Salamis, they proclaimed the message of God in the Jewish synagogues; and they also had John as a helper.

Elymas the Magician.

6 And going through the whole of the island as far as Paphos, they found a certain Judean, a magician and sham prophet, named Bar-Jesus; who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a man of intelligence. He invited Barnabas and Saul, desiring to listen to the message of God. But Elymas the magician (for such is the name when translated), opposed them, attempting to divert the proconsul from the faith.

9 But Saul, who is also named Paul, full of Holy Spirit, looking at him sternly, said, "O you full of all deceit, and every villainy, you son of the Devil, you enemy of all righteousness, will you never cease to misrepresent the straight paths of the Lord? But even now the hand of the Lord is upon you; you shall be blind, and for a time you shall not see the sun." And immediately a mist and darkness came over him; and staggering, he groped for some one to lead him by the hand. The proconsul, on seeing what had happened, believed, being struck with the teaching of the Lord.

Paul's Sermon at Antioch.

13 Paul and his company now set sail from Paphos, and went to Perga, in Pamphylia; but John, separating from them, returned to Jerusalem.

14 Then, proceeding from Perga, they arrived at Antioch of Pisidia; and, entering the synagogue on the Sabbath day, they sat down. Then, after the reading of the law and the prophets, the leaders of the synagogue sent to them, saying, "Men, brothers, if you have any comforting message for the people, speak it."

Paul accordingly stood up, and, waving his hand, said:

"Men of Israel, and those that reverence God, listen. The God of this people Israel chose our forefathers and raised up the nation during their residence in the land of Egypt, and with a high arm He led them out of it. And for the space of about forty years He endured their behaviour in the desert. Afterwards, when He had conquered seven nations in the land of Canaan, He entrusted them with the possession of their country for about four hundred and fifty years; and, temporary with these events, He gave judges until the end of Samuel the prophet. And when they demanded a kingdom, then God gave them Saul, the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for the period of forty years. And when He removed him, He raised up David for them into the kingdom; and, giving evidence about him, He said, DAVID THE SON OF JESSE I HAVE FOUND A MAN AFTER MY OWN HEART, WHO WILL EXECUTE ALL MY PURPOSES.¹ From his race God has, according to promise, brought to Israel a Saviour—Jesus; John, having to introduce His appearance, proclaimed beforehand a baptism for conversion to all the people of Israel. And as John was completing his mission, he said, 'What do you suppose me to be? Not I AM; but, on the contrary, there follows me One, the shoes of Whose feet I am not worthy to unfasten.'

"Men, brothers, sons of Abraham's race, and those among you who reverence God, to us the message of this salvation is sent; for the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and their rulers, ignoring this, and the voices of the prophets read every Sabbath, have fulfilled it by condemning Him; and of Pilate, who found no capital crime, they demanded that He should be executed. But when they had completed all that had been written about Him, taking Him down from the tree, they placed Him in a tomb. But God raised Him from the dead; and upon several days He appeared to those who accompanied Him from

- Galilee to Jerusalem—those who now are witnesses for Him to the nation.
- 32 And we are announcing to you the good news that God, having raised
- 33 up Jesus, by that event has fulfilled to us—their children—the promise made to our fathers; as also it is written in the second Psalm,
- YOU ARE MY SON,
TO-DAY I HAVE BEGOTTEN YOU.¹
- 34 "But further, having raised Him from the dead, He will no more return to dissolution; as He said, THAT I WILL GIVE TO YOU THE ASSURED
- 35 BLESSINGS OF DAVID.² And He also says elsewhere, YOU WILL NOT ALLOW YOUR GIFTED ONE TO SEE DISSOLUTION.³
- 36 "Now David, indeed, in his own generation, having laboured under the instruction of God, slept, and was added to his forefathers, and saw
- 37 dissolution; but this One Whom God raised up saw no dissolution. Therefore, be it known to you, men,
- 38 brothers, that through Him release from sins is announced to you; and from all those things from which you were not able to be acquitted by the law of Moses, every believer in Him will be acquitted.
- 40 "Take care therefore that you do not bring upon yourselves the declaration in the prophets:
- 41 ATTEND, YOU OPPONENTS! AND WONDER AND VANISH; FOR I WILL DO A WORK IN YOUR DAYS,
A WORK WHICH YOU WILL NOT BELIEVE,
IF ONE SHOULD DISPLAY IT TO YOU!"⁴
- 42 When they went out, they were requested to have those matters related to them in the time intervening between the next Sabbath. But when
- 43 the assembly broke up, many of the Jews and pious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who, addressing them, entreated them to adhere to the gift of God.
- The Jews Reject the Gospel.
- 44 Then on the Sabbath following, nearly the whole town collected to hear the message of God. But the
- 45 Jews, seeing the crowds, were filled with rage, and sneeringly contradicted the statements of Paul.

¹ Psa. li. 7.² Isa. lv. 3.³ Psa. xvi. 10.⁴ Hab. i. 5.

Consequently speaking out with 46 perfect freedom, Paul and Barnabas said: "It was necessary that the message of God should first of all be delivered to you; but since you reject it, and do not consider yourselves worthy of that eternal life, we will now turn to the Gentiles; for thus 47 the Lord commanded us:

I HAVE PLACED YOU AS A LIGHT FOR THE HEATHEN, THAT YOU SHOULD CARRY SALVATION TO THE BOUNDS OF THE EARTH."¹

When the Gentiles heard this, they 48 were glad, and praised the message of God; and whoever were disciplined for eternal life believed. The message of the Lord then spread throughout the whole of the district. But the 49 Jews incensed the pious women of rank, as well as the principal men of the town; and raising a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, they expelled them from their boundaries. So, shaking the dust off their feet 51 against them, they proceeded to Iconium. And the disciples were 52 filled with delight and with the Holy Spirit.

At Iconium.

Arriving then at Iconium, they entered 14 together the Jewish synagogue, and spoke in such a manner, that a considerable number both of Jews and of Greeks believed. But the 2 unbelieving Judeans excited and embittered the spirits of the heathen against the brethren. However, they 3 stayed there for some time, speaking with freedom for the Lord, Who gave evidence to the message of His gift, by granting signs and wonders to be effected through their hands. But 4 the crowd of the town was divided; some holding with the Jews, and others with the apostles. But when 5 there came a conspiracy both on the part of the heathen and the Jews, with their rulers, to assault and stone them, becoming aware of it, they 6 fled to the towns of Lycaonia, Lystra, and Derbē, and that neighbourhood; and were evangelizing there. 7

In Lycaonia: The Cripple Cured.

Now at Lystra there was sitting a 8 man, powerless in his feet, lame from birth, having never walked. This man 9

- heard Paul speaking; who, looking fixedly at him, perceiving that he had 10 faith to be cured, said with a loud voice, "Stand upright on your feet! " And he jumped up and walked.
- 11 But when the crowd observed what Paul had done, they raised a shout, saying in the Lycaonian dialect, "The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men!" And they called Barnabas Zeus;¹ and Paul Hermes,² because he was the principal speaker.
- 13 And the priest of Zeus, whose shrine stood at the entrance of the town, brought garlanded bulls to the gates, intending, with the crowds, to offer a sacrifice.
- 14 When the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard it, however, they tore their cloaks, and rushed out among the crowd, shouting and exclaiming, "Men, why do you this? We are only men like yourselves, declaring to you the good news, to turn away from these follies to a Living God, WHO CREATED THE HEAVEN, THE EARTH, AND THE SEA, AND ALL 16 THAT IS IN THEM;³ Who, in former generations, allowed all the heathen to follow their own ways. Although He left not Himself without evidence, doing good, showering heavenly rain upon you, and fruitful seasons, filling your hearts with food and gladness."
 17 Even after speaking in this way, however, it was with difficulty that they restrained the people from sacrificing to them.

Paul Stoned.

- 19 But Judeans came there from Antioch and Iconium; and having won over the mob, and stoned Paul, they dragged him out of the town, under the supposition that he was dead.
 20 But the disciples having surrounded him, he rose up, and returned to the town; and the next day he departed, with Barnabas, to Derbe.

Conclusion of the First Missionary Journey.

- 21 After having evangelized that town, and secured a goodly number of disciples, they returned through Lystra, 22 to Iconium, and Antioch; strengthening the spirits of the disciples, encouraging them to stand by the faith, and showing that it is necessary to endure many sufferings in order to enter the Kingdom of God. Then having elected for them elders 23 in every assembly, praying with fasting, they entrusted them to the Lord, on Whom they had believed.

And passing through Pisidia, they 24 came to Pamphylia; and having delivered the message in Perga, they went down to Attalia; from there 26 sailing to Antioch, where they had been dedicated by the blessing of God for the work which they had accomplished. Then when they had called 27 together the assembly after their arrival, they reported what God had done with them, and how He had opened a door of faith to the nations. And they spent a considerable time 28 with the disciples.

Controversy regarding Circumcision.

But some of those coming down 16 from Judea taught the brethren, "Unless you are circumcised in accordance with the Mosaic custom, you cannot be saved."

The question accordingly having 2 created no small amount of discussion and debate between them and Paul and Barnabas, they resolved that Paul and Barnabas, together with some others of their number, should go up to the apostles and elders at Jerusalem in reference to the question. Having therefore been dispatched by 3 the assembly, they proceeded through both Phœnicia and Samaria, relating the conversion of the heathen; and they produced unbounded delight in all the brethren.

On their arrival at Jerusalem, they 4 were welcomed by the assembly, and the apostles and elders; to whom they related what God had done with them. But some believers belonging 5 to the Pharisaic party started up, declaring, "It is necessary to circumcise them, and enjoin them to observe the law of Moses."

The apostles and the elders accordingly met together for the consideration of this particular question. Then much discussion having occurred, Peter, arising, said to them:

"Men, brothers, you understand that some time ago, God, among you, decided that through my mouth the heathen should listen to the message of the gospel, and believe it. And 8 the heart-knowing God gave an evidence for them, granting to them the Holy Spirit, in the same way as to

- 9 ourselves; and He made no distinction between us and them, having purified their hearts by the faith.
- 10 Now, therefore, why do you try God, by placing a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our forefathers nor ourselves are strong enough to bear? On the contrary, we believe we are to be saved through the gift of the Lord Jesus; and they do the same."
- 12 Then all the assembly kept silence whilst they listened to Barnabas and Paul, relating how God had produced through them evidences and deep impressions among the nations.
- 13 But after they had finished speaking, James arose, and said:
- 14 "Men, brothers, listen to me. Symeon has been relating how God first turned to choose from among the heathen a people for His own name: and this accords with the statements of the prophets; as it has been written:
- 16 AFTER THIS I WILL RETURN,
AND RE-ERECT THE FALLEN TENT
OF DAVID;
AND I WILL RELAY ITS FOUNDATIONS, AND REBUILD IT;
- 17 SO THAT THE REST OF MANKIND
MAY SEEK OUT THE LORD, AND ALL THE HEATHEN MAY TAKE
MY NAME UPON THEM,
- 18 SAYS THE LORD, WHO EFFECTS
THESE EVENTS, KNOWN FROM ETERNITY.¹
- 19 "I am therefore of opinion that we should not harass those converted to God from among the heathen; but that we send urging them to keep free from pollution by idols, from fornication, from that which is strangled, and blood. For Moses, from preceding generations, has had his preachers in every town, being read every Sabbath in the synagogues."
- 22 Then it seemed good to the apostles and elders, with the whole assembly, that men should be chosen from among themselves to send to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas—Judah, called Barsabas, and Silas, leading
- 23 men in the brotherhood—writing by their hand:
- "The apostles and elder brothers, to their brothers from among the heathen who live in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia, greeting:

"Since we have heard that some 24 from among us have disturbed you with statements, unsettling your minds—to whom we gave no instructions—it seemed right for us, being 25 assembled together, to select men and send them to you, together with our friends, Barnabas and Paul, men who 26 have delivered up their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. We 27 have therefore sent Judah and Silas, who themselves will also report to you the same facts by word of mouth. For it is the decision of the Holy 28 Spirit, and our own, to lay upon you no greater burden than is necessary; that is, to turn away from idol sacrifices, from blood, from that which 29 is strangled, and from fornication. Keeping yourselves free from these, you will do well. Farewell."

Having, therefore, been dispatched, 30 they went down to Antioch; and having convened the people, they delivered the letter. When they had 31 read it, they were pleased at its encouragement; and Judah and Silas 32 also, who were speakers, cheered the brethren by a long discourse, and strengthened them. After working 33 there for a time, they were released in peace from the brethren to those who had sent them.¹ Paul and 35 Barnabas, however, remained in Antioch, with several others, teaching and preaching the message of the Lord.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey.

Then, after some time, Paul said to 36 Barnabas, "Let us now pay a return visit to our brothers in every town in which we have preached the good news of the message of the Lord, and see how they are proceeding."

But Barnabas was inclined to take 37 John, surnamed Mark, with them. Paul, however, considered it inad- 38 visible to take him with them, as he had deserted them at Pamphylia, and did not accompany them in that work.

A dispute consequently occurred, 39 which led them to separate from each other. And Barnabas, taking Mark with him, sailed to Cyprus; while Paul, choosing Silas, took his 40 departure, having been entrusted by the brethren to the blessing of the Lord. He accordingly travelled through Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the assemblies.

Paul and Timothy.

16 And he descended to Derbe and Lystra. And there was a disciple there, named Timothy, the son of a woman, a believing Jewess, but of a Grecian father, who was well recommended by the brothers who were at Lystra and Iconium. Paul, being anxious that he should accompany him, took and circumcised him out of respect to the Jews resident in these places; because they all knew that his father was a Greek.

4 And as they travelled through the towns they delivered into their custody the decrees which had been agreed upon by the apostles and the elders who were in Jerusalem. The assemblies were accordingly strengthened in the faith, and the number daily increased.

6 They next went through the districts of Phrygia and Galatia, having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to deliver the message in Asia Minor.

7 Coming down to Mysia, however, they attempted to proceed to Bithynia; but the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them.

8 Then, having passed by Mysia, they went down to Troas. And during the night, a vision appeared to Paul, that of a man, a Macedonian, who stood imploring him, saying, "Come over to Macedonia, and help us!"

Paul Visits Europe.

10 Accordingly, having seen this vision, we at once attempted to proceed to Macedonia, concluding that God had called us forward to evangelize them.

The Conversion of Lydia.

11 Setting sail therefore from Troas, we steered straight to Samothracia, and the day following to Neapolis; and from there to Philippi, which is a capital of that part of Macedonia, a colony. And we rested for some days in the town itself. On the Sabbath day, however, we went outside the gate, along a river side, where we were informed prayer was to be; and having sat down, we spoke to the women who were assembled.

Chap. 16, v. 10. NOTE.—Here I believe the united mission of Paul and his cousin, and physician, Luke, begins.

And a woman named Lydia, a dealer in purple cloth, of the town of Thyatira, and a worshipper of God, was a listener; the heart of whom the Lord opened to attend to what was said by Paul. Then when she had been baptized as well as her family, she invited us, saying, "If you consider me to be faithful to the Lord, come and stay at my house." And she prevailed upon us.

The Slave Girl and her Masters.

And it happened, as we were proceeding to the place for prayer, that a girl who was possessed by a spirit of divination met us, who procured considerable profit for her masters by fortune-telling; and following Paul and us, she shrieked out, exclaiming, "These men are servants of the highest God, who proclaim to you a path of salvation." And she did this on many occasions.

Paul accordingly being annoyed by it, turning round, he said to the spirit, "By the power of Jesus Christ, I order you to come out of her." And it left her that very hour.

Paul and Silas Scourged and Imprisoned.

But her masters, seeing that they had lost the hope of their profits, arresting Paul and Silas, dragged them off to the market-place before the authorities; and bringing them to the Generals, they said, "These men, being Jews, greatly disturb our town, and proclaim a religion which it is illegal for us, being Romans, to accept, or to practise."

And the mob siding with them, the Generals tore off their robes, and ordered them to be flogged. Then, after lashing them severely, they flung them into prison, instructing the jailor to keep them securely; who, having received such an order, threw them into the inner dungeon, and secured their feet in the stocks.

Conversion of the Jailor.

About midnight, however, Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God; and the prisoners were listening to them. When suddenly there was a violent earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and all the doors at once flew open, while every one was freed from his bonds. The warder being accordingly roused from his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, seized his sword, and was about to kill himself, concluding that the prisoners had made their escape.

- 28 But Paul shouted, saying, "Do yourself no harm; for we are all here!"
 29 Demanding then a light, he rushed in, and seized with a tremor, he fell before Paul and Silas, and conducting them out, he asked, "O sirs, what must I do so that I may save myself?"
 31 And they replied, "Believe on the Lord Jesus, and you and your family shall be saved." And they delivered the message of the Lord to him, with all those in his family. Taking them out then at that hour of the night, he washed their wounds; and was himself baptized without delay, as well as all his family. He also took them to his house, and spread a table before them; and, believing in God together with all his family, he was transported with joy.

Released from Prison.

- 35 When the day dawned, however, the Generals sent instructions to the officers to "Liberate these men."
 36 The warder accordingly reported these words to Paul, saying: "The Generals have ordered you to be liberated; therefore come out, and depart quietly."
 37 But Paul replied to them, "Having flogged us—who are Roman citizens—publicly, and without trial, and having thrown us into prison, would they now send us away privately? Certainly not! But instead let them come themselves, and conduct us out."
 38 The Sergeants accordingly reported these words to the Generals, who on learning that they were Romans, became terrified. So they came apologizing; and conducting them out, requested them to leave the town.
 40 Being thus liberated from custody, they entered the house of Lydia; and having seen the brethren, they consoled them, and departed.

Persecution at Thessalonica.

- 17 Travelling then through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a Jewish synagogue. And Paul, as was his custom, went in among them, and for three Sabbaths discussed with them from the Scriptures, illustrating and proving that the Messiah must suffer, and rise again from the dead; "and that this Jesus, whom I proclaim to you, is the Messiah."

Some of them accordingly believed, 4 and associated themselves with Paul and Silas; in addition to a considerable number of pious Greeks, and not a few of the women of rank.

But the Judeans becoming furious, 5 secured the assistance of a number of ruffians from the markets, and collecting a mob, they made a riot in the town; and attacking the house of Jason, they endeavoured to drag them out to the mob. Failing to find them, 6 however, they dragged Jason, as well as some of the brothers, before the town councillors,¹ shouting out: "These fellows who have turned the empire upside down, have also appeared here. Jason has privately protected 7 them; and these fellows, ignoring the decrees of the Emperor, actually assert that there is another king, Jesus."

Then the crowd and the town coun- 8 cillors, on hearing this, cried out in alarm; and taking bail from Jason 9 and the others, they discharged them.

Journey to Athens.

So the brethren at once sent both 10 Paul and Silas off to Berea during the night; and arriving there, they entered the Jewish synagogue. Now 11 these people were better disposed than the Thessalonians; they accepted the message with hearty good-will, examining the Scriptures daily, so as to verify the statements. Many from 12 among them therefore believed; including Grecian women of rank, as well as not a few of the men.

But when the Judeans of Thessa- 13 lonica learned that the message of God was also proclaimed by Paul in Berea, they also came there, inciting and annoying the people. The brethren 14 accordingly sent Paul immediately off in the direction of the sea; while Silas and Timothy continued there. But 15 Paul's guides conveyed him as far as Athens; and dispatching a message to Silas and Timothy, that they should come to him as soon as possible they returned.

While Paul waited for them at 16 Athens, he was grieved in his spirit to see the city devoted to idols. He ac- 17 cordingly discussed in the synagogue with the Judeans, and with the pious people, as well as every day with those who frequented the market-place.

18 Some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers also debated with him; and some said, "What would this Thought-sower wish to say?" And others, "He seems to be an introducer of foreign divinities"; because he told them the good news of Jesus and the resurrection.

19 They accordingly took him, and conducted him to the Hill of Ares (the High Court), saying, "Would it be possible for us to get to know what this new thing, this teaching of which you speak, might be? For you have brought some foreign ideas to our ears—we wish therefore to know what is the intention of these?" For all the Athenians and the foreign residents spent the whole of their leisure in telling and listening to something new.

20 Paul accordingly taking his stand in the centre of the High Court, said:

21 "Men of Athens, I perceive beyond everything how deeply religious you are, for, going about and studying your objects of worship, I even found an altar upon which had been inscribed,

TO AN UNKNOWN GOD.

22 "What, therefore, you unknowingly worship, I proclaim to you. The God, Who made the Universe and all in it, Who, being Himself Lord of heaven and earth, resides not in temples made by hands, nor is served by the hauds of men, as though needing anything: Himself giving to every one life and breath and all things; because He made by One every race of men to dwell upon the whole face of the earth, having provided proper methods and guides for their research in seeking God—if only they would feel for and find Him—and yet He is certainly not far from every one of us; for from Him we live, and move, and exist; as also some among your own poets have said,

23 "That we originate from Him." Therefore, possessing an origin from God, we ought not to imagine the Divine Nature to be like gold, or silver, or stone, carved by human skill and genius. God, however, overlooking those periods of ignorance, now calls to all men everywhere to change their mind; because He has appointed a day in which He will judge the world with justice by a Man Whom He has provided, having given the strongest evidence by raising Him from among the dead." * * * 1

The mention of the resurrection of the dead provoked sneering on the part of some; but others said, "We will hear you again about this." Thus Paul went out from among them. Some people, however, believed, and followed him; among whom were Dionysius, the Judge of the High Court, a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

The Offence of the Cross at Corinth.

Paul, afterwards taking his departure from Athens, came to Corinth. And finding a Jew, named Aquila, a Pontian by birth, lately come from Italy with his wife Priscilla—because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to be expelled from Rome—he went to them. And as he was of the same profession, he stayed with them, employing himself; for by profession they were landscape painters. But he debated every Sabbath in the synagogue, persuading both Jews and Greeks.

When Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, however, Paul was engaged in earnest discussion, demonstrating to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah. Then setting themselves in opposition to him, and abusing him, he shook out his robe, and said to them, "Your blood be upon your own heads; I am guiltless: from now I will go to the heathen."

He accordingly took his departure, and went to the house of a God-fearing man, named Titus Justus, whose house was close to the synagogue. But Crispus, the chief of the synagogue, believed in the Lord with all his family; and many of the Corinthians having heard, believed, and were baptized.

Then during a vision in the night, the Lord said to Paul, "Fear not, but speak out, and do not keep silence; because I am with you, and no one shall attack to injure you; for many people in this city belong to Me." He accordingly remained there a year.

1 NOTE.—The Apostle was not allowed to finish his argument, owing to the contentions of his audience, as he when sitting as judge upon Stephen had interrupted that martyr of the truth, and ordered him to execution. It is remarkable, however, that St. Stephen was the instrument of Paul's conversion, and that St. Paul converted his judge also by this unfinished strain of sublime reasoning.—F. F.

and six months, teaching the message of God among them.

12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews unanimously made an assault upon Paul, and took him before the Court, asserting, "This fellow misleads men, to worship God contrary to the law."

14 Then when Paul was about to speak out in his defence, Gallio said to the Jews, "Now, if this were some act of injustice, or some atrocious crime, you Jews, it would be reasonable to listen to you; but if it is a dispute about language and names, and about your own law, why, just look to it yourselves; I am not disposed to be a judge of such matters." And he drove them from the Court.

17 The whole of them then throwing themselves upon Sosthenes, the chief of the synagogue, assaulted him in the presence of the Court. But Gallio cared nothing about such things.

Conclusion of the Second Missionary Journey.

18 But Paul still stayed a considerable time organising the brotherhood, then took his leave of them, sailing for Syria—Priscilla and Aquila accompanying him—shaving his head at Cenchrea, for he had taken a vow. And on arriving at Ephesus, he left them. He, however, entered the synagogue by himself, and debated with the Jews.

20 Yet when they asked him to stay with them a little longer, he would not consent; but took leave of them and said, "God willing, I will return to you again."

22 Sailing then from Ephesus, and landing at Cæsarea, he went up and visited the Assembly (at Jerusalem).¹

23 Then he descended to Antioch. And spending some time there, he proceeded on his way; visiting in a regular manner the districts of Galatia and Phrygia, encouraging all the disciples.

The Evangelist Apollos.

24 A Judean, named Apollos, an Alexandrian by birth, a man of education, powerful in the Scriptures, met him at Ephesus. He had been instructed in the path of the Lord; and being fervent in his spirit, he spoke and taught about Jesus clearly, understanding only the baptism of John. And he began to 26 speak out with confidence in the synagogue; when Priscilla and Aquila, hearing of him, took him and explained to him the way of God more accurately.

And as he was inclined to proceed 27 to Achaia, the brethren encouraged him, and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. And on his arrival, he was, by means of his gift, of considerable assistance to the believers; for 28 in public he eloquently demonstrated to the Judeans, proving by means of the Scriptures that Jesus was the Messiah.

Paul at Ephesus.

It occurred while Apollos was at 19 Corinth, that Paul passed through the highland district on the way to Ephesus. And finding some disciples, 2 he asked them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit on becoming believers?"

But they answered him, "On the contrary; we have never heard that there is a Holy Spirit."

"Into what, then, were you bap- 3 tized?" he asked them.

"Into the baptism of John," was their reply.

Paul then said, "John baptized a 4 baptism for conversion, telling the people that they must believe on the One Who followed him, that is Jesus." Hearing this, they were accordingly 5 baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

And Paul having laid his hands 6 upon them, the Holy Spirit came upon them; and they spoke languages and preached. And all the 7 men were about twelve.

Then entering the synagogue, he 8 spoke eloquently, for three months, discussing and persuading concerning the Kingdom of God. When, however, 9 some obstinately resisted and disbelieved, defaming the Way before the mob, turning from them, he removed the disciples, discussing daily in the lecture-room of Tyrannus. And this 10 continued for two years; so that all the residents in Asia-Minor, both Judeans and Greeks, heard the message of the Lord. God also produced unusual 11 powers by means of the hands of Paul; so that handkerchiefs or sashes, on 12 being taken from his clothing and applied to the sick, their mental diseases and the evil spirits were expelled from them.

The Seven Sons of Skebs.

Some of the travelling Jewish exor- 13 cists, however, presumed to name the

- name of the Lord Jesus over those possessed by foul spirits, saying: "I imprecate you by Jesus, Whom Paul proclaims!" And among those who did this, there were seven sons of Skeva, a Judean chief priest. But the evil spirit answering, said to them, "I recognise Jesus, and Paul I know well; but who are you?"
- And the man in whom the evil spirit was, sprang upon them; overpowered them, and defeated them; and they fled stripped and wounded from that house.
- And this became known to all the inhabitants of Ephesus, both Judeans and Greeks; and terror fell upon all of them, and they exalted the name of the Lord Jesus. Many of the believers also, frankly acknowledging it, came forward, and renounced their practices. Numbers also of the professors of magic rites, having collected their books, burned them in public; and their value being calculated, it was found to amount to about fifty thousand pieces of silver.¹ Thus the message of the Lord increased and excelled in power.
- After the accomplishment of these events, Paul decided in his mind that, passing through Macedonia and Achaia, he would proceed to Jerusalem; remarking: "After I have been there, I must see Rome."
- So having sent to Macedonia two of those who were serving with him, namely, Timothy and Erastus, he himself stayed for some time in Asia-Minor.

The Ephesian Riot.

- About this time, however, there occurred no small disturbance about the Way; because a man named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made shrines of Artemis, excited his operatives in the trade not a little. Who having assembled together with those making similar things, he addressed them:
- "You know, men, that our wealth depends upon this trade; and you see and hear that not only in Ephesus, but indeed almost throughout the whole of Asia-Minor, this Paul has persuaded a great crowd to secede, saying, 'that they are not gods that are made by hand.' And further than that, there is danger not only that this trade of ours should come into disrepute; but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will be considered nothing, and that her magnificence will be swept away, which all Asia and the civilized world worship."

Fired with fury on hearing this, they shouted out, exclaiming: "Great Artemis of the Ephesians!" And the whole city being roused to riot, the crowd rushed in a mass to the theatre, dragging with them Gaius and Aristarchus, of Macedonia, assistants of Paul.

When Paul, however, was anxious to go into the mob, the disciples would not allow him. Several also of the leading men among the Asiatics who were friends to him, sent advising him not to present himself in the theatre. Some therefore shouted one thing, some another; for the meeting was in an uproar: and the greater part of the people did not even know for what purpose they had assembled. Then some of the Judeans from the crowd, seizing Alexander, thrust him forward. But when Alexander advanced, stretching out his hand to defend himself before the mob, recognising that he was a Jew, all of them began with one voice, for about two hours, to shout, "Great Artemis of the Ephesians!"

But the mayor, having quieted the crowd, said:

"Men, Ephesians! what man, indeed, is there who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is the guardian of the great Artemis, and of the fallen god? Seeing then that these facts are incontestable, it becomes you to preserve order, and do nothing rashly. You have dragged these men here, however, who are neither temple-robbers nor libellers of our goddess. If Demetrius, therefore, and the artisans who are with him have a ground of complaint against any one, the courts are open, and there are proconsuls in attendance—let them prosecute each other. But if you desire anything respecting other matters, it should be settled in a legal assembly. For, indeed, we are in danger of being called to account respecting the disturbance of to-day; for we can neither advance a reason, nor say anything in justification of this gathering."

And having said this, he dismissed the meeting.

¹ A piece of silver, worth from half-a-crown to three shillings.

Through Macedonia to Troas.

- 20 After the disturbance had been quieted, Paul, calling the disciples together, comforted them and took leave, and went out to proceed into Macedonia. And, having passed through those parts, and encouraged them with sound reason, he went into Hellas.
- 3 But after he had been there three months, a plot having been laid against him by the Judeans when he was about to embark for Syria, he considered it advisable to return through Macedonia. And there accompanied him Sopater Pyrrhus, the Berean; as well as Aristarchus and Secundus of Thessalonica; Gaius of Derbē, and Timothy; with Tychicus and Trophimus, Asiatics. These, however, having preceded us, were awaiting our arrival at Troas.
- 6 After the days of unfermented bread, we accordingly sailed from Philippi, and five days later came to them at Troas, where we spent seven days.

At Troas—A Christian Sabbath.

- 7 On the first of the Sabbaths, when we assembled to break bread, Paul, intending to leave on the following day, addressed them, and prolonged his speech until midnight.
- 8 There were a number of lamps in the upper chamber in which we were assembled. And a youth, named Eutyclus, sitting in the window-sill, fell into a deep slumber; and as Paul continued his address for a considerable time, he became so overpowered with sleep that he fell down from the third story, and was picked up insensible.
- 10 Paul, hastening down, however, stooped over him, and, taking him in his arms, said, "Do not agitate yourselves, for his life is in him."
- 11 Then, going up again, and having broken the bread and tasted, he conversed with them for a considerable time, even until daybreak, when he departed. They then took the boy away alive, and were greatly consoled.
- At Miletus—Address to the Ephesian Elders.
- 13 Embarking, then, in the vessel, we made for Assos, where we intended to take up Paul; because he had himself decided to make the journey by land. Accordingly, picking him up 14 when we arrived at Assos, we next came to Mitylene. And, sailing from 15 there, we arrived opposite Chios on the following day; the next day we touched at Samos; and the day after that we landed at Miletus. For Paul 16 had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he might not have to spend time in Asia-Minor; for he was hurrying on so that it might be possible for the day of Pentecost to come to him in Jerusalem.

Sending then to Ephesus from 17 Miletus, he summoned there the elders of the assembly. Then when 18 they were come to him, he said to them:

"You yourselves know from the first day that I set foot in Asia-Minor, how I have conducted myself with you all the time, serving the 19 Lord with all gentleness, amid the griefs and trials which befel me owing to the plots of the Judeans; how I never 20 shrank from declaring to you anything that was advantageous; teaching you publicly and privately; producing 21 evidence to both Jews and Greeks for conversion to God, and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. And now, 22 impelled by the Spirit, I am going to Jerusalem in ignorance of what awaits me there; except that in every town 23 the Holy Spirit attests to me, saying that bonds and afflictions await me.

"But I do not account my life of 24 value to myself, except that I may complete my course, and the commission which I received from the Lord Jesus to bear witness to the good news of the gift of God. And now I know 25 that all you among whom I have gone about proclaiming the Kingdom, may never see my presence again. I am 26 consequently anxious this very day to prove to you that I am clear from the blood of all men; because I never hesi- 27 tated in declaring to you the whole purpose of God. Guard yourselves, as 28 well as the whole of the fold in which the Holy Spirit has appointed you shepherds, to nourish the church of God, which He has purchased with the blood of His own Son. I know that 29 after my departure ferocious wolves shall come in among you, not sparing the little flock; yes, from among you 30 own selves men will spring up, speaking pervertingly, in order to draw followers after themselves. Because of 31 this, be on your guard ; remembering that for the space of three years I never failed to warn every one night and day with tears. And now I entrust you to God, and to His given WORD,¹ Who has power to build up and to give you the inheritance with all the holy. I have desired from none of you silver, gold, nor clothing. You yourselves know that my own necessities, as well as of those accompanying me, have been supplied by these hands. In everything I have given you an example, so that, labouring in this way, you ought to assist the infirm, remembering also the words of the Lord Jesus, how He Himself said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'²

And having thus spoken, he knelt down and prayed with them all. And the whole of them being much overcome with emotion, they leaned upon Paul's neck, and fervently kissed him ; grieving especially on account of the remark which he made, that they might see his face no more. They then accompanied him to the ship.

Journey to Cæsarea.

As soon, however, as we had torn ourselves away from them, we set sail, and came with a straight run to Coös ; on the following day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara ; and finding a vessel bound for Phœnicia, we embarked and departed. Then sighting Cyprus, and leaving it on the left, we sailed to Syria, and landed at Tyre ; for there the ship was to discharge her cargo. But finding some disciples there, we stayed with them seven days. Some of them advised Paul through the Spirit not to go up to Jerusalem.

But when we had completed those days, we departed and proceeded on our journey ; all of them, with women and children, accompanying us until outside the town. And bending our knees upon the sand, we prayed, and wished each other good-bye, and embarked in the vessel ; but they returned to their homes.

But we, completing the voyage from Tyre, arrived at Ptolemais ; and greeting the brethren, we remained with them for one day. On the following morning we took our departure, and came to Cæsarea ; and entering the house of Philip the evangelist, who was of the seven, we stayed with him. Now this man had four maiden daughters, who preached.

² NOTE.—This quotation of an utterance of Christ which is nowhere else recorded in the Scriptures, proves that St. Paul had been personally acquainted with Him, and I might add references to other parts of this Apostle's writings to confirm the fact, as well as to passages in the Gospels.—F. F.

And as we remained several days, there came down from Judea a preacher of the name of Agabus. And coming to us, he took Paul's belt, fastened his own feet and hands, and said : " Thus says the Holy Spirit, ' In like manner shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man who owns this belt, and shall deliver him over to heathen hands.' "

Then when we heard this, both we and the residents of that place pleaded with him not to go up to Jerusalem. Paul, however, replied, " What do you mean by weeping and breaking my heart ? For I am ready not only to be arrested, but also to die at Jerusalem, for the sake of the name of the Lord Jesus ! "

Then when he would not be persuaded, we were silent, saying, " The will of the Lord be done ! "

Paul at Jerusalem.

After these days, having put our baggage in order, we ascended to Jerusalem ; and some of the disciples from Cæsarea also accompanied us, by whom we were introduced to Mnason of Cyprus, a disciple from the first. When we arrived at Jerusalem, the brethren welcomed us with gladness.

And on the following morning, Paul accompanied us to James, where all the elders assembled. After greeting them, he gave them a detailed account of what God, through his own ministry, had done among the heathen.

When they heard it, they thanked God, and remarked to him : " You see, brother, how many tens of thousands of believers there are among the Judeans ; and they are all enthusiastic for the law. They have been sedulously informed respecting you, however, that you instruct all the Jews who are among the heathen to apostatize from Moses ; advising them not to circumcise their children, nor pay any attention to the customs. What is it, then ? The crowd will certainly assemble ; for they will learn that you have arrived.

" Suppose you do what we advise 23

- you: there are four men with us who have taken a vow on themselves; 24 joining, be purified with them, and share the expenses with them, when they shave their heads. Then all will know that there is no truth in the reports concerning you; but that, on the contrary, you yourself keep the 25 directions of the law. But as for the believing heathen, we have published our decision, that they should keep themselves free from idol-offerings, from blood, from strangulation, and from fornication."
- 26 Then Paul, taking those men on the following day, having purified himself with them, entered into the temple, to give notice when they would complete the days of their purification; upon which would be offered the sacrifice for each one of them.

Paul Arrested.

- 27 When the seven days were nearly completed, some of the Asiatic Judeans, observing him in the temple, incited the whole of the rabble, and they threw their hands upon him, 28 shouting out, "Men! Israelites! help! This is the man who everywhere teaches against the people, and the law, and this place! and he has actually brought Greeks into the temple, and has polluted this holy spot." 29 (Because they had previously seen in his company in the city Trophimus the Ephesian, whom they concluded Paul had brought into the temple.) 30 The whole city was agitated, and a mob of people collected; and seizing Paul, they dragged him outside the temple, and immediately they shut the gates. Then trying to murder him, information was sent up to the commandant of the garrison that the whole of Jerusalem was in a state of riot. He immediately ordered out soldiers and captains, charging down upon them; and when they saw the General and the troops, they desisted maltreating Paul. 33 The Commandant, then approaching, picked him up, and ordered him to be secured with two chains; inquiring as to who he was, and what he had done. Some among the crowd yelled out one thing, some another; and failing to ascertain the cause of the uproar, he ordered him to be conveyed to the fortress. But when 35 he reached the stairs, it was necessary for him to be protected by the soldiers, owing to the violence of the mob; because the mass of the people followed yelling out, "Kill him!"

Then as they were about to enter the fortress, Paul asked the Commandant, "May I be allowed to say something to you?"

"Can you speak Greek?" he asked in reply. "You are not then the Egyptian, who some time ago revolted, and led those four thousand assassins out into the desert?"

Paul replied, "I am indeed a Judean, a man of Tarsus of Cilicia; a citizen of no inglorious city; and I beg of you to grant me permission to address the people."

Having accordingly given him permission, Paul taking his stand upon the stairs, waved his hand to the people; when a great silence ensuing, he addressed them as follows in the Hebrew dialect;

Paul's Speech to the Crowd.

"Men, brothers, and fathers! listen to me while I now defend myself before you."

When they heard that he addressed them in the Hebrew dialect, they became still more attentive. So he proceeded:

"I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but educated at the feet of Gamaliel in this city, disciplined very strictly in the law of our forefathers. I was an enthusiast for God, as you yourselves all are to-day. I persecuted this Way to the death, apprehending and imprisoning both men and women. Of this the High Priest could also witness to me, as well as the whole body of the senate, from whom also I received dispatches to the brethren in Damascus. Proceeding to it, I intended to bring those living there in chains to Jerusalem, so that they might be punished. But while I was marching and approaching to Damascus, it occurred about mid-day that suddenly a great light shone around me from the sky; when I fell down to the ground, and I heard a voice saying to me: 'Saul! Saul! why do you persecute Me?'"

"But I answered, 'Who are You, Sir?' And He said to me, 'I am Jesus the Nazarene, Whom you are persecuting.'

"Those accompanying me saw the light indeed, but they did not hear the voice of Him speaking to me.

- 10 "I then asked, 'What shall I do, Sir?' But the Lord answered me, 'Arise, march into Damascus; and there you shall be told about all that I have arranged for you to do.'
- 11 "Being unable, however, to see, owing to the brightness of that light, I proceeded to Damascus, led by the
- 12 hand of my companions. There one Ananias, a pious man according to the law, of good repute among all the
- 13 Jewish inhabitants, coming and standing by my side, said to me, 'Brother Saul, see again'; and I at that moment looked upon him.
- 14 "He then said, 'The God of our forefathers has prepared you to understand His intention, and to look upon the Righteous One, and to listen to
- 15 language from His mouth; so that you may be a witness for Him before all men respecting what you have seen
- 16 and heard. And why do you now delay? Arise, be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling upon His name.'
- 17 "But it so happened to me on revisiting Jerusalem, that, while I was praying in the temple, I fell into an
- 18 ecstasy; and saw Him, saying to me, 'Haste, and go out from Jerusalem quickly, for they will not accept your evidence concerning Me.'
- 19 "I replied, 'They themselves well know, Lord, that I was imprisoning and flogging in every synagogue those
- 20 believing upon You. Yes, and when the blood of Your martyr Stephen was poured out, I myself was then Chief Justice, and gave the Decision, and guarded the garments of his
- 21 murderers.' He then said, 'Go: for I will send you far away to the heathen.'" * * *
- 22 They listened attentively until he came to this expression, when, raising their voices, they exclaimed, "Take this fellow from the earth, for he is not fit to live!"
- 23 And as they yelled, and tore off their cloaks, and threw dust in the
- 24 air, the Commandant ordered him to be taken into the fortress, directing him to be examined by flogging; so that he might ascertain for what reason they roared against him.
- 25 But when they had fastened him with the straps, Paul asked the captain, who stood near, "Is it legal for you to flog a Roman citizen, and without a trial?"

On hearing that, the captain went 26 to report to the Commandant: "What do you intend to do? for this man is a Roman."

The Commandant, coming, then 27 asked him, "Tell me, are you a Roman?"

"Yes," was his reply.

When the Commandant answered, 28 "I myself acquired that citizenship at an immense price."

"But I was one by birth," rejoined Paul.

Then those who were about to torture him immediately stood back; 29 and the Commandant himself was also terrified on discovering that he was a Roman; and because he had ordered him to be bound.¹

On the following morning, however, 30 desiring to ascertain the actual accusation of the Judeans, he freed him; and, summoning the chief priests and the whole of the senate to assemble, he conducted Paul down, and placed him before them.

Paul before the Senate.

Paul, then, looking fixedly at the 23 senate, said, "Men, brothers! I have done my duty with a clear conscience in the presence of God until this very day * * *"

The High Priest, Ananias, interposing, ordered the officers standing near him to strike him on the mouth.

"God will strike you, you white- 3 washed wall!" exclaimed Paul, in reply to him. "Do you sit to try me in accordance with the law, and in defiance of the law order me to be struck?"

The attendants, standing by, ex- 4 claimed, "How dare you abuse the High Priest of God?"

"I do not know, brothers, that he 5 is High Priest: for it is written, YOU SHALL NOT SPEAK ILL OF THE PRINCE OF YOUR PEOPLE."² Paul, 6 perceiving, however, that one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, shouted out to the senate:

"Men! Brothers! I am myself a Pharisee! a son of Pharisees! it is concerning a hope and resurrection from the dead that I am indicted!"

¹ NOTE.—It was death under the old Roman Law for any one to bind up or flog a Roman citizen, except by order of the Emperor, or his Lieutenant, after trial.—F. F. ² Exod. xiii. 28.

Chap. 22 v. 20. NOTE.—The Greek word used by Paul to indicate his position at that trial is a Titular one, Ἐπίτροπος, (Ephestos), which in English would be "Chief Justice." He was, in fact, President of the Ecclesiastical Court of Jerusalem.—F. F.

- 7 So when he had said this, a split occurred between the Pharisees and Sadducees; and the assembly was 8 divided. For the Sadducees hold that there is no rising again, neither is there angel or spirit; but the Pharisees, on the other hand, acknowledge both. Consequently a great uproar ensued; and some of the professors, who were Pharisees, stood up in opposition and declared, "We can find nothing wrong against this man; but if a spirit has spoken to him, or an angel * * *
- 10 Then a great disturbance arose, and the Commandant being afraid that Paul would be torn to pieces by them, ordered the troops to go down and forcibly take him from among them, and conduct him into the fortress.

A Divine Promise to Paul.

- 11 During the following night, however, the Lord stood beside him, and said, "Take courage! for as you have given evidence concerning Me at Jerusalem, so you must also bear witness at Rome."

Conspiracy to Murder Paul.

- 12 But when day came, the Jews conspired, invoking a curse upon themselves, declaring that they would neither eat nor drink until they had murdered Paul. And there were more than forty who made this conspiracy. These, coming to the chief priests and senators, said:
- "Cursing, we have invoked a curse upon ourselves, to taste nothing until we have assassinated Paul. Now, therefore, you yourselves, with the senate, intimate to the Commandant to bring him down to you, as if you desired to examine his case with greater accuracy; for we are ready to kill him before his arrival."
- 16 But Paul's nephew, hearing of the conspiracy, went and entered the fortress, and reported it to Paul.
- 17 Paul accordingly spoke to one of the captains, and said, "Conduct this gentleman to the Commandant, for he has something to tell him."
- 18 He accordingly took him and conducted him to the Commandant, and said, "The prisoner Paul, having called me to him, desired me to bring this gentleman to you, as he has something to say to you."
- 19 The Commandant, then shaking his hand and taking him to his private apartment, inquired, "What is it that you have to report to me?"

When he said, "The Jews have 20 decided to ask you in the morning to bring down Paul to the senate, as wishing to inquire with greater accuracy something about him. But 21 do not be persuaded by them; for more than forty men of them lie in ambush, who have invoked a curse upon themselves to neither eat nor drink until they have murdered him; and they are even now ready, under the impression that they will receive a favourable reply from you."

The Commandant then dismissed 22 the young man, enjoining him to "Be sure and tell no one that you have reported these matters to me."

Summoning then two of the cap- 23 tains, he said, "Get ready two hundred soldiers, seventy cavalry, and two hundred spearmen, to proceed as far as Cæsarea, by nine o'clock to-night. Also provide animals upon 24 which Paul may be conducted in safety to Felix the governor."

Paul sent to Cæsarea.

He also wrote a dispatch running 25 in this form:

"Claudius Lysias, to His Excel- 26 lency Governor Felix, greeting:

"This man, having been assaulted 27 by the Jews, and almost assassinated by them, I rescued by appearing with the troops, understanding that he was a Roman. And desiring to 28 know the ground of their accusation against him, I took him down to their senate; when I discovered that the 29 charge had reference to disputed points of their own law; but he was charged with nothing deserving of death, nor even of imprisonment. Accordingly, on its coming to my 30 knowledge that they had organized a conspiracy against the man, I have immediately sent him to you; in- structing his prosecutors also to state their charge before you. Fare- well."

So the soldiers, in accordance with 31 their orders, took Paul, and conducted him during the night to Antipatris. But on the following day, they re- 32 turned to the garrison, leaving the cavalry to proceed with him. These, 33 on their arrival at Cæsarea, delivered the dispatch to the governor, and also presented Paul to him.

Then having read it, he asked to 34 what province he belonged; and learning that he came from Cilicia, he remarked, "I will hear your case as 35 soon as your prosecutors make their appearance." He also ordered him to be entertained in the palace of Herod.

Before Felix.

24 Five days later, the High Priest Ananias came down together with some senators, and one Tertullus, a barrister, and appeared before the governor against Paul. And on his being summoned, Tertullus opened for the prosecution, saying:

"Seeing that under you we enjoy much tranquillity, and that, through your foresight, this nation prospers always and everywhere, we accept it, most noble Felix, with hearty thankfulness. Without troubling you with further preface, however, I beg you to listen to us briefly with your usual kindness; because we have found this fellow a perfect pest, an organizer of insurrection among the whole of the Jews throughout the empire, as well as a ringleader of the heresy of the Nazarenes: who, moreover, actually attempted to profane the temple. So we apprehended him; and we wished to try him according to our own law: but the General Lysias intervening with great violence, took him out of our hands, ordering his prosecutors to appear before you. Now, therefore, you will be able, by personally examining, to ascertain about all those things of which we accuse him." The Jews also corroborated the charges, affirming their accuracy.

Paul's First Defence.

10 On the Governor then motioning him to speak, Paul said:

"Knowing, as I do, that you have been a judge of this nation for many years, I answer all the more confidently for myself the charges which have been brought against me. It can be proved to you, that not more than twelve days have elapsed since I went up to Jerusalem to worship; and neither in the temple did they find me courting discussion with any one, nor creating a disturbance, either in the synagogues, or in the city. Neither are they able to prove to you what they now charge against me. But I do admit this to you, that according to the Way, which they term a heresy, I worship the God of my fathers; believing in everything written in the law and in the prophets; having this hope in God, which they themselves also expect, that there will be a resurrection both of the just and unjust. On this account I especially exert myself to have at all times a clear conscience toward God and man in everything. Now, after many years, I came bringing presents to the poor of my nation, as well as sacrifices; doing which there found me certain Asiatic Judeans, while I purified myself in the temple—not with a crowd, nor with commotion. Those ought to have been here to prosecute me before you—if indeed they had anything against me. Or let these now present declare what fault they found in me when brought up before the senate; unless it be this one exclamation, which, standing in their midst, I cried out, 'It is concerning the resurrection from the dead that I am accused this day before you.'"

Felix, knowing quite well about the doctrine, then adjourned the hearing, saying: "When General Lysias comes down, I will decide your case." He also directed the captain who attended to Paul, to allow him out on parole, and to prevent none of his friends from visiting him.

Paul's Interview with Felix and his Wife.

But after some days, Felix, at the request of his wife, Drusilla, who was a Jewess, sent for Paul, and listened to him concerning the faith in Christ Jesus. But when he discoursed about justice, self-control, and of the future judgment, Felix, becoming terrified, interrupted with: "Go away for the present; and when I have an opportunity I will send for you again."

He hoped as well that Paul would give him money; for which reason he also sent for him the more frequently to converse with him. After the lapse of two years, however, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and Felix, desiring to ingratiate himself with the Jews, left Paul a prisoner.

Paul before Festus.

He appeals to Cæsar.

Festus therefore having entered into the government of the province, three days afterwards went up to Jerusalem from Cæsaræa, when the chief priests and Jewish senators appeared before him against Paul; and appealed to him, asking as a favour, that he would send him back to Jerusalem—their-

4 selves plotting to murder him on the road. Festus, however, told them in reply, that Paul should be detained at Cæsarea; and that he was himself about to return there at an early date.

5 He also added, "Let those therefore who are in authority among you go down with me; and if there is anything against this man, they can then indict him."

6 When he had stayed among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Cæsarea; and taking his seat upon the bench on the following day, he ordered Paul to be brought. But when he was produced, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood around him, bringing forward numerous as well as serious charges, which they were unable to prove. While Paul, in his defence, said, "Neither against the Jewish law, nor against the temple, nor against the Emperor, have I offended in any way."

9 Festus, however, anxious to ingratiate himself with the Jews, in answer, asked Paul, "Do you desire to go up to Jerusalem, there to be tried in respect of these matters before me?"

10 But Paul replied, "I am standing before the tribunal of the Emperor, where I ought to be tried. I have never injured Judeans, as also you have clearly ascertained. If, however, I have injured, or have committed anything deserving of death, I do not fear to die. But if there is nothing in what they charge me with, no man is able to dispose of me to gratify them. I appeal to the Emperor."

12 Then Festus, having conferred with his council, answered, "You have appealed to the Emperor; you shall go to the Emperor."

Festus and Agrippa.

13 When several days had intervened, King Agrippa and Bernicē arrived at Cæsarea, to congratulate Festus.

14 And as they remained there for some time, Festus submitted the case of Paul to the king, remarking, "There is a man here who was left a prisoner

15 by Felix, respecting whom, on my arrival in Jerusalem, the chief priests and Judean senators asked for sentence to be pronounced against him.

16 I told them in reply that it was not a custom with the Romans to surrender any man, before the accused had his prosecutors face to face, and an opportunity afforded him of defending the charge brought against him. When therefore they were assembled here, I took my seat upon the bench without delay on the following day, and ordered the man to be produced. Against him, however, when the prosecutors appeared, they brought forward no criminal charge whatever, such as I had expected; but merely some disputes in reference to their own superstition, and about one Jesus, a dead person, whom Paul asserted to be alive. And being myself at a loss how to deal with such questions, I asked if he desired to go to Jerusalem, there to take his trial in regard to them. Paul himself appealing, however, for his case to be deferred for the decision of His Majesty, I accordingly ordered him to be detained until I could send him to the Emperor."

"I should myself also like to hear this man," remarked Agrippa to Festus.

"To-morrow, then, you shall hear him," was his reply.

So on the following day, Agrippa came, and Bernicē, with stately pomp. And entering the audience-chamber with the Generals and the principal men of the city, Paul, at the command of Festus, was also brought in.

Festus then said: "King Agrippa, and all other men now present with us, you see this man, about whom the whole mass of the Judeans both at Jerusalem and here have distracted me, roaring that he ought to live no longer. I found, however, that he had committed nothing deserving of death; and as he himself appealed to the Emperor, I decided to send him. But concerning him I have nothing of a definite character to write to my master. I have consequently brought him out before you all—and especially before you, King Agrippa—so that after full examination, I may have something to write for it seems to me absurd, when sending a prisoner, not to notify at the same time the nature of the charges against him."

Paul's Defence before Agrippa

Agrippa then said to Paul: "Permission is granted you to speak for yourself."

Paul, therefore, extending his hand, made his defence as follows:

2 "About everything in respect of which I am accused by the Judeans, King Agrippa, I consider myself happy in being able to defend myself
3 before you to-day; especially so, as you are fully conversant with all the customs as well as the disputes of the Judeans. I consequently beg you to listen to me patiently.
4 "My mode of life from my youth from my first coming into my nation at Jerusalem, all Judeans know; who knew me from the above time, if they would give evidence, that, according to the very strictest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee. And now, for that Hope, which came from God a promise to our fathers, I stand
5 trial; for which our twelve tribes constantly pray both night and day in confident expectation to secure—
6 for that Hope, King, I am accused as a criminal by the Judeans!
7 "What! would it seem incredible to you if God should raise the dead?
8 I indeed persuaded myself that I ought to do much in opposition to the report about Jesus of Nazareth: which I did in Jerusalem, where I shut up in prison many of the holy, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were being condemned to death, I voted against 9 them. And throughout all the synagogues, I frequently forced them, by torturing, to blaspheme; and furiously
10 and against them, I persecuted them also in distant cities. For which purpose, proceeding to Damascus, holding an office and a commission equal to 11 that of the chief priests, at mid-day upon the road, King, I saw a light from heaven, eclipsing the splendour of the sun, shining around me and those travelling with me. And when we had all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice speaking to me in the Hebrew dialect, 'Saul! Saul! why do you persecute Me? It is hard for you to kick against the pricks.'
12 "Who are you, Sir?' I asked.
13 "But the Lord replied, 'I am Jesus Whom you persecute. Rise up, however, and stand upon your feet; for I have appeared to you to appoint you to be a minister and witness, both of what you learnt from Me, and also of what I will reveal to you. Having educated you among My people, as well as among the heathen, to whom 14 I send you, to open their eyes, and turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to that of God; so that they may receive release from sins, and a participation with the purified by faith in Me.'

"After that, King Agrippa, I was 19 not apathetic to the heavenly vision; but first to those in Damascus, and 20 then in Jerusalem, as well as throughout the whole district of Judea, and also among the heathen, I have announced a change of mind and return to God, leading a life of noble works, since that change. On account of these, some Judeans, seizing me in the temple, attempted to overpower me. However, having obtained protection—even the protection from God—until this day I have stood bearing witness to both small and great; asserting nothing but what the prophets, as well as Moses, declared should come to pass—that the 21 Suffering Messiah should, in the first place, by means of a resurrection from among the dead, proclaim light both to the people and to the heathen."

As he was thus proceeding with his 24 defence, Festus exclaimed with a loud voice, "Paul! you are mad! your great learning has turned to madness!"

But Paul replied, "I am not mad, 25 most noble Festus. On the contrary, I am uttering thoughts of truth and sanity: for the king understands about 26 them, before whom also I speak with perfect frankness; because I am certain that none of these matters have escaped him: for this event was not done in a corner. King Agrippa! 27 do you believe the prophets? I know you believe that * * *!"

Then Agrippa said to Paul, "You 28 almost persuade me to be made a Christian."

But Paul replied, "I wish to God 29 that not only almost, but altogether—not only you, but all who listen to me to-day—might become in every respect such as I am, except these bonds * * *!"

Then the king arose, as well as the 30 Governor, and Bernicē, and the others sitting with them; and withdrawing, 31 they discussed the case among themselves, remarking, "This man has done nothing deserving of death, nor even imprisonment."

Agrippa also said to Festus, "This 32 man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed to the Emperor,"

The Voyage to Rome.

- 27 Then, as it was decided that we should sail for Italy, they delivered Paul, as well as some other prisoners, to a Captain named Julius, of the 2 Augustan regiment. And embarking in an Adramyttium vessel, which was about to sail to some ports along the coast of Asia-Minor, we weighed anchor, taking with us Aristarchus, a 3 Macedonian of Thessalonica. We accordingly arrived at Sidon upon the following day, when Julius, treating Paul with much consideration, granted him permission to visit his friends to enjoy their attentions.
- 4 Proceeding then from there, we sailed, on account of the adverse 5 winds, under the lee of Cyprus. And steering across the open sea towards Cilicia and Pamphylia, we arrived at 6 Myra of Lycia, where the Captain found an Alexandrian vessel sailing for Italy; and to her he transferred 7 us. For several days, however, we made but little progress, and with difficulty fetching Cuidus, the wind not favouring us, we tacked under the 8 lee of Crete, towards Salmonē; and, coasting along it with difficulty, we came to a port called the Fair Havens, near which was the town of Lasea.
- 9 After considerable delay there, and the voyage having become dangerous, Paul, owing to the fact that the time of the festival was already past, said 10 to them, "Men, I perceive that the voyage is likely to be attended with disaster, and considerable loss, not only of the cargo of the vessel, but also to our lives."
- 11 The Captain, however, paid more attention to the pilot and the commander of the ship than he did to 12 what was said by Paul. As, moreover, the harbour was not commodious enough for wintering purposes, the officers, having held a consultation, decided to sail from there; so that, for wintering, they might attempt at all hazards to reach Phenicē, a harbour of Crete, facing towards the north-west of Libia.

The Storm and Shipwreck.

- 13 Under the impression, then, that they could accomplish their object, as the south wind was blowing gently, they coasted Crete, hugging 14 the shore. Not long after, however, they were overtaken by a typhoon wind, called "Euroclydon," the north-east breaker. The vessel being thus 15 caught, and unable to face the wind, we gave way, and scudded. Running then under the shelter of an 16 island called Clauda, we were able to secure the boat with some difficulty; and when they had hoisted it, they 17 proceeded to strengthen the ship by vam-braces. Afraid, also, that they would be caught in the Syrtis,¹ lowering the top-masts, they thus drifted along. And battling as they were with 18 the storm, they began on the following day to throw the cargo overboard; and on the third day, with their own 19 hands, they threw out the furniture from the ship. Then when neither 20 sun nor stars were to be seen for several days, and the storm still raged around with fury, we abandoned all hope of being saved. Being also upon 21 the verge of starvation, Paul, taking his stand among them, said:

"You ought, men, to have been persuaded by me, and not to have sailed from Crete, to incur this damage and misery. Still, on the other hand, I 22 even now advise you to take courage: for there will be no loss of life among you, but merely of the ship; because 23 an angel from that God, Whose I am, and Whom I serve, this very night stood beside me, saying, 'Do not be 24 afraid, Paul! It is necessary for you to appear before the Emperor; yes, and God has presented to you all those who sail with you.' Therefore, mates, 25 cheer up! because I believe God, that the result will be just as He has told me. It is necessary for us, however, 26 to be wrecked upon some island."

About midnight of the fourteenth 27 night, during which we had been tossed about in the Adria, the sailors imagined that they were approaching land of some kind; and sounding, they 28 found a depth of twenty fathoms. And sounding again a little later, they found fifteen fathoms. Afraid, then, 29 that we should be stranded upon rocks, they cast four anchors from the stern, and longed for day-break. Then, as the sailors were intending 30 to forsake the ship, and were in the act of lowering the boat into the sea, under the pretence of carrying anchors from the prow, Paul said to the Cap- 31 tain and to the soldiers, "Unless these remain in the ship, you cannot be saved."

32 The soldiers accordingly cut the ropes of the boat, allowing her to drift off. Then, until the day should come, Paul invited all of them to take some food, remarking, "This is to-day the fourteenth day you have been in anxiety without regular rations, none 34 having been served out. I invite you, therefore, to serve out food; because that will contribute to your safety; for not a single hair shall perish from one of your heads."

35 Having said this, and taking a biscuit, he gave thanks to God in the presence of all, and breaking it, he began to eat. Their courage then reviving, they also provided a meal for themselves. And we were, all told, two hundred and seventy-six lives in the ship. Being then satisfied with the meal, they proceeded to lighten the ship by throwing the wheat overboard.

39 When the day dawned, however, they could not distinguish the land; but observing a bay with a sandy shore, they consulted whether it would be possible to beach the vessel upon it. So letting the anchors go in the sea, loosening at the same time the lashings of the rudders, and hoisting the foresail to the breeze, they made 41 for the shore. But, whirling into the breakers, the ship grounded; and the stem having bilged, stuck fast, while the stern was washed over by the breakers.

42 The soldiers then resolved to kill the prisoners, being afraid that they would escape by swimming. But the Captain, anxious to save Paul, prohibited their intention, and gave orders that those who were able to swim should first throw themselves overboard to reach the shore; and that the rest should follow, some on planks, and some on fragments from the ship. And thus all escaped safely to the land.

In Malta.

26 Having then escaped, we learned that the island was named Melita. 2 And the foreigners treated us with no ordinary kindness; for, lighting a fire, they attended to all of us in difficulty through the dreaching rain, and the cold. Paul then collected a bundle of sticks, and having heaped them upon the fire, a viper escaping from the heat, caught hold of his hand. 4 The foreigners then seeing the reptile hanging from his hand, remarked to one another, "There is no doubt that this man is a murderer; who, although he has escaped the sea, still Justice will not allow him to live!"

Shaking off the reptile into the fire, 5 however, he took no harm. And expecting that he would swell up, or suddenly drop down dead, they waited in suspense for a considerable time; but observing nothing unusual happen to him, they then changed their minds, and declared him to be a god.

Now in the neighbourhood of that 7 spot was situated the estate of the chief of the island, a man named Publius, who welcomed us, and entertained us for three days with great kindness. And it so happened that 8 the father of Publius was lying prostrated with an attack of fever and dysentery. Paul accordingly went in to him, and praying, placed his hands upon him, and cured him. But when 9 this was done, the others in the island who were afflicted with diseases also came and were cured. They also honoured us in many ways; and on our departure, they provided for us on board everything that we needed.

Arrival at Rome.

Three months having elapsed, we 11 then embarked in an Alexandrian vessel, which had wintered in the island, the name of which was the Twin Brothers. Landing then at 12 Syracuse, we remained there for three days; but sailing round from there in 13 a contrary wind, we arrived at Rhegium. Lying there for one day, a southern wind sprang up; so sailing on the second day, we arrived at Puteoli. Here we found brethren, 14 who prevailed upon us to stay with them for seven days. We then proceeded to Rome. There, too, the 15 brethren, having heard about us, came out to meet us as far as the Market of Appius, and the Three Taverns; and Paul, having seen them, thanked God, and took heart.

But when we arrived in Rome, the 16 Captain delivered the prisoners to the Commander-in-chief; but Paul was permitted to live by himself, with the soldier attending him, outside the garrison.

An Interview with the Jews.

Three days afterwards, he invited 17 the principal men among the Jews;

and when they had assembled, he said to them :

- "Men, brothers, although I have done nothing in opposition to the people, or to the customs of our forefathers, I have nevertheless been committed as a prisoner from Jerusalem to the hands of the Romans; 18 who, after examination, desired to discharge me, because they found me 19 guilty of no capital crime. But when the Judeans opposed it, I was obliged to appeal to the Emperor; not, however, because I had any charge to 20 bring against my nation. This therefore is the reason why I have invited you to see me and converse together; because it is for the sake of the Hope of Israel that I am branded with this chain."
- 21 "We neither received from Judea letters concerning you," they answered him, "nor have any of the brethren arriving reported or spoken anything 22 bad about you. But we would like to hear from yourself what you really think; for, respecting this sect, we well know that it is everywhere condemned."
- 23 Having accordingly appointed a day with him, a good many of them visited him at his lodgings; to whom he explained the evidence of the Kingdom of God, and persuaded them about Jesus, both from the law of Moses and the prophets, from morning 24 until evening. And some, indeed, were persuaded by his reasoning, and 25 they believed; but others not in accord with one another went away; Paul uttering one remark :

"That the Holy Spirit certainly spoke well to your forefathers through Isaiah the prophet, saying : 26
 GO YOU TO THIS PEOPLE, AND SAY :
 HEARING, YOU SHALL LISTEN, AND SHALL NEVER UNDERSTAND ; AND SEEING, YOU SHALL SEE, AND NEVER PERCEIVE :
 FOR THE HEART OF THIS PEOPLE 27
 HAS BECOME CORRUPT ;
 THE HEARING OF THEIR EARS HAS BECOME DULL ;
 WHILE THEY HAVE SHUT THEIR EYES ;
 LEST THEY SHOULD PERCEIVE WITH THEIR EYES, HEAR WITH THEIR EARS, UNDERSTAND WITH THEIR HEART, AND SHOULD TURN BACK,
 AND I WOULD HEAL THEM.¹

"Let it therefore be known to you 28 that this salvation from God has been sent to the heathen; and they will 29 hear it."²

For two whole years afterwards he 30 remained in his own hired residence, welcoming all who went to him, proclaiming the Kingdom of God, and teaching concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with unlimited freedom. * * * *

³ NOTE.—This eloquent history of a part of St. Paul's life, written by his cousin and Physician, St. Luke, under his own supervision, was left unfinished, probably by his execution and martyrdom. By this we have lost the record of his Evangelization of Western Europe,—which would have been the most interesting part to us.—F. P.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE ROMANS.

The Introduction.

1 PAUL, a servant of Jesus Christ, appointed a special apostle of a 2 good promise of God; which He had formerly announced in the sacred 3 writings of His prophets, respecting
His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord;
4 physically born from the line of David, but powerfully defined a Son of God, by a resurrection from the dead, through a spirit of holiness.
5 From Whom we received a charge and commission to subdue all nations to 6 faith in His Name; with all of whom,
7 you are included by Jesus Christ, and all the holy chosen friends of God who are in Rome;—love, and peace to you from our Father God and Lord Jesus Christ.

First Essay.

CHRISTIANITY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF PURE REASON AND HUMAN EXPERIENCE.

8 First, I will thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, because your faith is celebrated in the whole world.
9 For that God is my witness, Whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of His Son, how constantly I remember 10 you, continually inquiring in my prayers when it may be granted to me by the favour of God to come to you.
11 For I long to see you, so that I may 12 communicate with your spiritual gift, to strengthen you. And that will be a comfort to our mutual faith—yours and mine.
13 Now I do not wish you to ignore, brothers, that I have often intended to visit you, but so far have been prevented; for I wish to gather some result from you as from the other 14 nations. I am indebted for tribute from Greeks, foreigners, philosophers, 15 and illiterates; and therefore I incite myself to evangelize you who are in Rome.
16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel;
for it is a Divine power to save every believer, Jew first, and then Greek.

for a Divine righteousness is displayed in it from a faith to a faith; as it is written, THE RIGHTEOUS SHALL LIVE BY FAITH.¹ For it reveals a 18 Divine displeasure from heaven upon all wickedness and iniquity of men who pervert the true into the false; 19 although the knowledge of God is clear within themselves, God having revealed it to them. For from creat-20 ing a Universe His unseen attributes, power, and Divine nature might have been clearly comprehended by means of the created facts. Consequently they are inexcusable. Because, know-21 ing God, they did not joyfully honour Him as God; but trifled in their argumentations, and darkened their senseless hearts. Professing to be 22 philosophers, they played the fool;
and transformed the majesty of the 23 imperishable God into an image of perishable man, and of birds, and of beasts, and of reptiles!

Therefore, God abandoned them in 24 the lusts of their hearts to filthiness, to dishonour their own bodies to themselves; because having changed the truth of God into falsehood, they 25 honoured and used the Created contrary to the intention of the Creator,
Who is truly blessed in all ages.
26 In consequence, God abandoned them to shameful passion. For their women perverted the natural use to one contrary to nature; and in 27 the same way, the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, were inflamed in their lust for one another, men with men acting scandalously, and receiving in themselves the right punishment of their crime.

And as they did not desire to have 28 God acknowledged, God abandoned them to an uninquiring mind, to practise what is loathsome. Filled 29 with all injustice, depravity, greed, evil; crammed with envy, murder,

strife, deceit; foul-mannered, libel-30 lous, defamers; God-haters, spiteful, envious; impostors, inventors of vice;
 31 disobedient to parents; senseless, treacherous, unnatural, merciless;
 32 while acknowledging the decrees of God—that they who practise such deserve death—not only do them, but delight in those who practise.

2 Therefore, man, you are inexcusable in condemning any one; for by what you condemn in another you convict yourself, for you practise the self-same 2 things that you reprove. And we know that the Divine reprobation is certainly 3 upon those who practise them. But, man, do you fancy that by condemning those who practise them, you will escape the reprobation of God, while 4 you act in the same way? Or, do you mistake the wealth of His mercy, and the gentleness of His forbearance?—
 not reflecting that the mercy of God should lead you to change your mind?

5 But, instead, by your perverse and unchanging heart you store up for yourself fury against a day of fury and revelation of God's righteous decrees;
 6 Who will render to every one what he 7 has done: to those who by patient well-doing seek rectification, honour, 8 and incorruption—eternal life; but to the rebellious and disobedient to the True, who persuade to the False—9 fury and anger, suffering and punishment, on every human soul that does 10 evil, whether Jew or Grecian; but praise, and honour, and peace, to all who do good, whether Jew or Greek;
 11 for THERE IS NO FLATTERY WITH 12 GOD.¹ For whoever sins without a law shall perish without a law; and whoever sins under a law shall be 13 condemned by a law; for the listeners to law are not righteous in the sight of God; but those who practise law will be righteous.

14 For when a nation not possessing the law practises the demands of the law naturally, they, not having a law, 15 are a law to themselves; they furnish proof of the effect of the law recorded in their hearts, their conscience attesting, and their reflections condemning 16 or approving mutually, in the day when God will judge the secrets of men, according to my good news through Jesus Christ.

17 But you may be entitled a Jew, and

rely upon a Law, and boast about God, and know His will, and distin- 18 guish the differences (being taught by the Law); and are confident your- 19 self to be a guide to the blind, a light to those in darkness, an instructor of 20
 the foolish, a teacher of children;
 having in the Law the outline of the knowledge of the truth:—

You teacher of another—should you 21 not teach yourself?

You preaching against theft—you are a thief!

You saying, "Commit not adul- 22
 tery"—you are an adulterer!

You loathing idols—you rob the Temple!

While boasting about the Law— 23 through the violation of that Law you dishonour God!

For, as it is written, THROUGH YOU 24
 THE NAME OF GOD IS DEFAMED
 AMONG THE HEATHEN.¹

Circumcision certainly may benefit, 25
 if you act up to law; but if you are a violator of law, your circumcision becomes paganised. Therefore, if 26 the uncircumcised should regard the decrees of the Law, would not his paganism be considered equivalent to circumcision? And then the physically 27 uncircumcised will, by fulfilling the law, condemn you, who violate the Law in spite of instruction and circumcision.

For the Jew is not in the appear- 28 ance, nor the circumcision in a physical mark; but a Jew is internal, 29 and by circumcision of heart, in spirit —not letter—the approbation of which is not from men, but from God.

(Jewish Opponent.) "Then what 3 advantage has the Jew? or what is the benefit of the circumcision?"

(Paul.) "Great in all respects; for 2 first, indeed, they were entrusted with the intentions of God."

(Jew.) "What for? If some were 3 unfaithful, would not their unfaithfulness destroy God's trust?"

(Paul.) "It would not. God must 4 be true, although every man were false; as it is written:

SO THAT YOU MIGHT BE JUSTIFIED
 IN YOUR DESIGNS, AND TRIUMPHANT WHEN EXA-MINED."²

(Jew.) "But if our wickedness con- 5 firms the righteousness of God, then should we not conclude that the anger-bearing God is unjust? I speak humanly."

- 6 (Paul.) "Never! for then how could 7 God judge the world? For if God could by my falsehood be exalted to His honour, how could I be con-8 demned as a wrong-doer? And should not we, as we are libelled, and as certain people accuse us of teaching, do evil that good might come? Their reprobation is right."
9 (Jew.) "Well, then, we are the superior?"

- (Paul.) "Not at all! For we have all, both Jew and Greek, decided to 10 serve sin, as it is written:

THAT THERE IS NOT ONE RIGHT-EOUS—NOT ONE.

- 11 NO ONE IS INTELLIGENT,
NONE IS SEEKING OUT GOD.
12 ALL HAVE LEFT THE RANKS; QUITE INEFFICIENT;
NONE ARE OF USE—NOT EVEN
ONE.¹
13 THEIR THROAT IS A YAWNING GRAVE;

- 9 "And we know that what the Law says, it says to those under the law;
so that every mouth may be stopped, and the whole world may come under 20 judgment to God. Therefore by the practice of a ritual, none can be made righteous in His presence; yet, however, a recognition of sin comes by means of law.

- 21 "But now, without a ritual, a Divine righteousness is exhibited, attested by 22 the law and the prophets; a Divine righteousness by means of a Faith from Jesus Christ, to all believers;— 23 for there is no distinction; because all sin, and are in need of rectification 24 from God. They are made righteous freely by His gift through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus; Whom 25

God has set forward as a mercy-seat, through faith in His blood, to show
His righteousness through the pardon of past sins by the gentleness of God;
and to display His righteousness at 26 this present time, so that He might be righteous Himself, and make the believer in Jesus righteous as well."

- (Jew.) "Where then is our pride?" 27
(Paul.) "It is banished."
(Jew.) "By what law? By the rituals?"

(Paul.) "No! but by a law of faith.
Therefore we have argued that a man 28 may be righteous by a faith distinct from a law of rituals."

(Jew.) "He is the God of Jews 29 only, not of heathens."

(Paul.) "Yes, of heathens as well!
For it is the same God Who makes 30 circumcision righteous from a faith, and paganism through the faith.
'Then,' you will say, 'we destroy 31 law for the sake of the faith?'
Never! On the contrary, we corroborate law."

(Jew.) "What shall we say, then, 4 that our ancestor Abraham attained to in the course of his life. For if 2 Abraham were made righteous by rituals, he had ground for boasting."

(Paul.) "But not before God! For 3 what says the Scripture? ABRAHAM
TRUSTED TO GOD, AND IT WAS PAID TO HIM IN RIGHTEOUSNESS.¹ But to 4 a labourer the wages are not paid as a kindness, but as a debt; while to 5 him who practised no ritual, but confided on Him Who makes the sinful righteous, his faith was paid with righteousness. As David, indeed, 6 also relates the happiness of the man to whom God grants righteousness apart from rituals:

THEY ARE HAPPY WHOSE VIOLA- 7
TIONS OF THE LAW ARE FOR-GIVEN,
AND WHOSE SINS ARE OBLITER-ATED;

HAPPY THE MAN WHOSE SINS 8
THE LORD WILL NOT REPAY.²

"This happiness, therefore, belongs 9 to the circumcised and the pagan; for we argue that to Abraham his faith was repaid with righteousness."

² Psa. xxxi. 1, 2.

- 10 (Jew.) "But when was it repaid? Under circumcision, or while uncircumcised?"
- (Paul.) "Not in circumcision, but while uncircumcised; and he received a token by circumcision, an evidence of his faithful righteousness while not circumcised, so that he might be the father of all uncircumcised believers, to whom righteousness will also be granted; and a father of circumcision, not only to those simply circumcised, but to all arranging themselves in the path of the faith of our uncircumcised ancestor Abraham.
- 13 For the promise, that he should inherit the world, was not given through a ritual to Abraham or to his race; but through a righteous faith.
- 14 For if they inherited through a ritual, the faith would be nullified, and the promise abolished."
- 15 (Jew.) "However, the law abolished anger?"
- (Paul.) "Yet where there is no law, there is no transgression of it. Therefore it springs from faith, coinciding with a gift, so as to confirm the promise to all his race; not to those through the law only, but also to those of Abraham's faith, who is the father of us all. As it is recorded: I HAVE APPOINTED YOU A FATHER OF MANY NATIONS,¹ in the sight of God in Whom he trusted, Who restores the dead to life, and names the non-existent as if existent. Who trusted on hope against hope that he would be the father of many nations; according to the expression, THUS SHALL YOUR RACE BE.² And, not weak in faith, he regarded not his own body already deadened, when he was nearly a hundred years old, nor the barrenness of Sarah! Nor did he doubtfully criticise the promise of God; but was strong in faith, giving praise to God, and was perfectly satisfied that what He promised He could also perform: and therefore he was paid with righteousness. But it was not recorded for him only that it was so paid to him, but also for us to whom it will be granted; to us, the believers on Him Who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, Who was betrayed through our sins, and raised through our righteousness.
- 5 "Therefore, having become righteous from a faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ; by Whom we have also the access by that faith unto this gift in which we stand, and we exult in hope of the rectification from God. And not only that: but we also exult in our afflictions, perceiving that the affliction produces patience, and patience inquiry, and inquiry hope, and not a hope that disgraces; because the love of God is poured into our hearts through a spirit of holiness, which He has given to us. For, at the very time when we were helpless, Christ died for the sake of the ungodly. For, while hardly any one would die for the sake of a righteous man—though for a benefactor some might perhaps hazard death—God established His love towards us by Christ dying for our sake when we were still sinners.

"How much more, then, having been made righteous in His blood, shall we be delivered from the madness of sin by Him! For if, while we were enemies, we were led back to God by means of the death of His Son; how much rather having been led back, shall we be saved by His life! Not only that, but we exult also in God because of our Lord Jesus Christ, through Whom we have now received that return.

"Because, as by one man sin entered the world, and through the sin the death, and thus death passed into all men, supposing indeed that all sin; for law was in the world before sin; for sin would not be charged if a law did not exist. However, death reigned from Adam to Moses, and over those who did not sin after the manner of the transgression of Adam, who was a type of the future.

"But the free gift, however, is not like the transgression. For if from the sin of this one the many died, much more the gift of God and the endowment with that gift of the other Man, Jesus Christ, will overflow to the many. And that gift is not as it would be with a single sinner; for out of the guilt of the one came condemnation; but by the gift from the other came rectification from many transgressions. For if, by the transgression of that one, death reigned through that one, how much rather will those receiving the abundant gift and endowment of righteousness reign in life through that other, Jesus Christ?

¹Genesis xvii. 5. ²Genesis xv. 5.

18 Since, therefore, by transgression of the one, condemnation came upon all men; thus also by righteousness of the other, righteousness of life is brought to all men. For as by the disobedience of that one man the many were made sinners, so by the obedience of the other the many will be constituted righteous.

20 "But a law intervened, so that the transgression might be obvious; yet, where the sin exceeded, the gift went far beyond it. So that as sin reigned with death, thus also the gift should reign through righteousness, to eternal life, by our Lord Jesus Christ."

6 (Jew.) "What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, so that the gift may exceed it?"

2 (Paul.) "Never! Since we died by sin, how can we still live in it? Can you forget that as many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death? Consequently, we were buried with Him, through the baptism into His death; so that as Christ was raised from the dead by the rectification from His Father, thus we also ought to conduct ourselves in a renewed life. For if we have been engrafted into the likeness of His death, then we shall also be into that of His resurrection; recognising this, that our old man has been crucified with Him, so that the personality of sin might be destroyed, for us no more to slave for sin; for the dead is liberated from sin.

8 "But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall equally live with Him; knowing that Christ, having risen from the dead, cannot again die. Death can no more dominate Him. For when He died, He died by sin once for all; but when He lived, He lived from God. Therefore you should consider yourselves to be dead indeed to sin, but alive with God in Christ Jesus. Consequently, do not allow sin to reign in your mortal body, to obey its lusts; neither present your organs to sin as instruments of wickedness; but offer yourselves to God as alive from the dead, and your organs as instruments of righteousness for God; because sin must not govern you now you are not under a law, but under a gift."

15 (Jew.) "What then—shall we sin because we are not under law, but under a gift?"

16 (Paul.) "Never! Know you not that to whoever you present yourselves as obedient slaves, you are slaves to those you obey; whether of sin to death, or of obedience to righteousness? But, thank God, that although you were slaves of sin, now you heartily obey the rules of the discipline under which you enlisted; and, being liberated from sin, you are engaged by righteousness. I speak humanly, because of your natural weakness. For as you presented your organs slaves to impurity and unrestrained lawlessness, so now you should present your organs slaves to righteousness in holiness. For then you were slaves of sin, but now you are freemen of righteousness. What benefit had you then from those practices that now shame you? for their result is death. But now, having been freed from sin, and serving with God, you have the fruit of your consecration; the result is eternal life. For the wages of sin is death; but the free gift of God is eternal life in Jesus Christ our Lord.

"Do you forget, brethren (for I speak to those who acknowledge law), that the law governs man during the whole time of his life? For the married woman is given by law for her husband's life; but if the husband should die, she is freed from that law of marriage. Therefore she will be regarded as an adulteress if she goes to another man during her husband's life; but if her husband should die, she is a woman freed from that law, and will not be an adulteress if she goes to another husband.

"In the same way, my brothers, you have died to the law through the body of Christ, for the purpose of devoting yourselves to another, to the One who was raised from the dead, so that you may produce fruit to God. For when we were in our sensuality, the passions of sinners against the law stimulated our organs to produce fruit to death. But now we are released from that law—that by which we were possessed, having died—so that we may serve in a renewed spirit, and not by an old letter."

(Jew.) "What then—shall we say the law was wrong?"

(Paul.) "No! on the contrary, I should not have comprehended the sin, except by means of a law; and I should not have known what the lust was, if the law had not said, YOU

8 SHALL NOT LUST.¹ But sin, having taken a basis of operations against that command, incited every lust in me. For, disconnected from law, sin is non-existent. But I lived then without a law; however, on the command arriving, again sin revived, but I died. And for me the command, which was intended for life, was found to be death. For sin, having taken a base of operations against the command, defeated me, and by itself slew me. Therefore the law is right, and its command holy, just, and good."

13 (Jew.) "The good became death to me, then?"

(Paul.) "Never! But sin, so that it might be manifest as sin, in spite of that good, effected my death; so that sin, by means of the command, might be beyond doubt excessively sinful.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am sensual, completely subject to sin. And what I shall do, I know not; for I do not practise what I wish, but I do what I hate. But if I practise what I wish not, I agree with the law that it is noble. And then it is no longer I myself who am doing it, but sin dwelling in me. For I know that no good resides in me—that is, in my sensuality—although the wish lies beside me; but where is the power to avail myself of its benefit? for I do not do the good that I wish, but practise the evil that I do not desire! Therefore, if I do that which I do not wish, it is not myself that does it, but sin dwelling in me. I consequently discover the law, by my desiring to do the right even while the wrong lies beside me. For from the internal man I delight in the law of God; but I perceive a foreign law in my faculties, contending against the law of my mind, and dragging me captive to the law of sin which is in possession of my organs. I am a wretched man! what can deliver me from this deadly carcass? The gift of God through our Lord Jesus Christ! So I myself certainly serve with my mind to a law of God; but by my sensuality to a law of sin."

9 Therefore, now there is no condemnation for those in Christ Jesus.

2 For the law of the Spirit of the life in Christ Jesus has freed me from the 3 law of sin and of death. For because of the inability of the Law, which was weakened by the physical nature, God has sent His own Son in the likeness of a sinful body, and on account of sin, condemned the sin in the body; so that the decree of the Law might be accomplished by us, who conduct ourselves not in harmony with sensuality, but in harmony with spirituality. For those who are in harmony with sensuality meditate about the gratification of their sensuality; but those in harmony with spirit, what pertains to the spirit. For the desire of sensuality brings Death; but the desire of the spirit Life and peace. Because the desire of sensuality is hatred of God; for it neither can nor will be obedient to God's law; and indeed they who are sensual cannot please God.

However, you are not sensual, but spiritual, if indeed a Divine Spirit resides in you; and if any one has not a Christ-like spirit, he is not His. But if Christ is in you, then the body is dead in respect to sin; but the spirit lives through righteousness. But if the Spirit Who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, He Who raised Christ Jesus from the dead will revive your deadened bodies by His indwelling Spirit. Therefore, then, brothers, we are not bound to live wickedly according to the senses. For if you live according to the senses, you will die; but if spiritually you destroy the practices of sensuality, you will be living. For as many as are led by Divine Spirit, they are sons of God; since you have not received a slavish spirit to fear again; but you have received a filial spirit, in which we say, Abba, Father. Thus the Spirit witnesses to our own spirit that we are children of God. But if children, then heirs; heirs certainly of God, and co-heirs with Christ. If we suffer together, then we shall be rectified together.

For I conclude that the sufferings of the present time are nothing compared to the rectification that will be revealed through us; for the longing desire of the Creation expects the revealing of the sons of God. For the created shrinks back from futility, not desiring it, but has been subjected in hope; because even the Creation will be freed from the slavery of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God. For we know that all the Creation groans and agonises

23 until now; and not alone: but also we, who possess the first-fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan in ourselves, expecting the sonship—the redemption from our sensuality.

24 For we are saved by hope: but hope visible is not hope; for who hopes for what he already sees? But if we hope for what we see not, we shall receive it by patience. Therefore the Spirit supports our weakness; for we know not rightly what we should pray for: but our own spirit itself pleads with stammering sighings; and the Searcher of hearts sees the object of our spirit, when He intercedes with God for the saints.

25 And we know that to those loving God everything works together for good, to those who are set apart for His purposes. For He previously knew them, and appointed them to conformity with the image of His Son; so that He might be the firstborn among many brothers. But whom He prepared, those He also called; and whom He called, those He made righteous; yes, made them righteous and distinguished them.

26 What, then, shall we say about these? If God for us, who against us? If He did not retain His own Son, but parted with Him for us all, how much rather will He also give us everything with Him! Who can accuse God's chosen? God the Judge? Who will condemn? Christ the dead? nay, rather, the Risen from the dead, Who is upon the right hand of God, and Who also intercedes for us? What can drive us from the love of Christ? affliction? or oppression? or persecution? or famine? or nakedness? or danger? or sword? Just as it is written:

WE ARE KILLED ALL THE DAY ON ACCOUNT OF YOU!

WE ARE REGARDED AS SHEEP FOR SLAUGHTER.¹

27 But in all these we more than conquer through His having loved us.

28 For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor authorities, nor present, nor future, nor power, nor height, nor depth, nor any other created thing, is able to separate us from the love of God in our Lord Christ Jesus!

Second Essay.

CHRISTIANITY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE HEBREW REVELATION.

In Christ I speak the truth—I lie 9 not—my conscience with a holy spirit witnessing to me that I have a great 2 grief, and an indelible anguish at my heart. For I could wish myself to 3 be cut off from Christ, instead of my brothers, my kindred by race—who 4 are Israelites; from whom are the adoption and the renown, and the covenants and the law-giving; the Divine service and the promises; of 5 whom were the fathers, and from amongst whom the Messiah who is above all became incarnate, thank God, for ever.

The design of God has not failed, 6 however: for not all those from Israel are Israel; neither all Abraham's 7 children are heirs; but FROM ISAAC SHALL YOUR HEIR BE CALLED.¹ That 8 is, the children of his body are not the children of God; but the offspring of the promise shall be considered an heir. For the message of promise 9 was this: I WILL COME AT THAT TIME, AND THERE SHALL BE A SON TO SARAH.² And not that only: but 10 Rebecca having conceived from that one, our ancestor Isaac—before they 11 were born, neither having done good nor ill; so that the recorded purpose of God should continue, not through institutions, but from His calling—it 12 was said to her, THAT THE ELDER SHOULD SERVE THE YOUNGER;³ as it is written, I HAVE CHOSEN JACOB, AND REJECTED ESAU.⁴

(Jew.) "Well, then, must we not 14 say: 'There is injustice with God?'"

(Paul.) "No! For He said to 15 Moses: I WILL PITY THOSE I MAY PITY, AND I WILL COMPASSIONATE THOSE I MAY COMPASSIONATE.⁵ Therefore it comes not from him who 16 wills, nor from him who runs; but from the merciful God. For the Scripture 17 says to Pharaoh: I HAVE RAISED YOU FOR THIS VERY PURPOSE, SO THAT THROUGH YOU I MAY SHOW MY GOVERNMENT; AND THUS MY AUTHORITY BE PROCLAIMED OVER ALL 18 THE EARTH.⁶ With the same object

- He pities whom He desires, and whom He wills He stupefies.
- 19 "You will then reply to me, 'Why does He still blame? for who has resisted His will?'
- 20 "Indeed, man, who are you to criticize God? Should the thing made say to the maker, Why have you made me thus? Has not the potter power over his clay, to make from his own clay one article for distinction, and another for common use? What if God, wishing to show His disposition, and to proclaim His authority, endured with great forbearance a perverse instrument determined on destruction?
- 22 and so that He might proclaim the wealth of His approbation upon the instrument of mercy which He had prepared for approval? and us, whom He has called not only from among Jews, but also from among heathen?
- 23 As He says in Hosea:
- I WILL CALL THOSE NOT MY PEOPLE, MY PEOPLE, AND THE UNBELOVED, BELOVED.¹
- 24 AND IT SHALL BE IN THE PLACE WHERE IT WAS SAID TO THEM, 'YOU ARE NOT MY PEOPLE,' THEY SHALL BE CALLED THERE, 'SONS OF A LIVING GOD.'²
- 27 And Isaiah thunders over Israel:
- THOUGH THE NUMBER OF THE SONS OF ISRAEL SHOULD BE LIKE THE SAND OF THE SEA, THOSE STANDING OUTSIDE SHALL BE SAVED!³
- 28 FOR COMPLETING A DESIGN, AND COMPLETING IT RIGHTEOUSLY, THE LORD WILL PERFECT HIS INTENTION ON THE EARTH.
- 29 And as Isaiah foretold:
- IF THE LORD OF PEACE HAD NOT LEFT US AN HEIR, WE SHOULD HAVE BECOME AS SODOM, AND LIKE TO GOMORRAH.⁴
- 30 "From this what would we conclude?—That a people who did not pursue righteousness has attained to a righteousness, but that righteousness is from their faith. But Israel, pursuing a ritual for righteousness, has not entered into a righteous law. For what reason? Because they sought it not as from faith, but as if from rituals; they stumbled at the stumbling-stone, as it is written:

SEE, I PLACE A STUMBLING-STONE IN ZION, AND A DIFFICULT ROCK; BUT THE BELIEVER ON IT SHALL NOT BE ASHAMED."¹ Brothers, my heart's desire and en-10 treaty to God regarding them is for a salvation. For I witness to them that 2 they have a zeal for God, but not an intelligent one. For not reflecting 3 on the righteousness of God, and trying to establish their own, they have not ranged themselves under the Divine righteousness; although 4 the object of Christ's Law to all believers is righteousness. Indeed, 5 Moses describes the righteousness proceeding from the law: THAT A MAN PRACTISING IT SHALL LIVE IN IT.² But that the righteousness from 6 faith declares: SAY NOT IN YOUR HEART, WHO COULD ASCEND INTO THE HEAVEN? so as to bring Christ down; or, WHO COULD GO INTO THE 7 ABYSS?³ so as to bring Christ up from the dead again. But what does 8 he say? THE IDEAL IS NEAR YOU, IN YOUR MOUTH, AND IN YOUR HEART;⁴ and that is the ideal of the faith which we proclaim: That if you 9 should proclaim from your mouth the Ideal that Jesus is Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you can be saved. For with the heart it is believed to 10 righteousness; and by the mouth it is acknowledged to salvation. For 11 the Scripture says: WHOEVER TRUSTS IN HIM SHALL NOT BE ASHAMED.⁵ For there is no distinction between 12 Jew and Greek; for He Himself is Lord of all, enriching all who call upon Him; for, WHOEVER CALLS ON 13 THE LORD SHALL BE SAVED.⁶ (Jew.) "But how can they call 14 upon whom they have not believed? And how can they believe about what they have not heard? And how can they hear without a preacher? And 15 how can they preach unless they are sent? As it is written:

HOW BEAUTIFUL ARE THEIR FEET WHO PROCLAIM PEACE, WHO PREACH THE GOOD NEWS.⁷

"Yet all will not believe the good 16 news. For Isaiah says:

LORD, WHO HAS BELIEVED OUR REPORT? ¹

- 17 "Therefore the faith comes from a report; but the report through the arrangement of God."
18 (Paul.) "But I ask, Have they not heard? Yes, indeed:

THEIR VOICE HAS GONE OUT TO ALL THE LAND,
AND THEIR DECLARATION TO THE BOUNDS OF THE EMPIRE.²

- 19 "I say further, Does not Israel recognise it? First Moses says:

I WILL MAKE YOU JEALOUS ABOUT AN UNRECOGNISED NATION;
I WILL INFURIATE YOU ABOUT AN UNINTELLIGIBLE NATION.³

- 20 "Then Isaiah becomes bold, and asserts:

I WAS FOUND BY THOSE NOT SEEKING ME;
I BECAME PLAIN TO THOSE WHO NEVER ENQUIRED FOR ME;⁴

- 21 "But regarding Israel he says:
I STRETCHED OUT MY HANDS ALL THE DAY TO A REBELLIOUS AND CONTRADICTORY PEOPLE!⁵

- 11 "Do I therefore say, 'God has rejected His people'? Never! because I am an Israelite, of Abraham's race, 2 from the tribe of Benjamin. God has not rejected His pre-ordained people. For do you not know what the Scripture says about Elijah, how he pleaded 3 with God against Israel?—LORD, THEY HAVE SLAIN YOUR PROPHETS AND THROWN DOWN YOUR ALTARS; AND I AM LEFT ALONE, AND THEY 4 WANT MY LIFE.⁶ But what was the Divine answer to him? THERE ARE LEFT TO ME SEVEN THOUSAND MEN WHO HAVE NOT BENT THE KNEE TO 5 BAAL.⁷ Thus therefore also, in the present time, a fragment has come 6 for enrolment with the Gift. But if by a gift, it cannot be from a ritual; or the gift would no longer be a gift."

- 7 (Jew.) "What then?"

(Paul.) "What Israel sought it has not met with; but the Enrolment has met, and the remainder are dazed.

- 8 As it was written:

GOD GAVE THEM A CONFUSED SPIRIT,
UNSEEING EYES, AND DEAF EARS,⁸

until the present day. And David 9 says:

LET THEIR TABLE BECOME A SNARE AND A TRAP,
AND AN OFFENCE AND A STUMBLING TO THEM;
LET THEIR EYES BE BLIND NOT TO 10 SEE,
AND ALWAYS BOW DOWN THEIR BACK!¹

"Do I therefore say, 'They have 11 stumbled, so that they might fall'? Never! But that by their mistake the salvation has come to the heathen, so as to arouse themselves. But if their 12 mistake enriches the world, and their loss is wealth for nations, how much more will their prosperity be!

"For I speak to you heathen, because 13 I myself am an apostle of the heathen; I magnify my service, so that I may 14 excite my kindred, and save some from among them. For if their dis- 15 persion re-unites a world, what will their re-union be but life from death? And if the first-fruit is sound, so also 16 is the crop; and if the root is sound, so are the branches. But if some of 17 the branches were cut off, and you, a wild olive, were grafted into their place, and became a participator in the root and fatness of the olive, do 18 not exult over those branches; and if you should exult, the root bears you, not you the root.

"You may reply, however: 'The 19 branches were cut off so that I might be grafted in.' Quite right. They 20 were cut off for unbelief; but you were inserted by faith. Be not 21 haughty, but fear. For if God spared 22 not the natural branches, how much less likely will He spare you! Re- 23 flect, therefore, upon God's beneficent action and pruning: upon those who failed He applies a pruning; but upon you a Divine beneficent purpose, if you adhere to His beneficent purpose: and if not, you will be cut off. And they, if they do not 23 adhere to their unbelief, will be grafted in again; for God is able to graft them in again.

"For if you, a cutting from a wild 24 olive, contrary to your nature have been engrafted into a cultivated olive, how much easier can they be naturally grafted again into their own olive tree!

25 "Therefore, brothers, I would not wish you to forget this mystery, so that you may not exult with yourselves: that a partial perversity has come to Israel until the whole of the heathen can enter, and then all Israel will be saved. As it is written:

A DELIVERER WILL COME OUT OF ZION;

AND IMPIETY DRIVE OFF FROM JACOB.

27 AND THIS SHALL BE MY SETTLEMENT WITH THEM, WHEN I EXPEL FROM THEM THEIR SINS.¹

28 "On account of the gospel they are enemies for your sakes; but in respect of the enrolment, are loved for their fathers' sake. For the decision and gifts of God are irrevocable. Exactly as you were once apathetic about God, but now through their apathy you have received mercy; so they now are apathetic, to the benefit of yourselves; yet they will obtain mercy. For God has included all unbelievers, so that He might show mercy to all.

33 "Oh the depth of wealth, and wisdom, and knowledge of God! How unsearchable His decisions, and inscrutable His ways! For WHO INSTRUCTED THE LORD'S MIND,

35 OR WHO WAS HIS COUNSELLOR? WHO FIRST SUGGESTED TO HIM? AND IT SHALL BE RETURNED TO HIM.²

Third Essay.

CHRISTIANITY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

12 Therefore, I call on you, brethren, by the Divine mercies, to prepare your bodies a holy, living sacrifice, well-pleasing to God, your rational service.

2 And do not adapt yourselves to this age; but be transformed by the renewal of the mind, to search out what is the intention of God,—the Good, and

3 Noble, and Perfect! For I speak to all who are with you, according to the gift granted to me, not to exult more than you ought to exult; but to be calmly exultant according to the measure of faith God has given to each of you. For as we have many 4 organs in one body, and every organ has not the same use, so we, the 5 many, are one body in Christ; but individually different organs, and 6 having various faculties according to the gift we are endowed with: if oratory, use it according to the doctrines of the faith; if administrative 7 talent, in the service; if faculty for teaching, in instruction; faculty 8 to comfort, in comforting; faculty to give, with disinterestedness; faculty for leadership, with earnestness; faculty for showing mercy, do it cheerfully. Let friendship be sincere. 9 Turning away from wickedness, adhere to good. Be kindly affectioned 10 to one another, with brotherly love aiding each other in authority; serving 11 the Lord with energetic spirit, not idly-busy; rejoicing with hope; standing firm in affliction; persevering with prayer; assisting the necessities 13 of the holy; practising hospitality. Bless your persecutors—bless and 14 curse not. Rejoice with the joyful, 15 grieve with the sorrowful. Be like-minded towards one another. Do not aspire to dominate, but associate with the lowly. Avoid becoming haughty by isolation. Never return evil for 17 evil; display nobility in the sight of all men. If it is possible for you, be 18 at peace with all men; not revenging 19 for yourselves, my friends, but receding from fury. For it is written: PUNISHMENT IS MINE, I WILL REPAY, SAYS THE LORD.¹

IF YOUR ENEMY HUNGERS, FEED 20 HIM;

IF HE THIRSTS, GIVE HIM DRINK: FOR SO DOING YOU CAST BURNT ASHES ON HIS HEAD.²

Do not be conquered under evil, but 21 vanquish evil by doing good.

Let every life be obedient to the 13 governing authorities, for there is no government except from God. And the existing authorities are appointed 2 by God; so that the opponent of the authority resists God's appointment, and the opponents encounter punishment. For the governors are not a 3 terror to well-doers, but to the criminal. And if you wish not to be in terror of the government, do right; and you

4 will be approved by it: for it is the servant of God for your good. But if you do wrong, fear; for it carries not the sword in vain: because it is a servant of God, showing displeasure to those who do ill. Therefore it is necessary to obey; not only because of its displeasure, but for the sake of conscience. Consequently, pay taxes; for they are God's officers attending to that.

7 Give to all their due: to the tribute holder, tribute; to the taxer, taxes; to the mighty, respect; to the honourable, honour. Owe nothing to any one, except to love one another; for he who loves his neighbour has fulfilled law. Therefore, YOU SHALL NOT COMMIT ADULTERY; YOU SHALL NOT MURDER; YOU SHALL NOT STEAL; YOU SHALL NOT LUST.¹ And if there is any other command, it is summed up in this: YOU SHALL BEFRIEND YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOURSELF.² Friendship does no harm to a neighbour; therefore friendship is perfection of law.

11 And, observing the time, it is the hour to be now arousing from sleep; for at present our salvation is nearer than when we believed. The night is advanced, the day dawns; therefore let us leave the practices of darkness, and put on the armour of light. Let us march orderly, as in the day-time; not with riot and drunkenness, nor with profligacy and excess, nor with mutiny and rage; but equipped for the Lord Jesus Christ; and not providing for the body to gratify its lusts.

14 And help the feeble in faith, not perplexing with discussions. Indeed, he who believes it may eat all things; but let the weak eat vegetables. Let not the eater despise the abstainer; and let not the abstainer reprove the eater, for God will accept him. Who are you reproving another man's servant? To his own master he shall stand or fall; and he will stand, for the Lord is able to support him.

5 Some distinguish day from day; some regard every day. Let each be fully satisfied in his own mind. He who regards the day, regards it as from the Lord. And the eater eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and the abstainer abstains for the Lord, and yet gives God thanks. Since none of us can live for himself, and none dies to himself; for if we live, we live by the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord; therefore, if we live or if we die, we belong to the Lord. For this purpose Christ died and lived; so that dying and living He might direct us.

But you, why do you judge your brother? or why do you despise your brother? for we shall all be reviewed at the judgment-seat of God. As it is written: I LIVE, SAYS THE LORD, SO THAT EVERY KNEE SHALL BEND TO ME, AND EVERY TONGUE CONFESS TO GOD.³ Therefore each one of us shall give a reason for himself to God.

Let us no more, therefore, blame one another; but rather endeavour not to place a stumbling-block before his brother. I know, and was convinced by the Lord Jesus, that nothing is essentially defiled, except to those who think it is defiled—to them it is defiled. And if your brother is grieved on account of food, then you do not conduct yourself affectionately. Do not by your food lose him for whom Christ died.⁴ Let not your own benefit be evil spoken of: for the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and gladness, in a holy spirit.⁵ Therefore, serve with Christ in this, pleasing to God, and approved by men. Consequently we should follow what leads to peace and friendliness among ourselves, nor destroy the work of God on account of food. All is pure; but it is defiled to the man who eats in doubt. It is noble not to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything by which your brother stumbles, or is offended, or weakened.

You have faith? Have it with yourself before God; he is happy who does not convict himself by what he approves. But he is blameable if he eats contentiously; because that is not from faith; and all not originating from faith is sin. And we, the strong, ought to support the weakness of the feeble, and not to indulge ourselves. Let each of us make himself pleasant to his neighbour to promote loving-kindness. For Christ did not indulge Himself; but, as it is recorded,

THE ABUSE OF YOUR INSULTERS FELL ON ME.¹

- 4 And whatever was formerly written was recorded for our instruction; so that by the support and consolation of the Scriptures we might have hope.
- 5 And may the supporting and consoling God grant you to think towards one another as did Christ Jesus; so that united with one voice you may praise the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
- 7 Thus receive one another, as Christ also received us into the rectification from God.
- 8 For I repeat, Christ became a Servant of circumcision for God's truth, in confirmation of the promises to the fathers; but He praises God for His mercy to the heathen. As it is written:
- FOR THIS I WILL PROCLAIM YOU
AMONG THE NATIONS,
AND SING TO YOUR NAME.²
- 10 And He repeats:
- LET THE HEATHEN REJOICE WITH HIS PEOPLE;³
- 11 and further:
- PRAISE THE LORD ALL THE HEATHEN; AND LOUDLY PRAISE HIM ALL THE PEOPLE.⁴
- 12 And Isaiah proclaims:
- HE SHALL BE THE ROOT OF JESSE,
AND THE LEADER TO GOVERN
THE NATIONS,
THE HEATHEN SHALL HOPE IN HIM.⁵
- 13 And may the God of that hope perfect you with all joy and peace in believing, to fill you with power of a holy spirit with that hope.
- 14 But I myself am satisfied about you, my brethren, that you are full of benevolence, complete in all knowledge, and able to advise each other.
- 15 Therefore I have written more boldly to you, brothers, partly as reminding you, through the gift given me from God, that I am a minister of Jesus Christ for the heathen; conducting the service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the heathen might be rightly administered, sanctified by a holy spirit. Therefore I hold this appointment under Christ Jesus for
- 18 affairs relating to God. For I will not dare to speak of what Christ has accomplished through me by word
- 19 and work in conquering nations; by force of evidences and miracles; by spiritual power: so that, from Jerusalem and round to Illyria, I have supplied the Good News of Christ. And I have loved to preach like this, where Christ was not named, so as not to build on some other man's foundation; but as it is written:

THOSE NOT INFORMED ABOUT HIM SEE;

AND THOSE WHO HAD NOT HEARD
UNDERSTAND.¹

Therefore I have often endeavoured to come to you. However, now I have no more place in these regions; and I have for many years wished to visit you, when I might be proceeding into Spain; for I hope to see you during the passage, and be sent there from you, after first being refreshed by you. At present I am proceeding to Jerusalem, to assist the saints; for it has pleased Macedonia and Achaia to make a present to the poor of the saints in Jerusalem—yes, they have been pleased, and they are their debtors. For if the heathen have shared in their spiritual possessions, they ought to offer to them their corporeal. When I have accomplished and attended to this their affair for them, I shall sail by you into Spain; and I know that by coming to you shall come to a full acceptance of Christ. But I request you, brothers, through our Lord Jesus Christ, and by the love of the Spirit, strive with me in prayers for me to God: so that I may be delivered from the unbelievers in Judea; and that my service in Jerusalem may be well received by the saints, from whom I may come by God's will to you with pleasure; and so that I may be refreshed by you. And may the peace of God be with you all.

Personal Messages and Salutations.

By this I introduce to you Phœbe our sister, who is a servant of the Kenchrean assembly; so that you may receive her in a way worthy of the holy in the Lord, and support her in her duties which are for your benefit: for she has been a benefactress to many, and to myself as well.

Remember me to Priscilla and Aquila, my assistants in Christ, who exposed their own necks for my life; to whom not I only, but all congregations of the heathen return thanks, and to the congregation in their house.

- 6 Remember me to my friend Epænetus, who is the first-fruits to Christ from Achaia.
- 7 Remember me to Mary, who has worked well amongst you.
- Remember me to my cousins and fellow-assistants, Andronicus and Junias, who are distinguished amongst the apostles, and came to Christ before me.
- 8 Regards to Amplias, my friend in the Lord; and also our companion in Christ, Urbanus; and my friend Stachys; with Apelles, the approved in Christ; and the family of Aristobulus; as well as my cousin Herodion. Best wishes to the family of Narcissus, who are in the Lord; with those workers for the Lord, Tryphena and Tryphosa—remembering the good Persis, who has done much in the Lord.
- 13 Best wishes to Rufus, the chosen of the Lord, and to his and my mother; and also Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, with all their brothers—remembering Philologus, Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints with them.
- 16 Greet each other with a holy kiss. All the assemblies of Christ send you good wishes.
- 17 But I beg of you, brothers, to look after those who create disturbances and offences against the doctrine that you have learnt, and turn away from them. For they do not serve our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own greed; and by their flattery and fair speech they deceive the hearts of the unsuspecting; for your fame has spread to all. Therefore, I am proud of you; and wish you to be wise for good, but ignorant in evil. And the God of peace will soon tread the enemy under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

My assistant, Timothy, and my 21 cousins, Luke and Jason, and Sospater, send you regards.

I, Tertius, who write out this letter, 22 do the same in the Lord.

My host, Gaius, and the whole 23 assembly, with Erastus, the city treasurer, and his brother Quartus, send their good wishes to you.¹

And the Almighty confirm you by 25 my good news; and the preaching of Jesus Christ through the revelation of a mystery, hidden for ages of time, 26 but now displayed through the prophetic writings, according to the determination of the Eternal God, and revealed for obedient faith to all the heathen: to the only wise God be 27 glory through Jesus Christ in eternity. Amen.²

² NOTE.—In these three essays the Apostle Paul presents to mankind the whole of the Christian Doctrine in a systemised form from three points of view, with a sublime power of genius never equalled by any writer the world has produced, and with his natural genius for philosophic thought heightened by a Divine Inspiration to a depth of insight into human nature and all the faculties of the Son of Man, such as had never before been granted to any secular or inspired teacher. This has made him the leader of advanced thought for the past two thousand years, and has even compelled those who in our day profess to disbelieve in any Divine Revelation, to confess in admiration of his work that it embodies the essential Religion of the Future, and that the world is only just becoming able to comprehend the eternal truths he enforced. We who believe know them to be Eternal, for they came from the Ever Living God.—F. F.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

The Introduction.

- 1 PAUL, chosen by Divine will an apostle of Christ Jesus, and the 2 brother Sosthenes, to the assembly of God existing in Corinth, purified in Christ Jesus; to the chosen saints, with all appealing to the Power of our Lord Jesus Christ—theirs and ours—

3 in every place. Grace and peace to you from our Father God and Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I always give thanks to my God at all times for the Divine gift granted to you in Christ Jesus: by which you are enriched with Him in all things; 5 and as with full reason and full knowledge the evidence of Christ was confirmed among you, that you may not be deficient in any spiritual gift; having received the revelation of our 6 Lord Jesus Christ, which will also support you until absolutely perfect 7 for the day of our Lord Jesus. For that God is faithful, by Whom you were chosen into a fellowship with His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 But I beg of you, brothers, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you would all reason alike, and that there may be no dissension among you; but that you may be trained in the same mind and into the same 11 judgment. For it has been made known to me respecting you, my brothers, by Chloe's people, that there are disputes among you. What I mean is this: that you each declare, "I am for Paul"; or, "I am for Apollos"; or, "I for Kephass"; or, "I for Christ."

13 Can you gamble upon Christ? Paul was not crucified for you! or were you 14 baptized in the name of Paul? Thank God, that I baptized none of you, except Crispus and Gaius; so that no one should say that I baptized into 15 my own name. Yet I baptized the family of Stephanas; beyond this I do not recollect if I baptized any 16 others. For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to evangelize—not with philosophical argument, so that the cross of Christ might not be fruitless. 17 For the reason of the cross is certainly folly to the reprobate; but to us, the saved, it is a Divine power. For it is written:

I WILL DESTROY THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE PHILOSOPHERS, AND UPSET THE CLEVERNESS OF
THE CLEVER.¹

20 Where is the philosopher? Where is the professor? Where is the investigator of this age? Has not God made folly of the philosophy of this 21 world? For when, in the Divine philosophy, the world did not perceive the God through the philosophy, it pleased God to save the faithful by means of the folly of preaching. While the Jews demand a sign, and 22 Greeks search after philosophy, we 23 proclaim a crucified Messiah—a certain offence to the Jews, and folly to the heathen; but to the chosen, 24 whether Jews or Greeks, Christ a Divine power, and a Divine philosophy. For the folly of God is wiser than 25 men; and the weakness of God is stronger than human strength.

For, contemplate your vocation, 26 brothers: that not many eminent philosophers, not many powerful, not many high-born—on the contrary, 27 God has chosen the foolish of the world, so that He might shame the philosophic; and God has chosen the weak of the world, so that He might shame the strong; and God has 28 chosen the low-born, and despised of the world, and the poor, to depose the possessors of power. Therefore, none 29 can boast in the presence of God. But from Him you exist in Christ 30 Jesus, Who has brought a philosophy from God to us, as well as righteousness, and purity, and redemption; so 31 that, as it is written, LET THE TRIUMPHANT TRIUMPH WITH THE LORD.¹

And when I came to you, brethren, 2 I came not proclaiming the evidence of God with grand reasoning or philosophies; for I decided to know 2 nothing among you, except Jesus Christ, and Him crucified. And I 3 came to you with weakness, and fear, and great timidity. And my thoughts 4 and my language were not clothed in captivating philosophical phraseology; but in demonstrated spirit and power, so that your faith might not 5 be in human philosophy, but in Divine power.

But we can speak philosophy 6 among the perfect; but a philosophy not of this age, nor of the useless leaders of this time. We speak, 7 instead, a Divine philosophy in the hidden mystery which God ordained before the ages for our rectification, 8 which none of the leaders of this age recognised; for if they had recognised, they would not have crucified the Master of that rectification. But 9 as it is written: WHAT EYE HAD NOT SEEN, AND EAR HAD NOT HEARD, AND WHAT HAD NOT ENTERED INTO THE HUMAN HEART, GOD HAD PREPARED

10 FOR THOSE LOVING HIM.¹ But God has revealed it to us through the Spirit; for the Spirit investigates all, even the high purposes of God. For what comprehends the human faculties, except the indwelling human soul? and thus none comprehends the thoughts of God except the Spirit of God.

12 And we have not received the spirit of the world, but the Spirit proceeding from God; so that we can distinguish the gifts God has granted to us. And what we speak is not in learned reasonings of a human philosophy; but by spiritual teachings, comparing spiritualities spiritually. But a brutish man does not entertain the thoughts of the Spirit of God, for they are folly to him; and he is not able to decide upon them, because they are spiritually investigated. But the spiritual man investigates all, whilst HE can be criticised by no one. FOR WHO KNEW THE MIND OF THE LORD? WHO COULD HAVE TAUGHT HIM?² However, we possess the mind of Christ.

3 Yet, brothers, I am not able to speak to you as to spiritual men; but as to animal—as to infants in Christ.

2 I gave you milk to drink: not solid food, for you were not able, nor are you yet able, to eat it; for you are animal still. For when there is rage and strife and dissensions among you, are you not rather like animals, than conducting yourselves like men?

4 While one declares, "I am for Paul," and another, "I am for Apollos," are you not merely man-followers? What, then, is Apollos? and what is Paul?—ministers by whom you believed, and each endowed as the Lord decided. I planted, Apollos watered; but God prospered it. Consequently, the planter is nothing, nor the waterer; but God Who prospered it. Yet the planter and the waterer are equal; and each will receive his own pay, according to his own work—for we are both God's workmen. You are God's farm—

10 God's building. I laid the foundation like a skilful architect, according to the talent given to me, and another built: but let every one take care how he builds; for none can lay a different foundation to what is laid, that is,

12 Jesus Christ. But if any one builds

upon this foundation gold, and silver, costly stones, wood, hay, straw—the 13 work of each will be made known: for the day will show it when it is revealed by fire; and what the work of each is, the fire will prove. If one man's work 14 stands, he will receive pay. If the 15 work of another be burnt up, it will be lost; but he shall be saved, although as from a fire.

Do you not know that you are a 16 Divine temple, and that the Spirit of God lives in you? If any one corrupts 17 the temple of God, God will waste him away; for the temple of God is holy; whatever you may be.

Let no one deceive himself. If any 18 among you thinks himself to be wise in this age, let him become a fool, so that he may become a philosopher. For the philosophy of this world is folly 19 compared to God. For it is written: HE CATCHES THE PHILOSOPHERS IN THEIR OWN CRAFT,³ And again: 20 THE LORD KNOWS THE ARGUMENTS OF THE PHILOSOPHERS, THAT THEY ARE EMPTY.³

So then let none boast about men: 21 for all are yours—whether Paul, or 22 Apollos, or Kephas, or a ritual; or life, or death, or present, or future, all are yours—but you are Christ's, 23 and Christ is God's.

Let a man regard us as being ser- 4 vants of Christ, and administrators of the mysteries of God; and for the 2 rest, it is sought in administrators that each should be found faithful. But for 3 myself, it is quite indifferent whether I am criticised by you, or under any human indictment. Neither, on the contrary, do I criticise my own self; though I am conscious of nothing 4 against myself. However, I am not acquitted on account of that; but the Lord is my judge. Therefore, do not 5 decide before the time, until the Lord comes, Who also will throw light upon the concealments of darkness, and will show the intentions of our hearts; and then the commendation will come to each from God.

But I have transferred these re- 6 marks to myself, and Apollos, brothers, for your sakes; so that you might learn by us not to go beyond what is recorded, nor to be puffing up one against another. For what ennobled 7 you? and what have you that you have not received as a gift? And if you accepted it, why should you boast as if you had not received it?

- 8 You are satiated now, you are wealthy now, you reign without us! Indeed, I wish you did reign, so that we also might reign with you. For I fancy God has exposed us apostles as death-doomed, so that we may become an exhibition to the world, both to angels and to men. We are fools through Christ—but you are wise in Christ; we are feeble—but you mighty; you are in honour—but we in contempt. Even until now, at the present hour, we both hunger and thirst, and are stripped and flogged, and homeless; and we labour, working at our own expense. Being cursed, we bless; persecuted, we give support; abused, we give consolation; we are become like outcasts of the world; refused by all—even until now!
- 14 I do not write thus reproaching you; on the contrary, I wish to correct you, as my dear children. For if you should have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet you have not many fathers in Christ; for I begot you in Christ Jesus through the gospel. Therefore I advise you to become imitators of me. For this purpose I have sent to you Timothy, who is my beloved and faithful son in the Lord; who will remind you what my ways are in Christ, and how I teach everywhere in every assembly.
- 18 However, as some may be elated at my failing to come to you, I will come soon, if the Lord will permit. And I will know not the talk of the boastful, but the power; for the Kingdom of God is not in talk, but in power.
- 21 What do you want? Shall I come to you with a rod, or with a loving and gentle spirit?

On Social Morality.

- 5 It is commonly reported there is depravity among you, and such depravity as never is among the heathen; that is, some one has married a wife of his father. And you are self-elated! But should you not rather be sorrowfully indignant; so that the person who has done this deed might be expelled from among you? For I, although absent in body yet present in spirit, have decided already, as if I were present, that the person who has done this shall be delivered in the name of our Lord Jesus—my spirit and yours agreeing together, in the authority of our Lord Jesus, to deliver that fellow to Satan—for destruction of the flesh; so that his spirit may be saved in the day of our Lord.

Your pride is not noble. Do you not know that a little ferment ferments the whole mass? Clean out the old ferment, so that you may be a fresh mass, and thus you will be unfermented. For Christ our passover is sacrificed for us, that we may keep a festival: not with an old ferment, neither in a ferment of filth and wickedness; but, on the contrary, with unfermented purity and truth.

I wrote you in my letter to have no association with fornicators; not altogether with the fornicators of this period, or with the debauched and rapacious, or idolaters, since you would then certainly need to go out of the world. But now I will write to you not to be associating with any one called a brother who may be a fornicator, or debauchee, or idolater, or a blackguard, or a drunkard, or rapacious—not even to eat with such a fellow; for how does it belong to me to judge those without? Should you not judge those within? But God will judge those without. Throw out the profligate from among your own selves.

On Litigation.

Should any of you, having an action against another, ask for a decision before the wicked, and not rather before the holy? Or do you not know that the holy will judge the world? And if the world shall be judged by you, are you incapable of the smallest arbitrations? Do you not know that we shall judge angels?—then why not business matters? Therefore, if you should have business affairs requiring arbitrations, should you appear before those who have been denied authority in the assembly? I speak to shame you, as it seems there is not an intelligent man among you: not even one, who is able to determine a matter between his brothers; instead, brother is at law with brother, and that, too, before unbelievers.

Now, most certainly, it is a deep degradation to you that you have matters for arbitration among yourselves. Why not rather endure to be wronged? Why not rather be swindled? Instead of which, you do wrong, and you cheat, and swindle even your brothers. Do you not know that the unjust will not inherit the Kingdom of God? Deceive not yourselves; neither profligates, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor depraved, nor sodomites, nor thieves, nor debauchees, nor drunkards, nor blackguards, nor plunderers, shall ever inherit the Kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but you have washed yourselves; but you made yourselves righteous in the name of the Lord Jesus, and in the Spirit of our God.

An Exposure of Sophistry.

(Sophist.) "Everything is allowable to me."

(Paul.) "But everything does not benefit."

(Sophist.) "Everything is permissible to me."

(Paul.) "But I will not be deluded by any."

(Sophist.) "The foods for the stomach, and the stomach for the foods."

(Paul.) "But God can abolish both it and them. And the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body—through the same God Who raised up the Lord, and will also restore us through the power of Him. Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Then shall I take the members of Christ and make them portions of a harlot? Never! For do you not know that union with the harlot constitutes one body? For He says: THE TWO SHALL EXIST AS ONE BODY.¹ But the union with the Lord is one spirit. Fly from fornication! Every other sin that a man can do is outside the body; but the fornicator sins against his own constitution. Or, do you not know that your body is a sanctuary for the Holy Spirit, which you had from God to live in? And you are not your own: for you were dearly bought; therefore honour God with your body."

The Law of Marriage and Divorce.
7 Now about what you wrote to me. It is well for a man not to be encumbered with a wife; but for fear of unchastity, each man should have his own wife; and each woman should have her own husband. The husband should do his duty to his wife; and the wife also to her husband. The wife has not absolute disposal of her own body, but her husband; and likewise the husband has not authority over his body, but the wife. You should not separate from one another; except perhaps, for a time, by consent, so that you may have leisure for prayer; and you should return again to one another, so that the enemy may not tempt you through passion. However, I say this from opinion; not by a special command. Yet I wish all men to be even like myself; but each has his own gift from God—one this way, and another that.

But for the unmarried men and the widows, it were well for them if they could remain as I myself; but if they have not self-restraint, they should marry; for to marry is better than to be feverish. However, to the married Lord commands, not I: A wife should not be separated from a husband; but if she should separate, let her remain unmarried, or let her return to her husband. And a husband should not dismiss his wife.

But for what follows, I myself speak, not the Lord: If any brother has an unbelieving wife, and she agrees to live with him, she should not be dismissed; and a wife who may have an unbelieving husband, and he agrees to live with her, she should not leave her husband. For the unbelieving husband is purified in the believing wife; and the unbelieving wife is purified in the brother: or else the children would be defiled; but now they are pure. Yet if the unbeliever will separate, let him do so; the brother or sister is not in bondage to such. God, however, called us into peace. For how do you know, wife, but that you may save your husband? or how do you know, husband, but that you may save your wife? Should not every one walk in the way in which the Lord has apportioned, as God has called? I order the same in all the assemblies.

Was one called when circumcised? Let it not be rejected. Has another been called in uncircumcision? Let him not be circumcised. The circumcision is nothing, and the uncircumcision is nothing; but observing Divine commands, each should continue in the condition in which he was called. Were you called when a slave? do not

- let it fret you. But if you are able to become a freeman, then prefer it.
- 22 For the slave having been called to the Lord, is the Lord's freedman; and in the same way, the freeman is a slave of Christ. You were dearly bought; do not become slaves of men. Let each continue in the condition, brothers, in which he was called towards God.
- 23 But about the young girls, I have not a decision from the Lord; but I give an opinion as I was granted to be trusted under the Lord. I think, therefore, that to encounter more easily the present distress, it is good for a man to act in this way: If you are married to a wife, do not attempt to be free; if free from a wife, do not seek a wife. But if you should marry, you do no wrong; and if a girl marries, she does no wrong—but they will have bodily privations. Therefore I spare you.
- 24 However, I say this, brothers: The time remaining is short, until both they having wives may be as having none; and the weepers as not weeping; and the gay as not rejoicing; and the buyers as not possessing; and those using this world as not consuming it, for the arrangement of this world passes away; and I want you to be without anxiety. The unmarried man should look after the affairs of the Lord—how he may please the Lord; but the married should look after the affairs of the world—how he may please his wife. There is a condition both for the wife and for the maiden. The unmarried woman should attend to the wishes of the Lord, so that she may be pure both in body and spirit; but the married should attend to the business of the world, how she may be pleasing to her husband. And I say this for your own application; not that I lay a trap for you, but rather to assist you to be decent, and devoted to the Lord without distraction.
- 25 But if any one decides that it is not suitable for his daughter, if she should be passing the bloom of life, and is under engagement to do thus, let him do what he desires, it is not wrong; they may be married. But whoever stands steadfast in his heart, he is not obliged, since he possesses control over his individual will; and if he decides thus in his own heart to retain the girl at home, he does well.
- 26 So that he who marries does well, and the man who does not marry does better. A wife is given by law to her husband as long as he lives. But if her husband dies, she is free to be married to whoever she wishes; only in the Lord. But she will be happier if she should remain so, according to my judgment; and I suppose I also know God's intention.

On Idol-Offerings.

Now, about idol-offerings. We know that we all possess understanding. Understanding makes you vain, but love edifies. If any one fancies he knows a little, he never knows anything as it ought to be comprehended; but if any one loves God, he is instructed by Him.

Therefore, about the eating of idol-offerings, we know that an idol is nothing in creation; and besides that, there is no God but one. For although there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or upon earth—as there are many gods, and many demigods—yet to us there is but one God, the Father, from Whom are all things, and we in Him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by Whom are all things, and we through Him. However, this knowledge is not in all; but some, with the conscience, even now eat as though sacrificing to the idol, and their conscience being weak is corrupted. But food in itself does not bring us nearer to God; for if we eat we are not better, nor are we the worse if we do not eat.

However, take care lest this same strength of yours should become a stumbling-block to the weak. For if any one should see you, the possessor of comprehension, reclining in an idol-house, would not the conscience of him, being weak, be encouraged to eat for the purpose of idol-worship? Then the weak man is utterly lost through your comprehension—the brother for whom Christ died! Thus, sinning against the brotherhood, and striking their weak consciences, you sin against Christ. Therefore, if food cause my brother to do wrong, I would not eat flesh for ever; so that I may not cause my brother to stumble.

Paul's Personal Defence.

Am I not a free man? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen the Lord Jesus Christ? Are you not my

2 work in the Lord? If I am not an apostle to others, yet I am certainly so to you; for you are the stamp of 3 my apostleship from the Lord. My defence to my accusers is this:
 4 Whether or no have we a right to eat 5 and drink? Whether or no have we a right to travel with a Christian wife —like the rest of the apostles, and the 6 Lord's brothers, and Kephass? Or I and Barnabas alone—have we no right 7 at all, except to work? Who campaigns at his own expense? Who plants a vineyard, and does not eat of its produce? Who feeds cattle and does not consume the milk of the cattle?
 8 I do not say this humanly; does 9 not the Law also say the same? For in the law of Moses it is written: YOU SHALL NOT MUZZLE THE THRESHING
 10 BULLOCK.¹ Bullocks are an object of care with God. But he speaks for us also, he wrote for us as well; because the ploughman ought to plough in hope, and the thresher 11 ought to share in the hope. If we have sown spiritually for you, is it much if we reap the necessaries of life with 12 you? If others exercise this right to be paid by you, how much more can we! But we have not used this right; on the contrary, we went short of everything, in order that we might not give trouble to any one on account of the gospel of Christ.
 13 Do you not know that those serving the temple eat from the temple? that those devoted to the altar are main-14 tained from the altar? And so the Lord ordained to the preachers of the gospel, that they should live out of 15 the gospel. But I have availed myself of none of these; nor have I written this so that it might be done thus to myself: for better to me to die rather than that any one should destroy my 16 boast in that manner. For if I am preaching the gospel, it is no credit to me: rather a necessity is laid upon me; because it is a punishment for me if I am not preaching the gospel.
 17 Yet if I do this willingly, I have a reward; if unwillingly, I have been entrusted with an office. What are my wages then? That preaching without pay, I lay a foundation for the 18 gospel; while none can deprive me of the power which that gospel gives me.
 19 For being free from all, I have enslaved myself to all, so that I might benefit the greatest possible number.

 And I became like a Jew to the Jews, 20
 so that I might benefit the Jews;
 to those under a law as though under a law, so that I might benefit those under a law; to those not possessing 21 a law as though not possessing a law—not, however, being without a Divine law; but, on the contrary, under a law of Christ—so that I might gain those not possessing a law. To the weak I 22 became as weak, so that I might gain the weak. To all these I adapted myself, so that I might save some, at all events. And I do it all for the 23 sake of the good news, so that I may become a participator in it.

Do you not know that the runners 24 on the track all run, but a single one carries off the prize? Thus run; so that you may win it. And every com- 25 petitor restrains himself in all things;
 they, however, so that they may receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable. Therefore I run thus; 26 not like a trifler. I strike thus; not as beating wind. But instead, I train 27 my body and lead a slave's life; for fear that, after having trained others,
 I myself should be disappointed.

Encouragement to Patience and Good Feeling.

I do not wish you to ignore, 10 brothers, that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and all were bap-
 2 tized into Moses in the cloud and in 3 the sea; and all ate the same spiritual food, and all drank the same spiritual 4 drink: for they drank of a Rock of spiritual progress; and the Rock was 5 the messiah. God, however, was not pleased with the greater part of them;
 for they were strewn in the desert. 6
 And these became types for us, that we should not be lustful for vice, as they were lustful. Neither should 7 you be idolaters, like some of them;
 as it is written: THE PEOPLE SAT DOWN TO EAT AND DRINK, AND 8 THEY AROSE TO PLAY.¹ Neither should we fornicate, as some of them fornicated, and fell in a single day to the number of twenty-three thousand. Neither should we try the 9
 Lord, as some of them tried Him, and were slain by serpents. Neither 10 should you murmur, as some of them murmured, and were destroyed by the

11 destroyer. And all these came upon them typically, but were written for our instruction upon whom the perfection of the ages has come; so that whoever imagines he stands should take care not to fall.

13 Trial has not overtaken you more than men can endure: for God is faithful, Who will not permit you to be tried beyond what you are able; on the contrary, He will with the trial also provide the escape by which you will be able to come out of it.

14 Therefore, my friends, avoid idolatry. I speak as though to reflective men; you can examine what I say.

16 The cup of the blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The loaf which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? Because as in a loaf, we, the many, are a single body; for 18 we all share the same loaf. Look at the corporate Israel! Are not those who eat the sacrifices communicants with the altar? What then? Do I say that the idol is anything? or that which is offered in sacrifice to idols is anything? On the contrary,

20 that what the heathen sacrifice, THEY SACRIFICE TO DEMONS, AND NOT TO GOD.¹ But I do not wish you to become communicants with demons. You are not able to drink the Lord's cup, and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the Lord's table, and the table of demons. Shall we provoke the Lord? We are not stronger than He—are we?

23 (Sophist.) "Everything is permitted."
(Paul.) "But yet everything does not benefit."
(Sophist.) "All is right."
(Paul.) "But everything does not edify. Let no one seek only his own, but the benefit of others."

24 You can eat all that is sold in the market, never inquiring about it because of conscience: for THE EARTH AND HER FULLNESS IS FROM THE LORD.² If any one of the unbelievers invite you, and you wish to go, you should eat whatever is served, never examining it for the sake of conscience. But if some one says to you,

25 "This is an idol offering," you ought not to eat; because of the one informing you, and his conscience. And I say it should not be for your own conscience; but for that of the other. For to what purpose is my liberty to be judged under the conscience of another? If I partake with thankfulness, why should I be slandered about that for which I have given thanks? Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all in honour of God. You should be inoffensive both to Jews and Greeks, and to the church of God; just as I also make everything pleasant to every one, not seeking my own benefit, but instead, that of the many, so that they may be saved. Become imitators of me, as I am also of Christ. And I thank you, because you are mindful of me in everything; and in what I instructed you, you observe my instructions.

Rules for Conducting Divine Service.

Now I wish you to understand that Christ is the head of every man; but the head of the woman is the man, and the head of Christ is God.

Every man praying or preaching, having the head covered, disgraces his own head; but every woman praying or preaching with the head unveiled disgraces her own head, for she is like the abandoned shorn woman. For if she is not veiled, then let her be shorn; but if it is a disgrace to a woman to be shorn or shaved, she should be veiled. It is not necessary, indeed, for men to be veiled over the head, because they possess a likeness and honour of God; but the woman is man's honour. For man exists as derived from woman; on the contrary, woman was derived from man: because man was not created for the sake of woman, but woman because of the man. Consequently, the woman ought to have a cover upon the head, on account of the angels. However, woman is not separate from man, nor man separate from woman in the Lord; for as the woman was formed out of the man, so the man through the woman; but everything proceeds from God.

On Modesty in Women.

Consider about these yourselves. Is it becoming for a woman to pray

² Psa. xli. 1.

14 to God unveiled? Does not nature itself teach you that if a man should have long tresses it is a dishonour to 15 him? But if a woman has long tresses, it is an honour to her; because the tresses are given to her for a veil.
16 If any one assumes to be censorious, neither we nor the assemblies of God know any such custom.¹
17 But I consider this not to be estimable; that you do not meet together for the better, but for the worse.
18 For, firstly, when you are assembling in congregation, I hear there are differences among you—and I partly believe it: for it is necessary that you 19 should have parties, so that the approved among you may become known.
20 However, when you come together by yourselves, you do not do it to partake of a supper dedicated to the 21 Lord; for each one prepares his own individual meal to eat alone; and one may be hungry, another, again, 22 gorged. For why? Have you not homes in which to eat and drink? or do you look with contempt upon the assembly of God, and shame those who have not? What shall I say to you? Shall I approve of you?—I do not approve of you in this.
23 For I received from the Lord what
I delivered to you—that the Lord Jesus on the night in which He was 24 betrayed, took a loaf, and having given thanks, broke it, and said,
"This is My body, which is for you:
do this in remembrance of Me."
25 And in the same way, after supper,
He took the cup, and said, "This cup is the New Settlement in My blood:
do this, as often as you drink it, in re-26 membrance of Me." For as often as you eat this bread, and drink this cup,
you proclaim the death of the Lord, 27 until He returns. So that whoever may eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord unworthily, will be responsible for the body and the blood 28 of the Lord. But let a man test himself, and thus let him eat from the loaf and drink from the cup; for the 29 eater or drinker eats condemnation to himself when not distinguishing 30 the body. Consequently, many among you are weak and sickly, and

¹ NOTE.—Any such custom as allowing women to go unveiled in public, which amongst the Greeks was considered scandalous, and only done by women of bad character.—F. F.

many are falling asleep. But if we 31 tested ourselves, we should not be condemned; but judged by the Lord, 32 we are being corrected, so that we may not be condemned together with the world. Therefore, my brothers, coming 33 together to the festival, entertain one another. If any one is hungry, 34 let him eat at home; so as not to assemble in an improper manner. And I will arrange the rest when I come.

On Spiritual Gifts.

And I do not wish you, brothers, to 12 be ignorant about spiritual gifts. You 2 know that you were heathen, dragged to speechless idols, as if you were captured; therefore I inform you that 3 no one speaking with a Divine spirit says, "Curse Jesus;" and no one is able to reply, "Lord Jesus," except by a holy spirit. And there are 4 different talents, but the same Spirit; and there are different offices through 5
the same Lord; and there are different 6 energies, but the same God energizing everything in them all. And to each 7 one is given the manifestation of the Spirit for mutual benefit. For to this 8 man, perhaps, is given through the Spirit philosophic reason; but to another, by means of the same Spirit, comprehension of thought; and to a 9 different person faith by the same Spirit; while to another gifts of healing by means of the same Spirit; and to 10 another a genius for government;
while to another eloquence; to another discernment of character; and to another a genius for languages; and to another talent for translating lan- 11 guages. But the same Spirit energizes all these in the individual, distributing to each person as He considers best.

For although the body is single, yet it 12 has many limbs; but all the many limbs of the body, although individual, are one body: and so is Christ. For 13 although individual, we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or freemen;
and we are all drinking of one Spirit.

For indeed the body is not a single 14 organ, but many. If the foot should 15 say, "Because I am not the hand,
I do not belong to the body"—does it therefore not belong to the body?
And if the ear should say, "Because 16
I am not the eye, I do not belong to the body"—does it therefore not belong to the body? If all the body 17 were an eye, where would be the sense of hearing? If all ear, where 18 would be the sense of smell? But now God has placed the limbs, each one of them, in the body with the 19 best adaptation. But if the whole were a single organ, where would 20 the body be? And now there are certainly many members, but a single 21 body. And the eye is not able to say to the hand, "I have no need of you!"

 nor the head, again, to the feet, "I 22 have no need of you!" But, instead, there is absolute necessity for the possession of those organs of the body 23 that are considered the weakest; and what might have been considered the least estimable of the body, we surround with supreme honour. And our plainest organ has supreme 24 beauty; but our beautiful features have no deficiency, for God has constructed the body, giving supreme 25 honour to the weakest: so that there might not be dissension in the body, but rather that, instead, the limbs might mutually attend to each other.
 26 And, therefore, if a single limb suffers, 27 all the limbs sympathize with it; if a single organ is set right, all the faculties feel pleasure with it; and you are a body for Christ, and participating 28 members. And God has thus placed in the church: first, apostles; second, preachers; third, teachers; then men of power; then talent for healing, nursing, governing, and ability for 29 languages. All are not apostles, nor all preachers, nor all teachers. All are not men of power; all have not a 30 gift for healing; all do not speak 31 languages; all do not translate. Be desirous of the best gifts; and yet I can direct you to a much better path.

Law of Brotherlyhood.

13 If I could speak in the languages of men and angels, but have not friendship, I should become an echoing trumpet, or a resounding drum.
 2 And although I possessed prophetic powers, and knew all the mysteries and all science; and if I possessed perfect faith, so as to remove a mountain, but possessed not friendship, I 3 am nothing. And if I gave away in charity all my possessions; and even if I should deliver my body to be burnt, but do not possess friendship, 4 I gain nothing. Friendship forbears, and is kind; friendship envies not;
 is not vain-glorious, is not pompous;
 5 never misbehaving, nor self-seeking,

nor provoking, nor brooding over injury, nor delighting over wicked-
 6 ness; but rejoices with the right. It 7 endures everything; trusts everything; hopes for all, waits for all.
 Friendship will never fail; but as for 8 eloquence it will cease; as for languages, they will be silent; as for science, it will become useless. For 9 we know imperfectly, and we teach with imperfection; but when the per-10 fect arrives, the imperfect will become useless.

When I was a child I spoke like a 11 child, I thought like a child, I reflected like a child; but when I became a man, the ideas of the child were useless.
 For we look now through a loop-hole 12 into the darkness; but then face to face: now I know partially; but then I shall know perfectly, even as I am perfectly known. And now exist faith, 13 hope, and friendship, these three; but the greatest of them is friendship.

Follow after friendship; but ear-14 nestly desire mental powers, and especially those enabling you to instruct. For the speaker in a foreign 2 language does not speak to men, but to God. When no one understands it, he speaks mysteries to the mind; but 3 the preacher can utter edification, and consolation, and encouragement to men. The linguist instructs himself;
 4 but the preacher instructs the assembly. And I wish you were all lin-5 guists; but I would rather that you might all be preachers: for the preacher is greater than the linguist, unless some one translate, so that the assembly may receive instruction.

And now, brothers, if I should come 1 to you speaking foreign languages, of what use should I be to you,
 unless I should address you either concerning revelation, or science, or in a sermon, or an instruction? Even 7 a lifeless thing that gives a sound, as a flute or harp, unless it produced a distinction by its notes, how would it be known what is played or harped?
 And if a trumpet should give an un-8 known sound, who would prepare for battle? And so you, also, with your 9 languages, unless you produce an intelligible speech, how can it be known what is spoken? for you would be talking to the wind. There are of 10 course many different languages in the world, and none meaningless.
 However, if I should not know the 11 meaning of the language, I shall be a foreigner to the speaker, and the 12 speaker a foreigner to me. And so you, when you desire to be intellectual, you should try to proceed so as to promote the edification of the assembly.

 13 The speaker in a foreign language should therefore desire that it may be 14 translated. For if I pray in a foreign language, my spirit is praying, but my 15 meaning is unintelligible. What is it, then? I may pray with the spirit, but I ought to pray with the understanding as well; I may sing with the spirit, but I ought also to sing with the under-16 standing. If you only give thanks with the spirit, how can one of an uneducated condition express his assent with your thanksgiving, since he 17 does not know what you say? For you indeed may give thanks well, but the other is not edified. I thank God I 18 am a better linguist than all of you;
 19 but I would rather for myself speak in the assembly five words intelligibly, so as to instruct others, than ten thousand words in a foreign language.
 20 Brothers, do not become childish in thought; on the contrary, be childlike concerning wickedness, but in thought be manly.
 21 It is written in the law: I WILL SPEAK TO THE PEOPLE IN FOREIGN TONGUES AND WITH STRANGE LIPS, AND THEN THEY WILL NEVER UNDER-
 22 STAND ME.¹ says the Lord. Consequently, languages are for a warning:
 not to the believers, but for the unbelievers; but preaching is not to the unbelievers, but for the believers.
 23 Therefore, if the assembly should come together solely for this, and all should speak foreign tongues, and uneducated or unbelieving persons should enter, would they not imagine you were 24 mad? But if all could preach, and any unbeliever or uneducated were to enter, he would be instructed by all;
 25 convinced by everything; the secrets of his heart would become clear: and then, falling down upon his face, he would pay homage to God, announcing that THE LIVING GOD IS AMONG
 YOU.²
 26 What then is it, brethren? If when you meet, each of you has a hymn, has a lesson, has a revelation, has a language, has an explanation, let all be for edification.
 If any one speaks in a foreign 27 language, let it be only two, or at most only three, and in turn; and let one translate. And if there is not a 28 translator, let him be silent in meeting, since he can speak to himself and to God. Only two or three preachers 29 may speak, and the others should reflect. But if something is suggested to 30 another sitting still, let the first conclude; for, one by one, you can all 31 speak, so that all may instruct and all encourage. And the spirits of 32 preachers are regulated by the preachers; for God is not disturbance, 33 but peace in all the assemblies of the saints.

Let your women keep silent in the 34 assemblies; for it is not permitted to them to speak. On the contrary, they should be obedient, as stated in the law. But if any wish to learn, they 35 should ask their husbands in their own homes; for it is scandalous for women to speak in an assembly. Did the 36 purpose of God proceed from you?
 Or was it only received by you? If 37 any one imagine himself to be an orator, or inspired, he should recognise what I write to you, that it is an order of the Lord. But if any disre- 38
 gards it, let him disregard it.

Consequently, brothers, desire the 39 talent for oratory, and do not prohibit speaking in foreign languages. But 40 let everything be decorous and orderly.

The Doctrine of the Resurrection.

I now declare to you, brothers, the 15 gospel which I imparted to you, which you also accepted, in which you also stand, and by which you will be 2 saved; I preached it to you with this object, if you grasp it—unless you have relied upon a phantom. For I de- 3 livered to you, in the first place, what I had also received—that Christ died because of our sins, in accordance with the Scriptures. That He was 4 buried, and that He was raised on the third day, in accordance with the Scriptures. That He was seen by 5
 Kephas, afterwards by the twelve; and after that He appeared openly 6 to five hundred brethren at once, of whom the greater number remain until now, but some have fallen asleep; after that He appeared to 7
 James, then to all the apostles. But 8 last of them all, as if to a laggard, He appeared also to me. For I am the 9 most insignificant of the apostles; who am not worthy to be called an apostle.

because I persecuted the church of 10 God: but, thank God, I am what I am. And the gift of Him, which is in me, has not been useless; on the contrary, I have accomplished more than the whole of them: yet not I myself,
 but the gift of God that is with me.
 11 However, whether I, or whether they,
 we preached this, and you believed it.
 12 But if it was preached that Christ was raised from the dead, how can some among you say that a resurrection from the dead does not exist?
 13 But if there is not a resurrection from death, even Christ could not have been raised. Yet if Christ has not been 14 raised, then both our preaching is worthless, and your faith is worthless 15 as well. And we should also be found false witnesses concerning God; because we gave evidence respecting God that He raised the Messiah—
 Whom He did not raise, if indeed the 16 dead rise not. For if the dead do not 17 rise, Christ never arose; but if Christ did not rise, then your faith is a folly, 18 you are yet in your sins; and then the sleepers in Christ have been lost.
 19 If in this life only we are hopeful in Christ, we are the most wretched of all men.
 20 But the fact is, Christ has been raised from the dead, a Fore-runner 21 of the sleepers. For since by man death exists, by man a resurrection 22 from death also exists. For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all will 23 be revived. But each in his own own order. Christ a Fore-runner, then those in Christ at His appearing.
 24 Then will be the perfection, when He delivers up the Kingdom to the God and Father, after He has destroyed every dominion, and every 25 authority and power: for He must reign until HE CAN PUT ALL THESE 26 ENEMIES UNDER HIS FEET.¹ The last enemy to be destroyed is Death.
 27 For HE WILL SUBDUCE ALL THINGS UNDER HIS FEET.² But when He said, "All are to be subdued," it is clear that He excepts Him Who 28 subdued all things to Him. But when He has subjugated all to Him, then the Son Himself also will be subjected to Him Who subdued all things to Him, so that God may be all in all.
 29 Then what do they obtain—the baptized for the sake of the dead—if the dead are not absolutely raised?

Psa. cx. 1.

Psa. viii. 6.

Why then should they be baptized for them? And why should we run a 30 risk every hour? I, who am dying 31 daily through the honour which I have among you from Christ Jesus our Lord—though I have fought with 32 wild-beast-like men in Ephesus, what is my gain if the dead do not rise?
 "Let us eat and drink, for we may die in the morning."

Be not misled: vile teachings cor- 33
 rupt good morals. Awake to perfect 34 sobriety, and sin not; for an ignorance of God possesses some. I speak re-proving you.

But some may say: "How are the 35 dead raised? And in what kind of body do they return?" Senseless! What 36 you sow does not produce life, unless it arises from its bed. And when you 37 sow, you do not sow the body which will be produced, but a naked grain, perhaps of wheat or any other kind,
 and God gives to it a body such as 38
 He intended: and to each of the seeds the proper body. Indeed, all 39 flesh is not the same kind; but one sort of flesh for men, another flesh for cattle, and another flesh for birds, and another for fish. And there are 40 celestial bodies, and terrestrial bodies;
 but the character of the celestial differs, and that of the terrestrial varies. The sun has one splendour, 41 and the moon another splendour, and another splendour for stars; for star differs from star in brilliancy: and 42 thus also in the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it rises in incorruptibility; it is sown in contempt, it rises in splendour; it is 43 sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown an animal body, it 44 is raised a spiritual body. If there is an animal body, there is also a spiritual; for so it is written, THE 45
 FIRST MAN (Adam) WAS A LIVING
 NATURE,¹ but the last Adam is a Life-producing Spirit. However, the 46 spiritual was not first, but the natural;
 and after it the spiritual. The first 47 man from out of the earth; the second Man from out of heaven. As the 48 earthly was, such are the earthly still;
 and what the celestial was, the heavenly will be. And as we resem- 49 bled the earthly, we shall also resemble the heavenly.

But I say this, brothers, that flesh 50 and blood are not able to inherit a

1 Gen. ii. 7.

Divine Kingdom; neither the perishable to inherit the imperishable.

- 51 Listen! I tell you a secret: we shall certainly not all sleep, but we shall 52 all be changed, in a moment, in an eye's glance, at the last trumpet-call; for it will be sounded, and the dead
53 will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable 54 must be endowed with imperishability, and this mortal must be endowed with immortality. And when this corruptible has been endowed with incorruptibility, then will arrive the written declaration:

DEATH IS SWALLOWED UP BY VICTORY!

- 55 O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING!
O GRAVE, WHERE IS THY VICTORY!

- 56 For sin is the sting of death, and the force of sin the law. But thanks be to God, Who has given us the victory 57 throughout our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my dear brothers, be firm, immoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord; knowing that your work in the Lord is not futile.

Financial Affairs and Farewells.

- 16 Now concerning the tax collected for the saints: as I arranged with the assemblies of Galatia, so you
2 might also do. Every firstday (after a Sabbath), let each of you by himself lay by what he should give of money, so that there may be no
3 collections when I come. And when I arrive, whoever you may choose, I will send them with letters to carry
4 your gift to Jerusalem. But if you would rather that I should go myself,
5 they shall go with me. And I shall come to you when I traverse Macedonia; for I must cross Macedonia.
6 And I may perhaps stay, or even pass the winter, so that you may help me
7 forward wherever I am going. For I do not wish to pay you a brief visit now; but I hope to stay some time with you, if the Lord will allow it. But I shall continue in Ephesus 8 until the Pentecost; for there is there 9 a great wide open door for my work, and many opponents.

But if Timothy comes, see that you 10 take care that he is not troubled by you; for he executes the work of the Lord as well as myself. Let no one, 11 therefore, depreciate him: and send him back peaceably, so that he may come to me; for I wait for him along with his companions.

And about the brother Apollos; I 12 have often requested him to visit you with the brethren, but he was not altogether willing to go to you just now; however, he will when there is a good opportunity.

Watch; stand in the faith; be 13 manly; be self-restrained. Let all 14 you do be done in love.

But I advise you, brothers, to regard 15 the family of Stephanas, because they were the pioneers of Achaia, and disposed themselves for service to the saints. You should be obedient to 16 such like, and to all our fellow-workers and labourers. And I am glad at the 17 arrival of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus; because they have accomplished your instructions, for 18 they have refreshed both my spirit and yours; therefore honour such men.

The assemblies of Asia send regards 19 to you all. Aquila and Priscilla do the same, together with the assembly in their house. All the brothers send 20 regards to you. Greet one another with a holy kiss. The good wishes 21 of Paul by my own hand. If any one 22 loves not the Lord, let him be delivered to the Lord coming in Judgment. May the grace of our Lord 23 Jesus Christ be with you. My love is 24 with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

(The First to the Corinthians was sent from Ephesus through Stephanas, Fortunatus, Achaicus, and Timothy.)

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Salutation.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and the brother Timothy, to the assembly of God existing in Corinth, with all the saints who are inhabiting all Achaia : Grace and peace to you from our Father God, and Lord Jesus Christ.

Reasons for his Action towards them.

3 I thank the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and God of all consolation ;
4 Who consoles us in all our affliction, to enable us to console all the afflicted by the same consolation with which
5 we were consoled from God : so that as the sufferings of Christ overflowed to us, in the same way our consolation
6 flows through Christ. But when we are grieved, there is a consolation reflecting upon your energetic endurance of the same suffering that we suffer ; for our confidence is upon you. We are thus consoled by your having been
7 consoled and saved. And our hope rests upon you, knowing that as you are participators with our sufferings, thus you will be also with the consolation.
8 For we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, about the affliction which came to us in Asia ; where we were excessively loaded beyond our power, so much so that we despaired
9 even of life. Nay, more, we possessed in our own selves the sentence of death, so that we might not trust upon ourselves, but upon the God
10 Who raises the dead, Who rescued us from so much of death, and will rescue ; on Whom we further confide,
11 that He will still rescue, you uniting with us to desire it, so that through the prayers of many the gift may be granted through you to us.
12 For our pride is the exact evidence of our conscience ; because with Divine frankness and honesty, not with worldly philosophy, but in accordance with a Divine gift, we have conducted ourselves in the world, and especially among you. For we have not written 13 differently to you from what you know and what you acknowledge ; and I hope, also, that you will acknowledge until perfect. And as you have partially acknowledged that we are your 14 pride, so you are ours in the day of the Lord Jesus. And with this confidence we intended to come to you before, so that you might have a second pleasure ; and by way of you

15 to pass into Macedonia, and again from Macedonia to return to you, and to be sent by you to Judea.

Then did I decide with fickleness, 17 when I intended this ? or what I decided, did I decide it capriciously, so that there should be the "yes," and "no," with me ? But, true God, 18 I know that our object towards you is not "yes," and "no." For the Son of 19 God, Jesus Christ—Who was preached among you by us, by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus—has not been "yes" and "no ;" on the contrary, it has become sure in Him. For what- 20 ever was promised from God in Him is "the yes," and in Him "the certainty," for the honour of God, by our means. And He Who supports 21 us with you in Christ, and sanctifies us, is God ; and He attested us, 22 gave the pledge of the Spirit to our hearts. And I can call upon God to 23 give evidence to my life, that I never came into Corinth shrinking from you ; not that we dominate your faith, 24 although we are partners in your pleasure ; for you stand by faith. So 2 I decided with myself not to come again to you with distress. For if I 2 should distress you, then who could gladden me, except he who was distressed by me ? And I have written 3 this especially, so that I might not, when coming, bring distress upon those whom I wish to please ; for I trust upon you all, because you are all a delight to me. For I wrote to you 4 out of much affliction and agony of heart, with many tears; not intending that you should be distressed, but so that you might know the very great love that I have for you.

- 5 If one man has been distressed, that has not distressed me; except partially, because I would not burden you all. The punishment is better for such a fellow, than that it should be upon you all; however, you should now rather cheer and console him, for fear that excessive reproof may drown him. I would advise you, therefore, to punish him in love; for I wrote with this object as well, in order that I might know your feelings, if you would be obedient in everything. But when you grant pardon to him, I will also; however, what pardon I grant, if I grant any pardon, it is for your sake in the presence of Christ; so that we may not be overmastered by Satan, for we are not ignorant of his devices.

The Transcendent Glory of the Gospel.

- 12 But coming to Troas for the gospel of Christ, and a door being opened for me by the Lord, I had no ease in my spirit, on account of failing to find my brother Titus; so leaving them, I proceeded into Macedonia. 14 But thanks to the God Who everywhere gave us triumph in Christ, and showed through us in every place the sweetness of the knowledge of Him! 15 Because we are a sweet perfume of Christ to God, both among the saved, and among the perishing: to these, however, an odour of deadly death; to those an odour of living life. And who is equal to this? For we are not like the most, adulterating the message of God; on the contrary, we speak with purity, as from God, in the presence of God, in Christ.

- 3 Are we beginning again to commend ourselves, as though we needed, like some, introductory letters to you or from you? You are our letter, written in our hearts, read and acknowledged by all men. For you are a clear letter from Christ, transmitted by us; not written with ink, but by a living Spirit of God; not upon stony tablets, but upon fleshy tablets of hearts. And we have this great confidence through Christ before God, not because we are equal to be accounted anything by ourselves, as though from out of ourselves; but our capacity is, instead, from God, Who also qualifies us as 6 ministers of a New Settlement—not a literal, but a spiritual; for the letter destroys, but the Spirit restores to life.

And if the mortal ministry, with 7 letters formed upon stone, began in splendour, so that the sons of Israel were not able to look upon the face of Moses, because of the splendour of his perishable face; how much greater 8 must be the splendour of the spiritual ministry! For if the ministry of the 9 condemnation was splendid, how much more must the ministry of righteousness exceed in splendour! For that splendid Institution was not 10 glorious, in comparison with this surpassing splendour. For if the 11 vanishing passed through splendour, the permanent will exist in much greater magnificence.

Possessing, therefore, such a hope, 12 we use great freedom of speech. And 13 not like Moses, who placed a veil over his face, so that the sons of Israel might not look to the end of what was to pass away. On the contrary, it dimmed their thoughts: 14 for to the present day, the same veil over the perception of the Old Settlement remains unmoved; because it is only removed by Christ. Indeed, 15 until to-day the veil lies over their heart when Moses is considered; but 16 WHEN THEY RETURN TO THE LORD, THE VAIL WILL BE REMOVED.¹ For 17 the Lord is Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. Therefore all of us, having the re- 18 flected splendour from the unveiled face of the Lord, will be transformed into the same resemblance, from splendour to splendour, entirely by an inspiration from the Lord.

Therefore, having this service, since 4 we have received it we have not been cowardly. But have renounced the 2 secret dealings of shame, not wandering in villainy, nor cheating the intention of God; but with the openness of the truth establishing ourselves with all manly consciousness before God. And if our good news is veiled, it is 3 veiled to the perishing; in whom the 4 god of this age has darkened the thoughts with unbelief, so that they cannot perceive the light of the Gospel of rectification from Christ, Who is the representative of God. For 5

we have not preached ourselves; but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves
 6 your servants for Jesus. When God spoke, from darkness light shone; which has shone in our hearts, to enlighten the knowledge of the rectification from God, face to face with Christ.¹
 7 But we possess this treasure in earthen vessels, so that the grandeur of the power may be from God, and
 8 not from us; who are in all places pressed upon, but not overpowered; at a loss, but not despairing; driven on, but not forsaken; repulsed, but not
 10 exterminated; everywhere carrying about the dying of Jesus in the body, so that in our body the life of Jesus may 11 be displayed. We are always living for death, surrendered for the sake of Jesus; so that the life of Jesus may also be displayed in our mortal 12 bodies: consequently, His death energizes in us, but His life in you.
 13 And possessing the same spirit of faith as he who wrote, I BELIEVED, THEREFORE I SPOKE²; we also believe, and 14 consequently speak, knowing that He Who raised Jesus will also raise us with Jesus, and present us with 15 you. For all is for your sakes, so that the perfected gift may overflow from the grateful multitude to the 16 honour of God. We do not therefore act like cowards; but even if our outward man is exhausted, yet our inward is renewed day by day. For 17 the fleeting trifle of our sufferings will acquire to us, in an immeasurable eternity, an unsurpassed load of 18 glory; we not looking at the seen, but at the unseen: for the seen is temporary, but the unseen eternal.
 5 For we know that even if our terrestrial home of this tent should be removed, we possess a home, a building from God, not made by hand,
 2 eternal in the heavens! And, indeed, we groan in this, longing to be endowed with our little cottage from 3 heaven. And if we are endowed, we shall not be found shelterless. And, indeed, we, while loaded in this tent, groan; yet we do not wish to be stripped of it, but to be endowed, so that this mortality may be swallowed
 5 up by that life. But He Who enables us to work for this purpose is God,

Who gave us the pledge of the Spirit.

Therefore we everywhere cheer ourselves; and know that while at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord. For we walk by faith, not by sight. So we take heart, although we would choose to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. And, besides, we are desirous, whether present or absent, to be pleasing to Him. For we must all be reviewed before the Judgment-seat of Christ, so that each may receive the reward of what he has done in this body, whether good or bad. Consequently, knowing how to reverence the Lord, we persuade men—that we may shine forth to God; and I hope we shine forth also to your consciences.

We are not commending ourselves again to you; but rather giving to you an opportunity of boasting about us, that you may hold against those boasting in appearance and not in heart. For if we are mad, it is for God; if we are rational, it is for you; for the love of Christ sustains us, deciding us, that One died for all, therefore all died. And He died for all, so that the living should no longer live for themselves; but instead, for Him Who died for them, and rose again.

Therefore, from the present time, we regard none according to social position; and although we knew Christ personally, yet now we know Him so no longer. So that, if any one is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has passed away, for all things have become new. But the whole is from God Who restored us to Himself through Christ, and gave to us the office of restoration; since God was in Christ leading back the whole world to Himself, not reckoning up their sins against them; and he deposited with us the reason of that restoration. Therefore we fulfil an embassy from Christ; as though God invited through us, we implore you for Christ's sake, be gathered again to God! He Who never knew sin, for our sakes was regarded as sin, so that we might be righteousness towards God in Him.

And working together with Him, we also encourage you not to accept the gift of God in vain; for He says, I HAVE HEARD YOU IN A FAVOURABLE SEASON,

² Psa. cxvi. 10.

AND IN A DAY OF SALVATION I
HAVE HELPED YOU.¹

Now the present is a very favourable time; now the present is a day of 3 salvation. We give no offence to any,
so that the service may not be blamed.
4 On the contrary, we conduct ourselves like servants of God under all circumstances—in perfect obedience, in 5 afflictions, in distresses, in difficulties, in contentions, in watchings, in riots,
in labours, in sleeplessness, in hunger;
6 when rejected, when recognised; by self-restraint, when conferring benefits; by a holy spirit; by unpre-tended love; by true reason; by 7 Divine power; by the arms of righteousness on the right and the left;
8 through honour and disgrace;
through bad report and good report;
9 as though deceivers, yet truthful; at times ignored when fully known; apparently killed, and yet we are 10 alive; seemingly crushed, and yet not killed; thought to be grieved, but always rejoicing; seemingly poor, but enriching multitudes; apparently having nothing, although possessing all.

11 Our mouth is open to you, Corin-12 thians; our heart is spread out. You are not contracted in us, but you are contracted in your own affections;
13 however, unfold yourselves and return
it. I speak to you as children.

Of Mixed Marriages.

14 Become not unequally connected with unbelievers; for what partnership is there between righteousness and lawlessness? or what community 15 between light and darkness? and who can make concord between Christ and Belial? or who can classify faith with 16 unbelief? or who can make the sanctuary of God unite with idols? For you are a living, Divine sanctuary;
as God says:

I WILL DWELL AND TRAVEL WITH THEM;

I WILL BE THEIR GOD, AND THEY SHALL BE MY PEOPLE.²

17 THEREFORE, COME OUT FROM AMONG THEM AND BE SEPARATE,
SAYS THE LORD,
AND TOUCH NOT UNCLEANNES;³
AND I WILL ACCEPT YOU,
18 AND BE A FATHER TO YOU,

AND YOU SHALL BE SONS AND DAUGHTERS TO ME,

SAYS THE ALL-RULING LORD.¹

Therefore, having these promises, 7 friends, we should purify ourselves from every bodily and spiritual pollution, perfecting purity in reverence of God.

The Apostle's Note.

Make room for us: we have injured 2 none; we have corrupted none; we have plundered none. I do not 3 express blame; for, as I said before, you are in our hearts to suffer and die together. I use perfect freedom of 4 speech towards you, for I am very proud of you; I am quite content and supremely delighted, in spite of all our sufferings. For when we arrived in 5 Macedonia, we had no bodily rest; but were distressed all around—contentions without, fears within. But God, 6 the Consoler of the depressed, consoled us by the appearance of Titus; and not only by his appearance, but 7 also by the pleasure with which he had been consoled by you, reporting to us your desire, your sorrow, your zeal for me, which increased my delight.
Because, even if I had grieved you by 8 that letter, I am not sorry for it—although I had been sorry—seeing the result of that letter, although it grieved you temporarily. I am glad now, 9 because you were grieved, but because you were grieved into repentance;
for you were grieved unto a return to God, so that you were not punished by us uselessly. For the Divine 10 sorrow produces an unrepentable change of mind to salvation; but the worldly grief produces death. For 11 observe this—your Divine grief—what a readiness, what a defence, what vexation, what dread, what a longing, what zeal, what a decision it produced from you! In all things you have proved yourselves to be quite innocent of that affair. However, although I 12 wrote to you, it was not on account of the profligate, nor on account of the injured man; but with the object of manifesting your earnestness, for our sakes and your own, towards God.
And we have been consoled by 13
this.

And besides our own consolation, we have been still further rejoiced by the delight of Titus, because his

14 spirit was refreshed by you all; for if I had boasted about you a little to him, I was not disgraced; but as we had spoken in all truth to you, so also 15 our boast to Titus became true. And his feelings are especially favourable towards you; remembering the obedience of you all, how you received him
 16 with fear and trembling. I am rejoiced, because I relied upon you in everything.

Collections for the Poor.

8 But now I will inform you, brethren, of the gift of God bestowed upon the
 2 assemblies of Macedonia; because of the overflow of their kindness which, during a great trial of affliction, and notwithstanding their very deep poverty, has poured out in the wealth
 3 of their generosity; so that according to their ability—and I give evidence beyond their ability—they volunteered. With much urgency they 4 begged of us to convey the gift, and undertake the distribution of it to the 5 saints. And not that we had expected it; but they first gave themselves to the Lord, and to us through the will 6 of God. We therefore encouraged Titus that as he had begun, he should also finish concerning your contribution.
 7 However, as you excel in everything—in faith, and reason, and knowledge, and in all readiness, and in your love toward us—so also you might excel in this contribution.
 8 I do not speak imperatively; but by relating the readiness of others, want a genuine proof of your friendship. For you should look upon
 9 the beneficence of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, when existing in wealth, impoverished Himself for you, so that you might be enriched by His 10 poverty. And I give my opinion about this; for it may assist you, who not only originated the work, but also the idea, above a year ago. And now, then, complete the matter; so that as you had the desire to form it, you may also complete it according to 12 your means. For if the desire exists, it is acceptable according to what one may possess; not according to what is 13 not possessed. Yet assistance to others will not be affliction to yourselves; but equitably at this present period of your abundance you assist them in their needs; then also from their abundance something will be produced for you when in necessity; so it will be equalized. As it is written: 15

 THOSE HAVING MUCH WERE NOT OVER-FED; AND THOSE HAVING LITTLE WERE NOT STARVED.¹

But thank God, Who gave the same 16 earnestness to the heart of Titus for you. He gladly accepted it, and, im- 17 patient to begin, he started to you voluntarily. But we have sent with 18 him the brother who is admired for preaching the gospel through all the assemblies. And not that only; 19 but he was also selected by the assemblies as our fellow-traveller, to attend to this benevolence, for the honour of the Lord, and by our desire. I steer in this way, lest any one 20 should slander us for our excessive activity in this affair; taking care to 21 stand well, not only before the Lord, but also before men. And we have 22 sent together with them our brother, whom we have always found to be active, but at present much more earnest by the great confidence he has in you. As for Titus, he is my friend 23 and fellow-worker among you; and our brothers are messengers from the assemblies approved of Christ. You 24 should therefore show to them the proof of your love, and of our pride concerning you in the presence of all the assemblies.

Further, indeed, it is superfluous for 8 me to write to you about the subscriptions for the saints; for I know your 2 desire, and I boasted about you to the Macedonians, that Achaia was prepared a year before; and through your zeal many were aroused. I have accordingly sent the brethren, so that our boast in this instance may not be disproved; and as I said you were prepared, so you might be found; and 4 lest the Macedonians coming with me should find you unprepared, we—for I will not say, you—should be ashamed in this assertion.

We therefore considered it necessary 5 to advise the brethren, so that they might proceed to you, and secure the previously recorded eulogy of you; yet let this readiness be spontaneous, and not as though extorted. The 6 sparing sower, however, shall reap sparingly; and the generous sower will also reap plentifully; as each is incited by his heart, not as though grudgingly, or as if compelled; for

8 God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to make every grace overflow in you, so that in everything and at all times, possessing complete content, you may prosper in every benevolent work; as it is written,

HE WINNED IT OUT,
HE GAVE TO THE POOR,
HIS RIGHTEOUSNESS WILL EN-DURE FOR EVER.¹

10 And He who bountifully provides seed to the sower, and bread to the eater, will supply and fill up this your seed, and will increase the product of your righteousness. In everything you will be enriched with all generosity, which is acquired through gratitude to God. Because the result of this assistance is not only a supply to the necessities of the holy; but it will also overflow through their great gratitude to God—through their approval of this assistance, thanking God for the alliance of your profession, and the openness of the communion with them, and with all, in the gospel of Christ. And with their prayer for you, they will feel a strong affection for you, because you have received God's pre-eminent favour. Thank God for His unexpected bounty!

Paul on his Defence.

10 And I myself, Paul, advise you, through the gentleness and goodness of Christ, who, when among you, am quiet in appearance, but when absent am bold toward you. But I wish not to be bold when present, with the determination in which I intend to venture against some who fancy we work for selfish ends; for although we exist in a body, we do not contend for self. For the weapons of our campaign are not corporeal: but powers from God, for the purpose of destroying fortresses; defeating opponents, and every pride exalting itself against the knowledge of God; and subduing every thought to the discipline of the Messiah; and competent to expel every mutineer, so that your discipline may be perfect.

7 Do you look at the surface of things? If any one is sure that he is Christ's, let him yet reflect upon this with himself—that as he is Christ's, so are we. For if, indeed, we boasted excessively about our authority, which the Lord has given to us to build up and not to pull you down, we should not be ashamed of it. However, I do not think well, as I might, to terrify you by letters: because they say, "His letters are weighty and strong; but his personal appearance is feeble, and rhetoric powerless." Such people should consider this: that whatever we are when absent by eloquent letters, we can be the same in action when present. But we do not dare to compete or compare ourselves with some of those self-praisers; for they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves to themselves, are rather irreflective!

And we are not boasting immeasurably; but within the limits of the commission which God assigned us, when He was planning for you. For we are not out-stretching ourselves, as though our commission did not extend to you; for we extend as far as yourselves with the gospel of Christ. We do not boast in exaggeration about other men's work; but we are hoping from the growth of your faith that we shall be promoted from you to go still further, so as to preach the gospel beyond your bounds, and so as not to boast about a district prepared by another man's commission. AND THE PROUD SHOULD BE PROUD IN THE LORD;¹ for not he who establishes himself is approved, but whom the Lord establishes.

I wish you could endure a little folly from me: yes, bear with me; for I rave for you with a Divine madness. For I promised you to a special husband, to present you a pure virgin to Christ! But I am afraid, lest as the serpent seduced Eve into his villainy, so he may corrupt your thoughts from the innocence and purity of what is for Christ. For certainly, if the new-comer preaches another Jesus, whom we have not preached; or you receive another spirit that you have not received; or another gospel which you have not accepted—you take it well! However, I consider myself to be deficient in nothing, compared with these pretentious apostles. And even if I am untutored in rhetoric, yet I am not in intellect. I have certainly displayed that in every way—at all events, among you!

7 Have I committed a sin, lowering myself so that you might be exalted, when I preached the gospel of God to you? I robbed other assemblies, accepting wages for services to you. And when with you and being deficient, I burdened none: for the brothers arriving from Macedonia supplied my deficiency, and I kept myself free from troubling you for maintenance, and I will continue to do so. Christ's truth is in me; therefore this boast shall not be torn from me in the district of Achaia. Why? Because I do not love you? God knows. But what I do, and will do, is that I may cut off the opportunity of those who desire one, so that in what they boast, they may be found the same as ourselves.

13 For these sham apostles—tricksters—transform themselves into apostles of Christ: and no wonder, for Satan transformed himself into an angel of light; therefore it is not much if his servants transform themselves as though they were servants of righteousness. Their end will be the same as their works.

16 I say again, let no one consider me to be a fool; but if I am, and you should regard me as a fool, then I myself will boast a little. What I say I do not speak from the Lord; but as though in delirium from this madness of boasting. Since many boast about their position, I will boast as well.

19 For you endure fools complacently—you are sensible! For you endure it if they enslave you, if they devour you, if they rob, if they pirate, if they strike you in the face!

21 I speak of dishonour, because we have been insulted. Whatever any other may dare—I speak in delirium—I myself will dare it as well. Are they Hebrews? I am. Are they Israelites? I am. Are they Abraham's heirs? I am. Are they servants of Christ? I speak raving—I am more. Unbounded in work; indomitable in fight; very often in prison; frequently in death! From Jews five times I received forty lashes less one; thrice I have been flogged; once I have been stoned; three times I have been shipwrecked; a night and a day I struggled in the sea. Often, when travelling, in dangers on rivers, dangers from robbers, dangers from fellow-countrymen, dangers from foreigners; in town dangers, in desert dangers, in perils at sea, in troubles from pretended friends; in labour and hardship, often in want of rest, in hunger and thirst, frequently in starvation, in cold, and nakedness: besides these 28 events—my daily task—the anxiety for all the assemblies. Who is weak, 29 and I am not weak? who is offended, and I am not fired? If there must be 30 boasting, I will boast of my weakness. The God and Father of our 31 Lord Jesus Christ, to Whom be blessing for ever, knows that I lie not.

In Damascus the governor of Aretas 32 the king guarded the city of the Damascenes in order to catch me; but I was let down in a basket 33 through a window, and escaped his hands. But it is useless for me to 12 boast: I will come to visions and revelations from the Lord.

I knew a man in Christ fourteen 2 years ago—whether in a body I do not know, or out of the body, I know not; God knows—he himself was carried up as far as the third heaven. And I 3 knew this man—whether in a body or out of the body, I know not; God knows—that he was carried into 4 paradise, and heard unutterable ideas, which it is not possible for a man to relate. I will boast about that man; 5 but I will not boast about myself, except in my weaknesses. Yet if I 6 wished to be boastful, I should not be a fool; for I tell the truth. But I forbear, for fear any one should consider me greater than what he sees, or what he hears from me.

And that I might not be made 7 overbearing by the sublimity of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh—a messenger from Satan to correct me, so that I might not be haughty. I implored the Lord 8 thrice about this, that He would remove it from me; but He said to me: 9 "My gift is enough for you; for My power is perfected in weakness." Therefore I will boast more pleasantly in my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may rest upon me. So I 10 am content in weaknesses, in insults, in distresses, in persecutions, and oppressions, for the sake of Christ; for when I am weak, then I am strong.

Have I become a fool? You have 11 forced me, and I wish to be set right with you; for I am inferior in nothing to these supercilious apostles, even if I am nothing. The credentials of the 12

- apostle were worked out among you with great patience, through signs, and wonders, and powers. For in what were you deficient compared with the other assemblies, except that I did not accept payment from you? Forgive me this wrong.
- 14 Take note: I have prepared to come to you this third time; and I will not accept your salary, for I want not your property, but yourselves—for the children are not accustomed to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children. And I will spend with pleasure, and be exhausted, for the sake of your souls; even if by loving you more I am loved the less. But perhaps I have not burdened you; but, being a rascal, have taken pay of you by a trick! When have I plundered you through any of those whom I have sent? I warned Titus, and I sent the brother with him; did Titus plunder you? Have we not conducted ourselves in the same spirit and in the same course?
- 19 Do you think we are apologizing to you again? We speak in the presence of God in Christ; and all, friends, is for the sake of benefiting you. For I fear that on coming I may not find you what I wish; and that I myself should be found to you what you wish not. I fear there are contentions, fury, passions, envies, detractions, slanderings, inflations, disturbances.
- 21 I fear that at my return my God will hurl me against you, when I shall punish many of the old and unrepentant sinners for the vice, and profligacy, and excess, which they have practised.
- 13 I am coming this third time to you; on the evidence of two or three witnesses every fact can be confirmed. I said before, and I proclaim it again—as though present—the second time, though I am absent now to those sinners, and to all the rest, that when I come again I shall not spare; since you want a proof of Christ speaking in me, Who is not weak in you, but powerful among you. For even if He was crucified through weakness, He lives now from a Divine power; although we are weak in Him, yet we shall live in Him with Divine power for your sakes.

Test yourselves if you are in the faith; examine yourselves if you cannot recognise that Jesus Christ is among you. But perhaps you never inquire. Yet I hope that you acknowledge that we are not uninquiring. But I pray to God not to do you any harm; not so that we may appear superior, but so that you may do right. And we will be uninquisitive then; for we are not empowered to do anything against the truth, but for the truth. However, we are glad when we can be weak and you powerful, and we pray for this—your perfection. Therefore I write this while absent, so that when present I may not employ severity in accordance with the authority which the Lord has given to me, for construction and not for destruction. For the rest, brothers, be happy; perfect yourselves, encourage yourselves, desire the same object; live at peace, and the God of love and peace will be with you. Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the holy send regards to you.

The blessing of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit, be with you all. Amen.

NOTE.—The two Epistles to the Corinthians present St. Paul to us as a Statesman and Social Organiser of the highest ability, and of the clearest common sense. He would seem to have been accused of teaching a Code of Morality too high for practical life, but in reply he calmly enacts Laws for the conduct of Christians, that, while easy to obey, do not make obedience a slavery, or a struggle against the natural necessities of mankind, but instead will make existence pleasant, healthful, virtuous, and consequently happy. They have no asceticism, or prohibition of any innocent pleasure, but encourage bodily and mental comfort in every way, and enforce the principles of Duty, Justice and Mercy, and the equality in moral accountability to God of rich and poor alike, and the mutual duties of every class of Society to each other, and that without any revolution—an assault upon existing social systems and legal rights, but showing how the worst conditions of the hideously corrupt morality and laws of his day could be reformed without any resort to political violence, and to the especial benefit of the followers of Christ. I am not aware that St. Paul has been ever before studied in this position of a Legislator, but as such his Influence has re-organised the Civilized World.—F. F.

EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE GALATIANS.

Paul explains his Apostolic Appointment.

1 PAUL, an apostle—not from man or through man, but appointed by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, Who raised Him from the dead—and all the brethren with me, to the assemblies of Galatia: Grace and peace to you, from God the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, Who gave Himself for our sins, so that He might lead us out of the present wicked age, according to the will of our God and Father: to Whom be the honour for ever and ever. Amen.

6 I wonder that you are turned so soon from Him Who called you into the gift of Christ, to another gospel:
7 which, however, is not another; but simply a contrivance of some people to disturb you, and who wish to overturn the gospel of the Messiah. But 8 if even we, or a messenger from heaven, should promise you contrary to what we have promised you, let 9 him be accursed. As we said before, and I say yet again, if any announce a gospel different to what you received, let him be accursed.

10 For do I now obey men, or God?
Or do I want to please men? If I yet pleased men, I should not be a 11 servant of Christ. And I wish you to know, brothers, the gospel preached 12 by me, that it is not human; neither did I receive it from a man, nor did I learn it otherwise than through revelation from Jesus Christ.

13 For you have heard of my way of life when in Judaism, that I excessively persecuted and abused the 14 church of God; and outran in that Judaism all my contemporaries in my nation, possessed by an excessive 15 zeal for my ancestral traditions. But when it seemed good, God, Who gave me birth from my mother, and 16 called me through His favour, to reveal His Son in me, so that I might preach Him among the heathen, I did not consult then with flesh and blood; neither did I go 17 up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me; but at once

I went away into Arabia, and again returned to Damascus. Then, three 18 years after, I went up to Jerusalem to question Kephas, and stayed fifteen days with him; but I did not see 19 another of the apostles, except James the Lord's brother. And note what I 20 write to you; before God I lie not.
Then I went into the countries of 21
Syria and Cilicia; but I was unknown 22 by presentation to the assemblies in Christ of Judea; and they only heard 23 that "Our own persecutor now preaches the gospel which he then re- 24
viled!"—and they praised God for me.

Then passing over fourteen years, I 2 again went up to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus as well.
But I went up for an explanation; 2 and explained to them the gospel which I preached among the heathen, but privately to the thoughtful, for fear I should run, or had run, in vain.
Titus, however, a Greek-Jew, who was 3 with me, was never compelled to be circumcised. But as for the false breth- 4 ren, introduced by a mistake, who had crept in to spy out the freedom which we have in Christ Jesus, so that they might enslave us, I never subjected 5 myself to them for an hour; so that the truth of the gospel might continue with you. But about those regarded 6 as reflective—whatever they were, it makes no difference to me; I do not receive a man in preference to God—those reflective men never objected to me; but, on the contrary, seeing that 7 the gospel for the uncircumcised was entrusted to me, as it was to Peter for the circumcised (for He Who ener- 8 gized Peter in an apostleship for the circumcision also energized me to the heathen): James and Kephas and 9
John, who were regarded as pillars, knowing the gift bestowed upon me, gave the right hand of fellowship to Barnabas and me, so that we should go to the heathen; but they to the 10 circumcision. Only stipulating that we should remember the poor; and I am always ready to do that.

The Controversy regarding Legalism.

11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I resisted him face to face, because he 12 was blameable. For before some came from the heathen; he ate with the heathen; but when they came, he shrank back and separated himself, fearing some 13 from the circumcision. And the rest of the Jews played the hypocrite with him, so that even Barnabas also was led away by their hypocrisy.
14 But when I saw that they did not walk straight towards the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all: "If you, who are a Jew by nation, live like a foreigner and not like a Jew, how can you urge the 15 foreigners to Judaize? We are natural Jews, and not sinners from among the 16 heathen; but we know that a man is not made righteous by ritualism, except through a faith of Jesus Christ; and we believe in Christ Jesus, so that we may be made righteous from a faith of Christ, and not from legal rituals, because by legal rituals no person
17 will ever become righteous. But, if, desiring to become righteous in Christ, we ourselves are found to be sinners, would Christ then be a minister
18 of sin? Never! For if I reconstruct what I had pulled down, I prove myself foolish; for through a law I died
19 to law, so that I might live with God. I have been crucified with Christ; but I live; yet still not I, but Christ lives in me. But the bodily life I now live, I live for the faith of the Son of God
20 Who loved me, and gave Himself up for me. I do not set aside the gift of God; for if righteousness were through a ritual, then Christ died to no purpose."

Faithly contrasted with the Law.

3 Silly Galatians! who has fascinated you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ was plainly depicted, crucified? I only want to learn this from you: Did you receive the Spirit from a law of rituals, or from communication of 3 a faith? Are you so senseless, that having begun spiritually, you would 4 now end in flesh? Have you suffered so much for nothing?—if it is really for 5 nothing! Then did He who brought the Spirit to you, and worked powerfully in you, do so by a law of rituals, or by communication of a faith?—as ABRAHAM TRUSTED IN GOD, AND IT WAS PAID TO HIM IN RIGHTEOUSNESS.¹

Therefore, you should know that those from faith are themselves sons of Abraham. And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would make the heathen righteous by means of a faith promised from the first to Abraham, that ALL THE HEATHEN SHALL BE BLESSED IN YOU.² So those from a faith are blessed with the faith of Abraham. For whoever are dependent on a law of rituals, are under a curse: for it is written, THAT ALL WHO DO NOT CONTINUE IN ALL THE WRITINGS OF THE BOOK OF THE LAW TO DO THEM, ARE UNDER A CURSE.³ But it is clear that none in law are righteous with God; because, THE RIGHTEOUS SHALL LIVE BY FAITH.⁴ But the ritual did not come from faith; on the contrary, THE PERFORMER OF THEM MUST LIVE IN THEM.⁵ Christ chased us from the curse of the law, becoming a curse for us; for it is written: CURSED BEYOND MEASURE IS ANY ONE HANGING UPON A TREE;⁶ so that the blessing of Abraham might come to the heathen by Christ Jesus, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

Brothers, (I speak humanly) even a testament made by a man, no one sets aside or adds to. And to Abraham and to his heir the promises were decreed. He does not say, "and to your heirs," as of many; but concerning an individual, "and to your Heir," Who is Christ. And I assert this—the rituals, beginning four hundred and thirty years after, could not cancel a Settlement previously established by God, so as to abolish the promise. For if the inheritance comes from a ritual, it is no more from a promise; yet God granted it to Abraham through a promise. Why, then, the law? It was established because of sins, until the Heir should come in Whom were the promises—arranged through messengers in the hand of an intermediary. But an intermediary between a single individual cannot be—but God is One. Is the law therefore contrary to the promises? Never! Yet if to a law were given the power to restore to life, righteousness would then be from a law. But the Scripture includes all sinners, so that the promise from a faith of Jesus Christ might be given to all believers.

³ Deut. xxvii. 26. ⁴ Hab. ii. 4.

⁵ Lev. xviii. 5. ⁶ Deut. xxi. 23.

But before the faith came, we were anchored, sheltered under a law, until the revelation of that future faith. So that the law became a leader of our childhood to Christ, in order that we might be made righteous from faith. But the faith having come, we are no longer under the leader of our childhood. For you are all sons of God through the faith in Christ Jesus. For whoever of you were baptized into Christ have put on Christ.

Not one a Jew and another a Greek; nor one a slave and another free; nor one male and another female: for you all are united in Christ Jesus. But if you are of Christ, then you are of Abraham's race, inheritors by the promise.

4 But I say the inheritor, during the time he is under age, differs little from a slave, although he is master of all. 2 He is under guardians and administrators until the period fixed by his father. And thus we, while we were infants, were trained under the former rules of the Hebrew ritual. But when the completion of the time came, God sent His own Son, born of a woman, 5 born under a ritual; so that He might buy out those under a ritual, and that 6 we might receive the sonship. And therefore you are sons, God having sent the Spirit of His own Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. 7 So that no one is now a slave, but a son; if a son, also an inheritor through 8 the favour of God. But then, when you knew not God, you slaved to what 9 are not gods by nature. But now, knowing God—nay, rather being acknowledged by God—how can you turn again to these weak and poor ideas, to which you wish to be enslaved again? You observe days, and months, and seasons, and particular 10 years. I fear for you, that I have worked among you in vain.

12 I beg of you, brothers, become like me, so that I may be like you. You never injured me. And you know I preached to you formerly in bodily weakness; and you did not despise your trial in my body, nor reject me: on the contrary, you received me as a messenger of God—as Christ Jesus.

How great then was your delight! 15 For I witness to you, that if possible, pulling out your eyes, you would have given them to me! Am I become like 16 an enemy, by speaking the truth to you? They court you, but not honourably: on the contrary, they wish to dazzle you, so that you may court them. But it is always noble to be 18 honourably courted, and not only in my presence with you.

My little children, for whom I am 19 again in agony until Christ be moulded in you, I wish I were now present with 20 you, and coaxing you by my voice; because I fear for you. Tell me, you 21 who wish to be under a ritual, Do you not hear The Law, where it is written, 22 that Abraham had two sons, one from the slave girl, and one from the free woman? But that from the slave girl 23 was born naturally, and that from the free woman through a promise. Which 24 can be allegorized, for they are two covenants: one indeed, from Sinai Rock, born in slavery, which is Hagar; 1 for Sinai Rock is a mountain 25 in Arabia, and represents the present Jerusalem, for she is enslaved with her children. But the supreme Jerusalem 26 is a free woman, who is the mother of us all. For it is written: 27

LET THE BARREN WHO HAS NOT GIVEN BIRTH TO CHILDREN REJOICE, SHRIEK AND SHOUT, SHE WHO HAS NOT LABOURED;
BECAUSE THE CHILDREN OF THE DESERTED ARE MORE THAN HERS WHO HAD THE HUSBAND.²

And we, brethren, are children according to the promise through Isaac. But as then, he who was born naturally despised him who was by the Spirit—so it is now. But what says 30 the Scripture? SEND AWAY THE SLAVE GIRL WITH HER SON; FOR THE SON OF THE SLAVE GIRL SHALL NOT INHERIT WITH THE SON OF THE FREE WOMAN.³ Therefore, brethren, we are not 31 children of the slave, but of the free.

Stand, therefore, on the freedom 6 with which Christ has freed us, and submit not again to a yoke of slavery.

Listen to what I, Paul, tell you: 2 that if you be circumcised, Christ profits you nothing. And I assert 3

1 Hagar signifies Rock In Hebrew.

2 Isa. llv. 1.

3 Gen. xxi. 10.

again, to every circumcised man, that he is bound to practise the whole 4 ritual. Whoever of you are made righteous by a ritual, you are detached from Christ—you are fallen from the 5 gift. For we received hope of righteousness from a spirit of faith.
 6 For in Christ neither circumcision, nor uncircumcision strengthens; but faith energized by love.
 7 You were running well; who tripped
 8 you into not going true? That signal
 9 was not given from your Leader. A little ferment ferments the whole
 10 mass. But I trust to you in the Lord that you do not intend differently; but your disturber shall be punished for his fault, whoever he may be.
 11 But I, brethren, if I still preach circumcision, why am I still persecuted? for then the offence of the cross would be destroyed. And I wish those who mutilate you would 12 maim themselves. For you were called to freedom, brethren: only use not that freedom as an excuse for sensuality; but through love you 13 should serve one another. For all the law is completed in one expression—in this: YOU SHALL LOVE YOUR
 14 NEIGHBOUR AS YOURSELF.¹ But if you bite and devour one another, take care that you are not mutually ex-
 15 terminated. However, I say, Walk spiritually, and do not gratify sensual 16 passion. For the flesh lusts against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the 17 flesh; for these oppose one another, so that you do not what you would 18 wish. But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under a ritual. And the 19 works of the flesh are plain; they are these: fornication, uncleanness, ex-
 20 cess, idolatry, poisoning, hatred, strife, rage, lusts, contentions, discussions, 21 sectarianism, envy, murder, drunkenness, revelling—and all such like. What I said formerly to you I also 22 say now, that those who practise these will not inherit the Kingdom of God.
 23 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, gladness, peace, patience, gentleness, 24 purity, faith, mildness, continence; there is no law against these. And the men of Christ have crucified the 25 body, together with its passions and lusts. If we live spiritually, we should 26 also drill ourselves spiritually. Let us not become vain-glorious, provoking one another, irritating one another.

Brotherly Exhortations.

Brethren, if a man among you 6 should fall into some sin, you who are spiritual restore him in a spirit of mildness; looking to yourself, for fear you also should be tempted. Support
 7 one another's burdens, and so perfect the law of Christ. For if a person
 8 thinks himself to be something when he is nothing, he deceives himself. But let every one examine his own 9 work, and then he has the boast in himself alone, and not in another;
 10 for every one must carry his own load.¹

Let the taught communicate to the 6 teacher of the message, in all benefits.

Do not err; God cannot be deluded: 7 for what a man sows, that he will also reap. If he sows for his sensuality, 8 from that sensuality he will reap perdition; but sowing for the Spirit, from the Spirit he will reap eternal life. And acting nobly, we shall not 9 suffer; for if we faint not, we shall reap at the right season. So then, as 10 we have opportunity, let us do good to all; but especially to the citizens of the faith.

You see how large a letter I have 11 written to you with my own hand.

Postscript.

Those who wish to show well ex- 12 ternally would force you to be circumcised; solely that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ. For the circumcisers themselves never 13 observe the ritual; but they wish you to be circumcised, so that they may boast about your body. But I myself 14 will not become boastful, except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which a world was crucified to me, and I to a world! For neither 15 circumcision nor uncircumcision is anything; but a new creation is. And 16 as many as discipline themselves by this rule, on them peace and mercy, and on the Israel of God. But from 17 now let none of them trouble me; for I carry in my body the brand marks of Jesus.

The blessing of our Lord Jesus 18 Christ be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

CIRCULAR LETTER OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE EPHESIAN
AND OTHER ASSEMBLIES.

The Apostle's Salutation.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, to the 2 holy and faithful in Christ Jesus existing (at Ephesus): Blessing to you, and peace from our Father,
God, and Lord Jesus Christ.

The Fullness in Christ.

3 Let the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ be blessed, Who has blest us with every spiritual blessing which is in the heavens with 4 Christ; since He had chosen us for Himself before founding a system, to be holy and blameless in love before 5 Him: having prepared us for adoption to Himself through Jesus Christ 6 according to His settled purpose, in accordance with His glorious gift which He presented to us from love, 7 by which we have the redemption through His blood, the release from 8 sins, coming with the rich gift which He poured into us with all wisdom and 9 intelligence; making known to us the mystery of His intention, with His decision which He had determined 10 with Himself to administer at the completion of the periods, when everything was to be centred again in the Messiah, both upon the heavens and 11 upon the earth: in Him, by Whom we have also inherited according to His purpose Who foresees and ener-gizes all things, which have been prepared to accomplish the intention 12 of His will;—so that we who formerly awaited the Messiah might be an evidence of His honour. From Whom you 13 have also heard the true message—the good news of your salvation—and believing in Whom you were sealed with 14 the promise by the Holy Spirit, which is the pledge of our inheritance, to be redeemed by the possession of it, as 15 proof of His honour. Because of which I also, having heard of your fidelity in the Lord Jesus, and love 16 towards all the holy, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; so that the God of our 17 Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom, and comprehension of what is contained in a full knowledge of Him who enlight- 18

ens the eyes of your hearts: to show you what is the hope of His calling;
what is the glorious wealth of His inheritance for the holy; and what the 19 exceeding greatness of His power in us believers, through His mighty energy, which energized in Christ, raising 20
Him from the dead, and seating Him at His right in the heavens, above 21 all government, authority, and power, and dominion; and every name named, not only in this present age but also in that to come; and has 22
SUBJECTED EVERYTHING UNDER HIS FEET; ¹ and has given Him to be head over all the church, which is His body, 23 the accomplishment of the whole in absolute perfection.

The Believer's Position in Christ.

And you were dead in your trans- 2 gressions and sins, in which you then 2 walked, following this age of the world, under the authority of the prince of darkness, of the spirit of him now working in the sons of carelessness; with whom also we all then associated, 3 in the lusts of our sensuality, practising the desires of the flesh and of the mind; for we were naturally children of passion, like the rest. But 4 God, being rich in mercy, through His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead through 5 transgressions, restored us to life with Christ—you are saved by a gift—and 6 raised us together, and seated us together in the heavens with Christ Jesus; so that He might show to the 7 coming ages the surpassing richness of His gift, with which He had benefited us in Christ Jesus. For you are 8 saved by a gift through a faith, and this is not from yourselves: the gift

1 Psalm viii. &

9 is from God; not from rituals, so 10 that none can boast. For we are His creation, created in Christ Jesus for good works, in which God has decided that we should live.

11 Therefore remember, that then you were, personally, the heathen—who are called Uncircumcision by those called Circumcision in flesh made 12 by hand—you were at that time without Christ, excluded from the constitution of Israel, and foreigners to the covenants of the promise, not having a hope, and without a God in the 13 universe. But now in Christ Jesus, you, who then were far away, have become near by the blood of Christ.
14 For He is our peace, Who made the 15 two one, and removed the dividing veil of enmity, by His own body; making void the law of commands by true thoughts, so that from these two
He might create in Himself one single 16 new man, making peace, and reconciling the two in one body to God through His Cross; having destroyed 17 the enmity by means of Himself: and coming, He ANNOUNCED THE GOOD NEWS OF PEACE TO YOU AFAR OFF,
18 AND PEACE TO THOSE NEAR;¹ because through Him we both have access in one Spirit to the Father.

19 Therefore now you are no more foreigners and aliens: on the contrary, you are fellow-citizens with the saints, and household friends of God; 20 resting upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ being Himself the Angle-stone: into which the structure, harmoniously arranged, rises up into a holy temple 21 for the Lord; and into Whom you are being built for a dwelling-place of God in Spirit.

The Eternal Secret of God Revealed in the Church.

3 Because of this I Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for you heathen, 2 assuming that you have heard of the administration of the gift of God which 3 has been entrusted to me for you; how that by revelation the secret was made known to me, as I have already briefly 4 related, by which you may be able while reading to perceive my knowl-5 edge in the secret of Christ—which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as now it has been revealed to His holy apostles

and preachers in Spirit—that the 6 heathen are heirs, and participators, and shareholders, of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel; of 7 which I became a minister by the free gift of God, entrusted to me with His powerful energy. To me, the very 8 least of all the holy, this gift was entrusted—to be proclaiming to the heathen the good news of the immeasurable wealth of Christ; and to 9 throw light upon what is the administration of the mystery which was hidden for ages, with God the Creator of all things: so that it might now be 10 made known to the chiefs and authorities in the heavens by means of the church, what is the perfectly working wisdom of God, following the inten-11 tion which He had provided in Christ Jesus our Lord from the eternities; by Whom we have free and 12 confident access through His faith.
Therefore, I pray, be not depressed 13 by my afflictions for you, since they are your glory.

For this I bend my knees in the 14 presence of the Father, from Whom 15 every family in heaven and upon earth is named: so that He may 16
endow you with His glorious wealth, strengthening you with power, through His Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts, 17 through the faith in love; you being rooted and grounded, so that you may 18 be strengthened to comprehend with all the holy, what is the width and extent, and height and depth, and to 19 gain an idea how far the love of Christ exceeds our research: so that you may be perfected with all the perfection of God. But to the Power able to do all, 20 far beyond what we can ask or think, by means of His power energizing in us—to Him be the praise in the church, and in Christ Jesus, during all the generations of the ages of the eternities. Amen.

Exhortations to Godliness.

Therefore I entreat you—I, the 4 prisoner of the Lord—to conduct yourselves worthy of the calling with which you are called, with all quietness, and 2 gentleness, and forbearance, supporting one another in love; endeavouring 3 to preserve the spirit of unity by the link of peace. One body and one 4 spirit, as you were called to a single hope of your calling; having one Lord, 5
one faith, one baptism; one God and 6

Father of all, Who is over all, and 7 through all, and in all; and Who gave to each one of us the gift proportionate to the measure of the free gift
8 of Christ. For this, He says,

HAVING ASCENDED ON HIGH,
HE CAPTURED CAPTIVITY,
AND GAVE GIFTS TO MEN.¹

9 But Who ascended? Who is He, if not the same Who descended first 10 into the lowest part of the earth? He Who descended is the very same as He Who ascended above all the heavens, so that He might fill all.

11 And He gave some, apostles; some, preachers; some, missionaries; and 12 some, pastors and teachers: for the training of the holy in useful work, 13 to construct the body of Christ; until we all attain to the unity of the faith, and of the comprehension of the Son of God; to a perfect manhood, to the standard height of the perfection of 14 Christ: so that we may be no longer raw recruits, wavering and reeling at every breath of the training, by human cunning with villainy, perverting it 15 into an instrument for error; but, following the truth in love, until we attain the whole in Him, Who is the Head—16 Christ; from Whom all the body, harmoniously constructed and balanced through every joint of the combination, with proportionate energy in each of its limbs, the body may grow up an edifice in love with itself.

17 I say this, then, and give evidence in the Lord, so that you may no longer walk as the heathen walk, in the folly 18 of their mind, with the reason beclouded, being alienated from the Divine life by the want of perception which exists in them, through the 19 hardening of their hearts. Which, having alienated, they recklessly abandoned themselves to excess in 20 practising depravity. But you have not 21 so learned Christ. If, indeed, you have heard Him, and learnt in Him what 22 the truth in Jesus is, you will strip yourselves from the former conduct—of the corrupt old man, with his deceptive
23 lusts—and you will be renewed in 24 the spirit of your mind, and you will be putting on the New Man, the one created God-like in righteousness and holiness for the truth.

25 Therefore, rejecting falsehood,
SPEAK TRUTH EVERY ONE WITH HIS NEIGHBOUR,² for we are parts of one another. BE ANGRY, AND SIN NOT;¹ 26 let not the sun set upon your fury;

neither give opportunity to the Devil. 27
The thief—let him steal no longer, but 28 rather be industrious; working usefully with his hands, so that he may have something to spare for the necessitous. Let there not come from 29 your mouth any worthless word; but something good, demanded by the occasion, such as may give benefit to the hearers. And grieve not the Holy 30 Spirit of God, by Whom you are marked for a day of redemption. Let 31 all bitterness, and lust, and passion, and quarrel, and abuse, be expelled from you, with every baseness; and 32 become useful to one another, goodhearted, gracious, as God also was gracious to you in Christ. Be, then, 5 imitators of God, as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also loved 2 you, and delivered Himself for your sakes as a sweet perfume, an offering and sacrifice to God. 3

But prostitution, and all profligacy, or excess, let it never be named among 4
you, as befits the holy; nor obscenity, nor frivolity, nor ribaldry, which are not becoming: but thanksgiving in- 5 stead. For you know the certainty of this, that no fornicator, nor debauchee, nor extortioner (who is an idolater), has an inheritance in the Kingdom of Christ and God. Never let yourselves 6 be deceived with empty arguments; for through these sins, the anger of God comes upon the sons of careles-ness: be not therefore associates with 7 them. For you were once darkness, 8 but now light in the Lord. Walk as children of light; for the fruit of 9
the light is in all purity and righteousness and truth. Search what is most 10 pleasing to the Lord; and do not 11 associate yourselves with the fruitless works of darkness, but much rather reprove them: for it is a shame to 12 relate their hidden practices. But 13 everything reprehensible is revealed under the light; for light is the universal revealer. Therefore He says: 14

ROUSE, SLEEPER,
AND ARISE FROM THE DEAD, AND CHRIST WILL SHINE UPON
YOU.³

See, then, how carefully you should 15 walk!—not like fools, but, on the contrary, as intelligent; buying up the 16 opportunity, for the times are wicked.

² Zech. viii. 16.

³ Psa. lv. 4.

⁴ Isa. lx. 1, 2; Ill. i. 2.

- 17 Therefore be not thoughtless, but consider what is the will of the Lord.
 18 And BE NOT DRUNK WITH WINE,¹ in which there is folly; but instead,
 19 be full of the Spirit: speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and dancing in your hearts to the Lord; giving thanks at all times for everything, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to the God and Father; supporting one another in a reverence of Christ.

Domestic Admonitions.

- 22 Let the women be obedient to their own husbands, as to the Lord; because a husband is head of the wife—as Christ is head of the church—and himself the guardian of her body.
 24 Then even as the church is subjected to Christ, thus also the wives should be to their husbands in everything.
 25 The husbands should love their wives, as Christ loved the church, and delivered Himself up for her sake, so that she might be made holy, purified in the bath with the water of His message: so that He might Himself present to Himself the rectified church, having neither spot nor wrinkle, nor anything like them; but that she might be holy and faultless.
 28 Thus the husbands should love their own wives as their own bodies. The lover of his own wife loves himself.
 29 For no one ever hates his own body: on the contrary, he feeds and warms it—just as Christ does the church, because we are parts of His body.
 31 THEREFORE A MAN SHALL LEAVE MOTHER AND FATHER, AND BE UNITED WITH HIS WIFE; AND THE TWO SHALL BECOME ONE BODY.²
 32 This is the great mystery; but I speak in regard to Christ and the church.
 33 And especially you, every individual, let him love his own wife as himself; and let the wife reverence her husband in the same way.
 6 Children, be obedient to your parents; for that is right. HONOUR YOUR FATHER AND YOUR MOTHER—that is the first command with a promise—SO THAT GOOD MAY COME TO YOU, AND YOU MAY HAVE LONG 4 CONTINUANCE ON THE EARTH.³ And, fathers, do not irritate your children;

but educate them in discipline and knowledge of the Lord.

Slaves, obey your earthly masters with fear and trembling, in frank-heartedness, as to Christ: not with eye service, as if flattering men; but like slaves of Christ, doing God's will, working willingly from your soul as for the Lord, and not for men—because you know that if any one does anything well, he gives pleasure to the Lord, whether he is a slave or a free man. And, masters, do the same to them, abandoning abuse; for you know that both your Master and theirs is in heaven, and there is no partiality with Him.

The Call to Prepare for the Spiritual Conflict.

From henceforward strengthen yourselves in the Lord, and with the power of His might. Put on the complete armour of God, so that you may be able to stand against the tactics of the Devil. Because our fight is not against blood and flesh; but against the sovereignties, against the powers, against the commanders of the darkness of this world, against the spirits of wickedness in the heavens.

Therefore, take up the complete armour of God, so that you may be able to resist in the day of danger, and having done all your duty, to stand. Stand then, your waist belted with truth, and covered with the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod in readiness for the good news of peace; lifting up over all the big shield of the faith, upon which you will be able to quench all the blazing artillery of the Devil. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the message of God; but through all, with prayer and supplication, praying at every moment in spirit, and keeping watch in it with steady tenacity; and praying for the holy, and for me, so that eloquence may be given to me when my mouth is opened, to proclaim with bold freedom the secret of the good news, for which I am an ambassador in captivity; so that I may speak like a free man therein, as I ought to speak.

But so that you may know my affairs, how I do, the dear brother and faithful minister in the Lord, Tychicus,

² Gen. ii. 24.

³ Exod. ix. 12; Deut. v. 16.

22 whom I have sent to you for this very purpose, will inform you; so that you may know about us, and may console 23 your hearts. Peace to the brethren and faithful love from a Father God, and a Lord Jesus Christ. Grace be with all those who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

Introduction.

1 P PAUL and Timothy, servants of Christ Jesus, to all the holy in Christ Jesus living in Philippi, with overlookers and ministers:
 2 Blessing and peace to you, from our Father, God, and Lord Jesus Christ.
 3 I thank my God, whenever I remember you, continually in all my 4 prayers with gladness making supplication for you all, since you were associated in the gospel, from the first
 5 day until now. Confident of this, that the originator of a good work in you will perfect it until the day of 6 Christ Jesus. And it is right for me to think this of you all; for I had you in my heart in my imprisonment, and in the defence and confirmation of the gospel, all of you being my companions in the Divine commission.
 8 For my God is a witness, how I long for you all, with the affections of 9 Jesus Christ. And I pray for this, so that your love may extend more and more in knowledge and all perception, 10 to distinguish the differences, so that you may be clear and certain in the 11 day of Christ, full of the fruit of righteousness through Jesus Christ for the honour and praise of God.

The Apostle triumphant in Persecution.

12 But, friends, I wish you to know that my affair has turned out well, greatly to the promotion of the gospel;
 13 so that my imprisonment for Christ has been seen in the whole palace, 14 and to all the others. And most of the brethren in the Lord, made confident by my chains, dare very boldly and fearlessly to publish the message of God. Some, however, through 15 envy and strife, but some from conviction, preach Christ; these indeed 16 from love, seeing that I suffer in defence of the gospel; while the others 17 from intrigue, not honestly, proclaim Christ, thinking to add sorrow to my imprisonment. What then? except 18 that in every way, whether by pretence or whether sincerely, Christ is proclaimed; and in that I delight, and shall continue to be glad. Because I 19 know that this will result through your prayers in safety to me; and an additional supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ: according to my strong conviction and hope that I shall never be disgraced; but, on the contrary, with perfectly free speech now, as then, Christ will be grandly displayed in my person, whether through life or through death. For to me, life is 21

 Christ—death a gain!

But if to live in the body—that produces labour for me—then I do not know what to ask. Now I am possessed by the two, having the desire to be freed and to be with Christ, by far the better; but to remain in 24 the body is most essential for you. And relying upon this, I know that I 25 shall remain and stay with you all for your improvement and benefit by the faith; so that your exultation in Christ 26
 Jesus by me may increase, through my presence again among you.

Only conduct yourselves in a way 27 worthy of the gospel of Christ; so that whether coming and seeing you, or whether hearing about you in absence, you may stand in one spirit, one mind, contending for the Good News of the Faith; and never terrified by the 28 enemy under any circumstances—which is to them a demonstration of destruction; but for you, of salvation, 29 and that from God. Because He has shown favour to you, for the sake of Christ; not only to believe in Him, 30 but also to suffer for Him, having the same struggle that you observed in me, and now hear regarding me.

Christ, the Pattern of Humility.

2 If then, there is any encouragement in Christ, if any consolation from love, if any community of spirit, if any ten-2 der feelings and pity, fill my joy full;
 so that you may agree in thought, possessing the same love, intending with united hearts the same object.
 3 Never in self-seeking nor through vainglory; but, on the contrary, with good feeling considering others in prefer-4 ence to yourselves, not each scheming for himself, but rather each for others.
 5 Think this with yourselves, What was 6 in Christ Jesus?—Who existing in the beauty of God, considered not His Divine equality an incitement to 7 greed; but forsook Himself, taking 8 the form of a slave; arriving in human appearance; and being found apparently like a man, He humbled
 Himself, becoming subject to death,
 9 yes, a death of crucifixion! Therefore God highly exalted Him, and freely gave Him the Name surpassing every 10 name; so that in presence of the name of Jesus every knee should bend, of 11 celestials, and terrestrials, and sub-terrenes, and every tongue confess that the Messiah, the Lord Jesus, exists for a rectification from God.

Exhortation to Fidelity.

12 So then, my beloved, as you have at all times been obedient, not only when in my presence, but much more now in my absence, work out your 13 own salvation amidst fear and terror; for God is energizing in you both to will and to do for the sake of His ap-14 probation. Do all without grudging and disputes; so that you may be-15 come blameless and pure, beautiful children of God, in the midst of a deformed, degenerate race—among whom you will shine like bright lights 16 to the whole world—possessing a reason for life, to my delight in the day of Christ: for then I shall not have run for nothing, nor have worked in 17 vain. Yet even if I am exhausted in the sacrifice and service of your faith,

I will still rejoice and congratulate with you all; and you also be glad 18 and congratulate me.

Paul's Messengers Commended.

But I hope in the Lord Jesus soon 19 to send Timothy to you, so that I myself may be encouraged by hearing about you. For I have no other fellow 20 spirit who is so anxious for a knowledge of your affairs; because they 21 all seek their own business, not that of Jesus Christ. But you know his 22 worth; for he slaved with me in the gospel, like a son for his father. I 23 hope, therefore, to send him for this,
 as soon as I have ascertained about my affairs here. And I am confident 24 in the Lord that I also shall come soon.

I have, however, thought it ne- 25 cessary to send to you my brother and companion in work and war,
 Epaphroditus, who was your mes- 26
 senger, and attendant to my wants;
 for he was always longing for you, 26 and was depressed because you had heard that he had been sick. And he 27 was ill—very near death. But God pitied him; and not only him, but my- 27 self also, so that I might not have sorrow heaped upon sorrow. There- 28 fore I have sent him more willingly, so that seeing him again you may be glad, and I may also be more pleased.
 So take him with every pleasure 29 in the Lord, and hold such as he in honour; because for the work of 30 Christ he approached death, disregarding his own life, so that he might accomplish your offering to my wants.

The Apostle's high Ambition.

For the rest, my friends, rejoice in 3 the Lord! It is no trouble for me to write this to you, but safe for yourselves.

Beware of the cynics; beware of 2 those men of foul life; beware of the concision. For we are the circum- 3 cision, who worship through a Divine Spirit, and exult in Christ Jesus, and do not place confidence in an external appearance; although I might 4 also have confidence in an external appearance. If any think well to trust in an appearance, I can much more: in eighth-day circumcision, of 5
 the race of Israel, tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; regarding ritual, a Pharisee; as to zeal, perse- 6
 cuting the Church; being blameless

in a righteousness which is contained in ritual.

- 7 But what might have been a gain to me, that I considered a loss for 8 Christ. Nay, further; I also consider them all to be a loss, compared to the possession of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; by which I lost everything, and consider it to be refuse if I can gain Christ, and may be found in Him, not possessing my ritualistic righteousness, but that through the faith of Christ, the righteousness from God by the faith;
10 so as to know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the association with His sufferings, being assimilated to His death—so that in any way I may attain to the resurrection that is from the dead. Not that I have now attained it, or am now perfected: but I ran so that I might carry it off; and I was also laid hold of by Christ.
13 Brothers, I do not consider myself to have won it; but one thing, forgetting the past, and straining to those in front, I rush along the track for the prize of the supreme call of God in Christ Jesus. As many of us therefore who are perfect, let us have this before us; and if you put anything else before you, may God reveal this to you. Beyond what we have attained to—let us go straight to that.
17 Become my imitators, brethren, and look out those who walk thus, as you have our model; for many conduct themselves—of whom I have often spoken to you, but now I say it weeping—as enemies of the cross of Christ: whose end is perdition, whose god their sensuality, and their boast in their shame; they think of what is upon earth. But our policy consists in possessing an object in heaven: from where also we expect a Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, Who will transform the body of our humility, making it like the body of His majesty, by the internal working of His power; and 4 He will subject all to Himself. Consequently, my beloved and longed-for brothers, my delight and crown, stand thus in the Lord, my beloved.
2 I advise Euodia and I advise Syntyche to agree together in the Lord;
3 yes, I implore you also, true yoke-fellow, to take them together again: they assisted me as well as Clement and the rest of my companions in the gospel, whose names are in the Book of Life.

General Exhortations.

Rejoice in the Lord always; again I say, Rejoice!

Let your good conduct be known to all men. The Lord is near! Never fret, but in all circumstances, with prayer and entreaty, with thanksgiving, make your requests known before God. And the peace of God, surpassing all thought, will guard your hearts and thoughts in Christ Jesus.

Further, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is solemn, whatever is right, whatever pure, whatever loveable, whatever graceful, if anything virtuous, and if anything honourable—meditate upon these. And what you learnt, and accepted, and heard, and know by me—practise that; and the God of peace will be with you.

But I rejoiced greatly in the Lord, because now again you aroused yourselves to think about me; about whom you thought before, but had no opportunity. Not, however, that I speak through want; for I have learnt in whatever state I am to be master of myself. - I am experienced both in want and plenty; and in all and everything I am initiated to superfluity and starvation. I am equal to anything through Him Who strengthens me. However, you have done well in contributing to me during my affliction. But you should also know, Philippians, that in the early days of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, no assembly communicated with me, in the matter of giving and receiving, except you alone; and that in Thessalonica, both a first and second time, you sent something for my use. Not that I ask for gifts; but I seek for the fruit that will increase to your own account. But I now possess all, and have abundance; I am filled, having received by Epaphroditus your present—a sweet perfume, an acceptable, pleasing offering to God. And may God satisfy all your wants according to His wealth and majesty in Christ Jesus. And to God and our Father be the honour for ever and ever. Amen.

In Christ Jesus salute all the saints. The brethren with me salute you. All the holy salute you, especially those of the Emperor's household. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirits.

Written to the Philippians from Rome, 61-62 A.D., and sent by Epaphroditus.

EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE COLOSSIANS.

Introduction.

- 1 PAUL, by the will of God an apostle of Christ Jesus, and the brother
2 Timothy, to the holy and faithful brethren in Christ at Colossee. Blessing and peace to you from our Father, God.
3 We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,
4 praying always for you, having heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and the love which you have to all the saints:
5 because of the hope laid up in the heavens, of which you previously heard in the plea for the truth of the 6 gospel, which is presented to you, and also to the whole world, and is fruitful and growing; as also it is among you, from the day you heard and truly recognised the Divine gift;
7 which you learnt from our dear fellow-servant Epaphras, who is our 8 faithful minister of Christ, and who has told us of your spiritual love.

The Beliebers' Standing in Christ.

- 9 And consequently we, from the day we heard of it, have never ceased praying for you, and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of His will, with all spiritual wisdom 10 and understanding; and conducting yourselves worthy of the Lord in all nobility, successful in every good work, and improved by the knowledge 11 of God; being strong with all strength, by His rectifying power, to endure 12 every hardship and trial, gladly giving thanks to the Father, Who brought us into the partnership of the inheritance of the holy in the light; Who has deli-13 vered us from the power of darkness, and transferred us unto the Kingdom 14 of His beloved Son, in whom we have the redemption, the release from 15 sins—who is the likeness of the unseen God, the Producer of all crea-16 tion; because by him was created everything in the heavens and upon the earth—the seen and the unseen; whether thrones, sovereignties, governments, or authorities—the whole were created through Him and for Him; and He Himself preceded 17 all, and the whole was established by Him. And He is the Head of the body, 18 the church; He is the Beginning, the Bringer-forth from the dead, so that

He may Himself be the first over all.
Because He decreed that all perfection 19 should dwell in Him; and 20 through Him He will collect all again to Himself—having made peace by the blood of His cross, through Him —whether upon the earth or in the heavens.

You, however, were once alienated 21 and estranged, through your mind being addicted to the practice of vice;
but now He has reconciled again, 22 through the death of His corporeal body, to place you in the presence of Himself holy, blameless, and irreproachable: if you remain fixed 23 firm to the faith, and change not from the hope of the gospel that you have heard, which has been preached to all creation under the heavens, of which I, Paul, became a minister.

The Divine Call of the Apostle Affirmed.

Now I rejoice for your sakes in 24 sufferings, and I would fill up in my body the extreme of Christ's affliction, for the sake of His body—the church;
of which I became a minister by ap- 25
pointment given to me for you from God, to accomplish the Divine intention, the secret hidden from the ages, 26 and from the nations, but now made manifest to His saints by whom God 27 has decided to publish amongst the heathen what is the wealth of that mystery of the rectification which Christ is to you—the hope of the rectification—which we proclaim; 28 warning every man, and teaching every person in a perfect philosophy, so that we may present each one 29 perfect in Christ; to which object I vigorously strive with His mighty energy working in me.

Sundry Exhortations and Warnings.

- 2 For I wish you to know how great a struggle I have for you, and those in Laodicea, and whoever have not seen my bodily presence; so that their hearts may be consoled, united in love and all the wealth of the full conviction of reason, in comprehending the secret of God, in Christ, in Whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and secret knowledge. I say this, indeed, so that no one may delude you by plausibility. For if I am absent by the body, yet with the spirit I am with you, rejoicing and seeing your discipline and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ.
- 6 Now, as you have received the Lord Jesus Christ, walk with Him, rooted and founded upon Him; and secured in the faith which you were taught, with thankfulness increasing it.
- 8 Look out, for fear any one should mislead you by means of the philosophy of the silly trifling of human tradition; following the guideposts of the world, and not in accordance with Christ. Because in Him resides bodily every perfection of the Divinity. And you are perfected in Him, Who is the Head of every power and authority. To Whom also you were circumcised by an unmechanical circumcision, by stripping off the animal body, in the Christian circumcision, when you were buried with Him in the baptism; by which also you were raised together, through the faith in the Divine energy which raised Him from among the dead.

The Believers' Emancipation from Legalism.

- 13 And you, having been dead in transgressions and the uncircumcision of your sensuality, He restored to life together with Himself, having forgiven us all those transgressions; having erased the record, with the decrees which were against us, and taking it away, He nailed it to the cross. Having stripped the powers and authorities, He exposed them publicly, leading them in triumph with Himself. Therefore let none condemn you as to food, and as to drink, nor in respect of a festival, or new moon, or Sabbaths: which were a forecast of the future; but the substance belongs to Christ. Nor let any designedly trick your judgment into reverence and worship of the angels; resting upon what he sees, made vainly proud by his fleshly mind; and not ruled by 19 the Head, from which all the body, through its joints and sinews arranged and invigorated, grows up with the Divine growth.

If with Christ you died from the 20 rules of the Hebrew ritual, why, as though living under a ritual, are you being prescribed to "Handle not, 21 taste not, touch not," what absolutely 22 perishes in the use—in conformity with human commands and teaching? In which there is certainly a show of 23 prudence in the repression of appetite, and meekness, and disregard of the body, yielding it no consideration by sensual gratification.

Exhortation to Practical Godliness.

If, however, you were raised with 3 Christ, search for what is above, where Christ is seated upon the right hand of God. Think about 2 heavenly, not earthly affairs; for you 3 died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. So when Christ our life 4 is manifested, then also you will be manifested in rectification together with Him. Therefore destroy these 5 parts of yourselves upon the earth—fornication, impurity, passion, vile lust, and greed, for it is idolatry; through which the anger of God comes; 6 among which you once walked when 7 you lived with them. But now you re- 8 ject the whole—rage, lust, filth, vice, slander from your mouth. Do not lie 9 to each other. Put off the old man with his practices; and put on the new, that 10 is renewed in knowledge—the very picture of its Creator—where no one 11 is Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, foreigner, Scythian, slave, freeman—but Christ, the whole, and in all.

Therefore put on, as chosen of 12 God, holy and beloved, gentle pity, kindness, quietude, mildness, forbearance; supporting one another, 13 and forgiving mutually, if any one should have a quarrel against another; just as the Master forgave you, you should also do; but above all these— 14 love, which is a bond of perfection. And let the peace of God preside in 15 your hearts—for you were called to be a united body—and be thankful.

Let Christ's reason live richly in you 16 with all wisdom. Teach and instruct yourselves with psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs; in delight singing in your hearts to God. And in all that you do in word, or in deed, do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to the God, and Father, through Him.

18 Let the wives be obedient to their husbands, as is right in the LORD.

19 Let the husbands love their wives, and be not bitter with them. Children should obey their parents in everything; for that is pleasing to the LORD. Fathers, do not irritate your children, and break not their spirits.

22 Slaves, obey your bodily masters in all; not in false pretence, like flatterers, but with honesty of heart, fearing the LORD. If you do this, working from your soul as to the Lord, and not to men, you know that you will from the LORD receive the reward of the inheritance; work for the Lord Jesus Christ. For the wrong-doer, however, there will be stored up the evil which he has done; and there is no partiality. Masters, grant justice and right to your slaves; because you know that you have a Master in heaven.

2 Persevere with prayer, keeping guard in it, with thanks; praying particularly for us, so that God may open to us a door for the message, to speak the secret of Christ, to which also I am devoted; so that I may display it, as it becomes me to speak.

5 Conduct yourselves with prudence to those outside, buying the opportunity. Let your discourse at all times be seasoned with grateful salt, knowing how you ought to be distinguished from others.

Personal Matters.

7 Tychicus, the dear brother and faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord, will inform you about my affairs; whom I have sent to you for this very purpose—so that I may know your circumstances, and that he may console your hearts—together with our faithful and beloved brother Onesimus, who belongs to you. They will tell you about everything here.

Aristarchus, my companion, sends regards to you, as well as Mark, the cousin of Barnabas—about whom you have received instructions that if he should come your way you are to receive him—and Jesus, called Justus, who alone of the circumcised worked with me for the Kingdom of God. They were a comfort to me.

Epaphras, a servant of Christ Jesus from yourselves, sends regards to you; he strives always for you in prayer, so that you may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God. For I can witness for him that he has much affection for you, as well as for those in Laodicea, and those in Hierapolis.

Demas, and Luke the beloved physician, send regard to you. Give regards to the brothers in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and to the congregation in his house. And when this letter has been read among you, make it also to be read in the congregation at Laodicea, while you also should read that from Laodicea.¹ And say to Archippus, "Take heed of the ministry that you have undertaken from the LORD, that you fulfil it."

By my own hands, the regards of PAUL. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you.

(Written to the Colossians, from Rome, about 62 A.D., and sent by Tychicus and Onesimus.)

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE THESSALONIANS.

The Salutation.

1 PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy,
to the assembly of Thessalonians,
in God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ : Blessing and peace to you.

The Apostle's Thanksgiving.

2 We give thanks to God always concerning you, mentioning you contin-3 ually in our prayers; remembering your faithful work, your loving labour, and your hopeful endurance in the path of our Lord Jesus Christ, before 4 our God and Father; recognising,
dear friends, your selection by God.
5 Because our gospel came not as mere talk among you, but with power and with a holy spirit, and a grand result;
as you know by means of yourselves
6 what we were among you. And you became imitators of us, and of the Lord, accepting the message in great suffering, with the delight of a holy 7 spirit; so that you were models to all the believers in Macedonia and in 8 Achaia. For from you the message of the Lord has been echoed abroad, not only throughout Macedonia and Achaia, but in all parts your faith towards God has extended, so that we had no need to speak anything;
9 because those about us announced what an entrance we made in to you, and how you turned from your idols to God, to serve a living and true 10 God; and to await His Son from the heavens, Whom He raised from the dead—Jesus, our Deliverer from the terror of the future.

Their Frank Acceptance of the Gospel.

2 For you yourselves, brethren, know that our assault upon you was not 2 ineffectual. But although previously tortured and insulted in Philippi, as you know, we were bold enough in our God to speak to you in great 3 agony, the Good News of God. For our exhortation is not from imposture, neither with corruption, nor with deceit; but as we have been 4 proved under God to be believers in the Good News, so we speak: not as pleasing men, but, on the contrary,

God, Who proves our hearts. For we 5 were never flatterers in speech, as you are aware; nor hypocritical seekers of wealth—God is witness—nor yet 6 seeking honour from men, neither from you, nor from others, although able to assert our dignity as apostles of Christ. On the contrary, we were as 7 gentle when among you as a mother fondling her own child. We loved 8 you so much, that we thought good not only to give you the Good News of God, but also our own lives; because you became so dear to us. For you 9 may remember, brethren, our labour and toil; we worked night and day, so as not to be any burden to you,
when we preached the gospel of God
among you.

You and God are witnesses how 10
purely, righteously, and blamelessly, we were with you believers; for you 11 are aware that even as a father his own children, so we encouraged and cheered and entreated each one of you, to conduct yourselves worthy of 12
the God Who called you into His glorious kingdom.

And for this especially we thank 13
God continually, that having received a reason for listening to us concerning God, you accepted it; not as a human reason, but as it truly is, a Divine reason, and which operates upon the believers among you. For you, 14 brethren, have become exactly like the believers in the assemblies of God in Christ Jesus who are in Judea, since you suffer the same under your own countrymen as they from the Judeans: who wearied to death the 15
Lord Jesus and the prophets; and drove us out; and are displeasing to God, as well as contrary to all men; prohibiting us to tell to the heathen 16 that they could be saved—everywhere filling up their sins; but their fury will at last come upon themselves.

His Affection for them.

17 But we, brothers, having been separated from you for the space of an hour in person—not in heart—have striven very eagerly with great desire to see your face. Indeed, we wished on two occasions to come to you, that is I, Paul; but Satan prevented us. For who is our hope, or joy, or crown of triumph—if you are not—in the presence of our Lord Jesus, when He will appear? You are certainly our boast and delight.

3 So, enduring it no longer, we decided to be left alone in Athens; and sent Timothy, our brother and fellow-labourer for God in the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you in your faith, so as not to be shaken by these sufferings, to which you are aware that we are exposed. For, indeed, while we were with you we foretold that there would be troubles; and, as you see, they have come.

5 Consequently, without delay I have sent to learn about your faith, fearing the Tempter had over-trying you, and that our work had been for nothing. 6 But when Timothy came from you to us, and reported the good news of your faith and love, and that you always retained a pleasant memory of us, wishing to see us, just as we do you; then we were consoled, brethren, by you, by your faith, for all our hardship and suffering. For now we live, if you stand in the Lord. 9 For what thanks can we render to God for you—for all the delight with which we rejoice for you in the presence of our God? Night and day earnestly wishing to see your face, and to supply the requirements of your faith. May our God and Father Himself, and our Lord Jesus, facilitate our journey to you! And may the Lord fill you to overflowing with love to one another, and to all, as we indeed are to you; to establish your hearts in spotless holiness before our God and Father, at the appearance of our Lord Jesus with all His saints.

On Purity of Life.

4 Therefore, for the rest, brethren, we ask and exhort you in the Lord Jesus, that since you learnt by us how you ought to walk and please God—even as also you do walk—that you may progress further. For you know what 2 commands coming from the Lord Jesus we gave you. For this is the 3 intention of the God Who purified you, that you keep from fornication; that each of you should know how 4 to keep his own vessel in purity and honour, not in a passion of lust, 5 like the heathen who know not God; neither outrage nor deceive your 6 brother in this matter: for there is an avenging Lord for all these, as we indeed told and bore witness to you. For God called you not to im- 7 purity, but to purity. Consequently, 8 it is quite certain that the offender outrages not man, but God Who gave you His Holy Spirit.

On Brotherly Love.

But concerning brotherly love, you 9 have no need to be written to; for you yourselves are Divinely instructed to love one another: and, indeed, you 10 practise it to all the brethren who are in all Macedonia. But we beg you, brethren, to progress still further; and be ambitious of quietude, and to 11 attend to your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we have before taught you; so that you may 12 be well conducted before the outsiders, and have need of nothing.

The Coming of the Lord.

We desire you not to be ignorant, 13 brethren, concerning those who sleep; so that you may not grieve, as the rest who are without a hope. For if 14 we believe that Jesus died and rose again, thus also God will, by means of Jesus, restore with Him those who are asleep. For we say this to you 15 as a message from the Lord, that we, the living, the survivors until the appearance of the Lord, will not precede those who sleep. For the Lord Him- 16 self in command, with the voice of an archangel, and with a signal from God, will descend from heaven; and first the dead in Christ will rise again; then we, the living remnant, shall at 17 the same time be carried up in clouds for an introduction by the Lord into the eternal condition, and then we shall always be with the Lord. There- 18 fore console one another with these truths.

- 5 But about the times and the seasons, brethren, there is no need for writing to you; for yourselves know well enough that the day of the Lord comes like a thief at night. When they say, "Peace and security," then, suddenly, destruction seizes them, as the agony of a woman with child; and they cannot escape.
- 6 /But you, brethren, are not in darkness, so that that day should seize you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are neither of night nor of darkness. Consequently, we do not sleep as the rest; but we keep guard and are sober.
- 7 For the sleepers sleep at night, and the drunkards are drunk at night.
- 8 But we, being of day, are sober, clothed in a breastplate of faith and love, and a helmet—a hope of salvation. /For God appointed us not for passion; but, on the contrary, for the acquisition of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, Who died for our sakes, so that, whether watching or sleeping, we may live together with Him. Therefore comfort yourselves mutually, and build yourselves up into oneness—as also you do.

The Divine Life.

- 12 And we request you, brothers, to recognise those labouring among you, and leading you in the Lord, and instructing you; and esteem them with special love, because of their work.

Be at peace among yourselves; but 14 we beg of you, brethren, correct the disorderly; encourage the timid; help the weak; forbear with all.

Guard against any returning wrong 15 for wrong to any one; on the contrary, always follow good, both to one another, and to all.

Rejoice at all times; 16

Pray unceasingly; 17

Give thanks for everything; for this 18 is God's will for you in Christ Jesus.

Quench not the Spirit; 19

Nor despise preaching; 20

But, examining everything, 21

Secure the noble,

And refrain from every appearance 22 of wickedness.

And the God of peace Himself 23 purify you perfectly, and keep your spirit, and the soul, and the body, spotless for the appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ. He Who called 24 you is faithful, and He will effect it.

Pray for us, friends. 25

Give regards to all the brethren with 26 a holy kiss.

I charge you by the Lord to make 27 this letter known to all our friends.

The blessing of our Lord Jesus 28 Christ be with you.

(Addressed to the Thessalonians by Paul, in the name of himself, Silas, and Timothy, from Corinth, in the earlier part of the year 53 A.D.)

NOTE.—This letter was evidently of later date than 53 A.D., and, from internal evidence (see e. iii., v. 1), was written from Athens during a visit not recorded in the Acts of the Apostles. The old chronology put to the Epistles is often wrong, and was the estimate of comparatively modern transcribers.—F. F.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

Greeting.

- 1 PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy,
to the assembly of Thessalonians,
in our God, Father, and Lord
2 Jesus Christ: Blessing and peace to you from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

The Apostle's Thanksgiving.

We ought rightly to give thanks to 3
God always for you, friends, as it is fitting; because your faith abounds beyond measure, and love fills all of you mutually; so that we our- 4 selves boast in the assemblies of God

regarding your obedience and fidelity in all the persecutions and afflictions that you are enduring—as a proof of the right decision of God in having considered you worthy of His Divine Kingdom, for the sake of which you suffer.

Righteous Retribution.

Hence it is right with God to repay your afflictors with affliction; and to you, the afflicted—rest, with us, at the manifestation of the Lord Jesus from heaven, with messengers of His power: in fiery flame giving judgment to those not perceiving God, and to those not attending to the glad tidings of our Lord Jesus, whose sentence shall be eternal banishment from the presence of the Lord, and from His mighty rectification, when He comes to be exalted by His saints, and admired by all believers, and He will confirm our testimony to you in that day.

To this end we always pray for you, so that our God may consider you worthy of the calling, and may powerfully equip with every noble accomplishment and faithful work; so that the Name of our Lord Jesus may be exalted in you, and you in Him, by the gift of our God, and Lord Jesus Christ.

The Fearless One.

But we implore you, brethren, regarding the appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ, and of our gathering together to Him, not to be easily shaken nor terrified from your purpose, neither by spirit, by word, nor by any letter presented as from us, as though the day of the Lord were near. Let no one cheat you by any such means. For the apostasy must come first, and the man of lawlessness, the son of destruction, must first be revealed; the one who withstands, and is self-exalted over and above all that is called Divine, or worshipped; so that he seats himself in the sanctuary of God, proclaiming that he himself is God. Do you not remember that whilst we were with you we told you this? And you also know the present restraint to his development until his proper time. For the mystery of that lawlessness already operates; only the Restraint intervenes for a time: until he is removed; and then the outlaw will become manifest, whom the Lord will destroy by the spirit of His mouth, and extinguish by the manifestation of His presence. This outlaw's arrival will be accompanied by the energy of Satan with all powers, and signs, and terrors of falsehood; and with all the deceit of injustice among the perishing, who accepted not the love of the truth, so that they themselves might be saved. And, because of this, God will send to them an energy of error, for themselves to make the Falsehood credible; so that in every way those who do not trust to the truth, but on the contrary, approve falsehood, may be condemned.

Words of Cheer.

But we find it our duty to give thanks to God always for you, dear brethren, loved by the Lord; because God brought you a firstfruit into salvation, by purity of spirit and confidence in the truth, into which He called you, through our good message, to acquire rectification from our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, brethren, stand and secure the charge which you have been taught, either by our speech or letter. And our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and God our Father, Who loved us and gave us an eternal consolation and pure hope as a gift, encourage and console your hearts, and establish you in every beneficent work and word.

Concluding Exhortation.

In conclusion, brethren, pray for us, so that the teaching of the Lord may run and be honoured, as it did towards you; and that we may be rescued from bad and wicked men: for the faith is not with all. But the Lord is faithful, Who will strengthen you, and guard you from the wicked. And we are confident in the Lord concerning you, that what we have commanded, you both do and will do; and may the Lord guide your hearts into the love of God, and into the patience of Christ.

But we advise you, brethren, in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, avoid every brother conducting himself idly, and not according to the direction which he received from us. For yourselves know how to imitate us rightly: because we were not idle among you, nor did we eat unpurchased bread supplied by any one; but, on the contrary, we worked night and day with labour and toil, so as not to be a burden to 9 any of you. Not because we had no authority; but so that we might give ourselves a pattern to you, to imitate 10 us. And besides, when we were with you we commanded this, that if any one would not work, he should not be 11 fed. For we hear of some going disorderly among you, never working, 12 but trifling. But we order and direct such in the Lord Jesus Christ, that they should themselves quietly earn 13 the bread they eat. And you, my brethren, do not abstain from doing 14 good; but if any one does not obey our order by this letter, mark him, and do not associate with him—so that he may turn again. Do not, however, 15 regard him as an enemy; but rather correct him as a brother.

The Attestation.

Now may the Lord of peace Him- 16
 self give you peace in every form.
 The Lord be with you all. The sig- 17 nature by my own hand, PAUL, which is my sign in every letter, I write thus.

The blessing of our Lord Jesus 18
 Christ be with you all. Amen.

(Written to the Thessalonians from Athens; and, as the contents show, is a sequel to the former Letter.)

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY.

The Greeting.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus,
 by the appointment of God our Saviour, and of Christ Jesus our 2 Hope, to Timothy, my true child in faith: Blessing, mercy, peace, from God, Father, and our Lord
 Jesus Christ.

General Instructions.

3 I requested you to remain in Ephesus when I went into Macedonia, so that you should give order to some 4 not to teach false doctrine, nor to investigate interminable genealogical legends; which questions impede rather than expedite the administra-5 tion of God in the faith: while the object of its teaching is love from a pure heart, a good conscience, and 6 unpretended faith—some missing which have wandered into silly discus-7 sion, wishing to be teachers of law; but not understanding either what they say, or of what they are 8 asserting. But we know how excellent the law is, if any one makes 9 use of it lawfully: knowing this, that law is not opposed to the righteous, but to the wicked, and disorderly, and sin-10 ners; to the unholy and depraved; to outragers of father and mother; to murderers, fornicators, sodomites, man-stealers, liars, and to perjurers;

and if there is anything contrary to healthy teaching, it fights against it, according to the rectifying gospel of 11
 the blessed God, as I have myself believed it.

I have been endowed with an office 12 from Christ Jesus our Lord, Who empowered me, because He thought me faithful, appointing me to a ministry:
 although I was before an abuser, a per- 13
 secutor, and brutal; however, I found pity, because I had done it unknow-14 ingly in the absence of faith. But the bounty of our Lord, with the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus, was ex-15 cessive. The Word is true, and worthy of full reception, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am foremost. But for this 16 reason I was granted pity: so that Christ Jesus might conspicuously display in me the universality of mercy, to serve as an intimation to posterity, to trust in Him for eternal life. But 17 to the King of the eternities—imperishable, invisible, Alone God—be honour and majesty, through the ages of the ages. Amen.

I deposit with you this command, 18 son Timothy, subsequent to the former instructions to you, so that in them you might wage the noble war; having faith and a perfect under- 19 standing,—which some having sailed away from, have shipwrecked their 20 faith; of whom are Hymenæus, and Alexander, whom I have delivered to the Accuser, so that they may be taught not to blaspheme.

Rules of Conduct for the Assembly.

2 Therefore, I command, first of all,
to offer supplications, prayers, inter-cessions, thanksgivings, for all men;
for kings and all those in authority; so that we may pursue an open and peaceful life, in perfect reverence 3 and respect. For this is noble and acceptable in the sight of God our 4 Saviour, Who wishes all men to be saved, and to come to a recogni-5 tion of the truth. For God is One; and the intermediary between God and men is One, the Man Christ
6 Jesus; Who gave Himself a ransom for the sake of all; Who brought the 7 proof at the right time, of which I was appointed a herald and messenger—I speak truth, I am not lying—a teacher 8 of nations in the faith and truth. I order, therefore, prayer to be made for those men in every place, lifting up innocent hands, free from anger and doubting.

9 Let women clothe in befitting dress, with dignity and neatness; and beautify themselves with modesty—not with wreaths and gold, nor jewelled bracelets, nor expensive 10 robes; but with what befits women professing devotion, acts of benevo-11 lence. Let a woman learn in silence with all obedience. And I entrust not a woman to teach or to dominate a man; but, on the contrary, to be 12 quiet. For Adam was formed first, 13 Eve second. And Adam was not deceived, but the woman came into transgression through being com-14 pletely deceived; but she will be saved because of the child-bearing, if she continues in faith, and love, and purity,
15 with modesty. This word is true.

If any one aspires to an overseer-2 ship, he desires a noble work. The overseer should, however, be unassailable, the husband of one wife, watchful, sober, orderly, hospitable, taught;
3 not a drunkard, nor a pugilist, nor an extortioner; gentle; not contentious;
4 not avaricious; regulating his own house well, keeping his children in 5 obedience with all propriety. For if any one does not know how to govern his own family, how can he take care 6 of a Divine assembly? Not a new convert; lest inflated he should fall into the crime of the Devil, being intoxicated with pride. And he ought also 7 to have a fair reputation with the outsiders, so that he may not fall into reproach and the accuser's trap.

Deacons likewise should be grave; 8 not deceitful, nor addicted to much wine, nor greedy for money; but 9 preserving the secret of the faith with a pure understanding. And let these 10 be tested first; afterwards, being proved irreproachable, they may serve. The women as well should 11 be grave; not slanderers; watchful;
faithful in everything.

Deacons must be husbands of one 12 wife, and governing their children and their own houses well; for they who 13 have served nobly, acquire to themselves an honoured station, and much freedom of speech in the faith which is with Christ Jesus.

I write these to you, hoping soon to 14 come; yet that if I should delay, you 15 might know how to be conducting yourself in God's house, such as is an assembly of a living God, a pillar and support of the truth. And the 16 mystery that is in the true worship is admittedly great.

HE Who was manifested in a body;
Justified in Spirit;
Guarded by angels;
Proclaimed among the nations:
Believed on in the world;
Was taken up into glory!

Sundry Charges to Timothy.

However, the Spirit expressly says 4 that in latter times some will turn away from the faith, addicting themselves to seducing spirits, and to teachings of demons; teaching lies 2 in hypocrisy; burning up their own conscience; hindering marriage; 3 abstaining from foods, which God created to be consumed with thankfulness by the faithful, and recognisers of the truth. Because all created by 4
God is good, and nothing is worthless, if received with thankfulness;
for it is sanctified by Divine thought 5 and thanksgiving. You will be a good 6 minister of Christ Jesus if you lay these things before the brethren; and feed yourself with the reasons for the faith, and the noble teaching which you have followed. But put 7 aside degrading and silly tales, and exercise yourselves in piety; for bodily 8 exercise is worth little; but piety is valuable for everything, having the 9 promise both of the present life, and of the future. This truth is sure, and 10 worthy of acceptance by all; for on account of it we labour and contend for the prize; because we hope on a living God, Who is a Saviour of all men, especially of faithful.

11 Command and teach these things.
12 Let none despise you for your youth; but rather become a model for the faithful, in speech, in conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. Until I come, proceed with instruction, with exhortation, with teaching. Do not neglect the gift you possess, which was given to you through teachings, with the imposition of the hands of the Old
15 Man.¹ Take special care of these; stand in them; so that your progress may be exhibited to all. Pay respect to yourself and to the teaching. Continue in them; for doing so, you will both save yourself and your hearers.

5 Reprove not an elder, but rather advise him as a father; the young men as brothers; the elder women as if
2 sisters, with all purity. Respect widows—those who are widows. But
3 if any widow has children or grandchildren, they must learn first to treat religiously their own home, and to make repayment to their parents; for that is acceptable in the presence of 4 God. But she who is a widow and desolate, should earnestly hope upon God, and continue with supplications and with prayers night and day;
6 but the self-indulgent are in a living death. Advise these things, so that
7 they may be blameless. But if any do not provide for themselves, and especially for their families, they have repudiated the faith, and are worse
8 than an unbeliever. Let a widow be catalogued, if not less than sixty years of age, a wife of one husband, testified
9 of by good works—if she has brought up children; if she has welcomed strangers; if she has washed holy feet; if she has helped the distressed; if she has followed up every good work.
10 But put aside younger widows; for whenever they wish to marry, they will 11 turn their backs upon Christ. They are blameable, because they despise their first faith. And besides, they 13 learn idleness, going about the families; and not only are idle; but, further, become detractors and meddlers, speaking what they ought not. I therefore order younger women 14 to marry, to rear children, to regulate a home; never to give an excuse to the enemy for reproach. For some 15 have already turned to follow Satan. If any believing man or woman has 16 widows, let such provide for them, and not burden the assembly; so that those who are widows may be assisted.

¹ NOTE.—"The Old Man," an affectionately playful title St. Paul was accustomed to apply to himself when writing to personal friends, as here and to Philemon.—F. F.

Let the elders who govern skillfully 17 be considered worthy of double honour, especially those engaged in discourse and teaching; for the 18 Scripture says, MUZZLE NOT THE THRESHING OX;¹ and, THE WORKMAN DESERVES HIS WAGES.²

Receive no accusation against an 19 elder, unless on the evidence of TWO OR THREE WITNESSES.³ In the presence of all reprove those who sin, so that the rest may also fear. I charge 21 you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, and of the chosen angels, that you may observe these rules free from prejudice, never acting from partiality. Never lay hand precipi- 22 tously upon any, neither participate with other men's sin; keep yourself pure.

Drink water no longer, but use 23 with a little wine for the stomach and your excessive weakness.

The faults of some men are evi- 24 dent; they come out into observation; but in others they have to be sought for. Just in the same way, 25 the good qualities are also prominent; and what are otherwise cannot be hidden.

Whoever are under a bond of 6 slavery, let them consider their own masters worthy of all honour; so that the Name of God and His teaching may not be reviled. But those who 2 have believing masters, should not pay less respect on account of their being brethren: but rather let them work better, because they are faithful and beloved; and they will receive a return for their good conduct. Teach 3 and impress these. If any one teaches

² Lev. xix. 13.

³ Deut. xix. 15.

the contrary, and does not agree to sound reasons—to those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the teaching of our religion—he is stupid, and understands nothing; but dotting about discussions and wordy wars, from which come envy, strife, abuse, evil suspicions, disputes of depraved men, corrupting the mind and perverting from the truth, by adopting the idea that our religion is a mere trade.

Yet the all-satisfying religion is a great acquisition. For we brought nothing into the world, nor are we able to carry anything out; therefore, having food and clothing, let us be satisfied with them. But those who design to be rich fall into a temptation and snare, and many senseless and ruinous desires, which sink those men into loss and destruction; for the love of money is a root of all these evils, some going mad for which, have wandered from the faith, and surrounded themselves with many distresses.

But fly these, man of God, and follow righteousness, piety, faith, love, endurance, gentleness. Fight the good fight of the faith; seize hold of the life eternal, to which you are summoned; and confess the noble confession before many witnesses. I charge you before the life-giving God of all, and of Jesus Christ, Who gave evidence with His noble confession before Pontius Pilate, keep the command yourself, purely, unblameably, until the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ; which at the right time will bring to light the Blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords, the only possessor of immortality, inhabiting an unapproachable light, Whom not one of mankind has seen, nor is able to see, to Whom is eternal honour and power. Amen.

To the rich in the present age I advise not to think too highly, nor to trust upon an uncertain wealth; but upon the God Who has prepared for us all wealth for enjoyment; to do good, to enrich themselves with good deeds, to be liberal, affable, and to lay up for themselves a noble foundation for the future, so that they may acquire the enduring life.

Timothy, guard the trust; avoid the common frivolities and objections of the false philosophy, which some proclaiming, have, as to the faith, missed the mark. Grace be with you.

(The first to Timothy was written from Laodicea, which is the metropolis of Pakatine Phrygia, probably about the year 67 A.D.)

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY.

The Greeting.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, for the proclamation of the life which is in Christ Jesus, to my dear child Timothy: Blessing, tenderness, peace, from God, Father, and Jesus our Lord.

The Apostle's Exhortations to Timothy.

3 I owe thanks to the God Whom I worship from my ancestors with a pure conscience, that I unceasingly remember you in my supplications night and day; longing to see you, thinking of your troubles, so that I may be filled with joy; having remembrance of your sincere faith, which lived before in your grandmother Lois, and in your mother Eunice, and which I am confident is also in you. For which reason I remind you to rekindle the fire—the gift of God—which you possess through the laying on of my hands. For God gave to us not a spirit of weakness; but of vigour, and love, and discretion.

Therefore be not ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me His prisoner; but, on the contrary, let us endure suffering for the gospel, by the aid of Divine power of Him Who saved and appointed us to a holy vocation: not by our own exertions, but by His own intention and gift bestowed upon us in Christ Jesus from everlasting 10 ages, but now displayed through the manifestation of our Saviour Jesus Christ; Who destroyed death, and throws light upon life and incorrupt-11 tibility through the gospel. With this object I was appointed a herald, and 12 apostle, and teacher; and for this reason I suffer what I do. However,

 I am not ashamed, for I know to Whom I have trusted; and I am confident that He is able to guard my 13 trust until that day. Have before you an outline of the health-giving truths, which you have received from me, concerning the faith and love which 14 are in Christ Jesus. Guard the noble deposit by a Holy Spirit of the Dweller within us.

15 You know this, that all in Asia have forsaken me, among whom are Phygellos and Hermogenes.

16 May the Lord give mercy to the house of Onesiphorus!—for he often encouraged me, and was not ashamed 17 of my imprisonment; but, arriving in Rome, he eagerly sought for, and 18 found me out. May the Lord grant to him to find mercy in the presence of the Lord in that day; while as to how he administered in Ephesus, you especially know well.

Apostolic Teaching.

2 You, therefore, my son, be strengthened with the gift—that from Christ
 2 Jesus; and what you have learned from me, with many proofs, deposit with faithful men, who may be com-3 petent to teach others. Endure hardship like a noble soldier of Christ 4 Jesus. A soldier never involves himself with business affairs; so that he 5 may please his commander. And if any one contends for a prize, he is not crowned unless he contends 6 according to rule. The working farmer ought to be the first to par-7 take of his crops. Comprehend what I say; for, in all things, God has 8 endowed you with good sense. Remember that Jesus Christ, of the line of David, has arisen from among the 9 dead, as taught by my Good News, for which I suffer trouble, even to imprisonment, like a criminal; but the Message of God is not imprisoned.
 10 Consequently I endure all this for the sake of the chosen; so that they may also gain that salvation with the eternal 11 rectification that is in Christ Jesus.
 This Message is sure: for if we die together, we shall also live together; if 12 we endure, we shall also reign together; if we deny, He will also deny 13 us; if we are unfaithful, He Himself continues trustworthy, for He is not able to repudiate Himself. Remind 14 them concerning these; bearing witness in the presence of God not to quarrel over words, useful for nothing —except, perhaps, to pervert the listeners. Exert yourself to stand 15 approved with God, as a skilful workman, arranging in order the reason for the Truth. But step aside from 16 the foolish phrase-makers: for they will progress to deeper impiety; and their sophistry eats like a gangrene.

 Hymenæus and Philetus belong to 17 them; who have missed the mark 18 concerning the truth, declaring that the resurrection has already come, and have overthrown the faith of some. Nevertheless, the firm founda- 19 tion of God stands attested by this assurance: THE LORD KNOWS THOSE WHO ARE HIS,¹ and "Let every one named by the Name of the Lord turn away from wickedness."

But in a great house there is not 20 only gold and silver furniture, but also wooden and earthenware; and those, indeed, for distinction, but these for ordinary use. If, however, any one 21 from among these should purify himself, he will be an article for distinction
 —purified, serviceable for the Master, ready for any good work. But banish 22 the passions of youth; and pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace towards those who call upon the Lord out of a pure heart. But forbid foolish 23 and unconstructive discussions, knowing that they will engender quarrels;
 and a servant of the Lord ought not 24 to be quarrelsome, but to be mild to all, instructive and forbearing, with 25 gentleness correcting his opponents.
 For perhaps God may give to them a change of mind towards an acknowledgment of truth; and on awakening, 26 they may disentangle themselves from the net of the Devil, escaping from under it into His freedom.

Warning against Evil Workers.

Know this, however, that in the 3 last days there are impending terrible times. For men will be lovers of self, 2 avaricious, empty, pretentious, libellous, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, senseless; without parental affections; 3

implacable, calumniators, profligate,
 4 inhuman; without love of goodness, traitors, reckless, stupid, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God;
 5 having an appearance of religion, while denying its power; but turn 6 away from these. Of such are those who creep into families, and capture 7 weak women laden with sins, agitated by various passions, always learning, but never able to arrive at the recognition of truth.

8 But in the same way as Jannes and Jambres resisted Moses, thus also these men of depraved mind, indifferent 9 about the faith, resist the truth. But they shall not proceed very far; for their senselessness will become clear to all, 10 as that of those became. But you followed my teaching, with the instruction, the guidance, the resolution, the faith, the forbearance, the love, the en-11 durance, under the persecutions and in the sufferings which assailed me in Antioch, and in Iconium, and in Lystra; from all which persecutions
 the Lord rescued and delivered me.
 12 But, however, all those who wish to live religiously in Christ Jesus will be 13 persecuted; while depraved men and juggling cheats will progress towards what is worse—deceivers and deceived.
 14 But you remain in what you learnt and believed, knowing from whom you 15 learned; and that from an infant you have known the holy scriptures, the power persuading you into salvation, through belief in the teaching of Christ 16 Jesus. Every Divinely inspired and useful writing was intended for teaching, attestation, and education in righteousness, so that the man of God might be noble, and well trained for every good work.

Paul's Last Solemn Charge to Timothy.

4 I solemnly call upon you before God and Christ Jesus, He Who will come to judge living and dead, at the manifestation of Himself and His 2 kingdom, Proclaim the Message; attend to it conveniently or inconveniently; convince, reprove, comfort, 3 with all forbearance and tact. For there will be a time when they will not endure healthy teachings; but according to their own desires they will heap up to themselves doctrines 4 pleasant to the hearing; and they will turn away their attention from the truth, but will rely upon fictions.

But keep your guard among all; en- 5 dure hardship; do the work of an evangelist; perfectly accomplish your duty: for I am already grey-headed, 6 and the time of my release is near. 7
 I have agonised in the noble contest;
 I have finished the course; I have guarded the faith. Henceforth there 8 is reserved for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award me in that day; and not only to me, but also to all who desire His appearing.

Personal Reminiscences.

Try to come to me soon; for Demas, 9 loving the present age, has left me, 10 and has gone to Thessalonica; Crescens to Galatia; Titus to Dalmatia.
 Luke alone is with me. Taking up 11
 Mark, bring him with you, for he is very useful in service to me; and I 12 have sent Tychicus to Ephesus.

When you come, bring the cloak 13 which I left behind with Carpus, in Troas, and the books, but especially the parchments.

Alexander, the copper-smith, dis- 14 played much ill-will towards me; may the Lord reward him according to his own acts!—and you beware of him; 15 for he was strongly opposed to our teachings.

In my first defence no one supported 16 me; but, on the contrary, all abandoned me: let it not be reckoned against them. But the Lord stood by 17 me, and filled me with power; so that through me the public proclamation was accomplished, and all the heathen heard; and I was rescued from a lion's mouth. The Lord will rescue me from 18 all the attempts of the wicked, and will preserve for His heavenly Kingdom. To Him be honor for ever and ever. Amen.

Regards to Prisca and Aquila, and 19
 the family of Onesiphorus. Erastus 20 stayed in Corinth; but I left Trophimus sick in Miletus.

Try to come before winter. Eubulus 21 and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the friends, send regards to you.
 The Lord Jesus be with your spirit. 22
 Blessing be with you.

(The second to Timothy, the first appointed overseer of the Ephesian assembly, was written from Rome when Paul appeared the second time before the Emperor Nero, about 67 or 68 A.D.)

EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TITUS.

The Greeting.

1 PAUL, a servant of God, but an apostle of Jesus Christ, for the furtherance of the faith of the elect of God, and a full knowledge of truth, of that coming from a religion founded upon a hope of eternal life, which was proclaimed by God, Who cannot lie, before everlasting times, but manifested in our own days—His Message—for the preaching of which I have been appointed by a command of God our Saviour; to Titus, a true son in a common faith: Blessing and peace from God, Father, and Christ Jesus our Saviour.

Church Government.

5 I left you in Crete for this purpose, that you might set affairs right upon a permanent basis; and appoint elders in every town, as I directed you—if any one is blameless, a man of one wife, having believing children, and not under accusation for profligacy or vice. For an overseer ought to be irreproachable as a Divine steward; neither brutish, nor passionate, nor a drunkard, nor a rioter, nor avaricious:
but, on the contrary, hospitable, beneficent, grave, just, godly, temperate; and capable to teach the reason of the faith, so that he may be able both to advise in the healthy doctrine and to convince its opponents.

10 For there are many insubordinate silly talkers and deceivers, especially 11 from among the circumcision, whom he ought to bridle. Such men overturn whole families, teaching—for the sake of dirty profit—what they ought not.
12 Some one of their own poets says of them, "The Cretans always lie, evil beasts, lazy gluttons." This statement is a truth. For this reason reprove them sharply, so that they may become 14 healthy in the faith; not following after Jewish fictions, and led by human ordinances to pervert the truth.

15 Everything is pure with the pure;
but with the corrupted and unfaithful nothing is pure; on the contrary, both their mind and conscience are corrupt.

They profess to know God; but they 16 deny Him by their actions, being disgusting, and apathetic, and careless about any good work.

Christian Deportment.

But you must speak what accords 2 with the healthy teaching; that the 2 elder men should be sober, grave, sensible, sound in faith, love, endurance. The elder women similarly 3 should be priest-like in deportment; neither slanderous nor addicted to much wine; teachers of good: so that 4 they may sober down the young women to be lovers of their husbands, lovers 5 of children, quiet, pure, housewifely, innocent, obedient to their own husbands; so that the message of God may not be blasphemed. In the same 6 way, advise the young men to self-control, making themselves models of a 7 noble life in everything; instructing with pure, grave, healthy, incontest- 8 able reason, so that the opposition may be ashamed when they have nothing vile to say about us.

Slaves should be obedient to their 9 own masters, trying to give satisfaction in everything; neither contradicting nor robbing; but, on the contrary, 10 showing goodness with fidelity; so that they may adorn the teaching of God our Saviour in everything.

For the gift of God revealed salvation 11 to all men; having disciplined us so 12 that we may reject impiety and the lusts of the world, and that by living soberly, and righteously, and reverently in the present age, we must wait 13 patiently the blessed hope and manifestation of rectification from the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ; Who gave Himself for us, so 14 that He might redeem us from all lawlessness, and purify for Himself a select people, zealous for beautiful works. Inculcate these matters, and exhort and reprove impartially, letting none treat you with contempt.

Remind them to be submissive to 3 governors and authorities; to be ready

1 to obey in every good work; to speak evil of no man; not to vituperate, but to be peaceable, well behaved; show-2 ing courtesy to all men. For we 3 ourselves also were once thoughtless, disobedient, unsettled, slaving for lusts and various pleasures, passing our lives 4 in vice and depravity, hateful and hating each other. But when the kindness and philanthropy of God our 5 Saviour appeared—not as the result of what we had accomplished in works of righteousness, but as the effect of His own mercy—He saved us, by a laver of regeneration and restoration 6 of a spirit of holiness, which He richly poured out upon us through our 7 Saviour Jesus Christ; so that being made righteous by that gift we might become by hope inheritors of eternal life.
 8 This matter is true; and I desire you to constantly insist upon these things, so that the believers in God may stand forth as being anxious for a noble life—that is noble and profitable to men.

But prohibit foolish discussions, and 9 genealogies, and quarrels, and legal contentions; for they are profitless and vain. Depose a pretentious man after 10 advising him once or twice; perceiving 11 that such men dodge and sin although self-convicted.

When I send Artemas to you, or 12 Tychicus, make haste to come to me in Nicopolis; for I have decided to winter there.

Provide at once for Zenas the lawyer, 13 and Apollos, so that nothing may be wanting to them; and, further, let our 14 people learn to advance in noble habits, so that they may not be indifferent towards those who are in want.

All my companions send regards to 15 you.

Regards to all who love us in faith.
 May blessing be with you all!

 overseer of Crete, was written from Nicopolis of Macedonia, about the year 67
 A.D.)*

EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO PHILEMON.

1 PAUL, a prisoner for Christ Jesus, and the brother Timothy, to our friend and fellow-worker Philemon, and to the dear Apphia, and to our fellow-soldier Archippus,
 2 and to the congregation in your
 3 house: Blessing and peace to you from our Father God, and Lord
 Jesus Christ.
 4 When I give thanks to my God, I always make mention of you in my 5 prayers; for I hear of your love, and the faith which you have to the Lord 6 Jesus and to all the holy, so that your energetic unity in the Faith may advance into a recognition of every benefit 7 there is for us in Christ. For I had pleasure and consolation from your friendship; and, brother, the feelings of the holy are comforted by you.
 8 Although I might have complete freedom in Christ to demand an un-9 usual thing of you, I would rather beg it for love—I am your old Paul, now also a prisoner for Christ Jesus.

I beg of you for my son Onesimus,
 10 whom I have begotten in my captivity
 —he who was once useless to you, 11 but now useful both to you and me—whom I have sent back. And now 12 receive him, for he is my darling;
 whom I would like to have retained 13 with me, so that instead of you, he might serve me in the bondage of the gospel. But without your consent I 14 wished to do nothing; so that your benevolence might not be from necessity, but out of free will.
 Perhaps, for this reason indeed, he 15 was removed from you for a short time, so that you might have him back for ever; no longer as a slave, 16 but more than a slave, a dear brother—especially so to me—but how much more to you, both in body and in the Lord! If, therefore, you have any 17 sympathy with me, receive him as myself.

But if he has wronged or owes you
 18 anything, charge that to me. I, Paul, 19

- have written with my own hand, I will repay it. Yet I need not tell you that you also owe your own self to me.
- 20 No, brother, make me happy in the Lord spontaneously; comfort my feelings in Christ.
- 21 I have written to you, confident of your acquiescence: for I know that you will do more than I ask. And therefore, also, prepare me a lodging; for I hope by your prayers to be welcomed by you.

Epaphras, my fellow-soldier in 23 Christ Jesus, and my fellow-workers, 24 Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, send regards to you.

The blessing of our Lord Jesus 25 Christ be with your spirit.

(Written to Philemon, from Rome, about 62 or 63 A.D., and conveyed through Onesimus, a domestic.)

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL TO THE HEBREWS.

The Pre-eminent Majesty and Honour of the Lord Jesus Christ by Reason of His Atonement.

- 1 GOD, having of old spoken to our forefathers in many portions and many forms, by the prophets, at last in these times has spoken to us by a Son: Whom He appointed Inheritor of all; and through Whom
- 3 He made the ages; Who—being the effulgence of His grandeur, and the representative of His essence, supporting all things by His powerful Decree—having made a purification from sins, seated Himself in right of the
- 4 Majesty on high; thus becoming by so much superior to the Messengers, inasmuch as He inherited a more distinguished Power than they. For when did He ever say to any of the Messengers?—

YOU ARE MY SON,

TO-DAY I HAVE BEGOTTEN YOU?¹

And again,

I WILL BE A FATHER TO HIM,

AND HE SHALL BE A SON TO ME.²

- 6 But when He again introduced the Creator³ into the habitable world, He says:

NOW LET ALL THE MESSENGERS OF GOD HONOUR HIM.⁴

- 7 But as to His Messengers He only says: HE MAKES HIS MESSENGERS SPIRITS, AND HIS MINISTERS BURNING FIRE.⁵

² Sam. vii. 14.

³ NOTE.—In the Greek text, Τὸν Πρωτότοκον, literally "First-producer."—F.F.

⁴ Psal. xcvi. 7.

⁵ Psal. civ. 4.

But respecting the Son: 8

GREAT PRINCE, YOUR THRONE IS FOR EVER AND EVER;

AND THE SCEPTRE OF JUSTICE IS THE SCEPTRE OF YOUR KINGDOM.

YOU HAVE LOVED RIGHTEOUSNESS, AND HATED LAWLESSNESS;

THEREFORE GOD, YOUR GOD, HAS ANOINTED YOU

WITH A DELIGHTFUL OIL ABOVE YOUR ASSOCIATES.¹

AND, YOU, LORD, HAVE FOUNDED 10 THE EARTH OF OLD,

AND THE SKIES ARE THE WORK OF YOUR HANDS;

THEY SHALL BE DESTROYED, BUT 11 YOU WILL REMAIN;

AND ALL SHALL GROW OLD AS A GARMENT,

AND YOU SHALL FOLD THEM AS A 12 CLOAK,

AND THEY SHALL BE CHANGED:

BUT YOU ARE THE SAME,

AND YOUR YEARS WILL NOT BE ECLIPSED.²

And when did He say to any of the 13 Messengers:—

SIT AT MY RIGHT HAND, UNTIL I PLACE YOUR ENEMIES A STOOL TO YOUR FEET?³

Are they not all ministering spirits, 14 dispatched to administer for the sake of those who will ultimately inherit salvation?

For this reason we ought especially 2 to attend to what must be listened to,

² Psal. cii. 25—27.

³ Psal. cx. 1.

lest we should ever be drawn aside.
 2 For if the message delivered by Messengers was reliable, and every transgression and disobedience received
 3 just punishment—how shall we escape, if we neglect such a great salvation, who first received our information through the Lord, with confirmation to us of what was 4 heard?—God witnessing with signs, wonders, and various powers, as well as a Holy Spirit apportioned by 5 His will. For He has not subjected to Messengers the empire of the future,
 6 about which we speak. And He gives evidence of this where some one says :

WHAT IS MAN, THAT YOU SHOULD REMEMBER HIM?—

OR A SON OF MAN, THAT YOU SHOULD LOOK ON HIM?

7 YOU MADE HIM FOR A SHORT TIME LESS THAN THE ANGELS;
 BUT HAVE CROWNED HIM WITH MAJESTY AND HONOUR, AND SET HIM OVER THE WORKS OF YOUR HANDS,
 8 HAVING SUBJECTED ALL BENEATH HIS FEET.¹

But if He subjected all, He could leave nothing unsubjected to him. However, we do not now see all subject to him. But we see Jesus—depressed for a short time lower than the Messengers, by having suffered death—crowned with majesty and honour, since by the kindness of God 10 He tasted death for all. For it became Him, by Whom all are, and through Whom all exist, leading many sons to rectification, to perfect the Chief of their salvation by sufferings. For the Purifier and the purified are both from One; for which reason He is not ashamed to call them
 12 brothers, saying :

I WILL PROCLAIM YOUR NAME TO MY BROTHERS,
 IN THE MIDST OF THE ASSEMBLY I WILL SING OF YOU.²

13 And again:
 I WILL TRUST IN HIM.³

And again,
 BEHOLD, I MYSELF AND THE CHILDREN WHOM GOD HAS GIVEN ME.⁴

14 Since, then, the children share in blood and flesh, He also partook of the same with them; so that through death He might abolish him who has the dominion of death, that is the Devil; and might release those who through 15 their whole life were subject to slavery through the dread of death. For,

 16 indeed, He never descended upon angels, but, instead, He descended upon the Heir of Abraham. It was 17 consequently imperative to be made similar in everything to His brothers; so that, pitying, He might be a merciful and faithful High Priest before God, to overshadow with mercy the sins of the people. For as He Himself
 18 suffered when tempted, He is able to encourage those who are tempted.

A Retribe of the Rituals of the Tabernacle, and their Fulfilment in Messiah, the Great Anti-Type.

Therefore, holy brethren, partakers
 3 of the heavenly calling, observe that the Apostle and High Priest of our confession, Jesus, was faithful to His
 2 Maker—as Moses was—in all His house. But He is thought worthy of 3 a greater dignity than Moses, by as much as the master of the house has more honour than its steward. For 4 every house is organized by some one; but God is the organizer of all things. And Moses, indeed, was faithful in all
 5 his house as a servant, a witness of what was ordered; but Christ as a Son
 6 over His own house; whose house we are if we firmly possess the confidence and reliance of our Hope until the end.

Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says :
 7 IF YOU WOULD LISTEN TO HIS VOICE TO-DAY,

HARDEN NOT YOUR HEARTS,
 8 AS IN THE BITTERNESS DURING THE PERIOD OF TRIAL IN THE DESERT;

WHERE YOUR FATHERS TRIED ME,
 9 PROVED ME, AND FOR FORTY YEARS SAW MY WORKS.

THEREFORE I WAS PROVOKED WITH 10 THAT GENERATION, AND SAID, THEY ALWAYS WANDER AT HEART; AND HAVE NOT ACKNOWLEDGED MY PATHS :

SO THAT I DECLARED IN MY ANGER,
 11 THEY SHALL NOT ENTER INTO MY REST.¹

Take care, brethren, lest there
 12 should ever be in any of you a bad unbelieving heart, to turn away from a living God. But, instead, exhort
 13 yourselves every day, while it is called To-day, so that none among you may be hardened by the seductiveness of sin.

² Psa. xxii. 22. ³ Psa. xviii. 2. ⁴ Isa. viii. 18.

 14 For we shall be participators with
 THE MESSIAH, if we steadily hold fast to the first foundation until perfect-15 fect; therefore He said:

IF TO-DAY YOU WOULD LISTEN TO HIS VOICE,

HARDEN NOT YOUR HEARTS
 AS IN THAT BITTERNESS.

16 But what hearers tried Him?—did not all coming from Egypt through 17 Moses? And by whom was He provoked forty years?—was it not with the sinners, whose carcasses fell in the 18 desert? And to whom did He declare that they should not enter into His 19 rest—if not to the unbelieving? From which we perceive that they were not able to enter in because of unbelief.

4 Let us therefore be careful, lest by abandoning a promise to enter into
 His rest, any one from among you 2 should think of lagging behind. For we are promised, as they were; but the message heard did not profit them, not being united with faith by the 3 hearers. But we, the believers, may enter that rest (although He said:—

AS I DECLARED IN MY ANGER, THEY SHALL NOT ENTER INTO MY REST:

—as though from the exertions of construction after founding a universe, where it says about the seventh thus:

4 AND GOD RESTED UPON THE SEVENTH PERIOD FROM ALL HIS 5 WORKS.¹ But here again:

THEY SHALL NOT ENTER INTO MY REST.)

6 As, therefore, some failed to enter it, and those first promised entered not,
 7 through disobedience; He again fixed a particular time, TO-DAY, saying, after that time, by David—as I said before—

TO-DAY, IF YOU WILL HEAR HIS VOICE,

HARDEN NOT YOUR HEARTS.

8 For if Joshua had given that rest,
 He would not after that have spoken
 9 of another time. Therefore there still remains a rest for the people of 10 God. For it shall enter into its rest, and rest itself from its labours, as God did from His own.

11 Let us therefore strive to enter into that rest, so that no one may in the same way be an example, by falling 12 through disobedience. For the word of God is living and energetic, and more cutting than any two-edged sword;

 and divides even the life and spirit, joints and marrow; and is critical of desires and thoughts of the heart. And there is no creature hidden before 13 it; but all is naked and bare to His eyes to Whom we have to account.

The Messiah's Priestly Office.

Having, therefore, a great High 14
 Priest gone into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us cling to this confession. For we have not a High 15 Priest unable to sympathize with our weaknesses; but equally tried in all things like ourselves, yet sinless. Let 16 us go, therefore, with freedom to the throne of the Giver, so that we may receive mercy; and we shall find a perfectly supporting gift.

For every high priest taken from 5 among men is set up over men to attend to the things of God, so that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins; and be able to sympathize with 2 the ignorant and erring, because he is himself surrounded with weakness; and for that reason he ought to offer 3 for his own sins, as well as for the people. And not any one takes this 4 honour to himself, unless called by God, even as Aaron was.

Thus also the Messiah did not Him- 5
 self decree that He should become a High Priest; but, instead, He Who said to Him:

YOU ARE MY SON.

TO-DAY I HAVE BEGOTTEN YOU.¹

And as He says in another place: 6

YOU ARE AN ETERNAL PRIEST,
 ACCORDING TO THE ORDER OF MELCHISEDEK.²

Who in the days of His incarnation, 7 having offered prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears, to Him able to save Him from death, and having been listened to because of His entreaty, although indeed He 8 was a Son, He learnt obedience by what He suffered; and having 9 been perfected, He became the origin of eternal salvation to all who obey Him—having been publicly 10 proclaimed under God a High Priest of the order of Melchiseдек; of 11
 Whom we have to express much thought and difficult to explain, since you have become sluggish to the sounds. For at the time when you 12 ought to be teachers, you have need

¹ Psalm ii. 7.

² Psalm cii. 4.

again for some one to teach you the rudiments of the first principles of God's purposes; and you have come to have need of milk, and not of solid food. For every one who uses milk is ignorant of a reason for righteousness; for he is an infant. But solid food is for the matured, for those who through their disciplined faculties are exercised to decide between good and evil.

Consequently, dismissing the reason for the first object of the Messiah, let us bear forward to its conclusion—not again laying a foundation of turning from dead rituals; and of trust upon God; of teaching of baptisms; or of laying on of hands; of resurrection from death; and of eternal judgment: yet we will do this, if God permits.—For those who have been once enlightened, and tasted of the heavenly gift, and been partakers of holy spirit, and have tasted the noble plan of God, and power of a future age, and have fallen away—it is useless to renew them into a change of mind;—they having by themselves crucified afresh the Son of God, and openly disgraced Him. For the land that has drunk the rain coming often upon it, and has yielded crops useful to those by whom it has been cultivated, receives approval from God; but if it produces unexpected and nearly accursed thorns and thistles, their end is for burning.

But we are persuaded better of you, friends, things that bring salvation, although we speak in this way. For God is not so unjust as to be forgetful of your work, and of the love which has been shown to His Name, by having ministered to the holy, and still ministering. But we wish each of you to show the same earnestness to the end, to perfect your hope; so that you may not become sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and endurance inherited the promises. For God, promising to Abraham, since He had none greater to swear by, He swore by Himself, saying, WHEN BLESSING I WILL BLESS YOU, AND INCREASING I WILL INCREASE YOU.¹ And then, after long expectation, he obtained the promise. For men indeed swear by the greater, and in all disputes the oath is used by them for confirmation—by which God, wishing to show more certainly the unalterable nature of His decision to the inheritors of the promise, intervened with an oath; so that by two unchangeable things, in which it was impossible for God to be false, we might have a stronger hold, when we fly to seize the settled hope, which we have as a sure and firm anchor of the soul, and carried inside the inner veil; where as a Forerunner Jesus has entered for us, becoming a High Priest for ever according to the order of Melchisedek.

For this Melchi-sedek, king of 7 Salem, a High Priest of the Highest God, who met Abraham returning from the defeat of the kings, and blessed him—to whom the patriarch Abraham set apart a tenth of all—whose name interpreted is, first, King of Righteousness, and then, King of Salem, which is King of Peace; unfathered, unmothered, 3 unpedigreed, without recorded beginning of days or end of life; but, like the Son of God, remains a Priest uninterruptedly.

But see how great he was, to whom Abraham the patriarch gave a tenth of the best spoils! And, indeed, those who receive the priesthood from the sons of Levi have a command by the law to tith the people—that is, their brothers—although they are direct issue of Abraham. But he who was not pedigreed from them tithed Abraham, and blessed him who had the promises! But, without any contradiction, the lesser is blessed by the greater. And here indeed mortal men take tithes; but there, it is witnessed that he lives. And, as one may say, Levi, the receiver of tithes, was tithed through Abraham; for he was as yet in the loins of his father when Melchi-sedek met him.

If, therefore, perfection were through the Levitical priesthood, under which the people were legislated for, then why need another Priest be appointed, of the order of Melchi-sedek, and not nominated from the order of Aaron? For when the priesthood is being changed, of necessity comes a change of ritual. But He of Whom this was said partook of another tribe, from which none approached the altar; for it is clear that our Lord arose from the tribe of Judah, regarding which tribe Moses spoke nothing concerning priests. And it is now very clear if 15

another High Priest is appointed similar to Melchi-sedek, He comes not according to a law of physical order, but by power of an unfailling life; for it is witnessed: That

YOU ARE AN ETERNAL PRIEST,
MELCHI-SEDEK.¹

But certainly when a change is made from a preceding order, it is through its weakness and uselessness—for the law perfected nothing, but introduced a better hope, by which we are brought near to God. And therefore this was not done without an oath, although they indeed became priests without an oath; but He with an oath by Him Who said to Him:

THE LORD SWORE AND WILL NOT ALTER,
YOU ARE AN ETERNAL PRIEST.

By which a very much better settlement came, secured by Jesus.

And, indeed, they were many who became priests, because they were prevented permanently remaining through death. But He, by continuing for ever, holds the continuous Priesthood; and so is able to perfectly save those coming to God through Him, always living to rectify on their behalf.

For such a High Priest—Who is holy, good, pure, free from sins, and Who has become higher than the heavens—befits us; Who has no need every day, as those high priests, to first offer a sacrifice for His own sins, then for those of the people—for He did this once for all, offering Himself. For the law appointed men high priests who were weak; but the word of the oath, surpassing the law, a perfected Son for ever.

And this is the sum total of these reasonings: We have such a High Priest, Who sits by right upon the throne of the Majesty in the heavens; a Minister of the Sacred Rites, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched and not man. For every High Priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; hence it is necessary that this One should also have something He might offer. If, therefore, He were upon earth, He could never be a Priest—those existing to offer gifts according to law; who serve as a sketch and a shadow of the heavenly, as Moses was commanded when about to complete the tabernacle. For TAKE CARE, He said, YOU MAKE ALL ACCORDING TO THE MODEL SHOWN TO YOU IN THE MOUNTAIN.¹

But now He performs a far better service, inasmuch as He is the Mediator of a better settlement, which is enacted upon better promises. For if that first had been faultless, He would not have sought a place for a second. For He says, reproaching them:

SEE, THE DAYS COME, SAYS THE LORD,

WHEN I WILL COMPLETE WITH ISRAEL'S HOUSE
AND THE HOUSE OF JUDAH A NEW SETTLEMENT;

NOT LIKE THE SETTLEMENT MADE WITH THEIR FATHERS, IN THE DAY WHEN I TOOK THEM WITH MY HAND,

TO LEAD FROM THE LAND OF EGYPT,

WHEN THEY REMAINED NOT IN MY PLAN,

AND I WAS SORRY FOR THEM, SAYS
THE LORD:

THIS, THEN, IS THE SETTLEMENT
I WILL MAKE

WITH ISRAEL'S HOUSE

AFTER THOSE DAYS, SAYS THE
LORD,

INTO THEIR UNDERSTANDING PUT MY LAWS,

AND ON THEIR HEARTS I WILL WRITE THEM,

AND I WILL BE A GOD TO THEM,
AND THEY A PEOPLE BE TO ME;

NOR EACH SHALL TEACH HIS FRIEND,

AND EACH HIS BROTHER, SAYING,
"KNOW THE LORD";

FOR EVERYONE SHALL UNDER-STAND ME,

FROM THE LEAST UP TO THEIR GREATEST.

FOR I WILL PITY THEIR TRANS-GRESSIONS.

NOT REMIND THEM OF THEIR SINS.²

In saying, A NEW, He has made the first old; but the old and aged is nearly gone.

The first, however, had expiatory services with holy adornment. For a tabernacle was first constructed, in which were the lamp, and the table, and the presentation of the loaves—which were called the Holies; and within it the second veiled tabernacle named the Holy of Holies, having a golden incense altar, and the ark of the covenant plated everywhere with gold, in which were the golden jar holding the manna, and the blossoming rod of Aaron, and the records of the settlement; and above it cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy-seat —to which this is merely an allusion. And being thus furnished with these, the priest performing the services always entered the first tabernacle; but into the second, the High Priest alone once a year, not without blood, which he offered for the forgetfulness of himself and of the people. The Holy Spirit thus indicating that the way for the holy was not yet to be made visible while the first tabernacle was standing, which was a representative to the then existing time; while gifts and sacrifices were offered, unable to perfect the worshippers' conscience, only consisting of food and drink, and different washings, and bodily purifications, until a time of rectification arrived.

But Messiah having arrived, a High Priest of the benefits that are coming through the greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made by hands, that is not of this creation; not with the blood of goats and bulls, but with His own blood, has entered once for all into the Holy place, having found an eternal redemption. For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and ashes of a heifer, sprinkling the participators, could consecrate for the purification of the body; how much rather can the blood of the Messiah, Who through an eternal Spirit offered Himself spotless to God, cleanse our conscience from dead rituals to serve a living God! And by means of this He is an intermediary of a new settlement; so that as a death was made for redemption from transgressions under the first settlement, those called for the eternal inheritance might receive the promise. For where there is a settlement, it is necessary that the settler should have been carried off by death; because a settlement comes into force after death, for it never has effect while the settler lives. Whence neither the former was renewed without blood; for every command of the law having been repeated by Moses to all the people, he, taking the blood of bulls and goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, sprinkled the book itself, as well as all the people, saying: THIS IS THE BLOOD OF THE SETTLEMENT WHICH GOD HAS CONCLUDED WITH YOU.¹ And he sprinkled in the same way with the blood the tabernacle, and all the instruments of the service. And almost everything under the law was purified by blood; and without shedding of blood no remission came.

Therefore, as these representatives of the heavenly things were purified, it was necessary that the heavenly themselves also by a better sacrifice than they. For Messiah entered not into a hand-made sanctuary, a representation of the true; but into the heaven itself, where He now appears for us in the presence of God. Yet not so that He might offer Himself often, as the High Priest entering the sanctuary yearly with blood of another; for then He must often have suffered since the foundation of the universe. But now once for all, at the consummation of the ages, He has been manifested to abolish sin through the sacrifice of Himself. And inasmuch as it is appointed to men to die once, but after that a judgment: thus also Messiah, having offered Himself once to take away sins from the many, will manifest Himself a second time, apart from sins, for the salvation of those expecting Him.

For the Law, being a shadow of these future benefits, not the representation itself of the facts, was never able to perfect the attendants by those yearly sacrifices which were offered continually—for then would they not have ceased to be offered?—because none of the worshippers would have consciousness of sins, having been once for all purified. But, on the contrary, in them there was a yearly reminder of sins; for the blood of bulls and goats was powerless to expel sins. Consequently, entering into the world, He says:

YOU DESIRED NOT SACRIFICE AND OFFERING,
BUT YOU HAVE PREPARED A BODY FOR ME;
BURNT-OFFERINGS, AND FOR SINS, 6
DELIGHT YOU NOT;—
SO I EXCLAIMED, "SEE, I WILL 7
COME,"
AS WRITTEN OF ME IN A NOBLE BOOK,

1 EXOD. XXIV. 8.

"THE MIGHTY PRINCE TO DO YOUR WILL."¹

- 8 When it is said thus: YOU DID NOT DESIRE, NOR APPROVE OF BURNT-OFFERINGS NOR SIN-OFFERINGS, which were offered according to the ritual—then He said: BEHOLD, I
9 COME TO DO YOUR WILL. He takes away the first, so that He might 10 establish the second. By which WILL we are made holy through the offering of the body of Jesus the Messiah once for all.
- 11 And indeed every high priest stands daily serving and offering the same sacrifices repeatedly, which are never able to strip-off sins. But this One, having offered a single sacrifice for ever, sat down at the right of God; henceforth awaiting, UNTIL HIS ENEMIES ARE PLACED A FOOTSTOOL 12 FOR HIS FEET.² For by one offering He perfected the purified in perpetuity.
- 13 And the Holy Spirit confirms it to us, even after the previous statement:
14 THIS IS THE SETTLEMENT THAT I WILL SETTLE FOR THEM AFTER THOSE DAYS, SAYS THE LORD:
I WILL PLACE MY LAWS UPON THEIR HEARTS,
AND ON THEIR UNDERSTANDING WRITE THEM,
15 AND OF THEIR SINS AND LAWLESSNESS REMIND NO MORE.³
- 16 But where there is a release from them, there needs no more offerings for sins.
- 17 Therefore, brothers, having free entry into the interior of the Holies through the blood of Jesus, an open and living pathway, which He renewed for us through the veil, that 18 is, His body; and a great Priest over the house of God—let us enter with truth of heart, in full faith, having washed our hearts from a bad conscience, and bathed the body with 19 pure water. Let us unshrinkingly possess the confession of this hope—
20 for the Promiser is faithful—and encouraging one another, incite ourselves to love and noble actions; not neglecting the assembling of ourselves together, as is the custom of some; but rousing up, and that actively, as 21 you see the day approaching. For if we wilfully sin after the reception of the knowledge of the truth, a sacrifice is not again left for sins; but a 27 fearful expectation of judgment and of fiery zeal, ready to devour the adversaries. For any one despising 28 a law of Moses was put away by death without pity under two or three witnesses. Of how much worse 29 punishment, then, think you, will he be considered worthy who treads under foot the Son of God, and holds the blood of the settlement by which we are made holy, unholy, and insults the spirit of the gift! Yet we know 30 Who says, PUNISHMENT IS MINE, I WILL REPAY. And again, THE LORD SHALL JUDGE HIS PEOPLE.¹

Fearful to fall into the hands of a 31 Living God!

Faith defined as trust in an unseen Future, and Duty done in this life through that trust upon an Unseen God and His Promises.

But remember the former days in 32 which, having been enlightened, you endured many struggles: there, being 33 exhibited with reproaches and afflictions; and here, becoming associates of those who were so. For you have 34 indeed suffered with the prisoners, and have accepted the plundering of your possessions with joy, knowing you possess for yourselves a better and more enduring property. There- 35 fore, throw not away your freedom, which possesses a great reward. For 36 you have need of patience, so that doing the will of God, you may enjoy the promise.

FOR VERY SOON, HOW SOON,² 37 THE FOE WILL CHARGE WITHOUT DELAY.

BUT MY FIRM TROOP WILL LIVE 38 FROM FAITH;³

AND IF REPULSED, MY SOUL WILL NOT APPROVE.⁴

But we shall not recoil with loss, 39 but keep our lives by Faith: for 11 Faith is the standing-ground of the hopeful, the conviction of unseen facts; and our fathers proved it. 2

By faith we comprehend that the 3 ages were arranged by the continuous intention of God, so that from the unseen the visible appeared.

- 4 By faith Abel offered to God a better sacrifice than Cain, whence it was witnessed from God upon his offering that he was righteous; and through it he yet speaks, although dead.
- 5 By faith Enoch passed over without seeing death; and was not found, because God had passed him over; for before his passing over, it was testified he was pleasing to God.
- 6 But without faith it is impossible to be pleasing; for the comer to God must believe that He exists, and that a reward is gained by His diligent seekers.
- 7 By faith Noah, having been warned of events never seen, prudently constructed a ship to preserve his own family; through which he condemned the world, and became an inheritor of the righteousness which comes from faith.
- 8 By faith Abraham, having been called, obeyed; proceeding towards the place which he would in the future receive as an inheritance; and he went, not understanding where he was to go. By faith he lodged as a stranger in that land of the promise; dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the equal inheritors of the same promise: for he awaited the city, the Architect and Constructor of whose everlasting foundations is God.
- 9 By faith Sarah herself received ability to conceive an heir when past the usual time of life, because she considered the promise reliable;—
- 10 and so, from an individual approaching death, were born as many as the stars of the sky in multitude, as the innumerable sand by the sea-shore!
- 11 All these died relying upon faith, not having received the promises; but yet having seen them and embraced them from afar, and confessing that they were but guests and visitors upon the earth. For those who speak thus show that they look for a country; and certainly if they had thought about the one they had left, they had time to return. But then they aimed at a better, that is, a heavenly; consequently, God Himself was not ashamed to be called their God, for He had prepared for them a city.
- 12 By faith Abraham, being tried, offered Isaac; and was offering up the one declared born for the promises, of whom it had been said, that IN ISAAC AN HEIR SHALL BE NAMED TO

YOU;¹ reasoning that God was able to raise from the dead, from whence also He received him as an illustration.

By faith also Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concerning future events.

By faith dying Jacob blessed each of the sons of Joseph, and worshipped reclining upon his couch.

By faith Joseph, perfecting his life, remembered the departure of the sons of Israel, and gave instructions as to his bones.

By faith, when Moses was born, he was hid three months by his parents, because they saw the child was noble; and they dreaded not the king's order.

By faith Moses, having become great, refused to be called a son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to be reviled with the people of God, than to have a temporary enjoyment of sin; esteeming the reproach of the Messiah greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt: for he looked forward to the reward. By faith he left Egypt, not afraid of the fury of the king; for he was as equally assured of the unseen as of the seen. By faith he instituted the Passover, and the shedding of the blood, so that the destroyer of the first-born should not touch theirs. By faith they passed through the Red Sea as over dry land; which the Egyptians in trying to do were swallowed up.

By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, having been encircled seven days. By faith Rahab the inn-keeper perished not with the unbelievers, for she had received the spies with peace.

But why should I say more? for the time would fail me describing Gideon and Barak; Samson and Jephthah; David and Samuel; and the prophets: who through faith subdued kingdoms, did their duty, obtained promises, broke the mouths of lions; quenched raging fire, escaped the edge of the sword, after feebleness were made strong, became mighty in war, overthrew foreign camps. Women received back their dead by a resurrection; and others were beaten to death, refusing to accept release, so that they might obtain a better resurrection; and others endured trial by mockeries and scourgings, and some by bonds and imprisonments. They were stoned, they were sawn in pieces, they were tortured, they died by a murdering sword, they wandered in sheepskins and goatskins, despised, 38 afflicted, tormented—the world was not worthy of them! They wandered in deserts, and mountains, and caves, and holes in the earth. And all these, 39 bearing testimony through their faith, enjoyed not the promise; God providing something better for us, so that they should not be perfected without us.

12 And, therefore, we having with us such an encompassing cloud of witnesses, throwing off all weight, and seductive sin, let us run persistently 2 through our prescribed course; looking forward to Jesus, the Leader and Trainer of our faith, Who, striving for the reward prepared for Him, endured the cross, despising its shame, and sits by right on the throne of 3 God. For compare what He endured under sinners libelling Him, so that you may not fail from exhaustion 4 of your souls; because you have not resisted so far as blood, while striving 5 against sin; and you have forgotten the exhortation which addresses you as sons:

MY SON, SLIGHT NOT THE LORD'S CORRECTIONS, NEITHER FAINT UNDER HIS RE-
PROOF;

6 FOR THE LORD CORRECTS THOSE HE LOVES,
AND CHASTISES EVERY SON IN WHOM HE DELIGHTS.¹

7 If you endure a correction, God acts towards you as sons; for what son is there whom a father does not 8 correct? But if you are without correction, of which all have a share, then you are counterfeits, and not 9 sons. Then, if we had corrections from our bodily fathers, and obeyed them, how much rather shall we not 10 endure from the Father of our spirits, and live? For they indeed corrected for a few days, according to their judgment; but He to support, to 11 restore us to His purity. Yet all correction for the present seems not to be a pleasure, but a grief; although afterwards it returns a pleasant fruit of righteousness to those disciplined 12 through it. Therefore, strengthen the fallen hands and the trembling knees; 13 and step right out with your feet, so that you may not march lamely, but firmly. 14 Above all, pursue peace and purity, without which no man will see the

Lord. Looking forward, lest any one 15 should fall back from the gift of God; lest any thorny plant growing there should disturb, and through it the whole troop be disordered. Let none 16 be a reckless or common man, like Esau, who for a single meal gave up his birthrights. For you know that 17 afterwards, wishing to inherit the blessing, he was not allowed; for he found no place for a change of purpose, although he sought it with tears.

For you are not come to a tangible 18 hill, and a burning fire, and to darkness, and to gloom, and tempest, and 19 a trumpet blast, and a commanding voice, the hearers of which implored the sound not to approach them: for 20 they could not endure the Command; and even if a beast touched the hill, it was to be stoned. And so fearful was 21 the appearance, that Moses said, "I am terrified and trembling." But you 22 are come to Mount Zion, and a city of a living God; to a heavenly Jerusalem, and ten thousands of angels; to the full assembly and congregation 23 of the first-born registered in the heavens; and to a Divine Judge of all; and to spirits of the perfected righteous, and a New Settlement by means of 24 Jesus, and a sprinkling of blood speaking better than that by Abel.

Take heed, that you are not drawn 25 away from what has been spoken! For if they escaped not who rejected the Divine warning on earth, how much less we, if we reject that from heaven above! The voice then shook 26 the earth; but now it is proclaimed, saying, YET ONCE MORE I WILL SHAKE NOT ONLY THE EARTH, BUT ALSO THE HEAVEN.¹ But from the 27 "Yet once more," the displacement of the shaken is shown, as being temporary, so that the unshaken may remain. Therefore having received a 28 kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us be joyful, by which we serve God acceptably with reverence and awe; FOR OUR GOD IS A CONSUMING FIRE.² 29

General Exhortations.

Let brotherly love continue. Do not 13 neglect hospitality; by which means 2 some have unexpectedly entertained angels.

Remember the prisoners as fellow- 3 prisoners; for you also are yourselves in the body suffering like them.

- 5 Let not your plan of life be avaricious.
Be helpful to your neighbours; for He has said, I WILL NOT LEAVE YOU
- 6 NOR EVER FORSAKE YOU.¹ By which He encourages us to say,
THE LORD IS MY HELP, I WILL NOT FEAR;
WHAT CAN MAN DO TO ME?²
- 7 Remember your leaders who related the message of God to you; imitate their faith, after reflecting upon the result of their way of life.
- 8 Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever.
- 9 Turn not to different and strange teachings; for the heart is ennobled by goodness, not by foods which do not benefit their followers.
- 10 We have a little altar, from which those who serve the Tent are not allowed to eat; for the bodies of those animals sacrificed for sin, of whom the blood was carried by the High Priests into the Holies, were burnt outside the camp. And consequently Jesus, so that He might sanctify the people by His own blood, suffered outside the gate. Consequently, let us now go out to Him outside the walls, carrying His disgrace; for we have not a permanent city here; on the contrary, we are in search of a future one. Let us, therefore, always offer through Him a praiseworthy sacrifice to God, that is, a lip-fruit, confessing to His name. But do not neglect well-doing and neighbourliness; for God is well pleased with these sacrifices.

Be obedient to your leaders, and orderly; for they watch over your souls as having to give an account; so that they may do this joyfully, and not sorrowfully; for that injures yourselves.

Pray for us; for we are satisfied that we have a good conscience, wishing to bring benefits to all. And now, especially, I beseech you to do this, so that I may be restored to you the sooner.

But the God of peace, Who brought back our Lord Jesus from the dead, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, purify you with the blood of an eternal settlement, supporting you in every thing good to effect His will, doing in yourselves the best before Him, through Jesus Christ; to Whom be the majesty for ever and ever. Amen.

But I entreat you, brethren, accept this comforting discourse which I have written to you briefly. Understand that our brother Timothy has been set free; with whom, if he comes soon, I will see you.

Remembrances to all your leaders and all the holy. Those of Italy send kind regards. Grace be with you all. Amen.

(Written to the Hebrews, from Italy, probably about 68 A.D., and sent by Timothy.)

NOTE.—The Epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, and Hebrews, form what the old Greeks called a "Trilogy," and in them St. Paul showed to the World the Christian Faith, in its Intellectual, Social, and Spiritual aspects, so as to enable every class of mind to comprehend its Eternal and Universal nature. Persistent efforts have been made for centuries to upset the Pauline authorship of this Epistle to the Hebrews, but no man who has studied the mental peculiarities of St. Paul, and what I would call his idiom of thought, can doubt that he wrote it,—for no other man could have done it. Undoubtedly he originally wrote it in Hebrew, and had it translated by a Secretary into Greek for his edition of "Select Epistles," to which it forms a splendid crown. Origen, the most ancient Biblical Critic, corroborates that the Hebrew composition was the first issued.—F. F.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE

JAMES.

- 1 JAMES, a servant of God and the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the Dispersion: Rejoice!
- General Exhortations.
- 2 Consider it all pleasure, my brethren, when you fall into various trials; understanding that the proof of your faith produces patience. 4 Then let patience have a perfect effect, in order that you may be perfect and complete, defective in nothing.

But if any of you be deficient in 5 wisdom, let him ask it from God, Who gives to all freely and without reproach; and it will be granted to him.

6 Let him ask, however, with faith, never doubting; because the doubter is like a wave of the sea, blown about

7 and broken. Never let such a man imagine that he will receive anything

8 from the Lord; a hesitating man is irresolute in all his ways.

9 But let the brother of humble rank

10 rejoice in his elevation; and the rich in his humbling; because like the flower of grass he shall fade away.

11 For the sun rises with his scorching rays, and withers the grass; and its flower fades, and the beauty of its form disappears. In the same way also shall the rich man wither in his ways.

12 Happy is the man who endures temptation; because upon his resistance he will receive the crown of life, which He has promised to those

13 who love Him. Let no one say when he is tempted, "I am tempted from God;" for God is inexperienced in evils; and He tempts no one. But every one is tempted by the longing and

15 seducing of his own lust. Then the passion, when it has conceived, produces sin; and the sin, having fully 16 developed, produces death. Do not, my dear brethren, be led astray.

17 Every beneficent gift, and each perfect endowment, comes from above; descending from the Father of lights, with Whom there is not a change of position or shadow of variation.

18 Having resolved, He brought us forth by a true message, in order that we might be a sample of what He created for Himself.

19 Stand fast, my dear brothers: but let every man be quick to listen, slow

20 to assert, slow to anger; because the anger of man is not conducive to 21 Divine righteousness. Therefore, stripping off all vicious filth and excess, accept with modesty the implanted Message, which is able to 22 save your souls. Become rational workers, however; and not merely listeners, thus deluding yourselves.

23 Because if any one is a hearer of reason, and is not a practiser, he is like a man contemplating his natural 24 face in a mirror; although he sees himself, yet on going away, he immediately forgets what he was like.

25 But he who examines into a perfect law—that of Liberty and steadfastness—becomes not a forgetful listener, but an active worker; he will be happy through his own activity.

If any one imagines himself to be 26 religious, yet not bridling his own tongue, but deceiving even his own heart, the religion of that man is worthless. Pure and undefiled religion 27 in the presence of the God and Father is this. To care for the fatherless and widows in their distress; to preserve himself unspotted from the world.

On Partiality.

Do not, my brethren, regard 2 rectifying faith of our Lord Jesus Christ as an instrument to flatter with! For should there enter your assembly a man wearing gold rings and splendid clothing, and there should enter at the same time a poor man in ragged attire; and you pay attention to him who has 3 the splendid dress, saying, "Take a seat there in the place of honour," and to the poor man say, "You can stand there, or crouch under my footstool": does this not prove your 4 partiality, and a readiness to arbitrate with wicked bias?

Listen, my dear brethren: Has not 5 God chosen the poor from a worldly point of view, yet rich in faith, as inheritors of the Kingdom which He has promised to those who love Him? But 6 you have despised the poor. Do not the rich exceedingly oppress you, and themselves drag you to the law-courts? Do they not slander that 7 noble Name by which you are distinguished? If, however, you observe 8 the royal law, according to the scripture, YOU SHALL LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOUR AS YOUR OWN SELF,¹ you will do well; but if you show 9 partiality, you are guilty of sin, being convicted by that law as culprits. Because whoever may keep the whole 10 law, yet should transgress against one part, may become entangled with all; for He Who said, DO NOT COMMIT 11 ADULTERY, also said, DO NOT MURDER.² Now, although you do not commit adultery, but become a murderer, you thereby become a breaker of law. So speak, and so act, 12 then, as those about to be tried by means of a law of liberty. For justice 13 is merciless to him who has not practised mercy; but mercy triumphs over judgment.

Living Faith contrasted with Dead Faith.

- 14 What advantage is it, my brothers, if a man should say he has faith, but fails to bring it into practice? Such 15 faith is not able to save him. For if to a brother or sister in distress, and 16 destitute of daily food, any one of you should say, "Oh, I am so sorry for you! go away; I hope you will get warmed and fed"; but does not give to them what is necessary for the bodily needs, what is the advantage?
17 In the same way, the faith which is not brought into practice, is in itself dead. But, on the other hand, some 18 may say, "You have faith; I am myself a worker." "Let me see your faith apart from its results; and I will illustrate the faith to you by means of my actions."
19 You believe that there is one God; you do right—the demons also 20 believe, and shudder. But do you want to know, you vain man, that faith unaccompanied by results, is 21 worthless? Was not our forefather Abraham approved as righteous from the fact that he offered up his own son Isaac upon the altar? Thus you
22 see his faith co-operated with his actions; and from his actions his
23 faith was perfected; and the scripture was fulfilled which says: ABRAHAM TRUSTED TO GOD, AND IT WAS PAID TO HIM IN RIGHTEOUSNESS;¹ and he was called a FRIEND OF GOD.²
24 You see then that a man is made righteous by means of actions, and 25 not merely by means of faith. And in the same way, was not Rahab the innkeeper also made righteous by actions, inasmuch as she welcomed the Messengers, and dispatched them 26 by another road? Because, as the body without breath is lifeless, in the same way, the faith apart from action is also lifeless.

On Bridling the Tongue.

- 3 Do not be all teachers, my brethren, because you know that we shall 2 undergo a severe examination; for we all err in many ways. If any one can guard against slips in conversation, he is a perfect man, able also to 3 restrain his whole body. When we put bits into the mouths of the horses, so as to render them obedient to us, we also control their whole body.

Observe also the ships, although they 4 are so large, and are tossed about by rough winds, are yet by means of a very small rudder turned in whatever direction the steersman may determine. So the tongue, although a 5 small organ, is nevertheless a great boaster! See also how the tiniest spark may kindle the mightiest forest!

And the tongue is a fire—a universe 6 of wickedness! The tongue encamps in the midst of our organs, plundering the whole body, and firing the course of creation, and is set on fire by hell! For every species of wild beasts, as 7 well as birds, with reptiles and fishes, has been tamed and can be tamed by the human genius; but no men have 8 ever been able to tame the tongue!—an undisciplined evil, full of deadly poison. With it we praise the Lord 9 and Father, and with it we curse men, created in the likeness of God. From 10 the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brethren, it is not right for these things to be so. Does the 11 fountain from the same cleft discharge both the sweet and the bitter? Can a 12 fig-tree, my brethren, produce olives, or a vine, figs? Neither can salt produce sweet water.

The Proof of Wisdom.

Who is wise and intelligent among 13 you? Let him exhibit it by the nobility of his conduct, with unobtrusive wisdom. But if you have 14 bitter emulation and rivalry in your hearts, however, do not boast nor lie against this truth. Such philosophy 15 is not that descending from above; but is, on the contrary, earthly, animal, demoniacal. For where 16 jealousy and rivalry exist, there are also discord, and all vile practices. But the wisdom which is from above 17 is first pure, then peaceable, decorous, docile, full of pity and fruits of beneficence; not censorious, unpretentious. And the fruit of 18 righteousness is sown in peace, for the benefit of those who cultivate peace.

The Origin of Dissensions.

Whence come wars? and whence 4 come contentions among you? Are they not from your vices fighting in your organs? You lust for, and possess not; you murder, and quarrel; you fight and war, but cannot attain,

You do not possess, because you do not pray; you pray and do not receive, because you are praying wickedly, in order that you may expend upon your vices. You adulteresses! do you not know that the friendship of the world is hostility to God? Whoever therefore determines to become a friend of the world, renders himself an enemy of God. Or, do you think that the scripture says unmeaningly—The spirit which has established itself within us is strongly inclined towards malice? But He gives a more valuable gift; therefore He says, GOD REPELS THE HAUGHTY, BUT GIVES A GIFT TO THE LOWLY.¹

Subject yourselves therefore to God; but repel the Devil, and he will fly from you. Draw near to God, and He will draw near to you.

Wash your hands, you sinners; and purify your hearts, you dissemblers.

Be distressed, and mourn, and weep. Let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to dejection. Humble yourselves in the presence of the Lord, and He will exalt you.

Do not, brethren, speak against one another. The slanderer of his brother defames the law, and judges the law. But if you criticise the law, you are not a doer of law, but a critic. The Law-giver and Judge are the same—the One who is able to save and to destroy; but you—who are you, to condemn your neighbour?

A Warning against Presumption.

Come on now, you who say, "To-day or to-morrow we will go to that city, and stay there a year; and we will trade and become rich." You, however, are not certain where your life may be to-morrow. For you are a vapour, visible for awhile, and then disappearing. Instead of that, you ought to say, "If the Lord should decide it, we shall both live and do this, or that." But now you boast about your ambitions. All such boasting is wicked.

If you therefore know how to do well, and fail to do it, that itself is sin.

Warning to the Rich.

Now, come on, you rich! weep and howl over your hastening miseries! Your hoarded wealth is rotten; and your mantles have become moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver are rusted through; and their rust shall become an evidence against you, and will consume your flesh. You have heaped up as for a fire at the end of your days. Listen! the wages of the workmen who have cultivated your estates, fraudulently detained by you, cries; and the complaints of the reapers have entered the ears of the LORD OF HOSTS.

You have luxuriated, and taken your ease upon the earth; you have nursed your hearts in a time of festivity. You have convicted, you have murdered the Just One. He did not resist you!

The near Approach of the Lord Jesus.

However, have patience, brethren, until the appearance of the Lord. Look at the farmer, expecting the precious produce of the earth, waiting for it patiently, until he may receive both the early and the late. Be you also patient; fortify your hearts: because the appearance of the Lord approaches. Do not, brethren, complain against one another; so that you may not be condemned. See! the Judge has already stationed Himself at the gates! Take, brethren, as a model of suffering, and of patience, the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. We consider them happy for having borne miseries. You have heard of suffering Job; and you see the object of the Lord, that the Lord is very pitiful and merciful.

On False-swearing.

But before all, my brethren, do not swear, neither by the heavens, nor by the earth, nor any other kind of oath: but let your yes be yes; and your no, no; so that you may not fall under a sentence.

Sundry Personal Exhortations.

Is any one among you in distress? Let him pray. Is any one happy? Let him sing praise. Is any one among you sick? Let him summon the elders of the assembly; and they will pray over him, applying to him oil with the power of the Lord, and the prayer of faith will save the one who is sick, and the Lord will raise him; and if he should have committed sin, it shall be removed from him.

Confess therefore your faults to one another, and plead for one another;

in order that you may be cured. Very powerfully productive is the prayer of a righteous man. Elijah was a man who was suffering like us, and with a prayer he prayed earnestly that it might not rain; and no rain fell upon the land for the space of three years and six months. And he earnestly prayed again; when the sky gave rain and the land yielded its produce.

My brethren, if any of you should stray from the truth, and one can turn him back; let him know that he who turns a sinner from his wandering way will save that soul from death, and prevent a multitude of sins.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PETER.

General Greeting.

1 PETER, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the chosen strangers of the Dispersion, in Pontus, Galatia, 2 Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, according to the predetermination of a Father God, for a purification of spirit through obedience and a sprinkling of blood of Jesus Christ: May blessing and peace be abundant to you!

The Ministry of the Prophets.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ—Who, with His boundless pity, has caused us to be born again into a living hope—by means of the resurrection of Jesus 4 Christ from among the dead—of an inheritance incorruptible, and spotless, 5 and unfading, guarded in the heavens for you, by the power of God,—you who look out through faith to a salvation ready to be revealed at the end of time. 6 On which account you should be exceedingly glad; although now, if need be, for a short space of time you are 7 grieved by numerous trials: so that the testing of your faith, far more precious than gold which perishes, although tested by fire, may be found in approval, rectification, and honour and distinction at the revelation of Jesus Christ. 8 Whom having not seen you love; upon Whom although not yet having looked, you believe, and rejoice with unspeakable and anticipating delight, looking out for the object of your faith— 10 salvation of souls. Concerning which salvation, the prophets, prophesying of this gift to you, diligently searched as 11 to Whom, or what period of time, the Spirit of Christ within them pointed, when He testified beforehand the sufferings surrounding the Messiah, and the glories after them; to whom it was revealed that not for themselves, but for you, they were messengers of things, which are now proclaimed to you, by those who evangelize you by a Holy Spirit sent from heaven, into which the angels desired to examine.

Incitement to Holiness of Life.

Therefore, girding up the loins of 13 your understanding, perfectly sober, hope for the gift that is to be presented to you at the revealing of Jesus Christ. As children of obedience, not conforming yourselves to your lusts, as you formerly did in your ignorance; but rather as your Commander is holy, 15 you also should become holy in all your conduct. Because it is written, 16 BECOME HOLY, FOR I MYSELF AM HOLY.¹ If then you are commanded 17 by a Father, Who without flattery judges according to the work of each, conduct yourselves for the time of your service in reverence. Knowing 18 that you were not redeemed from the slavery of your ancestral follies by means of corruptible silver or gold; but by means of the precious blood 19 of Christ, like of an unblemished and spotless lamb; provided, indeed, before the foundation of the world, but 20 manifested at the extremity of the ages for the sake of you, who through 21 Him are believers in God, Who raised Him from the dead and invested Him with rectification, so that, your faith and hope might be in God.

Reasons for a Holy Life.

- 22 Having purified your lives by your obedience to the truth, with sincere brotherly affection love one another earnestly from the heart; having been regenerated, not from a corruptible source, but from an incorruptible, by means of a message from a living and enduring God. For

- 24 ALL FLESH IS LIKE GRASS,
AND ALL ITS GLORY LIKE THE FLOWER OF GRASS;
THE GRASS WITHERS,
AND THE FLOWER FADES;
25 BUT THE PURPOSE OF THE LORD
ENDURES FOR EVER.¹

And this purpose is that which has been proclaimed to you as good news.

- 2 Consequently, abandoning all vice, and deceit, and pretence, and envy, and all slandering, crave like newborn babes the rational, unadulterated milk, so that by it you may be growing up to salvation; if you have tasted that the Lord is good; to Whom coming—a living Stone, rejected indeed by men, but approved, distinguished in the presence of God
5 —yourselves also should be built up like living stones into a spiritual house, into a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to 6 God through Jesus Christ. Because it is said in Scripture:

LOOK! I WILL PLACE IN ZION A CHOSEN STONE,—
A PRECIOUS ANGLE-POINT.
AND WHOEVER TRUSTS ON IT SHALL NEVER BE ASHAMED.²

- 7 For those of you, therefore, who trust, He is the Distinguished; but to the unbelieving,

A STONE WHICH THE BUILDERS
REJECTED,—
THAT HAS BECOME THE HIGHEST ANGLE-POINT.³

- 8 and,
A STONE OF STUMBLING,
AND A ROCK OF OFFENCE;⁴
Being careless, they stumble at the message for which they were intended.
9 But you are a SELECT RACE, A ROYAL PRIESTHOOD, A HOLY NATION, A PEOPLE FOR ACTION;⁵ so that you may display the virtues of Him Who called you out of darkness into His wonderful light; who once were NOT A PEOPLE, but are now A PEOPLE OF GOD; who WERE UNFITTED, but have NOW SECURED COMPASSION.¹

I implore you, friends, as lodgers and travellers, to refrain from sensual desires, which war against the soul; keeping the course of your life bright among the heathen; so that although they slander you as profligate, they may, attracted by your brilliant conduct, praise God whilst witnessing it.

The Duties of Citizenship.

Be subject to every human institution for the sake of the Lord: whether to a king, as supreme; or to governors, as sent by him for the punishment of criminals, and for the approval of the well-conducted. Because this is the intention of God, to check by means of well-doing the senselessness of ignorant men. As free men, however, though not using your freedom as a pretext for vice, but like servants of God. Honour all; love the brotherhood; reverence God; honour the king.

The Duty of Servants.

Domestics should obey their masters with all respect; not only the benevolent and considerate, but also even the perverse. For this is pleasing, if through a consciousness of God, any one endures pain, suffering it unjustly. For what honour is it, if when you do wrong, and are punished, you bear it patiently? If, however, when you do right, and yet suffer, you bear it patiently, this brings honour to God.

Christ the Example of the Believer.

For you were chosen for this purpose; and Christ also suffered for you, leaving a pattern for you, in order that you might follow in His footsteps: WHO PRACTISED NO SIN; NEITHER WAS THERE DECEIT FOUND IN HIS MOUTH; Who, when insulted, insulted not in return; while suffering, He never threatened, but surrendered Himself to the righteous Judge; Who Himself carried our sins in His own body upon the tree, so that, abandoning those sins, we might live for righteousness; BY WHOSE WOUNDS YOU WERE HEALED. For 25 you were then LIKE WANDERING SHEEP;¹ but now you have returned to the Shepherd and Guardian of your souls.

Matrimonial Department.

- 3 Wives should likewise be obedient to their own husbands; so that should any be careless about the Message, they may, apart from the Message, be gained by the conduct of their wives;
- 2 observing your blameless conduct
- 3 with esteem -you, whose adornment should not be merely the external, such as plaited hair, the wearing of golden trinkets, or decoration in
- 4 putting on of dress; but rather the unseen woman of the heart, with the incorruptible beauty of a kind and gentle spirit, which is very precious
- 5 in the sight of God. Because formerly this was the way in which the holy women, who hoped in God, adorned themselves, being obedient to their
- 6 own husbands; as Sarah, for instance, obeyed Abraham, calling him master; whose daughters you may now become by well-doing, and by not being frightened by any passionate emotion.
- 7 In the same way, the husbands should live sensibly with them, assigning honour to their feminine nature, as to a weaker vessel, but as equal inheritors of the gift of life; so that your prayers may not be hindered.

Exhortation to Godliness.

- 8 Finally, let there be unanimity of mind: be sympathetic, friendly, compassionate, gentle; not returning wrong for wrong, nor abuse for abuse; but, on the contrary, speaking pleasantly; because your object in being called was that you may inherit
- 10 blessing: for,
- WHOEVER DESIRESTOENJOY LIFE,
AND SEE PLEASANT TIMES,
LET HIM RESTRAIN HIS TONGUE
FROM ANNOYANCE, AND HIS LIPS FROM SPEAKING
DECEIT;
- 11 AND LET HIM TURN ASIDE FROM VICE, AND DO GOOD;
LET HIM SEARCH FOR PEACE, AND FOLLOW IT.
- 12 FOR THE EYES OF THE LORD ARE UPON THE RIGHTEOUS, AND HIS EARS ATTENTIVE TO THEIR PRAYER;

BUT THE LORD IS OPPOSED TO THE DOERS OF EVIL.¹

And who will injure you, if you¹³ become zealous for beneficence? If¹⁴ you suffer, however, for the sake of righteousness, you are happy; and

DREAD NOT THEIR TERROR, NEITHER BE TROUBLED;

BUT LOVE THE LORD CHRIST IN¹⁵ YOUR HEARTS.²

Ready at all times to give a defence to all who assail you concerning the reason of the hope that is in you, yet with gentleness and respect; having a clear conscience, so that¹⁶ those wantonly insulting you, although they libel, may be ashamed by your blameless conduct in Christ. For, if the will of God so decides, it¹⁷ is better to suffer for right-doing than for wrong-doing. Because even Christ¹⁸ once suffered for sinners, the Just for the unjust, so that He might bring you to God; having been physically put to death, but spiritually living; in that¹⁹ condition He also went and preached to the spirits under guard who²⁰ were formerly apathetic, when the patience of God was waiting in the time of Noah, while an ark was in preparation, in which a few, that is to say, eight lives, were saved through water. And you are now saved by²¹ a corresponding baptism; not only by a removal of bodily uncleanness; but, on the contrary, the acquisition of a pure conscience toward God, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, who is at the right²² hand of God, having proceeded into heaven, subjecting to Him angels, governments, and powers.

Since then the Messiah suffered in⁴ the body, arm yourselves also with a similar intention, because he who has suffered physically casts off sins: ² so that his remaining time in the body he no more lives for human lusts, but for a Divine purpose. For to have³ been practising in the past time the wishes of the heathen is sufficient; proceeding in excesses, lusts, love of drinking, revellings, drunkenness, and lawless idolatries—in which⁴ excess of profligacy they, while reviling you, wonder that you do not join them; but they must render⁵ an account to Him Who is ready to judge the living and dead. For this⁶ reason the good news was preached also to the dead; so that they might certainly be judged with men physically, but might live spiritually with God.

7 But the completion of all approaches. Therefore be prudent, and watchful in prayer. Above all else, having earnest affection among yourselves; because LOVE HIDES A MULTITUDE OF SINS.¹ Be friendly to one another, without grumbling. Let every one, according to the gift which he has received, employ it for the good of others, as faithful stewards of the manifold gift of God. If any one can speak, let it be of the thoughts of God; if any one can minister, let it be with the power which God has bestowed: so that in all God may be honoured through Jesus Christ, Whose is the rectification and the dominion throughout the eternal ages. Amen.

The Fiery Trial.

12 Do not be astonished, friends, that a fiery trial has come upon you, as though an unexpected affair had surprised you: but rather rejoice that you are sharers in the sufferings of the Messiah; so that at the unveiling of His rectification, you may rejoice with exultation. If you are abused for the sake of the name of Christ, you are happy! because that which is the Majesty, and that which is the Spirit of God, has rested upon you.

15 But let none of you be convicted as a murderer, as a thief, as a profligate, or as a libeller; but if as a Christian, do not be ashamed, but thank God for that name. Because the right place to begin the judgment is at the house of God; and if first at us, what will be the end of those disobedient to the good news of God? And if the righteous are to be saved with difficulty, where can the impious and sinful appear? So then, let those who suffer according to the will of God, while practising what is good, confide their souls to a Reliable Builder.

Peter's Exhortation to the Shepherds.

5 I therefore entreat you old men, as an old man, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a participator of the majesty which is to be revealed, shepherd the flock of God among which you are exercising the oversight, not unwillingly, but willingly; not for the sake of sordid gain, but from good disposition; not as domineering over the charge entrusted to you, but making yourselves examples to the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd makes His appearance, you shall be rewarded with the un fading crown of honour.

In the same way, let the young be submissive to the old. And be all bound together with gentle-mindedness; because

GOD RESISTS THE HAUGHTY,
BUT ENDOWS THE GENTLE WITH A GIFT.¹

Humble yourselves therefore under the powerful hand of God, so that in due time He will exalt you; casting all your anxiety upon Him, because He Himself cares for you.

Be temperate; be on the alert. Your adversary, the Devil, roams about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. Take a firm stand against him by the faith, knowing that the same sufferings and discipline have perfected your brethren.

And the God of all blessing, Who has called you to His eternal majesty in Christ, after you have suffered a little while, will Himself perfect, establish, strengthen you. To Him the dominion throughout the eternal ages. Amen.

The Conclusion.

Through Silvanus, who is, I consider, your faithful brother, I have briefly written, exhorting and testifying that this is a true gift from God, in which you stand.

Those in Babylon chosen with you, salute you; as well as Mark my son. Embrace one another with a kiss of affection. Peace be with all those of you in Christ.

(This Epistle was probably written from Babylon about 64 or 65 A.D.)

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PETER.

The Object of the Divine Promises.

- 1 SIMON PETER, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those equally honoured with us to share a faith in righteousness from our God and Saviour Jesus Christ :
- 2 May blessing and peace be abundant to you, with knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord.
- 3 Seeing that His Divine power has presented to us everything for the purpose of life and piety, through the knowledge of Him, who called us to
- 4 His own majesty and virtue ; through which He has endowed us with the greatest and most honourable promises ; so that through these you might become participators of a Divine nature, having escaped from that corruption which exists in the world
- 5 owing to depraved desire. Therefore, for this reason, use every effort, having enlisted, to drill yourselves by the faith in virtue, and by the virtue in
- 6 intelligence ; and by the intelligence in self-restraint ; and by the self-restraint in obedience ; and by the
- 7 obedience in piety ; and by the piety in brotherly kindness ; and by the brotherly kindness in love. For if you possess and progress in these, you will
- 8 neither be dilatory nor ineffective when reviewed by our Lord Jesus
- 9 Christ. For whoever is not disciplined in these, is blind, short-sighted, choosing to forget the pruning he has received from his old errors.
- 10 Consequently, brothers, earnestly work to make your calling and enrolment sure : for having done these things, you will never at any time
- 11 falter ; for thus you will be fully equipped for your march into the eternal Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Reiterated Admonitions.

- 12 I will in consequence be careful at all times to remind you about these things, although you are instructed and stand firm in the revealed truth.
- 13 Yet I consider it right, as long as I am in this little tent, to arouse you into a remembrance ; knowing that 14 the striking of my tent is near, as our Lord Jesus Christ disclosed to me. Therefore, I will also endeavour to 15 have each one of you, after my departure, to be made to remember these matters.

Because we were not following 16 cunningly-devised fables when we informed you of the power and revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ ; but, on the contrary, we were eye-witnesses of His grandeur. For having received 17 from God His Father honour and splendour, a Voice was sent to Him from the Supreme Majesty, declaring, " This is My Son, My Beloved, in Whom I have delighted ! " And we 18 heard this Voice coming from heaven when we were with Him upon the holy hill. And we possess in this 19 prophetic message a firm support, to which you will do well to pay attention, as to a lamp shining in a gloomy place, until the day dawns, and the Morning Star arises in your hearts : recognising, in the first place, that 20 no prophecy of Scripture is of a single meaning. For prophecy was 21 never a result of human design ; on the contrary, men spoke under the influence of a Holy Spirit sent from God.

The Certain Doom of the Wicked.

But false prophets also came among 2 the people, just as there will be false teachers among yourselves, who will shuffle in destructive errors, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing speedy destruction upon themselves. Many also will follow 2 them in their debaucheries, on account of whom the Way of the truth will be defamed ; and in greed they 3 will trade upon you with a fine flow of delusive reasons. Their conviction, long recorded, will not be deferred ; and their destruction will not be postponed. For if God did not 4 spare sinning angels, but remitted them to chains of blackness of darkness, to await judgment ; and did not 5 spare the ancient world—but preserved Noah, the eighth man, a herald of righteousness—crushing a world of the wicked by a downrush from above; and overwhelmed the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah by ashes of fire, leaving them as a warning to future iniquity; and rescued righteous Lot, who was agonized by the conduct of those men of unbridled profligacy—for that righteous man, by seeing and hearing when living among them, had his blameless soul tortured from day to day by reason of their lawless doings: but the Lord knows how to rescue the pious from trial; but He keeps the wicked for a day of judicial punishment, but especially those who seek after sensuality, in a rage for pollution despising restraint. Audacious, self-willed, they are not even afraid of libel glories; whereas angels, who excel in might and power, do not bring a railing indictment against them. But these, like unreasoning animals produced naturally for capture and destruction, abusing what they do not understand, will also be destroyed in their own corruptions, receiving the due reward of their profligacy. These delight to revel in the luxury which lasts but a day—spots and blemishes, luxuriating in their deceits, while they share your hospitality. They have eyes full of adultery, and unrestrained sin; alluring unsteady souls, they have a heart practised in greed; they are wandering children of a curse; having left the straight path, following in the way of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of wickedness: but he was convicted by his own misdeeds; a speechless animal speaking with a human voice, restrained the madness of the prophet. These are waterless wells; tempest-tossed fogs; for whom the gloom of darkness is reserved. For they speak inflated with folly, seducing into profligate desires—their former error—those who were almost escaping from them; promising them liberty, while they are themselves the slaves of corruption. For by whoever a man is overpowered, he must slave to him. If, however, having escaped from the defilements of the world through the comprehension of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again recaptured, then their last condition has become worse than the first. For it would have been better for them never to have comprehended the path of righteousness, than, having known it, to turn back from the holy command delivered to them. It has come to this, as the true text prover describes them:

A DOG RETURNS TO HIS OWN VOMIT;¹
and a washed pig to its wallowing in the mire.

The Irreparable Word of God.

Now then, friends, I have written this second letter to you, in which I stir you up to remember with clear intelligence to be mindful of the statements previously uttered by the holy prophets, and of your apostles, of the commands of the Lord and Saviour. You should first recognise this, that during the latter times deceivers will come with deception, gratifying their own passions, and asking, "Where is the promise of His appearing? for since the forefathers went to sleep, everything continues the same from the beginning of the creation." For they willingly suffer to be hid from them this reason, that by the intention of God the skies existed from of old, and the earth with water above and water below, arranged for the purpose of God, by means of which the then existing world perished, by the water having rushed down. But the present earth and skies are treasured up by His intention, reserved for fire at a period of judgment and destruction of wicked men.

But do not allow this one fact to escape you, friends, that with the Lord a single day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as a single day. The Lord does not delay His promise, as some regard delaying; but extends His patience towards you, desiring that none should be lost, but that all should come to a change of mind. But the day of the Lord will approach like a thief, when the skies will pass away with a crash, and their constituents will be dissolved by heat; while the earth and what is upon it will be re-organized.² All having to be thus dissolved, what ought you to be like in regard to pure conduct and piety,

² Some of the old MSS. read, "will be made known," "burnt up," "laid bare."

12 expecting and hastening on the appearance of the Day of God!—during which the burning skies will be dissolved, and their constituents melted
 13 by heat; yet according to His promise, we look for new skies and a new earth, in which righteousness will dwell.
 14 Consequently, friends, seeing that you are expecting these, be in earnest to be found in peace by Him, spotless
 15 and blameless; and you will secure the enduring salvation from our Lord. As also our dear brother Paul, according to the wisdom granted to him, 16 has written to you; as, indeed, in many letters he has spoken about these subjects—in which are some things difficult to understand, which the ignorant and the fickle distort, as also they do the other scriptures to their own destruction.

You therefore, friends, knowing 17 this beforehand, be on your guard; lest, being misled by the error of the lawless, you fall away from your own standard. But progress in goodness 18 and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. With Him is the rectification both now and in eternal life. Amen.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE

JOHN.¹

1 THE old man to the Chosen Lady and her children, whom I love in truth—and not myself alone, but also all those who recognise the truth—for the sake of the truth which dwells in us, and will exist with us in eternity: Where will be with us blessing, mercy, peace with God the Father, and with Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in truth and love.
 4 I was greatly delighted at having found some of your children walking in truth, as fully as we received instruction from the Father. And now I beg of you, Princess, not as if writing
 5 a new command to you, but that which we possessed from the beginning—that we should love one another.
 6 And this is love—that we should conduct ourselves according to His commands. That is the command which you learnt from the first, so 7 that you should walk by it. Because many misleaders have gone out into the world, some not acknowledging Jesus Christ to have come bodily. This is the misleader and the antagonist of Christ.

Take care of yourselves, so that you 8 may not lose what we are working out, but may receive a perfect reward. Whoever assumes the lead among 9 you, and continues not in the teaching of the Messiah, possesses not God. Whoever continues in that teaching, he possesses both the Father and the Son. If any one comes to you, and 10 does not bring this doctrine, neither admit him to your house nor wish him success; for whoever wishes him 11 success, himself participates in his wicked doings.

Having a great deal to communicate 12 to you, I have decided to do so not by paper and ink; but I hope to come to you, and speak by word of mouth, so that your pleasure may be complete.

The children of your chosen sister 13 sends you regards.

¹ NOTE.—For the First Epistle of St. John, see the end of his Gospel, where I have restored it to its proper place, it being really the Concluding Address of that Evangelist to his readers.—F. F.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE JOHN.

1 THE old man to his friend Gaius, whom I truly love.

2 I pray above all, friend, that you may be prosperous and well, just as your soul prospers; for I was exceedingly delighted when brethren came and testified of your truth, and how you walk in the truth. I have no greater delight than to learn that my children conduct themselves always in the truth.

5 You practise faith, friend, when you bestow benefits on the brotherhood who are even strangers; they testify of your friendship before the assembly, how well you have done in having helped them forward for the sake of God. Because for the sake of that Name they went out, taking nothing from the heathen. Such we ought therefore to support, so that we may be workers together for the truth.

9 I wrote something to the assembly; Diotrefes, however, who likes to make himself prominent among them, rejects us. If I come, therefore, I will make him remember his conduct, sneering at us with vile expressions; and indeed, not content with these, he did not receive the brethren, and hindered those who would, and expelled them from the assembly.

Do not, friend, imitate the bad, but the good. The well-doer is from God; the wrong-doer has not seen God. Demetrius is well reported of by all, as well as by the truth itself; yes, and we also give evidence, and you know that our evidence is reliable.

I have much to write to you; but I am unwilling to communicate to you with pen and ink. Very soon, however, I hope to see you, when we can speak by word of mouth. Peace to you. The friends send you regards. Remember the friends by name.

(These two short Letters were written from Ephesus, probably between the years 88 and 90 A.D.)

THE EPISTLE OF JUDE.

1 JUDE, a servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to the beloved by God the Father, and surely called in Jesus Christ: Mercy to you; and may peace and love be perfected.

3 Friends, while I was making every effort to write to you in reference to our common salvation, I was impelled to write to you, urging you to strive energetically for the faith which was once for all entrusted to the holy. For some impious men have crept in stealthily, who were of old prescribed for this crime, who pervert the gift of our God into profligacy, denying our only Master and Lord Jesus Christ.

Solemn Warning against Hypocritical Unbelievers.

I now desire to remind you, although you once knew it, that the people having been saved out of the land of Egypt, those who afterwards would not believe perished. Those angels also who did not guard their own dominion, but abandoned their proper duty, He reserves in custody in the spirit land, under darkness, for a great Day of Judgment. Like Sodom and Gomorrah, and their surrounding towns—who in the same way gave themselves up to prostitution, going after foul sensuality—are placed as a

8 warning, committed to a punishment of perpetual fire. In the same way, most certainly, these dreamers also corrupt the body; they despise government; they libel authorities. But the archangel Michael, in his encounter with the Devil, when he judicially argued respecting the body of Moses, dared not indulge in an abusive defence; but simply said, "The LORD reprove you." These, however, sneer at whatever they are not acquainted with; but in whatever they physically understand, like irrational animals, in these they corrupt themselves.

11 Woe to them! because they have marched the way of Cain, and with error they have rushed for the wages of Balaam, and shall perish in the revolt of Korah. These, when they associate with you in your love-feasts are offences, gorging themselves without reverence; rainless clouds, tossed about by the winds; fruitless, autumn-withering trees, twice felled, uprooted; wild raging sea-waves, foaming out their own disgrace; wandering stars, for whom the gloom of darkness is reserved for ever.

14 Respecting these, indeed, Enoch, the seventh from Adam, also foretold, saying: "Behold, a Master will come with His holy myriads, to execute judgment upon all; and He will convict all the impious of their impious actions of which they have been notoriously guilty, and for all the perversities which impious sinners have uttered against Him." These are inveterate fault-finders, proceeding in accordance with their own inordinate desires; their mouth is full of arrogance; they are flattering admirers for the sake of gain.

But you, friends, remember the 17 instructions which were previously uttered by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; how they told you that 18 in the latter time scoffers should appear, seeking after their own impious passions. These are the 19 agitators—sensual, not possessed of a soul. But you, friends, building 20 up yourselves upon your most holy faith, praying with a holy spirit, guard yourselves in the love of God, 21 expecting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ in life eternal. Some 22 indeed pity, with fear; some indeed reprove—making a difference; but 23 pitying, save from the fire; hating even the clothing which has been polluted with sensuality.

Now to Him Who is able to guard 24 you from stumbling, and to support you blameless before the presence of His majesty with exquisite delight, to 25 the only God our Saviour, honour, majesty, dominion, and might, before all time, now, and throughout all the ages, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

(This letter was written in Palestine probably about the year 65 or 66 A.D. The Apostle Peter evidently had either read it, or had a copy before him when penning his own second Letter.)

THE REVELATION

BY

JOHN THE DIVINE.

Introduction.

1 THE Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God granted to Him, to inform His servants what must speedily happen; and He communicated it by sending through His 2 Messenger to His servant John: who gave testimony of the message of God, and the evidence of Jesus Christ, 3 which things he had seen. Happy are the reader and the hearers of this prophecy who observe its records; for the time is at hand!

Greeting to the Assemblies in Asia-Minor.

John to the seven assemblies which 4 are in Asia-Minor: Blessing and peace to you from the One Who is, and Who was, and Who comes; and from the

- seven Spirits which are before His throne; and from Jesus Christ, the True Witness, the Bringer-forth from the dead, and the Commander of the kings of the earth. To Him Who loved us, and released us from our sins by His blood—and has established us a Kingdom, priests to God and His Father—to Him the majesty and the might, throughout the ages. Amen.
- 7 Look! He comes with the clouds; and every eye shall look on Him, and those who pierced Him; and over Him shall all the tribes of the earth lament. Yes, certainly.
- 8 "I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord, "the God Who exists, and Who was, and Who comes—the All-ruler."

The Vision in Patmos.

- 9 I, John, your brother, and participant in the affliction, and kingship, and suffering of Jesus, was in the island known as Patmos, on account of the message of God and my testimony for Jesus. I became inspired on the Lord's day; and I heard a loud voice behind me, resembling a trumpet-blast, saying: "What you see, write in a book, and dispatch to the seven assemblies—to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamos, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."
- 12 I accordingly turned to see the voice which spoke to me. And having turned, I observed seven golden lampstands; and in the centre of the lampstands, one like to the Son of Man, clad in a long robe, and fastened at the waist with a golden belt. His head and His hair were white, like white wool, like snow; and His eyes like a flame of fire; and His feet like shining brass, when melting in a crucible; and His voice like the sound of many waters; and holding in His right hand seven stars; and a sharp, double-edged sword drawn from its sheath; and His face was as when the sun shines in his strength.
- 17 And when I saw Him, I fell at His feet as dead. Then He placed His right hand upon me, saying, "Fear not! I am the First and the Last, and the Living—and I became dead: yet behold, I am living in the sternities of the eternities—and possess the keys of Death and of the spirit-land.
- 19 Write therefore what you have seen, what is, and what will come after these. The mystery of the seven stars which you saw upon my right hand, and the seven golden lampstands, the seven stars are messengers of seven assemblies; and the seven lampstands are the seven assemblies."

To the Assembly in Ephesus.

To the messenger to the assembly 2 in Ephesus write:

"Thus says the Controller of the seven stars by His right hand; Who walks in the centre of the seven golden lampstands; I know your position, 2 your industry, and your patience; and that you cannot endure those who are wicked; that you have put to the test those who have called themselves apostles, and are not, and have found them false; and you have had patience, 3 and have suffered because of My Name, and have not failed. I have, 4 however, a charge against you—that you have forsaken your first love! Remember, therefore, from where you 5 have fallen, and repent, and practise your former works; failing which, and unless you alter your mind, I will come and remove your lampstand from its place. You have 6 this to your account, however, that you hate the practices of the corrupters of the people, which I Myself also hate.

"Whoever has an ear, let him listen 7 to what the Spirit says to the assemblies. To the conqueror I will give to eat from the tree of life which grows in the garden of God."

To the Assembly in Smyrna.

To the messenger to the assembly 8 in Smyrna write:

"Thus says the First and the Last, Who became dead, yet lives: I know 9 your affliction and poverty—you are nevertheless rich—and the insolence of those who assert themselves to be Jews, and are not, but are, on the contrary, a synagogue of Satan. Never 10 fear what you are about to endure; for the Devil is about to imprison some of you, in order that you may be tried; and for ten days you shall be tortured by affliction. Be faithful even to death, and I will grant you the crown of life.

"Whoever has an ear, let him listen 11 to what the Spirit says to the assemblies. The conqueror shall never be injured by the second death."

To the Assembly in Pergamos.

12 To the messenger to the assembly in Pergamos write:

"Thus says the possessor of the sharp double-edged sword: I know where you dwell—where the throne of Satan is. Yet you have preserved My Name, and have not denied My faith, even in the time of Antipas My witness, My faithful one, who was killed among 14 you, where Satan dwells. I have nevertheless a little against you, because you have there some who are holders of the teaching of Balaam, who instructed Balak to place a stumbling-block before the sons of Israel, by eating idol-offerings and indulging in 15 fornication. Thus you have also some who are holders of the teaching like that of the corrupters of the people.

16 Berepentant, therefore; failing which, I will speedily come to you, and I will wage war against them with the sword which is in my sheath.

17 "Whoever has an ear to hear, let him listen to what the Spirit says to the assemblies. To the conqueror I will give some of the hidden manna; and I will give him a white token, and a new name inscribed upon the token, which none but the receiver can understand."

To the Assembly in Thyatira.

18 To the messenger to the assembly in Thyatira write:

"Thus says the Son of God, Who has eyes like a flame of fire, and His feet like burnished brass; I know your position, your love, and faith, and service, and endurance; and that your latter efforts are in advance of the first.

20 Against you, however, I have to say that you allow that woman Jezebel, who palms herself off as a prophetess, to teach and pervert My servants to 21 fornicate, and to eat idol-offerings. I have, however, given her an opportunity to repent; yet she has no desire
22 to give up her fornication. Look!—I will throw her into a bed, and those committing adultery with her I will visit with severe affliction, if they do not turn away their minds from her practices. I will also kill her followers

23 by death; and all the assemblies shall recognise that I am the Searcher of the minds and hearts; and I will reward each one of you according to your 24 doings. To you I say, however—to the rest that are in Thyatira, as many as have not embraced this teaching, who have not explored the depths of Satan, as they say—I will impose no other burden upon you, except that which 25 you have; keep it safe until I come. The conqueror also, and the keeper 26 of My institutions to the end—to him I will give a governorship over the heathen. He shall shape them with 27 an iron rod, as vessels of clay are tempered together; as I Myself was instructed by My Father. And I will 28 present to him the morning star.

"Whoever has an ear, let him listen 29 to what the Spirit says to the assemblies."

To the Assembly in Sardis.

To the messenger to the assembly in 3 Sardis write:

"Thus says the Master of the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars: I know your position, that you are reputed to live; yet you are dead. Be 3 come watchful, and henceforward stand firm, who are about to die; because I have found none of your actions perfected in the presence of My God. Remember, therefore, how you 3 were instructed and taught. Hold it, and reform! However, if you are not watchful, I shall come like a thief, and you shall not know the time of My coming upon you. Yet you have 4 a small number in Sardis, who have not soiled their clothing; and they shall walk with Me in white; because they are worthy. The conqueror shall 5 be arrayed in white robes; and I will not erase his name from the Book of Life; but I will acknowledge his name in the presence of My Father, and in the presence of His angels.

"Whoever has an ear, let him listen 6 to what the Spirit says to the assemblies."

To the Assembly in Philadelphia.

To the messenger to the assembly in 7 Philadelphia write:

"Thus says the Holy, the True, the Holder of the key of David, Who opens and none can shut, Who shuts and none can open. I know your position. 8 See! I have placed before you an open door, and none can shut it; although you have little power, yet you have guarded My message, and have not denied My Name. Therefore, I will 9 give those of the synagogue of Satan, who assert themselves to be Jews, and are not, but lie; I will make

- them come and bow before your feet, and know that I have loved you.
- 10 Because you have guarded My message resolutely, I also will guard you in the time of trial, which is coming upon all the inhabited world, to test those who dwell upon the
- 11 earth. I come soon. Secure what you possess, so that none may rob you of your crown. The conqueror—
- 12 I will make him a pillar in the sanctuary of My God, and he shall never be put out of it; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the New Jerusalem, which will descend out of heaven from My God, as well as My own new Name.
- 13 "Whoever has an ear, let him listen to what the Spirit says to the assemblies."

To the Assembly in Laodicea.

- 14 To the Messenger to the assembly in Laodicea write:
- "Thus says the Veritable, the Faithful and True Witness, the Beginner of God's Creation; I know your position, that you are neither cold nor hot. I wish that you were
- 16 either cold or hot. So because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will vomit you out of
- 17 My mouth. Because you say, 'I am rich, having become wealthy, and have need of nothing;' and do not know that you are wretched, pitiable,
- 18 poor, blind, and naked: I advise you to purchase from Me gold refined by fire, in order that you may become rich; and white clothing, so that you may clothe yourself, and prevent the shame of your nakedness being visible; and ointment to apply to your eyes, in order that you may see.
- 19 I examine and instruct as many as I love. Therefore be in earnest, and
- 20 change your mind. Attend! I stand at the door and knock; if any one should hear My voice, and will open the door, I will come in and dine with him, and he with Me. The conqueror—to him I will give the privilege of sitting with Myself on My throne, as I also conquered, and sat with My Father upon His throne.
- 22 "Whoever has an ear, let him listen to what the Spirit says to the assemblies."

Visions of Events which must come to pass.

After this I looked, and saw a door 4 opened in the heaven; and the Voice that I had first heard like a blast speaking with me said, "Come up here, and I will show you what must happen."

After that I immediately became in- 2 spired; and observed a throne set in the heaven, and upon the throne an Occupant. And the Occupant in ap- 3 pearance resembled in brilliancy a jasper and a sardius stone; and the throne was encircled with a rainbow like the sparkling of an emerald. And surrounding the throne were 4 twenty-four thrones; and seated upon these thrones twenty-four elders, clad in white robes, with golden crowns upon their heads. And from 5 out of the throne proceeded Lightnings, and Voices, and Thunders. And seven fiery lamps burned before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God. And in front of the throne 6 was like a transparent sea, resembling crystal; and in the centre of the throne, and around the throne, four Beings, full of intelligence as to what is before and what is behind. The first Being resembled a lion; the 7 second Being resembled a bullock; the third Being had the face as of a man; and the fourth Being resembled a flying eagle. And the four Beings, 8 each individually, possessed six wings around and beneath full of eyes. And they have not rest day nor night, exclaiming:

"Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty,
Who was, and Who is, and Who comes."

And when the Beings give praise, and 9 honour, and thanks, to the Occupant of the Throne, Who lives for ever and ever, the twenty-four elders 10 fall prostrate before the Occupant of the throne, and pay homage to Him Who lives for ever and ever; and they cast their crowns before the throne, exclaiming, "You, our Lord and our 11 God, are worthy to receive the majesty, and the honour, and the might; for You have created all things; and for Your purpose they were and are created."

I also saw upon the right hand of 6 the Occupant of the throne a book written inside and outside, sealed

 2 down with seven seals. And I observed a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the book, and to break its 3 seals?" And no one in the heaven, or upon the earth, or under the earth, was able to open the book, nor yet to 4 gaze upon it. And I wept much, because no one was found worthy to open the book, or even to gaze at it.
 5 But one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep; see! the Lion out of the tribe of Judah, of the Root of David, has succeeded in opening the book with its seven seals."
 6 I also saw in the intervening space, between the throne and the four Beings, and in the centre of the elders, a Lamb placed, as having been sacrificed, possessing seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the Spirits of God, sent out throughout 7 all the earth. And He came, and took it from the right hand of the 8 Occupant of the throne; and when He had taken the book, the four Beings and the twenty-four elders fell prostrate before the Lamb, each one having a harp, and golden censers full of perfumes, which are the 9 prayers of the holy. And they sang a new song, saying:
 "You are worthy to take the book,
 And to open its seals;
 Because You were sacrificed,
 And have purchased by Your blood for God
 From every tribe, and language,
 and people, and nation;
 10 And have made them into a kingdom and priests for our God;
 And they will reign over the earth."
 11 And I saw, and I heard a sound of many angels round about the throne, and of the Beings, and of the elders; and the number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands; shouting with a loud voice,
 12 "Worthy is the sacrificed Lamb to receive the power, and wealth, and wisdom, and might, and honour, and majesty, and celebrity!"
 13 And everything created existing in the heaven, and upon the earth, and under the earth, and upon the sea, and everything in them, I heard exclaiming, "To the Occupant of the throne and to the Lamb belong the fame, the honour, the majesty, and the might 14 for ever and ever." And the four

Beings said, "Amen." And the elders bowed and worshipped.

I also saw when the Lamb opened 6 one of the seven seals; and I heard one of the four Beings saying as with a thunder-peal, "Come!" And I 2 looked and saw a WHITE HORSE, and his rider had a bow; a crown was given to him; and he went out conquering, and to conquer.

And when He had opened the 3 second seal, I heard the second Being say, "Come!" And another, a RED 4 HORSE, came out; and his rider was empowered to take peace from the earth, and that they should murder each other; and a great sword was given to him.

And when He opened the third seal, 5 I heard the third Being say, "Come!" And I looked, and saw a BLACK HORSE; and his rider had a balance in his hand. Then I heard as a Voice 6 in the centre of the four Beings say, A chœnix¹ of wheat for a denarius,² and three chœnices of barley for a denarius; yet you must not interfere with the oil and the wine."

And when He opened the fourth 7 seal, I heard a voice from the fourth Being say, "Come!" And I looked, 8 and saw a LIVID HORSE; and the name of his rider was Death; and the Grave accompanied him. And over a quarter of the earth authority was granted to them to murder with sword, with famine, and with disease, as well as by means of the beasts of the field.

And when He opened the fifth 9 seal, I saw beneath the altar the souls of those who had been sacrificed on account of the Message of God, and for the testimony which they maintained; and with a loud voice, they 10 cried, exclaiming, "Until when, O Sovereign Lord, Holy and True, will You delay to judge and to punish the inhabitants of the earth for our blood?" But to each of them was 11 given a white robe; and they were told to rest for a short time longer, until the completion of their fellow-servants, and their brothers who were about to be murdered as they were.

I also saw when He opened the 12 sixth seal; when a great earthquake came; and the sun became black as

² Worth about two shillings and sixpence.

haircloth; and the full moon became 13 like blood; the stars of the sky also fell upon the earth, as a fig-tree drops its unripe fruit, when shaken by a 14 strong wind. And the sky vanished like a scroll when rolled up; and every mountain and island were re-15 moved from their places. And the kings of the earth, and the nobles, and the generals, and the wealthy, and the mighty, as well as every slave and free man, hid themselves in the caves 16 and among the rocks of the hills; and called to the hills and to the rocks,
 "Fall upon us, and hide us from the presence of the Occupant of the throne, and from the displeasure of the 17 Lamb; for the great day of their anger is come—and who is able to stand?"

7 After this I saw four angels stationed at the four quarters of the earth, restraining the four winds of the earth, so that no wind could blow upon the land, nor upon the sea; nor any tree stirred!

2 I also saw another angel ascend from the sunrise, holding the seal of the living God; and with a loud voice, he called to the four angels who were empowered to punish the 3 earth and the sea, exclaiming: "Do not injure the land, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their fore-heads."

4 I also heard the number of those who were sealed; one hundred and forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of the sons of Israel.

5 From the tribe of Judah twelve thousand sealed; from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand; from the 6 tribe of Gad twelve thousand; from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand;
 from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand; from the tribe of Manasseh
 7 twelve thousand; from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand; from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand; from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand;
 8 from the tribe of Zebulon twelve thousand; from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand; from the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand.

9 After this I looked, and saw a great multitude, whom no one could count, from every nation, and from tribes,
 and from peoples, and from languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with 10 palm-branches in their hands. And with a loud voice they chanted, exclaiming,

"The salvation is from our God,
 Whosits upon the throne,
 And from the Lamb."

Then all the angels standing around 11 the throne, and the elders, and the four Beings, also bowed before the throne, depressing their faces, and paid homage to God, exclaiming,
 "Amen! The fame, and the majesty, 12 and the wisdom, and the blessing, and the honour, and the power, and the might, are with our God, throughout eternity."

And one from among the elders 13 addressed me, saying, "As for these dressed in white robes—who are they?
 and where do they come from?"

"You know, my lord," I replied. 14

"These are they," he proceeded,
 "who came out of great affliction, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.
 Because of this they are before the 15 throne of God, and day and night they serve Him in His sanctuary; and the Occupant of the throne protects them.
 They shall never hunger again, nor 16 thirst again; neither shall the sun beat upon them, nor any heat: because the 17
 Lamb having ascended the midst of the throne shall shepherd them, and will lead them to springs of living water; and God will wipe every tear from their eyes."

And when He opened the seventh 8 seal, a silence came in the heaven for half an hour. Then I saw the seven 2 angels, those who stand in the sight of God; and seven trumpets were delivered to them.

And another angel came and stood 3
 at the altar, holding a golden censer; and abundance of incense was given to him, so that he might offer it with the prayers of all the holy upon the golden altar which is in sight of the throne.
 And the smoke of the incense, with the 4 prayers of the holy, ascended in the sight of God from the hand of the angel. And the angel having taken 5 the censer, he filled it with the fire from the altar, and threw it upon the earth; and there followed thunders, and voices, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

Now the seven angels who had the 6 seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

Then the first sounded; and hail and 7

fire followed, mixed with blood, and was poured upon the land: and the third of the land was burnt; and the third of the trees were burnt; and all green grass was burnt.

3 Then the second angel sounded; when a great burning fiery mountain was hurled into the sea: and the third of the sea became blood; and the third of the creatures which were in the sea, having life, died; and the third of the ships were wrecked.

10 Then the third angel sounded; and a burning star, like a great lamp, fell from the sky; and it fell upon the third of the rivers, and upon the springs of waters. The name of the star was called Wormwood; and the third of the waters became wormwood; and many of mankind died from the waters, because they were embittered.

12 Then the fourth angel sounded, and the third of the sun was struck, and the third of the moon, and the third of the stars: so that the third of them were darkened, and the third of the light of day itself could not shine, and the night the same.

13 Then I saw, and heard a single eagle flying in mid-air, exclaiming with a loud voice: "Woe! woe! woe! to the inhabitants of the earth from the remaining utterances of the trumpet-blast of the three angels who are about to sound."

8 Then the fifth angel sounded; and I saw a Star fall from the sky on to the land; and the key of the pit of the 2 abyss was given to him. And he opened the pit of the abyss: and smoke ascended from the pit like smoke from a great furnace; and the sun and the atmosphere were darkened from the 3 smoke of the pit. And from the smoke there came locusts upon the land; and they were endowed with power resembling the power possessed by 4 the scorpions of the earth. But they were commanded not to injure the herbage of the earth, nor any grass, nor any tree; but only those men who have not the mark of God upon 5 their foreheads. And it was granted to them not to kill them, but so that they should be tormented for five months. And their torture was like that of a scorpion when it stings a 6 man. During those days men will seek death, and not find it; they shall long to die, and death will fly from them!

7 Then the locusts took the appearance of cavalry disciplined for war:

and on their heads were crowns like gold; and their faces resembled those of men. But they had hair like the 8 hair of women; and their teeth were like those of lions. They also wore 9 breastplates like breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was like the roar of chariots, and many horses charging in battle. They have also 10 tails and stings like those of scorpions; and in their tails they possessed their power to torture mankind for five months. They had over them a king, 11 the Angel of the Abyss. In Hebrew his name is Abaddon; and in Greek he has a name, Apollyon.

The first woe is past. See! two 12 more woes come after it.

Then the sixth angel sounded. And 13 I heard a single voice from the horns of the golden altar in the sight of God, which said to the sixth angel, who 14 had the trumpet, "Liberate the four angels who are held captive beside the great river Euphrates." So they 15 liberated the four angels who had been prepared for the hour, and day, and month, and year, so that they might kill the third of mankind. And the 16 number of the regiments of the horsemen was two myriads of myriads. I heard the number of them. Then I 17 also saw in the vision that the horses and their riders had fiery breastplates, and purple and yellow. And the heads of the horses were like heads of lions; while fire, smoke, and sulphur, leaped from their mouths. By means of these 18 three plagues the third of mankind was killed; by the fire, the smoke, and the sulphur, which leaped from their mouths. For the power of the horses 19 is in their mouths, and in their tails: for their tails are like serpents possessing heads; and with them they wound.

But the remainder of mankind, 20 those who were not cut off by these plagues, failed to turn from the works of their own hands, so as not to worship the demons, and the idols of gold, silver, brass, stone, and wood, which cannot see, nor hear, nor walk; neither did they abandon their 21 murders, nor their poisonings, nor their fornications, nor their robberies.

Then I saw another mighty angel 10 coming down from the heaven, robed in a cloud. And the rainbow encircled his head; and his face like the sun; and his feet like pillars of fire; and 2 holding in his hand a very small open book. And he placed his right foot upon the sea, but his left upon the land; while, with a loud voice, resembling the roaring of a lion, he roared. When he had cried, the seven thunders also uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write; but I heard a voice from the heaven, saying, "Seal up what the seven thunders have spoken, and write it not." Then the angel whom I saw stationed upon the sea and upon the land lifted his right hand heavenward, and swore by Him living in the eternities of the eternities, Who created the heaven and what is in it, the earth and what it contains, and the sea and what is in it, that time should no longer intervene; but in the days of the speaking of the seventh angel, when he is ready to proclaim, then the secret of God will be completed according as He had promised to His own servants the prophets.

8 Then the voice which I heard from heaven again spoke with me, and said, "Go, take the little open book which is in the hand of the angel stationed upon the sea and upon the land." So I went to the angel, asking him to give me the very little book. And he said to me, "Take and eat it up; and it will embitter your stomach, although in your mouth it will be sweet as honey." I accordingly took the very small book from the hand of the angel, and ate it up: and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey; but when I had swallowed it, my stomach was in torture. Then they said to me, "You must again prophesy against races, and nations, and languages, and many kings."

11 Then he handed to me a reed like a measuring-rod, saying,
 "Rise up, and measure the sanctuary of God, and the altar, and those worshipping in it; but omit the outer court of the sanctuary, and measure it not, because it has been given to the nations; and they shall frequent the holy city forty-two months. And I will give to them My two witnesses, who shall preach for a period of one thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth.

"They are the two olive-trees, and the two lamps placed in the sight of the Lord of the earth.

5 "And if any one attempts to injure them, fire issues from their mouth, and will consume their enemies; and if any one should wish to injure them, thus he must be killed. These possess the power to close up the sky, so that no rain may fall during the period of their preaching; they have also power over the waters to convert them into blood, and to scourge the earth with every plague as often as they may desire. But when they shall have finished their evidence, the monster coming up from the abyss shall wage war with them, and conquer them, and slay them. And their corpses shall be exposed upon the market-place of the great city, which spiritually is named Sodom and Egypt; where also their Master was crucified. Then all persons from the races, and tribes, and languages, and nations, shall gaze upon their dead bodies for three days and a half, refusing to allow their corpses to be entombed. And the inhabitants of the earth will also exult over them and make merry; and they will send presents to one another; because these two prophets irritated the dwellers upon the earth."

But after three days and a half, a Spirit of Life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet; then great terror fell upon those who watched them. They heard a loud voice from heaven calling to them, "Come up here!" So they ascended into the heaven into the cloud; and their enemies watched them. At that very hour there was a mighty earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell, and seven thousand persons were killed in the earthquake; when the rest became terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

The second woe is past. The third woe now speedily approaches.

Then the seventh angel sounded; when loud voices were heard in heaven which said, "The kingdom of the world has become that of our Lord and His Messiah; and He shall reign in the eternities of the eternities."

And the twenty-four elders who sit upon their thrones in the sight of God fell upon their faces, and paid homage to God, exclaiming, "We give thanks to You, O Lord God, the Almighty, Who is, and Who was, because You have taken Your great power, and have reigned. And the heathen raged; but Your anger has come, and the time for the trying of the dead; and the rewarding of Your own servants, and the prophets, and the holy, and those who reverence Your Name, both the small and the great; and to destroy the destroyers of the earth."

- 19 Then the sanctuary of God in the heaven was opened; and the ark of His covenant was seen in the sanctuary. And there came lightnings, and voices, and thunders, and an earthquake, and a great hailstorm.
- 12 Afterwards a great sign appeared in heaven: a Woman clad with the sun; and the moon beneath her feet; and upon her head a crown of twelve stars.
- 2 And she was with child; and cried, agonized and tormented to bring forth.
- 3 Then another sign was seen in the heaven: a great red dragon, possessing seven heads and ten horns; and upon his head, seven crowns. And his tail swept down the third of the stars of the sky, and threw them upon the earth. And the dragon placed himself before the woman who was about to be delivered; so that when she was delivered he might devour her child.
- 5 And she bore a son, a man who will rule with an iron rod all the nations. And her child was conveyed up towards God, and towards His throne;
- 6 but the woman fled to the desert, where God had a retreat prepared for her, so that they might feed her for one thousand two hundred and sixty days.
- 7 There was also war in the heaven: Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought; but they could not conquer, nor was a place longer found for them in the heaven. And the great dragon was thrown out—the old serpent, called the Devil, and Accuser, the deceiver of the whole of the habitable world,—was thrown to the earth; and his angels were thrown with him.
- 10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, exclaiming, "Now has come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God; and the authority of His Messiah; because the accuser of our brethren, who day and night accused them before God, has been thrown out. And they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the fact of their evidence; and they loved not their lives better than death.
- 11 Exult therefore (O) heavens, and you who are sheltered in them! Woe to the earth, and to the sea!—because the Devil has descended to you, in great fury, knowing that his time is short."

But when the dragon found that he was thrown to the earth, he went in pursuit of the woman who had given birth to the man. The woman was, however, supplied with two wings of a great eagle, so that she might fly to the desert, to her retreat, where she was fed for a time, and times, and half a time; away from the presence of the serpent. But the serpent vomited water from his mouth like a river, after the woman, so that she might be drowned in the stream. But the earth helped the woman; and the earth opened her mouth, and sucked up the river vomited from the mouth of the dragon. So the dragon was furious with the woman, and proceeded to wage war with the rest of her offspring—those who observe the commands of God, and cling to the evidence of Jesus. And he stationed himself upon the sand of the sea.

Then I saw a wild beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard; but his feet as of a bear, while his mouth as the mouth of a lion. The dragon also invested him with his power, and his throne, and great authority. Yet one of his heads seemed as if wounded for death; but his deadly wound was healed. Therefore the whole earth was wondering after the beast; and they worshipped the dragon because he had transferred his authority to the beast; and worshipped the beast, saying, "Who is equal to the beast! who can wage war with him!" A mouth was also given to him, speaking boastfully and blasphemously; and he was endowed with authority to work for forty-two months. So he opened his mouth in slanders against God, to slander His name, and His tent, and those sheltered in heaven. He was also allowed to wage war with the holy, and to conquer them; and authority was granted to him over every tribe, and people, and language, and nation. And the whole of the inhabitants of the earth shall pay him homage, every one whose name has not been recorded in the Book of Life of the Lamb sacrificed from the foundation of the world. If any one hears, let him hear! If any one would capture, he will be captured. If any one murders with the sword, with the sword he must be murdered. Here is the endurance and the faith of the holy.

- 11 I also saw another beast come up out of the earth; who possessed two horns like a lamb, but spoke like a dragon. And he exercised the whole of the authority of the first beast in his sight. He also subdued the earth and its inhabitants to serve the first beast whose deadly wound had been healed. He also produced great wonders, so that he could make fire descend from the sky to the earth in the sight of mankind. And he could deceive the inhabitants of the earth by the wonders which he has been allowed to produce in the sight of the beast; commanding the dwellers upon the earth, that they must raise an image in honour of the beast who had received the sword-thrust, and yet lived. Permission was granted him to infuse breath into the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast could both speak and cause to be put to death whoever would not worship the image of the beast. He also forced all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the slaves, to receive a mark upon their right hand, or upon their forehead; so that no one should be allowed to buy or sell, except those possessing that mark, the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let whoever has intelligence adjudge the number of the beast: the number is a human one; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six.

- 14 I looked, and saw the Lamb standing upon the Mount Zion; and with Him one hundred and forty-four thousand, having His name, and the name of His Father, written upon their foreheads. Then I heard a voice from the heaven resembling the sound of many waters, and as the sound of loud thunder; then I heard the voice which was like harpers harping upon their harps. And they sang a new song before the throne, before the four Beings and the elders; but no one was able to learn that song, except the one hundred and forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth. These are they who were not polluted with women; for they are pure. These are the followers of the Lamb wherever He goes. These were purchased from among mankind, the first-fruit for God and for the Lamb. And in their mouth no falsehood was found; they are spotless.

Then I saw another angel flying in mid-air, having to announce the good tidings of an everlasting reward to those sitting upon the earth, and to every nation, and tribe, and language, and race; saying with a loud voice: "Reverence God, and give Him honour! because the hour of His judgment has arrived; therefore pay homage to the Maker of the heaven, and the earth, and sea, and springs of waters."

Then another, a second, followed, 8 exclaiming, "Babylon the great has fallen, has fallen! who made all the heathen drunk with the wine of her furious fornications!"

Then another angel, a third, followed them, saying with a loud voice: "If any one pays homage to the beast and his image, and receives a mark upon his forehead, or upon his hand, he shall also drink of the wine of the fury of God, mixed undiluted in the cup of His indignation; and he shall be tortured with Divine fire in the sight of the holy angels, and in the sight of the Lamb; and the smoke of their torture shall rise up to the eternities! And those who pay homage to the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name, shall have no rest day or night.

"However, there is consolation for the holy; those who keep the commands of God and the faith of Jesus."

I also heard a voice from heaven, 13 saying, "Write, Happy are the dead who die in the Lord from now." "Yes," says the Spirit, "for they shall rest from their labours; and their works accompany them."

Again I looked and saw a white cloud; and upon the cloud One sitting like a Son of Man, wearing a golden crown upon His head, and holding a sharp scythe in His hand.

Then another angel coming out from the sanctuary, called with a loud voice to the One sitting upon the cloud, "Send out your scythe, and reap: for harvest time has come; because the harvest of the earth is over-ripe."

So the One sitting upon the cloud swung His scythe over the ground; and the earth was reaped!

Then another angel came out of 17

the sanctuary which is in heaven, and he also had a sharp scythe.

18 Then another angel from the altar, who had authority over the fire, also spoke with a loud voice to him who had the sharp scythe, saying, "Swing out your sharp scythe, and gather the grapes from the vine of the earth; because her grapes are over-ripe."

19 So the angel swung his scythe over the earth, and stripped the vine of the earth, and threw into the great winepress of the anger of God. And the press was trodden outside the city; and blood issued from the press, up to the horses' bridles, for one thousand six hundred furlongs.

15 Then I saw another sign in the heaven, great and wonderful: seven angels having the last seven plagues; in which the anger of God will be completed.

2 Then I saw as if a glassy sea were mingled with fire; and the victors over the beast and over his image, and over the number of his name, standing by the glassy sea, having God's harps.

3 And they sang the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying:

"Great and wonderful are Your works!

Lord God Almighty!
Your ways are just and true,
King of the Eternities!

4 Who will not reverence You, O Lord,

And praise Your name?
For You alone are holy;
For all nations shall come and worship in Your sight;
Now Your righteous judgments are displayed!"

5 After this I saw, and the sanctuary of the tent of the testimony in the heaven was opened; and out of the sanctuary came the seven angels possessing the seven plagues, each clothed in pure shining linen, and bound about the breast with golden

7 girdles. Then one of the four Beings handed to the seven angels seven golden vials full of the fury of God—of Him Who lives in the eternities of the 8 eternities. And the sanctuary was filled with smoke from the Majesty of God, and from His might; and no one was able to enter into the sanctuary until the completion of the seven plagues of the seven angels.

16 Then I heard a loud voice from the sanctuary, saying to the seven angels,

"Go and pour out upon the earth the seven vials of the fury of God."

Then the first went, and emptied 2 his vial upon the earth; and a loathsome and foul ulcer appeared upon the men who were branded with the mark of the beast, and who worshipped his image.

Then the second emptied his vial 3 into the sea; and it became as blood of a corpse; and every spirit of life in the sea died.

Then the third emptied his vial into 4 the rivers and the water-springs; and they became blood. I also heard the 5 angel of the waters, saying,

"You are righteous,
The Existent, and Who was,
THE HOLY,
In these Your decisions!
Because they poured out the 6
blood of saints and prophets;
Therefore You have given them blood to drink.
They deserve it!" 7

I also heard the attendant of the altar saying,

"Yes, O Lord God, the Almighty!
True and righteous are Your judgments."

Then the fourth emptied his vial 8 upon the sun; and it was given to it to scorch mankind by fire. And men were 9 scorched by a great heat; and they reviled the name of that God Who controls these plagues; but they changed not their minds to give Him glory.

Then the fifth emptied his vial 10 upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became dark. And they gnawed their tongues in anguish; and they reviled the God of heaven 11 on account of their anguish and their wounds; but they did not turn from their practices.

Then the sixth emptied his vial 12 upon the mighty river Euphrates; and its water was dried up, so that a road might be prepared for the kings from the rising sun.

I next saw proceeding from the 13 mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three foul Spirits resembling frogs—for they are 14 spirits of demons—producing signs which they cause to be sent out to the kings of the whole habitable world, to muster them for the war of the great day of God, the Almighty!

"See! I approach like a thief. 15
Happy the watcher who clings to his

- clothing, so that he may not walk naked, and they should see his shame."
- 16 They accordingly mustered them to the place which in Hebrew is named Har-Megeddon.
- 17 Then the seventh emptied his vial upon the air: and out of the sanctuary, from the throne, there proceeded a loud voice, saying,
"It has come!"
- 18 And there were lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and there was a great earthquake, such as had not been since men existed upon the earth; such an earthquake—so great!
- 19 And the great city was rent into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and Babylon the great was remembered in the sight of God, to receive the wine-cup of the fury of His indignation. And every island vanished; and hills were not found.
- 20 And mighty hail, like talent-weights,¹ fell from the heaven upon mankind; and the men blasphemed God on account of the plague of the hail; because its plague was very great.
- 17 Then one of the seven angels who had the seven vials came and spoke with me, saying: "Come here! I will show you the sentence on the great harlot who sits upon many waters; she with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and who has made all the inhabitants of the earth drunk with her wine of fornication!" And in spirit he conveyed me to a desert; where I observed a Woman sitting upon a scarlet beast, full of names of blasphemy, possessing seven heads and ten horns. The Woman also was dressed in purple and scarlet; and bedecked with gold, jewels, and pearls; holding in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filth of her prostitutions; with a name written upon her forehead:
- A SECRET; BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF THE HARLOTS, AND OF THE FILTH OF THE EARTH.
- 6 I also saw that the Woman was drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And on seeing her, I wondered with a great wonder!
- 7 But the angel said to me, "Because of what do you wonder? I will explain to you the secret of the Woman, as well as of the beast which carries her, possessing the seven heads and the ten horns. The beast which you see was, and is not; and is about to ascend from the abyss, and proceed to destruction. And the dwellers upon the earth, the name of whom is not recorded in the Book of Life from the foundation of the world, shall be astonished when they witness the beast that was, and is not, and yet confronts them.

"Approach, you who have intelligence and understanding! The seven heads are seven hills, upon which the woman sits. And there are seven 10 kings: the five are fallen, the one exists, and the other has not appeared; but when he does appear, he must continue a short time. And as for the 11 beast that was, and is not, he himself is the eighth, and is from the seven; but he goes into destruction. The ten 12 horns, also, which you observed, are ten kings, who as yet have inherited no kingdom; but with the beast they are invested with kingly authority for a single hour. They will have one 13 mind, and they will depute their power and authority to the beast. They will also wage war against the 14 Lamb, but the Lamb shall conquer them; because He is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and those upon His side are chosen, and picked out, and faithful."

Then he said to me: "The waters 15 which you observed, where the harlot sits, are races, and crowds, and nations, and languages. The horns, 16 too, which you saw upon the beast, they shall hate the harlot and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall devour her flesh, and shall consume her with fire; because God has 17 put it into their hearts to effect His own purpose, to act in harmony in surrendering their royalty to the beast, until the intentions of God are completed. And the woman which 18 you saw is herself the great city which dominates over the kings of the earth."

After this, I saw another angel descending from the heaven, possessing great authority; and the earth was illuminated with his majesty. And 2 with a voice of strength he proclaimed:

"Babylon the great has fallen, has fallen!

And has become a refuge of demons;

A haunt for every malign spirit;
And a hold for every filthy and hateful bird!

- 3 "Because every nation has been made drunk by her with the fury of her fornication; and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her; and the merchants of the earth have been enriched by the power of her luxury."
- 4 Then I heard another voice from the heaven, saying,
"Come out of her, My people!—that you may not be partakers with her sins, and that you may not 5 become recipients of her plagues: for her sins are piled up as high as heaven; and God has remembered her wickedness. Repay to her what she has given; and redouble it in accordance with her doings. The cup which she has poisoned, poison it double for her."
7 As she has glorified herself, and luxuriated, give her in the same way torment and anguish; because in her heart she says, 'I sit a queen; I am not a widow, and shall never see suffering.' Because of this, in a single hour, her plagues have come!—death, anguish, and famine, and to be burnt in fire; because God her Judge is mighty!
- 9 "And the kings of the earth who committed fornication and luxuriated with her shall weep and wail over her, when they see the smoke of her burning. Standing afar in fear of her torment, they shall cry: 'Alas! alas! the great city Babylon, the mighty city! How has your judgment come in a single hour!'
- 11 "The merchants of the earth shall weep and grieve for her, because of 12 their cargo none buys any more; their cargo of gold, and of silver, and jewels, and pearls, and cotton, and purple, and silk, and scarlet; and all sweet wood, and ivory toys, and all products of costly wood; and of brass,
13 and of iron, and marble; and cinnamon, and cloves, and scents, and myrrh; and incense, and wine, and oil; and fine flour, and wheat; and cattle, and sheep, and horses, and carriages; and bodies and souls 14 of men! And the season for delighting in the lusts your soul desired is gone from you; and the dazzle and splendour are perished from you; nor shall they be found again.
- 15 "The traders in them who were enriched by her will stand afar off in terror of her torment, crying, grieving, 16 and exclaiming: 'Alas! alas! the great city! she was clad in cotton, and purple, and scarlet, and adorned with gold, and jewels, and pearls! How, 17 in a single hour, has all this wealth withered!' And every shipowner, and pilot, and sailor, and trader by sea, stood at a distance, and cried, watch- 18 ing the smoke of her burning, exclaiming: 'What could be compared to the great city!'

"And they will throw dust upon their 19 heads, shouting, crying, and grieving, exclaiming, 'Alas! alas! the great city, in which all who had ships in the sea were enriched from her treasures! How in one hour has she become a desert!'

"Rejoice over her, heaven, and the 20 saints, and the apostles, and the prophets! because God has decided to execute the judgment upon her for you."

Then a single powerful angel took 21 up a stone, like a large millstone, and threw into the sea, saying: "Thus with a crash shall Babylon, the great city, be dashed down, and never be found again! And the sound of the 22 harpers, and musicians, and pipers, and trumpeters shall never again be heard in you; and any workman shall never again be found in you; and the sound of a mill shall never again be heard in you.

"And light of a lamp shall never 23 again shine in you; and voice of a bridegroom and bride shall never again be heard in you; although your merchants were the princes of the earth: because by your poisonous charm all nations were deluded. And in her was found blood of pro- 24 phets, and saints, and of all those murdered upon the earth."

After this, I heard the mighty voice, 19 as of a great throng in the heaven, exclaiming:

"Hallelujah! the salvation, the majesty, and the might of our God! because His judgments are true and 2 right; for He has convicted the great harlot who corrupted the earth with her fornication; and He has avenged the blood of His servants by her own hand!" And again they shouted 3 "Hallelujah! for her smoke shall go up through the eternities of the eternities."

And the twenty-four elders and the 4

- four Beings bowed, and paid homage to God, Who sits upon the throne, saying: "So be it; hallelujah!"
- 5 Then a voice came out from the throne, saying: "Praise our God, all His servants!—you who reverence Him, the small and the great."
- 6 I also heard, like the voice of a great throng, and as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of terrific thunders, saying: "Hallelujah! for the Lord God Almighty has reigned! Let us rejoice and be glad, and give the honour to Him; for the marriage of the Lamb has come; and His wife has prepared herself. And it has been granted her to be robed in a pure radiant robe; for the robe is the righteousness of the holy."
- 9 Then he said to me: "Write, Happy are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb." And he further told me, "These are the true declarations of God." So I fell down at his feet to pay him homage. But he exclaimed, "Refrain from it! I am your fellow-servant, and of your brethren who possess the evidence of Jesus. Worship God; for the evidence of Jesus is the life of preaching."
- 11 I also saw the heaven opened: and a WHITE HORSE appeared, and its Rider was called Faithful and True; for in justice He declares and wages war. His eyes were like a fiery flame; and upon His head were many crowns, having a name inscribed, which none except Himself could understand;
- 13 and was dressed in a robe sprinkled with blood; and His appointed title is
- 14 —THE WORD OF GOD. The armies in the heaven also followed Him upon white horses dressed in fine, pure, white muslin. And he had a sharp sword drawn out of its sheath, so that with it he might smite the heathen. And He will govern them with an iron rod; and will tread the winepress of the fury of the indignation of the
- 16 All-ruling God. And upon His robe and upon His thigh was written a name.
- KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.
- 17 Then I saw a single angel stationed in the sun; and he shouted with a loud voice, calling to all the birds that fly in mid-air: "Come, be collected for
- 18 the great banquet of God; so that you may devour the flesh of kings;

the flesh of commanders; the flesh of the mighty; the flesh of horses and their riders; and flesh of all, both free and enslaved, small and great!"

And I saw the beast, and the kings 19 of the earth, and their armies, mustered to wage war against the Rider upon the horse, and against His army. But the beast was overpowered; and 20 with him the false prophet who in his sight produced the wonders with which he deceived those who had received the: and of the beast, and those who adored his image. These two were thrown alive into the fiery Lake burning with Divine anger. And the 21 remainder were slaughtered by the sword of the Rider upon the horse, which He drew from its sheath; and all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

The Millennium—and Afterwards.

Then I saw an angel descending 20 from the heaven, having the key of the pit, and a great chain in his hand. And he overpowered the dragon, the 2 old Serpent, who is the Devil, and Satan, and secured him for a thousand years; and hurled him into the 3 pit, and closed and sealed it above him, so that he should no longer deceive the nations until the completion of the thousand years. After this, he must be liberated for a short time.

Then I saw thrones, and they sat 4 upon them; and a charge was given to them and the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the evidence of Jesus, and because of the Message of God; and whoever had not paid homage to the beast, nor his image, and had not received his mark upon their forehead and upon their hand—that they should live and reign with Christ a thousand years. (The 5 remainder of the dead will not live until the completion of the thousand years.) This is the first resurrection. Happy 6 and holy is the participator in the first resurrection!—over these the second death has no authority; but they shall be ministers of God and of the Messiah, and they reign with Him a thousand years.

And when the thousand years are 7 completed, Satan will be liberated from his prison; and shall come out to 8 deceive the nations who are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to muster them to the war: their number being as the sand of the sea. And they went up over the breadth of the earth, and encircled the fortress of the holy, and the beloved city. Then fire out of heaven descended and consumed them. And the Devil who deceived them was hurled into the lake of Divine fire, where also were the beast and the false prophet; and they shall be tortured day and night through the ages of the ages.

The Judgment at the Great White Throne, and the Second Death.

11 Then I saw a great white throne, and Him who sat on it, from Whose presence the earth and the sky fled; and no place was found for them. I also saw the dead, the great and the small, stoned in sight of the throne; and books were opened. And another book was opened, which is that of Life. And the dead were judged according to their actions from the entries in the 13 books. The sea also delivered up the dead who were in it; and Death and the Grave delivered up the dead who were in them; and each of them was 14 judged according to his doings. Then Death and the Grave were thrown into the lake of fire: that is the second 15 death—the lake of fire. And if any one was not found recorded in the Book of Life, he was hurled into the lake of fire.

The New Sky and New Earth.

21 Afterwards I saw a new sky and a new earth: because the former sky and the former earth had passed away; and the sea existed no longer. 2 And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, descending out of the heaven from God, arrayed like a bride 3 adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice, issuing from the throne, saying, "Now the tabernacle of God is with mankind; and He will encamp among them; and those people shall be His; and God Himself will be 4 with them. And He shall wipe every tear from their eyes; and death shall exist no more; nor anguish, nor crying, nor grief, shall exist any longer. The former conditions have passed away." 5 And the Occupant of the throne said, "Behold, I make all things new." And He commanded me, "Write:

because these words are trustworthy and true." Then He said to me, "It 6 has come! I, the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. I will freely give to the thirsty from the fountain of the water of life. The 7 conqueror shall inherit these; and I will be a God to him, and he shall be a son to Me. But as for the cowardly, 8 and faithless, and depraved, and murderers, and fornicators, and poisoners, and idolaters, and all liars—their lot is in the lake burning with Divine fire: which is the second death."

The Holy City Described.

And one of the seven angels, who 9 had the seven vials, which were filled with the seven last plagues, came; and he spoke with me, saying: "Come here! I will show you the Bride, the wife of the Lamb." And he conveyed me in spirit upon a great and high 10 mountain; and showed me Jerusalem, the holy city, coming down out of the heaven from God, possessing the Di- 11 vine glory. Her lustre resembled a very precious jewel—that of a crystalline jasper. It had a great and high 12 wall; it had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names inscribed upon them, which are those of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel. Upon the east were three gates; and 13 upon the north three gates; and upon the south three gates; and upon the west three gates. And the wall of the 14 city had twelve foundation courses, and upon them twelve names, those of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. And 15 the speaker with me had a golden measuring rod, so that he might measure the city, and its gates and its wall. And 16 the city was designed as a square, its length being the same as its breadth. And he measured the city with the rod, twelve thousand stadium; 1 the length, the breadth, and the width of it being exactly equal. He also measured 17 its wall, one hundred and forty-four cubits, 2 the measure of a man who is an angel. And the buttresses of its 18 walls, jasper, and the city pure gold, resembling pure glass. The foundations 19 of the wall of the city were decorated with every precious stone. The first course jasper; the second, sapphire the third, chalcedony; the fourth, 20 emerald; the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, topaz; the tenth, chrysoprasus; the eleventh, ja- 21 cynth; the twelfth, amethyst. And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; each separate gate a single pearl. And the broad-way of the city was pure gold, 22 like transparent glass. And I saw no Sanctuary in it; for the Lord, the God, the Almighty, and the Lamb, are its 23 Sanctuary. And the city has no need of the sun, nor yet of the moon to shine upon it; for the glory of God illuminates it, and the Lamb is its lamp. 24 And the nations shall walk by its light; and the kings of the earth shall bring their splendour to it. And its gates shall not be closed daily, for night is 26 not there. And they shall present the glory and the honour of the nations in it. But there shall never enter into 27 it any profane, or who practises depravity and falsehood; none but those who are recorded in the Lamb's Book of Life.

22 He also pointed out to me a river of living water, sparkling like crystal, flowing in the centre of its broad-way out from the throne of God and of the 2 Lamb; and a tree of life, producing twelve crops, with the river on both sides. Each month yielded its own crop; and the leaves of the tree were 3 for the healing of the nations. And no accursed thing shall any longer exist. And the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and His ser- 4 vants shall serve Him, and shall look upon His face; and His name shall 5 be upon their foreheads. Night shall exist no longer; and they have no need of lamp-light, nor sunlight, for the Lord God shall illuminate them; and they shall reign through the eternities of the eternities.

The Speedy Return of the Lord.

6 After this he said to me: "These statements are trustworthy and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, has sent His messenger to make known to His servants 7 what must come quickly. And behold, I come soon! Happy is the keeper of the statements of the prophecy of this book."

Concluding Address.

And I, John, heard and saw these 8 things. And when I had heard and seen, I bowed down to pay homage at the feet of the messenger who made them known to me. But he exclaimed 9 to me, "Refrain from it; I am your fellow-servant, and of your brethren the prophets, and of those who preserve the statements of this book. Worship God."

He further said to me, "Do not 10 seal up the statements of the prophecy of this book; for the period is at hand. He who is unjust, let him be 11 unjust still; he who is vile, let him be vile still; he who is righteous, let him practise righteousness still; and he who is holy, let him be holy still."—

"Behold, I come soon! and My 12 wages are with Me, to pay to each as his own work is. I, the Alpha and 13 the Omega; the First and the Last; the Beginning and the End.—

"Happy are those who wash their 14 robes, so that they may be allowed to approach the tree of life, and to enter into the city by its gates. Outside are the dogs, and the 15 magicians, and the fornicators, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and every one loving and making a lie.

"I, Jesus, have sent My Messenger 16 to you, to declare these events in the assemblies. I am the Root and the Offspring of David, the radiant, the Morning Star."

The Lord's Last Invitation to the Unsaved.

"And the Spirit and the bride say, 17 'Come!' And let the hearer respond 'Come!' And he who is thirsty, let him come; whoever may desire, let him accept the water of life for nothing."

The Last Solemn Warning.

I certify to every one listening to 18 the statements of the prophecy of this book—If any one shall make an addition to it, God shall lay upon him the plagues which are recorded in this book; and if any one shall take 19 away from the statements of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his portion from the tree of life, and from the city of holiness described in this book.

The Last Promise of the Lord Jesus to the Church.

20 He who witnessed these things says, "Yes; I am coming soon." So be it; come, Lord Jesus!

The blessing of the Lord Jesus con- 21
tinue with the holy. Amen.
